NUERNBERG, GERMANY, APRIL 17-(DELAYED)-(AP)-JULIUS STREICHER, THE NAZIS' MASTER JEW-BAITER, WHO DIRECTED THE DEFENSES OF THIS ONE-TIME SITE OF NAZI CONGRESS SPECTACLES, HAS FLED THE CITY.

NUERNBERG WAS FALLING TONIGHT TO THE U.S. 45TH INFANTRY DIVISION, WHICH CAUGHT THE NAZIS IN A SURPRISE MANEUVER, AND STARTED MOVING THROUGH THE WOODS AT THE EASTERN EDGE OF HITLER'S GREAT SPORTS ARENA, BUILT TO ACCOMMODATE THE ANNUAL PARTY CONGRESS.

BUT GERMAN OFFICIALS INSIDE THE CITY IGNORED LEAFLETS AND TELEPHONE CALLS DEMANDING THEIR SURRENDER.

STREICHER LEFT THREE NIGHTS AGO AND WAS SUCCEEDED BY KREISLEITER NAUMEISTER.

THE 45TH MOVED THROUGH NUERNBERG TOWARD A JUNCTION WITH THE THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION DRIVING ON THE CITY FROM THE NORTH.

THE MANEUVER WHICH CAUGHT THE GERMANS OFF BALANCE CAME WHEN F COMPANY OF THE 180TH INFANTRY REGIMENT STARTED MOVING THROUGH THE SPORTS ARENA AREA SHORTLY AFTER 4 P.M. IT LINKED WITH A COMPANY, WHICH ALREADY WAS WELL INTO THE TOWN.

NUERNBERG WAS SUBJECTED TO AN AERIAL POUNDING AND A HEAVY ARTILLERY BARRAGE LAST NIGHT. THEN JUST BEFORE DUSK TONIGHT HEAVY GUNS FROM A 10-MILE PERIMETER AROUND THE CITY DIRECTED INTENSE FIRE ON PIN-POINTED TARGETS.

AHEAD OF US IN THE CITY WERE ANYWHERE FROM 4,000 TO 15,000 NAZIS BEHIND US NAZI PRISONERS POURED UP THE ROAD TO PRISONER CAGES.

MANILA,APRIL 18-(AP)-AN ARMY COURIER MUST BE A RESOURCEFUL MAN SOMETIMES.

CAPT.FREDERICK GERMAN, LARCHMONT,N.Y., PHOTOGRAPHIC OFFICER ATTACHED TO GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, WAS ASSIGNED THE TASK OF FLYING SOME 650 MILES TO THE SCENE OF THE MINDANAO INVASION MARCH 10. HE WAS TO PICK UP THE COPY OF NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS COVERING THE OPERATION.

HE RETURNED TO MANILA WITH THE EYEWITNESS DESCRIPTIONS IN TIME TO COINCIDE WITH THE HEADQUARTERS' ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE OPERATION.

GERMAN MADE IT WITH HOURS TO SPARE, BUT NOT WITHOUT CONSIDERABLE ADVENTURE. WHEN IT WAS LEARNED GUERRILLAS HAD CAPTURED THE MALABANG AIRSTRIP, ABOUT 80 AIRLINE MILES WEST OF DAVAO, PLANS WERE CHANGED FOR THE COURIER.

INSTEAD OF LANDING ON THE WATER IN A CATALINA FLYING BOAT, GERMAN WAS FLOWN IN ABOARD A LAND PLANE. THE PILOT CIRCLED THE STRIP GINGERLY FOUR OR FIVE TIMES, THEN SET HIS SHIP DOWN ON THE MALABANG RUNWAY GROWN HIGH WITH GRASS.

GERMAN WAS DISMAYED TO DISCOVER ONLY A FEW GROUND PERSONNEL AND GUERRILLAS ON THE FIELD. THE REPORTERS WERE ALL AT PARANG, SOME 35 MILES BY ROAD TO THE SOUTH WHERE THE MAIN SHOW WAS TAKING PLACE.

THE COURIER DID SOME QUICK THINKING. HE INDUCED A FILIPINO FISHERMAN TO ROW HIM TO A SMALL U.S.LANDING CRAFT STANDING OFFSHORE IN MORO GULF. THE LANDING CRAFT TOOK HIM TO A SUBMARINE CHASER WHOSE COMMANDER WAS PERSUADED TO DELIVER GERMAN TO THE NAVY FLAGSHIP OFF PARANG.

ARRIVING AFTER DARK, GERMAN OBTAINED THE STORIES OF NAVAL CORRESPONDENTS, RUSSELL BRINES, ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER, AND OTHERS WHO MADE THE LANDING WITH THE TROOPS. THAT LEFT ONE MAN--RICHARD BERGHOLZ, ALSO OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS--WHOSE STORY WAS STILL NOT COLLECTED. BERGHOLZ WAS ABOARD THE COMMAND SHIP OF LT. GEN.ROBERT L.EICHELBERGER, COMMANDER OF THE U.S.EIGHTH ARMY, 40 MILES AT SEA.

THE COURIER SECURED A PT BOAT, MADE THE CONNECTION WITH BERGHOLZ AND DASHED BACK TO THE MALABANG AIRSTRIP. HE FLEW BACK TO MANILA WHERE HE WAS MET BY MAJ.GORDON SINYKIN, MADISON, WIS., AND THE COPY WAS TAKEN BY JEEP TO HEADQUARTERS IN TIME FOR TRANSMISSION TO THE UNITED STATES.

ABOARD A U.S. CARRIER OFF MINDANAO,APRIL 17-(DELAYED)-(AP)-LT.GEN.ROBERT LAWRENCE EICHELBERGER, COMMANDER OF THE EIGHTH ARMY AND AMONG THE MOST EXPERIENCED AMERICAN GENERALS AT AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS, STOOD ON THE BRIDGE OF THIS WARSHIP WHILE THE FIRST REPORTS POURED IN FROM THE PARANG, MINDANAO, BEACHHEAD.

HE WAS SERIOUS AT FIRST, THEN AN OCCASIONAL GRIN TOUCHED UP HIS FACE AS HE LISTENED TO RADIO MESSAGES FROM CIRCLING AIRCRAFT AND COMMENTED:

"LOOKS LIKE THE NIPS ARE GOING TO RUN AWAY FROM US AGAIN JUST LIKE THEY DID AT ZAMBOANGA, CEBU AND ILOILO. WELL, WE'RE GOING TO CHASE THEM ALL THE WAY ACROSS THE ISLAND OR UNTIL THEY WANT TO STOP AND GIVE US A FIGHT."

HE WAS WATCHING THE 36TH AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION UNDER HIS ARMY COMMAND. ALL BUT TWO HAVE BEEN STAGED SINCE JAN. 1. MANY WERE SMALL AND A FEW WERE PRETTY BIG BUT EACH OPERATION REQUIRED CAREFUL PLANNING AND EXECUTION WHICH CHARACTERIZES GENERAL EICHELBERGER'S LANDINGS.

THE COMMANDER WHO OUTFOUGHT THE JAPANESE AT BUNA, SANANANDA, HOLLANDIA AND BIAK STOOD QUIETLY BY WHILE THE SQUAWK BOX BLARED: "THE FIRST WAVE LANDED UNOPPOSED AT 9:01 A.M." THEN, "THE SECOND WAVE LANDED AT 9:03 AND STILL NO OPPOSITION." SO IT WENT THROUGH SUCCEEDING WAVES DURING THE ADVANCES THROUGH PARANG TOWN AND TOWARD COTOBATO.

HIDEKI TOJO--EXERTED CONSTANT PRESSURE ON HIM TO PARTICIPATE IN THE PHILIPPINES PUPPET GOVERNMENT. HE REFUSED.

ONCE, ROXAS SAID, HE WAS MARKED FOR EXECUTION BUT A JAPANESE COMMANDER RESCINDED THE ORDER.

THE SMALL, DYNAMIC GENERAL, IDOL OF A LARGE SECTOR OF THE FILIPINO PEOPLE, WAS CAPTURED ON MINDANAO ISLAND IN MAY, 1942.

IN AN EXCLUSIVE ASSOCIATED PRESS INTERVIEW TODAY HE SAID HE WAS CALLED TO TWO CONFERENCES IN MANILA WITH TOJO. THE FORMER JAPANESE PREMIER SENT HIS OWN PHYSICIAN TO ATTEND THE FILIPINO GENERAL FOR AN ILLNESS WHICH ROXAS SAID WAS MOSTLY FEIGNED.

"THE JAPANESE APPLIED STRONG PRESSURE TO GET ME INTO THE PHILIPPINES GOVERNMENT," ROXAS SAID. "I ARGUED INSISTENTLY THAT I HAD TAKEN AN OATH OF ALLEGIANCE TO THE UNITED STATES AND THE FILIPINO PEOPLE WERE FULLY AWARE OF MY POSITION.

"THEY WOULD SAY THAT I EITHER WAS A TRAITOR OR DIDN'T HAVE THE COURAGE OF MY CONVICTIONS. I TOLD THE JAPANESE THAT IN EITHER CASE--WHETHER THE PEOPLE THOUGHT I WAS A TRAITOR OR A COWARD--I WOULD LOSE MY FOLLOWERS AND THE JAPANESE PURPOSE WOULD BE DEFEATED."

ROXAS SAID HE WAS NEVER SUBJECTED TO PHYSICAL ABUSE EXCEPT THAT THE JAPANESE WOULD NEVER LET HIM SLEEP WHEN THEY WERE PUTTING THE PRESSURE ON.

"THEY WOULD QUESTION ME FOR TWO OR THREE DAYS AND NIGHTS UNTIL I WAS EXHAUSTED," HE EXPLAINED. "THEN WHEN I WENT TO MY CELL A GUARD WITH A BAYONET TURNED A FLASHLIGHT ON MY FACE ABOUT EVERY FIVE MINUTES."

ROXAS LEARNED THAT HIS EXECUTION HAD BEEN ORDERED BUT WAS DELAYED BECAUSE THE CLOSEST JAPANESE SYMBOLS COULD COME TO HIS NAME WAS "ROCOCOS". BEFORE THEY HAD FIGURED OUT ANOTHER NAME, WHICH THE NIPPONESE SEEMED TO FEEL WAS NECESSARY BEFORE CARRYING OUT THE EXECUTION, A NEW COMMANDER CANCELED THE ORDER.

THE GENERAL SAID THE PUPPET GOVERNMENT WAS UNDER CONSTANT PRESSURE FROM CONQUERING AUTHORITIES AND TOOK MOST OF ITS ACTIONS UNDER DURESS.

AT THE END OF THE REFUGEE TRAIL FROM BAGUIO,LUZON,APRIL 18-(AP)AN ALMOST ENDLESS STREAM OF WEARY REFUGEES FROM BAGUIO HAVE BEEN COMING FOR DAYS OVER THE TORTUROUS 25-MILE TRAIL FROM THE ALMOST TOTALLY WRECKED FORMER SUMMER CAPITAL AND RESORT. THEY INCLUDE CHILDREN AND OLDSTERS, RICH AND POOR ALIKE.

THEY REPORTED THE BEAUTIFUL CITY IN RUINS FROM AMERICAN BOMBINGS IN THE CAMPAIGN TO ANNIHILATE THE JAPANESE STRONGHOLDS IN NORTHERN LUZON.

ALTHOUGH SAD AT HEART AT THE LOSS OF MANY FRIENDS, THEY WERE ALMOST OVERCOME WITH JOY AT THE SIGHT OF THEIR FIRST AMERICAN SOLDIERS.

AMONG THE HUNDREDS OF FILIPINOS ARE NUMEROUS AMERICANS, EUROPEANS, BRITISH AND CHINESE.

MOST OF THEM WERE ON THE TRAIL THREE DAYS, EVADING JAPANESE AND STRUGGLING ONWARD TO THE 33RD DIVISION'S LINES WHEN IT SEEMED EVERY HILL WOULD BE THEIR LAST.

THREE BELGIAN CATHOLIC NUNS AT THE FOOT OF THE TRAIL WERE SO FOOTSORE THEY COULD HARDLY TRAVEL.

MOTHER EMILE WAS WOUNDED WITH BOMB FRAGMENTS AND WAS TRAPPED SEVEN HOURS IN WRECKAGE. THE NUNS WITH HER WERE MOTHERS M.AMBROISE AND M.LONGINE.

OTHER PARTIES INCLUDED FOUR MEMBERS OF THE JAPANESE-SPONSORED PHILIPPINES' CABINET AND BRIG.GEN.MANUEL ROXAS WHO SAID HE WAS TAKEN TO BAGUIO UNDER GUARD ALONG WITH PUPPET PRESIDENT LAUREL AND HIS CABINET SHORTLY BEFORE THE INVASION OF LUZON.

ROXAS, WHO IS THE IDOL OF MANY FILIPINOS, IMMEDIATELY INFORMED

GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR OF HIS SAFE RETURN.
SOME OF THE REFUGEES WERE LOST OVER THE PRECIPITOUS ROUTE AND SOME DIED ON THE TRAIL. ONE IGOROTE DIED WITHIN A MILE OF SAFETY AFTER BEING REDUCED TO ALMOST SKIN AND BONES.
ELDERLY AMERICANS WERE THE ONLY ONES LEFT IN BAGUIO AFTER THE INTERNEES WERE TRANSFERRED TO MANILA'S BILIBID PRISON IN JANUARY.
THE REFUGEES SAID THE JAPANESE CONVERTED BAGUIO INTO A DEFENSIVE POSITION STORING AMMUNITION AND SETTING GUNS ADJACENT TO CHURCHES AND HOSPITALS.
THEY REPORTED THAT THE JAPANESE SOLDIERS WERE SO AFRAID OF AMERICAN PLANES THAT THEY STAYED IN THEIR DUGOUTS MOST OF THE DAY.
AMONG THE REFUGEES WAS MILAGROS OSMENA, 34, DAUGHTER OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES. SHE HAD TO BE CARRIED THE LAST DAY ON THE TRAIL AND WAS THEN HOSPITALIZED.
EN ROUTE, MANY OF THE REFUGEES WERE SEARCHING BY STRAGGLING JAPANESE SOLDIERS AND ROBBED OF WATCHES, MONEY, VALUABLES AND FOODSTUFFS.

AFLOAT OFF OKINAWA, RYUKYUS, THURSDAY, APRIL 19-(AP)-OF 12 JAPANESE PLANES THAT ATTACKED AN AMERICAN WARSHIP OFF OKINAWA IN A RECENT HEAVY AIR STRIKE NOT ONE PLANE GOT AWAY, TWO OF THE SHIP'S CREW RELATED TODAY.
THE TWO CREWMEN WERE CHIEF BOATSWAINS MATE WILLIAM WASTENEY, 3435 CARDIFF AVE., CINCINNATI,OHIO, AND CHIEF WATER TENDER JOHN CARR, 50 LUCAS ST., PAWTUCKET,R.I.
"MARINE AND NAVY PLANES OVER US SHOT DOWN FIVE OF THE TWELVE. THE SHIPS' GUNFIRE GOT FIVE MORE," WASTENEY SAID, "ANOTHER MADE A SUICIDE DIVE ON US AND THE 12TH TRIED TO RAM US TOO BUT IT JUST MISSED AND CRASHED INTO THE SEA."
HE ADDED: "ONE OF OUR PLANES CAME RIGHT THROUGH OUR FIRE TO SHOOT DOWN ONE OF THE SUICIDE PLANES ONLY A 100 FEET AWAY FROM US."
SHIP'S SERVICE LAUNDRYMAN HOLMES POSTON, OF MOORESVILLE,N.C., ADDED: "HOW THE PILOT HAD THE GUTS TO FACE OUR FIRE I DON'T KNOW. I'M GLAD TO SAY HE GOT OUT OF IT O.K. AFTER GETTING THE JAP."
OTHERS WHO HAD "A GRANDSTAND VIEW WE DIDN'T WANT" OF THE ATTACK WERE GUNNERS MATE 1/C NICHOLAS J.OLIVA OF DORCHESTER, MASS., SEAMAN 1/C WILLIAM J.ARNOLD, LEBANON,PA., SEAMAN 2/C ROBERT REHSE, WINTERHAVEN,FLA., SEAMAN 1/C BRUCE NOLL, 353 IRVING AVE., BRIDGETON,N.J., WATERTENDER 3/C JUSTIN LOUISON, HOUSATONIC,MASS.

ABOARD VICE ADM.RICHMOND K.TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF OKINAWA, THURSDAY, APRIL 18-(AP)-FLASHING A MIRROR "JUST FOR PRACTICE" ENS.JAY FINLEY, 424 SENECA ST., PALO ALTO,CALIF., CAUGHT A PILOT'S ATTENTION AND WAS RESCUED FROM JAPANESE WATERS AFTER FIVE DAYS IN A LIFE RAFT.

ANOTHER FLIER FROM THE SAME CARRIER, ENS.WILLIAM SANKEY OF 13781 SHERWOOD AVE., DETROIT,MICH., ALSO WAS RESCUED FROM ENEMY SEAS AFTER TWO HOURS.

THE MEN TOLD THEIR STORIES TO CORRESPONDENTS ON THIS SHIP TONIGHT.

FINLEY SAID: "I HAD BEEN OVER TOKYO TWICE WITHOUT SEEING ANTI-AIRCRAFT BUT I CERTAINLY SAW IT OVER KIKAI JIMA IN THE NORTHERN RYUKYUS APRIL 8.

"THE ACK-ACK KNOCKED OFF MY HELLCAT'S TAIL ASSEMBLY AND I BAILED OUT AT 300 FEET.

"I LANDED A MILE AND A HALF OFF KIKAI AND DRIFTED 50 MILES NORTHWARD IN FIVE DAYS.

"FRIENDLY PLANES FLEW OVER EVERY DAY WITHOUT SEEING ME. ONE DAY 14 JAPANESE PLANES TOOK OFF FROM KIKAI AND DIDN'T SEE ME EITHER.

"PLANES PASSED ONLY 500 YARDS OVER ME WITHOUT NOTICING ME SIGNAL WITH MY MIRROR. ON THE FIFTH DAY WHEN I SAW A PATROL BOMBER I DIDN'T THINK IT WOULD DO ANY GOOD BUT I SIGNALLED ANYWAY FOR PRACTICE.

"THE SEA WAS ROUGHT AND FOR A WHILE I THOUGHT THE PILOT WASN'T GOING TO LAND BUT FINALLY HE DID AND SPRUNG AN ENGINE MOUNT IN LANDING.

"THE CREW WAS DUBIOUS ABOUT GETTING OFF AGAIN BUT WE MADE IT."

SANKEY, THE SECOND PILOT RESCUED, SAID THAT FINLEY HAD BEEN GIVEN UP FOR LOST BEFORE HE HIMSELF WENT DOWN OFF AMAMI JIMA AFTER A HELLCAT RAID ON THAT ISLAND'S INSTALLATIONS, APRIL 15.

"MY PLANE WAS HIT RIGHT BEHIND THE COCKPIT AND CAUGHT FIRE. I BAILED OUT AT 3,000 FEET. A DIVE BOMBER DROPPED A LIFERAFT TO ME AND A DUMBO RESCUE PLANE PICKED ME UP WITHIN TWO HOURS."

B-29 COMMAND HEADQUARTERS,GUAM,THURSDAY,APRIL 19-(AP)-S/SGT. HENRY E.ERWIN OF BESSEMER,ALA., TODAY WAS AWARDED THE FIRST CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR EVER PRESENTED TO A B-29 CREWMAN.

ON A MISSION TO JAPAN APRIL 12, A FAULTY BOMB EXPLODED IN THE LAUNCHING TUBE AND SHOT BACK INTO THE PLANE STRIKING ERWIN IN THE FACE AND OBSCURING THE VISION OF [illegible] PILOT.

ERWIN REALIZING THAT THE PLANE WOULD BE LOST IF THE BURNING BOMB REMAINED IN THE PLANE PICKED IT UP AND CLASPED IT BETWEEN HIS FOREARM AND BODY AND GROPING WITH HIS BURNING HANDS TO THE PILOT'S COMPARTMENT HEAVED IT OUT OF THE WINDOW. THEN COMPLETELY AFLAME, HE FELL BACK ON THE FLOOR.

THE NATION'S HIGHEST MILITARY AWARD WAS PRESENTED TO "RED" BY MAJ.GEN.WILLIS H.HALE, COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE ARMY AIR FORCES, PACIFIC OCEAN AREAS. THE ONLY OTHERS PRESENT IN THE HOSPITAL ROOM WERE MAJ.GEN.CURTIS E.LEMAY, COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND, BRIG.GEN.THOMAS S.POWER OF FORT WORTH,TEX., COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE B-29S FROM GUAM AND ERWIN'S COMMANDING OFFICER AND FELLOW CREWMEN WHOSE LIVES HE SAVED.

ERWIN'S PHYSICAL REPORTED THAT IF HE PULLED THROUGH THE NEXT TEN DAYS WITHOUT COMPLICATIONS, HE HAD AN EXCELLENT CHANCE OF MAKING A NINETY PER CENT RECOVERY, INCLUDING HIS VISION. HE ADDED THAT ERWIN MIGHT GET BY WITH MINOR SCARS ON HIS FACE AND HANDS AND A MILD IMPAIRMENT OF THE RIGHT EYE.

APR 19 1945

IWO JIMA,APRIL 18 (AP)-IN A HOT LITTLE QUONSETT ON THIS UGLY LITTLE ASH HEAP LIVES A MAN WHO WEARS THREE HATS. HIS PILOTS SHOT DOWN THE FIRST JAPS IN THIS WAR, AND EXPECT TO SHOOT DOWN THE LAST. HE'S KNOWN TO THE TRADE AS BRIG.GEN.ERNEST MOORE, AND HIS THREE JOBS (THE SEPARATE HATS ARE FIGURATIVE) ARE:

COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE SUNSETTERS--THE SEVENTH FIGHTER COMMAND, WHOSE P-51 MUSTANGS HAVE BEEN ROAMING OVER JAPAN OF LATE.

AIR BASES COMMANDER ON IWO JIMA, COMMANDING ITS THREE AIRFIELDS.

AIR DEFENSE COMMANDER, IWO JIMA.

ALL THREE HATS FIT PRETTY WELL, SINCE GENERAL MOORE WAS A STAFF OFFICER OF THE HAWAIIAN AIR FORCE BEFORE PEARL HARBOR WAS ATTACKED, IS A VETERAN FIGHTER PILOT AND PARTICIPATED IN PIONEERING FLIGHTS OF THE FIRST B-17S.

MANY OF THE MUSTANG PILOTS NOW WITH HIM ON IWO JIMA, WHO HAVE BEEN ESCORTING B-29S TO TOKYO, WERE FLYING WITH HIM IN THE GILBERTS, SAIPAN, MIDWAY, OR CANTON.

GENERAL MOORE, NICKNAMED MICKEY FOR THE MOUSE, HAS BEEN IN THE CENTRAL PACIFIC SINCE 1937. WHEN B-17S WENT FROM HAWAII TO MIDWAY, TO WAKE, TO PORT MORESBY, TO DARWIN, TO MANILA IN SEPTEMBER, 1941, GENERAL MOORE WENT ALONG. HE'S SOMETHING OF A LONG-RANGED FIGHTER PIONEER, TOO, FOR IN 1942 HIS P-40S FLEW THE THEN-INCREDIBLE DISTANCE OF 1,250 MILES FROM HAWAII TO MIDWAY.

HE FIRST MET HIS WIFE MAXINE WHEN SHE WAS SIXTEEN AND A STUDENT AT STEPHENS COLLEGE, MISSOURI. HE WAS SEVENTEEN AND ATTENDED THE UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI.

"I SAW HER AGAIN WHEN SHE WAS 23," THE GENERAL EXPLAINS WITH A GRIN. "RIGHT THEN I DECIDED I WAS GOING TO MARRY HER." HE DID, APRIL 4, 1934. SHE AND HER DAUGHTER LIVE AT (2115 P STREET, NW), WASHINGTON, D.C.

HE SPENT EIGHT DAYS WITH THEM LAST NOVEMBER, WHEN HE WAS ENROUTE TO ENGLAND TO STUDY LONG RANGE FIGHTER OPERATIONS IN PREPARATION FOR 1945'S P-51 BLOWS AT JAPAN. HE DIDN'T CELEBRATE HIS WEDDING ANNIVERSARY, HE ACKNOWLEDGED; "BUT I DID HAVE A LITTLE PARTY LAST APRIL 7, WHEN THE BOYS GOT BACK FROM THEIR FIRST TOKYO STRIKE."

HE DIDN'T ADD THAT HE HAD STARTED TO MAKE THE TRIP TO TOKYO WITH HIS BOYS. ENGINE TROUBLE SENT HIM BACK.

BORN DEC.23, 1907, AT CARRUTHERSVILLE, MO., HE WAS APPOINTED TO WEST POINT WHERE IN 1931 HE CAPTAINED THE ACADEMY TRACK TEAM AND SET AN ACADEMY RECORD WHICH STILL STANDS--9.7 SECONDS FOR THE 100-YARD DASH. FROM WEST POINT HE WAS ASSIGNED TO THE AIR FORCE AND WAS IN THE FIRST CLASS TO ENTER RANDOLPH FIELD. HE WON HIS WINGS IN 1932.

B58KX

SINCE THEN HE'S FLOWN "IN FORTY OR FIFTY TYPES OF PLANES, I GUESS."

HOW MANY SMASH-UPS? THE GENERAL JUST GRINS AND RAPS ON HIS WOODEN TABLETOP. NOT A ONE? "NOPE!"

HE'S MADE ONLY ONE FORCED LANDING THAT WAS AT ALL ROUGH, HE SAID.

IT WAS THE FIGHTER PLANES OF GENERAL MOORE WHO SHOT DOWN THE FIRST DOZEN JAPS OF THE WAR. THAT WAS IN HAWAII, DEC.7, 1941.

"I SPENT A HELL OF A LONG TIME SITTING BACK THERE DEFENDING HAWAII," HE EXPLAINS. MEANWHILE, HE SAID, "I KEPT LETTING A LOT OF MY BEST BOYS GO--TO THE SOUTH PACIFIC, OR THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, AND SOME EVEN WOUND UP EVENTUALLY IN EUROPE--ANYWHERE WHERE THEY COULD GET INTO A GOOD SCRAP."

HIS NO.1 JOB TODAY MUST BE A PRETTY FAIR SCRAP, HOWEVER, QUITE A FEW OF THOSE OLDTIME STUDENT PILOTS OF HIS HAVE BEEN WRITING HIM FROM ODD CORNERS OF THE WAR WORLD, AND THEY WANT TO COME BECK--TO GET IN ON THE 1945 AERIAL WAR ON JAPAN.

THE SEVENTH FIGHTER COMMAND, INCIDENTALLY, IS THE ONLY COMMAND WHICH ISN'T PART OF AN AIRFORCE. IT WAS DETACHED FROM THE SEVENTH AIR FORCE AND SET UP ITS OWN HOUSE ON IWO JIMA--TO HIT JAPAN, UNDER AAFPOA (ARMY AIR FORCES, PACIFIC OCEAN AREAS).

NOBODY KNOWS WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO PACIFIC AIR COMMANDS, WHAT WITH EUROPE'S VARIOUS SQUADRONS AND COMMANDS AT THE END OF THEIR TASKS--BUT THE SEVENTH FIGHTER COMMAND EXPECTS TO KEEP ON PLUGGING.

YOU CAN TELL THAT FROM THE BEAMING PRIDE WITH WHICH GENERAL MOORE EXHIBITS THE INSIGNIA THE BOYS HAVE ADOPTED--"THE SUNSETTERS."

(A BLUE NETWORK BROADCAST FROM GUAM BY JACK HOOLEY, HEARD IN SAN FRANCISCO, REPORTED PYLE WAS ENROUTE TO A SECTOR WHERE THERE WAS HEAVY FIGHTING WHEN HE MET HIS DEATH. IN COMPANY WITH LT.COL. JOSEPH COOLIDGE OF ARKANSAS, THEY WERE BUMPING ALONG A NARROW CORAL ROAD IN A JEEP WHEN AN ENEMY MACHINEGUN OPENED FIRE AS THEY ROUNDED A CORNER.

(THEY SCRAMBLED INTO A DITCH, THE BROADCAST CONTINUED, AND THE GUNFIRE CEASED. AFTER A FEW MINUTES THEY PEERED CAUTIOUSLY OVER THE EDGE AND THERE WAS ANOTHER BURST OF FIRE. COLONEL COOLIDGE DUCKED BACK AND AS HE TURNED TO PYLE SAW THAT IT WAS ALL OVER FOR THE HOMELY COMPANION OF GI'S FROM AFRICA TO OKINAWA. DEATH HAD COME INSTANTLY FROM THREE BULLET WOUNDS IN THE TEMPLE. THE COLONEL MANAGED TO CRAWL TO COVER AND MADE A REPORT.

(PYLE'S BODY WAS INACCESSIBLE FOR SOME TIME. FINALLY, A CHAPLIN ASKED FOR VOLUNTEERS TO BRING IT IN AND THREE TANKS MOVED UP. THEY WERE MET WITH SUCH STEADY FIRE THAT THE MEN INSIDE WERE HELPLESS. WHEN THEY RETIRED, CPL.ALEXANDER ROBERTS OF NEW YORK CITY VOLUNTEERED TO GO ALONE. HE CRAWLED TO THE JEEP AND FOUND PYLE DEAD, HIS FACE COVERED WITH HIS HELMET. HIS LEFT HANDED CLUTCHED A MARINE FATIGUE CAP.

(CORPORAL ROBERTS THEN LED THE CHAPLIN AND A LITTER BEARER TO THE SCENE AND THEY RETURNED THE BODY TO THE AMERICAN LINES FOUR HOURS LATER.)

PARIS, APRIL 18-(AP)-WORD OF THE DEATH OF ERNIE PYLE, FAMOUS WAR CORRESPONDENT, CAME TO OTHER WAR REPORTERS WHO HAD WORKED WITH HIM THROUGH THREE INVASIONS LIKE THE BURST OF ONE OF THOSE 88 SHELLS OF WHOSE TERROR HE OFTEN HAD WRITTEN.

TO WRITERS WHO HAD GONE WITH PYLE THROUGH NORTH AFRICA, ITALY AND FRANCE, IT SEEMED INCREDIBLE THAT THE MILD LITTLE DRY-HUMORED GUY WHO MADE PEOPLE SEE WAR AS IT IS AND MADE THEM FEEL IT, HEAR IT AND SMELL IT, SHOULD HIMSELF GET MANGLED IN ITS FURY.

ERNIE SEEMED TOO MUCH A PERMANENT FIGURE TO DISAPPEAR THIS WAY--DISAPPEAR FOR GOOD. HE WAS ALWAYS FLITTING ABOUT HERE AND THERE, BUT HE ALWAYS WAS AROUND SOMEWHERE.

PARIS--FIRST ADD PYLE (A224 DAY) (BY KENNEDY) X X SOMEWHERE.

I FIRST KNEW ERNIE ABOUT 15 YEARS AGO IN WASHINGTON.

HIS COLUMN BEFORE THE WAR HAD THE SAME TOUCH AND ITS FAITHFUL READERS, BUT IT WAS NOT UNTIL HE CAME TO WAR WITH IT THAT IT DREW THE TREMENDOUS FOLLOWING THAT MADE HIM THE MOST WIDELY QUOTED OF ALL WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

THERE WAS NO SECRET FORMULA ABOUT HIS SUCCESS. HE WROTE IN THE SAME NATURAL WAY AS BEFORE. BUT IN THE NEW ROLE HE WAS TELLING PEOPLE AT HOME THE VERY THING THEY WANTED MOST TO KNOW--HOW THE SOLDIERS LIVED, WHAT THEY DID, AND WHAT THEY THOUGHT.

HE STUMBLED ON DAZZLING SUCCESS BECAUSE AS A WAR CORRESPONDENT HE WROTE OF SOLDIERS AND NEVER LET HIMSELF GET MIXED UP IN STRATEGY OR TACTICS. ALL AMERICA WAS WAITING FOR A FELLOW JUST LIKE THAT AND TOOK TO HIM. BUT PERHAPS THAT IS A SECRET FORMULA, AND EVEN A DASH OF GENIUS.

I CAN HEAR ERNIE LAUGHING NOW IF ANYONE WERE TO CALL HIM A GENIUS, AND I KNOW HE WOULD HAVE A GOOD COMEBACK, FOR WITH ALL HIS MILDNESS HE COULD GET IN A SHARP CRACK NOW AND THEN. HE WORE HIS SUCCESS IN THE SAME LIGHT WAY THAT HE WORE HIS OLD BATTLE JACKET.

WE MET AGAIN IN NORTH AFRICA FOR THE FIRST TIME IN PERHAPS 10 YEARS. I DID NOT SEE SO MUCH OF HIM AS MANY OTHER CORRESPONDENTS, FOR MY JOB TOOK ME TO THE FRONT AREAS LESS THAN HIS OR THEIRS.

BUT I REMEMBER SOME OF THOSE NIGHTS AT "VIOLENT VILLA," A CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN THE EARLY DAYS IN NAPLES. AND I REMEMBER HIS ARRIVAL IN ANZIO. HE DIDN'T LIKE TO COME TO THE BEACHHEAD, HE SAID, BUT HE HAD HEARD THAT SOME SOLDIERS HAD INQUIRED IF ERNIE PYLE WAS AROUND. THAT WAS ENOUGH FOR ERNIE, WHO NEVER LET A SOLDIER DOWN. HE CAME THERE TO REPORT THEIR WAR AND WHEN THE WORD SPREAD THROUGH THAT TIGHT, SHELL-POCKED BEACHHEAD THAT HE HAD ARRIVED, EVERYONE FELT BETTER.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 19-(AP)-"DO YOU KNOW ERNIE PYLE?"

IN 30-ODD MONTHS OF COVERING WAR IN TUNISIA, ITALY AND FRANCE, I OFTEN TRIED TO FIGURE OUT HOW RICH I WOULD BE IF I HAD A NICKEL FOR EVERY TIME AN AMERICAN SOLDIER ASKED ME THAT QUESTION.

FRANKLY, IT MADE ME ENVIOUS. IT MADE EVERY WAR CORRES-

PONDENT ENVIOUS. WHEN RICHARD TREGASKIS FIRST CAME TO THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER FOLLOWING PUBLICATION OF HIS BEST-SELLING "GUADALCANAL DIARY," SOMEONE ASKED IF HE PLANNED TO DO ANOTHER BOOK.

"YEAH," SAID DICK, WISTFULLY. "I'M GOING TO CALL IT, 'YES, I KNOW ERNIE PYLE.'"

NOW, I SUPPOSE IT WILL BE "DID YOU KNOW ERNIE PYLE?" YES, I KNEW ERNIE PYLE AND I LOVED HIM. AND TRYING TO WRITE SOMETHING ABOUT HIM IS THE HARDEST JOURNALISTIC JOB I EVER TACKLED.

IT WAS IN A CACTUS PATCH IN THE TINY TUNISIAN TOWN OF SBEITLA (CORRECT) THAT I FIRST MET ERNIE.

AP CORRESPONDENT NOLAND NORGAARD AND I HAD JUST LOST OUR JEEP IN A DIVE-BOMBING ATTACK.

"I'M STAYING HERE IN THE FIELD WITH THE DIVISION," HE SAID. "YOU CAN TAKE MY JEEP."

THAT WAS TYPICAL OF PYLE ON TWO COUNTS: FIRST, HE ALWAYS "STAYED IN THE FIELD," NOT BECAUSE HE WANTED TO, BUT BECAUSE HE FELT A POWERFUL OBLIGATION TO THE SOLDIERS TO GO THROUGH EVERYTHING THEY DID. SECONDLY, HE WAS GENEROUS AND KIND.

ERNIE WROTE A COLUMN ABOUT THE EXPERIENCE NORGAARD AND I HAD THAT DAY. WE WROTE IT, TOO. BUT WHEN I CAME HOME FOR A REST AFTER THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN, FRIENDS REMEMBERED ONLY ONE OF THE THREE DISPATCHES.

"DID YOU SEE ERNIE PYLE'S PIECE ABOUT YOU?" THEY ASKED. "DO YOU KNOW ERNIE PYLE?"

YES, I KNEW ERNIE PYLE. I WENT BACK TO AFRICA AND WARNED HIM BEFORE HE CAME HOME IN LATE SUMMER OF 1943 THAT HE HAD BECOME PUBLIC PROPERTY, LIKE THE PRESIDENT. "YOU WON'T GET ANY REST," I SAID.

B4WX (SECG)

"OH, I'LL JUST GO TO ALBUQUERQUE," HE SAID. "PEOPLE WILL LEAVE ME ALONE OUT THERE."

LEOPLE DIDN'T LEAVE HIM ALONE, THOUGH. HIS BEST FRIEND HAD TO BECOME "VICE-PRESIDENT IN CHARGE OF PYLE" TO ENABLE ERNIE TO HAVE ANY TIME TO HIMSELF AT ALL.

WHEN I WENT TO THE ITALIAN FRONT IN JANUARY OF LAST YEAR, I THOUGHT PERHAPS THE PYLE PROPERTY, LIKE THE CASSINO FRONT, HAD STABILIZED A BIT. NOT SO.

"DO YOU KNOW ERNIE PYLE," THE SOLDIERS ASKED.

ERNIE HAD A PREMONITION THAT HE, LIKE SO MANY OTHER FRIENDS IN AFRICA, ITALY AND FRANCE, WOULD NOT SEE THE WAR THROUGH. HE WENT BACK TO THE FIGHTING BECAUSE HIS SENSE OF DUTY WOULD NOT PERMIT HIM TO STAY AWAY.

YES, I KNEW ERNIE PYLE. I THINK ONE OF HIS ANZIO DISPATCHES WAS ONE OF THE GREATEST PIECES OF WRITING THE WAR HAS PRODUCED. HE WAS TELLING ABOUT A SOLDIER WHOSE JOB IT WAS TO DRIVE A DUCK (AMPHIBIOUS TRUCK) AROUND THE ANZIO HARBOR TO SUPERVISE UNLOADING, WHILE GERMAN SHELLS CONSTANTLY BLANKETED THE AREA.

I WOULDN'T HAVE HAD HIS JOB FOR A MILLION DOLLARS," SAID ERNIE.

BUT IN THE NEXT PARAGRAPH, HE SAID: "I RODE AROUND WITH HIM ONE DAY. . ."

YES, I KNEW ERNIE PYLE. HE WAS LIKE THAT.

TWO RUSSIAN ARMIES CLOSING IN ON BERLIN: LEIPZIG, HALLE CAPTURED BY U. S. FORCES

DOUGHBOYS PUSH INTO NUERNBERG, NAZI SHRINE CITY

APR 20 1945

Seventh Army Besieges Fort, Strikes Within 70 Miles of Munich.

YANKS SEIZE FUERTH

British Troops Battle Within Artillery Range of Hamburg Port.

BEALHEM

PARIS, Friday, April 20—(AP) Triumphant U. S. battle flags waved today over the inner German fortresses of Leipzig and Halle, Nazidom's shrine of Nuernberg was encircled and mostly in American hands, and spearheads roaring 25 miles beyond were 70 miles from Hitler's Munich.

Leipzig, fifth city of the Reich with a refugee-swollen population of 1,000,000, fell yesterday with astounding swiftness to the U. S. First Army.

NIGHT

Shortly thereafter, as Doughboys ferreted out the last die-hard snipers, it was announced that 16 miles to the northwest fortified Halle, city of 220,000, also had been captured.

Yanks Capture Fuerth

The U. S. Seventh army, driving against the Nazis' great mountain redoubt around Munich, captured Nuernberg's twin city of Fuerth, with a population of 85,000. The defenders of Nuernberg itself were pressed back into less than a mile square pocket in the center of the old walled city from which there was no escape.

American infantry expected to celebrate Hitler's 56th birthday today by completing the occupation of this old Nazi partying ground of 430,000 population.

The city was encircled when American units met south of the city and tanks breaking loose 25 miles southwest of Neurnberg were 70 miles from Bavaria's first city of Munich, where Hitler launched the Nazi movement.

One German report said that on the west flank, the Seventh had opened a new offensive and had penetrated into Aalen, 40 miles east of Stuttgart and 30 miles north of the Danubian city of Ulm.

Resounding successes were recorded on the opposite end of the Western front, where the British Second army's armored spearheads thrust northward 20 miles to within five miles and easy artillery range of Hamburg, Germany's second city and greatest port.

Nazi Troops Sealed Off

Driving up to the Elbe river 20 miles southeast of Hamburg, the British drenched with artillery fire the last bridge across the stream at Lauenburg, thus sealing off from the rest of the Reich the defenders of the ports of Bremen, Emden and Wilhelmshaven.

The U. S. First, Ninth and 15th armies inflicted the worst defeat of Hitler's armies since Stalingrad with the final smashing of the Ruhr pocket, capturing 316,930 prisoners and 11 generals. The final figure may exceed the 330,000 taken at Stalingrad, one of the war's decisive battles. Bradley's report that the 15th army was in on the Ruhr cleanup was the first disclosure of whereabouts of this new army.

The First and Ninth armies likewise cleared all but one-tenth of a second big pocket in the forested Harz mountains southwest of Berlin. The Ninth army alone took 7,172 prisoners from those hills, where the German pocket once was 350 square miles in area.

As the U. S. Third army hacked deeper into Czechoslovakia and the U. S. Ninth army beat off small attacks on its Elbe river bridgehead 52 miles southwest of Berlin, Gen. Omar N. Bradley declared the first phase of his group of armies' offensive beyond the Rhine was ended.

In that first phase the U. S. First, Third, and Ninth and 15th armies seized 842,864 prisoners and wiped out all the German forces that faced them when the big push began.

Bradley said there would be a temporary pause for consolidation "before we go into the next," leaving the uneasy German high command to guess which direction it would take.

But it was significant that the word was passed down through American troops on the Western front that a junction with the Russians—now no more than 55 miles to the east of the U. S. Third army—was imminent.

Posters illustrated the silhouettes of Russian tanks and explained that they resembled some of those of the Germans and the Americans should look twice now before they shot.

The French First army also scored successes on its Rhine and Atlantic fronts.

French Show New Gains

On the Rhine front, the French broke all the way through the Black Forest in a 13-mile dash to Tubingen, 20 miles southwest of Stuttgart, and captured Lahr, 17 miles southeast of Strasbourg. Stuttgart was threatened with encirclement.

The campaign to free the Gironde river approaches to the big port of Bordeaux was nearing a conclusion. The Paris radio said the Germans had been driven from Point de Graves, the last main strongpoint blocking an opening of the river passage.

With three American armies on, across, or nearing the Elbe river on a front of about 160 miles, and with a salient on the Dresden area driven to within possibly 55 miles of Russian lines, the main weight of Allied offensive veered south toward the enemy's last mountain retreat.

The fall of Leipzig, 75 miles southwest of Berlin, came with dramatic abruptness after a morning pincers assault, giving the First army control of a good network of roads and railways radiating from this fifth city of the Reich and releasing troops for the second phase.

The U. S. Third army was feeling out enemy defenses in Czechoslovakia, 65 miles northwest of the munitions city of Pilsen, and were six miles from Asch, the Czech city where Konrad Henlein began his traitorous campaign that surrendered the Sudetenland to Hitler.

As the U. S. Seventh army stormed into the heart of Nuernberg, it seized three Nazi generals, including Gen. Gotthard Von Witzendorff, chief of all anti-aircraft units in upper Bavaria. All airfields near the Nazi party capital were in American hands.

British Reach Elbe 6 Miles From Hamburg—Germans Blast More Dikes in Holland—Nazis Attack Ninth Army

Paris, April 19 (A. P.).—The First Army has captured Leipzig, fifth city of Germany, and with the Ninth Army seized all of the great Ruhr pocket in perhaps the greatest victory of the war. Britons on the north flank closed within six miles and sight of the greatest continental port of Hamburg. They reached the lower Elbe River on a twenty-mile front.

Just to the south, a thousand Germans with twenty tanks struck out from the British sector and drove three to fifteen miles into the rear area of the Ninth Army west of captured Stendal. They were engaged by cavalry forces. The foray was isolated and the Germans appeared to be trying to slip through the Ninth Army's Ruhr area into the besieged Harz Mountain pocket, southwest of the Ninth Army's five-mile-deep bridgehead pointed within fifty-two miles of Berlin.

The German attack was made by elements of the Von Clausewitz Panzer Division, striking south from a forest

...st and Diesdorf ... was sixty miles ...head at Barby.
...Czecho-Slovakia ... Germany geo- ... hideaway in the ...ght hand-picked ...varian Nazi cen- ...ter of Nuernberg, now virtually surrounded.

tish reached the lower Elbe and advanced to within 16 miles of Hamburg in a mighty effort to cut the North Sea ports from Berlin, beleaguered by Russian troops reported 17 miles east and Americans 45 miles west. The siege of Bremen was intensified.

"All organized resistance in the Ruhr pocket has ceased and Allied forces have virtually completed mopping up the last enemy stragglers," Supreme Headquarters announced.

This meant that the great cities of Duesseldorf, Solingen, Remscheid and Barmen were in 1st and 9th Army hands along with the great Ruhr factories which produced 75 per cent of Hitler's war materiel as late as 1942.

316,930 Already Taken In Ruhr

General Bradley said 316,930 Germans were taken from the Ruhr pocket and that more remained to be counted. This compared with 330,000 Germans captured and killed at Stalingrad, the greatest previous German disaster. The Allies have not yet estimated the number of Germans slain and wounded in the Ruhr.

One phase of the German campaign is finished and "it is necessary to pause temporarily before we go into the next," the General said. His 1st, 3d, 9th and 15th armies have captured 842,864 prisoners since crossing the Rhine less than a month ago. Supreme Headquarters announced that 2,093,002 prisoners have been taken by all the Allies in the West since D-day.

The last strongholds in Leipzig, including its city hall, were cracked this morning and infantrymen were ferreting out the last snipers. More than 20,000 prisoners and a thousand 88-mm. guns have been captured in or near the city.

Leipzig Jammed With Refugees

The final German stands were made near a statue of Napoleon in the southeast part of the city, at the railroad station and in the city hall.

Leipzig and its ruins swarmed with a war-swollen population of a million Germans. It fell at 7 P. M. last night. Infantry of the Fighting Sixty-ninth and the Indian Head Second divisions met in the center of Leipzig and then wheeled guns up to blast the City Hall, where the Nazi commander had holed up after refusing to surrender.

Civilians Tumble From Cellars

German civilians tumbled from cellars and shelters and some cheered the Americans advancing into the center of the city from the west, south and east. It was estimated that three-fourths of Leipzig, whose normal population was 701,606, was in ruins.

In the great array of captured cities were Duesseldorf, largest in the Ruhr, Solingen, Remescheid, Fuerth, Zwickau, Luneburg, Ansbach and Uelzen. The British captured Uelzen only after six days of savage battle.

Bremen was besieged, and Britons fought in its suburbs against Nazis reported rallied two days ago by the visit of Heinrich Himmler. The British surge toward Hamburg and to the Elbe carried within thirty-five miles of Luebeck on the southeast side of the Danish peninsula and fifty-seven of the leading German naval base of Kiel. Harburg was brought within light artillery range. The famous Desert Rats (Seventh Armored Division) spearheaded the British drive on Hamburg along the Bremen-Hamburg superhighway.

A German military spokesman said that the American Third Army had thrust east from Hof across the extreme northwest tip of Czecho-slovakia and reached Bad Elster in Germany thirty miles west of Karlsbad. This would outflank Asch. The radio dispatch from the official DNB news agency placed the Third Army within ninety-five miles of Prague and sixty-two of the Skoda munitions plants at Pilsen.

Seventh Fights for Nuernberg.

Seventh Army divisions were fighting hard for Nuernberg, Bavarian citadel of Nazi festivals, Supreme Headquarters corrected an earlier statement that the Americans had fought to the center of Nuernberg, saying late in the day that actually the Third and Forty-fifth divisions had linked up outside the city.

The British reached the Elbe at several places southeast of Hamburg. The river was reached in an eight-mile British advance beyond Luneberg to the north, northwest and northeast. Lieut.-Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey was rolling up armored strength to the Elbe on a widening front.

Another flood disaster was forced on the stricken Dutch when the Germans blew 300 yards of dikes along the northeastern end of the Zuider Zee immediately south of the causeway. Salt water flooded fertile land.

Advance Through Floods.

Poles and Canadians were opposite the North Sea port of Emden. The Canadians menaced Utrecht and Amsterdam, largest city in Holland, by advances through the freshly flooded areas along the southern shores of the Zuider Zee. By reaching the Zuider Zee yesterday, the Canadians split the Germans in Holland, estimated at 200,000, into two pockets. The Canadians were barely twenty miles from Amsterdam.

On the southern end of the Allied front the French were ten miles from outflanked Stuttgart and less than fifty miles from Switzerland's northern boundary. French on the Atlantic coast [illegible] Leipzig.

The Texas and Oklahoma (90th) Division was the first outfit of the 3d Army to enter Czechoslovakia and today the troops were menacing Asch. Asch was 8 miles ahead of troops which reached the German border zone town of Wurlitz.

Czech Town Entered

The Yankee (26th) Division was 2 miles inside the republic and had units in Kirchenlamnitz, 11 miles southwest of Asch, and had cleared Weissenstadt, 15 miles southwest of Asch. The 89th Division advanced up to 7 miles and entered Oberlungwitz, 9 miles southwest of Chemnitz.

The Germans hold 210 miles of Czechoslovakia from east to west between Russian positions around Bruenn and Patton's salient.

In the north, the British reached the Elbe at several places southeast of Hamburg and on the north flank of General Simpson's 9th Army, which slightly expanded its bridgehead at Barby, 5 miles east of the river.

Armor Moved Up

The river was reached in an 8-mile British advance beyond Luneberg. General Dempsey was rolling up armored strength to the Elbe on a widening front.

In the meantime, British flyers, ranging for the third day up to Denmark, outflanked by American 9th Army troops on the Elbe above Magdeberg, knocked out more than 400 enemy road transport, 400 locomotives and railcars, and destroyed or damaged 40 planes.

316,930 GERMANS SEIZED BY YANKS IN RUHR POCKET

12TH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, April 19 (A.P.) Gen. Omar N. Bradley, 12th Army group commander, gave an incomplete figure today of 316,930 prisoners taken in the liquidated Ruhr pocket, indicating the final total would surpass the record number of 330,000 Germans killed and captured at Stalingrad.

"This Ruhr pocket turned out to be much larger than any of us guessed," Bradley said. "We knew there were a lot of Germans in it. The latest figure, with some still to be counted, is 316,930 German prisoners. (He did not give a figure on the number of Germans killed.)

"We got two corps commanders and nine divisional commanders. We have [illegible] reason to believe there are some other high ranking commanders still running around in there, probably in civilian clothes, trying to get out," added Bradley, who said he anticipated an Allied pause now on the Elbe river line.

The General, whose million-man command is the largest in American history and includes most U. S. troops in Germany, said he used 17 divisions, numbering about 240,000 men, in reducing the pocket, which included elements of at least as many German divisions, as well as detached Wehrmacht battalions and miscellaneous units.

Since crossing the Rhine, Bradley said, his 12th group's First, Third, Ninth and 15th American armies have taken 842,864 prisoners. Harking back to the start of the Roer river offensive, he reported that "virtually every German soldier that faced us back on the Siegfried Line on Feb. 23 now is either killed, wounded or a prisoner."

The location of Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow's new 15th Army remains unannounced, but Bradley's figures indicated it may have seen fairly heavy action and taken up to 50,000 prisoners.

Bradley received correspondents in a large motor trailer with map-covered walls, somewhere in Germany. Discussing future operations, he said:

"There are certain times in a campaign when you are moving rapidly, when you have to catch up with your supply lines and clean out your areas and so forth. I would say we have advanced to a definite line here (on the Elbe river) on which it is necessary to pause before starting the next operation."

After reviewing the advance since the Roer, Bradley commented: "We have finished this phase at the present time and it is necessary to pause temporarily before we go into the next. Let the Germans guess as to what the next is going to be.

"I think the area occupied at the present time by the Allies in the west is some 36 per cent of the greater German Reich—that includes Austria. So that we are an occupation army on a considerable scale already."

Nonetheless, he replied to a question, "In my opinion, when he (the enemy) did not quit last fall, after we had proved to him that he was licked, it was clear that we would not be through until we had occupied all of Germany."

and Ninth armies had finished one phase of the thrust into the heart of the Reich and that "it is necessary to pause temporarily before we go into the next."

"Let the Germans guess as to what the next is going to be," the commander added.

Gen. Bradley said that in his opinion "we will not be through until we have occupied all of Germany."

The General added:

"Virtually every German soldier that faced us back on the Siegfried Line [illegible] February 23 (when Americans crossed the Roer River) now is either killed, wounded or a prisoner of war.

"I think the area occupied at the present time by the Allies in the west as some 36 per cent of the greater German Reich—that includes Austria—so that we are an occupation army on a considerable scale already."

Asked how far he thought Allied armies would have to go, Gen. Bradley said:

"In my opinion when he (the enemy) did not quit last fall, after we had proved to him that he was licked, it was clear that we would not be through until we had occupied all of Germany."

Although no announcement has been made of where Lieut.-Gen. Leonard T. Gerow's new United States Fifteenth Army is fighting, Gen. Bradley said the four armies in his group have captured 842,864 prisoners since crossing the Rhine. The other armies are the First, Third and Ninth.

(At last accounts, the First, Third and Ninth armies had captured 790,616 prisoners east of the Rhine. This indicated that the Fifteenth Army had seen fairly heavy action, capturing perhaps as many as 50,000 prisoners.)

The general met newspaper reporters somewhere in Germany in a large motor trailer whose walls were covered with huge maps of both the western and Russian fronts.

For three days now there have been no reports of advances by the dozen American armored divisions which have made such deep inroads into Germany. This suggested that Gen. Eisenhower might be massing his armor for a thunderbolt drive.

This is how Bradley sized up the military significance of the Ruhr conquest:

The pocket was of the greatest importance because elements of at least seventeen divisions were bottled up. Those were divisions which should have been opposing the Allied eastward advance. With the seventeen divisions were miscellaneous elements, detached battalions and other units which were gathered and thrown into battle hastily.

Pocket Larger Than Expected.

"This Ruhr pocket turned out to be much larger than any of us guessed," Bradley said. "We knew there were a lot of Germans in it. The latest figure, with still some to be counted, is 316,930 German prisoners.

"We got two corps commanders and nine divisional commanders. We have every reason to believe there are some other high ranking commanders still running around in there, probably in civilian clothes, trying to get out."

Bradley used seventeen divisions in reducing the pocket, a total of about 240,000 men.

"There are certain times in a campaign when you are moving rapidly when you have to catch up with your supply lines and clean out your areas, and so forth," the general said. "I would say we have advanced to a definite line [illegible] on the Elbe River) on which it is necessary to pause before starting the next operation."

Mayor, SS Men Commit Suicide In Huge Fortress in Leipzig

By HAL BOYLE

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 19—(AP) The German army surrendered this fifth largest city of the Reich to the U. S. First army at 11 a. m. today after fighting had raged fiercely throughout the night and morning.

The surrender was made formally in note which read:

Leipzig Officer Surrenders

"At 1100 hours on the 19th of April I do surrender the city of Leipzig to Col. Walter D. Buie, commanding officer of the 272nd infantry, 69th infantry division, representing the commander of the United States army in Germany."

The name of the German officer who signed the surrender was withheld by censorship. Buie is from Asheville, N. C.

Despite the formal surrender, one SS (Elite Guard) unit still was fighting at dusk tonight around a statue of Napoleon in the southeastern corner of the city.

During the six-day siege of the city more than 20,000 prisoners were taken. After firing ceased today [illegible] the city's inhabitants emerged from their hiding places, some of them waving and cheering in delight that the war was over for them. A white flag waved from each building still standing in the wreckage.

The mayor, who was reportedly responsible for insisting that the Germans make a fight for the city after the military commander had recommended surrender earlier, committed suicide.

His was one of seven bodies found inside the city hall after American tanks blew down the iron gates barring the building.

A column of 16 Doughboy-loaded tanks, making a spectacular smash through strong anti-tank defenses and small arms fire, raced 30 miles an hour into Leipzig at 6 p.m. yesterday and fought its way into the heart of the city.

After savage overnight battles against ambushing Germans armed with rocket guns, they renewed the attack this morning. Blasting the five story stone building with 500 shells from a range of only 200 yards they forced surrender of the 147 besieged Nazi survivors.

Doughboys leaping with rifles over the splintered stones ran into the courtyard and found that instead of the city hall, they were inside a huge fortress where die-hard SS troops and Nazi civil officials had dined and drunk before killing themselves as their gangster-built world of horror crumbled about them.

Nazis Kill Themselves

At the height of the fighting four SS men committed suicide — two fired simultaneously across a bottle-littered table and killed each other in a strange death pact—and Leipzig's assistant mayor and his wife and daughter died of self-administered poison, sitting calmly in their chairs.

The mayor was Dr. Kurt Lisso, influential Nazi party leader in Leipzig.

One of the first Doughboys to enter the city hall was Pvt. John R. Fain of Milan, Tenn.

"I never saw anything to compare with it in my life," he said. "At first we couldn't believe our eyes.

"There were several Germans and home-guard soldiers lying dead in the courtyard and there were others who had died of battle wounds after being dragged into an underground corridor.

"The whole place was just a big arsenal. There were hundreds of rocket guns, bazookas, rifles and machine-guns lying around. On the second floor I went through several steel doors into a bomb proof chamber of several rooms which must have been their headquarters.

"In one room an officer bent over a table, and at first I thought he had fallen asleep in his chair. Then I saw a pistol in his hand, and a bullet hole through his head. He was dead.

"There was a half empty bottle on the table top. In the next room two other Jerry officers were sprawled dead in chairs facing each other across the table. There were some empty bottles and some food on the table, too. One man held a pistol and there was a machine pistol beside the other officer.

"You could see what had happened. They ate and got drunk together, and then each pointed his gun at the other's head, and they pulled the triggers at the same time in a suicide pact."

Climbing to the third floor by stairways from which the SS troops had been firing through shattered windows at them only an hour before, Fain and the other puzzled infantrymen came across the body of a fourth SS officer lying full length and alone in his office room.

"He had a pretty high rank," said Fain. "He had taken poison and must not have liked it very well. His face was twisted and his teeth were showing. He was lying across the broken picture of another officer.

Mayor, Family Dead

"We went down a corridor and in another office we found a middle aged civilian and his wife and their daughter, all dead of cyanide poisoning. He was sitting behind his desk and had hunched over, face forward, on it. His wife and daughter were sitting in two easy chairs in front of the desk.

"From the way they looked they must have sat there and talked things over and decided it was all over for him, and the whole family might as well go out together. They just took turns drinking poison and died, one after another."

Lisso still wore the Nazi emblem in his lapel. His wife wore a women's party emblem, and their daughter—an attractive blonde girl—had a Red Cross nurse band on her arm."

The city hall looked more like a combination fortress and pirates' den than a civic building. It was built of thick stone and topped by an old rock tower. Every window in the front part of the building had been broken by shell explosions which also had ripped great chunks out of the stone.

Anticipating a longer battle in Leipzig, the SS troops had prepared themselves. There were quantities of food in store rooms, and thousands of bottles of wine in underground caves.

"And there was enough ammunition to keep a division going," said Capt. William A. Hendrickson of Scituate Mass., who rode in one of the first tanks to enter the city.

Bazookas, shells, hundreds of rifles, cases of ammunition and scores of machine pistols and machine guns were packed in subterranean vaults so deep no artillery or bomb could blast through to them.

The high living SS officers also had brought here all the personal treasures they had looted in France, Belgium and Holland. There were several cases of the finest champagne and crates of fine china and silver ware. They even had fixed up quarters for their mistresses—apparently believing no fortress complete without feminine companionship.

The 69th division lost only one tank in the dash to the heart of the city, which started last night under cover of a severe electrical storm. The dash was undertaken on 30 minutes' notice when it was learned the Second division had penetrated to the city's center. The Ninth Armored division protected the 69th's flank.

REDDING MAJOR FREED FROM PRISON CAMP

WITH THE U. S. NINTH ARMY, GERMANY, April 19 (AP) American officers from tank, infantry and air force units released from the German prison camp of Stalag 79, near Brunswick, in the Ninth army push include:

Maj. Edgar German, of Redding, Conn., 687th Field artillery, captured at the bulge Dec. 19.

Lt. Joseph Diez, of 114 Broad street, Stamford, Conn., shot down over Muenster March 28.

MORE OFFICERS SET FREE IN REICH

With the United States Ninth Army, Germany, April 19 (A. P.).—American officers from tank, infantry and air force units released from the German prison camp of Stalag 79, near Brunswick, in the Ninth Army push include:

Lieut. Adam Link of 7 Valley Road, Manhasset, L. I., who was captured December 22, 1944, and was forced to walk forty-nine miles on Christmas day and share a loaf of bread with seven other prisoners during this march; Lieut. Walter Hoffman, Rochester, N. Y., shot down over Berlin March 15; Lieut. Donald Brown, O-1062135 (town unstated), captured at Dueren December 22; Lieut. Fred Hovering, 49 Pitt street, Bloomfield, N. J., shot down over Muenster March 25; Lieut. Edward Oliver, P-1287750 (town unstated), captured Hurtegen Forest December 22; Major Edward German, Redding, Conn., 687th Field Artillery, captured at the bulge December 19, and Lieut. Joseph Dietz, 114 Broad street, Stamford, Conn., shot down over Muenster March 23.

GI's Take Town Wild-West Way

Zwickau, Germany, April 19 (AP). Two British noncoms guided 75 American soldiers in a 50-mile-an-hour dash right through the center of Zwickau today, and they shot up the town in wild-West fashion—right under the guns of 2,000 astounded German soldier defenders.

Their demoralizing exploit—censorship will not yet allow the full telling of it—made it possible for the United States 89th Infantry to capture the city in less than five hours—and it had been preparing to fight it out.

The British noncommissioned officers sat atop the radiators of the two lead jeeps in the little column, waving directions to the Americans in other jeeps and armored cars which nearly dumped over as they careened around street corners.

The spearehead party of Americans and British whizzed past German bazookas so fast the Germans could not hit them.

Lieut. Charles Kilborn, of Boone, Iowa, one of the three leaders of the party, said "we left so much rubber when we screamed around those turns the fellows behind could not miss our trail."

Kilborn, along with Lieuts. James Kesler, Iowa City, Iowa, and Robert Cleary, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, engineered the maneuver which cut off avenues of escape in one end of the city while the 355th Regiment commanded by Col. Jesse Harris of McKenzie, Tenn., pressed in from the other side.

The result: 1,700 Germans captured.

Snipers Kill U. S. Medic

NUREMBERG, Germany, April 18 (Delayed) (AP)—Back at a rear command post Capt. Seymour Wiederlight of 505 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., muttered grimly today when a medic's body was brought in after he had been wounded and a companion killed by German snipers who fired on their jeep flying a Red Cross.

T/5 Eugene Balogh of New Brunswick, N. J., told how he went to get the dead medic and his wounded companion.

"The Krauts let him get his wounded in the jeep and then let him have it in the back," Balogh said. His story was corroborated by T/4 Howard Heimbruch of Vancouver, Wash., and T/5 Albert Fanbron of Waco, Tex.

"When things like this happen," said Captain Wiederlight, "you don't want them to bring wounded Germans in. You think how you ought to treat them—and then they bring some in and you take care of them like everbody else, even though it hurts you to do it."

Maj. John O'Connell of New York was grim about it, too, and a concentration of mortar fire on the area where the medic was killed was his answer to the Germans.

Leipzig, Germany, April 19 (AP)—Doughboys of the 2d and 69th Infantry Divisions cracked the last three enemy strongholds in Leipzig today. The soldiers then began ferreting out snipers.

Nearly all the city south of the railroad station already has been mopped [illegible] the remainder is being cleared rapidly.

The prisoner total from Leipzig already has climbed to above 20,000 and the 1st Army has captured more than 1,000 88-mm. guns which were used in defense of the city.

Germans' Last Stand

The Germans made their last desperate stand at the City Hall, at the railroad station and from underground shelters near Napoleon's statue in the southeastern part of the city.

The 2d and 69th divisions met in the center of the city late yesterday after clearing out all resistance except around the railroad station and City Hall, where the Nazi commander took refuge and refused to surrender.

At dawn today the doughboys attacked a group of 200 Germans holding out at the railroad station and then stormed the City Hall against 250 of the enemy.

Cheered By Civilians

The Americans began a strong drive at dawn and during the day swept through this fifth largest city of Germany with crushing power. The drive developed some of the weirdest situations of the war—with the German civilians cheering the entry of the Americans and an American general demanding the city's surrender by telephone.

From the west, south and east the troops of the 1st Army closed on the city after breaking through a belt of more than 1,200 guns. They moved down roads washed by a warm sun and sprinkled with blossoms from blooming fruit trees.

Thousands of German civilians crawled out of their hiding places as the battle passed and clustered on the streets to watch the Americans go by and sometimes to wave and cheer with gratitude that the war was over for them. White flags waved from each building.

Airfield Captured

During the day, the 1st Army captured three valuable prizes in the Leipzig region.

Combat Command A of the 9th Armored Division overran a huge airfield near Polenz and seized one of Germany's ME-163 jet planes.

One of the biggest enemy ammunition and gas dumps discovered since D-day was captured near Altehhane. Major Wilbur Nelson, of Baltimore, found the dump while out looking for an artillery command post.

Ninety huge bunkers were filled with shells. One bunker contained 27,000 15-centimeter shells of toxic gas. The Germans had left eighteen men behind, not to defend the area, but to warn the Americans not to shoot into the gas dumps.

Another prize was a 200,000-watt radio station, one of Europe's strongest.

Pincers Closed

In the final assault on Leipzig, the 2d Division attacked from the West while the 69th Infantry, protected on the flank by the 9th Armored Division, swung around and drove in from the South and the East. The pincers closed at 7 P.M. and all that remained was to clean out the last remaining pockets of resistance.

Capt. Edward L. Callahan, Philadelphia, led his company into the city first from the West and close behind him came Lieut. Wilfred Drath, Depere, Wis., with another company of the 23d Regiment's first battalion.

Callahan, with a three-day stubble on his face, also was the first to reach the canal in the city and led an attack across it, penetrating into the center of the city.

In effect, the doughboys came in both by the front and back doors and the Germans could not stop them.

Synthetic Gasoline Plant

One division captured almost 500 88-mm. guns, most of them ringing the great Leuna synthetic gasoline plant west of Leipzig. This plant had produced some 10,000,000 gallons of fuel a month until bombed out last month.

The guns, however, still were in position and the Germans had women to help man them.

The women had been brought up to the area from elsewhere in Germany before the American planes flew over for the knockout blow. Their use for such duties was an experiment. During the air raid, bombs landed squarely on one battery where they were training. It was slaughter.

Prisoners said that the women who were left became so hysterical that the experiment of using women in combat was called off by the high command. Forty of these women now have been captured and are in prison camps.

2 German Towns Razed: Civilians Fired on Allies

Canadians Exact Retribution for Lives Taken by Snipers

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN GERMANY, April 19 (AP).—Sogel and Friesoythe, until recently picturesque country villages outwardly unaffected by the war, have been destroyed because their civilians fired on Canadian troops.

When the Canadians entered the two towns, German soldiers and civilians fired from every house and Canadian lives were lost.

At Sogel the Canadians then ordered the civilians to leave the town before engineers blew it to nothingness, as a lesson.

Bu tthe lesson apparently was not learned, for the same thing happened when the Canadians reached Friesoythe a few days later. This time the civilians were not evacuated, but the town was destroyed.

Rommel Death on Nazi File

Captured Cards List Him as Dead "of Heart Failure" Oct. 14, 1944

SAALFELD, Germany, April 19 (AP).—When retreating Germans abandoned their big casualty clearing office here, they left intact the millions of individual cards but destroyed the elaborate mechanism by which they could press a button and total the casualties.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, believed to have died of injuries inflicted by Allied Aircraft, was listed this way in the files: "Died of heart failure Oct. 14, 1944, at 1:25 p. m. in Reserve Hospital No. 2, Ulm."

up and we had a big dogfight. I had shot down one Messerschmitt and got mixed up with another. We were firing at each other head on. Neither of us pulled out and we cracked up. I went down to 8,000 feet before I bailed out and then I went blind and passed out.

"I came to in a hospital and found out some soldiers and civilians had brought me in. My right leg was broken and my left arm and left foot. I had a bad

Two Noted Flyers Escape Nazis

New York's Col. Paul T. Burton Commanded Bomber Squadron Till Shot Down.

Creglingen, Germany, April 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Two United States Eighth and Ninth Air Force commanders who had been prisoners in Germany for almost a year stumbled into the American lines early today, bringing to a successful climax their escape from a prison camp twelve days ago.

The officers are Col. Kenneth R. Martin of Kansas City, Mo., commander of the 354th Mustang fighter group, and Lieut.-Col. Paul T. Burton of 215 West 109th street, New York, commander of a bomber squadron in the 389th Liberator group. Both were in good health, though Martin was near exhaustion due to injuries he received before his capture.

They ascaped on April 4 as the Germans began a mass evacuation of their camp in western Germany.

"There were 6,000 Americans and 400 R. A. F. flyers," Burton said. "It was to be a six-day march. Some P-47s strafed us the first day and some enlisted men were killed. Of the Americans, about 4,500 were officers and 1,500 were non-coms.

"For the bulk of these it was the third move, from East Prussia to Stettin, to western Germany to central Germany and most of it was in long marches."

Martin and Burton came together last January.

Of their capture Martin said:

"We were flying escort in a raid on Frankfurt on February 11, 1944. German fighters were head wound.

"For four and a half months I was in hospitals—three of them. Six weeks of this time I was in solitary confinement while German intelligence officers questioned me daily. I wasn't allowed to receive Red Cross packages. In the midst of this they reset my leg and arm. I was threatened, but never abused.

"Then I was moved east of Frankfurt. British doctors there gave me good care. If it hadn't been for sulfa drugs I wouldn't have made it. The head wound became infected. Sanitary conditions in German hospitals are awful. I didn't get a bath once every three weeks. Often there was no water even for the toilets."

Bailed Out Over Antwerp.

Burton, whose parents live in Magnolia, Ark., was flying as a command pilot on the Hamm raid of April 22, 1944, when his plane was crippled by flak over Dortmund. All the crew but three bailed out. He and the pilot and bombardier bailed out over Antwerp and were captured. The other two, Capt. Bill Stotter and Lieut. Lester Gins, both from Cleveland, still are prisoners of the Germans.

"I came down in the backyard of a Luftwaffe Barracks smack dab in the middle of Antwerp," Burton said. "The first I knew I was hanging in a peach tree with a bayonet at my belly.

"They took me to a doctor, but I had only a few scratches. I was moved to Brussels' St. Giles prison—it's a big old castle—and stayed a week. Then they took me to a camp near Frankfurt for questioning. I was on bread and water in solitary for five days. From there, 110 American and British flyers were put on train for Sagan."

Both Burton and Martin eventually wound up at the camp in western Germany. The Allies made seven air raids in the area while they were there.

The two men looked for a chance to escape when the Germans evacuated them from that camp. That chance came after the first day's march, led by Brig-Gen. Arthur W. Vanaman of Millville, N. J., an Eighth Air Force staff officer. Vanaman, the first American general to become a prisoner of the Nazis, was shot down last summer.

"The Germans wanted the general to ride," Burton said, "but he told them he would march with the men. You have no idea the effect that had on morale. It kind of made the Germans sore because they didn't like to drive us as hard with the general on foot too. We made ten miles the first day."

When they were herded into a barn that night the two American officers hid in a dark corner about three feet from a guard.

"We waited until we thought it was safe and then just walked off," Burton said. "There was no confusion or commotion. We set a course and decided to travel only at night and hide in the daytime, and to have nothing at all to do with civilians." They made about ten miles a night and for the first four days and nights were wet and cold.

"Many times we almost ran up on Germans," Burton said, "but they always were jabbering, thank goodness, and we would just wait."

They spent a night in No Man's Land between the lines and finally ran into an American soldier, Pfc. Joseph Schwartz. Schwartz and Staff Sergt. Fred Squilla took them to the command post of Company 1, Third Battalion, Twenty-second Regiment.

Martin and Burton left for an airfield and the first leg of a journey which they hope will carry them home to their amilies.

"Tell my wife and family I'm O. K.," Martin said. "I still love them and I hope I'll be with them soon." He is the father of a son, Bill, 6, and a daughter, Myrna, 3.

"And tell mine the same," Burton said. "I haven't seen them in two years."

Wife Here Overjoyed.

Mrs. Katherine Burton, the colonel's wife, was overjoyed to hear the news. "That's the finest thing you could have told me," she told a reporter who called.

The former Katherine O'Shea of New York, she was married to the 31-year-old flyer ten years ago and they have lived in New York since. Col. O'Shea was operating a flying school at the Flushing Airport when the war began in Europe. He secured a commission as a flight lieutenant with the Royal Canadian Air Forces and helped establish the first R. C. A. F. bombing and gunnery school at Jarvis, Canada. When America entered the war he transferred to the Army Air Forces.

Mrs. Burton last heard from her husband in a letter December 20 but in January an exchanged prisoner who had returned to this country on the Gripsholm visited her to report that her husband was well. The Burtons have two sons, Richard, 9, and Donald, 2.

GI's To Force Foe To Bury Laborers

On the Elbe River in Germany, April 19 (AP)—The citizens of Gardelegen will become sickeningly familiar tomorrow with each grisly detail of the infamous atrocities committed there by their countrymen.

"At the point of bayonets if necessary," the army decreed, they will dig individual graves for each of the 1,000 slave laborers and political prisoners who were burned to death in a Gardelegen barn a few nights ago.

Each grave will be 6 feet long, 6 feet deep and 3 feet wide. Each charred body and skeleton will be laid gently in its individual resting place. And through sweat and evil smells and ghastly sights the Gardelegen Germans will learn the full extent of the atrocities which at first many of them refused to believe had been committed.

Graves will be dug in a special cemetery laid out by doughboys whose sense of justice and the grim fitness of things decreed that the grave-digging chore should fall to the citizens of Gardelegen.

YANKS TOLD LINK-UP WITH REDS IMMINENT

U. S. SEVENTH ARMY, April 19.—(AP) American troops on the Western Front were cautioned today that a link-up with Russians was imminent. They were instructed to study an elaborate poster illustrated with silhouettes and photographs of Russian tanks.

The poster explained that some Russian tanks resembled those of the Germans and advised the soldiers to look twice from now on before they shoot.

Throws Feed, Touches Button, Blows Up House

Leipzig, April 19 (AP)—One of the strangest stories to come out of the fall of Leipzig was that of Herr Bundin, who owned a factory which manufactured most of the German Army's Panzerfausts, or one-shot bazookas.

A prisoner captured by the United States 1st Army said that as the Americans closed in on Leipzig, the manufacturer became despondent at the thought of the ruin staring him in the face.

He placed explosives about the large dining room of his home and then invited his friends to a banquet with himself and family. There was much drinking and food was piled on the tables in course after course. Then Herr Bundin calmly touched a button and blew himself and his guests into oblivion.

Credence is lent to the story by the fact more and more Nazi officials, Gestapo members and German industrialists are taking suicide as the way out of disaster.

Nazis Flooding Holland

By Ned Nordness

With Canadian Troops in Holland, April 19 (AP)—The plucky little Dutch lad who, in Holland tradition, plugged the dike with his thumb to prevent the country from being flooded could just as well have saved himself the trouble.

For today the Germans are flooding the rich western section of Holland in sheer wanton destructiveness. They have blown up the western end of the Zuider Zee causeway, north of Amsterdam, and RAF pilots report salt flood waters pouring over the land in great tumbling sheets.

That is uncontrolled flooding. But south of the edge of the Zuider Zee the enemy is also flooding the country—by control. The area north of Amersfoort is gradually being covered by a sheet of water after the Germans opened the sluice gates. The gates were also opened in Hilversum, just east of Amsterdam, and here also the country is under water.

PERSHING TANK EQUALS NAZI TIGER

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, March 13.—(Delayed by Censor)—(AP) The Americans now have a tank in action on the Western Front which can stack up with the German Mark V Panther and Mark VI Tiger.

The new battle behemoth is the 45-ton General Pershing, mounting a 90-MM. gun of high velocity.

For three years German tanks have outgunned the Americans' Sherman, with its 75 or 76 millimeter weapon, but at last some of the Yank tankmen are going into battle on more even terms.

The Pershing was used for the first time by our armored divisions in the drive from the Roer river to the Rhine, which opened Feb. 23. It still is too early in the fighting here to call the Pershing the best tank on the Western Front, but the men who handle it are enthusiastic. They believe it to be the equal at least of the Panther, if not of the Tiger.

In the Rhine drive the Pershings knocked out several enemy tanks, including Mark V's and VI's. Only one of the new tanks was hit, and that one will be back in action in a few weeks.

There were only a few Pershings available to the First Army for the initial battle test. Those sent over were divided between two armored divisions so that opinions and reactions could be obtained from different groups.

The Pershing has thicker armor than the Sherman, weighs some 20 tons more, carries a more powerful gun, is wider and has tracks six inches broader and other improved features and still equals the Sherman in speed and maneuverability.

The Pershing is known technically as the T-26.

Maj. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, commanding the Seventh corps, said it was as easy to drive as an automobile and its gears were just as easy to shift.

Tankmen have seen enough of the Pershings in action to want more of them—and want them fast.

Brother Thinks Schacht Dead

Says Hitler's Financial Ace Was Held by Gestapo at Berlin Headquarters.

Baden Baden, Germany, April 19 (A. P.).—Dr. Eddy Schacht, brother of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Hitler's wizard of finance, said today he believes his brother is dead.

Eddy Schacht, a physician, born in Brooklyn and seven years older than his famous brother, said that he himself had been released from detention in Gestapo headquarters in the Prinz Albrechtstrasse in Berlin earlier this year. Hjalmar Schacht was a prisoner there at the same time.

"If he was not murdered by the Gestapo before the (Allied) February saturation bombing, my brother surely was killed by a blockbuster which eliminated the entire headquarters," Eddy Schacht said. "I got out just in time, thanks to the persistent efforts of my wife." He said he was arrested in November and freed in February.

"My daughter happened to be in Stockholm at the time of Hitler's purge," Schacht said. "She made a radio talk saying she did not desire to be a German citizen any longer and was placing herself under the protection of the American consulate.

Not Allowed to See Brother.

"Before long I was arrested and taken to Berlin. My brother was in the Prinz Albrechtstrasse Gestapo prison at the same time, but we were not allowed to see each other."

Mrs. Eddy Schacht said that she had been told by one official, during her negotiations for her husband's release, that Hjalmar Schacht soon would be removed to a concentration camp. When she confronted a higher official with this statement, she said, he became furious and said: "That's impossible; his indictment for treason has been practically completed." A treason indictment, the Schachts said, would mean death rather than a concentration camp.

"My brother-in-law was a victim of his tremendous ambition; he should have kept his fingers off Nazism," Mrs. Schacht said.

RED FORCES CRACK SPREE RIVER LINE BEFORE CAPITAL

Tanks Smash Toward Strausberg, 10 Miles from Berlin.

BIG BATTLE RAGES

Soviet Units Span Neisse River, Drive Within 55 Miles of Yanks.

LONDON, Friday, April 20.—(AP) The Soviet High command announced officially last night that a great battle was raging on Berlin's eastern approaches while Nazi reports said Russian tanks were battling toward Strausberg, 10 miles from the capital, and had cracked the city's Spree river defense line on the southeast.

Clamping tight operational silence on details of what Berlin has called "the greatest Red army offensive of the war," Moscow's war bulletins announced only that Red army forces had crossed the Oder river east of Berlin and had spanned the Neisse river to capture Forst, Muskau and Weisswasser, 58 to 72 miles southeast of the capital.

German broadcasts, however, said that armored forces of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army had swept 22 miles west of the Neisse at Muskau. Berlin said Konev's men bridged the Spree and pushed nine miles beyond to reach the strategic communications center of Hoyerswerda, 55 miles from American armies and 31 miles northeast of Dresden.

Secure Oder Bridgeheads

Revealing for the first time that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army had secured bridgeheads across the Oder river due east of Berlin Moscow said only that these had been "extended" after "reconnaissance in strength" that developed into major fighting.

Enemy broadcasts said the greatest tank battle of all time was raging beyond the Oder and claimed that 1,074 Red army tanks had been destroyed in the first three days of fighting. The armored struggle was reaching its climax, Berlin said, and admitted that the Germans were falling back. London observers believed the indecisive nature of the battle was the reason for Moscow's reticence.

As the Soviet radio declared that the "curtain was falling on the European war" and that the time when the Allied and Russian armies would link up now was at hand, the German radio reported that the Red army had launched yet another mighty offensive.

Hammer Stettin Port

The third giant blow was aimed at the great Baltic naval base of Stettin, northern anchor of Berlin's crumbling Oder river defense line. Thousands of Red army soldiers were reported surging across the Oder below Stettin under cover of artificial fog.

Meanwhile, the Soviet command disclosed that Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army operating north of Vienna had pushed within 10 miles of Laa, a key Austrian transit center on the southeastern roads to Prague, and were sweeping up the Morava river valley toward a junction with Konev's forces in the Silesian basin.

Along the entire 170-mile front from Stettin to Saxony, invaded for the first time by the Red army, the Germans admitted that the relentless pressure of Soviet armies was beating back the defensive German arc before Berlin.

The German High command said that the Russians were throwing into the colossal struggle "men and material to an extent hitherto unknown," while German commentators said the battle before Berlin "has assumed such proportions and fervency as was never before witnessed in this most bloody of all wars."

Side by side with the Red army were fighting two Polish armies in the supreme command of Col. Gen. Michal Rola-Zymierski commander in chief of the armed forces of the Lublin government.

Moscow announced that the Second Polish army had captured Rothenberg after breaching the Neisse river 14 miles north by Goerlitz, but the Germans said that these forces already had driven far beyond and were pouring into multiple bridgeheads across the shattered Spree river defense line.

On Zhukov's front east and northeast of Berlin, the enemy admitted that the situation had deteriorated rapidly during the past 24 hours. The Germans conceded the loss of Wriezen, 23 miles northeast of Berlin, and Seelow, 26 miles east.

Threaten Strausberg

Slashing across the highway defense line linking these points, Zhukov's troops battered under skies filled with clashing Red army and Luftwaffe planes down toward Strausberg, the enemy said, gaining several miles.

With the highway defense line protecting Berlin gone, Zhukov's troops and tanks battled 10 miles west of Seelow, across heights strung with permanent concrete fortifications, and reached the outskirts of Muencheberg, 16 miles east of Berlin, the enemy said.

A Transocean agency report said that Zhukov's tankmen had launched an "all-out offensive" with the great drive on Muencheberg, a key road junction in Berlin's outer defenses. A massive tank battle raged also east of Buchow, 15 1-2 miles northeast of Berlin.

Huge German reserves hourly were being thrown into the great armored melee on Berlin's approaches, according to German reports, and an official Berlin spokesman took "a very serious view of the battle although he did not consider the situation hopeless," Transocean said.

The Germans, claiming to have destroyed 113 Russian planes during the last 24 hours, claimed 84 of them had been shot down over the central Oder front. They admitted that a Nazi bridgehead on the east bank of the Oder at Frankfurt had been abandoned and that the Russians were fighting along the Frankfurt-Berlin autobahn.

Southeast of Berlin, Meanwhile, a battle comparable in its ferocity raged unabated. The enemy said Marshal Konev's troops had scored a breakthrough of 22 miles from the Neisse river during the past days, and had built up several bridgeheads across the Spree.

Konev's troops crossed Berlin's last river defense line at points along a 39-mile front, between the great defense bastion of Cottbus, 47 miles southeast of Berlin, and Bautzen, 27 miles east of Dresden.

One bridgehead was established between Cottbus and Spremberg, 13 miles to the south, and the Russians were fighting to reach the Berlin superhighway. Cottbus was outflanked.

South of Spremberg, other units crossed the Spree and swept 9 miles westward to reach Hoyerswerda, key junction on the Cottbus-Dresden highway.

Corridor Narrowed

A "furious" battle was under way for the transit center, the enemy said, as the Russians squeezed the narrow escape corridor south of Berlin.

Bautzen, reached in an apparent swift surge that left Dresden's outer guard of Goerlitz 24 miles behind, carried Konev's troops into Saxony, and they were on a high-speed autobahn to Dresden.

Konev's men were fighting in Bautzen's suburbs, Berlin said, and a "gigantic battle of attrition" reportedly was raging.

Meanwhile, north of Berlin, the enemy said that Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 2nd White Russian Army began its offensive against Stettin after an hours-long artillery bombardment from positions on the east bank of the Oder River only 3 miles south of the great port.

Cross Opposite Stettin

Rokossovsky's men were reportedly crossing the Oder mouth opposite Stettin, between the port and Padejuch. Swarms of assault troops also bridged the Oder on a 19-mile front between Podejuch and Fiddichow.

At the same time, Rokosovsky's men, reportedly were fighting to extend a bridgehead at Schwedt, 26 miles southwest of Stettin, and were fighting near Angermunde, 7 miles from the vital Berlin-Stettin autobahn.

A German radio reporter said that massed Russian artillery was pounding German positions incessantly, covering Red Army attempts to build bridges. Russian infantry, he said, were even building makeshift spans with empty beer barrels, with boards nailed on top.

Stettin itself was reported in flames as the Russians rained thousands of shells on the German garrison.

Soviets Nearing Berlin Take 2 Towns

London, April 19 (AP)—The Russians have captured Seelow and Wriezen and advanced to within 18 miles of the eastern limits of Berlin, a Transocean broadcast announced today.

Reporting a series of deep penetrations in the four-day old Russian offensive by 2,500,000 Soviet soldiers, Berlin radio announcements said Forst, on the Neisse River stronghold, 65 miles southeast of Berlin, also had fallen.

"Approaching Climax"

Transocean's correspondent, Karl Bluecher, broadcast that "the battle for Berlin in the east is approaching its climax."

He said the Russians were only 4 kilometers northeast of Muencheberg, or about 18 miles due east of Berlin's city limits, and were east of Buckow, also 18 miles east of Berlin.

Wriezen, 23 miles northeast of Berlin, had been captured, he said, along with Seelow, 25 miles due east.

"Deep but narrow" penetrations had been made from the Russian bridgeheads along the Neisse, he said, so that the Russians were now due south of Cottbus, Spree River stronghold 55 miles southeast of Berlin.

40 Miles From Yanks

Other spearheads were due south of Spremberg, 13 miles south of Cottbus and 69 miles southeast of Berlin, and east of Bautzen, 24 miles east of Dresden and only 40 miles from American positions north of Chemnitz.

Russian advances to Bautzen would represent a gain of 24 miles from the Neisse above Goerlitz, and advances to Spremberg would be a gain of 16 miles from Forst on the Neisse.

Bridgeheads Across Spree

Other Berlin broadcasts reported that the Russians had established bridgeheads across the Spree, the winding, lake-linking waterway which forms the most important part of Berlin's southeastern defenses.

This crossing, it was indicated, was somewhere south of Cottbus, perhaps near Spremberg, which is on the Spree.

The Germans indicated the Russians were driving toward Finsterwalde, 26 miles west of Spremberg and 46 miles from American positions at Wurzen.

Bliesdorf Entry Reported

Among other Russian successes reported by Berlin was the entry of Bliesdorf, 24 miles northeast of the capital.

All these penetrations were virtually confirmed by the German high command, which mentioned breaches east of Muencheberg, south of Wriezen, north of Goerlitz, east of Bautzen and northwest of Weisswasser, 12 miles southwest of Spremberg.

A Russian penetration to a point northwest of Weisswasser would place the Russians well along the road toward Finssterwalde and a union with the Americans.

Claims Breaches Sealed

Although the German communiqué said all these breaches were "sealed off," it indicated the critical nature of the situation by asserting that the Russians were attacking toward Berlin "with men and material on a scale hitherto unknown."

German broadcasts declared 800 Russian tanks had been knocked out in the four-day offensive, ranging from a point 30 miles south of Stettin to the Czechoslovak mountains.

"Crossing attempts and artillery fire on Stettin are indications that the offensive will flare up in this region shortly," said one German broadcast.

Oder Bridgehead Given Up

Among indications that the German situation was deteriorating rapidly was the Berlin admission that the Nazi bridgehead on the east side of the Oder at Frankfurt had been given up.

While the Kremlin still was mum about these titanic clashes, the Moscow radio said "the curtain is falling on the European war and the time is at hand for the armies from the west and east to unite."

Moscow held its official battle reports to the Czechoslovak and Austrian sectors.

Bruenn Entry Imminent

The entry of Bruenn, home of a famous Czech machine gun and a munitions center of 264,000 before the war, and of Moravska Ostrava, a city of 125,000 and third largest in Czechoslovakia, is imminent, Moscow dispatches said.

Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's guns already were shelling the outskirts of Bruenn, outflanked by the capture of Ivancice, 12 miles to the southwest. The Russians surged near Austerlitz, 12 miles southeast of Bruenn, trying to get at the big airport between Bruenn and Austerlitz.

On the northern side of Czechoslovakia, the Russians penetrated the Moravian Gap and were 6 miles from Moravska Ostrava, guardian city of the gap, 85 miles northeast of Bruenn.

Villages Captured

Troppau, 15 miles northwest of Moravska Ostrava, was entered and villages between the two cities were taken.

Southwest of Bruenn, the Russians headed for the Moravian cities of Trebitsch and Iglau on the road to the Czechoslovak capital of Prague, 117 miles to the northwest.

Below, in Austria, they captured Mistlebach, 12 miles from the communications center of Laa, near the Czechoslovak border, and took the village of Rechersdorf, 6 miles from Stockerau, a junction of rail ways and highways leading nort' westward to Prague.

Transocean said the Russians h developed a new, heavy bre through tank and a new autom gun of undisclosed size, capable firing 325 rounds of ammunition a minute. The tank is fitted with a 180-mm. long-range gun and a large-caliber grenade thrower, the broadcast said.

The Germans admitted that the Russians had entered Zilina, the last important railway center of Slovakia.

2,000 PLANES HIT RAIL LINES

Traffic Moving Into Southern Fortress Area Attacked

London, April 19 (AP)—More than 2,000 bombers and fighters of three Allied air commands smashed today for the fourth straight day at rail bottlenecks in the narrowing strip of Germany between the converging Allies and Russians, and battered traffic moving into Hitler's Bavarian Alps redoubt area.

Some 600 United States 8th Air Force Flying Fortresses and 550 fighters hammered railyards and installations at Falkenberg, Elsterwerda and Pierna, all within a 40-mile radius of Dresden. Others ranged into Czechoslovakia ahead of the United States 3d Army and attacked objectives at Karlsbad, 70 miles west of Prague, and Aussig, 40 miles north of Prague.

Pasing Attacked

Almost simultaneously a fleet of probably 200 planes, RAF Lancasters escorted by Mustangs, pounded the transformer station at Pasing, near Munich, which serves part of a network of electric railways leading to the Bavarian fortress zone. It was the second straight day in which an attack was laid virtually at the gate of Hitler's fortress by British-based heavies. On Wednesday, American fortresses bombed railways within 15 miles of Berchtesgaden.

RAF Lancasters hit objectives on the Nazi-held island of Helgoland in the North Sea, raining six-ton earthquake bombs on U-boat pens and other targets at the base, which was raided Wednesday by almost 1,000 British bombers.

Foe Loses 35 Planes

A hundred and fifty or more Marauders and 500 fighters of the United States 9th Air Force joined the assault on Bavaria. The Marauders attacked crowded freight yards at Ulm, when reconnaissance showed a heavy flow of supplies headed toward the redoubt area.

Fighterbombers smashed rail and road routes in the area of Regensberg, beyond Nuernberg; beyond captured Plauen in the 3d Army's path, and in Czechoslovakia, where two airfields also were hit. The Germans lost 28 planes destroyed on the ground and seven in air combat.

Eighth Air Force pilots said the clear weather was ideal for bombing. The Fortresses met only slight flak fire and were unopposed in the air by enemy planes.

Mustangs roamed the area near Berlin and shot down at least five Nazi fighters.

Italy-Based Planes Out

Italy-based United States 15th Air Force Liberators and Fortresses attacked rail objectives in Austria and southern Germany, and Lightnings dive-bombed the railyards at Weilheim, 30 miles southwest of Munich on the line to Garmisch and Partenkirchen. The Fortresses also hit the rail bridge at Rattenburg, on the Innsbruck-Salzburg line, and Liberators assaulted the Klagenfurt railyards.

Italy-based Liberators hit the Avision Viaduct on the Brenner Pass line.

hammered Berlin in relays again last night.

RAF Mosquitos sandwiched two attacks on the Nazi capital in between a night-long series of raids by Soviet airmen.

A strong force of RAF heavy bombers, meanwhile, blasted Nazi escape railways between American and Russian armies in southern Germany for the fourth straight night.

Railheads Ripped

One target was the railroad yard at Komotau, just across the Czechoslovak border, 32 miles southeast of Chemnitz. Seven other railheads in this general area had been ripped a few hours earlier by 750 American heavy bombers in an effort to block Nazi traffic into the south German mountain fortifications.

The Air Ministry said four RAF bombers and one fighter were missing from a force of 1,250 planes which participated in the attacks yesterday and last night.

Forty additional German planes were destroyed yesterday—20 in the air and 20 on the ground—boosting to 2,950 the number of Nazi planes put out of action in the last eleven days.

Long Convoy Blasted

An eight-mile German convoy winding through the Harz Mountains was broken up by United States Air Force attacks. Pilots reported that the 45-minute strafing destroyed 228 trucks, 58 horse-drawn vehicles, 10 armored cars and 113 motor transports.

British fighters continued to blast German sea and rail escape routes in the north. Between 3 A. M. and 4 A.M. nine small vessels were sunk or damaged in the North Sea. Many Nazi vehicles were destroyed on the highways between Berlin and Bremen.

A large transformer station at Pasing, just west of Munich, which serves electric railways leading to the Nazi hideout areas in the Bavarian Mountains, was blasted this afternoon by from 100 to 200 big Lancaster bombers of the Royal Air Force. It was the second consecutive day on which heavy bombers from England battered the doorstep of Adolf Hitler's fortress headquarters near the Austrian border. American Flying Fortresses yesterday attacked railways within fifteen miles of Berchtesgaden.

At the same time American Lightnings from Italy dive-bombed the railroad yards at Weilheim, thirty miles southwest of Munich on the line to Garmisch Partenkirchen, and Liberators and Fortresses from Italy attacked the Avision Viaduct on the Brenner line, the railway bridge at Rattenburg on the Innsbruck-Salzburg line, and the railroad yards at Klagenfurt.

Nazi, Czech Rails Raided 4th Day

London, April 19 (AP)—German railway targets in the southern Reich and in Czechoslovakia were attacked today for the fourth successive day by 600 United States 8th Air Force heavy bombers and 550 fighters, which also continued to search for remnants of German air power.

British and Russian bombers

Earlier today railway targets in South Germany and Czecho-Slovakia were attacked for the fourth successive day by 600 British-based American heavy bombers and 550 fighters, which also continued to search for remnants of German air power.

ALLIED NATIONS ISSUE WARNING ON NAZI ATROCITIES

LONDON, April 19 — (AP) The United States, Britain and Russia have drafted a final solemn warning to the Germans that both the top Nazis and those who have done the "foul work with their own hands" will be made to pay for atrocities committed against the Allies, Prime Minister Churchill announced today.

Disclosure that the warning had been drafted by himself, President Truman and Premier Stalin and would be issued within a "very few days" was made by Churchill to the House of Commons whose anger flamed as a result of direct word from Gen. Eisenhower that atrocities just discovered "far surpass" anything seen before.

In what appeared to be a suggestion that the central Nazi government might not last even long enough to receive the warning, Churchill said it had been prepared "for the German government or whatever authorities exist."

Nazi atrocities have become of paramount importance in communications between the "Big Three," the Prime Minister said, disclosing that a delegation from Parliament would leave tomorrow at the invitation of Eisenhower to see first hand "these gruesome scenes." One woman is on the eight-member committee appointed to get personal proof of the crimes.

The flaring of anger toward the Nazis and concern for prisoners still in their hands swept through Commons after Churchill had fenced good-naturedly with members who tried to "tempt" him into talking about prospects for victory day in Europe.

The Prime Minister said that any V-E proclamation would come in concert with the United States and Russia. He emphasized that both "military and political considerations" would be taken into account. He added that he did not mean domestic political considerations.

Discussing Nazi atrocities, Churchill declared that no words can express the horror which is felt by his Majesty's government and their Allies at proof of these frightful crimes now daily coming into view."

The warning of retribution, he said, grimly, is being directed "not only to the men at the top but to the actual people who have done this foul work with their own hands."

"No order from superior authority would be any shield to them," he said.

The Prime Minister said he would not make his expected war statement to Commons for at least another two weeks, and only then if he deemed the time suitable.

Big 3 To Warn Nazis On Camp Atrocities

London, April 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill announced today that a "solemn warning" to the Germans against prison-camp atrocities was being prepared to be issued over the signatures of himself, Marshal Stalin and President Truman.

The Foreign Secretaries in Washington — Vyacheslav Molotov for Russia, Secretary Stettinius for the United States and Anthony Eden for Britain—are preparing the warning to "bring home responsibility, not only to the men at the top who are already on other grounds war criminals in many cases but also to the actual people who have done this foul work with their own hands."

Gets Top Priority

Sidestepping attempts to draw from him a hint as to when a proclamation on V-E day will come—he declared it would be made jointly with the Russians—the Prime Minister made clear that the matter of atrocities is now taking top priority in Big Three discussions.

The whole matter has become "one of urgency," he said and the solemn warning will be issued by the Big Three in a few days.

New Discoveries

He disclosed that he had received only this morning a letter from General Eisenhower saying "new discoveries, particularly at Weimar, far surpassed anything previously disclosed. The Buchenwald camp was at Weimar.

A parliamentary delegation will leave tomorrow, on invitation of General Eisenhower, to get first-hand proof of the atrocities disclosed in captured camps, he announced.

The Prime Minister said "no words can express the horror which is felt by His Majesty's Government and their Allies at the proof of the frightful crimes now daily coming into view."

No News On V-E Day

Churchill said the whole matter of V-E day, taking in both military and political considerations, would have to be discussed by the "three or four" principal powers engaged before the final defeat of Germany was proclaimed.

One member asked whether General Eisenhower's statement that V-E day would not be proclaimed until all important centers had been liquidated meant that Norway, Denmark and the Channel islands and Atlantic ports would have to be liberated first.

Churchill reiterated that he had "no announcement about V-E day at the present time."

"I do not know myself why all this talk about V-E day has got about," the Prime Minister said. "No one in the British Government and no responsible gentleman in any of the parties, so far as I know, has given any special encouragement to this."

GOEBBELS URGES NAZIS TO DISCARD WARFARE RULES

LONDON, April 19—(AP) Adolf Hitler declared today on the eve of his 56th birthday that "we are now starting a battle as fanatical as that which we had to fight for our ascent to power years ago," and Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels called on Germans to discard warfare rules and use every means to defend the fatherland.

"The rules of war of past centuries have become out of date," Goebbels said in his weekly newspaper Das Reich as quoted by the Nazi Transocean agency. "In the battle against the terrible enemy all means are proper, right and allowed." He added that the war "has entered a phase in which only the utmost effort of the nation and everyone can save us."

Replies to Holy Greetings

Replying to birthday greetings from Gauleiter Karl Holz at embattled Nuernberg, Hitler's message added that "however great and crushing the enemy's superiority may appear to us, we will break it just as we did in those days," the official DNB German news agency reported in broadcast.

Hitler said that "the battle for the town of (national socialist) party meetings have begun" and he pledged himself to "stay in this most Germanic of all towns and fight and sacrifice my life." The agency said Hitler awarded Holz a decoration for this "exemplary behavior."

Goebbels said in a broadcast speech that the Allies were ready "to administer the coup de grace" and asked Germany never to forget Hitler, whom he eulogized as if he were already a Nazi martyr.

"We are witnessing the last acts of a tremendous tragedy," he said. "The decision is very near." Goebbels' speech, distributed by DNB, urged, "let us stake our hopes on our lucky star."

"It is not only mainly but in every sense truly German to take up the struggle which is inevitable," and "never to waver in the most painful moment of final decision or to throw in the sponge," Goebbels said.

Speaking of Hitler as if to immortalize a dead man, Goebbels affirmed:

Will Not Abandon Fuehrer

"Never will history be able to report of this present time that a nation abandoned its Fuehrer or a Fuehrer his nation. This is the victory. What we prayed on the eve of the Fuehrer's birthday in earlier, happier days, we must now repeat more urgently to him: That he may be preserved to us, that he may remain what he is to us and always has been to us, our Fuehrer."

Referring to the death of President Roosevelt, the little Nazi propaganda minister said, "the perverted coalition between plutocracy and bolshevism is cracking, the head of the enemy conspiracy has been struck off by fate. It was fate which left the Fuehrer unharmed (in an assassination attempt) on July 20, 1944, among the dead, the seriously wounded and the ruins, so that he might complete his task—under painful and burdensome conditions, it is true, but in conformity with providence."

"This man of truly secular greatness, of unparalleled courage, who lifts and moves the heart, will become God's tool in this process."

Roundabout reports reaching London from inside Germany said Hitler had assigned the command of the "national redoubt" for a desperate Nazi last stand in the Bavarian Alps to SS (elite guard) supreme group leader Hausen, one-legged, one-armed veteran of the Falaise gap battle in Normandy.

Hausen, dismissed from the Wehrmacht in 1931 but recalled three years later, has risen rapidly in the SS. His assignment supposedly includes withdrawing his own army group and bringing the defenders' strength within the mountain fortress up to 325,000 or 350,000 troops, with supplies enough for about six months.

The redoubt might be reinforced by German soldiers fighting in Italy, who were told by Nazi Ambassador Rudolf Rahn, in a captured document made public here, to overcome their "violent aversion" to Italians "so the country can be exploited to the fullest."

Advices from Malmoe, Sweden, said Col. Gen. Georg Lindemann, Nazi commander in chief for Denmark, issued an order of the day yesterday saying he would "defend the Danish area against any attack, from whatever side it may come, until the last bullet and the last gasp."

GOEBBELS ASKS A LAST EFFORT TO SAVE REICH

Appeal to People Depicts Germany as Balancing on Razor's Edge.

PROMISES BRIGHT FUTURE

Declares Fate Has Struck Down Leader of Allied Powers, in Obvious Reference to Roosevelt.

London, April 19 (A. P.).—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels told the German people today the nation was "balancing on the razor's edge," and called upon them to stand behind Hitler and "by a last all-out effort make sure that the Reich does not break apart."

Goebbels was scheduled to broadcast his address tonight on the eve of Hitler's 56th birthday, but the text was distributed by radio to the German newspapers in advance by DNB, the German official news agency, and was picked up here before it reached the ears of its intended audience. For the most part it was devoted to resounding praise of Der Fuehrer, indicating that he remains at least the nominal chief of the crumbling Nazi party despite rumors of Heinrich Himmler's ascendancy.

While acknowledging the seriousness of the war situation, Goebbels sought to bolster German hopes by telling them that "the perverted coalition between plutocracy and bolshevism is cracking and the head of the enemy conspiracy has been struck off by fate." This obviously was in reference to the death of President Roosevelt, but Goebbels did not mention him by name.

Says Nazis Brought Happiness.

"Perhaps for the last time all the forces of hatred and destruction are assailing our fronts from east, west, southeast and south in order to pierce them and administer the coup de grace," he declared. "Flourishing towns and villages throughout Europe have been transformed into fields of craters. The most outstanding civilization the world has ever seen is crumbling into ruins. Wherever our enemies appear, they bring poverty, sorrow, chaos, devastation, unemployment and hunger with them."

In contrast to this, the Germans have always brought to other countries "happiness and well-being, law and order and plenty of work," he said, and added: "Europe had a chance to choose between these two sides. She has chosen the side of anarchy and has to pay for it today."

Promises Happy Future.

While offering no specific suggestion as to how Germany may yet achieve victory—except through blind faith in Hitler—Goebbels predicted that a few years after the war Germany will blossom as never before," and said: "Her ravaged countryside will be studded with new and more beautiful towns and villages inhabited by happy people. We shall again be friends with all nations of good will and with them heal the scars of our heavy wounds."

Throughout his address Goebbels sought to conjure up new faith in Hitler as the German hope of salvation. He predicted that the world which now "persecutes him (Hitler) hatefully" will have to "revise its opinion and repent" after he has saved civilization.

Handling Of Papen Eyed By Reds

London, April 19 (AP)—The capture of Franz von Papen, former German chancellor and diplomat, confronted the Allied War Crimes Commission today with the question of whether diplomats should be held accountable for Nazi atrocities.

The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia described Papen as "one of the most acknowledged of war criminals" and said Russia was watching the attitude of the United States and Britain with anxiety over the chance that war criminals will be treated "with kid gloves."

Now Before Commission

Responsible London quarters understood that the problem of Papen had been laid before the commission. Unless the commission's policy suddenly is reversed its decision will be kept secret until the end of the war in Europe.

The reason for the reluctance to disclose the proceedings was ascribed to fear of German reprisals.

A source close to the commission said that the Germans still hold a number of diplomatic prisoners, particularly of French nationality, who could be made victims of such vengeance.

Diplomatic Problem

Russia is not represented on the commission. Thus Britain and the United States have a doplomatic problem in deciding the status of such cases, and the problem may prove even more ticklish if a large majority of Nazi officials fall into the hands of the Western Allies.

As a captive of American troops, Papen presumably would be the immediate problem of United States authorities. Britain still has to decide the case of Rudolf Hess, one-time No. 2 Nazi.

COUNT VON LUCKNER SURRENDERS TO YANKS

LONDON, April 19 — (AP) Stars and Stripes, Army newspaper, in a dispatch dated Monday in Halle, Germany, said Count Felix von Luckner, famous German sea raider of the First World war, had surrendered to American forces, explaining:

"I haven't been so happy since I ran the British blockade in 1916."

The Stars and Stripes staffwriter G. K. Hoddenfield said Von Luckner drove into American territory in a Red Cross automobile with his aide.

Al Newman, Newsweek correspondent, was the first American he saw, Hoddenfield reported, "and he greeted Newman like a long-lost brother."

Hoddenfield reported that Von Luckner, said to be in the Nazi party's bad graces since Hitler rose to power, once spent a short time in jail after refusing to give up honorary citizenship of California, bestowed on him when he toured the United States in the 1920's as a German ambassador of good will.

Von Luckner repeated to Maj. Gen. Terry Allen his boast that he never sank a ship without taking off all its personnel.

"He still looks like a storybook hero" Hoddenfield wrote, "and from habit gained in the United States, he still carries a pocketful of post card pictures for autographing purposes."

Czechs Asked To Aid American Liberators

London, April 19 (AP)—Dr. Hubert Ripka, Czechoslovak Minister of Foreign Trade, saluted the United States 3d Army's entry into Czechoslovakia tonight in a broadcast to his homeland and called on the Czechoslovaks to "put themselves at the disposal of American commanders."

Ripka referred to the army "of that wonderful general, Patton."

He warned the homeland that the American entry was in the Sudetenland region—"inhabited by Germans who in their majority had been infested with Nazi poison, a region where Henleinism was born, the real hotbed of Nazism and the starting point of the German imperialistic attack on Czechoslovakia."

"Let all those who are contributing to the liberations of Czechoslovakia keep this fact in mind," Ripka emphasized.

British Building Lights To Blaze

London, April 19 (AP)—After almost six years of war-enforced darkness, lights in almost all British homes and business buildings will blaze with prewar brilliance Monday.

Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary, announced in Commons today that all blackout restrictions limiting the amount of light which may be shown from houses, offices and factories, will be removed except for those in a 5-mile belt all around the coast of Britain.

The exception was needed "to avoid giving assistance to enemy submarines and other craft in their attacks on our ships," Morrison said.

Street lighting will not be affected by the order, but Morrison said authorities had been requested to prepare for full street lighting beginning July 15.

Jap Airfields Hit: Tokyo

London, April 19 (AP)—The Tokyo radio announced today that airdromes in the Tokyo and Kanto areas had been strongly attacked by American bombers and fighters this morning.

The Domei news agency said about 60 fighters, probably Mustangs from Iwo Jima, and three Superfortresses raided airfields around Tokyo for 30 minutes.

The dispatch claimed a "considerable number" were shot down. There was no American confirmation of the report.

Wide London Search On For Stolen Baby

London, April 19 (AP)—The police are searching the west end of London for the kidnapper of a 7-month-old boy from a baby carriage while his mother was shopping.

Private Szwelen Jakubowicz, the 27-year-old father, is serving with the British Pioneer Corps and never has seen his son, having been sent overseas before the child was born.

War Roster From Germans

Files Itemize All Captives Since Outbreak of War

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, April 19 (AP).—Germany's complete roster of prisoners of war, including an itemization of all captives from every Allied country taken by the Germans since the outbreak of the war, has been seized by American 3d Army troops.

The important seizure was accomplished by soldiers of Major General Manton S. Eddy's 12th Corps, the corps which captured the German gold reserve.

The captured records contain the latest whereabouts of Allied prisoners of war, their dates of capture, and other data. They list the prisoners who have died since their capture, and those wounded when taken.

The capture was made by Eddy's headquarters personnel, who seized the complete staff of ten German officers and forty enlisted men engaged in keeping the prisoners' cards up to date. An announcement said 460 civilian clerks were employed in maintaining the records, but did not tell what disposition had been made of them.

Capture of an economic division of the German high command along with fifteen additional officers and fifty-six enlisted men also was announced by corps headquarters.

3d Army Captives Total 510,764

PARIS, April 19 (AP).—The United States 3d Army has captured 510,764 prisoners since its activation last Aug. 1, passing the half-million mark yesterday when it bagged 18,716 captives. The 3d ranks second in prisoners taken on the western front, trailing the older 1st Army, which had taken 659,117 Germans through Tuesday.

PATTON SENT NAZIS TO VIEW HORRORS

Paris, April 19 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr., has compelled a large part of the civil population of Weimar, including men, women and children, to visit the Buchenwald prison camp and see for themselves the horrors of the Nazi regime, liberated Frenchmen said today.

Among the Frenchmen arriving in Paris from the camp were Julien Cain, director of the French National Library, and several university professors.

Patton was horrified by the conditions he found, the French said, ordered all prisoners moved out and then had military police line up all the civilians they could find in Weimar and march them to the camp.

The doors of the crematoriums were opened, exposing burned and semi-burned bodies of the victims. On being marched past these ovens some Germans tried not to look at the spectacle, but the repatriates said American officers, on Patton's orders, compelled the Germans to turn their heads toward the scene.

The French quoted the officers as saying to the Germans: "You must look at this. You are responsible for it."

U-BOATS OFF BORDEAUX

French Battleship Eludes Nazi Craft to Shell Pocket

PARIS, April 19 (AP)—The French task force that for two days shelled the German-held Pointe de Grave pocket blocking the sea approaches to Bordeaux, twice had to fight off German submarines trying to reach and leave the area, it was announced today.

Rear Admiral Joseph Rue used as flagship the 31-year-old French battleship Lorraine, which was interned by the British at Alexandria during the Vichy regime. Other ships engaged along the Gironde estuary included the heavy cruiser Duquesne, escort vessels, two British destroyers and a Canadian mine sweeper. The response from German coastal batteries was light.

ALLIES SMASHING TOWARD FERRARA

British Pour Across Po Plain, Yanks Converge on Bologna

ROME, April 19—(AP) British Eighth army troops pouring across the Po plain after their breakthrough of German defenses in the Argenta gap were reported tonight within 11 miles of the industrial center of Ferrara while American and New Zealand troops drove within [illegible] of Bologna from the south and east.

A special Allied communique tonight said that the British Fifth corps commanded by Lt. Gen. C. F. Keithley was storming northwest toward Ferrara after a "brilliant breakthrough" in the Argenta gap near the Italian east coast.

Threaten Porto Maggiore

The towns of Consandolo and Benvignante were quickly captured and the British rolled on to threaten Porto Maggiore, only three miles distant.

"The Germans have thrown in virtually all available local reserves in their frantic efforts to prevent a general breakthrough into the Po valley, and numerous counterattacks have been launched to regain lost ground," an Allied announcement said.

New Zealand and Indian troops forced a crossing of the Quaderna river seven and a half miles east of Bologna in a night attack. Veteran German parachute troops were putting up a grim fight in that sector.

An official report, described the Argenta gap defenses through which the British broke as the "most concentrated yet encountered in Italy." The breach was made by the 56th London infantry division and the veteran 78th division, both strongly supported by tanks.

Gain in Serchio Valley

American Fifth army units moved up slightly in the Serchio valley near the west coast, occupying the villages of Perpoli and Vergemoli, roughly 30 miles east of the naval base of La Spezia.

Although the British break-through below Ferrara posed desperate threat to the enemy's entire line across Italy, the Germans so far showed no disposition to relinquish their grip on Bologna, the central pivot, without a grim struggle.

A formation of 16 Mustang fighters encountered 17 German Messerschmitt-109s near Lake Garda in northern Italy and destroyed six enemy planes without loss to themselves. Rocket-firing Thunderbolts flew close support of the Fifth army's push on Bologna, blasting numerous Nazi tanks and gun posts.

U.S. 5th Cracks Outer Defense Of Bologna

Rome, April 19 (AP)—American 5th Army troops, cracking the outer defenses of Bologna, drove to within 8 miles of the great Italian industrial city today after seizing the key heights of Monte Adone and Monte Rumici in a 60-hour battle.

The advance appeared to have loosened German defenses before the Po Valley gateway city and gave the Americans a downhill road to Bologna with each mountain generally smaller than the last, a front dispatch said.

Nazis Due Out Of Caves

Troops of the 91st Division took Monte Adone, between Highways 64 and 65, as other forces dug the Germans out of caves on Monte Rumici. These actions south of Bologna yielded nearly 200 prisoners—a high figure for this sector.

Continuing its advance another 2,300 yards, the 91st Division overran Monte [illegible] Frati. American troops [illegible] the village of Badolo [illegible] east of Highway 64, within 8 miles of Bologna.

For the first time in six months the Germans have been deprived of heights which enabled them to pour fire down on American positions.

British Rip Argenta Gap Line

To the northeast, British 8th Army troops overran the toughest defenses on the road to Ferrada and stormed through the Argenta Gap to capture the Po Valley town of Boccaleone.

Chiesa Delbandon, an outpost of the German Sabbiosola Canal line, was also captured in the heavy fighting as the British forces moved northwestward.

Fifth Army troops, meanwhile were meeting some of the heaviest fighting of the campaign in their drive along Highway 65 toward Bologna. A 1,000-yard advance was made toward Pianoro.

Spectacular Thrust

The 5th Army was also reported to have made a spectacular advance farther west along Highway 64.

Along Highway 65, the Florence-Bologna main road, Allied troops were running into thick concrete pillboxes on the sides of hills.

The 361st Infantry Regiment, commanded by Col. R.W. Broedlow, captured Mount Adone.

Resistance in the extreme west coastal sector was stiffening and there was considerable artillery fire from Nazis at Punta Bianca, headquarters said.

Gaiana River Reached

Southwest of the Argenta Gap Allied troops fighting through flooded fields reached the Gaiana River in many places along an 8-mile front north of Highway 9. Patrols have crossed the river and are holding some strong positions.

There was no report on the progress of Polish troops driving westward along Highway 9, but below that main lateral artery to Bologna Italian troops pushed across the Gaiana in two places and drove through the Apennine foothills northwest of Castelazzo.

Heavy bomber forces again supported troops yesterday, while medium bombers and fighters attacked positions behind the German communications lines.

Pfc. Casmere B. Kunicki of 571 Center street, Trenton, N. J., from Company F of the Ninety-first Infantry Division's 361st Regiment was among the first men on the Monte Adore. Since they were part of the Second Battalion commanded by Major James Patterson of Kearny, N. J., the battalion's American flag was planted at the tip of the peak. Company F is commanded by Capt. Milton H. Mater of 1672 Union street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

SWEDEN EXPECTED TO STAY NEUTRAL

STOCKHOLM, April 19 (AP) The Swedish foreign office gave further evidence tonight that prospects are remote for immediate intervention by Sweden to help Norway and Denmark rid their countries of the Nazi invaders.

Earlier a responsible spokesman had said Sweden intends to refrain from any "rash act" which might provoke the Germans into a final mad fight in those two countries, and declared that members of the Swedish Parliament and government officials generally believe the Germans do not intend to wage a last ditch fight in Norway and Denmark as has been predicted by [illegible] sources.

Allan Vought, deputy in the Upper House of Parliament and member of its Foreign Policy committee, in an editorial in the Social Democratic newspaper Arbetet, in Malmo, said prospects for "more or less" peaceful end of German occupation of the two neighbor countries are better than "only a few weeks ago."

"Hopes of more or less peaceful solution should not be given up," he said in the editorial.

He said it would be "unfeasible" to take steps which might provoke Germany to "violent acts of a still more frightful character than those so dreadful every day under German regime."

The Foreign Office statement said it is in the best interests of all to solve the Danish and Norwegian problems "with the least possible bloodshed and destruction" and that "one can rest assured the Swedish government will be guided by these considerations when determining its attitude in situations which may arise."

Taking note of press reports that Sweden had rejected Norwegian proposals for Swedish military measures against the Germans in Norway, the statement said:

"It is impossible to give publicity to what has occurred in this matter."

About two weeks ago Sweden officially denied the Norwegian government had formally requested Sweden to intervene militarily in Norway.

Stockholm, April 19 (AP) — The Germans have completely lost their respect for their money, among other things, as disaster closes down.

An incident aboard the ferry on which I traveled from Copenhagen to Malmo illustrates this. At the currency control desk I said that I still had a considerable sum in reichsmarks.

The German official said with a shrug of his shoulders. "If you have too much, throw it overboard; I don't want it."

Anything But Marks

The usual comment from German shopkeepers is, "Haven't you anything other than marks—bread or meat coupons, perhaps?" Germans want only things that have real value to them—coffee, alcohol, tobacco or gold.

The black market functions as never before. Without blinking an eye, a Hamburg doctor turned over a gold watch for three loaves of bread. He had a family, with children.

When the Americans stood at Erfurt and the Russians on the Oder, rye bread on the black market cost 150 marks a kilogram. (The prewar mark was quoted as 40 cents; a kilogram is 35 ounces.) Butter was 800 marks a kilogram. "Luxury" goods brought fantastic prices: Coffee, 1,000 marks a kilo; cigarettes of German manufacture, 300 marks for a package of 20.

Black Market In Open

Nobody has any inhibitions about the black market any longer. Even workers throw out a thousand marks for a bottle of schnapps.

The ups and downs in values and lack of confidence in money is one of the principal factors in a "doomsday feeling" that pervaded Germany and was shown in many forms. An auto mechanic stubbornly refused to take reichsmarks in payment for a job, but told me "remember me after the war."

Rumors have wings. Hence, everywhere stories are told about party bosses. But they aren't whispered anymore. They are spoken quite clearly in streetcars and subways. People froze too much this winter and had too little to eat to be cautious.

Brown-clad "Golden Pheasants" are no longer so arrogant. The Volkssturmers openly declare that they will take care of "these brown rascals" when the clock strikes 12.

No More Coffins

People have worked and saved to postpone the final hour and now even the dead are affected. Relief and rag collections took virtually everything left to the living and now even death's domain has been invaded—coffins are no longer available. The wood must be preserved for barricades and the war machine. A dead man may be taken to the grave in a borrowed coffin, but his relatives may not attend the burial. Grave diggers are charged with the responsibility of transferring the body from the borrowed coffin to a paper sack, which serves as the last resting place.

It is also a forbidden luxury to clothe dead bodies or dress them in shrouds. Textiles may not be wasted in graves, it is said. Think of the front.

Saved In Vain

An old woman who died in a neighboring house some time ago had saved her finest silk frock for the last journey. But her naked body was lowered into the grave in a paper sack. Not even soldiers are granted the relatively reasonable request to enter Valhalla in a "clean white shirt."

The people of Berlin are depressed as the result of bombings, bad sleep, little food, lack of electricity, food lines, worry and agony. This black depression first appeared in the great cities, where war's ghastly trials were the greatest. Berlin was pretty pale after the thirty-sixth consecutive bombing this spring.

On the thirty-seventh night only the most hardened could go to bed, violently cursing because the British failed to come punctually.

Shock When Raids Stop

Cessation of bombing was a shock to the nerves. It broke a steady series of bomb attacks, which everybody by that time considered automatic, and the effect was greater than the crash of a two-ton bomb. And the crash of a two-ton bomb should not be underestimated.

The lack of electricity also contributed to the depression. Radios need electricity, and without a radio you feel hopelessly lost in Berlin.

As a rule, police or other special stations are always working and you listen automatically to the incoming reports, casting a wary eye at the anti-aircraft map which can be found in every radio shop. The maps cost 50 cigarettes in bribes at the police station because they are military documents, but they are necessary as a nerve quieter.

Because electricity service was stopped for civilians, factories were forced to operate at night, when there was more current available for their purposes.

Gas Shut Off

Housewives were forbidden to cook with electricity, and then the gas was shut off. Officially it was supposed to be only a "reduction in pressure," but the reduction was so great that it was impossible to light even the smallest flame. Therefore, most people spent their time hunting fuel.

And in this the American and RAF bombers did the Berlin citizens a great service. Ruined buildings provided much fuel, because they were littered with splintered wood which could easily be carried home to the kitchen.

Standing in food lines is not new to the Germans. They did it before the war. But the food lines today are not like the earlier ones. The bread lines are enormous. Many shopowners hang out "sold out" signs early in the day to free themselves of angry amazons who want bread for their children.

New Modes Of Thinking Urged By Finn Premier

Helsinki, April 19 (AP)—Premier Juho K. Paasikivi told the Finnish Parliament today that the newly formed Cabinet considered that "new modes of thinking among people of all classes must gain ground" in the [illegible] family field.

"Cultured life should be developed and cleared of all Chauvinistic and undemocratic elements," the Premier said in a speech outlining the new Government's views on Finland's future.

The foremost task of the Government, he said, will be the fulfillment of armistice terms with Russia.

Lack Of Bid To Poland Assailed In Moscow

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, April 19 (AP)—Red Star asserted today that the failure to invite representatives of the Polish provisional government to the San Francisco conference "has evoked the indignation of the Polish people."

The newspaper, quoting from the Polish paper Robotnik (The Worker) also said: "Only one government exists in Poland. This government has restored order in the country in a very short time, formed an administration, regulated the economic life, has begun to restore the nation and is conducting agrarian reform. It is not right to compare a group of London politicians, who quarrel among themselevs, to this single government of Polish people.

"Poland has a right to participate in the San Francisco conference. Poland has to be represented there by the provisional government of the Polish republic. Such is the will of the people."

Reports published in Moscow today said there was a growing demand among the Polish people for a treaty between Poland and the U.S.S.R. along the lines of the recent Yugoslav-Soviet pact signed by Marshal Tito during his recent visit to Moscow.

CHINESE CHECKING DRIVE AT AIR BASE

Defenders of Chihkiang Cut Up One of Japanese Spearheads That Are Pushing Westward

CHUNGKING, China, April 19 (AP)—The Chinese High Command said tonight that its forces were chopping up a Japanese spearhead menacing a United States air base at Chihkiang, 250 miles south of this wartime capital of China.

A communiqué admitted that the Japanese had struck westward to within sixty-five miles of Chihkiang, where it said the invaders were surrounded and the spearhead was being reduced.

The war bulletins also reported that the Chinese had opened the battle for the Japanese Honan Province stronghold of Shanghsien, 360 miles northeast of the capital, and had broken into its defenses at several points.

The Chinese made some gains eastward along the Lo River as they pressed toward the railway town of Loning, but they were driven from Hsihsiakow and heavy fighting raged in that sector.

The Chinese said fighting was in progress twenty-five miles north of Paoking in Hunan Province, from which the Japanese launched their present drive on the Chihkiang air base. The Japanese were throwing in a number of diversionary attacks, apparently trying to keep the Chinese from switching troops southward for the defense of Chihkiang.

The Chinese also reported successes Wednesday in northern Hupeh Province, where the recapture of Fancheng, 165 miles northwest of Hankow, restored to China's control all the points on the Han River occupied by the Japanese in their offensive.

At the same time, Chinese troops struck south, advancing twenty-five miles in the direction of Kingmen, one of the main bases of the Japanese drive in Hupeh Province.

Chinese Announce Recapture Of Fancheng

Chungking, April 19 (AP)—The Chinese high command announced today that Fancheng, on the Han River, 165 miles northwest of Hankow, has been recaptured, completing reoccupation of all points on the river taken by the Japanese in their drive into northern Hupeh Province.

The United States 14th Air Force concentrated its attacks yesterday on Japanese columns pushing westward in Hunan Province toward the American airbase at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking. At last reports the enemy was about 100 miles from that important offensive base.

In Hupeh, Chinese striking south from Nanchang, 45 miles south of recaptured Laohokow, advanced 25 miles in the direction of Kingmen, one of the principal bases for the short-lived Japanese Hupeh drive.

Burma Oil Town Taken By British

Calcutta, April 19 (AP)—British troops striking southward on the east side of the Irrawaddy River in Burma today captured the oil town of Chauk and the villages of Singu and Salo.

Lessening of Japanese resistance was evidenced by the capture of these three towns in the oil field area. An RAF attack weakened the defenses of Singu, making its capture relatively easy. The British troops kept on moving south after the capture of Singu and there is a definite indication that the Japanese are withdrawing both of their flanks along the river.

In the Bangkok area, United States and RAF bombers destroyed important dock facilities and knocked out a canal system that the Japanese were using as a freight waterway to supplement their heavily damaged railroad transportation system.

British Capture Burmese Oil Town

Calcutta, April 19 (AP)—A British spearhead in Burma, pushing south into the Chauk-Yenangyaung oilfields area on the east bank of the Irrawaddy, has captured Singu and Chauk and enveloped Sale, an Irrawaddy steamer station, a Southeast Asia communiqué announced today.

The successes indicated a lessening enemy resistance in the area. Chauk, an oilfield town 35 miles southwest of Pakokku, was taken in an encircling movement from the south and east. To the north Singu fell after an air blow which softened up enemy defenses in the southern sector of the city. A British column overpowered the remaining Japanese and plunged on southward against slight opposition. The Japanese appeared to be withdrawing along both banks of the Irrawaddy.

South of Meiktila, meanwhile, the extent of the advances by armored columns still was cloaked in security secrecy, but progress was said to be satisfactory.

U.S. TROOPS OPEN ALL-OUT ASSAULT TO CLEAR OKINAWA

Thunderous Artillery Barrage Precedes Attack against Jap Lines.

LONG DEADLOCK ENDED

Americans Drive Wedges into Enemy Defenses in Drive on Naha.

GUAM, Friday, April 20.— (AP) Three American army divisions, totalling possibly 45,000 men, jumped off yesterday in an all-out assault against the deep, solid Japanese defenses of southern Okinawa island, the Navy disclosed today.

One of the heaviest big gun bombardments ever launched in support of amphibious troops preceded the big push, with battleships and cruisers helping field artillery, and a great cover of carrier planes protected the ground force.

Make Initial Gains

The Japanese fought back furiously with artillery and mortars but the Yanks made initial gains of 500 yards on one flank and 800 on the other. They captured the village of Machinato.

The operation ended a 13-day deadlock on the southern Okinawa front, where the Nipponese have been holding the Yanks with a defense setup four miles or more in depth and extending all the way across the island, about 8,000 yards.

An artillery duel has raged unabated along the front since April 16.

Locked in the battle are the American Seventh, 27th and 96th divisions of the Tenth army. Their jumpoff place was about 4 1-2 miles north of Naha on the west coast and 3 1-2 miles from Yonabaru on the east coast.

There was little possibility of a quick breakthrough because the defense extends all the way to Naha and the terrain is suited to the enemy's kind of fighting. It is cut up by ravines and terraces. The Nipponese were entrenched in interlocking trench and pillbox systems and blockhouses.

Further progress by the Marines on northern Okinawa and by Army forces on Ie island, to the west, was reported.

Mustangs Attack Airfield

Nimitz also announced a raid by Army Mustangs yesterday on Atsugi airfield in the Tokyo area, in which 21 enemy planes were shot down, two others probably, 26 planes destroyed on the ground and 35 others damaged aloft or aground. A large cargo ship was left sinking and a medium sized ship was set afire. The Mustangs met moderate to intense ack-ack.

Marine Corsairs and Hellcats attacked installations in the Palau islands and Helldivers hit a Japanese airstrip on Yap island in the western Carolines.

American Army, Navy and Marine casualties for the Okinawa campaign from March 18, when carrier aircraft started pounding Japanese defenses, to April 18 totaled 7,988, including 1,482 dead, 4,750 wounded and 1,756 missing, yesterday's headquarters communique reported.

Ie island, a small body with a big airfield three miles west of Motobu peninsula, has been overrun by the 77th (Statue of Liberty) division except for the 557-foot Mt. Degusugu area on the southeast coast, where remnants of the Japanese garrison were making a last stand.

Tokyo radio raised its figures of destruction wrought on American naval forces supporting the invasion of Okinawa, only 325 miles south of Nippon's home shores, with the unconfirmed claim that Japanese suicide pilots had sunk or damaged 323 war vessels since March 23.

American headquarters have reported the loss of four destroyers to the enemy's death-diving fliers, but said no major fleet units have been sunk by them.

Marines Sweep North End Of Okinawa

Guam, April 19 (AP)—American Navy, Army and Marine casualties of 7,988 in the Okinawa campaign were reported by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz today, as United States Marines overran the northern end of that strategic island and doughboys virtually ended the conquest of little Ie Islet offshore.

The casualty toll, as of yesterday, was 1,482 dead, 4,750 wounded and 1,756 missing. This dated back to March 18 when Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier planes first began sweeping the Ryukyus and Japan itself to soften the way for the Easter morning invasion of Okinawa.

9,108 Japs Killed

Japanese dead in the ground fighting on Okinawa alone were 9,108 killed and 391 made prisoner, counted up to midnight last Friday. Considerable heavy fighting has been in progress since then.

Naval casualties of 4,700 for this action exceeded those of the Army and the Marines for the first time in the Pacific war. The 1,400-ship invasion armada for days was under heavy Japanese air attack, including crash dives by Kamikaze (suicide) pilots. Four United States destroyers were acknowledged sunk and other fleet units were damaged.

The navy total was 989 officers and enlisted men killed, 2,200 wounded and 1,491 missing. Soldiers and Marines of the new 10th Army suffered 493 dead, 2,530 wounded and 265 missing.

May Be Reduced

The figures of naval missing may be reduced, for many men likely have been rescued by other ships.

Nimitz's casualty figures, surprisingly heavy in view of the lightness of the initial opposition, compared with United States Marine casualties of 19,938 on Iwo Jima, the bloodiest conquest of the Pacific war. Seizure of Saipan in the Marianas cost 16,525 American casualties.

Tenth Army figures included those for the invasion of eight Kerama islands off the southern tip of Okinawa, Okinawa itself and Ie Island, 4,000 yards off the west-central coast.

On Ie fifteen Americans have been killed and 73 wounded in the three days of the invasion.

The Yanks had a firm grasp on the 10-square-mile islet and were eradicating Japanese from dug-in positions and pillboxes. In three days 388 Japanese were killed on Ie.

Jap Line Still Holds

Tired and dirty-faced doughboys on southern Okinawa still were trying to crack the tough" Little Siegfried Line," four miles north of the capital city of Naha, amid a bitter and prolonged artillery exchange.

Even at night, Japanese 150-mm. shells were falling into American lines every fifteen minutes. Not since April 10 has Maj. Gen. R. Hodge's 24th Corps advanced on this irregular front stretching five miles across the southern end of the island.

This natural defense barrier, honeycombed with pillboxes designed for interlocking fire, was under constant American artillery, naval bombardment and strafing rocket attacks from the air.

Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's 3d Marine Amphibious Corps reached the northern end of Okinawa yesterday and mopped up pockets of resistance on the Motobu Peninsula, which juts off the northwest coast.

On Motobu the Japanese were battling back fiercely from mountain caves. One hill changed hands twice before the Marines took control.

AMERICAN TROOPS INVADE BALABAC

Landing Threatens Borneo, 45 Miles Away, Yanks Drive Toward Davao.

MANILA, Friday, April 20—(AP) American troops in a fresh threat to Borneo invaded Balabac island, 45 miles north of that oil-rich area, Wednesday. Other infantrymen swept 22 miles inland from their new southern Mindanao beachhead to within 52 air miles of the important city of Davao.

Balabac, about 10 miles in length, is across a narrow channel from American-held Palawan. Northern Borneo is menaced also from the east by Yank forces on Tawitawi, 30 miles away in the Sulu archipelago.

Advance on Mindanao

On Mindanao, Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff's 24th division, strongly supported by aircraft, moved 15 miles south of the Parang beachhead established with little opposition Tuesday to capture the Cotabato provincial capital of the same name. Then they drove 22 miles inland to Lumopog.

The sweep south from Parang was an amphibious shore-to-shore operation which Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today took "full advantage of the surprise of our landings."

Other Yanks who landed 35 miles north of Parang captured the Malabang airdrome and quickly put it into operation.

Davao, prime hemp port of the Philippines and one of the best harbors in the archipelago, apparently was the target of an overland drive. A good highway traverses Cotabato province.

This southern Mindanao area, hotbed of Japanese activity before the war, has an estimated 50,000 enemy troops and thousands of Nipponese civilians. Guerrillas have been active there and strongly aided the new Mindanao invasion. Yanks already have cleaned out most of Zamboanga province, to the west across Moro gulf.

On Luzon, a tank-supported Japanese counterattack at Baguio was thrown back and the tanks destroyed as Yanks of 33rd division tightened their encirclement and destruction of isolated strongholds surrounding the Philippine summer capital.

Medium bombers and fighters raked the area, with 300 tons of bombs in support of the ground operations.

In the air war, heavy and medium bombers dropped 257 tons of explosives on Formosa air bases and rail facilities, destroying many grounded aircraft, while patrol planes sank a transport loaded with troops in the China Sea.

Associated Press War Correspondent Russell Brines reported from Mindanao that Woodruff's troops, after securing a 35-mile beachhead between Malabang and Parang on Illana bay, had advanced 6,000 yards south along the highway to Cotabato.

The new Mindanao amphibious thrust was made across Mopo gulf from previously occupied Zamboanga peninsula.

Jap Colony Periled On Mindanao

Manila, April 19 (AP)—A second American landing on Mindanao focused new attention today on that second most important Philippine island, where the Japanese have been established since long before the outbreak of the present war in the Pacific.

Yanks of Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff's 24th Division drove ashore Tuesday at Malabang and Parang, on the east shore of Illana Bay, against light initial opposition and seized 35 miles of coast line.

The new landing poses a direct threat to the most nearly Japanized part of the Philippines, in and around Davao province, which has been a settlement for immigrant Nipponese for many years.

6,000-Yard Gain

Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines, who went ashore in the first wave, said the doughboys advanced 6,000 yards in a few hours, drawing only negligible defense fire, but that they probably would meet tougher going w they move toward the main hi way leading to the insular capi Davao city, 85 miles to the eas

The first American casualty v a colonel who was shot in the ba by a sniper near the Nituan Riv Brynes reported. Two hours earli Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberge commander of the 8th Army, had passed the spot. The sniper and two companians were killed quickly. A few other snipers were flushed from foxholes, but no organized resistance was encountered in the initial operations.

Building Of Bridge

The biggest job of the day fell to the engineers, who worked through a drizzle to span the Nituan River with a pontoon bridge for the drive toward Cotabato and the highway. The Japanese destroyed a bridge across the Nituan and another across the Simuay River farther south.

The Yanks went ashore in fair weather, but an afternoon downpour slowed progress. Nevertheless some units served a hot supper, with fresh biscuits—something new in Philippine landings.

Units under Col. Thomas E. Clifford, of Ronceverte, W.Va., quickly overran Parange Village and secured a beachhead position in 90 minutes, Brines reported.

The highway is only five miles from the beach positions.

The previous Mindanao landing was on the Zamboanga Peninsula March 10 by the 41st Division. They took the strategic port of Zamboanga City and most of the peninsula, but a stretch of wild, mountainous country separated them from the prewar Japanese settlement area.

Military sources estimated the number of Nipponese troops on Mindanao Island at three divisions, or about 50,000 men. This, however, takes no account of the great number of Japanese civilians.

A guerrilla division under Col. Wendell W. Fertig, of Boulder, Col., was credited with dislocating enemy defenses and facilitating the landing.

Fertig's guerrillas joined the doughboys shortly after the landing, which was preceded by a bombardment from cruisers and destroyers under Rear Admiral Ralph Riggs, of Amarillo, Texas.

Cotabato Goal

Richard Bergholz, Associated Press correspondent with Eichelberger, said the Yanks prepared to advance on Cotabato, principal city on Illana Bay.

On Luzon island, American troops continued their cleanup of Nipponese positions on the outskirts of Baguio.

The 5th Air Force continued its raids on Formosa April 15 and 16. A Navy bomber sank a 10,000-ton tanker off the coast of Foochow, China. Army Mustangs hit small boats on the Canton River.

Pyle Will Rest Alongside G. I.s Who Loved Him

Army Chaplain to Conduct Simple Ceremony on Ie for Fallen War Writer

IE ISLAND, Ryukyus, April 20 (Friday) (AP).—Taps will sound for Ernie Pyle at 11 a. m. today (10 p. m. Thursday, Eastern War Time).

Near the scenes of the battle he hated, but which drew him to the world's front lines to report the life of America's G. I. Joes, he will be laid to rest with simple military ceremony.

Resting place of the noted war correspondent, who was killed in action Wednesday on this obscure island, will be alongside fallen soldiers such as loved him the world over because he made himself one of them.

The ceremony will be conducted by Army Chaplain N. B. Saucier, of Coffeyville, Miss. It was Chaplain Saucier and four volunteer litter bearers who risked death to bring back Pyle from the roadside ambush where he fell, victim of a Japanese machine-gunner.

Chaplain Saucier and the litter bearers crawled 125 yards across open ground and under enemy fire, according to Corporal Alexander Roberts, of 39 West Sixty-seventh Street, New York, a former "New York Daily News" photographer, who went with the group to make pictures.

Three tanks went forward to get Pyle, Roberts said, but because of intense machine-gun fire which kept tankmen inside, they were forced to stop 125 yards from where Pyle lay.

Chaplain Saucier had orders to get Pyle but not to risk any more lives, and to wait until dark if necessary. Four litter bearers volunteered to make the attempt. They were Corporal Robert Toaz, of Huntington, L. I.; Corporal Paul Shapiro, of Passaic, N. J.; Sergeant Minter Moore, of Elkins, W. Va., and Sergeant Arthur J. Austin, of Tekamah, Neb.

Because of enemy fire, the litter men crawled in a small, roadside ditch until they reached Pyle. On the way back they crawled on their hands and knees, holding the litter a few inches off the ground.

PYLE WILL LIE ALONGSIDE G. I.'S

Simple Military Burial on Ie for Reporter.

Ie Island, Ryukyus, April 19 (A. P.).—Ernie Pyle will be buried with simple military honors here tomorrow alongside G. I. Joes, his friends and comrades in life and death.

Army Chaplain N. B. Saucier of Coffeyville, Miss., who went with litter bearers under Japanese fire to recover the body of the famed author and war correspondent, will officiate at the ceremony. It will be at 11 A. M. (10 P. M., Thursday, April 19, United States Eastern war time.)

4 Crawl 125 Yards Under Fire To Recover Pyle's Body

Ie Shima, April 18 (AP—Delayed)—An Army chaplain and four of the heroic stretcher bearers so often paid tribute by Ernie Pyle today crawled 125 yards across open ground under enemy fire to bring back the war correspondent's body.

Corporal Alexander Roberts, of New York city, a former New York News cameraman who went with the group to make pictures, told the story.

Three tanks went forward to get Pyle's body. Roberts said, but because of intense machine-gun fire that kept tankmen inside, they had to stop 125 yards from where Pyle lay.

Chaplain N. B. Saucier, of Coffeyville, Miss., had orders to get the body but not to risk any more lives, and to wait until dark if necessary. Four litter bearers volunteered to make the attempt. They were Corporal Robert Toaz, of Huntington, N.Y.; Corporal Paul Shapiro, of Passaic, N.J.; Sergt. Minter Moore, of Elkins, W.Va., and Sergt. Arthur J. Austin, of Tekamah, Neb.

Because of enemy fire, they crawled in a small, roadside ditch until they reached the body.

On the way back the littermen crawled on their hands and knees, holding the litter a few inches off the ground.

to bring the public the full story of the war."

Noting the high regard in which Pyle was held by soldiers of all ranks, Stimson said that "they liked him because he talked their language; they trusted him because he reported them faithfully to the public at home."

Admiral Honors Writer.

Aboard an Amphibious Flagship off Ie Jima, April 18 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Rear Admiral L. F. Reifsnider, commander of the Ie Shima attack force, issued this statement on the death of Ernie Pyle:

"I pause a moment to pay homage to Ernie Pyle. The news was just flashed to my flagship as I watched the fighting here on Ie Shima. Ernie Pyle was 'killed in action' just as truly as many other brave men out there in the Pacific who are blazing the way to Tokyo through these Japanese strongholds. He died in action while serving his fellow countrymen."

Stimson Praises Pyle.

Washington, April 19 (A. P.).—Secretary of War Stimson said today the death of Ernie Pyle "has focused attention once more on the heroic character of the service required of correspondents in this war." He noted that Pyle, who was killed by Japanese gunfire on Island of Ie Tuesday, was the twenty-third American war correspondent officially reported killed while serving with the Army or Navy since the beginning of the war. Others have been reported missing and still others wounded, Stimson said at his weekly news conference.

"These casualties are inevitable among men who must see the war at first hand in order to fulfill their assignments," Stimson said." They are part of the price which is paid by press and radio

Fires On Northern Okinawa Laid To Japs

Okinawa, April 19 (AP—Delayed)—Village fires of mysterious origin have blossomed throughout northern Okinawa, and a 10th Army spokesman suggested today they may be the result of a typically short-sighted Japanese scorched earth policy.

Onna, a squalid village on the Ishikawa isthmus below Motobu Peninsula, was destroyed in the latest blaze. It was the third largest Okinawan village captured by American forces. Onna had been in American hands for more than a week and was unoccupied, although a large Marine camp had been established nearby.

American troops found village houses too dirty to use, but some Okinawans had been permitted to return to them.

Meatless Tuesdays? He Can't Believe It

Manila, April 19 (AP)—All day long a coast guardsman loaded sides of beef into a landing barge. At first they were light as pork chops, but as the day lengthened they became as heavy as millstones.

Tugging at the last quarter of beef, the coast guardsman grunted: "Whatever became of those meatless Tuesdays."

Most Famous Prisoner, Prestes, Freed in Brazil

Was in Jail 9 Years for Leading Revolt Against Vargas

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 19 (AP).—Luiz Carlos Prestes, South America's most famous political prisoner, was freed yesterday after nine years in jail.

Serving sentences totaling forty years, Prestes was released under a general amnesty decree signed by President Getulio Vargas, freeing political enemies who were imprisoned as far back as 1935 and granting political exiles the right to return to Brazil.

Prestes was imprisoned after his Communist-urged unsuccessful revolt against the Vargas regime in November, 1935.

A scholar and soldier, he first gained fame in Brazil as leader of the colorful "Columna Prestes," a band of wandering revolutionaries who roamed the backlands for nearly three years after the unsuccessful 1924 Sao Paulo revolution. He fought for land distribution and social security, and gained much support from the masses.

Prestes later embraced Communism and went to Moscow. He returned to Brazil early in 1935, disguised as a Portuguese laborer. The revolution came that November. Prestes was arrested and prosecuted the following March.

During his prison term he was held virtually incomunicado, and until recently all mention of him in the press, radio, books or mail was forbidden by the government.

Duke Passes Up Offers To Buy U.S. Property

Nassau, Bahamas, Apr.l 19 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor has no intention of purchasing property in the United States, despite a flood of real estate offers.

Major Gray Phillips, aide de camp to the Duke, said today "in view of persistent rumors to the effect that the Duke and Duchess intend buying property in America, the Duke wishes to state he has no intention of doing so."

Phillips revealed that the Duke was constantly receiving offers on property in the United States.

The Duke, who resigned his post as Governor of the Bahamas in March, is expected to leave Nassau either the latter part of this month or early May. They will visit first in the United States before going to the Duke's ranch in Canada.

Kawasaki 'Devastated' By B-29's, Japs Admit

San Francisco, April 19 (AP)—Radio Tokyo admitted tonight the industrial city of Kawasaki, just south of Tokyo, had been "devastated" by American Superfortress raids last week end.

The broadcast said 40 per cent of factory workers in Kawasaki were "victims of the ravages of war" but that the remainder stayed on the job "with the battle-cry, 'send more planes to Okinawa'."

393 U.S. Warships Hit, Japanese Claim

San Francisco, April 19 (AP)—Tokyo radio today claimed, without confirmation, that Kamikaze (suicide) air attacks against "enemy" naval forces at Okinawa had sunk or damaged 393 warships since March 23.

American communiqués have listed only the loss of one destroyer, although acknowledging damage to other fleet units.

The Japanese broadcast, picked up here, claimed 21 aircraft carriers, 19 battleships, 16 battleships or cruisers, 26 "large-type warships," 55 cruisers and 53 destroyers had been sunk or damaged, aside from scores of "unknown-type warships" and smaller vessels.

Another Tokyo broadcast heard by the Blue Network said "the majority of the Allied task forces in the Okinawa waters have been destroyed by our continued serious assaults." This version said American naval strength around Okinawa "was reduced to" 156 warships, with seven battleships as the nucleus.

Gen. Teramoto Given Japanese Air Post

San Francisco, April 19 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Kumaichi Teramoto, former assistant attaché of the Japanese Embassy in Washington, has been named director of the Imperial Army Aviation Headquarters, the Japanese Domei news agency reported today. Teramoto succeeds Gen. Korechika Anami, who became War Minister.

DARK PICTURE PAINTED BY JAPANESE RADIO

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—(AP) The Tokyo radio today painted a dark picture for Japan.

A Domei news agency broadcast said the nation is in the throes of "grave calamities both at home and abroad," confronted by a war situation that is "becoming fierce in the extreme."

It offered no solace but warned American attacks on the homeland would increase in intensity against a people that already "are prone to become dazed and stunned."

A portion of the enemy capital has been "completely ruined" by American air raids, one commentator bluntly admitted. This, he added, had given war workers an added incentive to speed aircraft production.

15,000 Frisco Tickets

San Francisco, April 19 (AP)—The United States State Department will issue 15,000 free tickets for plenary sessions of the world security conference opening Wednesday and the applications probably will be on a "first come, first served" basis.

Lincoln White, department press aide, said he also hopes to be able to allot another 10,000 admissions to commission sessions in the Opera House and the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium.

Monsignor Urges Dumbarton Change

San Francisco, April 19 (AP)—Amendment of the Dumbarton Oaks Charter to give every nation, regardless of size or power, "assurance of its right to life, entegrity and independence" was urged here last night by Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, of the Catholic University, Washington, D.C.

The church leader recommended such action at the San Francisco World Security Conference, which opens next Wednesday. Ten thousand persons heard his address in Civic Auditorium.

The need, he said, is to supplant demands for more than one vote and absolute veto by one nation. Right of legislation would be given to the General Assembly as a result.

AVENGE YANKS, HALSEY URGES

Demands Death Of Jap Officer For Each GI Murdered

New York, April 19 (AP)—Admiral William F. Halsey has called for the death of a Japanese officer—"two ranks higher"—for every one of "our men who was murdered" in the Pacific war.

This retribution would be a peace price for Japanese authorities, in a postwar plan which also would impose an indefinite armistice, without a peace treaty, and military, rather than civil, control.

The plan to control Japan was evolved out of discussions with his staff, and Halsey refers to it as "this plan of ours." It is published under his name, as told to Frank D. Morris, Collier's Pacific Fleet correspondent, in the current issue of the magazine.

Punishment Proposed

Halsey proposes punishment of "all Japs guilty of war crimes, without respect for rank or high position," singling out Field Marshal Juichi Terauchi, "the beast who was in command during the 'death march' of our prisoners on Bataan," and General Yamashita, who commanded the Japanese forces in the Philippines.

"Every one of them, right down the line, ought to get his just deserts," says Halsey. "I believe that for every one of our men who was murdered, officially or otherwise, a Jap officer, two ranks higher, should suffer the death penalty.

"Most of the Jap atrocity stories you hear about are not exaggerations. We have documented proof that some of our Marines on Guadalcanal were vivisected by the enemy—and I mean really vivisected.

Cites Violations Of Nuns

"It is no rumor that nuns in the Solomons were subjected to 48 hours of continuous rape and then had their throats cut by the Japs. We also found definite signs of cannibalism on Guadalcanal, and on Leyte, among the Japs themselves. . . ."

The long armistice, which would be needed for time to educate the Japanese out of their way of thinking and keep them in line, Halsey says, would be under the control of the Allied nations with a supreme commander in charge.

The commander would be given "a free hand, with no interference from outside—meaning of course, from well-intentioned but misguided civil governments."

UNRRA "Just Behind" Army, Official Says

New York, April 19 (AP)—Hugh Jackson, of Washington, D.C., an UNRRA official, said today that the agency was working in all parts of Europe, "moving up just behind the army."

In a statement, Jackson said "the Army is still in control of supplies on the continent, but UNRRA teams are moving up just behind the army and working particularly among displaced people in these areas under army supervision."

The Army, he said, "controls supplies but our people aid in the distribution and application of medical supplies."

U. S. IS FIRM ON POLAND; REJECTS RUSSIA'S DEMAND

State Department Stands By Accord Reached at Crimea Conference.

BRITAIN EXPECTED TO AGREE

Showdown Awaits Arrival Here Tomorrow or Saturday of Commissar Molotov.

Washington, April 19 (A. P.).—The State Department stood firm today against Russia's demand that the Polish provisional government in Warsaw be invited to San Francisco.

The Moscow request had been repeated in a diplomatic note to Secretary of State Stettinius yesterday. It was flatly rejected in a State Department statement which said that only a reorganized Polish government, "formed in accordance with the Crimea agreement," should be admitted to the United Nations conference.

The statement said, "Poland is a member of the United Nations and of right should be at San Francisco."

However, the United States is standing pat on the Yalta agreement and it is expected that Britain will quickly express a similar view.

The American and British Ambassadors to Moscow, W. Averell Harriman and Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, began conferences in Washington today on the Polish situation.

The probability of a showdown when Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov arrives here Friday or Saturday increased with this latest development.

The State Department's statement read:

"The note which has been received from the Soviet Government reiterates the Soviet request that the present provisional government now functioning in Warsaw be invited to send representatives to the conference at San Francisco.

"Poland is a member of the United Nations and of right should be at San Francisco. However, the view of the United States Government remains that an invitation to the conference at San Francisco should be extended only to a new provisional government on national unity formed in accordance with the Crimea agreement."

U.S. AGAIN REJECTS RUSSIAN DEMAND

Officials Worried Polish Issue May Affect Unity at San Francisco.

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP) The United States turned down for the second time today Russia's demand that the Warsaw provisional government of Poland be invited to San Francisco.

The resultant impasse left officials worried about the possible effects on the United Nations meeting, called to draft plans for a world organization.

The State department, announcing rejection of the twice-made Soviet proposal for acceptance of the Moscow-sponsored regime, took the position that "only a new provisional government of national unity formed in accordance with the Crimea agreement" should have a place at San Francisco.

The Polish issue, storm center of western Allied relations with Russia, promised to be top on the list of difficult subjects to be tackled by Big Three foreign ministers this week-end.

Russian Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov is expected here Friday or Saturday. The American and British ambassadors to Moscow, W. Averell Harriman and Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, are already here to advise their foreign secretaries on the tense Polish situation.

Moscow has given no indication of how far it is prepared to go in insisting that the Warsaw government be invited to San Francisco, but the grave possibility lurked that the Russians might withdraw from the meeting, only a week away, rather than back down.

Most opinion here was that this government has gone as far as it can by agreeing to accept a coalition of the Soviet-sponsored group and "other democratic elements."

American officials kept up slim hopes that a new Polish government could still be agreed upon in time for it to send representatives to San Francisco before the United Nations meeting closes.

Other tense questions will have to be taken up by the Big Three.

That list includes international trusteeship for former mandates and territories to be taken from the Axis. This has been hotly debated within the American delegation and must now be taken to the other top Allies.

There is increasing evidence that the Russians will stand firm on their demand for three votes in the assembly of the proposed world organization and fight it through with the Yalta-pledged support of the United States and Britain.

Unconfirmed reports give rise to the possibility that Russia, in secret negotiation with underground Poles, might spring a new government of Poland which it would announce as conforming to the Yalta agreement.

Truman Himself May Take Hand In Polish Row

Washington, April 19 (AP)—President Truman may take a direct hand in an effort to settle the dispute over a new Polish Government before the San Francisco United Nations conference opens.

The efforts of a three-nation commission have failed and the matter has been left to a meeting of Big Three foreign ministers here this week end.

The question of forming a provisional government representing all factions of Poles will be the first tackled when Secretary of State Stettinius, British Foreign Secretary Eden and Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov meet tomorrow or Saturday.

Envoys Arrive From Moscow

They are expected to receive direct reports from W. Averell Harriman, American ambassador to Moscow, and Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, British envoy there. Harriman and Clark-Kerr arrived by plane last night. Molotov is en route.

The American and British ambassadors had been seeking in Moscow to carry out with Molotov the Big Three agreement at Yalta to arrange new regime that could start off with representation at the San Francisco meeting to form an international peace-keeping organization.

But there are sharp indications that disagreements have lifted this problem to the higher diplomatic level of foreign ministers.

May Go Still Higher

It may well reach an even higher plane of transocean discussion among President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin if it is to be settled before the Frisco parley opens April 25.

Few here think Molotov will be able to give any final answer for his Government without first consulting Stalin. Thus far Stalin apparently has stood firm in the demand that, lacking an agreement, the Soviet-supported Warsaw Polish Government be represented at San Francisco.

That was reported to be the tenor of a new note Stettinius said yesterday he had received from Russia. He did not announce its contents.

The United States and Britain have already rejected similar demands and there is every indication that President Truman intends to adopt a firm policy toward further Moscow requests.

Trusteeship Problem

The foreign ministers will also study the question of trusteeship for territory wrested from the enemy, a subject on which the American delegation to San Francisco apparently reached no agreement yesterday.

The delegates will continue their discussions when they arrive on the West Coast, but the Big Three foreign ministers hope in the meantime to work out some sort of compromise.

More Demand Jap Isles Be Kept

APR 20 1945

Washington, April 19 (AP) — Demands that the United States keep Japanese islands in the Pacific after the war overshadowed House debate today on a $24,879,510,546 Navy appropriation bill.

Slated for unopposed passage late in the day, the bill to provide funds for the fiscal year starting July 1 received scant attention amid the increasing clamor for positive steps to take over without restriction such Pacific outposts as the Marshall and Caroline islands, Iwo Jima, Saipan and Okinawa.

Until United States forces moved in, the Japanese owned or held under League of Nations mandate all these islands. They have little economic value but are strategically situated for military control of the Pacific.

Navy Wants Islands Kept

Members of the Appropriations Committee handling naval funds said privately that the turn of House debate would strengthen the position of navy officials when the time comes to determine what shall be done with the islands. These officials, they said, expressed the view during closed hearings on the appropriation bill that the United States should keep the islands.

Another suggestion has been for a system of international trusteeships.

The House applauded vigorously yesterday when Representative Wadsworth, of New York, high ranking Republican on the Foreign Affairs Committee, declared that the United States "must occupy and hold strategic points" in the Pacific. Not, he said, because of any desire for territorial expansion, but to discharge this country's responsibility to keep peace in the Pacific as "the most trusted nation."

Opposes Joint Control

Wadsworth said he could not "conceive of our allies objecting to it," adding that suggestions that the islands be placed under jurisdiction of an international organization "should give us pause."

"I think it will be encumbent upon us to hold those strong-points ourselves in order to hold that position in the Far East which all Asiatics want us to hold," he said.

"Amen from our side," interjected Representative Plumley (R., Vt.) after several Democrats had applauded Wadsworth's views.

Frisco Group Debating

Representative Thomas (D., Texas) told the House the Navy believes there should be no joint control of the islands and hopes the State Department will adopt the same attitude. The subject has been before the American delegation to the United Nations conference for some time, apparently without decision.

Legislation for outright annexation of islands vital for the defense of the Pacific is awaiting committee action in the House. Should forthcoming diplomatic discussions reveal a trend toward international control of the islands, backers of the legislation have said they would demand immediate congressional action to forestall it.

BROADER TRADE POLICY BACKED

NelsonRockefeller at House Committee Hearing.

Washington, April 19 (A. P.).—The extension and broadening of the nation's reciprocal trade program was urged today by Nelson A. Rockefeller, Assistant Secretary of State, as a keystone in the Americas good-neighbor policy. He told the House Ways and Means Committee that improved economies in other nations would mean larger markets for American goods and not destructive competition.

The Assistant Secretary, who is in charge of Latin-American affairs, testified as committee Republicans, solidly against any further tariff-trimming, claimed sufficient Democratic support to defeat the proposal.

"The reciprocal trade program," Mr. Rockefeller said, "is viewed by the Latin American countries as one of the most tangible evidences of the good-neighbor policy." He voiced "unqualified support" of the administration's proposal for broader duty-cutting authority in reciprocal trade arrangements with other nations.

Republican's Criticism.

Representative Knutson (R.-Minn.), the committee's Republican leader, inquired into the amount of United States wartime expenditures in Latin America, asserting that this Government had financed the establishment of a steel plant in Brazil, he told Mr. Rockefeller "you're telling us the more self-sustaining we make other nations the more they will buy from us."

In reply, Mr. Rockefeller cited that American trade with Canada has grown as Canada's economy and standard of living have improved. He contended that the same would be true with other nations.

Despite Republican claims to the contrary, administrationists voiced confidence that the appeal of Cordell Hull and the stand by President Truman had rallied sufficient strength to assure the new executive a victory in his first congressional battle.

Try War Criminals Now, Is Plea

Washington, Sept. 19 (AP)—Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) called today for an immediate start on war-crime trials, with recently captured Franz von Papen as the first defendant.

Celler, member of the House Judiciary Committee, said that Papen—"as a Nazi jackal thug who helped engineer two wars"—should receive a prompt "drum head court-martial" trial and punishment.

Includes Krupp And Zapp

Similarly, he added, trials should be arranged without delay for Alfred Krupp, leading German industrialist; Manfred Zapp, Nazi propagandist; Prince August Wilhelm of Prussia, the Kaiser's son, and Field Marshal Mackensen, other captured German leaders.

Papen, former German Chancellor and ace Nazi diplomat, was seized last week.

Terming him "a Junkers of evil memory ousted from this country for his intrigues at the beginning of the first World War," Celler added:

"If Papen had been punished as a war criminal after the last war, he might not have been in a position to continue his wily intrigues" leading up to this one.

"Must Show We Mean It"

"Something must be done right away, because we will be taking more and more war criminals into custody every day now," Celler asserted. "We have been promising they would face justice and we must show we mean it."

Celler called on the State Department either to send Herbert G. Pell back to London to represent this country on the United Nations War Crimes Commission or some one else "with courage to bring the criminals to trial." Pell was recalled some months ago with the explanation that Congress failed to renew funds for United States participation on the commission. Additional funds since have been approved.

BREWSTER FINDS TRUMAN EQUIPPED

Augusta, Me., April 19 (A. P.).—United States Senator Owen Brewster (R.-Me.) said today that if the "unanimous recommendations of the Truman committee under the chairmanship of Senator Truman are applied by President Truman in the conduct of our Government, a revolution will take place in Washington."

Senator Brewster spoke before the Maine Republican State Committee. In explanation of his use of "revolution," he said the Truman committee, of which he was a member, "constantly pressed for reorganization in all governmental setups we have, as have Republicans."

"Republicans will not hesitate," he said, "to press those measures that seem essential for the salvation of America and the reconstruction period, but they will find in the report of the Truman committee ample support for many of the measures that will emerge.

"Slaying the Goliath of surgeoning bureaucracy was the primary mission of the Truman committee and the pruning of the tangled administrative tree that has developed in the fertile soil of a worldwide war.

"Only in this pruning can financial solvency be restored and for this task no one is better equipped with understanding and backbone than the new President of the United States. In this great task the President may well count upon the support of Republicans everywhere."

Southerners Warn Truman On FEPC

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Trouble was foreseen today for President Truman if his congressional leaders insist on establishing a permanent Fair Employment Practices Commission.

Several Southern legislators expressed this view as the House Rules Committee reopened hearings on a bill to create such an agency.

The FEPC is now on a temporary basis, financed from the executive department budget.

"Would Create Disunity"

"The passage of this bill would create so much disunity in this country that President Truman's Administration would be wrecked," declared Representative Manasco (D., Ala.) before he left for a trip to Europe.

"If there is any move to insist on passage of the FEPC bill it can't help but arouse bad feeling among Southerners," asserted Representative Ramspeck (D., Ga.)

"Our feeling is that we should start doing something to help encourage employers to start planning for millions of postwar jobs, rather than hinder them by creating an agency with arbitrary powers over them."

Petition Move Threatened

House leaders would not say whether pressure would be brought to force action on the issue. But Chairman Norton (D., N.J.) of the House Labor Committee said she would continue to fight for the bill.

Mrs. Norton announced that if the Rules Committee declined to give her a green light she would file a petition to discharge it from further responsibility. If 218 members signed such a petition the bill would automatically be brought to the floor for action.

TARIFF CUT HIT BY REPUBLICANS

WASHINGTON, April 19 — (AP) Republicans quoted Jefferson, Hamilton and McKinley, and brought up the biblical strong man Samson, in opposing today the administration's program for deeper tariff cuts.

On the other hand, Nelson A. Rockefeller, assistant state secretary, urged the extension of the nation's reciprocal trade program, with new duty-cutting powers, as a vital element in the good neighbor policy of the Americas.

The scene of the new struggle over the ancient tariff issue was a hearing of the House Ways and Means committee. The 10 committee Republicans had organized solidly against the legislation and Rep. Knutson (R.-Minn.) predicted enough Democrats would go along to defeat the proposal. Conversely, Rep. Robertson (D.-Va.) said he would be surprised if one committee Democrat joined the Republicans.

Rep. Jenkins (R.-Ohio) did most of the quoting of early American presidents in an effort to justify tariff protection for American industry, and he said Samson was the world's strong man "until he dissipated his strength."

Rockefeller replied that the early Americans had the problem of developing industry in a predominently agricultural country, but that now the United States is the world's greatest industrial nation, and must make mutual arrangements with other nations, so that trade barriers are broken down, and more American goods can be consumed abroad.

The assistant secretary, in charge of Latin-American affairs, testified:

"The reciprocal trade program is viewed by the Latin American countries as one of the most tangible evidences of the good neighbor policy. We have helpful wartime friends in the Americas because we previously gave them a solid basis for friendship."

He said tariffs can be adjusted downward, in mutual arrangements with other nations, so as to mean larger markets for American goods and without any material injury to specific American industries.

Rep. Knutson replied: "You're telling us the more self sustaining we make other nations the more they will buy from us."

THOMAS CALLS TRUMAN 'POLITICAL ACCIDENT'

NEW YORK, April 19 — (AP) Norman Thomas, four-time Socialist candidate for president, said today that President Harry S. Truman was "a political accident" who never had shown "any grasp of great political issues."

Writing in the Socialist weekly, the Call, Thomas said the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's "love of politics and confidence in himself as a player of the game" were "largely responsible" for Truman's elevation, adding:

The new President, Thomas said, is "a political accident, a personally honest but completely blind and insensitive henchman of one of the worst bosses in recent American history."

Thomas said President Truman's first address to Congress was an attempt at the "hallowing of all of Roosevelt's policies by death." He added that there was nothing "wise or holy about unconditional surrender or the Yalta agreement."

TRUMAN SUPPORTS ROOSEVELT BILLS

APR 20 1945

New President Moves for Close Cooperation with Congress.

WASHINGTON, April 19 — (AP) President Truman, keeping up the prodigious work schedule he has followed since he was sworn in rounded out one week in office today with a demonstration of his intention to work with Congress.

While giving full evidence of his cooperative attitude in a meeting with Democratic leaders of both Houses, the new chief executive at the same time made it clear he is not retiring from the field. Rather, he stepped into the current legislative picture by telling his visitors he stands fully behind the general legislative program of Franklin D Roosevelt.

Two elements of that program are now up in Congress. A House committee is considering a proposition to extend reciprocal trade legislation and permit tariffs to be cut 50 per cent under current levels in exchange for concessions from other nations.

The Senate is working on ex-

tension of the Selective Service act, with the War department opposing amendments to forbid combat use of 18-year-olds who have less than six months training. Such amendments are backed by a bi-partisan group of Senators.

The President's caller list illustrated the weight and range of his labors: Senator Taft (R.-Ohio), the Democratic legislative leaders, the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain; Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan; General of the Army George C. Marshall; the judge advocates general of South American republics; Turkish Ambassador Huseyin Ragip Baydur and Lebanese Minister Dr. Charles Malik, to present their credentials; Philippine President Sergio Osmena and the Secretaries of War, Navy and State; Dr. T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister, and the Truman cabinet; M. Georges Bidault, French foreign minister, who paid his respects and expressed French sorrow over Mr Roosevelt's death.

Between times, Mr. Truman sent his first veto to Congress, appointed Spruille Braden, now ambassador to Cuba, to be ambassador to the newly accepted Argentine government, and took a minute out to accept the first buddy poppy in a Veterans of Foreign Wars drive for relief work funds.

That only took him up to lunch time, with the afternoon remaining for paper work and perhaps less formally arranged conferences.

The only announced callers of the afternoon were the President's brother J. Vivian Truman and U. S. Marshal Fred Canfil, both of Kansas City, with Ted Sanders, Democratic leader of Clinton County, Mo.

Mr. Truman quit his office at 4:30 p.m., the earliest since he took it over, and walked across the street to his temporary home at the Blair House, accompanied by his brother and a guard of secret servicemen. He walked the same route in reverse at 8:30 this morning.

Senator Taft, making what he said was his second White House call in 12 years, beat the Democratic lawmakers to the executive office. The first call was yesterday when as chairman of the Senate Republican Steering committee he headed a delegation offering support in ironing out any differences over legislation.

Today the Ohio Senator said no current legislative matters were discussed.

"I had an idea or two I wanted to place before the President concerning over-all legislative matters," he told reporters afterward.

The Democratic callers from Capitol Hill were Senate Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.), House Speaker Rayburn (Tex.), Senator McKellar (Tenn.), Senate President pro-tempore, and House Majority Leader McCormack (Mass.).

Mr. Truman told the group he stands committed to the general legislative program of the man he succeeded.

Details were not discussed, but one of the group interpreted the President's words as giving support to the draft extension bill without amendments.

Cabbie, Old Lady Greet Truman On Way To Work

Washington, April 19 (AP) — A chilly wind snapped at his coat tails as President Truman walked —as usual—to work at 8.30 A.M. today.

"Mr. President," came a voice from the group of by-standers as he left his temporary living quarters at the Blair House and stepped to the sidewalk. "I want to shake hands with you."

It was the 67-year-old lady. The President turned for a moment, shook hands warmly and smilingly, and walked on.

A couple of sleepy-eyed waiting reporters grinned at him and the President grinned back. Fully aware that his early-rising habits have upset schedules of White House reporters, he turned to them:

Greetings From Cab

"What did you do?" he asked, "stay up all night?"

A few second later, as he was crossing Pennsylvania avenue at his habitual brisk pace, his Secret Service convoy around him, a taxi driver put his head out of his cab and shouted:

"Good luck, Harry."

The President looked up and smiled, turned into the White House grounds talking with Col. Harry Vaughn, his military aide.

Ahead of him lay an appalling list of official appointments.

First on the calling list was Senator Taft, of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Steering Committee, who laid before the President a few ideas on what he described as "over-all legislative matters."

Busy Day Ahead

Then, before lunchtime, Mr. Truman went into this round of scheduled engagements:

Conference with Senators Barkley (D., Ky.) and McKellar (D., Tenn.), Speaker Rayburn of the House and Repreesntative McCormack (D., Mass.).

A call from the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain.

Meeting with the Judge Advocates General of South American republics.

Acceptance of credentials from Husyin Ragip Baydur, Turkish Ambassador.

Acceptance of credentials from Dr. Charles Malik, Minister of Lebanon.

A discussion of Philippine independence with President Sergio Osmena and the Secretaries of State, War and Interior.

A meeting with Dr. T. V. Soong, Foreign Minister of China, and members of the Truman Cabinet.

(Somewhere in between these engagements he was to be presented with the first Buddy poppy.)

MARSHALL VISITS PRESIDENT TRUMAN

APR 20 1945

Washington, April 19 (A. P.).—Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, called at the White House at 11:30 A. M. today and went directly into the President's office.

He left fifteen minutes later without talking.

Asked if he had any news, Gen. Marshall smiled and replied: "Lots and lots of it, but I can't give it to you."

Truman Has New Desk; Used by Six Presidents

Gives One Roosevelt Had to Exhibit at Hyde Park

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—President Truman has a new desk, a dark red mahogany double affair which replaces the trinket-cluttered desk used by President Roosevelt.

The Roosevelt desk and all its mementos and gadgets were offered to Mrs. Roosevelt by Mr. Truman, and she has accepted it. It will be placed in the Roosevelt library at Hyde Park.

The new Truman desk is one first used by Theodore Roosevelt and successively by other Presidents, Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, and for a time by Herbert Hoover.

When Mr. Hoover dispensed with it, the desk was used in various White House offices.

New Labor And Agriculture Secretaries Expected

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Some members of the Roosevelt Cabinet are on the way out, and soon.

Although the feeling has been general here that President Truman might delay any changes for a couple of months, close friends suggested today that one or more new department heads may be named within days.

Most of them pointed to the Labor Department, which Secretary Perkins would undoubtedly like to leave as soon as she gracefully can. Most mentioned as a possible successor is Senator Harley Kilgore (D., W.Va.).

Wickard Due To Go

Kilgore is satisfactory to the CIO and also has worked with the AFL. Both organizations must be reasonably satisfied with the man chosen because he will probably head a revitalized department containing all labor agencies.

A change will also be made in the agriculture setup, with Secretary Wickard slated to step out in favor of a man who may also take over the duties of War Food Administrator.

Marvin Jones, who fills the latter post, told friends recently he would like to go back to the Court of Claims, from which he was borrowed by President Roosevelt. Jones still draws his pay as a judge, and receives no salary as food administrator.

J. B. Hutson Mentioned

J. B. Hutson, deputy in charge of agricultural reconversion in the war mobilization office, might be Mr. Truman's choice for the enlarged agriculture portfolio.

Hutson is a close friend of James F. Byrnes, the former war mobilizer whose sage advice is likely to continue to be welcomed by the President.

Byrnes went back to his Spartanburg (S.C.) home for a rest yesterday, and it is understood he won't come back to Washington for any unofficial advisory position.

When he reappears in government service, it probably will be as Secretary of State, succeeding Edward R. Stettinius, Jr.

By that time the San Francisco United Nations conference will be over, with the way possibly clear for Stettinius to become the American representative in the proposed security organization.

CONGRESS PASSES TWO MONEY BILLS

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP) Congress cleared two big money bills to the White House today, while the House completed action on a big appropriation for the Navy. Another money bill came back to the House for review of Senate changes.

Sent to President Truman were a $2,600,000,000 deficiency appropriation, and another for $1,343,000,000 to keep the Treasury and Post Office departments going in the twelve months beginning July 1. The Senate completed action by accepting conference committee reports on them.

The Senate also passed and returned to the House for action on amendments a $594,724,527 Agriculture department appropriation bill.

On a voice vote, with no audible opposition, the House approved a $24,879,510,546 appropriation for the Navy, raising to $130,000,000,000 the funds Congress has authorized the Navy to spend since July 1, 1940. The Senate must still pass on the new bill.

The Navy bill was accompanied in the House by demands for legislation to annex key Pacific bases as Okinawa, Saipan, Iwo Jima, the Marshall and the Caroline islands.

Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.) said in a House speech annexation would be "in the interest of American security and the clarification of American foreign policy."

As sent to the White House, the deficiency bill retained all major additions made by the Senate.

These included $10,307,500 for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. Out of this, $5,540,000 is to be sent for additional construction and equipment at the aircraft engine research laboratory, Cleveland, Ohio, and $4,100,000 for additional construction and equipment at Langley Field, Va.

A $565,000 fund voted by the Senate for an increase in OPA's enforcement staff was cut by the conferees to $465,000.

Left unchanged was a $996,000 addition by the Senate to Social Security funds for grants to the states for administration of unemployment programs.

Kure, one of Japan's three main naval bases, is the Japanese navy's Norfolk, Boston and Annapolis all in one. Kure harbors Japan's largest drydock, is the base of a submarine school established in 1920, and recently became a naval air training school base. Japan's two other main naval bases are Yokosuka and Sasebo.

Small War Plants Bill Passed

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—Congress today sent to the White House legislation extending the life of the Smaller War Plants Corporation until Dec. 31, 1946, and making it an independent Federal agency. Action was completed when the Senate agreed to a House amendment providing that the President shall name the S. W. P. C.'s five-member board of directors. Previously, the War Production Board chairman had this power. The S. W. P. C. is now headed by Maury Maverick.

New Sugar Shortage Seen By House Food Group

APR 20 1945

Unofficial Committee Says Blame on 'Federal Policies'

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—The Republican Congressional food study committee said today the nation's civilian population "faces the worst sugar shortage of the entire emergency period."

The unofficial committee of forty-four House members laid the blame for the present sugar situation on "present Federal government policies."

The committee's views were given to the House in an address by Representative Bartel J. Jonkman, Republican, of Michigan, who said that unless prompt steps are taken there will develop a black market in sugar "so huge that it will be impossible for the American housewife to use her sugar stamps in the weeks immediately ahead."

"It is too late to prevent a serious sugar shortage for the balance of this year and well in 1946," Representative Jonkman said, adding that the shortage "has been magnified by the procrastination of the Commodity Credit Corporation and other government agencies in meeting the situation squarely."

Belgian Aid Arranged

Washington, April 19 (AP)—The United States has agreed to furnish up to $325,200,000 in lend lease supplies to Belgium in return for Belgian aid to American forces.

A joint announcement of Secretary of State Stettinius, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley said the agreement was signed Tuesday.

The statement disclosed that Belgian aid to American forces now totals about $18,000,000 monthly. American supplies delivered to Belgium by February 1 totaled $8,[illegible]000 of which $3,346,000 had been paid for in cash.

Belgian contributions to all Allied forces under General Eisenhower have totaled upward of $107,000,000 of which $48,000,000 went to United States armies, the statement said. Belgian contributions include labor, materials, transportation, airports, buildings and the output of factories.

Farm Machinery Exports

Crowley Says Allies Will Get 7½% of U. S. Output in Fiscal Year

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—Seven and one-half per cent of the total United States farm machinery production will go to other nations under lend-lease during the 1944-'45 fiscal year, Congress learned today.

Leo T. Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, gave this estimate in a letter to Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, Democrat, of Georgia, chairman of the House agriculture appropriations subcommittee, who had it published in The Congressional Record.

Mr. Crowley said 4 per cent would go to Canada and 3½ per cent to all other nations. He said total production was estimated at 2,183,000 short tons. Mr. Crowley also declared lend-lease shipments to date have been "highly beneficial" in enabling the Allies to produce food for American troops.

40 Per Cent Output Hike Held Need To Give All Jobs In Peace

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Peacetime jobs will be available for all Americans only if output is boosted 40 per cent above the level of 1941, the National Planning Association reported today.

The "most constructive way" to reach this $170,000,000,000-a-year rate in the early 1950's, said NPA, is to "increase the buying power of individual consumers" by lower taxes, better wages, less saving, or all three.

The alternatives, said NPA's 108-page study, are these:

Bigger Government spending, which means an unbalanced budget and greater Federal participation in the national life than has been considered appropriate for peacetime; or Heavy outlays by business for its own expansion — investments so heavy as to raise "serious doubts" that they could be continued.

Lower Taxes Desired

"Each of these approaches can be used in some degree," said the association which is made up of Government, business and labor economists and executives. "But in the main it seems inescapable that mass production demands a greater number of better customers."

Any method of finding the 60,000,000 jobs estimated to be needed, NPA held, seems to be based necessarily on lower Federal tax rates.

"Wartime tax rates are set high, partly for the express purpose of discouraging nonessential civilian purchases. In peacetime we do not want to discourage consumer purchases because they are the life blood of business and the ultimate source of jobs."

Backs CED Proposals

Here the report jibed with proposals of the Committee for Economic Development, made earlier in the day in a report on the removal of wartime controls.

CED, a business organization for postwar planning, urged that taxes be "sharply reduced" as soon as inflationary threats are under control. It urged that production, price and wage controls be dropped as rapidly as the emergency need for each one ends. It said all should be wiped out within six months after final victory except those for which continued legislative authority is "plainly needed to hold inflation in check."

Way To Cut Deficit Seen

"No control should be allowed to persist just because it is there or because it worked well during the war," the CED observed.

The NPA report, looking further ahead to the next decade, found that 60,000,000 people working 40 hours a week would produce about $170,000,000,000 worth of goods and services.

But if prewar patterns of earning, spending and saving were followed, the public would fall more than $20,000,000,000 short of spending enough to support such full employment, even after Government outlays and business investments had accounted for $50,000,000,000 worth of the total.

Fear Unbalanced Budget

Reduced taxes—including lower collections for social insurance funds, so as to match payments made out of those funds—could cut the deficit to $8,500,000,000, by leaving consumers more money to spend, NPA said. Closing the latter gap was the problem attacked by NPA.

More public works and Federal services could be undertaken, but these would cause an unbalanced Government budget with a deficit of more than $6,000,000,000, by the planners' estimate. If business tried to plug the gap by greater plant expansion, the country's productive capacity would be doubled in ten years—so fast an increase that buying power probably could not keep up.

Unless Americans want to drop to a 30-hour work week—and NPA believes they would rather have the higher earnings than the extra leisure—the final alternative offered is a better standard of living.

WOODS PLAN CHANGE SEEN

Treasury Spokesman Favors Compromise On Fund Idea

APR 20 1945

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Congressional spokesmen tonight interpreted a Treasury statement as indicating a willingness to compromise on some phases of the Bretton Woods monetary proposals.

Under Secretary Daniel Bell, in a talk to the Washington Kiwanis Club, discussed a suggestion by the Committee for Economic Development, that the monetary stabilization fund of the Bretton Woods proposals be restricted to short-term currency stabilization operations and that long-term commitments for economic and monetary reconstruction be a function of the proposed international bank.

The Treasury did not indorse the recommendations outright, but Bell said: "This suggestion by a forward-looking group of distinguished business men seems to me very sound and worthy of very careful consideration."

Truman To Study Plan

Bell's words were hailed by both Democratic and Republican members of the House Banking Committee as heralding a compromise with the American Bankers Association.

The committee is considering legislation to enable this country to participate in the bank and fund.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that President Truman had carried with him to the Blair House tonight a copy of the Bretton Woods financial proposals for study.

The A.B.A., in a report by its president, W. Randolph Burgess, had indorsed the $10,000,000,000 international bank for reconstruction but turned thumbs down on the companion proposal for an $8,800,000,000 stabilization fund. It maintained that the lending powers proposed for the fund were "contrary to accepted credit principles."

Both Democratic and Republican members of the House Banking Committee, considering legislation to enable United States participation in the bank and fund, hailed Bell's words as heralding a compromise.

Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) said he was not disposed to accept amendments to the monetary agreements in any form. But he volunteered an opinion that the CED proposal could be adopted without necessitating another 44-nation conference.

"Answers Worst Critics"

One Republican, Representative Crawford, of Michigan, said he considered Bell's endorsement "a forerunner to a get-together." Representative Monroney (D., Okla.) declared the CED proposal "largely answers the worst critics of the fund."

"The CED recommends that both the fund and the bank be adopted," Bell said. "In order to limit the use of resources of the fund to meet seasonal, cyclical and emergency needs for foreign exchange and for currency stabilization purposes, the CED recommends that the bank be authorized to make long-term stabilization loans in connection with programs for economic and monetary reconstruction."

Legislators Think Bell Statement May Forecast This

WAR TRAINING MOVE GAINS

Amendment Would Keep Men Under 19 From Front

Washington, April 19 (AP)—A drive to restrict the use of 18-year-old draftees in combat service gained momentum in the Senate today despite renewed opposition from the high command.

As an amendment to pending legislation to extend the selective service law to May 15, 1946, Senators Stewart (D., Tenn.), Johnson (D., Col.), Wilson (R., Iowa) and Revercomb (R., W.Va.) proposed that no man under 19 be ordered into combat without at least six months' training.

Plan Seen "Disastrous"

This received immediate wide support in a series of speeches, but it didn't go far enough for Senator O'Daniel (D., Texas). He offered a substitute to prevent assignment of any inductee under 20 for combat duty outside continental United States without one year's training.

Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) of the Naval Affairs Committee read a letter from Navy Secretary Forrestal asserting that such restrictions would be "disastrous" to the Navy's training and combat programs.

Senator Austin (R., Vt.), ranking Republican on the Military Affairs Committee, read a communication from Gen. George C. Marshall, declaring proposed curbs would spell delay in military operations.

Stewart told the Senate the fighting had reached a point where 18-year-olds could be more readily spared from combat.

Plane Production Is Cut Again

APR 20 1945

Washington, April 19 (AP)—The Army Air Forces announced yesterday that plane production will be cut back about fifteen per cent for the remainder of the year, because of changed requirements.

New cutbacks in some plants were disclosed in a statement which said a "substantial part" of the reduction already has been anuounced.

The reduction, measured on the basis of airplane weight, will be carried out over several months and in no case will production be cut off immediately.

Full production will be continued on many types of planes, including the B-29, B-32, the A-26 light bomber, the jet-propelled fighter and two cargo types, the C-32 and C-54.

Earlier Cutbacks

Prior announcements included cutbacks in the production of B-24's at the Ford Motor Company's Willow Run plant in Detroit, and at the Consolidated-Vultee plant at San Diego, Cal.; reductions in output of B-27's at the Douglas plant in Long Beach, Cal., and the Lockheed plant at Burbank, Cal.; and the P-38 cutback at Lockheed at Burbank.

The Air Forces said it is planned that the jet plane and newer models of the Thunderbolts and Mustangs will replace the P-38's and older models of the P-47's and P-51's.

The overall reduction in production, the statement said, will permit greater concentration on aircraft "vitally necessary" for the defeat of Japan.

"The larger and more complex models will require the untiring effort of management and labor to meet future production schedules," the statement said.

"Important" Types Slated

The Buick plant at Melrose Park Chicago, will halt production immediately on engines for the B-24's, but will continue work on other "important" types. The cutback will also be felt at the Chevrolet plant in Flint, Mich., where engine parts are manufactured.

As a result of the curtailment of B-17 production, the Studebaker plant at South Bend, Ind., will reduce output of aircraft engines, and the cutback in P-38 production will enable the Allison plant of General Motors at Indianapolis to devote more attention to jet engines.

Girls' Pin Lead Elusive; Weisenborn Now No. 1

By Ralph Braehill

Washington, April 19 (AP)—The United States is supplying its allies and hungry peoples in liberated areas with no more food than a year ago.

This statement probably runs counter to the impression held by civilians who have found meat, butter, sugar and several other food items increasingly hard to get in recent weeks.

Many have gained the impression that there has been a huge increase in American food moving abroad. Government officials have said that civilians must tighten their belts to help meet what has been described as a "magnitudinous" increase in foreign needs.

Allies Get Less

Belt-tightening in behalf of those needing relief is yet to come.

The War Food Administration says that twelve per cent of the American food supply the first half of this year has been allotted allies, liberated areas, United States territories and other foreign areas.

This is the same percentage that moved to these areas in the like period last year. The only difference is that the allies are receiving less and liberated areas more.

This same information shows that hitches taken in the civilian belt so far this year must be attributed to a decline in food supplies and an increase in American military needs.

Figures Are Given

The WFA division of the supply among various claimant groups for the first six months of 1945 is as follows:

American civilians 72 per cent.

United States military and war services (the Army, Navy, Marines, the merchant marine and the Veterans Administration for hospitalized veterans), 16 per cent.

Lend-lease (principally Russia and Great Britain), 5.6 per cent.

Exports to other areas, including United States territories, 2.2 per cent.

Liberated areas (military and nonmilitary), 4.2 per cent.

Relief Share Cut

The military portion is 3 per cent larger than a year ago, while the civilian portion is 3 per cent le[ss]. The lend-lease portion has dropped about 2 per cent; the relief share increased about 2 per cent.

Total supplies are from 5 to 10 per cent smaller than a year ago, owing to a decline in meat production. Actual quantities allotted foreign areas thus are smaller than a year ago, even though the percentage share remains unchanged. Likewise, the decrease in the civilian share is greater than the drop in the percentage figure indicates.

Changes Expected

It is quite likely, however, that the percentage shares will be altered for the last half of the year. The civilian portion probably will drop still further to help meet increasing needs of liberated and conquered areas. Final decision on the last-half allotments will be governed largely by acuteness of foreign needs and the availability of American supplies.

The Government gives first consideration to essential requirements of the armed forces of the United States and its allies. Those requirements are greater than ever.

Diet Is Watched

In dividing the remainder, the Government follows the rule that civilians must be provided with at least the minimum nutritional requirements formulated by the National Research Council. So far supplies have been sufficient to provide a diet considerably above these requirements. Hence, in the opinion of the Government, there's still room for more belt-tightening.

Requirements of other claimant groups are met to the extent allowed by supplies still remaining.

Plenty Of Cereals

Supplies being provided liberated areas are heavily weighted with cereals, dairy products (except butter), dried eggs and dried beans and peas, but are lightly weighted with meats.

In the case of meats, lend-lease, foreign relief and other export programs have been allotted 982 million pounds for the first half of this year. If kept at home, this would have increased the civilian supply only five ounces a week for each person.

Distribution Halted

Very little American meat has been made available for foreign relief. The Army started to distribute some, but stopped early this year when supplies became difficult to obtain. The amount of meat tentatively allocated liberated areas for the full year is less than 200 million pounds, mostly fatback and salt pork. This amount would be hardly sufficient to provide American civilians with two extra meals this year.

Relief requirements of meats have, on the other hand, been estimated at two billion pounds.

Foreign allotments of butter for the first half of this year also are small. The amount would have increased civilian supplies about three ounces per person for the period.

MRS. ROOSEVELT WILL CONTINUE WRITING CAREER

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP) Eleanor Roosevelt bade farewell to the Women Press corps of Washington today and said with a grin that from now on she is a competitor—not a news source.

Mrs. Roosevelt told the 50 or so women, some of whom have reported her news conferences for 12 years, that:

To Leave White House Today

She expects to be out of the White House tomorrow.

She will continue writing her newspaper column, "My Day," and her Ladies Home Journal magazine story.

A few of her personal things will go to her New York city apartment. Everything else belonging to the Franklin Delano Roosevelt estate is to go to Hyde Park.

The former First Lady thanked the all-feminine conference and said the members had been on the whole fair and generous with her. She hopes to do other writing now, and to meet her newspapering friends again. After all, she said, she would be trying to get interviews, too.

Mrs. Roosevelt said Rep. Norton (D-N.J.), dean of Congresswomen, had telephoned her a suggestion today that she go to the United Nations conference in San Francisco next week. Her answer, she said, was a definite No.

On the question of public office in general, the late President's widow said she never had aspired to such a post and did not wish to start now.

Nevertheless, Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) of the House Rules committee told a reporter he intended to call on President Truman and urge that Mrs. Roosevelt be offered some high post. Sabath said she is a "citizen of the first value" in her own right, and undoubtedly possesses intimate knowledge of her husband's conversations with other Allied leaders. Moreover, he said, she "knows better than any living person the ideals for which he worked."

Mrs. Roosevelt imposed for the first time—at this last news conference—a rule that she not be quoted directly. She did that, she said, because it was rather a farewell tea than a news conference. It started at 4:02 p.m. and ended 28 minutes later.

Still in Mourning

She greeted the correspondents at the famed State dining room, wan but smiling. She was in mourning, relieved only by a triple strand of pearls and her husband's wedding gift to her—a fleur de lis brooch. Her secretary, Malvina Thompson, poured the tea, and the White House social secretary, Mrs. James M. Helm, served coffee.

She spoke briefly about her associations with the press and the stress of happenings during her regime in the White House. It seemed, she said, as though there always was a crisis to meet. The reporters, she added, can feel that they played a big role in that period.

Mrs. Roosevelt explained that her daughter, Anna Boettiger, would have liked to be there but is spending most of her time at the Walter Reed hospital with her youngest son, Johnnie, five, who has an infected gland.

She and Anna have been packing with a view to leaving Friday; Anna to go to a hotel and she to New York over Friday and Saturday, and thence to Hyde Park Sunday.

Mrs. Truman, the new First Lady, has been very considerate, she said, and has suggested that since the President's family is comfortable at the Blair House there is no particular hurry about getting the White House.

It may take some time for Mrs. Truman to get settled, Mrs. Roosevelt said, because there is some redecorating to be done. So many paintings and photographs had accumulated, she said, that the walls are bound to look odd when they are removed after 12 years.

No Public Office Now: Mrs. R.

New York, April 19 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said today in her newspaper column she would not accept or run for public office or any office at the present time.

She added, however, that she planned to continue her column, "My Day," and her magazine page in the Ladies' Home Journal as well as writing "an occasional articles."

George A. Carlin, general manager of United Features Syndicate, said Mrs. Roosevelt's contract to write "My Day" had been renewed last March 10 for five years.

"On Own Merits"

"Mrs. Roosevelt is a great lady and a great person in her own right," he declared. "Her column will be accepted on its own merits. From now on she can speak more freely on all matters."

In her column today, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"I have two jobs that I consider myself obligated to do and that I want to do. My daily column I have always looked upon as a job which I wanted to have considered on its merits. Because I was the wife of the President, certain restrictions were imposed upon me. Now I am on my own, and I hope to write as a newspaper woman.

Background For Job

"I certainly should have background to bring to the job, and if I have not developed powers of observation and correct reporting in the past years, that will soon be discovered.

tract that Ii wish to fulfill as well

"My magazine page is also a conas I possibly can. Outside of these two occupations I hope I shall be able to do an occasional article on subjects which are of interest to me and to others."

Because of the President's death, her column failed to appear for three days for the first time since it began in 1935.

47,023 CASUALTIES LISTED IN MARCH

Stimson Tells Of Cost Of Battle For Rhine Crossing

Washington, April 19 (AP)—American troops are driving across Germany without heavy losses in men, Secretary of War Stimson said today in reporting that the March battle for Rhine crossings cost only 47,023 casualties.

While figures on current casualties are not yet available, Stimson assured a news conference that they are "not high," and are far below losses inflicted on the German Army. In the last eighteen days alone, he said, Allied troops have captured 900,000 Nazis in addition to killing and wounding a large number.

No "Easy Time Of It"

The Secretary emphasized, however, that he did not want to give the impression that Allied forces are having "an easy time of it." On the contrary, he said, they have bumped into the "stiffest kind of resistance" in some Reich centers.

Ground-force losses on the Western front during March were the lowest for any month since October, with the exception of February's 34,468. During March, American soldiers won the west bank of the Rhine from Cologne to Haguenau, wiped out a large part of the German Army and swept across the river in force.

473,215 Since D-Day

The March total, which included 6,214 killed, 35,443 wounded and 5,366 missing, boosted the aggregate of ground-force casualties in that area since D-day to 473,215. Of these 79,795 are dead, 334,919 wounded and 58,501 missing.

The Western front toll represented more than a half of army casualties in all theaters since Pearl Harbor, a figure which Stimson placed at 813,870 on the basis of individual names received here through April 7.

With the Navy's latest announced losses of 98,608, this pushed to 912,478 the over-all losses for the nation since the beginning of the war.

Lottery-Picked GI For Frisco Is Urged

Washington, April 19 (AP)—A lottery to select an enlisted man from the Army or Navy as the "GI's" representative to the San Francisco United Nations Conference was advocated today by Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.).

He told the Senate that a few days before President Roosevelt's death the Chief Executive told him he was giving serious consideration to the question of sending a man from the enlisted ranks to the conference but was bothered by the problem of how to select a typical GI.

Saying he believed President Truman was of a similar mind, Magnuson proposed this method of selection:

Have the staff of the Stars and Stripes, Army newspaper, draw up a standard of qualifications for the representative.

Have the Army and Navy conduct a lottery, just as was done to pick the first draftees, and choose 50 names.

Let the Stars and Stripes staff, made up wholly of non-commissioned officers, pick the representative from among the 50.

TEXTILE WORKERS GET WAGE BOOST

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP) Stabilization Director William H. Davis approved today a general wage increase of five cents an hour for 50,000 textile workers in 54 northern and southern mills.

In approving an order of the War Labor board authorizing the increase, Davis described the need for greater production of textile goods as "of almost unique significance in its critical relation to hold down the cost of living."

The War Labor board order provides a minimum rate of 55 cents an hour and an increase of five cents an hour in rates above the minimum. Since the present minimum rate is 50 cents an hour, this amounts to a general increase of five cents an hour.

The WLB order specifically applies to 50,000 textile employes of the 54 participating companies represented by the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO).

Davis said the OPA had advised him the wage increase "would not in itself" require an industry-wide boost in the maximum price of any of the major items which the firms produce, but that some of the companies might be entitled to individual price adjustments.

FARLEY URGES QUICK RETURN OF FREEDOM

MILWAUKEE, April 19.—(AP) Relaxation of government's wartime controls after the cessation of hostilities should be rapid and clean-cut, James A. Farley, former postmaster general, declared tonight in a speech prepared for delivery before the Milwaukee Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"We have all given up great measures of freedom to achieve victory," he said. "We should let no one forget for a minute that we want those freedoms back and that we intend to have them."

"In borrowing totalitarian ways for the prosecution of the war it was our aim to rid ourselves of them at the earliest possible moment. I am certain that the government had no other end in mind and I am convinced that the Congress, once this war is over, will take the lead in the speediest restoration of all the democratic processes."

Ration Book 5 on Way For Use After V-E Day

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—There's nothing tentative about food rationing continuing after V-E Day. War Ration Book 5 is already being prepared.

The Office of Price Administration plans to put it into use late this year or early in 1946. Along with nearly every one else, the O. P. A. expects V-E Day long before that time.

There has been no final decision yet whether the new book will be for a one or two year period. Those preparing it think, however, that it will probably follow the pattern of the current Book 4 and be good for about twenty-four months.

Labor Adviser Named

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Daniel W. Tracy, Assistant Secretary of Labor, will represent the Labor Department as an adviser to the American delegation to the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Atlanta Navy Program Has New Commander

Atlanta, April 19 (AP)—Capt. Robert Strike, a native of Chambersburg, Pa., has assumed command of Atlanta's navy college program.

The navy college program consists of training activities for V-12 and naval officer candidates at Georgia Tech and Emory universities here.

R. W. Maycock Takes New Post

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—The War Food Administration announced today appointment of Richard W. Maycock as vice-president of the Commodity Credit Corporation and director of its Office of Supply. He succeeds Lieutenant Colonel Ralph W. Olmstead, who has been recalled to the Army to help supervise military relief operations in Europe.

Cameron G. Garman was named treasurer of the C. C. C., succeeding Mr. Maycock.

Spruille Braden Named As Envoy to Argentina

If Confirmed, He Will Succeed Norman Armour

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—Spruille Braden, of New York, now Ambassador to Cuba, was nominated by President Truman today to be Ambassador to Argentina. Mr. Braden, if confirmed, will succeed Norman Armour, who was recalled in 1944 when diplomatic relations with the Farrell government were suspended. Mr. Armour is now Ambassador to Spain.

The United States has resumed normal relations with Argentina, following Buenos Aires' recent declaration of war against the Axis, and adherence to the Hemisphere Pacts of Mexico City.

Mr. Braden, a native of Elkhorn, Mont., is fifty-one years old. He is a former Minister and later Ambassador to Colombia and long had been connected with export, real estate, shipping and banking corporations before entering the diplomatic service.

He also was an official of exploration and copper companies in South America and represented the United States at many Pan-American commercial and arbitration conferences.

STASSEN NAMES AIDES

2 Wounded Service Men Will Go to Parley—One Is a New Yorker

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP)—Comdr. Harold E. Stassen designated two wounded service men today as his aides at the San Francisco Conference.

Lieut. Cord Meyer Jr. of New York and Sgt. John Thomson of Minneapolis will accompany him when he takes his place as one of the American delegates.

Lieutenant Meyer enlisted in the Marines in 1942, was commissioned a second lieutenant and sent overseas in 1943, and acted as a machine-gun officer in assault battalions on Kwajalein, Eniwetok and Guam. At the last landing he was wounded and lost his left eye. He was graduated from Yale summa cum laude in 1942 after majoring in history and government.

Sergeant Thomson was attached to SHAEF in Europe and was seriously wounded near Aachen in January. He was recently discharged from an Army hospital in Spokane, Wash. He is an honor graduate from Blake School, where he majored in political science.

Guatemala Recognizes Russia

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—Guatemala established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union today, becoming the eleventh Latin-American republic to recognize Russia. In a ceremony at the Russian Embassy, Ambassadors Andrei Gromyko, of the Soviet Union, and Eugenio Silva Pena, of Guatemala, exchanged diplomatic notes.

Mrs. Jose Serrato

Husband, Uruguayan Foreign Minister, En Route for San Francisco

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP).—The Uruguayan Embassy was notified today of the death Tuesday at Montevideo of the wife of Jose Serrato, Uruguayan Foreign Minister and formerly President of Uruguay, who is en route to the San Francisco conference.

Mr. Serrato, the embassy added, will continue to the west coast for the opening of the conference next Wednesday. He was believed here to have arrived in Miami during the day.

Rocket Units Training At Fort Sill

Washington, April 19 (AP)—The army ground forces are training motorized rocket units at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, the War Department reported today.

The units are using the 4.5-inch launcher and projectile used to lay down a heavy barrage in a limited area. Artillery experts describe it as one of the most effective weapons of the war.

RADIO CONTROL USED ON TRAINS

NEW HAVEN, April 19.—(AP) The first public demonstration in Connecticut of the feasibility of radio train control as a supplement to manual and automatic signals was given here this week by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad over its Maybrook freight line.

A 100 car freight train was used to test the practicality of a three-way installation between the cab of the leading locomotive on the two-engine train, the caboose, nearly a mile away and the dispatcher's office at the New Haven headquarters of the line.

More than a score of newspapermen made the trip from New Haven to the Danbury fair grounds in a sound-equipped coach attached to the train behind the caboose. There, over loud speaker, they were tuned in on a running three-way operational conversation as the train left the Cedar Hill yard.

The railroad said that the Maybrook line was chosen principally because of the difficult, winding terrain where a "high degree of shielding and deflection of the radio might be expected."

A secondary reason was because the line operates for 15 miles under the high voltage main-line electrical overhead wire system before branching off, just east of the Housatonic river, to head for Danbury and Maybrook, N. Y. It was important, said railroad men, to be certain that the equipment would work in such close proximity to high voltage wires.

As the train neared the Housatonic on its way from New Haven, the dispatcher's office dropped out and the conversation became two way, between the engine and caboose. Such stationary control stations have a radius of only about 10 miles but, if the system is eventually adopted, other way-control stations will be established along the entire right of way.

If the system is adopted it will also be possible for passing train crews to talk to each other. More important, from a practical operating standpoint, it will make it easy for dispatchers and freight yardmasters to direct the operations of engines shifting cars about in the yards and at way points without the necessity of physical communication.

It also will be possible for train crews to consult about operating conditions along the line and, in emergencies, for dispatchers to utilize radio direction to supplant broken landlines and damaged signal apparatus.

The railroad has an application pending before the Federal Communications Commission for allocation of a permanent frequency. The type employed on the test and envisaged, should the line eventually adopt the plan, was a frequency modulation and the experiment was made under a temporary assignment of 30.66 megacycles.

HOME TOWN GETS BASILONE MEDAL

Somerville, N. J., April 19 (A. P.).—The will of Sergt. John Basilone, Marine Corps gunnery sergeant killed on Iwo Jima, provides that the Congressional Medal of Honor he was awarded for valor at Guadalcanal be displayed in a war memorial building in his home town of Raritan, provided such an edifice is erected.

The will, probated here yesterday, asks that the medal be deposited with the trustees of "such building for safekeeping and display, in such manner as in their judgment be deemed requisite and proper."

Basilone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Basilone, was killed on February 19.

DETROIT PLANT PLANS TO APPEAL WLB ORDER

DETROIT, April 19 — (AP) The Helsey-Hayes Wheel Co. management planned an appeal today from a Regional War Labor Board directive ordering it to reinstate some discharged employes, although the directive had the result of returning 5,000 strikers in three plants to their jobs.

Five minor officials of Local 174, United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.), who had been dismissed for ejecting a foreman from one of the plants, and sixth man discharged for another reason, forced their way past plant guards this morning with the returning strikers.

Lester Downie, vice-president of the firm, said the six were given no job assignments and that they roamed the plant trying to stir up trouble. He said the guards were unable to eject them.

600 WORKERS RETURN TO OIL REFINERY JOBS

APR 20 1945

LAKE CHARLES, La., April 19 —(AP) Approximately 600 workers returned to their jobs today at the Cities Service refinery and butadiene plant, and some 600 more were casting secret ballots to determine if they would return.

The plant, one of the nation's largest of its kind, was taken over yesterday by the government by order of President Harry S. Truman. Producing 100-octane gasoline and butadiene for making synthetic rubber, it had been idle since April 9.

Workers blamed the stoppage on a dispute over rents charged in nearby Maplewood housing colony. They denied that labor unions or the company were in any way responsible for their action.

EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND, APRIL 19-(AP)-"PHILIP," A USUALLY DOCILE CHIMPANZEE, WENT ON A TOOT TODAY AND FOR SIX HOURS HAD THE EDINBURGH ZOO IN AN UPROAR.

PHILIP, A CHARACTER WHO GETS ALONG WELL WITH ALL, ORDINARILY IS NOT WATCHED PARTICULARLY CLOSELY AND THIS AFTERNOON HE GOT OUT OF HIS CAGE.

THE KEEPERS TOOK THIS INCIDENT CALMLY. THEY OFFERED HIM A BOTTLE OF BEER IN AN ATTEMPT TO INDUCE HIM BACK INTO HIS CAGE. BEER IS PHILIP'S FAVORITE DRINK AND HE READILY QUAFFED THE OFFERING. BUT INSTEAD OF RETURNING TO HIS CAGE HE THREW THE BOTTLE AT A KEEPER.

THEN THEY TRIDD WHISKY. NOT EVER HAVING LEARNED THAT OLD JINGLE ABOUT "BEER BEFORE WHISKY IS KIND OF RISKY," PHILIP TOSSED OFF THE WHISKY PROMPTLY AND THEN ALSO TOSSED THE SMALL BOTTLE INTO THE CROWD WHICH BY THIS TIME HAD GATHERED TO WATCH THE PROCEEDINGS.

FREEDOM, IT'S WONDERFUL, PHILIP DECIDED AND STARTED ON A TOUR OF THE ZOO. AS HE LUMBERED ALONG THE CROWD SCATTERED AND ONE FRIGHTENED WOMAN FELL, INJURING HER LEG.

PHILIP ROAMED THE GARDENS, CLIMBED TO THE ROOF OF THE APE HOUSE, WENT INTO HIS CAGE FOR A FEW MINUTES AND SKIPPED OUT AGAIN BEFORE THE KEEPERS COULD SLAM THE GATE, AND THEN SCURRIED AWAY TO TEASE THE LIONS FOR AWHILE.

FINALLY THE KEEPERS, WINDED AND EXASPERATED, GAVE UP THE CHASE. REALIZING THE FUN WAS OVER, PHILIP RETURNED TO HIS CAGE AND SAT DOWN TO AWAIT HIS SUPPER.

THE GERMANS LONG AGO MAPPED EVERY MARSH AND POND AND PLACED THEIR STRONGPOINTS TO COMMAND THE STRIPS OF FIRM GROUND. THEY COULD NOT BUILD THE USUAL CONCRETE REDOUBTS, BUT THEY DID THE NEXT BEST THING--BUILT REGULAR OLD-FASHIONED BLOCKHOUSES OUT OF LOGS.

BUT THE DOUGHBOYS SEEMED MORE INTERESTED IN ANOTHER FIND THEY PRIZED ABOVE THE MOUNTAINS OF MONEY. IT WAS A FROZEN FOOD WAREHOUSE STACKED TO THE RAFTERS WITH FROZEN STRAWBERRIES FOR THE GERMAN ARMY.

"NOW THERE IS SOMETHING WE CAN USE," EXCLAIMED ONE BLIGHTED DOUGHBOY.

NUERNBERG, APRIL 19-(AP)-DOUGHBOYS OF COMPANY H, 180TH REGIMENT OF THE 45TH (THUNDER BIRD) DIVISION TODAY RAISED AMERICAN FLAGS IN THE LUITPOLD STADIUM, WHERE HITLER USED TO SHRIEK HIS DEFIANCE TO THE WORLD.

THE G.I.'S BEAT A HALF DOZEN GENERALS TO THE PUNCH.

EVERYBODY THOUGHT IT WOULD BE A FINE IDEA TO RAISE SOME STAR SPANGLED BANNERS IN NUERNBERG BECAUSE TOMORROW IS HITLER'S BIRTHDAY. PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICERS LINED UP THE GENERALS FOR THE STUNT, BUT NO TIME WAS FIXED FOR IT.

MAJ.GEN.ROBERT FREDERICKS, WHOSE 45TH DIVISION ONCE RAISED THE FLAG OVER KISKA ISLAND, DEMURRED AT THE STADIUM SETTING. HE SAID THE CENTER OF THE TOWN PLACE WOULD BE BETTER, AND SUGGESTED A WAIT UNTIL NUERNBERG HAS BEEN CLEARED.

HIS DOUGHFEET HADN'T LEARNED ABOUT THE GENERAL'S SLANT ON THINGS, SO THEY JUST MARCHED INTO THE STADIUM WITH THE FLAGS THIS AFTERNOON--AND UP WENT THE BANNERS.

OUTSIDE NUERNBERG, GERMANY, APRIL 17-(DELAYED)-(AP)-CAPT. JOHNNY GODFREY OF WOONSOCKET, R.I., FORMER ACE OF THE U.S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE WITH 36 GERMAN PLANES TO HIS CREDIT, WAS AMONG A COUPLE OF HUNDRED AMERICAN PRISONERS LIBERATED FROM THE LANGWASSER 13D PRISON CAMP NEAR NUERNBERG TODAY.

GODFREY, WHO DESTROYED 18 PLANES IN THE AIR AND AN EQUAL NUMBER ON THE GROUND, WAS ONCE THE WINGMAN FOR CAPT. DON S.GENTILE OF PIQUA, OHIO, FIRST AMERICAN PILOT TO GET 30 KILLS.

THE RHODE ISLAND FLIER WAS DOWNED LATE LAST SUMMER. HE WAS SO EAGER TO GET BACK TO HIS AIR FORCE COMRADES AFTER BEIING LIBERATED TODAY THAT HE HITCHED A RIDE OUT OF THE CAMP ON THE FIRST JEEP THAT CAME ALONG AND WAS NOT PRESENT WHEN NEWSPAPERMEN ARRIVED.

ANOTHER LIBERATED AMERICAN WAS LT. COL. EDWIN CUMMINGS, 1252 OWSLEY AVE., COLUMBUS, GA.

BRETTHEIM,GERMANY,APRIL 19-(AP)-NAZI SS OFFICERS HUNG THE MAYOR OF THIS VILLAGE, THE LOCAL NAZI PARTY CHIEF AND A PROMINENT FARMER IN A BRUTAL PUBLIC EXHIBITION A WEEK AGO WHEN THEY PLANNED TO TURN THE HAMLET OVER TO THE AMERICANS, EYEWITNESSES SAID TODAY.

REPORTS OF THE INCIDENT WERE HEARD ALL ALONG THE SEVENTH ARMY FRONT DURING THE PAST FEW DAYS. FOR MILES AROUND SS TROOPERS HAD PLASTERED HANDBILLS ADVERTISING THE BRETTHEIM INCIDENT AS A WARNING TO ANY GERMANS TRYING TO SAVE THEIR LIVES AND HOMES WITH A WHITE FLAG.

WHEN THE FOURTH INFANTRY DIVISION REACHED THE SMOULDERING RUINS OF BRETTHEIM TODAY, LOCAL RESIDENTS TOLD HOW TWO GERMAN FARMERS, UHL AND HANSELMANN, TOOK "PANZERFAUST" ANTI-TANK GUNS AWAY FROM FOUR TEEN-AGED HITLER YOUTHS AND ORDERED THEM HOME. THE BOYS HAD BEEN ORDERED TO STAND GUARD OUTSIDE THE VILLAGE TO INTERCEPT AMERICAN TANKS.

THE TWO FARMERS, UHL'S WIFE RELATED, DESTROYED THE "PANZERFAUST" GUNS AND ANNOUNCED WHITE FLAGS WOULD BE FLOWN WHEN AMERICAN TROOPS APPROACHED.

THE FOLLOWING DAY, FIVE SS OFFICERS FROM ROTHENBURG CAME TO BRETTHEIM AND ARRESTED HANSELMANN. UHL HAD FLED AND STILL IS A FUGITIVE. MAYOR GACKSTATTER AND LOCAL NAZI PARTY CHIEF WOLFMEIER WERE ORDERED TO HANG HANSELMANN AS A TRAITOR. WHEN THE TWO OFFICIALS DEMURRED THEY ALSO WERE ARRESTED.

SHORTLY BEFORE SUNSET THE NEXT EVENING ALL THREE WERE HANGED FROM A TREE AT THE GATE OF BRETTHEIM CEMETERY IN THE CENTER OF THE COMMUNITY WITH ITS POPULATION OF 500.

ELIZABETH SCHMITT, THE LOCAL DRESSMAKER, WHO WATCHED THE EXECUTION, SAID WOLFMEIER ASKED TO BE SHOT. "THEY HUNG HIM FIRST," SHE SAID. "THEY DID NOT BLINDFOLD HIM OR TIE HIS HANDS. THEY MADE HIM STAND ON A TABLE, AND THEN KICKED IT FROM UNDER HIM. GACKSTATTER AND HANSELLMAN WERE MADE TO WATCH AND THEN WERE HANGED ON THE SAME LIMB."

THE SS OFFICERS ORDERED THAT THE BODIES MUST HANG FOR THREE DAYS AND IF THEY WERE TAKEN DOWN 20 MORE WOULD BE HANGED.

THE LOCAL RESIDENTS FEARS OF WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN IF BRETTHEIM'S FRAGILE LITTLE HOUSES WERE USED AS SNIPERS NESTS AND MACHINE GUN EMPLACEMENTS WERE CONFIRMED TWO DAYS AGO. THUNDERBOLT DIVE-BOMBERS BLANKETED THE VILLAGE WITH INCENDARIES.

THIS AFTERNOON THE POPULACE CAME OUT OF THE WOODS AND POKED THROUGH THE ASHES OF WHAT HAD BEEN THEIR HOMES.

ONE OF THEM WAS GERHARD HEBEL, WHO SAID HE USED TO WORK FOR A WHOLESALE GLASSWARE COMPANY AT 919 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, ILL. HEBEL, WHO SAID HE HAD AN AUNT, MRS. ANNA LINK, LIVING AT 5309 GLENWOOD AVENUE, CHICAGO, TOLD CAPT. LAWSON W.MACGRUDER, 5647 SWISS AVENUE, DALLAS, TEX. THAT HE HAD WITNESSED THE EXECUTION, DETAILS OF WHICH WERE POSTED IN NEIGHBORING TOWNS.

THESE HANDBILLS FROM SS HEADQUARTERS SAID:

"THE GERMAN PEOPLE ARE DETERMINED TO BLOT OUT WITH INCREASING SEVERITY SUCH COWARDLY AND SELFISH TRAITORS AND WILL NOT HESITATE EVEN TO ELIMINATE THEIR FAMILIES FROM THE COMMUNITY OF AN HONORABLY-FIGHTING GERMAN PEOPLE."

ZUIDER ZEE

BY NED NORDNESS

WITH THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY, APRIL 19-(AP)-THE GERMANS ARE CALLOUSLY THROWING BACK INTO THE SEA TODAY THE LAND WHICH GENERATIONS OF DUTCH HAD LABORED PATIENTLY TO CLAIM FROM IT.

THE WATERS ARE RUSHING THROUGH A 300-YARD GAP BLOWN IN THE ZUIDER ZEE CAUSEWAY AT OOSTERLAND, 65 MILES NORTH OF AMSTERDAM, AND ALREADY HAVE INUNDATED 180 SQUARE MILES OF LAND.

IT WAS NOT KNOWN WHETHER THE DUTCH CIVILIANS HAD BEEN WARNED BEFOREHAND, BUT THE ENGINEERS' OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY SAID IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE FOR THEM TO ESCAPE.

BURIED UNDER 12 FEET OF WATER ARE HOLLAND'S RICH DAIRY LANDS AND TULIP COUNTRY, AND THE WATER IS EXPECTED TO RISE ANOTHER FOUR TO SIX FEET.

THIS ADDED FLOOD TO A LITTLE COUNTRY ALREADY SORELY STRICKEN BY INUNDATIONS WAS DESCRIBED AS "SHEER WANTON DESTRUCTIVENESS WITH NOT ANY RECOGNIZED MILITARY ADVANTAGE."

AT THE RATE THE WATER IS POURING IN, IT IS EXPECTED TO BE BUT A MATTER OF DAYS BEFORE THE ENTIRE PART OF HOLLAND'S HOOK WILL BE FLOODED TO SOUTH OF OOSTHUIZEN, WHICH IS 20 MILES NORTH OF AMSTERDAM.

THE GERMANS ALSO ARE FLOODING THE LOWLANDS IN THE AREAS OF AMERSFOORT AND HILVERSUM ON HOLLAND'S RECOGNIZED LINES OF DEFENSE NORTH AND EAST OF UTRECHT.

NORTH OF UTRECHT, AT THE HEAD OF WHAT IS KNOWN AS "THE NEW DEFENSE LINE", SOME 30 SQUARE MILES IS BEING FLOODED UNDER A MAXIMUM DEPTH OF TWO FEET OF WATER.

ON THE GREBBE DEFENSE LINE FARTHER EAST ANOTHER 60 SQUARE MILES IS BEING INUNDATED TO THE SAME DEPTH.

THE ENEMY ALSO CAN FLOOD ANOTHER LINE EXTENDING FROM THE SOUTH OF ROTTERDAM TO AN AREA NORTH OF AMSTERDAM, AND THE TWO CITIES THEMSELVES COULD BE MADE 25 PER CENT UNINHABITABLE, ENGINEERS SAID.

COLDITZ, GERMANY, APRIL 19-(AP)-GAY, DEBONAIR WING COMM.DOUGLAS BADER, FAMED LEGLESS PILOT OF THE RAF WHO WAS SHOT DOWN OVER FRANCE THREE AND A HALF YEARS AGO, WANTS MOST OF ALL TO "GET ANOTHER SQUIRT AT THE BLOODY HUN," NOW THAT HE IS FREE FROM GERMAN INTERNMENT.
"JUST GIVE ME ONE MORE SHOT AT THOSE GOONS," BEGGED THE 35-YEAR-OLD FIGHTER PILOT WHO BECAME ONE OF BRITAIN'S GREAT ACES WITH TWO ARTIFICIAL LEGS. "I'LL NEVER BE SATISFIED UNTIL I DO."
THE LAUGHING, DARK-HAIRED HERO BUILT UP DURING HIS PRISON LIFE AN ABIDING HATRED OF THE GERMANS AND A BURNING THIRST FOR REVENGE FOR INDIGNITIES HEAPED ON HIM SINCE HE WAS CAPTURED IN AUGUST, 1941, AFTER HIS PLANE COLLIDED WITH ANOTHER.
HE WAS ONE OF A THOUSAND OR SO LIBERATED MONDAY FROM THE GREAT, GRAY COLDITZ PRISON, WHERE THE NAZIS SENT ALLIED CAPTIVES WHO WOULD NOT SUBMIT TO IMPRISONMENT ELSEWHERE. THESE PRISONERS HAD BEEN CLASSED AS SPECIAL ENEMIES OF THE FATHERLAND, AND MOST ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE FROM TIME TO TIME.
BADER HAD 25 PLANES TO HIS CREDIT WHEN HIS PLANE WAS DAMAGED OVER LILLE.
"I HAD TO JETTISON ONE OF MY LEGS," HE SAID, LAUGHING AS IF IT WERE A GREAT JOKE ON HIMSELF. "I FELT LIKE A BLOODY FOOL PARACHUTING DOWN WITH ONLY ONE LEG."
THE GERMANS FOUND HIS LEG AND IT WAS FIXED SO THAT HE COULD WEAR IT. NONE OF THE NAZIS THOUGHT THE LEGLESS FLIER WOULD TRY TO ESCAPE FROM THE FRENCH HOSPITAL IN WHICH HE WAS CONFINED. BUT ONE NIGHT HE TRIED, SLIDING DOWN A ROPE OF TIED BEDSHEETS. HE WAS CAUGHT. FOR PUNISHMENT, "THOSE GOONS" FOR TWO WEEKS WOULDN'T GIVE HIM THE NEW LEG THE RAF HAD DROPPED FOR HIM WHEN HIS COLLEAGUES CLEARNED OF HIS LOSS.
"IT WAS A MAGNIFICENT EXAMPLE OF HOW THE GERMAN MIND WORKS," HE CHUCKLED. "THEY WOULDN'T GIVE ME MY LEGS. TWO GOONS CARRIED ME WHILE ANOTHER CARRIED MY LEGS AND AN OFFICER MARCHED ALONG IN FRONT."
FOUR MORE TIMES BADER TRIED TO ESCAPE. HE FAILED.
ANNOYED, THE GERMANS SENT HIM TO COLDITZ PRISON TWO YEARS AGO. EVEN THERE BADER HAD A TRY AT ESCAPING. FRIENDS TRIED TO CONSTRUCT A GLIDER TO BE LAUNCHED FROM THE ROOF. BUT THE GERMANS TUMBLED TO IT.

BY WES GALLAGHER
ON THE EBLE RIVER, GAMANY, APRIL 19-(AP)-FOR ALL PRACTICAL PURPOSES ORGANIZED GERMAN RESISTANCE ON WELL DEFINED FRONT LINES IS AT AN END.
BEFORE THE WESTERN ALLIES THERE IS NOTHING APPROACHING A FRONT. THERE ARE ONLY POCKETS OF RESISTANCE--IN HOLLAND, AT BREMEN AND HAMBURG, OPPOSITE MAGDEBURG ON THE ELBE AND ISOLATED BODIES OF TROOPS IN FRONT OF THE AMERICAN FIRST, THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES.
(GEN.OMAR N.BRADLEY, DECLARING THAT HIS FIRST, THIRD AND NINTH ARMIES HAD FINISHED ONE PHASE OF THE THRUST INTO THE HEART OF THE REICH, SAID THURSDAY, "IT IS NECESSARY TO PAUSE TEMPORARILY BEFORE WE GO INTO THE NEXT." HE ADDED THAT VIRTUALLY EVERY GERMAN SOLDIER THAT FACED THE AMERICANS ON THE SIEGFRIED LINE ON FEB. 23 WHEN THE ROER RIVER CROSSING WAS MADE "NOW IS EITHER KILLED, WOUNDED OR A PRISONER OF WAR.")
BY APPLYING PRESSURE ALLIED FORCES ARE ABLE TO GO ANYWHERE INTO GERMANY THAT THEY DESIRE WITHOUT THE GERMANS BEING ABLE TO DO ANYTHING ABOUT IT. THE GERMANS LOST THE POWER TO WAGE ANYTHING BUT A GUERRILLA WAR THROUGH THE LOSS OF THE RUHR, THE SAAR, SILESIA AND THE HUGE STORES OVERRUN BY THE WESTERN ALLIES.
HOW DID THIS COME ABOUT?
THE ANSWER BRIEFLY IS THAT THE GERMANS SIMPLY RAN OUT OF THE MANPOWER NEEDED TO HOLD ANY SORT OF A FRONT.
THIS RUNNING OUT OF MANPOWER, WHICH LEAVES THE REICH AT THE MERCY OF ATTACKING HOSTS WHO DAY BY DAY INCREASE THEIR MARGIN OF MANPOWER AND MILITARY SUPERIORITY, WAS THE RESULT OF DEFEATS WHICH BLED HITLER LEGIONS WHITE.
THE BIGGEST PART OF THIS BLEEDING UNDOUBTEDLY HAS BEEN DONE BY THE RUSSIANS.
ON THE WESTERN FRONT IT IS DIFFICULT TO SAY AT WHICH POINT OR BY WHICH ARMY THE MOST WAS ACCOMPLISHED.
THE TURNING POINT CAME WHEN FIELD MARSHAL (KARL) VON RUNDSTEDT'S ARDENNES GAMBLE FAILED AND THEN HE HAD TO DISPATCH THE SIXTH PANZER ARMY TO THE EASTERN FRONT, LEAVING NO MOBILE RESERVE IN THE WEST.

IT BECAME A QUESTION OF TIME. THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY TOOK THE REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD AND WHAT SMALL FORCES VON RUNDSTEDT HAD AT HIS DISPOSAL WERE GOBBLED UP TRYING TO SEAL OFF THIS PENETRATION.
TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE GERMAN WEAKNESS PATTON CROSSED THE RHINE WITHOUT A SHOT BEING FIRED.
THEN THE AMERICAN NINTH, BRITISH SECOND AND CANADIAN FIRST ARMIES PUT ON A POWER PUNCH THAT POLISHED OFF HITLER'S LAST RESOURCE--THE RUHR.
THE U.S.FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES' CROSSINGS OF THE RHINE WERE BRILLIANT IMPROVISATIONS. THE THREE-ARMY CROSSING NORTH OF THE RUHR WAS A CAREFULLY AND LONG-PLANNED STRATEGIC MOVE. IT WORKED MUCH BETT THAN PLANNED. ON THE ELBE RIVER--FIRST ADD GALLAGHER'S SITUATIONER (TOP A2-3) X X X THIS WAR.

SIMPSON CONDUCTED ONE OF THE MOST DIFFICULT MILITARY CAMPAIGNS IN HISTORY WITH GREAT BRILLIANCE. HE SWUNG ONE FORCE SOUTH TO ENVELOP THE RUHR FROM THE NORTH AND MEET THE U.S.FIRST ARMY COMING UP FROM THE SOUTH.

INSTEAD OF STOPPING THEN TO CLEAN UP THE RUHR, IN WHICH MORE THAN 300,000 OF HITLER'S TROOPS WERE LOPPED OFF, SIMPSON DEVOTED ONE CORPS TO THE TASK AND SENT TWO OTHER CORPS DASHING ACROSS THE NORTH GERMAN PLAIN TOWARD THE ELBE AND BERLIN.

IT MEANT CONDUCTING TWO DISTINCT BATTLES WITH ONE ARMY AND ONE SUPPLY SYSTEM. AS THE BATTLES CAME TO AN END TODAY WITH THE FINISHING OF ORGANIZED RESISTANCE IN THE RUHR NINTH ARMY FORCES WERE FIGHTING AT POINTS 225 MILES APART.

IT HAS TAKEN 36,108 TRUCKS MOVING 141,900 TONS OF SUPPLIES TO CONDUCT THIS OPERATION FOR THE FIRST 19 DAYS AFTER THE RHINE CROSSING ON MARCH 24.

APR 20 1945

INTO THE NINTH ARMY BAG FELL 212,990 PRISONERS IN 19 DAYS WHILE THE FIRST, THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES, NOW PUSHING FREELY THROUGH THE MIDDLE OF GERMANY, GATHERED SIMILAR BAGS.

BRITISH AND CANADIAN FORCES COMPLETED GERMANY'S MILITARY DESTRUCTION BY SEALING OFF GERMAN FORCES IN HOLLAND AND THE GREAT PORT OF BREMEN.

THE FORMER WESTERN FRONT THUS HAS BECOME A DISCONNECTED SERIES OF STRONG POINTS OR POCKETS IN WHICH THE WILL TO RESIST DEPENDS LARGELY ON THE DETERMINATION OF LOCAL COMMANDERS.

WITHOUT TAKING ANYTHING FROM THE INFANTRY WHICH ALWAYS HAS TOUGH, DIRTY JOBS TO IN THE SHOW DOWN, IT IS APPARENT THAT THE AMERICAN POWER HAS BEEN IN THE BRILLIANT WORK OF THE ARMORED DIVISIONS IN OPEN WARFARE.

PATTON'S ALMOST INCREDIBLE ADVANCES HAVE BEEN SPEARHEADED BY THE FAMOUS FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH CUT THE GERMANS TO RIBBONS.

IN LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' FIRST ARMY IT HAS BEEN THE THIRD, SEVENTH AND NINTH ARMORED DIVISIONS WHICH HAVE MADE THE TOP SPEED ADVANCES.

PERHAPS THE MOST OUTSTANDING OF THEM ALL HAS BEEN THE NINTH ARMY'S "HELL ON WHEELS" SECOND ARMORED DIVISION. THIS VETERAN DIVISION HAS A RECORD OF TWO AND A HALF YEARS OF BRILLIANT FIGHTING IN AFRICA, SICILY, FRANCE, BELGIUM, THE NETHERLANDS AND GERMAN BEHIND IT.

PERHAPS THE MOST TERRIFIC ARMORED FIGHT OF THE WESTERN FRONT TOOK PLACE IN THE LITTLE PUBLICIZED NINTH ARMY OFFENSIVE WHIH REAC ED THE ROER RIVER LAST NOVEMBER. IN THAT ENGAGEMENT AROUND GERONSWEILER THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION ENGAGED IN A HEAD ON SLUGGING MATCH WITH TWO GERMAN PANZER DIVISIONS AND ONE PANZER GRENADIER DIVISION, VIRTUALLY DESTROYING THE NINTH PANZER DIVISION.

THAT BATTLE DID MUCH TO TIP THE ARMORED SCALES ON THE WESTERN FRONT DESPITE THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION'S LOSS OF 168 TANKS IN 10 DAYS. IT WAS THE OLD "HELL ON WHEELS" ARMORED DIVISION WHICH PACED THE NINTH ARMY'S DRIVE TO THE RHINE IN FEBRUARY.

WHEN THAT ARMY'S DRIVE ACROSS THE RHINE AND NORTH OF THE RUHR SLOWED SIMPSON CALLED ON THE "HELL ON WHEELS" TANKS AGAIN. THE DIVISION BROKE THROUGH INTO THE OPEN, ADVANCING 240 MILES IN 13 DAYS. ITS DRIVE WAS CLIMAXED BY A 57-MILE RUN TO THE ELBE--THE LONGEST DAYLIGHT RUN OF THE WAR FOR A FULL ARMORED DIVISION.

THE AMERICAN USE OF ARMORED FORCES IN THIS FINAL STAGE OF THE EUROPEAN WAR EQUALLED OR BETTERED ANYTHING THE GERMANS PRODUCED IN THEIR BEST DAYS AND CERTAINLY HAS BEEN A MAJOR FACTOR IN THE DEFEAT OF THE ENEMY.

THE SWIFT ARMORED RUNS ACCOUNTED FOR VAST NUMBERS OF PRISONERS WHICH LED TO THE GERMAN BREAKDOWN OVER MANPOWER.

BADEN BADEN, GERMANY, APRIL 18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-FOURTEEN PALE AND EMACIATED AMERICAN SOLDIERS SMILED HAPPILY TODAY IN TWO BADEN BADEN HOSPITALS, WHERE THEY WERE LIBERATED A WEEK AGO BY THE FIRST FRENCH ARMY.
ALL WERE AWAITING THE ARRIVAL OF AN AMERICAN DOCTOR FROM THE SIXTH ARMY GROUP. THEN THEY WILL BE TAKEN OUT OF GERMANY BY AIR TRANSPORT. THIRTEEN HAD BEEN HOSPITALIZED BY WOUNDS AND THE OTHER BY ILLNESS DEVELOPED FROM BAD FOOD. TWELVE OF THE GROUP WERE CAPTURED IN FEBRUARY AND TWO IN DECEMBER.
"GEE, IT SEEMS GOOD TO HAVE AN AMERICAN VISIT US," SAID CPL. DAVID B. MUSTIN, 720 SOUTH FIFTH ST., PHILADELPHIA.
"FOR US TO BE ABLE TO TALK AMERICAN FAST AGAIN -- THAT'S SOMETHING," ADDED SGT. HAROLD G. BRETZ, OF PLYMOUTH, PA. "WHEN WE WERE TALKING TO GERMAN DOCTORS AND NURSES WE HAD TO TALK AWFULLY SLOW."
PVT. WILLIAM R. HARDY, OF 1146 BEAVER ST., BRISTOL, PA., SAID THE TREATMENT HAD BEEN FAIR, BUT THAT THE GERMANS HAD NO PENCILLIN, SULFA DRUGS OR BLOOD PLASMA.
PVT. THEODORE MISIOLEK, ROUTE 1, FARMDALE, OHIO, TOLD OF A FANATICAL NAZI NURSE.
"ONCE WE EACH PAID FOR A BOTTLE OF WINE," HE SAID, "AND WHEN IT WAS AVAILABLE SHE BROUGHT ONLY ONE BOTTLE FOR THE WHOLE WARD AND FAILED TO RETURN THE BALANCE OF THE MONEY. SHE ALSO FAILED TO GIVE US AS GOOD FOOD AS THE GERMAN PATIENTS."
THE LEADER OF THE PRISONER GROUP WAS LT. JOSEPH W. PARKS, 18 DANIEL ROAD, LA DUE VILLAGE, ST.LOUIS COUNTY, MO., WHO TOOK CHARGE BECAUSE OF THE SLOW RECOVERY OF CAPT. WILLIAM F. NORRIS, OF NEWTON, GA.
PARKS HAD THE UNUSUAL EXPERIENCE OF HAVING THE GERMAN HOSPITAL STAFF SURRENDER TO HIM.
"WHEN THE FRENCH APPROACHED," PARKS SAID. "THE MEDICAL STAFF, ALL OF WHOM WERE COMMISSIONED GERMAN ARMY OFFICERS AND HAD WEAPONS, CAME TO ME TO SURRENDER AND DEPOSITED THEIR ARMS WITH ME.
"THE EXCITEMENT SET ME BACK A BIT -- BUT I FEEL FINE AGAIN TODAY."
BRETZ, WHO WAS IN THE OTHER HOSPITAL, SAID THE MEDICAL STAFF HAD PRACTICALLY GIVEN HIM COMMAND SINCE FEBRUARY.
"THEY WERE SO SCARED OF THE FRENCH ADVANCE THEY WANTED TO MAKE SURE WE WOULD TESTIFY TO GOOD TREATMENT," BRETZ SAID.
HE RELATED HOW ONE NURSE EVEN BAKED AN EASTER CAKE FOR HIMSELF AND PFC. CHARLES W. REIMER, ROUTE 2, BOX 563, INDIANAPOLIS, IND., WHO WAS

BESIDES THE EMACIATED AMERICANS, WHO TOLD OF FAINTING FROM HUNGER AS THEY WERE FORCED TO DO EXHAUSTING WORK, THE 89TH LIBERATED IN THIS DAY'S WORK 1,100 BRITISH, 1,100 FRENCH, 1,500 RUSSIANS, 300 SERBS AND 250 SLAVS.

AMONG THE FIRST TO SEE THE AMERICAN PRISONERS WAS CAPT.DAVID GALLOWAY OF MOUNTAIN FLAKES, N.J., WHO SAID "ONE FELLOW SCREAMED, 'THERE ARE SOME AMERICAN G.I.'S!'

"THEN THE WHOLE BUNCH CROWDED AROUND, CRYING AND KISSING US."

TELLING HOW THEY WERE OVERWORKED AND UNDERFED, THE AMERICANS SAID THEY HAD LOST 50 TO 75 POUNDS' WEIGHT EACH.

THEY TOLD OF HOW MANY OF THEM WERE FORCED TO WALK 150 MILES FROM THE ST. VITH AREA IN FOUR DAYS, WITH NOTHING TO EAT OR DRINK.

THEY TOLD OF BEING COMPELLED TO WALK THREE MILES TO A RAILROAD CONSTRUCTION JOB, THERE TO PUT IN 10 HOURS OF BACKBREAKING WORK WITH ONLY A HALF HOUR'S REST AT NOON, AND TO WALK BACK TO CAMP AT THE END OF THE DAY.

BREAKFAST, THEY SAID, WAS LUKEWARM WATER; A PIECE OF BREAD AND A PAT OF OLEOMARGARINE CONSTITUTED THEIR MID-DAY DINNER; AND FOR SUPPER THEY GOT POTATO SOUP OR TURNIP SOUP, NOT MUCH RICHER THAN THE WATER HAD BEEN.

PVT.JOHN DURKIN, 6157 SUBURBAN ST. LOUIS, MO., DECLARED, "WE WERE GLAD WHEN OUR BOMBERS CAME, EVEN THOUGH THEIR BOMBS DROPPED MIGHTY CLOSE. THEN WE WERE PERMITTED TO QUIT WORK AND GO INTO SHELTERS, GIVING US A CHANCE TO REST."

CENSORSHIP FORBIDS THE TELLING OF MUCH OF THE STORY OF THEIR MISTREATMENT.

SOME OF THE LIBERATED AMERICANS WEPT WITH JOY WHEN I TOLD THEM OF THE NEW WAR DEPARTMENT RULING PERMITTING CORESPONDENTS TO INCLUDE THEIR NAMES IN STORIES.

MODENA, BUT NO DETAILS WERE GIVEN.

DUE SOUTH OF BOLOGNA THE U.S. 91ST DIVISION UNDERWENT SOME OF THE BLOODIEST FIGHTING OF THE ENTIRE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN BEFORE IT DISLODGED THE GERMANS FROM STRATEGIC MONTE ADONE, BETWEEN HIGHWAYS 64 AND 65, AND SLUGGED ITS WAY ONTO MONTE DEI FRATI IN A BITTER 60-HOUR BATTLE.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN SIX MONTHS THE NAZIS HAD BEEN KNOCKED OFF DOMINATING HEIGHTS FROM WHICH THEY HAD LAID FIRE ON AMERICAN POSITIONS WITH DEADLY ACCURACY. FROM NOW ON THE TROOPS ADVANCING TOWARD BOLOGNA WILL HAVE MOSTLY DOWNHILL GOING, WITH EACH HILL GENERALLY SMAL THAN THE LAST.

A228

AT THEIR CLOSEST APPROACH TO THE BIG GATEWAY CITY TO THE PO VALLEY YANK TROOPS WERE IN THE VILLAGE OF BADOLO, JUST EAST OF HIGHWAY 64 AND EIGHT MILES ALMOST DUE SOUTH OF BOLOGNA. OTHER FIFTH ARMY TROOPS DRIVING UP HIGHWAY 65, THE MAIN FLORENCE-BOLOGNA ROAD, WERE REPORTED APPROACHING PIANORO, SEVEN MILES FROM BOLOGNA.

EAST OF BOLOGNA THE NAZIS WERE SEEN HASTILY DIGGING A NEW DEFENSE WORKS BEHIND THE GAIANA RIVER. NEW ZEALAND, POLISH AND OTHER EIGHTH ARMY TROOPS FOUGHT UP TO THE EAST BANK OF THE GAIANA ON AN EIGHT-MILE FRONT. THE ENEMY WAS CLEARING OBSTRUCTIONS TO GIVE A CLEAR FIELD OF FIRE FOR GUNS BEING MASSED WEST OF THE FLOODED STREAM.

AFTER STORMING THROUGH THE ARGENTA GAP BRITISH FORCES CAPTURED THE HIGHWAY TOWN OF BOCCALEONE, 15 MILES SOUTHEAST OF FERRARA, AND DROVE ON AT LEAST ANOTHER MILE. CHIESA DELBANDON, AN OUTPOST OF THE ENEMY'S SABBIOSOLA CANAL LINE, ALSO WAS CAPTURED BY THE BRITISH IN HEAVY FIGHTING.

ALLIED OFFICIALS SAID THE NAZIS HAD GIVEN THE NAME "GENGHIS KHAN" TO THEIR DEFENSE LINE ACROSS THE ARGENTA GAP BETWEEN THE MARSHLANDS AND COMACCHIO LAGOON, BUT NO ONE HAD ANY IDEA WHY THE NAME OF THE GREAT TATAR CONQUEROR WAS CHOSEN.

ITALIAN TROOPS PUSHING TOWARD BOLOGNA SOUTH OF HIGHWAY 9, THE MAIN LATERAL ROUTE TO THE EAST COAST, CROSSED THE GAIANA RIVER AT TWO POINTS AND DROVE THROUGH THE APENNINE FOOTHILLS WEST OF IMOLA.

AFTER SOME DISCUSSION AS TO WHO SHOULD GO

"I HAVEN'T SLEPT FOR TWO NIGHTS ANYWAY, SO IT DON'T MAKE MUCH DIFFERENCE," HE DECLARED.

MURPHY FOLLOWED THE GERMAN MEDIC, WHO SUDDENLY LED HIM BACK OVER THE HILL AND THEN SUDDENLY LET OUT A SHOUT.

"SHUT UP, KRAUT!" COMMANDED MURPHY, POKING HIS RIFLE INTO THE GERMAN'S BACK. BEFORE HE HAD A CHANCE TO SAY MORE, HOWEVER, 40 GERMANS POURED OUT OF A NEARBY CAVE, ALL EAGER TO SURRENDER. OF COURSE MURPHY BROUGHT THEM IN.

(INCIDENTALLY)), THE REASON HE HAD GONE SLEEPLESS FOR TWO NIGHTS WAS BECAUSE HE WAS OUT WITH A SPECIAL PATROL WHICH MADE THREE SMASHES AT THE NAZIS TRYING TO RESCUE A COMPANY WHICH HAD BEEN TRAPPED BY THE ENEMY.

"OVERSEAS THEY HAVE MANAGED TO PRESERVE A CONSIDERABLE PART OF THEIR VALUABLES BECAUSE OF THEIR CARTEL TIES."

IZAKOV ASSERTED SOME AMERICAN AND ENGLISH FIRMS LINKED INTO THE SO-CALLED "DOLLAR-POUND BROTHERHOOD" OF CARTELS "OBLIGINGLY AID THEIR GERMAN PARTNERS TO HIDE THEIR PROPERTY FROM CONFISCATION BY ALLIED AUTHORITIES."

HAVANA, CUBA, APRIL 19-(AP)-ALLOCATION OF AIR FREQUENCIES TO INTERNATIONAL AIRLIINES IS THE ONLY PRACTINCAL WAY TO AVOID RUINOUS COMPETITION IN WORLD COMMERCIAL AVIATION AFTER THE WAR, H.J. SYMINGTON, NEWLY-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE INTERNATIONAL AIR TRANSPORT ASSOCIATION SAID HERE TONIGHT.

SYMINVTVN, WHO IS ALSO PRESIDENT OF TRANS-CANADA AIRLINES, IN AN INTERVIEW SAID THAT "CHAOS IN THE AIR AND UNCHECKED RIVALRY WOULD BE FATAL TO ORDERLY EXPANSION OF COMMERCIAL AIR TRAVEL."

HE ADDED THE ASSOCIATION WILL COOPERATE AND ASSIST IN EVERY WAY POSSIBLE WITH THE CIVIAL AVIATION ORGANIZATION CREATED AT CHICAGO. "HOWEVER", HE SAID "MANY OF THE PROBLEMS OF INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL CAN BE SOLVED ONLY BY COUNTRIES THEMSELVES. VARIATION IN SIZE OF A COUNTRY AND ABILITY OF ITS EPOPLE TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF AIR TRAVEL WI DETERMINE WHETHER GOVERNMENT OR PRIVATE ENTERPRISE SHALL OWN AIR LINES AND WHETHER ONE COMPANY SHALL BE RECOGNIZED OR SEVERAL LINES ALLOWED TO COMPETE. DOMESTICALLY IT OPERATES BETWEEN NEWFOUNDLAND AND VANCOUVER, A DISTANC OF 3,900 MILES, AS WELL AS TO ONTARIO AND THE WESTERN PROVINCES. (ADVANCE FOR AMS OF FRIDAY, APRIL 20)

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, APRIL 19-(AP)-THIRTY PER CENT OF THE PERSONS OF VOTING AGE WHO WERE ABSENT FROM HOME IN THE MILITARY SERVICES VOTED IN THE 1944 PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

BY COMPARISON, 53 PER CENT OF THE TOTAL VOTING-AGE POPULATION CAST BALLOTS.

THE CENSUS BUREAU ISSUED A FINAL TABULATION OF ABSENTEE MILITARY BALLOTS FOR PRESIDENT. IT ANNOUNCED THE TOTAL AS 2,691,160. THE ESTIMATED NUMBER OF ABSENTEE MILITARY PERSONNEL OF VOTING AGE WAS ROUGHLY 5,000,000.

THE ENTIRE PRESIDENTIAL VOTE WAS 48,025,684, MORE THAN HALF OF THE ESTIMATED 89,750,000 PERSONS IN THE POPULATION OLD ENOUGH TO VOTE--CIVILIAN AND MILITARY.

MORE THAN HALF OF THE MILITARY ABSENTEE BALLOTS WERE CAST IN SIX STATES--NEW YORK 422,698; PENNSYLVANIA 255,226; CALIFORNIA 181,421; OHIO 164,472; NEW JERSEY 164,186; AND ILLINOIS 162,256.

THE CENSUS BUREAU GAVE THE ABSENTEE MILITARY VOTE IN EVERY STATE, COMPARING IT IN EACH CASE WITH THE STATE'S TOTAL VOTE.

THIS INFORMATION, HOWEVER, DOES NOT FURNISH A GOOD BASIS FOR JUDGING THE COMPARATIVE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE "SOLDIER VOTE" LAWS OF THE VARIOUS STATES. TO DO THAT, YOU NEED THE RATIO OF ABSENTEE MILITARY VOTES TO THE NUMBER OF ABSENTEE MILITARY PERSONNEL FROM EACH STATE. THE BUREAU SAID IT DOESN'T HAVE THOSE FIGURES.

ABSENTEE MILITARY VOTES OF THE WHOLE COUNTRY (2,691,160) WERE 5.6 PER CENT OF THE TOTAL POPULAR VOTE (48,025,684).

THIS PERCENTAGE, BY STATES, WAS LOWEST IN ALABAMA, ONLY 2 PER CENT. IT WAS HIGHEST IN GEORGIA, 10 PER CENT. IN GEORGIA, THE LOWERING OF THE VOTING AGE TO 18 WEIGHED HEAVILY IN THE MILITARY VOTE. RELATIVELY HIGH PERCENTAGES WERE REPORTED FROM VIRGINIA, 9.9; NEW JERSEY 8.4; WYOMING 8; RHODE ISLAND 7.7; CONNECTICUT 7.2; OREGON 7; AND NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA, AND MICHIGAN, EACH 6.7.

D144WX

BALLOTS WERE SENT BY STATES TO 4,110,767 MILITARY VOTERS; 2,739,203 OF THESE WERE RETURNED; AND OF THAT NUMBER 97 PERCENT ARRIVED IN TIME FOR COUNTING AND WERE OTHERWISE VALID.

MILITARY ABSENTEE VOTES CAST IN METROPOLITAN CENTERS APPEARED TO HAVE RUN HIGHER BY ABOUT A 5-TO-4 PROPORTION THAN THOSE IN OUTSIDE AREAS. FOR EXAMPLE THE PROPORTION OF ABSENTEE MILITARY VOTES TO THE NUMBER OF CITIZENS OF VOTING AGE IN NEW YORK CITY WAS 5.47 PER CENT COMPARED WITH 4.21 FOR THE REST OF NEW YORK STATE.

Berliners Hear Rumble of Guns as Reds Hammer at Gates.

LONDON, Saturday, April 21—(AP) Red army tanks, racing westward for a link-up with American armies, have burst 38 miles across Berlin's dwindling southern escape corridor, Moscow revealed last night as the bomb-torn and flaming German capital disclosed that Russian armor was only seven miles from its city limits.

The Russians were at the "very gates" of Berlin and had breached its inner defense ring in a yard-by-yard "hell of fire, steel and blood", the enemy said as peace riots reportedly broke out and the rumble of approaching Russian guns added to the terror caused by round-the-clock Allied bombing which went on through the night.

18 Miles from Dresden

Moscow revealed that a swift Soviet breakthrough south of the capital had reached within 18 miles of Dresden, carrying the only remaining railroad out of Berlin to the Nazis' "national redoubt." The Russians, sweeping German resistance before them like an avalanche, were 54 miles from the Americans by Berlin's account.

With the rail line torn up by repeated American bombing and with Russian Stormoviks savagely machine gunning enemy transport within and below Berlin, the Germans admitted that the great Red army offensive was deciding the war. A Berlin broadcast said "the front is very near and the rumble of guns can be heard in the center of the city, but out of 4,000,000 people, 3,000,000 still are here."

Moscow communiques announced that Russian forces advancing on Berlin and Dresden on a 100-mile front, had seized eight major strongholds while wave after wave of Russian armor lapped at a dozen other fortified towns and villages within Berlin's shattered defense ring east of the city.

South and southeast of the blazing central front, Russian troops in Austria hammered within five miles of the key Austrian rail junction of Laa, and in northern Czechoslovakia drove to points two to seven miles of Opava (Troppau) and Moravska-Ostrava.

In the fiery battle before Berlin's eastern approaches—possibly the greatest armored struggle in history—the Germans said masses of Russian tanks, infantry and big guns still were pouring into the fray against Nazi soldiers who had not slept for 150 hours. The enemy claimed that 1,300 Red army tanks had been knocked out and said the Russians were 29 miles beyond the Oder at Kuestrin after five days of fighting.

Reds Capture Lebes

While Lebes on the Oder, five miles north of embattled Frankfurt, also fell, the Germans said the Russians were smashing toward Berlin's suburbs on a 32-mile arc and had reached Hangelsberg and the area of Werneuchen—seven miles east and seven and a half miles northeast of the capital.

Werneuchen, 16 miles southwest of captured Bad Freienwalde, is only 15 miles from the center of Berlin and an advance to this area meant that the Russians had outflanked the city's eastern limits. Hangelsberg on the east is 23 miles from mid-city.

South of Berlin, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army scored a massive breakthrough from the Neisse river at Muskau, in a double drive aimed at a junction with American forces and encircling Berlin.

From Muskau, the Rusians burst westward 15 miles and seized Spermberg on Berlin's own river Spree. At the same time, other spearheads surged across the Spree and captured Hoyerswerda, 31 miles northeast of Dresden.

The Germans said the Russians had driven another 15 miles west, shoving a wedge into Senftenberg, only 54 miles from the American First army on the Mulde river at Wurzen, east of Leipzig.

In their closest official approach to the Americans, Konev's troops raced 38 miles west from Rothenburg on the Oder, through Niesky and Klitten, and reached Kamentz, 18 miles northeast of Dresden.

The advance carried the Russians 20 miles beyond the Germans' shattered Spree river line, at the southern end of which Konev's troops also reached Bautzen, 27 miles by super-highway to the Saxon capital. Berlin reported fighting in Bautzen's barracks area.

This unchecked Soviet sweep bypassed Goerlitz and Lobau, key Dresden outguards on the railroad north of the Sudeten mountains, and the Russians were well inside the province of Saxony. At American headquarters, an official statement denied that Russian and American patrols already had linked in the giant Allied squeeze on the dwindling corridor south of Berlin which would cut Hitler's greater Reich in two.

Reds Enter Calau

Konev also was reported by Berlin to have swung north after tearing open the Spree river line and to have entered Calau, 16 miles west of shell-raked Cottbus, bypassed southeastern fortress of Berlin.

Heavy Russian attacks also were reported on the lower Oder between Greifenhagen and Stettin, where the Germans acknowledged that all defensive forces now had been withdrawn to the west bank of the Oder and that Stettin was in flames from a relentless artillery barrage.

Berlin commentator Max Krull said battles near Stettin "still are in their initial stage," and that Russians were now trying to extend bridgeheads across the Oder that would sever Berlin's communications with the great Baltic naval base.

As whole fleets of Red army fighters and dive-bombers lashed German defenses in the Berlin area, dipping their wings in salute to American fighters operating with heavy bombers, Krull referred to fighting before Berlin as a "double battle," with the Americans on the Elbe regrouping and the Russians "now fully developing their great drive."

Krull admitted deep penetration in Berlin's eastern forefront and said Zhukov's First White Russian army men "now are within the deeply-staggered German barrier positions at the periphery of the city.

Red Flags Reported Out in Capital;

London, April 20 (A. P.).—Moscow announced tonight the capture of Wriezen, twenty-four miles northeast of Berlin, and German radio commentators said that the Russians had driven on to Hangelsberg, only seven miles from the city's eastern limits. Hangelsberg lies at the center of the Hangelsberg Forest, a region north of Fuerstenwalde and, according to the Berlin radio, one of the main zones of today's fighting.

APR 21 1945

DAY

The Luxembourg radio said that gigantic peace demonstrations have taken place both in Berlin and in Munich, and that Red flags were waving in the German capital as the roar of Russian cannon drew ever closer.

The Soviet communique, confirming yesterday's German announcement of the fall of Wriezen, also announced the capture of Spremberg, fifteen miles west of the River Neisse and sixty-four miles southeast of Berlin; Seelow, twenty-four miles east of Berlin, and Bad Freienwalde, nineteen miles northeast of Berlin.

The communique from Moscow also said that Marshal Konev's First Ukrainian Army also reached Kamentz and Bautzen. Kamentz is only twenty miles from Dresden and Bautzen is twenty-six miles. The Americans have been reported but thirty miles west of Dresden.

DNB, the German official news agency, reported that the Russians had reached Hangelsberg. They were driving relentlessly forward with increasing masses of men, tanks and guns, and were already at the gates of the capital, the Germans declared. Max Krull, the DNB commentator added:

"The double battle for Berlin now has reached the decisive stage. The Americans on the Elbe are regrouping their formations and have received reinforcements. The Russians, on the other hand, have now fully developed their great drives on the Oder and the Neisse and are now within the deeply staggered German barrier position at the periphery of the capital, where they are engaged by German commandos and special formations."

The sprawling German capital was in a vise but eighty-two miles wide between the Russians in Hangelsberg and the United States Ninth Army on the Elbe.

Earlier today the German High Command announced that the Russians had smashed six miles deeper into Berlin's outer defenses to points thirteen and a half miles from the city limits to the northeast and fifteen miles to the east.

Virtually turning their backs on the American forces poised along the Elbe forty-five miles west of Berlin, the Germans threw against the Russians their central reserves — hitherto conserved for dire emergency. They were hurled into the "murderous battle at the gates of Berlin, the enemy radio declared, and went on to assert that the battle was now being fought inside the city's main defenses.

Southeast of the capital, meanwhile, the Reds pushed forward sixteen miles from Cottbus on the Spree, and broke into Calau, forty-three miles from Berlin and fifty-nine miles from the American First Army siege lines at Wurtzen. In this push the Russians had outflanked the Spree Wald, a region of lakes and forests, which had promised to be Berlin's most formidable defenses in that direction. At Calau Konev's troops were only four miles from Adolf Hitler's last north and south autobahn—the superhighway running from Berlin to Dresden and the mountain strongholds of Bohemia and Bavaria—and only twelve miles northeast of Finsterwalde, a junction on one of the last two main railways running south from Berlin.

Called Hell of Fire and Blood.

The Germans declared that Russian tanks were battling toward Strausberg, ten miles from Berlin, and had cracked the city's Spree River defenses on the southeast, where the fighting was described as "a hell of fire, steel and blood." In a broadcast dispatch DNB said: "The decisive battle of this war is being fought in an inferno of flames, searchlights and the most hellish noise ever heard."

The Germans have begun their counter-attacks, mainly south of Frankfurt and on both sides of Seelow and below Wriezen, the dispatch added. The Germans had previously reported Seelow and Wriezen—on an arc within twenty miles of Berlin—in Russian hands. German countermeasures in the Neisse sector are directed against the flank of a wedge in the Cottbus-Spreeberg-Waiswasser area, DNB said.

The Germans said that the greatest tank battle of all was in progress on the approaches to their capital and that 1,074 Russian tanks had been destroyed in the first three days of the battle, which began, they said, last Monday. Despite this boast, however, Berlin admitted that the Germans were falling back as the great battle was approaching its climax.

Still another great Russian drive is threatening the naval base of Stettin at the mouth of the Oder, the Germans said. Thousands of Russians were reported surging across the Oder below the port city under cover of artificial fog in an attack that may develop into an outflanking maneuver north of Berlin.

Marshal Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army meanwhile pushed to within ten miles of Laa, key railroad hub on the road to Prague, and was sweeping up the Morava valley in Czecho-Slovakia.

BRITISH CLOSING IN ON HAMBURG; FALL OF CITY NEAR

Doughboys Smash Toward Lake Constance, Guarding Mountain Redoubt.

54 MILES FROM REDS

Three American Armies Ready to Strike Along Elbe River.

PARIS, Saturday, April 21.—(AP) Three Allied armies raced as much as 23 miles south yesterday toward Hitler's redoubt in Bavaria, captured Nuernberg and reached within 30 miles of Lake Constance, western bulwark of the probable last-stand Nazi position deep in the Alps.

With the British battering a mile from the suburbs of Hamburg, Germany's second greatest city, and with peace riots reported raging in Berlin and Munich, Hitler passed silently through his 56th and blackest birthday, still worse was in store.

Nazis Near Depot

Supreme Headquarters declared flatly that the union of the western Allies and the Red armies would come in the next few days. Gen. Eisenhower declared in an order of the day that German armies of the west were "tottering on the threshold of defeat."

Thre great American armies, the U. S. Ninth, First and Third, were coiled and ready to strike along the Elbe where by German account the Americans and Russians were but 54 miles apart.

The Germans predicted that soon the Ninth Army would uncork a power punch at Berlin from its bridgehead on the Elbe 52 miles away, concerting its blows with those of the Russians now at the eastern gates of the German capital.

Allied bombers loosed destruction on German defenses northwest, west, and southwest of Berlin along the route the Allies from the west would have to take to reach the capital. They struck both by day and by night.

The fall of the Nazi party city of Nuernberg released elements of two armored and three infantry divisions for the southward push that was driving a steel wedge between the Germans' Alpine retreat and Czechoslovakia's arsenals. The Seventh Army was less than 70 miles from Munich and the French were but 65 miles from the Austrian frontier.

Germany not only was losing control of her great ports—Bremen was cut off from three sides with only roads to the North Sea open—but she was losing her grip on those of France which she long had blockaded.

Bordeaux Opened by French

The French announced that the big Atlantic port of Bordeaux now was open with all effective resistance wiped from both sides of the Gironde river approaches to the city.

The Southern German city of Stuttgart, with a population of 459,000, was all but surrounded after French troops entered Aich, ten miles to the south, and the Seventh army's Tenth Armored division, after a 25-mile dash, reached a point only 12 miles northeast of Aich.

From Supreme headquarters went a sensational broadcast to Russian and Polish slave laborers in the Reich to stay where they were for "in a few days the gap between the armies of liberation from the west and from the east will be closed."

A battle dispatch declared the Germans no longer manned a cohesive Western Front, that the enemy was broken into pockets for the victory assault and the last stand in the north also was under attack.

The British Second Army battled a mile from the suburbs of Germany's second city and greatest port of Hamburg, and sheared it off from Bremen with a 20-mile outflanking sweep against the latter river port.

The report of peace demonstrations came from the Allied-controlled Luxembourg radio, which said without confirmation elsewhere that red flags waved in the ruined capital of the Reich.

Eisenhower's statement that the Germans were at the brink of defeat in the West came in an order of the day in which he called the great Allied victory in the Ruhr a fitting prelude to the final drive to crush what is left of the German Army, once the terror of all Europe.

The Germans said the U. S. Ninth army, steadily bolstering its five-mile deep Elbe river bridgehead 52 miles southwest of Berlin, was about to join the Russians in the grand assault on the flaming capital.

British Reach Elbe

The British drawing up on the Ninth's west flank, now held 15 miles of the Elbe's west bank from positions 15 miles southeast of Hamburg.

But for the Germans, the most imminent peril was in the south, where Allied western forces already were closer to Munich and the last German defense positions in the south than were the Russians hammering up west of Vienna.

The French First army, driving 23 miles south beyond last reported positions, reached Rottweil, 65 miles from the Austrian frontier and 120 miles from the northern border of Italy. Here they were closest to Lake Constance, near whose shores Nazi propaganda minister Paul Joseph Goebbels reportedly has taken refuge. They also were but 14 miles from the headwaters of the Danube.

The U.S. Seventh army smashed all organized resistance in the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg on Hitler's 56th birthday.

Without waiting for the city of 431,000 to fall, armored columns of the Seventh joined the French in the encirclement of the big communications city of Stuttgart.

Stuttgart was deeply outflanked and the American and French lines last were but 28 miles apart after a 12-mile gain south by the Seventh army and a five-mile eastern push by the French.

An armored battle was roaring 21 miles southeast of Nuernberg at Neumarkt, where the Germans were putting up their first stern resistance on the approaches of the mountain redoubt 70 miles from Munich.

Slash into Czechoslovakia

On the eastern flank of the southward push, the U. S. Third Army was a mile or more inside Czechoslovakia and in a 16-mile armored dash captured Grafenwohr, 58 miles west of Pilsen.

The Third Army also attacked the outskirts of Chemnitz, communications city 33 miles from the Germans' Russian front base of Dresden.

A steel wedge was being driven between the Bavarian redoubt and the Czech munitions cities of Pilsen and Prague, the last reliance for weapons of war for the Germans. Railways leading out of the two cities to the redoubt were loaded with weapons and were under heavy aerial attack.

The best information here is that the redoubt already is well stocked with supplies. It is roughly 200 miles long and less than 100 miles wide, extending from the eastern end of Lake Constance across the Kitzbuehler Alp section of old Austria to east of Salzburg and Hitler's mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden.

In the center of the Western Front, the U. S. First army laid siege to Dessau, 52 miles southwest of Berlin, but the remainder of the action was in the character of a mop-up.

The Ninth Army captured Col. Gen. Joseph Harte, commander of the Fifth Panzer army, as he tried to escape from the Ruhr pocket.

The Americans also captured the staff of the pick-up German division which tried to break into the rear of the Ninth Army lines Thursday, but the commander himself, a Lt. Gen. Unrein, was last reported drunk in Lindhof and refusing to surrender.

Seventh Army Squelches All Resistance in Shrine City of Nazism.

BRITISH NEARING HAMBURG

Stuttgart, Another Famed German Town, Inclosed on Three Sides —French Make Big Gains.

LONG

Paris, April 20 (A. P.).—Seventh Army Americans captured Nuernberg today, squelching all organized resistance in that hotbed of Nazism, while British tanks plowed to within one mile of the suburbs of Hamburg, Europe's biggest port.

The French First Army stabbed fifty miles southeast of Strasbourg to Rottweil, fourteen miles from the Danube and thirty-three from Lake Constance, western limit of the Nazi national redoubt in southern Germany. The poilus were twenty-five miles north of Switzerland.

The whole Allied right flank including the French and the American Seventh and Third armies was clamping down on the mountainous Nazi lair, where Hitler was believed observing a gloomy fifty-sixth birthday anniversary.

DAY

Stuttgart—like Nuernberg a Nazi pilgrimage city—was inclosed on three sides.

The French advances ranged up to twenty-three miles and carried to within sixty-five of Austria and 120 of Italy's northern Alpine frontier.

The Seventh Army penetrated the wall during the night and closed into the center of the city for the kill. American and French troops moving in a wide circle around Stuttgart, another Nazi rally point, captured Reutlingen (35,000), eighteen miles to the south.

Third Army elements inside Czecho-Slovakia, within three miles of Asch, were a bare fifty-five miles from surging Russian lines and threatening the last important German arsenal in the Pilsen-Prague region, sixty-five to eighty-seven miles distant.

A spokesman at Third Army Headquarters, when informed today of reports published abroad that Third Army patrols might have met the Russians somewhere in the Dresden area, replied, "It's untrue."

"The decision is very near," said Hitler's propaganda chief, Paul Goebbels.

In happier years Hitler would have spoken to the Nazi faithful in Nuernberg on this, his fifty-sixth birthday anniversary. The Americans, however, had captured his vast stadium where he used to rouse thousands of listeners, and were beating down south of Nuernberg within seventy of Munich and 132 of Hitler's mountain home at Berchtesgaden.

Moreover, many of the eighteen major cities of Germany, which Hitler still fules were ablaze. Halle fell yesterday and it was the fortieth German city of more than 100,000 persons already captured.

"Battle Of Pockets"

For all practical purposes, organized German resistance on a well-defined front had ceased and the war had become a battle of pockets.

The main weight of General Eisenhower's nine-army command was hurled south against the national redoubt in the Bavarian Alps, and north against another redoubt inclosing the north German ports, Berlin and Denmark.

General Bradley's American 12th Army Group was halted voluntarily on the line of the Elbe and Mulde rivers, but the 6th Army Group of General Devers was pushing forward in the south and the 21th Army Group of Field Marshal Montgomery was imperiling all the North Sea ports.

Siege Intensified

Meanwhile, the siege of Bremen was intensified from three sides. The British were a mile from Harburg, west of the Elbe and a southern suburb of Hamburg, greatest port on the Continent and second ctiy of Germany. The U-boat base of Emden was within light artillery range. Luebeck was 35 miles away and Kiel was but 57.

The last Nazis, perhaps 20,000 of them including skilled fighters of the seventeenth SS division, were compressed into a square mile of the heart of Nuernberg, whose 431,000 persons made it the second largest Bavarian city. Already 18,000 have been captured and the half that remained were actually fighting a battle to the death—for the moment at least. Even civilians joined the battle with pickaxes, shovels and the like. The Rainbow (Forty-second), Thunderbird (Forty-fifth) and Third divisions closed in relentlessly.

In the meantime Gen. Bradley's armies stood in a great arc forty-five to fifty-two miles from Berlin along the Elbe, while the Russians shook the eastern ramparts of that largely destroyed capital.

Leipzig Cleared Up.

The Sixty-ninth Division of the First Army smashed the last die-hard Nazi pocket in captured Leipzig at 1 A. M. by blasting shells at point blank range into underground defenses around Napoleon's monument.

Self-propelled 105-millimeter guns and tanks blazed away at German positions until the garrison surrendered, ending all organized resistance in that largest city of Saxony. Many SS officers shot or poisoned themselves the end of the weird moonlight battle.

The American Twelfth Army group was halted voluntarily on the line of the Elbe and Mulde rivers, but the Sixth Army group of Gen. Jacob D. Devers was pushing forward in the south.

The Third Army fought into the outskirts of Chemnitz, Saxony rail and industrial center of 334,563. The First Army besieged Dessau (120,000), fifty-two miles southwest of Berlin.

The Ninth Army slightly enlarged its Elbe bridgehead five miles beyond Barby and, in the words of Gen. Eisenhower's communique, brought the situation under control on its northern flank, where 1,000 or so Nazis tried to break through Ninth Army lines to join the main German forces.

Already 400 of the Nazis who broke into the northern flank have been captured and numerous tanks and armored vehicles have been destroyed. The Ninth Army was erasing the others swiftly, while the rest of its front remained quiet.

Close Out Pocket.

The Ninth and First armies just about closed out the Harz Mountain pocket between Magdeburg and Leipzig, capturing 7,172 Germans. No more than eighty square miles of the granite cliff region remained in the hands of elements of four trapped German divisions.

The Twenty-first Army group of Field Marshal Montgomery was besieging or imperiling all the North Sea ports.

The siege of Bremen (342,306) was intensified from three sides. The British were a mile from Harburg (118,193), west of the Elbe, and a southern suburb of Hamburg (1,682,220), greatest port on the Continent and second city of Germany. The U-boat base of Emden was within light artillery range. Luebeck was thirty-five miles away and Kiel was but fifty-seven.

The Holland trap, where up to 200,000 Nazis were caught originally, had been split in two and the smaller section of northeast Holland was cleared save for one garrison of 1,700 Nazis on the Ems opposite Emden.

The Canadians were barely ten miles from Utrecht (163,559) and fifteen to twenty miles from the largest Dutch City of Amsterdam (793,526). They were in the floods between the Zuider Zee to the Utrecht area.

Czech Rail Lines Ripped

Throughout yesterday and last night, the last five railway lines through Czechoslovakia were battered again and again by Allied warplanes. The flyers were snipping the last escape routes into the southern redoubt.

Germany itself was cut in two Wednesday when General Patton's 3d Army entered Czechoslovakia. The only communications between north and south Germany were in a 200-mile stretch between the 3d and Russian armies.

Junction cities along the lines were bombed. Road centers along the Elbe and others northeast of Hamburg burned throughout the night.

Area Is Defined

Based on the best available information, the Bavarian redoubt roughly 200 miles long, betw the eastern end of Lake Constanc across the difficult Kitzbuehler Alps section of old Austria to east of Salzburg and Berchtesgaden. The redoubt is something less than 100 miles wide.

The Allies in the west are now closer to the redoubt than the Russians in their campaign from west of Vienna.

Garrison Captured

Third Army advances lacked the spectacular, although the Thunderbolt (11th Armored) Division advanced 16 miles southeast and captured Grafenwohr, 20 miles southeast of Bayreuth, and its garrison of 500. Another tank arm pushed to Kemnath, 15 southeast of Bayreuth.

Patton's infantry advanced up to 14 miles along a 35-mile front. The Texas and Oklahoma (90th) Division entered Selb, 35 miles west of the Czechoslovak watering place of Karlsbad. The diviison also entered Oberroslau, 16 miles south of Hof in the border area. The Yankee (26th) Division advanced 14 miles to Ramlesreuth, 10 miles southeast of Bayreuth, and entered Trostau. The Yankees took an airfield northeast of Kirchlainbach, seizing 400-pound bombs and other material.

One Force Veers East

At Hamburg three British armored divisions formed a siege arc to the south of the city, largely in ruins from intensive bombing.

The Desert Rats (7th Armored Division) led the Britons to within sight of Hamburg. The tanks clanked across marshy flood plains. One force veered east to Patterson, 10 miles southeast of Harburg.

The British 11th Armored Division held a line along which the enemy blew the quarter-mile long Lauenburg railroad bridge southwest of Hamburg after fleeing across the span. British flyers had good hunting—186 vehicles destroyed and 241 damaged.

Superhighway Cut

The Guards Armored Division sliced northwestward for 12 miles cutting the Bremen-Hamburg superhighway and capturing Weertzen

British took 5,000 captives yesterday. Wisselboevede fell.

The 52d Lowlanders, driving on Bremen from the east, captured many of the port's policemen hastily thrown into the front line, perhaps by Heinrich Himmler, of the Gestapo, during his reported visit Tuesday. Fighting continued at the edge of Delmenhorst, a manufacturing suburb of Bremen.

The Iron 3d Division took Huchting, 2 miles due west of Bremen and dominated the railroad to Oldenburg. The 53d Welsh Division drove through a village 11 miles east of the port.

CRISIS REPORTED NEAR IN GERMANY AS PEOPLE RIOT

LONDON, April 20—(AP) The Allied-controlled Luxembourg radio on Adolf Hitler's 56th birthday declared tonight that civil war was rife in Germany and that "gigantic peace demonstrations" had occurred in Berlin and Munich. The Germans themselves said a great crisis was at hand.

Quoting "Swedish reports" the broadcast said: "Berlin is burning with unrest. Civil war is rife. On buildings in the workers district red flags have appeared."

Reds Before Berlin

With the Russians attacking at the eastern gates of Berlin and a junction of American and Russian troops expected in a few days, the Luxembourg radio continued:

"In Munich police and Gestapo detachments have been sent urgently to quell the gigantic peace demonstrations. Church flags and crucifixes are paraded through the towns in odd processions of scores of thousands of peoples. The slogan 'we want peace' is shouted by these crowds and echoed all over the town. Mutiny [illegible] is complete."

A young German actress recently told American troops that 5,000 civilians whom the Nazis had tried to impress in the army, revolted and were captured and killed in Berlin.

Stockholm reports several days ago also told of rioting in imperiled Stuttgart, and front dispatches have told of a steady deterioriation of morale, both military and civilian, in the German ranks as the Americans and Russians close in on Berlin.

Hitler In Berlin

Where Hitler is and what he is doing was a mystery tonight. He had been reported in Berlin recently trying to buck up morale just before the Russians launched their big attack west of the Oder river.

Germany's observance of his birthday sounded like a requiem with the Berlin radio station pouring out black accounts of the German army's situation. Missing was the fanfare that characterized past birthday anniversaries. For the Germans, especially the Nazis, it was a day of reminiscence in which news announcers recalled past Nazi victories.

The only hope offered to Nazi followers was a DNB agency declaration: "There will never be a German nation without the aims which have been set by Hitler."

Few newspapers still are published in the dying Reich. These carried long accounts of Germany's rise under Hitler and the Nazi banners, and DNB said "this rise was possible in a world of peace until Roosevelt's agitations put a stop to all this and brought us into our present position."

Hitler himself was depicted by his loyal propagandists as a man who "tried hard to achieve European peace."

BOMBERS POUND FLAMING BERLIN

Nazi Capital in Death Throes after Continued Allied Attacks.

LONDON, April 20—(AP) Royal Air force bombers raided flaming Berlin tonight, following up daylight attacks by Flying Fortresses on the defense arc of the doomed capital and savage machine-gunning of its barricaded downtown district by hundreds of roof-skimming Russian Stormoviks.

Instead of the usual announcement that Berlin had been hit by Mosquito bombers, the Air Ministry said the city was attacked tonight by aircraft of the bomber command, indicating that heavy bombers as well as Mosquitos had made the mission.

7 Key Cities Hit

During the day more than 600 Fortresses slammed 1,600 tons of bombs on seven key outposts in the defense perimeter attack, which was in direct support of American and Russian armies engulfing the capital.

Nearly 1,000 fighter bombers of the U. S. Ninth air force combed a 300-mile area from Ludwigslust, 85 miles northwest of Berlin, to Pilsen, 182 south. With a loss of seven planes, they attacked 11 rail yards, and ten airfields, destroying 71 parked aircraft and shooting down five more in combat. They also shot up 1,087 locomotives and railroad cars.

A fuel depot at Annaburg, 50 miles south of the capital, and railway yards near Nuernberg were attacked by 280 medium bombers without loss.

All told, the fighter bombers flew 1,285 sorties.

Swarms of Stormoviks—the Russians' heavily armored, cannon firing fighters, joined in the Berlin raid.

Coordinated with the aerial bombardment was incessant shelling of the city by massed Soviet artillery.

The German radio went off the air after describing the scene as "murderous," Electric current failed and many of Berlin's sirens had to be operated by hand.

This was Berlin in its death throes, on the 56th birthday of Adolf Hitler.

Only One Bomber Lost

Out of the fleet of 600 which attacked Berlin and more than 200 Liberators which raided the Munich and Prague areas a single American bomber failed to return. Upwards of 800 Mustangs and Thunderbolts shot down seven Me-109s without loss to themselves.

The heavy American bombers aimed at snarling rail traffic in Berlin's defensive arc on the west, immobilizing German troop movements at a time they need to be rushed to reinforce pressure points. The German DNB agency said the American Ninth army was ready to strike from its positions on the Elbe river.

Flashes and the smoke of high explosive bombs could be seen by Ninth army spearheads as the Fortresses raked rail yards in Brandenburg, only 25 miles ahead of American troops, and in Treuenbrietzen, 24 miles southwest of the capital and about 35 miles east of Zerbst, which was held by U. S. infantry.

Lt. William Kelley of West Monroe, La., who flew his fortress at low level to "see the sights," said:

"Germany seemed to be a scene of complete destruction. We flew low over what formerly was one of the Reich's greatest centers of industry. A few weeks ago the sky would have been filled with flak. But the cities near Berlin are just heaps of rubble now. I couldn't see a sign of life."

U. S. PLANES BLAST NAZI RAIL LINES

London, April 20 (A. P.).—More than 2,000 American warplanes spread out over almost the entire length of unoccupied Germany today, bombing mainline railways ahead of Allied armies from the outskirts of Berlin southward to Prague and Munich.

The Eighth Air Force dispatched 800 heavy bombers and 800 fighters on a morning sweep and medium bombers and divebombers of the United States Ninth Air Force had completed more than 400 sorties before noon.

One formation of the American heavies hit objectives within fifteen miles of the Nazi capital, and others attacked points ranged in a thirty-five mile arc around the north, west and south sides of the city. About half the bombers concentrated on rail junctions, transformer stations and bridges on trunk lines linking Prague and Munich.

The day operations followed another double night raid on Berlin by R. A. F. Mosquitoes. The first wave of R. A. F. planes which hit the German capital took off from British bases. The second hopped off from advanced airfields on the continent.

The R. A. F. has opened up on the German holdout garrison at Dunkirk on the French channel coast. Mitchells attacked the fortress in two waves during the last hours of daylight yesterday, dropping scores of 500-pound bombs on gun positions, ammunition dumps and headquarters buildings. One explosion could be heard on the Dover coast, forty-five miles away.

Parliament Group To View Atrocities

London, April 20 (A. P.).—A delegation of ten Parliament members will leave for Germany by air today to view Nazi atrocities at the Buchenwald, Belsen and other concentration camps. The group, which includes one woman, will be conducted on a tour of the camps by members of Gen. Eisenhower's staff. Their findings probably will be recorded in a State paper.

Mrs. Mavis Tate, Conservative, the woman delegate, said the coming ordeal was extremely unpleasant but she added that it is essential for a woman to go.

Quiet Birthday For Hitler

London, April 20 (AP)—Adolph Hitler reached his 56th birthday today without the usual fanfare. Where Hitler was and what he was doing was a mystery.

The only hope held out to Nazi followers was the broadcast declaration by the German DNB news agency that "there will never be a German nation without the aims which have been set by Hitler."

The few newspapers still being published in the Reich carried long accounts saying that Germany gained wealth and power under Hitler and Nazism.

"This rise was possible in a world of peace until Roosevelt's agitations put a stop to all this and brought us into our present position," DNB said.

Hitler himself was depicted as a man who "tried hard to achieve European peace."

The Tokyo radio quoted Japanese General Sabada as saying that the whole Japanese nation congratulated Hitler today. Sabada declared Hitler faced a fearful crisis, but would never be defeated.

General Who Stuck With Captives Honored

London, April 20 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Victor Morven Fortune, who was freed from a German prison camp at Limburg by American troops last month, has been made a Knight Commander of the Bath "in recognition of invaluable service to British prisoners of war in Germany."

Fortune, who was captured in 1940 while commanding the 51st Highland Division in Flanders, thrice refused repatriation.

"I've been with my men from the start," he told the Germans, "and I'll go out with them—at their head or feet first."

Fisco Parley May G Data On Nazi Camps

London, April 20 (AP)—The possibility arose today that eyewitness reports by British Parliament members and United States representatives on conditions in the Nazi concentration camps might be presented directly to the world security conference at San Francisco to emphasize the need for a strong peace.

A House of Commons delegation left here today to inspect the sites and later General Eisenhower cabled Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, an invitation for two United States congressmen and twelve American editors to make personal inspections.

Diplomatic quarters in London, noting the wave of revulsion which followed the publication of details of the concentration camps, maintained that a joint report to the conference would provide a powerful argument for the need for unity to prevent recurrences.

Japanese Deny Manila Atrocities

London, April 20 (AP)—The Tokyo radio today quoted Sadao Iguchi, Government Information Bureau spokesman, as denying Allied charges of Japanese atrocities in Manila.

Iguchi dismissed the charges as "an American propaganda campaign" ignoring the fact that Spain has broken off relations with Japan in protest against attacks on Spanish civilians in the Philippines.

BOMBINGS KILLED 60,585 IN BRITAIN

London, April 20 (A. P.).—Britain's civilian casualties for the war are 60,585 dead or missing and 86,175 injured so severely as to require hospitalization, Home Secretary Herbert Morrison announced today. These figures may be virtually final, since Britons have not heard or seen a German bomb in three weeks.

Princess Marks Birthday Today

London, April 20 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth, heir presumptive to the British throne, will celebrate her nineteenth birthday tomorrow in the country with her father, mother and sister.

RAF Attacks Nazis At Dunkerque

London, April 20 (AP)—The RAF has opened up on the German holdout garrison at Dunkerque on the French Channel coast.

Mitchells attacked the fortress in two waves during the last hours of daylight yesterday, dropping scores of 500-pound bombs on gun positions, ammunition dumps and headquarters buildings. One explosion could be heard on the Dover coast, 45 miles away.

The commander of the Canadian troops opposing the garrison radioed congratulations to the airmen for a "superb job."

Luetzow, Last Battleship Left To Germans, Is Sunk

London, April 20 (AP)—The German navy has lost its last pocket battleship, the Luetzow, the Air Ministry announced tonight, and authoritative reports were received of other crippling naval losses.

These reports said the Russians were believed to have seized the 26,000-ton battleship Gneisenau and the 10,000-ton heavy cruiser Seydlitz at unidentified Baltic ports, while Stockholm dispatches said that what was left of the German navy fled to refuge at Copenhagen.

The Air Ministry said the Luetzow is out of action, lying on the bottom in shallow water at Swinemuende on the Baltic coast, her underwater plating buckled by an RAF bomb.

Two Cruisers Left

As remnants of her once sizable fleet Germany now has only the 8-inch gun cruiser Prenz Eugen and the light cruiser Neurnberg.

The Stockholm dispatches said the Prinz Eugen, six destroyers, a number of submarines and at least 26 other fleet units had just reached Copenhagen, and that this port would become the base for what is left of the Nazis' Baltic fleet.

The Luetzow is the fourth of seven German capital ships knocked out of action by the RAF alone. In this case, the Air Min- breached Berlin's inner defense ring and was only 7 miles from the blazing German capital.

The Russians were at the "very gates" of Berlin, one German report said, and a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman declared the yard-by-yard Russian advance "in a hell of fire, steel and blood" was deciding the war. Peace riots were reported in the capital.

Moscow's communiqué said that Russian forces, advancing on Berlin and Dresden on a 100-mile front, had seized eight major strongholds while wave after wave of Russian armor lapped at a dozen other fortified towns and villages within Berlin's shattered defense ring east of the city.

Nazis Sleepless 150 Hours

Before the capital's eastern approaches, the German defenders of the American and British bombed city still were fighting after 150 hours without sleep.

The Germans said that masses of Russian tanks, infantry and big guns still were pouring in the battle, possibly the greatest tory, claimed that 1,300 Red Army tanks had been destroyed, and disclosed that the Red Army was 29 miles beyond the Oder River after five days of fighting.

A Berlin broadcast said that "the front is very near and the rumble of guns can be heard in the center

BRITISH LABOR PARTY OPENS WAR ON HUNGER

LONDON, April 20 — (AP) The British labor party, chafing under restraints imposed by its participation in the wartime coalition government, demanded today a future foreign policy to develop a new United Nations war "on hunger, ignorance and want."

Simultaneously it called for overhaul of Britain's economic system, a great program of modernization and reequipment of factories, homes, schools and social services.

The double objective for Britain's course at home and abroad was laid down in a "declaration of policy" by the party's executive committee for submission to the annual conference next month as a prelude to the first general election in ten years.

"Now that victory has been won, at so great a cost of life and material destruction, we must make sure that Germany and Japan are deprived of all power ever to make war again," the committee said.

Obliged To View Atrocity Movies

London, April 20 (AP)—The Daily Mirror reported today that moviegoers, unable to stomach atrocity newsreels, tried to leave a Leicester Square theater but were turned back by British and Allied soldiers who told them to return and see what other people had to endure.

"People walked out from cinemas all over the country," the Mirror said, "and in many places there were soldiers to tell them to go back and face it."

"It's the only way to break the namby-pamby attitude toward Germans," the paper quoted a soldier as saying. "Many people don't believe such things could be. These films are proof. It is everybody's duty to know."

The Daily Express announced that it would display atrocity pictures in its reading rooms throughout Britain and declared:

"The duty is imposed on citizens everywhere to investigate for themselves the overwhelming mass of evidence that has been accumulated with the advance of Allied armies."

Rocket Is Faster Than Sound

British Admiralty Invention Is Used by U. S. in Raids on Nazi E-boat Pens.

London, April 20 (A. P.).—A new rocket-propelled power bomb which is faster than sound was announced today. A joint communique by the United States Strategic Air Forces and the British Admiralty said:

"Rocket-propelled bombs, conceived by the Admiralty, were used by B-17 Flying Fortresses of the United States Eighth Air Force in their attacks against E-boat pens at Ijmuiden, Holland, February 10 and March 14. The bomb was designed to penetrate thick layers of concrete and it is known that several hit and pierced the massive roofs of the pens, and are believed to have caused considerable damage to facilities inside."

Rocket propulsion gives the bomb a much greater speed than would be attained by gravity alone. The speed of sound is 1,100 feet a second at sea level.

The bomb is set to explode after deep penetration.

Col. Benjamin Kelsey of Waterbury, Conn., headed a special section of engineering experts who tested the new bomb during Eighth Air Force operations. When Col. Kelsey returned to the United States recently, he was succeeded by his deputy, Col. Cass S. Hough of Plymouth, Mich., who participated in the development of several other aerial weapons.

The chief test pilot was Col. Algene Key of Meridian, Miss., former combat flyer, who piloted the famous Liberator Ole Miss on many tough missions over Germany.

New Rocket Faster Than Sound

London, April 20 (AP)—Secret work by American Air Force engineers has developed a new type of high-powered rocket bomb conceived by the British Navy for use against German submarine and E-boat pens, it was disclosed today.

The new weapon—hurled from bombers and traveling at a speed faster than sound, and able to penetrate thick layers of concrete—was adapted for aerial warfare by a special section of engineers, all combat veterans of the United States 8th Air Force.

On February 10 and on March 14, these rocket-propelled bombs were used by Flying Fortresses of the 8th Air Force in attacks on the German E-boat pens at Ijmuiden, Holland. Concrete walls 20 feet thick were reported penetrated.

The 8th Air Force engineering team members have been working together as an air force "brain trust" for three years.

During the past year alone they have successfully handled nearly 3,000 projects, in addition to providing expert advice for combat crews.

The development of this rocket-propulsion bomb for use by aircraft was under the guidance of Col. Benjamin Kelsey, of Waterbury, Conn., who headed the American counterpart of Britain's "Back Room Boys."

Both he and his successor, Col. Cass S. Hough, of Plymouth, Mich., were active in the many perilous experiments that had to be tried out before the bomb was perfected for aerial use.

The chief test pilot in these experiments was Col. Algene Key, of Meridan, Miss.

HITLER IS SILENT ON 56TH BIRTHDAY

LONDON, April 20—(AP) Adolf Hitler remained silent on this, his 56th and darkest, birthday, as Allied broadcasts declared his Reich was torn by civil war with "gigantic peace demonstrations" in Berlin and Munich.

The Luxembourg radio said the people of Berlin shouted for peace and waved red flags as the Russians stormed the Eastern gates but Hitler himself kept silent in an atmosphere that left the world to wonder where he is.

The once-mighty Fuehrer had boasted that he would fight until 15 minutes past midnight. For him it is now 14 minutes past midnight and the best guess in London was that he had fled—if still alive—to the Bavarian Alps.

The Stars and Stripes floated over Nuernberg where, before massed and heiling Nazis, Hitler used to shout challenges to the world that made all tremble.

German radio stations, so hard pressed to keep out of the path of Allied armies and bombers that there were frequent lapses in their programs, delivered stereotyped eulogies that were as funereal as obituaries.

Luxembourg radio, using powerful transmitters to reach every German home, said Hitler had telephoned from Torgau and fired the gauleiter of the American-captured city of Halle.

Eloquent testimony that Hitler no longer counts as the head of the German state was the lack of congratulatory telegrams from neutral countries, which even last year felt that protocol required some kind of greeting or other.

His ally, Japan, congratulated Hitler in a left-handed manner. Tokyo radio quoted a Japanese general by the name of Sabada as extending greetings to Hitler, but apparently the Emperor and Premier Suzuki did not bother.

The only birthday telegram read on German radio was a telegram from Dr Emil Hacha, Nazi puppet leader of Slovakia, but there was no indication where Hacha was since he had to pull out ahead of the Russians some time ago.

EISENHOWER SAYS EOE IS ON LAST LEGS

German Armies In West Held On 'Threshold Of Defeat'

Paris, April 20 (AP) — Hitler's armies in the west are "now tottering on the threshold of defeat," Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared tonight in an order of the day calling the Allied victory in the Ruhr a fitting prelude to the final drive against Germany's remnants.

The supreme Allied command disclosed that 21 German divisions had been eliminated by the Allies, who captured more than 317,000 prisoners, including 24 generals, in achieving "complete success" in the Ruhr battle now at its end.

"Stay Where You Are"

At about the same time Eisenhower issued his special order, supreme headquarters broadcast a message to Russian and Polish nationals in the area between the Anglo - American and Russian armies telling them to "stay where you are" for "in a few days the gap between the armies of liberation from the west and from the east will be closed."

Displaced nationals were advised to suppress pillaging and looting because it "only delays the Allied advance," and to elect leaders.

"When the Allied armies reach you they will arrange for your feeding and housing," the message said. "Leaders of groups must therefore report immediately to Allied authorities."

Text Of The Order

The text of Eisenhower's order: "The battle of the Ruhr has ended with complete success. Following hard upon the final destruction of German forces west of the Rhine, the 21st Army Group thrust powerfully across that river with the United States 9th Army under its command.

"Simultaneously, rapid drives across the Rhine and from the Remagen bridgehead by the 12th and 6th Army groups provided the southern arm of a great double envelopment which completely encircled the entire German Army Group 'B' and two corps of Army Group 'H' whose mobility was rendered almost zero by our magnificent and tireless air forces.

317,000 Captured

"Thereafter in the pocket thus created the 12th Army Group eliminated 21 enemy divisions. Over 317,000 prisoners of war were captured including 24 generals and one admiral. Many tanks and more than 750 guns were destroyed or taken. The booty is immense and still being counted. The enemy's total losses in killed and wounded will never be accurately known.

"The rapidity and determination with which this brilliant action was executed tore asunder the divisions of Field Marshal Model and enabled all army groups without pause to continue their drive eastward into the heart of Germany.

"This victory of Allied arms is a fitting prelude to the final battles to crush the ragged remnants of Hitler's armies of the west now tottering on the threshold of defeat."

FRENCH GENERAL IS CONDEMNED TO DIE FOR TREASON

PARIS, April 20. — (AP) Gen. Henri Fernand Dentz, who commanded French troops which resisted the British occupation of Syria in 1941, was condemned to death for treason today.

William C. Bullitt, French army officer and former American ambassador to France, offered at the last minute to appear as a witness in behalf of Dentz but the general declined the offer with thanks.

In his final speech in which he fought for his life, the 63-year-old general said that in opposing the British attack on Syria, he had merely followed orders and that he had always acted in what he considered the best interests of France.

"I have wished for this trial for so long," he said. "It has been my first opportunity to tell the whole story."

Dentz said he had taken the job as high commissioner of Syria "at a most difficult moment knowing it would be a hard task." He said that contrary to the prosecution's charges that he had exceeded the Vichy government's pro-German instructions, he had in reality followed orders in general but had ignored many points so as to help the Germans as little as possible.

"If I had declined to accept the situation, one of my subordinates would have taken my place," the general said. "Therefore I accepted responsibility. I have a clear conscience that I did all I could to serve the interests of France."

As Dentz was testifying, word arrived from Bullitt, now military governor at Baden Baden, whom the general had summoned as a witness. Bullitt in a message said that he received the summons late, but was leaving tonight for Paris.

The court asked Dentz whether he wanted a postponement.

The general, whose life was moving swiftly into the hands of the jurors, said, "no, I dispense with this evidence but I express my thanks to Commander Bullitt for having been willing to come here to testify for me."

Among the documents introduced in Dentz's defense was one purported to be a secret treaty signed by the Vichy government with Germany on May 5, 1941.

In the document, Vichy accorded the Germans free transit through

Syria and air bases and supplies there. The purported treaty also placed Dakar and Bizerte at the disposal of the Germans and committed Vichy to supply them with all available information on British military positions and activities in the Middle East.

A clash occurred in the trial when defense counsel charged Andre Mornet, 75-year-old prosecutor, of having himself served in the Vichy regime.

"I served France, not Petain," Mornet retorted.

Russ Lines On SHAEF Map For First Time

Paris, April 20 (AP)—Blue arrows marking the Russian offensive showed up today for the first time on the great operational wall map at supreme headquarters.

The blue arrows, showing the Red Army offensive moving into the extreme eastern strip of the map beyond Berlin, were used because since D-Day the Allies have marked their own positions in red.

The positions of the Russians were obtained from Moscow's communiqué.

FRENCH WIN BATTLE TO OPEN BORDEAUX PORT

PARIS, April 20.—(AP) A special French communique announced tonight that Pointe de Grave had been finally cleared except for isolated pockets and that the great French port of Bordeaux now was open.

The tricolor was hoisted at 1 p. m. today on a lighthouse at the tip of the peninsula jutting into the Glornde estuary.

First Canadian Tug Train Reaches France

Paris, April 20 (AP) — The first Canadian tugboats placed at the disposal of France to help in the transportation of food arrived in Paris today towing a seven-barge train christened "President Roosevelt."

Other Canadian tugs pulling barges laden with food from Normandy are en route on the Seine. The barge trains bear the names "Cross of Lorraine," "Winston Churchill," and "Joseph Stalin."

Massacre Of 20,000 Blocked, Prisoners Say

Paris, April 20 (AP)—Frenchmen liberated from the horror camp at Buchenwald said today that prisoners themselves prevented a massacre of 20,000 survivors of the camp's rigors. They gave this account:

As American armored forces approached the camp the commander there received an order to put all the remaining inmates to death. He was preparing to carry out the order when he received a note from a group of the prisoners, which stated: "If you spare the lives of the prisoners of Buchenwald, we will testify that you have been a model camp director." The general flushed with pleasure, slipped the note into his pocket and called off the plans for the massacre.

CAPTIVES MADE INTO CANNIBALS

SS Men And Women Starved, Degraded, Killed Thousands

As Pathfinders [illegible] are turned back by soldiers Page 2

By WILLIAM FRYE

Belsen, Germany, April 20 (AP)—The dead were getting a burial today at this fearsome concentation camp.

No coffins or flowers at this funeral. No tears or sympathy, no music.

The naked corpses were hauled on trucks and dumped into a pit. The pallbearers were SS (Elite Guard) men and women, now Allied prisoners.

The great eyes of the living dead were just animal lights in skulls of famine.

Most Starving To Death

Some were dying of typhus, some of typhoid, some of tuberculosis, but most were just dying of starvation.

Tragically, there is still hope inside these still-breathing cadavers. As long as eyes can stare from the bodies scattered everywhere on the floors and on the ground, there is hope.

But there is no hope. They are living, but they cannot live. No food, no care can save them. Ahead of them is nothing but that pit with the bulldozer waiting to cover them with earth.

Countless thousands—some say 30,000, some say more—died horrible deaths before the British 2d Army reached this camp on the Aller River, southeast of Bremen, Sunday.

Most Were Naked

The dead—hundreds and thousands—lay in ditches and against walls of drab huts and piled in heaps, each one in a grotesque attitude in a grotesque mound. Some were clothed, but most were naked.

The living still walked and talked and stared curiously, unemotionally at visitors, sniped cigarette butts tossed from a passing army car, went to the cookhouse for food and knelt around fires. There were supposed to be 29,000 of them alive when the British arrived.

I saw there was no sex, no shame, no modesty, no self-respect among these people—driven in a few months backward 1,000,000 years.

Children In Hell

I saw children walking about in this hell. The first I saw I'll never rub out of my mind. A boy, perhaps 7, and his sister, maybe 5.

The knobs of their joints bulging through their thin clothes, faces like mummies, imbecilely peaking up with small pails toward a water truck, their great fierce eyes intent on a chance to rush in and steal pailfulls of water.

Obviously they were unable to comprehend something being freely given. It was agony to watch their stealthy approach, keeping always behind a British soldier who was there helping all who came.

I saw the living and dead lying beside each other in filthy huts—long, barracks-like buildings—the living no more able to rise than the dead.

Can't Retain Food

A major who took me there, Major J. P. Fox, of Dublin, Ireland, commander of a field hygienic unit, told me "nothing can help these poor wretches. We can't even feed them. They are too far gone to retain any food. They are dying and there is nothing we can do about it."

The major took me to the c house and introduced me Polish woman who for years had been an inmate man prisons and concer camps.

She had been in Belse months. Previously she h confined even longer in famous Auschwitz in Poland and for 27 months in prison—in the relative comfort of prison—in Berlin.

A Woman's Story

This is what she told me:

Josef Kramer, SS commander of Belsen now under close arrest, previously commanded Auschwitz.

At Belsen, Kramer's predecessor, also of the SS, was kind and considerate—prisoners had enough to eat and proper medical care, and were treated as human beings. The vileness began with Kramer's arrival five months ago.

Habit

He instituted starvation as punishment, kept it up as a habit.

I heard that occasionally men starving in Belsen watched the dying with hunger, and as soon as they were dead cut out their hearts, livers and kidneys and devoured them to sustain their own vanishing lives.

I heard from the Polish woman's lips that one man seized in cannibalism by the SS was forced to kneel publicly, holding in his teeth the ear of a corpse the entire day.

I heard that SS women tied one living and one dead together, burned both on a smolder of scrap leather and wood, and boots, while linking a dance around the pyre.

Nazis Starve Army Prisoners

Canadians Find 100 German Soldier Felons None of Whom Weighs 100 Pounds.

By DOUGLAS AMARON.
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

With the Canadians in Germany, April 20 (A. P.).—Behind the stone walls of the Westerwegen concentration camp lies one part of the explanation of Germany's continued resistance. Here are the living shadows of 100 German soldiers who failed their army. They have been dying at the rate of one a day since the First Canadian Army overran the camp a week ago.

Westerwegen, just south of the Kusten Canal, in northwest Germany, was one of the many concentration camps where the Germans imprisoned soldiers for military, civil and political offenses. There were 1,000 soldier-prisoners in the camp when the Canadians first threatened it. Police guards evacuated all who were still able to walk, leaving only the 100 worst hospital cases and a handful of fitter men employed on camp duties.

None Weighed 100 Pounds.

I walked through the hospital ward yesterday. Men so weak from starvation that they could scarcely move from their iron beds showed their bruised and sore-infested bodies. None weighed as much as 100 pounds. Their skin stretched taut over sunken bellies and over bones that passed for limbs. Their eyes were sockets in hairless skulls.

The story comes from Germans and must be accepted with reserve, but the evidence was there and I believe it. Prisoners in this camp had been convicted of desertion, theft, sexual offenses or the political crime of defeatism or speaking against the Government. They lived and died on a diet of black bread, watered soup and an occasional potato. They worked long hours, digging peat from surrounding bogs or making aircraft parts in a nearby factory.

They were kicked brutally when they arrived, and received one slice of bread as their first day's meal. Their heads were shaved and they received rags for clothing.

Collapsed of Hunger.

Men died on the moor, collapsing from hunger. Guards pummeled them with rubber hoses and whips and received a five-mark bonus each time they broke a hose.

Some of the men escaped, but 98 per cent of these were recaptured. They were then beaten and placed on a diet of bread and water for four weeks. Guards received fifty marks and three days' leave for bringing one back, dead or alive.

The prisoners were confined to certain areas when they worked and were shot if they moved from them. Sometimes guards would throw a shovel outside the restricted area and order a soldier to pick it up. They laughed as the prisoner obeyed and was shot by another guard for crossing into a forbidden area.

Since 1940, some 600 men have died in this camp. The camp doctor, an Austrian political prisoner, said that malnutrition was responsible in the majority of cases, but in the records death was always attributed to pneumonia or some other cause.

Nazis' Prisoners Die By Roasting

Thekla, Germany, April 20 (AP)—The Gestapo, SS troops and "Hitler Youths" showered 220 political prisoners with flaming acetone, roasting and shooting them to death in the concentration camp barracks just a few hours before American troops captured this Leipzig suburb.

The charred bodies, sprawled in the postures of agony, still lay in the barracks ruins or caught on the sharp spikes of the barbed-wire inclosing the camp, on which they had thrown themselves maddened with pain. Many of them had been shot there by their German guards.

Only 80 Survive

Of 324 Polish, Russian, Czech, Yugoslav, French and Italian political prisoners in the barracks only about 80 survived. They were led to safety by a Czech barber among them who managed to short circuit the electrically charged barbed-wire inclosure.

Scores of Russian and Polish men and women, weeping bitterly, walked about the barracks ruins today searching for the bodies of relatives and friends.

This atrocity—one of a series of mass killings of political prisoners by the SS and Gestapo agents as the day of Allied retribution draws nearer—took place in Plant No. 3 of the Erla Works which makes Messerschmitt airplane parts.

Need Of Large Occupation Army Seen

By J. W. Gallagher

Magdeburg, Germany, April 20 (AP)—A far greater army of occupation may be necessary in Germany than originally planned, in view of problems experienced to date.

Even with the vast number of Allied troops now in Germany, the job of administering the territory already overrun is proving much more difficult than anticipated.

Germany now is a festering sore in the heart of Europe, housing a mass of misery unheard of in modern history. Twelve years of Nazism and brutality are bearing a cancerous fruit which can mean nothing but years of trouble ahead.

Hitler Prepares

No one knows this better than Hitler, and he has the organization ready to help make the trouble—the newly-formed Werewolves.

[One reason why a larger army of occupation may be needed is suggested by a statement made yesterday by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, 12th Army Group commander.

["In my opinion," he said, "when the (the enemy) did not quit last fall, after we had proved to him that he was licked, it was clear that we would not be through until we had occupied all of Germany."]

Not Enough Allied Teams

There are not nearly enough military government teams at hand. Civil law broke down in most towns when the Nazis departed, for they held all key jobs. The Germans left behind often try to solve the problem of law and order as did their predecessors—by force—unless Allied troops are at hand to keep them in hand.

And troops cannot be spared for this job. For instance, one combat division overran 150 small towns in one day. If it had left four men in each town to preserve order, a battalion of fighting men would have been tied up. Besides, few doughboys speak German, Russian or Polish—virtually a prerequisite if administration problems are to be handled intelligently.

Teams Usually Late

Finding it impossible to do everything, the combat troops have done their best and moved on. It may be days later before military government teams arrive.

Much difficulty has been experienced because of the lack of sufficient machinery to deal effectively with the millions of released slave laborers and prisoners of war. There is widespread looting, not only by the slave laborers, but also by Germans trying to get their hands on extra food and clothing for the dark days ahead.

The aim has been to try to keep these millions in camps until they can be dealt with properly. But there is not enough food to feed them. So they forage—and wander up and down the highways.

Dying Everywhere

Life is worth nothing. People die on the road, in barns, in the fields, in jails, abandoned warehouses, everywhere. No one bothers to bury them. No one knows who they are.

Every type of disease, particularly typhus, is being carried by these nomads.

All wanderers by no means are men. There are thousands of women, mostly girls brought into Germany as workers. They usually form into gangs and plunder so they can eat.

Freed Allies Tell Of Running Gantlet Of Nazis' Bayonets

An RCAF Fighter Field in Germany, April 20 (AP)—Grim details of how American, British and Canadian war prisoners were made to run a gantlet of slashing German bayonets were told today by liberated Canadian airmen who survived the torture.

What the prisoners referred to as the "Stettin jaunt" occurred last July, said Warrant Officer Joseph Pamburn, Canadian navigator from St. Boniface, Manitoba, when 800 Canadian and British and 1,000 American prisoners were made to run 2 miles from a train to a new camp.

Their route was lined with German Marines who cut and jabbed at them with bayonets and pounded them with rifle butts, all the while yelling to them to escape—while other Germans waited to shoot them down with tommy guns if they tried.

No Food For 24 Hours

The prisoners were moved from Stalag Luft 6 in East Prussia because of the Russian advances. They were taken to Memel by train, then by boat to Schwinemuende.

When they left the boat, Pamburn said, "we were loaded into freight cars, 24 men to a car."

"We were on the train 24 hours, during which we had no food," he added.

Finally removed from the train, they stood for an hour in the blazing July sun, the Canadian continued. Then young German Marine guards lined their flanks with fixed bayonets and an officer yelled "quick march!"

Dogs Cause Trouble

"As we started running, or stumbling because of our packs, the Marines closed in on us," Pamburn said.

"They slashed at our backs, shoulders and groins. If a man stumbled or fell he would get bayoneted or be clubbed by rifles. The Marines had German police dogs with them and the dogs would rush in at a fallen man, biting his arms and legs.

"Everything began to swim before my eyes. I stumbled and a Marine clubbed me with a rifle butt. I passed out. When I came to a Marine was standing over me with a bayonet. I asked him why they were doing this. He said, 'Your flyers bombed our wives and children.'"

AMERICAN TROOPS SEIZE COMMANDER OF FIFTH PANZERS

Gen. Harte Captured in Ruhr —30 Trainloads of Nazi Documents Found

United States Ninth Army on the Elbe, Germany, April 20 (A. P.).—Col.-Gen. Joseph Harte, commander of the German Fifth Panzer Army, has been captured in the Ruhr while trying to slip through American lines, the Ninth Army announced late today.

The commander of the lost army was taken by the Eagle's Claw (Seventeenth Airborne) Division, commanded by Major-Gen. William M. Miley.

The Fifth Panzer and Germany Fifteenth armies were utterly destroyed in the great Ruhr trap which was stamped out Wednesday, Gen. Omar Bradley said yesterday that 316,930 prisoners had been counted and that more were being processed. Previously, the Fifth Panzer Army had been buffeted severely in the Ardennes in December when the Germans made an abortive attempt to capture Liege and Antwerp.

The Ninth Army also captured the entire staff except the commander of the Von Clausewitz division, which attacked its northern flank yesterday. Remnants of the attacking force were being mopped up. Lieut.-Gen. Unrein, commander of the Von Clausewitz division, last was reported in Linghof refusing to surrender.

Thirty trainloads of Nazi Government documents were seized in a cave in the Harz Mountains pockets southwest of Berlin. Resistance in the Harz appeared nearing its end.

Germans of the Potsdam division fighting in the Harz trap killed American wounded on the battlefield, an official report said.

Legless Pilot Wants New Try At Hun

By Don Whitehead

Colditz, Germany, April 20 (AP)—Gay, debonair Wing Commander Douglas Bader, famed legless pilot of the RAF who was shot down over France three and a half years ago, wants most of all to "get another squirt at the bloody Hun," now that he is free from German internment.

"Just give me one more shot at those goons," begged the 35-year-old fighter pilot who became one of Britain's great aces with two artificial legs. "I'll never be satisfied until I do."

Hatred Increases

The laughing, dark-haired hero built up during his prison life an abiding hatred of the Germans and a burning thirst for revenge for indignities heaped on him since he was captured in August, 1941, after his plane collided with another.

He was one of a thousand or so liberated Monday from the great, gray Colditz prison, where the Nazis sent Allied captives who would not submit to imprisonment elsewhere. These prisoners had been classed as special enemies of the fatherland, and most attempted to escape from time to time.

Bagged 25 Planes

Bader had 25 planes to his credit when his plane was damaged over Lille.

"I had to jettison one of my legs," he said, laughing as if it were a great joke on himself. "I fell like a bloody fool parachuting down with only one leg."

The Germans found his leg and it was fixed so that he could wear it. None of the Nazis thought the legless flyer would try to escape from the French hospital in which he was confined. But one night he tried, sliding down a rope of tied bedsheets. He was caught. For punishment, "those goons" for two weeks wouldn't give him the new leg the RAF had dropped for him when his colleagues learned of his loss.

Tried To Escape

"It was a magnificent example of how the German mind works," he chuckled. "They wouldn't give me my legs. Two goons carried me while another carried my legs and an officer marched along in front."

Four more times Bader tried to escape. He failed.

Annoyed, the Germans sent him to Colditz prison two years ago. Even there Bader had a try at escaping. Friends tried to construct a glider to be launched from the roof. But the Germans tumbled to it.

EISENHOWER CONFERS WITH MONTGOMERY

SOMEWHERE IN GERMANY, April 20 (AP) Gen. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery met today on a captured Luftwaffe airdrome a few miles from the front.

Fighter squadron Spitfires swept the skies for enemy aircraft as the two talked almost an hour in the Supreme Commander's private plane.

Outside British, Canadian and American soldiers, liberated this week from a German concentration camp south of Hamburg, stood around the plane waiting the chance glimpses of the two Allied c

GERMANS TO BURY MURDERED SLAVES

Gardelegen, April 20 (A. P.).—By decree of United States military authorities, the citizens of Gardelegen were assigned today to the gruesome task of burying 1,100 slave laborers and political prisoners who were burned to death by the Nazis in a barn here a few nights ago just before American troops entered the town.

The decree specified that individual graves, six feet long, six feet deep and three feet wide must be dug for each of the victims, and said the work would be done "at the points of bayonets if necessary."

This method was chosen for impressing upon the people of Gardelegen the full extent of the atrocity perpetrated in their midst by the Nazis.

JERSEY MEN FREED BY YANKS IN REICH

With the Americans Outside Nuernberg, Germany, April 20 (A.P.).—Some 200 American prisoners of war, many of them Eighth Air Force men who had been shot down over the Reich, were liberated on Tuesday when Gen. Patch's Seventh Army attacking Nuernberg captured the Langwasser prison camp. Some of the prisoners had been transferred from the gigantic Stalag camp at Sagan, eighty miles northeast of Dresden, which was overrun by the Red Army.

Among those liberated were Lieut. Bernard Bernheim of 775 Stuyvesant avenue, Irvington, N. J.; Lieut. Patrick Ward of Rochester, N. Y., and Lieut. Louis Zaris of 1120 Pontiac avenue, Atlantic City, N.J.

Among 500 Americans liberated by the Eighty-ninth Infantry Division yesterday were Byron Nelson of Fords, N. J.; Paul Magarelli of 132 Adams street, Hoboken, and Charles Happ of Trenton. Among the first to see the prisoners was Capt. Davis Galloway of Mountain Lakes, N. J., who said: "One fellow screamed, 'There are some American G. I.'s.' Then the whole bunch crowded around, crying and kissing us."

The Americans said they had lost from fifty to seventy-five pounds each because they were overworked and underfed, and many told of being forced to walk 150 miles from the St. Vith area in four days, with nothing to eat or drink. All these had been captured in the Ardennes breakthrough.

The Eighty-ninth also liberated 1,100 British, 1,100 French, 1,500 Russian, 300 Serb and 250 Slavic prisoners yesterday.

PATTON TROOPS BITTER AT NAZIS

Treatment of American Prisoners Resented.

United States Third Army, Germany, April 20 (A. P.).—Third Army troops are becoming increasingly bitter over German treatment of American prisoners of war. Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's divisions already have liberated several camps containing thousands of Americans from every State. The situation was about the same in every prison. The Americans had been forced to walk 100 more miles to camps and were assigned to filthy quarters which were unheated in cold weather. They were fed barely enough to keep alive.

In some cases men were forced to do heavy work, although weak from starvation. Some fainted on jobs. In at least one prison camp Americans told of beatings received from German guards wielding rifle butts.

Army censors have been wary of passing stories about conditions in these camps. Everything indicating severe cruelty has been stopped until recently. The censors have contended that unfounded exaggerations might be printed, provoking the Germans to retaliate. They also contended that undue anxiety would be created among prisoners' relatives.

The policy now has been relaxed. Correspondents may report what they see, but still cannot write of what liberated Americans tell them, if severe cruelty is involved. Liberated troops seen in several camps unanimously said that the whole truth should be told.

Maj.-Gen. Eddy, Ill, Coming Home

With the United States Third Army, April 20 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Manton E. Eddy of Chicago, Ill., commander of Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's Twelfth Corps, will return to the United States because of illness, it was announced today.

AMERICAN TROOPS CLOSE ON BOLOGNA

Fifth Army Breaks Out into Po Valley after 7-Mile Gain

ROME, April 20.—(AP) American Fifth army troops broke out into the Po valley northwest of Bologna late today after a spectacular seven-mile advance and fought into the outskirts of Casalecchio, three miles southwest of the big industrial city and communications center.

A spearhead of one of the two divisions which burst out of the Apennine mountains on the fifth day of the all-out Allied offensive in Italy cut the main Bologna-Modena highway at a point about nine miles northwest of Bologna.

Cut Escape Route

This was one of the main escape routes for German forces which have put up a tenacious defense before Bologna for the past months.

With American tanks and tank-destroyers steaming out onto the rolling Po plain tonight there was a surge of optimism among Allied commanders that the German armies in northern Italy might soon be destroyed or driven beyond the Alps.

British Eighth army troops, rolling on with the momentum of their plunge through the Argenta gap, advanced another three miles near the Italian east coast and captured Porto Maggiore, 12 miles southeast of the Po valley industrial center of Ferrara.

Other Eighth army forces, driving directly up the Ravenna-Ferrara highway, were reported within 10 miles of Ferrara. Capture of Ferrara, which is 25 miles north and slightly east of Bologna, would make the situation of German forces defending the latter city highly precarious.

Battle Toward Bologna

American troops fighting toward Bologna from the south battled into the highway village of Pianoro, seven miles south of the city. They were reported clearing out pockets of resistance in Pianoro tonight. High ground was won on both sides of the village.

West of the Bologna-Pistoia highway doughboys captured Mt. Sanichele, about eight and a half miles southwest of Bologna. Mt. Mario, a 1,500-foot peak about a mile east of the Bologna-highway and the Reno river, also were taken.

Other Fifth army forces pushing up the west coast gained considerable ground on bot sihdes of highway 1 and were reported within eight miles of the naval base of La Spezia.

Allied tactical warplanes continued their close support of advancing troops while heavy Fortresses and Liberators smashed at highway bridges over the Adice river, a possible defense line for the Nazis north of the Po river. Ferrara, now threatened by the British, is only a few thousand yards from the Po.

General Chidlaw Heads 12th Air Force In Italy

headquarters announced today.

Chidlaw has served as deputy commander of the 12th Tactical Air Command. He came overseas in April, 1944, after receiving the Legion of Merit for his part in the development of jet-propelled planes.

Chidlaw, a 1922 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Chidlaw, of Cleves, Ohio. His wife, Mrs. Lillian M. Chidlaw, lives in Washington.

British 8th Gains 3 Miles, Takes Town Near Ferrara

London, April 20 [Reuter]—Marshal Joseph Tito's troops have captured the port of Bakar, only 4 miles southeast of the big Adriatic port of Fiume, today's Yugoslav communique, quoted by the Yugoslav news agency, reported. Kraljevica, a second port opposite Bakar on a well-protected bay, is encircled.

Rome, April 20 (AP)—Eighth Army troops, in an advance of 3 miles have captured Portomaggiore, 12 miles southeast of the Po Valley city of Ferrara, Allied headquarters announced today.

Portoverrara, a small town just east of Portomaggiore, was also taken as the British pushed forward after storming the Argenta Gap Nazi defenses.

Fifth Army forces were reported advancing slowly along Highway 65, between Florence and Bologna, and nearing Pianora, just south of Bologna.

8th At Canale Bolognese

Rolling along with the momentum gained in the capture of Argenta, the 8th Army reached the Canale Bolognese on a wide front.

The 56th London Division drove on through Portoverrara and reached the Canale Diversivo, another of the many water barriers in this region of the lower Po Valley.

Ten Miles From Ferrara

While Portoverrara was being cleared, the British 78th Division moved along and captured Portomaggiore, where a bridge over the Bolognese Canale was taken intact.

Other 8th Army forces driving directly along Highway 16 reached within 10 miles of Ferrara, which lies only a few thousand yards from the Po River.

The Portomaggiore-San Nicolio Ferrarese road was cut near its junction with Highway 16 and 70 German prisoners were taken. The Portomaggiore-Traghetto railway was reached little over a mile west of Highway 16.

Meanwhile, 5th Army gains ranged up to several thousand yards in the territory adjacent to the Florence-Bologna highway, south of Bologna.

Mount Sanichole Taken

West of the highway, 5th Army troops captured Mount Sanichele, about 8½ miles southwest of Bologna.

Ground on both sides of Pianoro was seized and troops were cleaning up pockets of resistance in the town itself. Mount Mario, 1,500-foot peak about a mile east of the highway, was also captured. Other advances were made west of the highway and northwest of Mount Baco.

In the west coastal sector, 5th Army troops were within 8 miles of the big port of Laspezia, headquarters said.

Romani Party Chief Called Pro-Fascist

Moscow, April 20 (AP)—Juliu Maniu, Romanian National Peasant party leader, was reported by Tass today to be the subject of fresh attacks in the Romanian press.

The official Soviet news agency said statements published in Romania called the once powerful politician a supporter of Fascism and linked him with Transylvanian terrorists organized by a man named Oltyanu, who is now on trial at Brashov.

"Maniu is a reactionary, chauvinist, pro-Fascist supporter of the German-Hitler minority in Transylvania," the Romanian paper Skyntia was quoted.

Polish Peasants Start Moving To New Homes

Moscow, April 20 (AP)—The first several thousands of Polish peasants were moving today to new homes in East Prussia, western Pomerania and Silesia after the conquest of those areas by Russian and Polish troops.

A Polpress dispatch from Warsaw said 5,600 persons from the Krakow district and 600 families from the Kielce district already had left, and 7,000 individuals had registered for transfer from the Warsaw district.

The Peasant Mutual Aid League is directing the transfers, which are said to be voluntary. The groups are leaving in parties of 100 families each.

Two Polish Leaders Arrive in Moscow

Moscow, April 20 (A. P.).—Boleslaw Beirut and Edward Osubka-Morawski, President and Premier of the Polish provisional government at Warsaw, arrived in Moscow yesterday.

SAY NAZI INDUSTRY WOULD MOVE HERE

Moscow, April 19 (A. P.).—Pravda, official organ of the Soviet Union, added its voice today to Russian expressions of apprehension of purported efforts of German industry to find a foothold in the United States and Great Britain in these last days of the Third Reich.

"In these days of final destruction of Hitler's Germany," the newspaper said in an article signed by Boris Izakov, industrial writer, "German industrial magnates and financiers have developed a desperate campaign behind the scenes. Overseas they have managed to preserve a considerable part of their valuables because of their cartel ties."

Izakov declared that some American and English firms linked into the "dollar-pound brotherhood" of cartels "obligingly aid their German partners to hide their property from confiscation by the Allied authorities."

The article spoke of feverish preparation by German industrialists to recover their pre-war might.

Izvestia's international commentator, quoting British and American radio broadcasts, said that the Allies were employing Hitler's police and Catholic priests in Hannover and other areas of Germany to assist with their occupation work. Speaking of the use of the Hannover police, the commentator said: "This sort of behavior can scarcely be called proper."

'Pravda' Chides Lippmann Anew In Printing His Reply to Critic

MOSCOW, April 20 (AP).—The editorial board of "Pravda," defending commentator A. Gyorgiev's criticism of Walter Lippmann's book, "U. S. War Aims," said today that the American columnist had confused the question of orbits and spheres and thereby earned Gyorgiev's rebuke.

In addition to the board's statement, the Communist party newspaper published Lippmann's reply to Gyorgiev.

"We are convinced," "Pravda" said, "that the Soviet Union, Britain and the U. S. A., having achieved such excellent results in the war against the aggressors, can build a future peace on the sound basis of collaboration in a united international security organization. This corresponds with the interests of the Soviet Union, the U. S. A. and Britain, and therefore the interests of all freedom-loving humanity."

Cites World Orbits

Lippmann is an outstanding newspaper man who often comes out against Fascists and in favor of international security, the "Pravda" board said, continuing: "With satisfaction we note the decisive statement of Mr. Lippmann that he previously was, and now fully and categorically is, against the idea of a cordon sanitaire, having as its aim the isolation of the Soviet Union and the creation of a block of western European states inimical to it."

The newspaper added that Lippmann should have emphasized his opposition to a cordon sanitaire in his conception of dividing the world into orbits, "inasmuch as such a conception of a post-war peace plan, whether its author desires it or not, objectively reintroduces the suggestion of a military and political bloc."

"As a matter of fact," "Pravda" continued, "Mr. Lippmann in his book divides the entire world into four orbits or spheres, and from them only the 'Atlantic orbit' is presented as something tangible and definite. This gigantic military and political bloc includes almost all of Europe and all the American states with their colonies. Remember, this bloc, led by the U. S. A., includes: Great Britain and her Dominions and colonies, Pan-America, France and her empire; Belgium and the Netherlands and their colonies, Luxemburg, Norway, Denmark, Iceland, Portugal, Spain, Italy, Ireland and Sweden."

States Soviet Policy

"Pravda" said that "strategic security not only guarantees mutual relations between bordering states" but presupposes the sound alliance of all peace-loving states.

"The Soviet Union," "Pravda" added, "never insisted that only the border states between the U. S. S. R. and Germany 'stood in one row.' The policy of the Soviet Union always took departure from the point that all peace-loving states, regardless of where situated, formed a common front against the aggressors. Precisely for this reason the Soviet Union, even before the war, was the most decisive supporter of collective security."

"Pravda" declared: "If Mr. Lippmann thinks over all his conceptions, then he himself will be compelled to admit that his dissecting of the world into gigantic military and political blocs goes against the grain of the task set up by him of winning a long, sound peace."

Stockholm, April 20 (A. P.).—The 10,000-ton German cruiser Prinz Eugen, with an escort of six destroyers and a number of submarines, arrived at the Danish port of Copenhagen today. At least twenty-six other units of the German fleet followed her in two hours later. Informants said it seemed certain the Germans intended to make Copenhagen the base for what was left of their fleet.

FORREST REG... UPON EDITORS H...

SYDNEY, Australia, April 20 (AP)—Wilbur Forrest, member of the committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors that is touring the world in the interests of free exchange of post-war news, said today he greatly regretted not having been able to meet Syed Abdulla Brelvi, president of the All-India Newspaper Editors Conference, when the committee was in India.

He replied to a statement by Mr. Brelvi expressing regret that the committee had not been in touch with the All-India Editors Conference, so that the Americans would learn of "the kind of 'freedom' which is permitted the press in India."

Mr. Forrest, who is assistant editor of The New York Herald Tribune, said the committee "would like to have gone to Bombay, but time and the distance did not permit."

"We had most interesting and vital talks at New Delhi," he said. "The editors and other newspaper executives in New Delhi were most interested in the talks and we thought the results of those talks would be made known to other parts of India."

FIVE DESTROYERS SUNK BY JAPS IN OKINAWA BATTLE

100 Enemy Ships, 2,569 Nip Planes Destroyed in Ryukyus.

YANKS GAIN ON ISLAND

Meet Stiff Resistance in All-Out Push against Japanese Lines.

GUAM, Saturday, April 21—(AP) Fleet headquarters announced today the loss of 15 naval craft between March 18 and April 18 in the battle of Okinawa and associated operations, and said during the same period 100 enemy ships, besides many small craft, were sunk and 2,569 enemy aircraft destroyed.

Against furious enemy opposition, Yank amphibious forces, continuing their all-out push against strong Japanese lines on southern Okinawa, ground out gains of 1,000 to 1,400 yards yesterday. The assault was started Thursday, breaking a 13 day deadlock on that front.

15 Ships Destroyed

The fleet communique said the 15 ships constituted all those of the American navy to be sunk in the Okinawa and related operations within the 32-day period. It made no mention of damaged ships but previously announced that "several" units of the fleet had been hit.

Strong Japanese resistance continued on Ie island, west of Okinawa, but the Yanks there continued to gain. At the end of April 18 they counted 736 enemy dead. Today's communique said they had started to destroy enemy forces holding Iegusugu ridge, the highest point on the island.

The American ship losses included five destroyers, the Halligan, Bush, Colhoun, the M. L. Abele and the Pringle; two minecraft, one destroyer-transport, one gunboat, four landing craft and two ammunition ships, the Hobbs Victory and the Logan Victory.

Japanese losses listed included the 45,000-ton super-battleship Yamato, two light cruisers, five destroyers, five destroyer escorts and numerous cargo ships and small craft.

As was the case Thursday, smashing artillery fire from Navy, Marine and Army heavy guns, and carrier planes flying cover, supported the Okinawa ground operations Friday. The ground forces were made up of elements of the Seventh, 27th and 96th divisions of the Tenth army.

Friday's advances featured a 1,400 yard gain by the Seventh division to a point near the airstrip of Yonabaru town. The town itself was almost leveled by warship bombardment and field artillery fire.

Yanks Use Tanks

The Seventh used tanks to sweep around the beaches and flank Japanese ridge and hill positions.

Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley reported 27th division engineers bridged Machinato inlet the night before the attack, enabling a battalion to move across for a quick drive against Machinato town, which was taken the first day of the push. He said five American tanks were set afire in an assault on a ridge overlooking Kakazu town. Yanks took the town but the Japanese held to the ridge.

Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of the 24th corps which includes the three divisions, said Yank drives were crashing through key sectors of the strongly built Japanese defense line.

The 96th division, hitting the center of the line, had hard going because the ground there is highest, Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent, reported.

The main Japanese force on Ie islet has been surrounded in crags and caves on Iegusugu pinnacle.

Patrols of the Third Amphibious Marines, on northern Okinawa, continued to reduce Japanese pockets on Motobu peninsula.

Of the U. S. destroyers listed as sunk, the Halligan, Bush and Pringle were of the new 2,100-ton class. The Halligan was built in the Boston Navy yard, the Bush in the Bethlehem steel yard, San Francisco, and the Pringle in the Charleston Navy Yard. They cost about $11,000,000 each and were believed to have a top speed of 38 knots. Their normal complement was about 250 men each.

The minecraft lost were the Emmons and the Skylark. The destroyer-transport was the Dickerson. The landing craft all were identified by number.

Matching the announcement of ship losses, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz Thursday made public American casualties on Okinawa and in associated operations of 7,895 as of April 18. These included for the Navy alone 989 killed, 2,220 wounded and 1,491 missing—a total of 4,700.

Mustangs Attack Airfield Near Tokyo

Guam, April 20 (AP)—Japan's big Atsugi airfield 25 miles southwest of Tokyo was ripped up yesterday as P-51 Mustang fighter planes based on Iwo Jima made their first attack on the capital area.

Eighty-four Japanese aircraft were destroyed or damaged as the planes, some of them flying under high tension wires, carried out a daring strafing attack.

Mustang pilots reported they went through heavy anti-aircraft and small arms fire getting to the field where 200 to 300 enemy fighters and bombers were lined up on the apron "like a pilot's dream."

-51 Toll Now 132

The attack increased the P-51 toll over Honshu Island to 132 planes, including those destroyed on B-29 escort missions.

Astonished Japanese, some of them caught playing tennis at the airfield, watched the low-flying fighters shoot down 21 Japanese planes. Two enemy planes were listed probably destroyed and 26 others destroyed or probably destroyed on the ground. Another 35 were damaged.

With one Japanese plane destroyed in the air yesterday, Major James B. Tapp, 24, of Eveleth, Minn., brought his tally to five, becoming the first flyer to achieve ace rating over Tokyo. He had destroyed three on his first B-29 escort mission and one on his second.

Day Of Revenge

It was a memorable day for the 7th, said Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale, commander of the strategic air force in the Pacific. Since the attack on Hickman Field in Hawaii December 7, 1941, the unit has been waiting for revenge, he said.

Hale had bad news for the enemy.

"This was no sneak, one-shot attack," he said, indicating additional fighter attacks will be made.

300 SUPERFORTS BLAST 9 KYUSHU AIRFIELDS

GUAM, Saturday, April 21.—(AP) A very large force of Superfortresses, estimated at between 200 and 300, visually bombed nine Kyushu airfields this morning in their third bombing attack in five days to neutralize bases from which the Japanese have been attacking American forces at Okinawa.

The Superforts unloaded demolition bombs from medium altitude in a strike lasting an hour and a half.

Yanks Reconquer Middle Philippines

Manila, Saturday, April 21 (AP). Gen. Douglas MacArthur today announced that conquest of the Central Philippines has been completed with extermination of all but a few remnants of the Japanese garrison on Cebu.

He said the Cebu victory, in which 5,000 enemy bodies were counted on the field Thursday, gave his forces control of 33,000 square miles of the central and southern Philippines, liberated 6,400,000 civilians and reduced Japanese strong points in the entire Philippines to two—Davao on Midanao and Baguio, the summer capital on Luzon.

Doughboys are approaching both of these, which have been weakened by aerial bombardment.

Collaborationists Escape

MacArthur also announced that three Filipino collaborationist leaders had escaped to Formosa in a Japanese plane. He named them as Jose P. Laurel, "head of this disloyal group," and Benigno Aquino and Osias (given name unavailable)—"two of its most active members."

Three members of the Cabinet and a number of other prominent members of the Filipino collaborationist government were captured near Baguio. Their names were not given.

Heavy and medium bombers ranging from the Netherlands East Indies to the China coast sank or damaged thirteen freighters, three coastal vessels, three barges and a transport plane.

Formosa Bombed

They also attacked ground installations on Formosa and the East Indies.

The action on Cebu was an enveloping movement which caught the enemy by surprise.

"Japanese losses were very heavy, 5,000 dead being left on the field while remnants scattered into the hills, to be hunted down by our guerrilla forces," MacArthur said.

He pointed out that:

"Our forces now control the entire Visayan group, comprising an area of more than 33,000 square miles and liberating a population of more than 6,400,000."

Islands Under Control

"In addition to the main islands of Leyte, Samar, Mindoro, Panay, Palawan, Cebu, Negros, Bohol and Masbate, Japanese garrisons on a score of lesser islands, including Bantayan, Biliran, Burias, Guimaras, Homonohon, Lubang, Poro, Marinduque, Qiduijor, Tablas, Tiabo and the Sibuyan group have been eliminated.

"This sweeps clear the center of the Philippines and leaves the only remaining enemy organized resistance in Mindanao on the south and upper Luzon on the north.

"From the Visayas will come many of the foodstuffs and raw materials for rehabilitation and reconstruction of the Philippines and for prosecution of the war against Japan itself, including hemp, copra, metals, lumber and cement.

Provide Good Bases

"They already provide important air, land and naval bases for attacks against vital areas in the Netherlands East Indies and Southeastern Asia and for our increasingly tight blockade of enemy shipping lanes down the coast of China, Indo-China, Thailand and Malaya.

"Our losses in this campaign were extraordinarily light, due largely to the enemy's continued inability to diagnose our point of attack and to understand our local tactics of combat.

"His ground forces throughout the Philippines campaign in numerical strength have equaled and in some cases exceeded our own.

"Yet he has seemed bewildered and confused and, although one of the most tenacious of fighters, has permitted himself to be constantly surprised, divided and destroyed in detail without being able to inflict more than a minor fraction of compensating losses."

Advance On Mindanao

On Mindanao, last Japanese stronghold in the southern Philippines, the northern Yank column pushed 15 miles northeast of Malabang, its beachhead of three days before, and reached the shores of Lake Lanao.

The center column advanced eastward 16 miles to Manuangan—along the mountain highway toward Davao, which, however, still is 36 miles' distant on the eastern shore.

The southern column repulsed an enemy counterattack north of Cotabato, captured Wednesday, and pushed up the Mindanao River, largest in the Philippines, from its newly established base at Lomopog.

YANKS CAPTURE TWO MORE ISLES

Balabac, Just North of Borneo, Falls Easily.

Manila, April 20 (A. P.).—American doughboys seized the forty-fourth and forty-fifth islands of their Philippines invasion Wednesday. Capture of one, Balabac, put them only forty-five miles north of Borneo. Seizure of the other, tiny Carabao in Manila Bay, wiped out a troublesome force of 300 to 500 Japanese troops.

Elsewhere in the Philippines, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in today's communique:

Japanese counter-attacked fiercely with tanks in the Baguio sector of North Luzon but were repulsed. Doughboys on Mindanao advanced twenty-two miles from their new beachheads, moving within fifty-two air miles of Davao, a major port of the Philippines.

Jump Off for Borneo.

The unopposed Balabac landing, by elements of Major-Gen. Jens A. Doe's Forty-first Division, gave the United States a second strategic jump off place for possible amphibious operations against oil-rich Borneo. The Forty-first seized Tawitawi Island, thirty miles east of Borneo, on April 2.

Balabac, about fifteen miles long, is forty-five miles due north of Borneo and immediately south of Palawan Island, captured by Yanks on February 28. It controls Balabac Strait and thus the eastern entry of the South China Sea from the Sulu Sea.

In Cotabato, Tamontaka

Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff's 24th Division made the advance toward Davao. An amphibious movement put the doughboys in Cotabato and Tamontaka, towns controlling the dual mouths of the Mindanao River. To the north, other Yanks expanded their Malabang beachhead and put a sizeable airfield into operation.

An amphibious movement put the doughboys into Cotabato, capital of a province of the same name, and Tamontaka, towns controlling the dual mouths of the Mindanao River, largest in the Philippines. Other Yanks expanded their Malabang beachhead and quickly put a sizable airfield there into operation. The enemy has an estimated 50,000 troops on Mindanao.

On the Baguio sector on Luzon, the Japanese counter-attacked with several tanks along the Naguilan road but were beaten back with loss of all of their tanks.

Major-Gen. Percy W. Clarkson's Thirty-third Division reported an increase in Japanese artillery fire from Baguio.

Greatest Pacific Barrage Hits Naha Line

By Robbin Coons

Okinawa, April 19 (AP—Delayed)—The greatest hell of artillery fire ever in the Pacific war began at dawn today from American guns on the hills and valleys of Okinawa and ships in the eastern sea, and continued until the smoke obscured the rising sun.

[From his beaquarters on Guam, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced the opening of the all-out assault on Jap positions on Okinawa. Nimitz reported gains of 500 to 800 yards on both flanks. Three United States divisions—possibly 45,000 troops—were taking part.]

Shells crashed into Japanese caves and tunnel-pitted ridges in one continuous roar. Marine and Navy planes bombed and strafed the center of the enemy's underground defenses around Shuri town.

Doughboys Advance

Under this protective covering, American doughboys leaped from foxholes where they had endured bitter Japanese artillery and mortar punishment for more than two weeks. They charged through machinegun fire to seize precious ridges.

To the left of the 7th Division observation post from which I watched, the 32d Infantry Regiment, commanded by Col. John Milton Finn, of Los Angeles, assaulted and took a small but formidable ridge.

Tanks, throwing flames 100 yards ahead, supported the infantrymen's frontal assault, then skirted the ridge and seared the other side.

Ridge Captured

Directly ahead the 184th Regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. Roy A. Green of Sacramento, Cal., darted to an enemy ridge. Japanese machine guns chattering from it were soon silenced.

Every one in the command post—from Maj. Gen. Simon B. Buckner, Jr., commanding the 10th Army, down to the privates guarding him—agreed the Japanese would be dislodged ultimately only by the slugging infantry. Buckner commented on the amazing co-ordination of the air, ground and naval artillery with the movements of the ground forces.

But the artillery can't hit everything. Symbolically, perhaps, a white goat wandered up a Japanese hillside unharmed by the barrage crashing around him.

Near me a big black-and-yellow striped bumblebee, oblivious to the war, pursued his quest for honey in boot-trampled flowers.

Bridge Built to Win Machinato

WITH THE 27TH DIVISION on the Okinawa Front, April 19 (Delayed) (AP)—Attacking units opened the drive by crossing a bridge over Machinato inlet that was constructed during the night by engineers. Later a pontoon was flung across to permit two-way traffic.

Machinato village was quickly cleaned out.

Labor Leaders Under Mortar Fire, Praise GI's

With the 32d Division on Northern Luzon, P. I., April 20 (AP)—Three West Coast labor leaders spent the night under mortar and artillery fire with United States infantrymen in the Caraballo mountains and agreed today that the job the soldiers were doing was "the most magnificent thing" they had ever seen.

"No one can really appreciate what it is like until they have seen these men in action," said Mervyn Rathbone, of San Francisco, Secretary of the California CIO Council. "The job they are doing under unbelievably bad conditions is the most magnificent thing I have ever seen."

Others Indorse His View

His sentiment was indorsed by Claude Ballard, Portland (Ore.), president of the CIO International Woodworkers of America, and Thomas A. Retsell, of San Francisco, assistant secretary of the AFL Bay City Trades Council.

The 32d Division, which boasts 500 days of combat in the Pacific, is fighting through mountain country where it has to dig and burn Japanese from hundreds of caves and tunnels.

3 NEW YORKERS HONORED

Bronx Captain, 2 Brooklyn Soldiers Get Bronze Star in Pacific

WITH THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DIVISION IN THE PACIFIC, April 20 (AP)—Tech. 5th Grade Walter J. Gorowski of Troy, N. Y., has received the Silver Star for exposing himself to heavy enemy fire on three occasions to bring help to wounded men in the Saipan campaign.

Others of the Twenty-seventh Division who have received the Bronze Star include Tech. 4th Grade Sabino Picarello of 1382 Fifty-ninth Street, Brooklyn; Pvt. William Hague of 252 Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, and Capt. Frank Martin Jr. of 2965 Decatur Avenue, the Bronx.

Ackerman In Philippines

U.S. 8th Army Headquarters, Philippine Islands, April 19 (AP—Delayed)—Dean Ackerman, dean of journalism at Columbia University, arrived in the Philippines today on a tour of world fighting fronts. He was the guest of Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the 8th Army and a long-time personal friend.

War-Weary GI's Bury Pyle On Ie Island

Ie Island, April 20 (AP)—Machine guns beat a sharp tattoo and mortars barked at the front only a short distance ahead today as Ernie Pyle, the doughboy's reporter, was laid to rest with military honors.

Battle-grimed Yanks stood at attention as services were said for the columnist who was struck down by Japanese machine-gun fire Wednesday.

Attending the funeral on this tiny island near Okinawa were Maj.

30.24-24981

Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, 77th Division commander; Lieut. Col. Joseph B. Coolidge, of Helena, Ark., who was with Pyle when he was killed.

Yanks Go On To Front

When the service was concluded, General Bruce drove off in his jeep to a command post, and Yank infantrymen slogged on up to the front.

The service was conducted in the 77th Division cemetery by Chaplain N. B. Saucier, former pastor of a Coffeyville (Miss.) church.

Solemn GI's holding pistols ready and retaining their helmets on order of General Bruce, who feared possible sniper fire, heard Chaplain Saucier recite the funeral prayer.

Surroundings Fitting

The surroundings seemed fitting for Ernie, who had seen action on so many battlefronts. Even the funeral party, on the way to the cemetery, had to duck mortar shell.

Pyle's body was in a wooden casket handmade by Corporal Landon Seidler, of Richmond, Va. Seidler also fashioned a wooden plaque to be placed at the spot where the columnist was killed. It reads: "At this spot the 77th Infantry Division lost a buddy—Ernie Pyle—18 April, 1945."

White Cross On Casket

A white cross was painted on the casket and near it rested a floral piece made of local greenery and a sheaf of grain which was fashioned by Sergt. Irvin Steifel, of Camden, N.J. One of Ernie's dogtags was nailed to the top end of the casket.

The chaplain spoke simply of the cheer the little reporter had given those at home, and that "we pray God will bless him doubly—our comrade, Ernie Pyle."

It seemed that Ernie was staying as close in death as he did in life to America's doughboy, for the small wooden casket was lowered into a row containing fourteen other graves.

'Human Bombs' Make Ie Fighting Bitter For Yanks

By Grant MacDonald

Ie Shima, April 19 [AP — Delayed] — Japanese suicide tactics, which have included one-man charges by "human bombs," are making fighting on little Ie more bitter by the hour.

Enemy soldiers with satchels of explosives strapped to them frequently have rushed headlong to our lines, blowing themselves to bits, and counterattacks have been made by Japanese armed only with rocks and pieces of broken glass.

Shells Thrown By Hand

There even have been instances of Japanese throwing mortar shells with their hands.

It is a cave-to-cave, pillbox-to-pillbox warfare for men of the 77th Division as Japanese are rooted out. Many Japs hide in camouflaged strong points until American troops have passed. Then they rush out, attacking from the rear in screaming banzai charges.

Snipers who have hid as long as 48 hours open up after the Yanks go by and fire steadily until destroyed.

"Snaked In Our Position"

At 5.15 o'clock this morning about 30 Japanese infiltrated, or came out of hiding, to an artillery area behind our lines—an area which was secured April 16.

Staff Sergeant Bob Allen, army correspondent and former Associated Press and Reuter correspondent during the Spanish War, got the story from the men attacked.

"The Japs snaked into the artillery position," Allen said, "and crept around, trying to stab the men sleeping in foxholes. Most of the Japs carried knives, grenades and satchel charges strapped to their bodies.

Couldn't Locate Guns

"They apparently planned to destroy the guns but could not locate them in the dark. In a few minutes everything was confusion as our men and the Japs mixed it. Our men were afraid to fire for fear of hitting their buddies.

"They even got into a command post where Lieut. Col. Elbett P. Tuttle, commanding officer of the 304th Infantry Battalion and a former Atlanta (Ga.) attorney, was sleeping in a tent-covered foxhole. They beat him with clubs but he fought them off and ran away in the darkness."

Yanks Crack Japs' Force On Cebu

With the American Division on Cebu, P.I., April 19 [AP—Delayed]. Doughboys of the Americal Division have finally cracked the Japanese force on Cebu Island in one of the toughest fights in the history of the Southwest Pacific.

After holding heavily fortified positions in the hills west of Cebu City for more than three weeks, the main enemy force has fled in disorganized groups.

Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, 8th Army commander, toured the Cebu front again today and commented:

"Considering the size of the forces involved, this has been the hardest Jap position to reduce I have ever seen. These positions the Japs have dug into the hills are the strongest I have seen.

Expresses Admiration

"Just to see them strengthens my admiration for the heroic ability of the American doughboy to advance against terrible opposition. And it also makes me admire the ability of some Jap officer who planted these caves and tunnels and hill defenses.

"It is because our officers and our men are better than the Japs and have better equipment that we can overcome such obstacles as these."

Maj. Gen. William Arnold, of the Americal Division, said fighting for the Cebu hills "was much tougher than anything the division had on Bougainville."

He said about 5,000 Nipponese were killed in the Cebu City area since the island was invaded March 26.

British Consolidating Positions At Chauk

Calcutta, April 20 (AP)—British troops fighting southward through Burma were consolidating their positions today around the captured town of Chauk, and nearby villages on the east side of the Irrawaddy River about 35 miles southwest of Pakokku.

An Allied communiqué said new advances were made in the Kyaukpadaung area, 34 miles due south of Pakokku. Infantry and armored forces continued to advance south of Meiktila in the central Burma mopup.

Allied aircraft, meanwhile, attacked targets on the Rangoon-Mandalay railway, hitting oil dumps at Payathonzu, 4 miles south of Pegu, and the station at Banbwegon, 13 miles south of Toungoo.

Supplied From Air

The British are being supplied almost entirely by transport planes which daily carry the equivalent of three American trainloads of arms and food to the front lines.

This operation by the USAAF and RAF of the Eastern Air Command represents perhaps the greatest supply effort of its kind in history, Air Command headquarters declared today.

British Advance 70 Miles In Drive For South Burma

Calcutta, April 20 (AP)—A British 14th Army spearhead has killed 3,500 Japanese and lunged 70 miles south from Meiktila to within 214 miles of Rangoon in the opening twelve-day phase of a campaign to recapture southern Burma, it was announced tonight.

Striking along the main Burma railway line armored and infantry units reached a position only a few miles north of Pyinmana after beginning its operation in the first week in April, a partial lifting of the security blackout disclosed.

Jap Efforts Desperate

The Japanese made a desperate effort to halt powerful tank columns moving south and aid the flight of stragglers from the central Burma pocket.

British troops met the enemy in the first major engagement at Pyawbwe, a railway town 26 miles south of Meiktila. At Pyawbwe three columns of British Gurkhas, Punjabis and Sikhs assaulted Japanese headquarters positions from the north, northwest and northeast, killing 2,000 in three days.

On the third night the British moved tanks behind the town and waited in the dark. Japanese reinforcements rushing in trucks with blazing headlights were caught in a tank ambush and mowed down as they tried to flee into the jungle. More than 60 trucks were captured or destroyed.

Defeat Follows Rail Block

The Japanese regrouped after the Pyawbwe battle at a point 14 miles farther south in the village of Yamethin, where after fierce fighting British armor again moved southward and occupied the village of Takton. Another enemy defeat followed at a railroad block in the hills below Tatkon and the British raced on toward Pyinmana.

On the east bank of the Irrawaddy River, where other British forces yesterday captured the rich oil center of Chauk, the British consolidated their positions and farther south renewed their advances in the Kyaukpadaung area.

Transport planes daily carry the equivalent of three American trainloads of arms and food to the front lines.

100,000 JAPANESE REPORTED IN DRIVE

60,000 Said to Aim at Chihkiang, U. S. Air Base, With 40,000 in Reserve

CHUNGKING, China, April 20 (AP)—Sixty thousand Japanese troops in three columns are driving across western Hunan province toward the United States Fourteenth Air Force base at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking, a Chinese Army spokesman estimated today.

Another 40,000 enemy troops are believed being held in reserve to assure the success of the new offensive. The main column of the three-pronged drive has been engaged twenty-two miles west of its starting point at Paoking, which is seventy miles west of the Canton-Hankow rail junction of Hengyang, the spokesman said.

Most of a spearhead of about 2,000 Japanese troops, who had infiltrated through Chinese lines to points only sixty-five miles from Chihkiang, was said to have been destroyed.

The left wing of the enemy drive is based at the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad town of Tungan, near the Kwangsi border. It has driven northwest beyond Sinning. The right wing, based at Yiyang, south of Tungting Lake and northwest of Changsha, has made some progress by avoiding Chinese strong points.

Drive at Sian Subsiding

CHUNGKING, China, April 20 (AP)—The Chinese spokesman said today that the month-old Japanese offensive in Hupeh and Honan Provinces, believed aimed at Sian, most important Fourteenth Air Force operational base in China, was subsiding. Sao Tang, Chinese Army newspaper, said the collapse of the drive in the area was due to Allied air supremacy, unfavorable terrain, expert Chinese opposition and diversionary attacks on the enemy rear and flanks.

A Fourteenth Air Force communiqué disclosed that its planes bombed railroad yards, repair shops and machine shops at Taiyuan, capital of Shansi Province in North China. Seven locomotives were destroyed.

Chinese Communist Army Gains

A communiqué of the Chinese Communist Eighth Route Army, broadcast from Yenan and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said that on the night of April 7, Eighth Army units broke into Wenhsien, thirty-five miles northwest of Chenchow, and more than twenty Chinese puppets were killed.

On April 3, Eighth Army men captured three strong points west of Wenhsien and fifty puppet officers and men were taken prisoner, the communiqué said.

Fleets Sweep Sumatra

Kandy, Ceylon, April 20 (AP)—Units of the East Indies fleets, including a French battleship, have carried out an offensive sweep off the coast of Sumatra and attacked occupied ports, the Allied Southeast Asia Command announced tonight in a special communiqué.

Battleships and cruisers bombarded the port of Sabang with what was described as "good effect," and destroyers shelled the port of Kotaraja.

Naval aircraft bombed Emmhaven and Padang, scoring direct hits on a 4,000-ton freighter. Destroyers sank six small supply vessels.

The communiqué said the Japanese had attempted to break up the naval operation from the air, but had been frustrated by Allied fighters. No damage or casualties were inflicted on the Allied ships.

Jap Cabinet Speeds Evacuation of Cities

San Francisco, April 20 (A. P.).—The Japanese Cabinet adopted emergency measures today to speed the evacuation of Japanese cities, the Tokyo radio reported in a broadcast recorded by the FCC.

Naha Drive, Landing Try Repulsed, Japs Say

San Francisco, April 20 (AP)—Japan's Domei news agency claimed today the American offensive against the Naha defense line of Okinawa had been smashed, and an attempted amphibious invasion of the island's south end turned back.

The Domei dispatch, monitored here, said 10,000 troops had been used by Americans in the Naha drive.

Two to four battleships, a cruiser, five destroyers and twenty landing barges were employed in the purportedly repulsed invasion effort.

Canadian Hero Liberated in Reich

Belleville, Ont., April 20 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Col. Cecil Merritt of Vancouver, B. C., Canada's first Victoria Cross winner of this war, has arrived at Prestwick, Scotland, after being released from a German prisoner-of-war camp, his wife said here today.

Merritt was taken prisoner in the Dieppe raid in August, 1942, and was decorated with the V. C. for his leadership and courage in the reconnaissance in force.

WHERE AMERICAN DIVISIONS BATTLE

The following summary of action covers only those Associated Press reports in which divisions were specifically mentioned:

ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

1st Infantry—Swept through the Harz Mountains to reduce the pocket, taking 4,500 more prisoners.

3d Armored—Entered Wolfen, eleven miles south of Dessau and fought house to house in Bobbau-Steinfurth.

9th Armored — Drove from east of Leipzig and captured a ninety-four-car supply train five miles from the city.

11th Armored—Advanced sixteen miles southeast of Bayreuth and captured Grafenwohr.

12th Armored—Led Seventh Army drive south of Nuernberg.

14th Armored—Advanced with Seventh Army south of Nuernberg.

26th Infantry — Advanced to Ramlesreuth, ten miles southeast of Bayreuth, and entered Trostau. The troops took an airfield northeast of Kirchlainbach.

69th Infantry—Cleared out last of Nazis in Leipzig.

90th Infantry—Gained fourteen miles, entered Selb, west of Karlsbad, and Oberroslau, near border.

104th Infantry — Captured Reinsdorf, fourteen miles north of Halle in the Dessau area.

WITH PACIFIC.

Americal Infantry—Routs Japs on Cebu.

7th Infantry — Advances in drive on Okinawa.

24th Infantry—Takes Cotabato in campaign on Mindanao.

27th Infantry—Takes part in Okinawa offensive.

33d Infantry—Turns back Japs near Baguio.

38th Infantry—Takes Carabao Island in Manila Bay.

77th Infantry—Mops up on Ie Shima.

96th Infantry — Advanced in Okinawa drive.

3d Marine Amphibious Corps—Cleans up northern end of Okinawa.

6th Marine—Eliminates resistance pockets on Motobu Peninsula, Okinawa.

Small Lands Want Border Pledges

Washington, April 20 (AP)—A movement among the smaller nations to have boundary guarantees included in any peace-keeping setup was gaining strength.

It will be sponsored at San Francisco either by one of the Latin-American nations—which secured similar assurances in the recent Act of Chapultepec—or by one of the British dominions, probably New Zealand.

The demand for territorial guarantees would include a definition of aggression and go hand in hand with the expected United States proposal to empower the assembly of the peace agency to review treaties.

Would Change Whole Picture

Adoption of the guarantees would change the proposed league's fundamental obligation. Instead of simply deciding when sanctions should be imposed, the organization would be obligated to use the world's armed might whenever it was decided that aggression existed.

The United States accepted the frontier-guarantee idea at Mexico City last month with the reservation that the Act of Chapultepec be made to fit into the proposed world peace system.

At the same time, several of the countries outside the four sponsoring powers—the United States, Britain, Russia and China—have worked out formulas designed to secure a larger role in decisions of peace and war. A strong reaction has crystallized against the original Dumbarton Oaks formula, which would give the league's security council power to bind all member nations to send their forces into action.

One ambassador, recalling the American revolutionary cry, "No taxation without representation," said this time it would be "No blood without a voice."

Favors Majority Vote

He said he is ready to propose that a majority vote of the general assembly be required before the security council could direct use of force. Canada already has suggested that a two-thirds assembly vote be required.

The Dumbarton Oaks proposals leave all decisions on sanctions exclusively to the security council—requiring a unanimous vote by the Big Five and at least two of the six nonpermanent members of the council.

Week-End Parleys

Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov, Secretary of State Stettinius and British Secretary Eden are slated to seek agreement on these and other issues this week end, before they start west for the United Nations conference opening next Wednesday.

At the top of their agenda, however, is the deadlock over formation of a more representative Polish Government, a move agreed upon at Yalta but stalled after weeks of consultations in Moscow.

GI To Get Highest Medal For Attack

Washington, April 20 (AP)—A Louisiana sergeant who led an attack that destroyed a German Panzer column, including 100 vehicles and more than 250 troops, will get the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The War Department said today the decoration will be presented tomorrow to Sergt. Hulon B. Whittington, of Bastrop, La., at Brooke General Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. He is recuperating there from a wound received in subsequent fighting.

Takes Over Platoon

Whittington, 23, took command of an armored platoon near Grimesnil, France, last July 29 after an assault by the Panzer force had killed and wounded about a third of the platoon, including the leader and second in command.

After reorganizing the platoon's defense, Whittington climbed on a medium tank and, by shouting instructions to the tank commander, maneuvered it into position to blast a Mark V tank leading the enemy column.

Shells from the medium tank knocked out the Mark V and blocked the movement of all the German vehicles behind. These were then destroyed by hand grenades and bazooka, tank and artillery fire.

Whittington then led a "bold and resolute" bayonet charge against an infantry force, engaging many of the troopers in hand-to-hand fighting.

Treats Medical Corpsman

Between times he treated a medical corpsman who had been wounded and helped take care of several other wounded.

"The dynamic leadership, the inspiring example and the dauntless courage of Sergeant Whittington are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service," the citation said.

Whittington already wears the Purple Heart and Oak Leaf Cluster for wounds received in Sicily and France and the Silver Star for heroism during the Sicilian campaign.

DUMBARTON OAKS TO BE LIBERALIZED AT SAN FRANCISCO

APR 21 1945

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, April 20—Senator Connally (D-Tex.) told the Senate today that the Dumbarton Oaks plan for world organization probably will be liberalized at San Francisco to provide for more flexibility in future years.

Connally, chairman of the Foreign Relations committee and delegate to San Francisco, was given a rousing ovation after a leave-taking speech in which he declared that the American delegation is in harmony and the United States "has a lofty duty to perform in leading the peoples of the earth away from the concepts of rule by the sword."

Dedicated to Supreme Cause

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), also taking leave as another member of the American delegation, said he was going "with a sense of deepest dedication to a supreme cause."

He asked the Senators not to expect a chart for the millennium to come out of San Francisco, but asserted:

"I have faith that we may perfect this charter of peace and justice so that reasonable men of good will shall find in it so much good, so much emancipation for human hopes, that all lesser doubts and disagreements may be resolved in its favor."

Vandenberg endorsed what he called the "sturdy statement" by his Texas colleague, in which Connally said the American delegates hold no "slavish devotion" to the precise Dumbarton Oaks formula although they are committed to its principles.

"We shall not be able to bring back an instrument embodying perfection," Connally said. "There is no instrument extant that does not have somewhere in it things to which this citizen, that citizen, or the other citizen, or this country or the other country may object.

"We cannot, of course, write every line, every phrase, and every section of the document which will there be subscribed to; but there will be amending clauses in the instrument, probably more liberal than those in the Dumbarton Oaks agreements, through which we can, over the years, build up an instrumentality of great usefulness to the people of the United States."

The Senate speeches came while jurists of the United Nations were signing their recommendations for a world court to be incorporated in the proposed world organization.

Group Unable to Agree

That group was unable to agree on the important issue of whether the existing court in the Hague should have compulsory jurisdiction so that countries can be hauled into court as people are in their own lands, or whether their agreement to submit a case will continue to be required.

The smaller nations insisted on compulsory jurisdiction and the question was put over to San Francisco with two alternate recommendations expressing each point of view.

One diplomat of a small country said he felt the nations outside of the Big Five had lost in the recommendation on the election of judges.

The 15 judges of the court, under today's proposals, would be elected by the General Assembly and the Security Council of the new organization from a list of candidates nominated by national groups.

The small countries at the meeting had wanted direct nomination by governments and election by the assembly alone.

A heated debate is expected to develop in San Francisco over the question of compulsory jurisdiction.

Hard Senate Fight Ahead On Battle Use Of Youths

APR 1 1945

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Backers of a straight-out extension of the selective service law conceded today that they face a hard fight in the Senate. Amendments to restrict the use of men under 19 in combat portend difficulties.

The extension bill came through the House without modification, simply moving up the expiration date one year to May 15, 1946, or the end of the war, whichever arrives first.

Four Press For Restrictions

When the legislation was called up in the Senate yesterday, Senator Stewart (D., Tenn.) and three colleagues pressed for adoption of an amendment which would prevent 18-year-old selectees from being ordered into "actual combat service" until they had six months' military training.

Senator O'Daniel (D., Texas) proposed instead that no inductee under 20 be sent to combat duty outside the continental United States without a full year's training.

Similar proposals were made when the draft age was lowered to 18 years, but the high command managed to keep them out of the law by giving informal assurances that no man would be sent into combat without adequate training.

War Chiefs Renew Protests

Renewed expressions of opposition from the War and Navy departments went into the record today. Secretary of the Navy Forrestal said the proposed restrictions would be "disastrous." Gen. George C. Marshall was quoted as saying that the present system will have to be continued or the nation must be prepared to face delays in military operations.

After the Senate votes on the restrictions, Wheeler intends to argue for adoption of two other amendments, to take effect when organized hostilities in Europe have ceased. One would forbid further induction of necessary farm workers. The other would exempt from the draft pre-Pearl Harbor husbands with children under 18.

Ross Named Press Secretary

President Appoints St. Louis Newspaper Man, Who Was Boyhood Friend.

APR 21 1945

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—President Truman announced today the appointment of Charles G. Ross, 59-year-old Washington correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, as his press secretary. The appointment is effective May 15.

Mr. Truman called a news conference shortly before noon at which he said that J. Leonard Reinsch, who has been serving as his press and radio relations man, would return to his duties as managing director of the radio interests of former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio.

He said that Jonathan Daniels, President Roosevelt's press secretary, who had planned to leave tomorrow, had agreed to remain on the job until Ross can report.

Ross, a high school classmate of the President at Independence, Mo., accepted the press post last night, shortly before leaving for San Francisco to cover the United Nations conference for his newspaper.

Ross has been a contributing editor in Washington for the Post-Dispatch since 1939. Previously he served as chief Washington correspondent for the paper from 1918 to 1934 and from 1934 to 1939 he was editor of the Post-Dispatch's editorial page.

A graduate of the University of Missouri in 1905, he later taught in that university's School of Journalism, from 1908 to 1918.

For an article in 1931 called "The Country's Plight—What Can Be Done About It?" Ross received the Pulitzer Prize for the best example of newspaper correspondence. The article listed causes of and proposed solutions for the nation's economic depression.

With a smile the President said that he and Ross telephoned their old English teacher, Miss Matilda Brown, at Independence to tell her that they would be working together again. He added that Joseph Pultizer, president and publisher of the Post-Dispatch, had agreed to give Ross two years' leave to undertake the job.

The President said there was no foundation for a report that Leslie Biffle, Secretary of the Senate, would be brought in as a White House administrative assistant.

Biffle will be of much more use to him as secretary to the Senate than he would be at the White House, he said, adding that he didn't want to cripple the Senate. A reporter asked what he thought of Biffle and he authorized this direct quotation:

"They don't make them any better than Les Biffle."

President Truman made public the following telegram from former Gov. Cox requesting Reinsch's release from his White House duties:

APR 21 1945

"My dear Mr. President:

"Some time ago you made an appeal to me which I think I responded to at the moment in good spirit. Now I am going to make an appeal to you. Let us have Leonard Reinsch back. When we gave our consent we were not sufficiently mindful of the tremendous tasks ahead of radio in connection with television, frequency modulation and what-not. On special occasions for your personal uses his services could be availed of without embarrassment to us. It might not seem a patriotic impulse which prompts this message and yet, I am sure on reflection you will see it is justified.

"Kind regards,

"JAMES M. COX."

Cox operates radio stations at Dayton, Ohio; Miami, Fla., and Atlanta.

TRUMAN GETS NEW PRESS SECRETARY

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP) President Truman announced today that he had borrowed a new press secretary, because a previous "loan" was called.

He said Charles G. Ross, 59, veteran Washington correspondent and contributing editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, had accepted the secretarial post in place of J. Leonard Reinsch, 36-year-old Atlanta radio executive.

Reinsch had been in the White House press-radio slot only four days when the President called a special news conference and disclosed that he was complying with a request from James M. Cox, the publisher, that Reinsch be permitted to return to the Cox radio enterprises, of which he is managing director, Cox has radio interests in Atlanta, Miami, Fla., and Dayton, O.

Ross will take up his government post when he returns from covering the San Francisco conference. Meanwhile, Jonathan Daniels, Raleigh, N. C., author-newspaperman, has agreed to remain as the President's press secretary until Ross takes over. He had been helping Reinsch get organized.

Ross, a 1932 Pulitzer prize winner for newspaper correspondence, went to school with President Truman in Independence, Mo.

Ross was president of the Gridiron Club, exclusive newsmen's organization, in 1933, and chairman of the overseas writers in 1927. He began his newspaper career on the Columbia, Mo., Herald and worked on newspapers in Colorado and Australia.

He taught journalism at the University of Missouri for ten years. He was chief Washington correspondent of the Post-Dispatch from 1918-34, editor of the editorial page, 1934-39, and contributing editor since 1939.

The President said he called Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and obtained a two-year leave of absence for Ross to take over the White House assignment.

OPA TO REVISE MEAT PRICE AND SUBSIDY POLICY

Program Meeting Industry Complaints Reported to Senate Committee.

CONSUMER COST NOT TO RISE

Counsel for Packers Says Agency Agrees to Follow System Giving Fair Profit.

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—A Revised Office of Price Administration meat price and subsidiary program, designed to meet the industry's complaints of price "squeezes," was reported to the Senate food investigators today.

Informed quarters said that the new OPA program would continue consumer prices at present levels and accomplish the adjustments through subsidies. It may be announced this week end.

Details of the program were not disclosed, but the general aims were set out in a letter from Wilbur La Roe, general counsel for the National Independent Meat Packers Association, to Senator Thomas (D.-Okla.), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Mr. Thomas put the letter, dated April 5, into the committee's record on food hearings.

Tells of Flexible Policy.

La Roe said that OPA had agreed in principle to a more flexible policy under which it will seek "to keep the industry's revenues in any quarter above the cost of production and by adjustment during the year will seek, so far as practicable, to maintain the industry's earnings for the year as a whole equal to those in a fair, pre-war base period."

Henry G. Van Veen of the OPA general counsel's office assured the Senate committee that the OPA is "working on the problem constantly.' He added that he thought the agency would be ready to report to the committee next week on its solution.

Packers have complained that under the OPA's present price policies they are losing money on every steer and hog they kill. They contend that the margin between prices for live animals and for meat products is so narrow they cannot operate.

Higher Beef Price Suggested.

Former Representative Richard M. Kleberg, manager of the King Ranch in Texas, told the House Food Investigating Committee that "The place to fight the black market is in the pocketbooks of the American people." He proposed that packers be allowed to pay three cents a pound more to the producers of top-grade beef.

The increase, he said, would divert good beef from black market channels and send it to legitimate markets. The boost would have to be passed on to the consumers and would result in higher meat counter prices, he added.

Declaring ceiling controls make it impossible for feed-lot operators to produce prime beef at a profit, Kleberg said that "it's perfectly obvious they can't put weight on cattle only to be faced by ceiling prices which force them to lose from $13 to $29 per head."

Kleberg also suggested that horse meat be used for lend-lease shipments to ease the beef shortage in this country. He told the committee that there are foreign countries now receiving lend-lease aid which consider horse meat a delicacy.

59 Foreign Diplomats Greeted by President

uman Expresses Hope for Era of Good Feeling Among Nations.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP) President Truman, greeting the foreign diplomatic corps in the midst of a work-packed day, today expressed hope for an era of cordial good feeling among nations.

It was a day in which the President shouldered many problems, foreign and domestic. For one thing, he got a direct fill-in on tangled Russian affairs from W. Averell Harriman, ambassador to Moscow.

Meets 59 Diplomats

In the afternoon, at a reception arranged by the State department, Mr. Truman shook hands with 59 diplomats from abroad. He managed to give the occasion the air of a good neighbor welcoming the folks from across the street.

"I met many of you when I was vice president and our relationship was very good," he said in a brief speech.

"I hope that our relationship will continue to be just as cordial as it was when I was vice president.

"I hope our relationship will continue to be on the same cordial plane nationally and with the world as it is between you and me."

Harriman, home for consultation, went to the White House with Secretary of State Stettinius and Undersecretary Grew. Leaving the executive offices he had nothing to report on the conference except that the talk was "about Russia."

Obviously, however, it was concerned with such pressing matters as the impending visit of Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, and the impasse over Russian demands for representation of the Moscow-sponsored Warsaw provisional government of Poland at the San Francisco United Nations conference.

The pressure of the international affairs, increasing in urgency with the approach of the San Francisco conference next week, was reflected in a White House visit by Senator Connally (D-Tex). It was Connally's last conference with the President before his start to the West coast tonight as a member of the American delegation.

The President's schedule for the day, kept up the high-speed pace he has maintained since he took office a week ago last night.

Has New Press Secretary

He worked in a brief news conference to announce the appointment of a new press secretary — Charles G. Ross, 59, Washington correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch—and to scotch reports that Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle would be moved to the White House staff. He said Biffle would be of much more use to him in his present position, and he didn't want to cripple the Senate. He authorized direct quotation on what he thinks of the Senate secretary:

"They don't make them any better than Les Biffle."

There had been widespread reports that Biffle, an old friend of the President, would become an administrative assistant.

Ross, on leave from his newspaper, will take over May 15. J. Leonard Reinsch, who has been serving as press secretary since Mr. Truman took office, has been called back to his job directing radio operations of former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio.

Another item worked into the already-crowded presidential schedule was a discussion of Masonic activities with Carl H. Claudy, executive secretary, and John D. Cunningham, director of welfare, of the Masonic Service association of the United States.

The President is a Shriner and a past grand master of the grand lodge of Missouri.

He saw the three survivors of the six Marines who hoisted the American flag on Mount Suribachi, Iwo Jima, and accepted from them the first copy off the press of the 7th War Loan poster made from AP Photographer Joe Rosenthal's famous photo of the event.

PW 'Coddling' Laid To State Dept.

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Representative Thomas (R., N.J.) said today that "the coddling" of war prisoners "in this country is due more to the attitude of the State Department" than to that of the War Department.

A member of the House Military Committee that will start a prisoner-of-war investigation next Thursday, Thomas said he and other members had asked that representatives of the State Department be called as witnesses.

"No Doubt Of Coddling"

"There's no doubt in my mind," he said, "that Italian and German prisoners are coddled by this Administration."

Thomas said he had investigated conditions at Camp Shanks, N.Y.; Camp McNall, N.C., and some other camps. Our handling, he asserted, "doesn't command the respect even of the prisoners."

Two Convicted Of Sabotage

Fort Smith, Ark., April 20 (AP)—A Camp Chaffe court-martial convicted two German prisoners of war of sabotage yesterday and sentenced them to five years in prison.

The prisoners, Heinz Bartel, 19, and Henrich Wideman, 20, were charged with puncturing 25 truck tires at the camp with nails.

The seven-man military court reached the verdict after a two-day trial.

SHAPIRO GETS FULL PARDON

Truman Acts in Case of Army Lieutenant.

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—President Truman has ordered a full pardon for Sidney Shapiro, former Air Force lieutenant who was dismissed from the service on a charge of delaying and obstructing court-martial proceedings. The War Department, announcing the President's action, said that Mr. Truman had acted on a department recommendation based on the fact that the charge was served on Shapiro only eighty minutes before his trial was to begin.

The charge stemmed from an Army trial in September, 1943. Shapiro, then a lieutenant in the Army Air Forces stationed at the Grand Island, Neb., Army air base, was assigned to defend an enlisted man charged with assault with intent to commit rape.

At the trial Shapiro substituted another soldier for the defendant. After witnesses had identified the substitute as the accused man, Shapiro produced the real defendant.

A few days later, the defendant again was brought to trial, identified by the same witnesses, convicted, and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. The Army then proceeded against Lieut. Shapiro for "delaying the orderly progress of the court-martial."

Civil Action Refused.

The court-martial findings ultimately were approved and on January 4, 1944, Lieut. Shapiro was relieved of his commission. He sought a civil court review of the case, but it was denied.

Several newspapers had criticized the action against Shapiro, and the Washington Star had carried on a sustained editorial campaign for correction of what it termed a "grave injustice.' In making the recommendation to the President, Under-Secretary of War Patterson said: "The War Department fully realizes the responsibility placed upon it in administering military justice, and seeks to do everything within its power to give those brought before military tribunals full opportunity for a complete defense and an impartial trial."

Congressional Medal Urged For Ernie Pyle

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Posthumous award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to Ernie Pyle, Scripps-Howard columnist killed on Ie Jima, was proposed in a resolution introduced in the Senate today by Senator Willis (R., Ind.).

The Senator said Pyle was "as much a part of America as Mark Twain, or the corner drugstore, or the church in every town."

Franking Privilege For Mrs. Roosevelt

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—A bill granting Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt lifetime mail franking privileges passed the Senate unanimously today. It was introduced by Majority Leader Barkley, who explained that similar legislation had been enacted with respect to other presidential widows, including Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Warren G. Harding and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. President Truman had asked that the privilege be extended to Mrs. Roosevelt, and a bill to that effect was introduced in the House yesterday by Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts.

Gen. Van Fleet Is Another '15 West Pointer In High Post

Washington, April 20 (AP) — Maj. Gen. James A. Van Fleet is the latest member of West Point's famous class of 1915 to rise to high position in World War II.

The new commander of the 3d Army Corps in Germany is a classmate of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied supreme commander of the European theater; Gen. Omar Bradley, chief of the 12th Army Group; Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy supreme commander of the Mediterranean theater, and of several leaders in the Pacific and Asiatic theaters.

In D-Day Struggle

Van Fleet went into Europe in this war fighting. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for "superior leadership and personal bravery" on the Normandy beachhead on D-day while with his 90th Division.

A few days after the landing he visited a front-line position and while there captured an enemy guard from whom information was obtained for use in a subsequent successful advance.

Wounded In Previous War

The 53-year-old general is a native of Coytesville, N.J. A veteran of World War I, he was wounded in action in the Meuse-Argonne offensive while commanding a machine-gun battalion, for which he was awarded the Silver Star and Purple Heart.

His wife now lives in Washington, D.C.

Says Truman Backs Roosevelt on Zion

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, chairman of the American Zionist Emergency Council, said today that President Truman had indorsed the late President Roosevelt's most recent statements on Zionism. Rabbi Wise said that Mr. Truman had these statements before him when he and two other officers of the Zionist council called at the White House. The statements, he said, included Mr. Roosevelt's advocacy of a free and democratic Jewish commonwealth in Palestine.

Rations On Fuel Oil To Remain Unchanged

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Fuel oil rations will be maintained during the 1945-46 heating season at about the same level as last year, the OPA said today.

The agency also announced that all currently-valid fuel oil coupons would expire August 31, the end of the present heating year, instead of being carried over as was the case with 1944-45 stamps.

"It is felt," the agency said, "that prospective supplies for the coming year will not permit carrying over the present coupons."

As last year, householders and other users will be able to obtain a portion of their next winter's supply of fuel oil this summer. Dates when local ration boards will mail new application blanks to consumers will be announced next month.

Navy Opens Daily Flights to Paris

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—The Naval Air Transport Service command today announced inauguration of daily service to Paris.

The service is designed to speed the flow of strategic materials and important naval personnel to the European war theater.

The schedule will be operated by Air Transport Squadron 1 of the Atlantic wing of the N. A. T. S. command. This squadron, the first N. A. T. squadron to be organized, pioneered daily scheduled flights across the North and South Atlantic throughout the year.

The new service will employ giant four-engined R-5-D aircraft, popularly known as Douglas "Sky Masters." Through co-operation with the Army Air Transport command, junction schedules have been timed to make possible the routing of high priority passengers and mail without delay to points beyond Paris.

All Or Nothing, Is Lewis's Coal Pact Demand

Washington, April 20 (AP)—John L. Lewis has asked the War Labor Board to approve all or nothing in his new contract with the nation's soft coal operators.

Signed April 11 after 41 days of negotiations, the contract must be passed upon by WLB before it can become effective.

The United Mine Workers' president made his position known to the board last week. He declared, it was learned today, that each of the points was agreed upon in relation to the whole contract and that if the board cannot approve it all, it should reject the whole agreement.

$1.07 A Day Increase

The board has been considering the agreement—giving an increase to the average miner of $1.07 a day for a six-day week—for several days with scarcely an objection raised.

One official with ready access to WLB said that tentative approval already has been reached on all but one paragraph. He added that he foresaw no serious objection to the remaining point.

Lewis had discarded, during the bargaining, his demand for a 10-cent-a-ton royalty for the union.

The board will discuss the contract agreement again tomorrow. A decision could be reached by Monday, a full week before the 30-day extension for the old contract lapses.

Goes To OPA, Davis

Board approval still would leave to OPA and Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis, however, a determination whether a coal price increase will be needed. Both the union and operators said it would be.

The operators estimated roughly that the agreement would add 25 cents to the cost of a ton of coal, or $150,000,000 a year on the basis of present output.

The producers insist they were making less than 7 cents a ton at the end of 1944 and would be unable to absorb any of the extra cost.

ARMY WITHHOLDS ACTION ON NEGROES

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—The War Department said today that pending an investigation no further disciplinary action will be taken against Negro officers involved in a controversy at Freeman Field, Ind.

A spokesman said that three Negro officers accused of jostling a Provost Marshal when they entered a white officers' club April 5 are under arrest and 101 others are confined to quarters as a result of their refusal to sign an agreement not to enter the club.

The 101 officers have been transferred from Freeman Field to Goodman Field near Fort Knox, Ky.

The club to which the Negroes sought entry had been set aside for base personnel and instructors, all white. Another club is operated for the officers in training, all Negroes in a bombardment squadron.

An air force spokesman said that separate clubs for instructors and for trainees is customary in the training command whether or not there is any racial difference between the two groups. The idea, he said, is to discourage social contacts between instructors and trainees and prevent any possible favoritism toward students.

WORLD COURT PLANS READY

Jurists Have Revised Law of Hague Tribunal.

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—Jurists of forty-four United Nations completed plans today for a world court and prepared to present them to the San Francisco Conference next week.

Working at top speed during the past nine days, legal experts of all the United Nations except South Africa, India and Poland have revised the organic law of the old permanent Court of International Justice which formerly met at The Hague in Holland.

This court still technically is in existence, as is its parent organization, the League of Nations, but it has not sat since Holland was invaded.

Working over the old court's statute, the jurists had to wait for translations of each word and phrase and then agree on proposed revisions. The new court would function along with a general assembly and a security council as part of the United Nations organization to be chartered at San Francisco.

Full details of the proposed court organization will not be revealed until the plan is presented at the United Nations' meeting. However, it is understood that alternative proposals will be suggested regarding compulsory jurisdiction—whether a country must, in order to belong to the court, bind itself to submit to the court's authority on certain types of cases.

The meetings here were presided over by Green H. Hackworth, legal adviser to the State Department, who will take the plan to San Francisco.

PROTESTS ARMY DRAFT STAND

Senator O'Daniel Urges Combat Age Limit.

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—Senators disputed today whether the War Department ever promised that soldiers under 20 would not be sent into combat without twelve months' training.

Senator O'Daniel (D.-Tex.) contended that this was "the impression given the country" in 1942 when the draft age was lowered to include 18- and 19-year-olds.

Senator O'Daniel said: "Mothers and fathers now have no assurance that their 18-year-old sons will have any military training at all before combat. "Congress ought to give them that assurance," he said.

Senator McClellan (D.-Ark.), agreed with Mr. ODaniel that the impression was general that the Army had promised a minimum of one year's training for 18-year-old inductees.

"I believe the Congress will fail to meet its obligations to the people if it does ont set a minimum of training for these boys," Mr. McClellan said.

Senator Thomas (D.-Utah), chairman of the Military Committee, opposing any restrictive amendments, said: "I dont believe any man or any man's parents wants special privilege" in proposing to specify a certain length of training for one particular age group of inductees, Mr. Thomas argued.

Senator O'Daniel has urged that the Senate write an amendment to that effect into pending legislation to extend the draft act, now due to expire May 15.

Taking issue with the Texan, Senator Austin (R.-Vt.) read a letter which he said the War Department sent to the military committee on October 23, 1942, opposing a requirement for twelve months of training.

The letter said that numerous cases could be cited where this would result in men waiting "on the shelf" in this country when they were needed in combat.

Amendments to the extension act restricting the use of men under 19 in combat service also are sought.

The draft extender came through the House without modification, simply moving up the expiration date one year to May 15, 1946, or the end of the war, whichever arrives first.

Chemical Torpedo New Secret Weapon Of Navy

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Existence of a new, top-secret "chemical torpedo" in the Navy's arsenal came to light today.

Although officially disclosed, requests for further details brought no information from the Navy except that the subject is "secret."

Information released in publicized congressional hearings gave no indication of the significance of the name "chemical," but it evidently applies to a modification of the steam-turbine propulsion.

Evidence On Reassembling

Such evidence is found in the fact that naval establishments equipped to reassemble torpedoes after they have been "ranged" in firing tests will do the same work on the new type.

Torpedoes probably are the most complex, delicately assembled and most costly wholly expendable weapons in the whole field of ordnance. Prewar costs ranged up to $15,000 each, although wartime mass production has cut that figure to about $9,000 each.

The old-style torpedo, in addition to its "warhead" of several hundred pounds of T.N.T., has its own built-in propulsive mechanism put into operation by a trip-lever released when the torpedo is fired.

Old-Style Operation

About one third of the tube consists of a flask of air under high pressure. When the torpedo is fired, the air escapes through small pipe lines into a combustion chamber where it is mixed with jets of alcohol and water.

The alcohol is ignited, and resultant steam and gas, under high pressure, is forced against turbines which rotate the propeller shafts.

Other built-in mechanisms control its course and depth.

3 Flag-raisers Meet Truman

Survivors of Mt. Suribachi Episode Assigned to Help 7th War Loan Drive.

Washington, April 20 (AP).—The only three survivors of the famous little group of Marines who raised the flag on Mount Suribachi went to see President Truman today. They handed him the first copy off the press of the Seventh War Loan poster made from Associated Press Photographer Joe Rosenthal's epic photo of the flag-raising.

Then, in their first news conference, the three men told how they hoisted the Stars and Stripes into place on a very heavy piece of Japanese pipe they found on top of the mountain. Though there were six men in the picture, only five are shown clearly.

The three survivors:

Pfc. Ira H. Hayes, 22 years old, of Bapchule, Ariz., a member of the Pima tribe of Indians.

Pfc. Rene A. Gagnon, 20, of Manchester, N. H.

Phamacist's Mate 2/C John H. Bradley, 22, of Appleton, Wis., who is on crutches as a result of shrapnel wounds through both legs a few days after the flag-raising.

Other Three Dead.

The other three in the group, all dead now, were Sergt. Michael Strank of Conemaugh, Pa.; Sergt. Henry O. Hansen of Somerville, Mass., and Pfc. Franklin R. Sousley of Ewing, Ky.

The three survivors were brought from the Pacific at the personal request of the late President Roosevelt. They will make personal appearances in the Seventh War Loan drive, which starts on May 14.

The Treasury is printing 3,700,000 copies of the poster. In addition, it will appear on thousands of billboards and in newspaper ads during the bond drive.

CONNALLY GIVES FOREWORD ON WORLD PARLEY

Tells Senate U.S. Delegation to San Francisco Is in Harmony.

30.24-24985

HAS TALK WITH TRUMAN

Says There Will Be No Slavish Devotion to Every Line of Dumbarton Oaks Formula.

Washington, April 20.—Senator Connally (D.-Tex.), told the Senate today that there is "harmony and unity" among the American delegates to the San Francisco conference of the United Nations.

An hour after conferring with President Truman, the Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who is one of the United States delegates, declared he had every confidence that the New Chief Executive would give the group his fullest support in their decisions. He is leaving tonight for San Francisco.

The Dumbarton Oaks formula for a peace-preserving organization will form the basis for the labors of San Francisco, he said, adding: "This does not mean, however, there will be any slavish devotion to every line and every clause of that instrument."

Senator Connally stressed the bi-partisan co-operation which has marked every step in creating the peace-keeping plan. He pointed out that the congressional members of the American delegation to San Francisco are equally divided between the two major political parties. Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) is the other representative of the Senate.

"It is higher than the political ambitions of any man," Connally went on. "It is more important than the fortunes of any political party."

He said the country should not expect "perfectionism" in the plan which will be worked out at San Francisco, but he expressed the hope that means will be provided to make changes as they become desirable.

"I feel in this supreme hour of tragedy that the United States has a patriotic responsibility—a lofty duty—to perform, in leading the people of the world away from the concept of rule by the sword," he said.

"It seems to me fundamental that intelligent nations composed of intelligent people must and will work out a sure plan for the prevention of war and to give security to teh peoples of the earth.

"We have been able to associate ourselves with other nations in making war. Why should not we, the same nations, associate ourselves together not only in making the peace but in securing the peace in the years to come?

Vandenberg Indorses Statement.

"There is no effective law against aggression of nations," he said. "We must create such a law."

"I pray God that the Senator from Michigan, Mr. Vandenberg, and myself may bring back to the Senate a document that will receive ratification as representative of the United States," he concluded.

Senator Vandenberg said he was "glad to join in the sturdy statement" of his Texas colleague.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, bidding godspeed to the two senatorial delegates, said he believed he voiced the sentiments of the American people in saying, "We have faith in the American delegation."

Not Partisan Question.

"This is not a partisan question," the Texas Senator thundered. "This is an issue that touches the life and welfare of every citizen of the republic. We have tried to keep it on a lofty plane. . . ."

Senator Connally saw the President soon after Mr. Truman had reviewed Russian questions with Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Mr. Harriman declined to disclose the nature of their discussion other than to say that it was "about Russia."

Ambassador Harriman was accompanied to the White House by Secretary of State Stettinius and Under-Secretary Grew.

Meanwhile a drive took form among smaller nations to write boundary guaranties into any peace-keeping organization.

3 SIGN PACT WITH RUSSIA

New Lend-Lease Agreement Has Short Time To Run

Washington, April 20 (AP)—The United States, Britain and Canada have signed the fourth lend-lease agreement with Russia in Ottawa, the State Department announced tonight.

The agreement, which was signed on April 17, covers a period from July 1, 1944, to June 30, 1945, having only a little over two more months to run.

No dollar value was placed on the agreement, which was in effect a shipping schedule of supplies which for the most part already have been delivered.

It was said that the lend-lease agreement applies only to strictly wartime supplies and that there was no provision for long-range goods for which Russia could pay later. Provisions of that nature were incorporated in the recent British and French agreements.

Delayed During Discussion

Russia has put in a request for a $6,000,000,000 credit from the United States and the signing of the protocol was delayed for several months while the four powers discussed whether any goods which might be used after the war should be included.

The decision finally was against inclusion, and it appeared that so far as Russia is concerned, material for long-range use will be handled either completely separate from lend-lease or await a new protocol.

That protocol may not come up until more definite signs have appeared on whether Russia is going into the war against Japan.

Those Signing It

The fourth protocol was signed by Ray Atherton, United States Ambassador to Canada; Malcolm MacDonald, British high commissioner in Canada; G. N. Zaroubin, Russian Ambassador to Canada; Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King and James L. Ilsley, Canadian Minister of Finance.

The State Department announcement said that the Soviets reaffirmed their determination in the new agreement to furnish "such raw materials, other supplies and services required for war use as can be made available" to the other three Allies.

From October 1, 1941, when lend-lease began, to June 30, 1944, the United States sent $5,900,000,000 and by December 1, 1944, the total had reached $7,436,767,000, an increase of over a billion and a half dollars in five months.

O'NEAL FAVORS BRETTON PLAN

Farm Bureau Head Stresses Foreign Trade Angle.

Washington, April 20 (A. P.)—The Bretton Woods international monetary agreements were indorsed today by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. At the same time, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau declared that the adoption of the Bretton Woods program would "provide the necessary setting for a large expansion in our foreign trade."

O'Neal told the House Banking Committee considering the Bretton Woods agreement that the proposed bank for reconstruction aid and the international fund for stabilization of currency "are a necessary part of international co-operation and domestic economy."

"We must diligently seek methods of international co-operation which will lessen the likelihood of repeating the catastrophe in which we are now engaged," he added. "Let it not be said of this Congress that they refused to try. It will be better to have tried and failed than not to have tried at all."

The monetary plans worked out by United Nations representatives last summer at Bretton Woods, N. H., also were indorsed in principle by Albert Creichton, chairman of the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. Testifying before a Senate small business subcommittee considering methods to expand the nation's overseas commerce, Secretary Morgenthau expressed the opinion that congressional approval of the international fiscal agreements would stabilize exchange rates, prevent competitive depreciation of foreign currencies, and, in general, create an environment in which small business can prosper.

"Once stability of exchange rates is achieved," he said, "American investments abroad will have as their counterpart an immediate and direct foreign demand for American goods. Many of these demands could be filled by little business—indeed, must be, if a big increase in business is to come our way."

Spokesman Favors Plan.

The Bretton Woods proposals were characterized by a Treasury Department spokesman here today as a basis for strengthening private enterprise and freedom. The Treasury official, Assistant Secretary Herbert E. Gaston, spoke at the fifth annual seminar of the New York chapter of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters.

"If private industry, private initiative, private trade and human freedom itself are to have a chance, we've got to organize to give them a chance," Gaston asserted. "That's what the Bretton Woods proposals are about. Intelligent and able and informed men from forty-four countries thought these proposals good from this standpoint and human freedom and a chance for all. It seems to me that indicates we ought to give them a trial."

Gaston asserted that inaction brought the world into this war and that action now with other nations will prevent its repetition. Sound world prosperity goes hand-in-hand with peace and the organization of a bank for reconstruction and development of the world's resources is designed to "make this an internati responsibility."

Charges Fly In Tariff Tiff

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Republicans and Democrats took history apart today and put it back together to suit themselves.

The biggest tariff battle in years got going in earnest in the House. Bitter exchanges occurred as the Ways and Means Committee delved into legislation proposing to give the Administration broad new power to cut tariffs in reciprocal trade pacts with other nations.

Democrats sat silently, although with evident irritation, when Representative Knutson (R., Minn.) said the depression of the early '30's was not a Republican depression but stemmed "from the last World War that the Democrats promised to keep us out of."

Doughton's Rejoinder

But when Knutson attributed the 1893 panic to Democratic President Cleveland's "free trade policies," Chairman Doughton (D., N.C.) fired back:

"The so-called Cleveland panic had its inception in the Republican Harrison Administration. You Republicans have been trying to unload that panic on Cleveland for 50 years."

Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.) described the present reciprocal trade program, inaugurated in 1934, as "a sham and a fraud upon the American people—and a complete failure." He contended that the Adminnistration is "against" all synthetic industries, such as rubber and plastics, and intends to encourage postwar importations of natural rubber and other raw products that compete with synthetics.

Rockefeller Denies That

Nelson A. Rockefeller, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin American affairs and the witness before the committee, disputed Gearhart's assertions. He said the Administration plan is to build American exports and increase employment.

Report on Rose's Death Asked

Stimson Says War Department Believes General Was Shot After Surrendering.

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—War Secretary Stimson has asked for a full report on the death of Major-Gen. Maurice Rose, who was killed in action, reportedly after he had surrendered.

In a letter to Senator Johnson (D.-Col.) and Millikin (R.-Col.), made public today, Mr. Stimson said that facts so far known by the War Department indicate that Gen. Rose was killed while holding his hands above his head. The general was a resident of Denver.

The incident occurred March 30 while Gen. Rose was proceeding along a route in an armored column near Paderborn, Germany, the War Secretary related.

"In moving forward," he said, "Gen. Rose avoided several hostile tanks by moving cross-country, but later returned to the road where other German tanks were encountered.

"Gen. Rose was rading in a peep (ordinarily referred to as a 'jeep'), accompanied by his aid and his driver, and two of the enemy tanks were successfully eluded without the peep being fired upon, but because of the narrow road the peep collided with the right front fender of a third tank.

"When the German tank commander shouted excitedly, Gen. Rose and his party dismounted with their hands above their heads and, being unable to understand what the tank commander was saying, believed that they were being called upon to surrnder their weapons. The aid, who was wearing a shoulder holster, dropped it to the gorund.

"It then appears that when the aid disposed of his pistol, the turret gunner opened fire with a light automatic weapon and Gen. Rose fell forward.

"Realizing that the enemy did not intend to take the party prisoners, the aide jumped into a ditch of the side of the road and escaped, although he was fired upon frequently. The driver took another route and also escaped."

ROOSEVELTS QUIT CAPITAL

Personal Belongings Are Taken From White House

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and her family bade good-by to the White House late today after twelve years' residence.

The former First Lady motored to Union Station, where she took the 6 P.M. train for New York. Accompanying her in two black limousines were Lieut. Col. James Roosevelt and his wife; Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt and his wife; Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, Mrs. John Roosevelt and Miss Melvina Thompson, secretary to the late President's widow.

Baruch Bids Farewell

A station wagon filled with luggage and paper briefcases followed the procession. Mrs. Roosevelt expected to spend the night and Saturday night in New York before proceeding to Hyde Park.

Just a few minutes before the group left the White House, Bernard Baruch, a family friend and long an adviser to President Roosevelt, drove up in a taxi to bid the family farewell. His stay was brief.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her children shook hands with Howell Crim, head usher, and assisting ushers and waved good-by to members of the press and White House police.

Trumans Not To Move Yet

She did not glance back at the stately White House which had been her home for so many years. No lights gleamed within, and silence engulfed the scene where before there had been great activity.

President Truman, Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Mary Margaret, are not expected to move into the executive mansion for several days because there will have to be some redecorating of the family apartments on the second floor.

This morning twenty army trucks loaded with personal belongings of the Roosevelt family rolled out of the gates. As a White House guard put it, "there wasn't enough room left in any of them for even a teaspoon."

Free Mailing Privileges

The Senate this afternoon unanimously passed and sent to the House a bill granting the President's widow free mailing privileges for life. This is customary.

their personal and historical belongings accumulated during twelve years in the Executive Mansion.

Packing and shipping was complicated, Mrs. Roosevelt said, by the fact that Mr. Roosevelt's will listed hundreds of objects to be given as remembrances to relatives and friends. She spent a large part of those four days telephoning to find out their choices of the gifts named.

Had To Choose For Sons.

As for her two youngest sons, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and John Roosevelt, both naval officers on duty in the Pacific, Mrs. Roosevelt said that she had to choose for them as she thought her husband would have wished. Because of military security they have been unable to communicate with her since their father's death.

Mrs. Roosevelt planned to leave today for New York city, stay in her apartment there until Sunday and then go to Hyde Park.

Meantime, Mrs. Roosevelt's daughter, Anna, Mrs. John Boettiger, will move from the White House, probably to a Washington hotel. Her husband, a lieutenant-colonel is stationed here. Their 5-year-old son, Johnny, is seriously ill with a throat infection.

Holds Press Conference.

The former First Lady said that Mrs. Truman has been very sweet in saying that Anna may leave some of her things in the White House and return at her convenience to pack them.

Despite her grief and the task of moving, Mrs. Roosevelt found time yesterday to invite members of her news conference group to say farewell. She gave them tea for the last time in the state dining room of the White House.

MRS. ROOSEVELT MOVES TODAY

Ends Sorting and Packing Family Possessions.

Washington, April 20 (A. P.).—The Franklin D. Roosevelt family is moving out of the White House today to make way for the family of Harry S. Truman.

In the four days after the burial of her distinguished husband, Mrs. Roosevelt managed to sort, pack and clear out all of

War Spending Is Held To Be Past Peak

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Congressional appropriations for war activities have started downward after four years of record heights

This trend, however, probably won't be reflected for some time in actual Government expenditures.

The "hump" in big appropriations was passed this week when the House gave its okay to a $24,879,510,546 naval supply bill for 1946 fiscal year, starting July 1. This was almost $7,000,000,000 less than Congress made available to the Navy for the current fiscal year.

Army Fund Cut Likely

Another big dip is expected in the Army's 1946 fiscal year budget, last of the "big money" measures to be considered this year.

"Unless something unforeseen comes up, we are definitely over the hump in appropriations," Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee commented when the navy bill was approved.

"We are well stocked and supplied and from here on out it should be only a matter of keeping the supplies and replacements flowing."

War spending hit a new high in March of this year, reaching $8,245,939,462, or approximately $269,000,000 daily. March expenditures for war activities alone were more than a billion dollars in excess of all Government receipts, which reached a new high during the month. Non-war expenditures in March reached a monthly record of $1,142,553,501.

Much Unspent, But Obligated

Because much of the money Congress has shoveled into the war program has not been spent—although most all of it has been obligated—war spending may continue at a high level for some time. Planes, ships and other supplies ordered in the past are being delivered steadily, and the bills are footed out of the backlog of past appropriations.

Should the war end tomorrow, it would be some time before war spending would taper off sharply. There would be outstanding contracts to be settled.

374 Billions In Four Years

Since the so-called war activities program started, on July 1, 1940. Congress has appropriated or approved contract authorizations aggregating $374,257,170,951, exclusive of almost $25,000,000,000 in the new navy bill.

More than $325,000,000,000 of that was for the Army and the Navy, the remainder being for activities of other agencies such as the Maritime Commission.

Actual war expenditures during that period, up to March 31 of this year, were $258,356,779,204.

The War Department has accounted for $206,832,022,786 of the appropriations and authorizations and $146,281,877,259 of the expenditures. The Navy's share of the appropriations was $118,397,431,243 and its exenditures $81,060,799,636.

Price Cut, Wage Boost Is Ordered For Textiles

Washington, April 20 (AP)—The Government today decreed lower prices for clothing but higher wages for workers who loom the cloth.

In separate actions designed to increase output of textiles and low-cost wearing apparel:

1. Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis approved a 55-cent wage floor and a general 5-cent-an-hour wage increase for 50,000 textile workers in 54 northern and southern mills.

2. OPA ordered apparel and accessory manufacturers to cut back their prices to average 1943 levels and thus trim retail prices about six per cent.

Seemingly In Conflict

Although these moves seemingly were in conflict, Davis said he had been advised by OPA that the wage increase in itself would not require an industry-wide price increase.

OPA said, however, that some mills "may become entitled to individual adjustments."

In allowing the wage increase, previously approved by the War Labor Board, Davis said he recognized the importance of increased textile output "to meet military requirements and the domestic need for low-cost clothing, considered vital in maintaining the cost of living at present levels."

"Almost Unique Significance"

In a letter to WLB Chairman George W. Taylor, Davis termed the need for greater textile production "of almost unique significance in its critical relationship to the fight to hold down the cost of living."

The wage adjustment, granted to members of the CIO Textile Workers Union, calls for a 55-cent-an-hour minimum rate and a general 5-cent-an-hour increase in rates above the minimum.

Since the minimum in general has been 50 cents, this amounts to an average across-the-board boost of 5 cents an hour.

Collecting Bargaining Okayed

Davis also gave the green light to negotiations through collective bargaining for a "more balanced and properly aligned wage-rate structure." WLB had recommended this to provide reasonable differentials for key skills above the minimum rate.

Any adjustments WLB subsequently may approve along those lines will require an OPA price determination with a decision up to Davis if price increases would result.

OPA's new order affecting clothing manufacturers was described by Price Administrator Chester Bowles as "one of the last major steps" in the Government's program to increase production of moderate and low-priced clothing while simultaneously reducing retail prices.

Order Operative In June

In effect, it requires producers of cotton, wool and rayon garments and accessories to go back to their average price lines of 1943.

Known as the maximum average price regulation, the order will become operative in June. By late summer it should bring a better supply of inexpensive clothing, Bowles said.

Small Packers' Profit Probe Asked Of OPA

Washington, April 20 (AP)—A House food investigating committee asked OPA today to check on the operations of several independent packers whose business has skyrocketed during the current beef shortage.

Back from a two-week search with his committee for black marketeers, Chairman Anderson (D., N.M.) reported the case of one independent Ohio packer. His business, Anderson said, has increased tenfold at a time when big packing companies contend they are forced by OPA ceilings to operate at a loss.

"Obvious Place To Check"

"This is an obvious place for the OPA to check," Anderson asserted. "They should find out where the beef comes from and where it goes—investigate the complete sales record.

"If legitimate packers have to operate at a loss now, it is foolhardy to think such plants as the one I have in mind are doing business at a loss ten times over."

The committee called in Chester Bowles, price administrator, and put before him these suggestions:

1. An immediate review of the slaughtering permits issued farmers who do butchering for home consumption. [It wants a check of their beef supply and of where the meat is going.]

"Abundant Testimony"

"There is abundant testimony," Anderson said, "that the meat from small slaughterers frequently moves to market without regard for rationing points or price ceilings."

2. Authority to deputize local state inspectors and Federal meat inspectors to spread the supply of Federally inspected meat, the only type that will be accepted in interstate commerce.

"That," Anderson said, "would distribute more evenly the available supply of meat and prevent feeder lots (where cattle are fed to shortages in territories now served only by Federally inspected packers."

Would Guarantee Price

3. Stimulate the movement to proper weight for slaughter) by guaranteeing a better price to feeders without boosting the retail price of meat.

"That would mean an additional Government subsidy at feeder lots," said Anderson.

4. Investigate a better distribution of cattle to markets to equalize the meat supply.

"The river markets—Chicago, St. Louis, etc.—are getting an ample supply of beef while some inland markets are far short of demand," Anderson explained. "We'll suggest that OPA investigate transportation facilities to see if a better spread of beef marketing can't be obtained."

Plenty On The Ranges

Anderson said there is plenty of beef on the ranges now, but that feeder lots are having trouble.

Centering his attention on the cases of independent packers whose business has multiplied, Anderson declared:

"The black market doesn't need to be controlled at the corner market.

"The supplier of black-market beef must be stopped because he, by selling above ceilings, is keeping the entire meat market so high that legitimate packers find it difficult to operate."

Warning On Sugar

Meanwhile, Representative Johnman (R., Mich.), speaking for the Republican Congressional Food Study Committee, told the House yesterday that "the worst sugar shortage of the entire emergency period" is ahead because of "present Federal Government policies."

He cautioned that unless remedial steps are taken a black market may develop that would prevent housewives from using their sugar ration stamps "in the weeks immediately ahead."

Truman Moving Cautiously On War Issues

Washington, April 20 (AP)—President Truman is moving cautiously into Franklin D. Roosevelt's seat on the council of highest Allied military strategy. His weight is likely to be felt in Pacific decisions.

Even before V-E day comes, Mr. Truman may be called upon to review the strategy for defeating Japan that undoubtedly was discussed at Yalta by his predecessor and Prime Minister Churchill, if not Premier Stalin also.

May Call Leaders

In this connection it would not be surprising to Washington observers if the new President called Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Gen. Douglas MacArthur home for personal conferences before the final assault on Japan.

President Roosevelt arranged for Nimitz and MacArthur to share command for the on-to-Tokyo drive. There are no indications that Mr. Truman plans to disturb this setup. Consequently, he may want to have the views of the field leaders as well as those of the Allied high command members here.

Two Views

Generally there are two schools of thought in Washington about the quickest way of subduing the Japanese.

One of these favors a direct, all-out assault on the Jap islands.

The other apparently calls for a landing on the China coast, starving Japan by blockade and destroying its factories and cities by bombing.

The high command will have to decide, if it has not already done so, what method is to be used. It is in such a decision that Mr. Truman is likely to play a part.

Truman's Role

This does not mean, the President's friends said, that he will ever overrule a decision reached unanimously, or nearly so, by the military leaders. But if they disagree, Mr. Truman will have to decide.

Mr. Truman is said to recognize that his chief responsibility as commander in chief lies in the Pacific, since the strategy that has taken Allied troops to the doors of Berlin was decided on long ago.

The Russian Puzzle

In the Pacific, however, Russia's attitude toward entering the war with Japan remains publicly unknown. American military leaders who accompanied Mr. Roosevelt to Yalta naturally know of any agreements made and the strategy mapped there.

But the possibility remains that Mr. Roosevelt and Stalin came to some understandings of their own in at least two conferences they were reported to have held with none of their advisers present.

Most persons in official Washington believe that Russia's recent deunuciation of her neutrality treaty with Japan means she will enter the war against the Japanese. However, there may have been no such understanding. That subject is considered certain to be discussed with Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov when he comes here this week end.

Dewey Urges Unity In Cause Of Peace

New York, April 20 (AP)—Unity of the American people in the cause of peace is asked by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who says the nation's citizens must "strengthen the hand of our new President" and of delegates to the San Francisco conference.

The 1944 Republican presidential nominee, speaking here last night at the opening of an exhibition under auspices of the Jewish Labor Committee, said that national unity must be behind our delegation so that "with firmness and foresight they will bring to the conference at San Francisco the unanimous determination of our nation for a lasting peace."

Roosevelt Policy Nets Foundation $560,000

New York, April 20 (AP)—The Eastern Underwriter, a weekly insurance newspaper, said today the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation was beneficiary of a $560,000 life-insurance policy taken out on the late President Roosevelt in 1930.

The magazine said Keith Morgan, a Foundation vice president and close friend of the late President, conceived the idea for the policy and arranged that premiums be paid by a group interested in Warm Springs.

Morgan placed the policy with twelve companies when Roosevelt was Governor of New York. Morgan's office said five of the companies already had settled claims.

Hitler Speech Missed Air

New York, April 20 (AP)—Paul Joseph Goebbels's speech to the German people last night in honor of Hitler's 56th birthday was not heard in many parts of Berlin because of an unexpected cut in the city's electric power, the German Transocean news agency said today.

"The Berlin population, in its air raid shelters during the alert sounded this morning, is reading the speech," Transocean said in a broadcast heard by the FCC.

Freed Officer Spurns Chance to Come Home

Tells Wife He'll Avenge Nazi Slayers of Friends

PHILADELPHIA, April 20 (AP).—Lieutenant W. Whitney Smith, who has never seen his eighteen-month-old twins, isn't ready to come home.

Liberated by the Russians after seven months as a prisoner of the Germans, the lieutenant wrote his wife: "Although the only thing that kept me going in prison was the thought of coming back to you and the twins, I have decided nevertheless to stay and finish the job."

His reason for staying is what happened when he was taken prisoner last June.

"We were snipers up front," he wrote. "There were only three of us. We had used up all our ammunition. We could only wait. We came out with our hands in the air. And then the Germans shot down the other two men."

They were Lieutenant Smith's best friends.

HERALD-TRIBUNE WINS AYER AWARD

PHILADELPHIA, April 20—(AP) The New York Herald-Tribune today won for the third time the F. Wayland Ayer cup, highest recognition in the 15th annual exhibition of newspaper typography conducted by the N. W. Ayer & Son inc., advertising firm.

The award is made for excellence in typography, makeup, presswork and paper-saving use of type and format, the company announced. Last year's winner was the Chicago Sun.

The Tribune, chosen from more than 1,000 entries of english-language dailies, also took first place in 1939 and 1941. The cup now becomes the paper's permanent possession.

Honorable mentions were awarded to papers in the following circulation and format groups:

Standard-size papers of more than 50,000 circulation: Christian Science Monitor, Boston, first; New York Times, second; Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City, Okla., third.

From 10,000 to 50,000 circulation: The Iron Mountain News, Iron Mountain, Mich., first; Rutland Herald, Rutland, Vt., second; Dayton Journal, Dayton, Ohio, third.

Less than 10,000 circulation: Morristown, N. J., Daily Record, first; Salinas Californian, Salinas, Calif., second; Virginia Daily Enterprise, Virginia, Minn., third.

Tabloids, regardless of circulation: News, Washington, D. C.

Commenting on the exhibition, H. A. Batten, president of N. W. Ayer & Son, said "today the saving of paper continues to be one of the gravest problems facing us. It is nothing short of remarkable that the papers have been able to maintain and in many cases even improve, their physical appearance and readability."

Judges were Frank Luther Mott, dean of the University of Missouri School of Journalism; Harry Hansen, literary editor, New York World-Telegram; Bennett Cerf, author and publisher, and Lucian Bernhard, type designer and poster artist.

Publisher Knight Son Killed In Ambush In Germany

Akron, Ohio, April 20 (AP)—First Lieutenant John S. Knight, Jr., son of John S. Knight, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and publisher of the Knight newspapers, was killed March 29 in a German ambush near Muenster.

The announcement was withheld from publication several weeks so no hint would be given the 22-year-old officer's wife until after a child was born.

One Of Patrol Survives

Mrs. Knight, the former Dorothy Elizabeth Wells, of Columbus, Ga., whom Lieutenant Knight married while in parachute training at Fort Benning, Ga., became mother of a son, John S. Knight 3d, two weeks after her husband's death in action.

Knight newspapers include the Chicago Daily News, Detroit Free Press, Miami Herald and Akron Beacon Journal.

Front dispatches reported Lieutenant Knight and a reconnaissance of four men were ambushed two miles in front of American infantry lines during the 17th Air borne Division's drive on Muenster, capital of the German province of Westphalia.

Only one of the party, Pfc. Earl Holcomb, 25, of Fola, W.Va., escaped to give an account of the ambush.

Hit From All Sides

According to a Chicago Daily News dispatch, Holcomb said that the Germans, armed with light machine guns and grenades, held their fire until Knight's party, riding in an unarmored jeep, passed the first of their concealed positions. Then they opened fire from all sides.

"We never had a chance," said Holcomb.

"We hit the ditches but they were shallow and gave us no protection. I saw that we were all going to be wiped out, but Lieutenant Knight was firing his tommy gun and the rest of us fought back as well as we could. But they were well dug in. The fight lasted about five minutes."

Saved By Smoke Screen

Holcomb, realizing at the end of that interval that all the party had been killed but himself, took advantage of the smoke screen of a German hand grenade to leave the ditch and run across the road behind some houses.

He made his way to the shelter of a railroad embankment. Eluding pursuers, he reached the Allied infantry lines.

'Curfew Boosts Absenteeism'

Cleveland, April 20 (AP)—Despite the amusement curfew, six local war plants reported more absenteeism last month than in February, a survey by the Associated Industries of Cleveland showed today.

"The influence of the curfew, if there was any, was to increase absenteeism slightly," the organization's report declared.

The survey, covering 177 factories employing 79,669 workers, showed that 119,786 man-days were lost through absenteeism last month, with an average absent rate of 5.493 per cent. The February rate was 5.239 per cent.

Plants scheduling less than 10,000 man-days per month reported an absentee rate of 5.519 per cent and larger factories one of 5.487. Both were higher than comparable February figures.

Absenteeism was greater among women workers than among men, the survey revealed. The large plants reported a 4.342 per cent rate for males, against 7.061 per cent for females. In smaller factories, the rates were 4.794 per cent for men and 7.882 per cent for women.

League Of Nations Chief 'Bumped' Off Airliner

Atlanta, April 20 (AP)—Dr. Carl J. Hambro, of Norway, president of the League of Nations, spent two and a half sleepless hours at municipal airport here today after being "bumped" off an airliner by priorities while en route to Washington from Birmingham.

Eastern Airlines said Dr. Hambro was given passage later in the day.

A former president of the Norwegian Storthing, the nation's legislative body, Dr. Hambro arrived in the United States a few days ago to attend the San Francisco conference.

Nazi Prisoners Get 5 Years for Sabotage

Fort Smith, Ark., April 20 (A. P.).—Two German prisoners of war were found guilty of sabotage and sentenced to five years in prison by a Camp Chaffee court martial yesterday.

The prisoners, Heinz Bartel, 19 years old, and Heinrich Wideman, 20, were convicted on charges of damaging thirty-five truck tires by puncturing them with nails.

New President Likes Farming Best

This is the last of several stories on the life of President Truman, written by George K. Wallace, of the Kansas City Star, a long-time friend of the new Chief Executive.

By George K. Wallace

Independence, Mo., April 20 (AP). President Harry Truman knows banking, farming, the Army, business and politics equally well, but his heart is on the farm.

Curiously, although most of Truman's 60 years have been spent in city and town homes, he thinks of himself as a country boy. He has known at least six homes.

When Truman was 8, his parents moved from the farm to Independence, where they bought a home and the senior Truman bought and sold, and sometimes fed, live stock for a dozen years from 1890 to 1902. Truman attended the Nolan, Columbian and the Ott schools in Independence, missing part of his third grade year because of diphtheria and skipping the fifth and part of the seventh grades.

"That was because he was so smart the teachers promoted him," his mother said today.

Filing Clerk In Bank

In 1902 the Trumans moved to Kansas City and young Truman, who had spent most of the past year as a clerk for a construction gang on the Santa Fe Railroad, began work as a filing clerk in the Bank of Commerce, later shifting to the Union National Bank. He worked in these banks for four years, learning banking fundamentals.

It was in these years that Truman started taking piano lessons under Mrs. E. C. White, whose husband was superintendent of the Kansas City school system for 32 years. He studied with her five years, becoming an accomplished pianist and acquiring a deep love for music.

His parents returned in 1904 to the Grandview farm to help his grandmother, Mrs. Solomon Young, and his uncle, Harrison Young, manage the 600-acre tract which came into the family's possession in 1867.

Named For Uncle

Truman was named for his uncle Harrison, the name being altered slightly. The S in his name stands both for Shipp (Anderson Shipp Truman, born in 1815, was Truman's grandfather), and Solomon Young, his maternal grandfather.

All four of Truman's grandparents came from Shelby county, Kentucky, in 1842, and settled in Jackson county before Kansas City existed. They were farmers in Kentucky and they took up farms in Missouri, Solomon Young eventually acquiring 1,600 acres.

Both of Truman's parents were born on farms in what is now the midtown residential district of Kansas City, John Anderson Truman in 1851 and Mary Ellen Young Truman on November 25, 1852. After the Civil War border warfare that tore Jackson county to bits, the Youngs returned to the farm, buying the Truman farm of today in 1867.

Parents Take Over Farm

Truman's parents took over management of this farm in 1904 with the two younger children, J. Vivien and Mary, and in 1906 Truman asked the older son, Harry S., to come to the farm and help him operate it. Truman resigned his $100-a-month bank clerkship to do it.

"It was on the farm that Harry got all his common sense. He didn't get it in town," his mother says today.

Truman's brother Vivien married and moved to another farm in 1911, and the senior Truman died in 1914. The farm had changed somewhat in appearance since it came into the family. The house had burned in 1892 and a cottage had been built. Today the old barn is the only remaining structure of earlier days.

On Farm Until 1917

Truman and his mother and sister operated the 600-acre tract from 1906 to April, 1917, and it was then that Truman acquired his deep love for the soil. About 200 acres was in pasture and the rest under cultivation, much of it in corn. Truman took a fancy to Hampshire hogs and raised them in large numbers. He also fed cattle by the thousand, marketing them in near-by Kansas City.

Truman came back to the farm after World War I only briefly. He was mustered out in May, 1919, and married in June. His mother-in-law, Mrs. David W. Wallace, a widow, asked the Trumans to live with her in the big fourteen-room house that her father had built during the Civil War. Truman has made his home there since, and this promises to be the Little White House of his Administration. It has numerous gables and wings, a large front porch around two sides, and is surrounded by trees and shrubbery.

Mother At Grandview

Truman's mother and sister live today in a cottage a block from the short main street of Grandview (population 600), and a mile from the farm where the brother lives. The family is closely knit, visiting back and forth almost daily. Mrs. Truman complains that she can't read like she used to, and misses many of the things being said about her son.

"I never thought he would be President, but he'll be a good one," she says briskly.

"I didn't ever want him to be President, nor for that matter Vice President either. But he's a good man, and has a lot of common sense and he'll do the best job he knows how."

"Harry always insisted on fair play. He started wearing glasses when he was 9 so he couldn't play many of the games the other youngsters did in Independence in those days. For that reason he became the umpire in baseball and football games and always insisted on fair play and in accordance with the rules. He has been that way all his life.

"Habit For Books"

"He began to read when he was just a little fellow and acquired a great habit for books. He was always around the library."

Truman's wife was his childhood sweetheart, but they didn't marry until he was 35.

"Maybe she wouldn't have him before that," his mother says now.

They became engaged when he left for war, and Independence folks tell you today Truman almost missed the train. He was that busy telling his sweetheart good-by, and getting her assurances she would wait for him.

"Average" is the word that comes nearest to describing Truman and his whole Middle Western background.

REDS SEND SHIP LOADED WITH RICH CARGO TO PARLEY

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20—(AP) Russia has sent to San Francisco an entertainment ship well loaded with a cargo of caviar, vodka and other makings of many gay Soviet parties during the United Nations conference.

It seems certain that the Russian delegation, despite the reserved face it is expected to turn to the public, will set the entertainment pace for the parley, which opens next Wednesday, April 25.

Fifty members of the Russian group arrived last night in three airplanes. They are among the first to get here in force except for experts and aides of the United States delegation. Other groups poured into the city today and the inflow is due to reach full volume by Sunday night.

Approximately 5,000 persons are expected for the conference. This means a jammed city despite the steps taken to keep non-conference visitors out of town. At the moment there is plenty of food and drink. Cigarettes are available to a hotel patron who shows his room key at the newsstand in the lobby.

Also at the moment there are more empty hotel rooms in San Francisco than since the war began. All reservations except for the conference were cut out April 15 and people who had no urgent business here were told to stay away. This has worked so well that one tavern keep complained today his business is off 20 per cent.

Police made pre-conference raids to reduce crooks' activities.

The ship which Moscow sent to the city is the 2,153-ton Smolny, built at Leningrad in 1929. It has capacity for 138 passengers, including 28 first class. There were reports, now denied, that it was to have been used as delegation headquarters.

Under leadership of Foreign Commissar Molotov, on whom much of the success of the conference depends, the Russians will live at one of this wealthy city's finest hotels.

The Russians are a constant source of conversation among early conference arrivals—with subjects ranging from their plans for entertainment to their serious political purposes. The question people ask is: if things don't go the way they like will the Soviets up anchor and sail away?

Dutch Admiral Favors Pacific Bases for U. S.

Helfrich Wants Japan Kept in Check for All Time

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20 (AP).—Vice-Admiral Conrad Emil Lambert Helfrich, commander in chief of the Netherlands military forces in the Far East, advocated today American retention of Pacific bases to insure that the Japanese will be crushed for all time.

"The United States, I believe, has to keep as many bases in the Pacific as will enable them to command the sea and air in the Pacific from now on," he said.

Vice-Admiral Helfrich arrived here today to serve as one of his country's delegates to the World Security Conference.

BRITISH AUTHOR RAPS HOLLYWOOD MOVIES

HOLLYWOOD, April 20 — (AP) The movie industry stood up bravely tonight in the face of another blast at its products—this one by the British author, J. B. Priestley.

Mr. Priestley, in London, described American movies as "trash," and also "drivel."

General reaction here was that, compared to some of the comments aimed at Hollywood by such distinguished critics as George Bernard Shaw, Mr. P. displayed charming restraint.

Officials response was lacking, however, possibly because Hollywood long ago learned to roll with a punch and stagger on, making as many pictures as it can like "Wilson" or "Going My Way."

Ventura Plane Crash Kills Six

THE BIG SHIPS BOMBED IN PERFECT VISIBILITY AND FIGHTER PILOTS INDICATED THERE WAS ALMOST NO OPPOSITION FROM THE NAZI AIR FORCE. ENEMY RADIO ACCOUNTS INDICATED, HOWEVER, THAT GERMAN FIGHTERS WERE MAKING A DESPERATE STAND AGAINST RUSSIAN PLANES DIRECTLY OVER BERLIN. A TOTAL OF 3,054 NAZI PLANES HAD BEEN DESTROYED BY ALLIED PILOTS ALONE IN THE PAST 12 DAYS.
OTHER RAIL YARDS AND FACILITIES POUNDED BY THE FORTRESSES WERE SEDNIN, 10 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BERLIN; NAUEN, 11 MILES NORTHWEST; WUSTERMARK, SEVEN MILES WEST; NEURUPPIN, 26 MILES NORTHWEST, AND OFT-BOMBED ORANIENBURG, SEVEN MILES NORTH OF THE CAPITAL.
(APPARENTLY THE AMERICAN BOMBERS DID NOT ATTEMPT TO ATTACK TARGETS EAST OF THE CAPITAL FOR FEAR OF HITTING SOVIET FORCES SWARMING TOWARD BERLIN'S OUTSKIRTS.)
HUNDREDS OF ALLIED MEDIUM AND FIGHTER-BOMBERS BASED ON THE CONTINENT ALSO STRUCK CLOSE TO THE RAMPARTS OF BERLIN, SLASHED DOWN THROUGH THE "WAIST" BETWEEN AMERICAN AND RUSSIAN TROOPS AND FANNED OUT IN THE NAZIS' SOUTHERN "DEATH STAND" REGION IN BAVARIA.
MORE THAN 200 LIBERATORS FROM BRITAIN ALSO STRUCK THROUGH THE MUNICH-PRAGUE AREA, BOMBING RAIL TARGETS AT ZWIESEL, 50 MILES EAST OF REGENSBURG; MUHLDORF, 45 MILES EAST OF MUNICH; IRRENLOHE, 30 MILES NORTH OF REGENSBURG, AND KLATOVY, 25 MILES SOUTH OF PILSEN.
A FORCE OF 800 MUSTANG AND THUNDERBOLT FIGHTERS ACCOMPANIED THE FORTRESSES AND LIBERATORS, BREAKING OFF THEIR ESCORT DUTIES TO SPRAY ANYTHING THAT MOVED BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES WITH MACHINEGUN AND CANNON. LIGHTNINGS FROM ITALY ALSO PENETRATED HITLER'S SOUTHERN REDOUBT, ATTACKING THE MAIN RAIL LINE FROM INNSBRUECK IN AUSTRIA TO ROSENHEIM, 30 MILES SOUTHEAST OF MUNICH.

LONDON, APRIL 20-(AP)-GERMAN STEEL EXPERTS SAY THAT THE VIRTUAL FLATTENING OF THE GREAT STEEL CITY OF DUESSELDORF, GERMANY'S PITTSBURGH, CONTRIBUTED AT LEAST 50 PER CENT TO THE COLLAPSE OF THE GERMAN WAR EFFORT.
THIS OPINION WAS EXPRESSED BY SEVERAL ARMAMENT MEN AND TECHNICAL DIRECTORS OF GERMAN STEEL INDUSTRIES WHEN THEY WERE INTERVIEWED BY RAF INTELLIGENCE OFFICERS DURING AN INSPECTION OF THE ONCE GREAT STEEL CITY. THE RAF OFFICERS SAID THAT THE VISIT FURNISHED DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE THAT THE PERSISTENT BOMBING OF GERMAN INDUSTRY IN THE EARLY DAYS OF THE WAR LOST THE NAZIS THE HEADSTART THAT THEIR INDUSTRY ORIGINALLY HADJM
A FORMER DIRECTOR OF GERMANY'S STEEL COMBINE TOLD THEM THAT "IF YOU HAD STARTED BOMBING A YEAR LATER, THE WESTWALL WOULD NEVER HAVE BEEN PIERCED".
THIS DIRECTOR WAS FOR SEVERAL YEARS IN CHARGE OF 17,000 WORKERS WHO FORGED ARMS IN THREE HUGE PLANTS OF THE RHEIN-METALL BORSIG WORKS. TODAY HIS WORKS ARE SMASHED, HIS FURNACES HAVE COLLAPSED AND HIS RESEARCH LABORATORIES HAVE BEEN WRECKED. AROUND THE WRECKED WORKS THERE ARE STILL A NUMBER OF HEAVY GUNS AND PILLBOXES WITH TWO FOOT STEEL WALLS WEIGHING SEVERAL HUNDRED TONS. THESE GUNS WERE ALL ELECTRICALLY CONTROLLED WITHIN THEIR TURRETS AND WERE DESIGNED FOR USE IN THE SIEGFRIED LINE. HOWEVER, THE FACTORY WAS WRECKED BEFORE THEY COULD BE DELIVERED. ONE FACTORY ALONE KEPT OVER 1000 FIREMEN EMPLOYED ON A PERMANENT BASIS TO COPE WITH THE FIREBOMBS THAT WERE SHOWERED ON THE PLANT BY THE RAF.
SUMMING UP THE EFFECT OF THE ALLIED AIR ATTACKS UPON GERMAN INDUSTRY, THE GENERAL MANAGER OF THE NAZI WAR INDUSTRY SYNDICATE SAID: "THROUGH BOMBING GERMAN STEEL PRODUCTION WAS REDUCED FROM 20,000,000 TONS A YEAR TO NIL BETWEEN 1942 AND 1945. BOMBING OF THE RAILWAYS AND CANAL SYSTEM WAS MOSTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE REDUCTION IN THE BEGINNING UNTIL THE PLANTS THEMSELVES WERE DESTROYED OR STARVED FOR LACK OF THE NECESSARY RAW MATERIALS."

PARIS, APRIL 20-(AP)-THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT IS STUDYING A PROPOSED STATUTE WHICH WOULD REQUIRE BOTH FRENCH AND FOREIGN NEWS AGENCIES TO OBTAIN GOVERNMENT PERMISSION TO INITIATE OR CONTINUE OPERATING IN FRANCE, IT WAS LEARNED FROM RELIABLE QUARTERS TONIGHT.

A DRAFT OF THE NEW ORDINANCE HAS BEEN PRESENTED BY THE MINISTRY OF INFORMATION.

WHILE IT IS STILL INCOMPLETE, THE PROPOSAL IS UNDERSTOOD TO CONTAIN THREE PRINCIPAL CLAUSES STIPULATING THE NECESSITY OF A GOVERNMENT LICENSE TO OPERATE, PREVENTION OF NEWS AGENCY FACILITIES FROM BEING USED FOR ANY ADVERTISING OR PUBLICITY AND THE REGULATION OF PRICES TO BE PAID BY INDIVIDUALS OR PUBLICATIONS FOR NEWS MATTER OR ARTICLES.

IT WAS SAID THAT THE CLAUSE REQUIRING GOVERNMENT PERMISSION TO OPERATE WOULD REMAIN ACTIVE ONLY FOR THE DURATION OF HOSTILITIES, AND IS REGARD MAINLY AS A SECURITY MEASURE.

THE INFORMANT SAID THE GOVERNMENT HAS NO INTENTION OF CONTROLLING THE DISSEMINATION OF NEWS INTERNALLY OR ABROAD. WHETHER THE CLAUSE WILL CONTINUE IN OPERATION UNTIL THE END OF THE PACIFIC WAR OR MERELY THE TERMINATION OF THE EUROPEAN HOSTILITIES STILL IS UNSETTLED.

GEN. DE GAULLE'S FORMER PROVISIONAL ASSEMBLY IN ALGIERS INSTITUTED SIMILAR REGULATIONS PRIOR TO THE LIBERATION OF FRANCE. HE EXPLAINED THEN THAT THESE REGULATIONS WERE DESIGNED MAINLY FOR REASONS OF MILITARY SECURITY AND WOULD BE RESCINDED AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

THAT LAW WAS ABROGATED A WEEK AFTER PARIS WAS FREED AND BOTH AMERICAN AND BRITISH NEWS AGENCIES NOW ARE OPERATING FREELY IN FRANCE.

WIESBADEN, GERMANY, APRIL 20--(AP)--WIESBADEN CELEBRATED HITLER'S BIRTHDAY TODAY BY RESTORING TO OFFICE THE LORD MAYOR WHOM THE NAZIS KICKED OUT WHEN THEY TOOK OVER GERMANY IN 1933.

HE IS GEORGE KRUCKE, 60, WHO BECAME LORD MAYOR IN 1930 AFTER 17 YEARS AS CITY COUNCILLOR. HE WAS BACKED BY THE SOCIAL DEMOCRATS.

HE ABANDONED POLITICS WHEN THE NAZIS FORCED HIM OUT, AND WENT INTO BUSINESS UNTIL, IN 1942, THE GESTAPO JAILED HIM, RELEASING HIM LATER ON CONDITION THAT HE GET OUT OF BUSINESS. HE WAS LIVING IN SECLUSION WHEN THE AMERICAN TROOPS ARRIVED HERE.

RESTORED TO HIS OLD OFFICE BY AUTHORITY OF THE AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT, KRUCKE TOLD LT. COL. LEROY COWART, OF ATLANTA, GA., COMMANDING THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT DETACHMENT, THAT HE REALIZED THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF HIS JOB HAVE GROWN, BUT THAT HE HOPED TO SERVE HIS COMMUNITY WELL THROUGH LOYAL COOPERATION WITH THE AMERICAN AUTHORITIES.

WIESBADEN IS A CITY OF 174,000 INHABITANTS. AND IS RELATIVELY INTACT, COMPARED WITH OTHER GERMAN CITIES OF ITS SIZE. ONLY 40 PER CENT OF ITS BUILT UP AREA HAS BEEN DESTROYED. IT LOOKS DELAPIDATED, BUT NOT DEVASTATED.

IT IS A TOWN OF MANY TREES, NOW FILLING WITH LEAVES WHICH PARTLY HIDE THE RUINS.

THE WARM SUN BROUGHT MANY PERSONS TO THE PARK'S BROAD LAWNS. SMALL GROUPS OF GERMAN GIRLS AND G.I.'S, FORBIDDEN TO FRATERNIZE, WATCHED ONE ANOTHER ACROSS THE NEUTRAL STRIPS OF GRASS.

BORDEAUX, FRANCE, APRIL 20-(AP)-THE FRENCH STRUGGLE TO CLEAR THE GERMANS FROM THE GIRONDE ESTUARY IS A VEST POCKET WAR, BUT TO THE PEOPLE OF BORDEAUX IT MEANS SHIPS FOR THEIR HARBOR AGAIN, AND THE SHIPS, IN TURN, MEAN MANY THINGS. FOOD, FOR INSTANCE.

IN A RESTAURANT, IT'S BETTER TO SIT FACING AWAY FROM THE OPEN DOOR SO YOU WON'T SEE WHAT THE SMELL OF GOOD FOOD DOES TO PEOPLE WHO HAVEN'T ENOUGH.

FOR THIS ISN'T A FRENCH RESTAURANT. IT'S A MESS FOR ALLIED OFFICERS ONLY. IT DRAWS ARMY RATIONS. MEAT APPEARS FAIRLY REGULARLY AND THERE'S ALWAYS BUTTER.

YOU ASK THE FRENCH WAITRESS IF EGGS ARE PLENTIFUL.

"NOT PLENTIFUL," SHE SAYS. "ONLY A FEW FROM THE COUNTRY."

"FOR CIVILIANS, TOO?"

"OH, NO. ALMOST NEVER ANY FOR US. WE HAVE POTATOES, MACARONI, STARCHY VEGETABLES."

YOU LIFE A SUITCASE ABOARD A STREETCAR FOR A WOMAN. IT COULDN'T BE HEAVIER IF IT WERE FULL OF BRICKS. THE WOMAN SAYS:

APR 21 1945

"I'VE JUST COME FROM THE COUNTRY AND OF COURSE I'VE BROUGHT ALL THE FOOD I COULD. ONE MUST DO THAT FOR ONE'S FAMILY."

A MAN STANDING BESIDE YOU AT A BAR SAYS:

"THERE'S NO USE THINKING ABOUT FOOD, BUT THAT'S ALL ANYBODY EVER THINKS ABOUT. YOU START TALKING ABOUT THE NEXT MEAL WHILE YOU'RE STILL EATING THIS ONE."

AND AT YOUR HOTEL, AN OLD MAN SAYS:

"YES, THERE'S BREAKFAST. BREAD AND COFFEE. THE COFFEE'S ERSATZ IF YOU CAN DRINK THAT, AND SACCHARINE TABLETS INSTEAD OF SUGAR."

HE TAKES A PULL AT HIS OLD BLACK PIPE AND ADDS:

"I COULD ARRANGE TO GET YOU SOME REAL COFFEE. THERE ARE WAYS."

HE LOOKS AT THE CIGARETTE ENDS LITTERING THE SAUCER THAT SERVES AS AN ASHTRAY. HE DOESN'T WANT MONEY. HE WANTS THOSE BUTTS. HE CAREFULLY PLACES THEM IN AN ENVELOPE AND JERKS HIS THUMB IN THE GENERAL DIRECTION OF POINTE DE GRAVE, THE PENINSULA WHERE THE FRENCH ARE CLEANING OUT THE LAST POCKETS OF GERMANS, AND SAYS:

"WHEN THEY GET THE BOCHE OUT OF THERE THINGS WILL BE DIFFERENT."

NUERNBERG, GERMANY, APRIL 19-(DELAYED)-(AP)-MASSES OF LIBERATED RUSSIAN AND POLISH SOLDIERS AND WORKERS STREAMED TODAY THROUGH THE GIANT STADIUM WHERE ADOLF HITLER USED TO ADDRESS THOUSANDS OF HEILING NAZIS DURING THE PARTY'S CONGRESSES.

THESE WORKERS CARRIED WITH THEM CHEESES, WINES AND CLOTHES THEY HAD OBTAINED FROM RAILWAY CARS ON A NEARBY SIDING. INSIDE THE STADIUM AMERICAN SOLDIERS HEATED C RATIONS IN FRONT OF HITLER'S ROSTRUM AND RAISED AMERICAN FLAGS OVER THE DAIS WHERE NAZI BANNERS ONCE WERE FLOWN.

WHILE THE SOUTHERN SECTION OF NUERNBERG BEARS HEAVY SCARS OF WAR, THE STADIUM AREA ITSELF WAS NOT BADLY DAMAGED.

BECAUSE THE GERMANS STILL ARE ON THE OTHER SIDE OF A RAILROAD EMBANKMENT I AM UNABLE AT THIS WRITING TO EVALUATE THE DAMAGE INSIDE THE OLD CITY, WITH HIS HISTORICAL RELICS AND CURIOUS HANDIWORK.

MEN, WOMEN AND OCCASIONALLY YOUNG GIRLS OVERRAN THE SOUTHERN PORTION OF THE CITY AFTER AMERICAN TROOPS FREED THEM FROM THE FORCED LABOR SETTLEMENT.

APR 21 1945

AMERICAN SOLDIERS GOING UP ONE STREET MET A RUSSIAN WHO HAD FOUND A CACHE OF COGNAC AND SWISS WATCHES. THE RUSSIAN HAD DRUNK DEEPLY OF THE COGNAC AND EVERY AMERICAN WHO CAME ALONG WAS FORCED TO ACCEPT A WATCH AS A TOKEN OF ESTEEM.

THE RELEASE OF SO MANY THOUSANDS OF LABORERS POSED HEALTH AND FOOD PROBLEMS FOR THE OCCUPYING MILITARY AUTHORITIES. INTOXICATED WITH THEIR NEW FREEDOM, THEY MANAGED TO FIND AUTOMOBILES, BICYCLES AND TRUCKS TO START THEIR LONG JOURNEY HOME. THEY CAREENED ALONG ROADS AND EVERY AMERICAN JEEP WAS GREETED WITH SALUTES AND CHEERS.

LANGWASSER 13 D PRISON CAMP, LATER RENAMED STALAG LUFT III BECAUSE A NUMBER OF CAPTURED AMERICAN AIRFORCE PERSONNEL WERE IN IT, IS SOUTHEAST OF THE STADIUM.

THE PREVALENCE OF TYPHUS AMONG THOUSANDS OF RUSSIANS INSIDE THE ENCLOSURE CAUSED AMERICAN AUTHORITIES TO QUARANTINE THE AREA AND SOME AMERICAN PERSONNEL DID NOT GET OUT IMMEDIATELY.

THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH PERSONNEL FREED FROM THE AREA ARE SAFE. HOWEVER, BECAUSE THEIR OWN DOCTORS GAVE THEM TYPHUS BOOSTER INOCULATI AS SOON AS THEY WERE LIBERATED.

NUERNBERG, GERMANY, APRIL 20-(AP)-THE NAZI FESTIVAL CITY OF NUERNBERG IS IN AMERICAN HANDS TODAY, ADOLF HITLER'S 56TH BIRTHDAY, AND THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY IS DRIVING ONWARD TOWARD THE DANUBE AND MUNICH, LESS THAN 35 MILES BELOW THE RIVER.

ONLY SCATTERED SNIPERS REMAINED TO BE CLEARED OUT HERE. SOME SNIPER FIRE CAME FROM A TUNNEL IN THE MOATED PART OF THE OLD CITY, BUT THE 45TH AND THIRD DIVISIONS REPORTED OTHER AREAS OF THE CITY CLEAR.

FORTY-SECOND DIVISION TROOPS SWEPT SOUTHWARD FROM FURTH TO CAPTURE SCHWEINAU, NINE MILES SOUTHWEST OF NUERNBERG, AND OTHER OPERATIONS EXPANDED TO CLEAR A WIDE AREA AROUND NUERNBERG.

THE 14TH ARMORED DIVISION NEAR NEUMARKT CONTINUED HOLDING BACK GERMAN ATTEMPTS TO BUILD UP A SIZEABLE COUNTERATTACK 17 MILES SOUTHEAST OF HERE WITH CLOSE AIR SUPPORT.

THE FIRST FRENCH ARMY DROVE 20 MILES TO ROTTWEIL, 25 MILES FROM THE SWISS BORDER, AND CONTINUED ITS PL GE TOWARD THE UPPER DANUBE.

A SWEEPING DRIVE TO COMPLETE THE ENCIRCLEMENT OF STUTTGART KEPT BUILDING UP.

APR 21 1945

THE SEVENTH CAPTURED THREE MORE GERMAN GENERALS, INCLUDING HELMUTH THUMM, WHO SAID HE WAS RELIEVED OF THE COMMAND OF THE GERMAN 64TH CORPS LAST JANUARY 30 AFTER A QUARREL WITH HIMMLER WHEN HE ASKED FOR MORE FORCES TO TRY TO RECAPTURE STRASBOURG. FREDERICK HERRLEIN, WHO IDENTIFIED HIMSELF AS CHIEF OF INFANTRY ON THE GERMAN GENERAL STAFF, ALSO WAS TAKEN.

PAVING THE WAY FOR THE ONWARD MARCH, THE 12TH TACTICAL AIR COMMAND SENT A FLEET OF P47 THUNDERBOLTS OUT TO STRIKE SIX BAVARIAN AIR FIELDS BETWEEN ULM AND EAST MUNICH. SEVENTY PARKED PLANES WERE DESTROYED AND MORE THAN 100 DAMAGED.

THE NAZIS BEGAN ASSEMBLING POLITICAL PRISONERS THERE FROM OTHER CAMPS AS EACH WAS MENACED BY THE ALLIED ADVANCE. ONE SURVIVOR OF A GROUP OF 650 WHO MARCHED FROM EDLA ON THE WAY TO BAVARIA SAID HIS GUARDS SHOT AND KILLED AT LEAST 166 WHO BECAME TOO WEAK TO KEEP THE PACE, AND THE OTHERS HAD TO DIG GRAVES FOR THEM DURING "REST" PAUSES.

GESTAPO AGENTS WERE MARCHING PRISONERS BY THE HUNDREDS FROM THE THEKLA CAMP TO POINTS FARTHER EAST UNTIL LAST SATURDAY, WHEN THEY LEARNED THE U.S. NINTH ARMORED DIVISION HAD SWUNG AROUND EAST OF LEIPZIG AND FREED THE LAST COLUMN OF PRISONERS WHICH LEFT HERE.

LIBERATED TROOPS SEEN IN SEVERAL CAMPS UNANIMOUSLY TOLD THIS CORRESPONDENT THAT THE WHOLE TRUTH SHOULD BE TOLD. ONE PRISONER OF WAR SAID:

"THE GERMANS COULD NOT TREAT DOUGHBOYS STILL IN CAMPS MUCH WORSE AND THERE IS ALWAYS A CHANCE THAT WIDESPREAD PUBLICITY MIGHT CAUSE THE GERMANS TO INSTITUTE REFORMS."

PERHAPS THE GERMAN CAPTORS HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO TRANSPORT AMERICAN PRISONERS OF WAR TO CAMPS BY RAIL OR TRUCK, AS DO PATTON'S DIVISIONS. IT IS TRUE THAT ALLIED BOMBERS HAVE REDUCED SUCH FACILITIES TO A MINIMUM.

HOWEVER, THERE IS NO EXCUSE FOR ASSIGNING AMERICANS TO CRAMPED AND FILTHY QUARTERS, OR FOR FEEDING THEM MINUTE QUANTITIES OF WATERY SOUP, BREAD AND MARGARINE. NOR IS THERE AN EXCUSE FOR BEATING THEM.

A202

NEAR EVERY CAMP THIS CORRESPONDENT HAS SEEN, THERE HAVE BEEN LARGE, CLEAN AND HEATED BUILDINGS WHICH COULD BE USED FOR PRISONERS. THROUGHOUT OVERRUN GERMANY, GREAT STORES OOF FOODSTUFF HAVE BEEN FOUND.

THE GERMAN ARMY GREW FAT ON RATIONS SET ASIDE FOR THE TROOPS. THIS CORRESPONDENT CHECKED KITCHENS, CUPBOARDS AND CELLARS OF SCORES OF CIVILIANS. WITHOUT EXCEPTION--EVEN IN THE HOMES OF THE LOWER CLASSES--THERE WAS FOOD APLENTY.

THIS CORRESPONDENT HAS YET TO SEE A GERMAN SOLDIER OR CIVILIAN WHO APPEARED UNDERFED. YET IN THE PRISONER OF WAR CAMPS, MOST AMERICANS ARE SUFFERING VARIOUS DEGREES OF MALNUTRITION. SOME AMERICANS AFTER SIX MONTHS IMPRISONMENT DRAG ONE FOOT AFTER THE OTHER AND STUMBLE FREQUENTLY AS IF IN A STUPOR.

APR 21 1945

CLOTHES HANGING ON THEIR EMACIATED FRAMES GAVE THEM SCARECROW EFFECTS.

THE RIBS OF ONE BOY COULD BE COUNTED THROUGH HIS SHIRT, AND I COULD PUT MY HANDS COMPLETELY AROUND THE WAIST OF ANOTHER.

THE AVERAGE LOSS OF WEIIGHT IN ONE CAMP WAS FROM 40 TO 60 POUNDS; 50 TO 75 IN ANOTHER.

ONE MAN SHOWED ME HIS PICTURE TAKEN WHEN HE WEIGHED 225 POUNDS. I LOOKED AT THE PICTURE AND THEN BACK AT HIM. I NEVER COULD HAVE IDENTIFIED HIM AS THE SAME PERSON. NOW HE WEIGHS ONLY 115.

IT IS TRUE THAT COMPARATIVELY FEW AMERICANS HAVE DIED IN PRISONER OF WAR CAMPS. BUT THE EFFECTS OF THE TREATMENT MAY BE FELT YEARS HENCE, IF THEY ARE NOT PERMANENT.

THAT GREAT INDUSTRIAL GATEWAY CITY TO THE LOMBARDY PLAIN ALREADY HAD BEEN HEMMED IN ON THREE SIDES, HOWEVER, BY A RAPIDLY CLOSING RING OF STEEL. LAST-DITCH NAZI DEFENDERS SOUGHT TO SLOW THE AMERICANS' BRILLIANT, SUDDEN SMASH LONG ENOUGH TO KEEP OPEN THEIR ESCAPE LIFELINES TO THE NORTH.
THEY PUT UP A BITTER, SAVAGE FIGHT LATE THIS AFTERNOON AT THE EDGE OF CASALECCHIO AND SNIPERS AND MACHINE-GUNNERS HAD TO BE DUG OUT OF VIRTUALLY EVERY HOUSE WE PASSED ON THE LAST FIVE-MILE STRETCH TO THE TOWN.
WHILE THE 85TH DIVISION CLOSED IN ON CASALECCHIO FROM THE WEST, OTHER FORCES HAMMERED AT THE TOWN FROM THE SOUTH AND STILL MORE FORCES SLASHED ACROSS THE GREEN, FERTILE FLATLANDS DEEP INTO THE VALLEY TO CUT HIGHWAY NO. THE ENEMY'S MOUNTAIN LINE, ESPECIALLY WEST OF THE BOLOGNA-PISTOIA HIGHWAY, CAME APART SUDDENLY AND COMPLETELY AFTER HAVING HELD TOGETHER THROUGH SIX STATIC WINTER MONTHS AND THROUGH THE FIRST FIVE DAYS OF THIS ALL-OUT FIFTH ARMY DRIVE.
TONIGHT PRISONERS COULD BE COUNTED BY THE HUNDREDS, POURING DOWN EVERY DUST-CHOKED ROAD AND TRAIL WHERE THEY WERE NUMBERED BY THE HALF-DOZENS ONLY 24 HOURS AGO.
NEAR CASALECCHIO, IN THE MIDST OF A FIGHT FOR A CROSSROADS, 15 JERRIES WALKED UP TO CAPT. DICK SWEENEY, OF WESTPORT, CONN., AND SURRENDERED. THEY WERE AMONG A COUPLE OF HUNDRED FLUSHED OUT OF THE LAST RIDGE OF THE APENNINE HILLS BY A COMBINATION OF FLANKING ARTILLERY FIRE AND A SURGE OF INFANTRY.
FOUR MILES SOUTHWEST OF CASALECCHIO, THERE WAS A BRIEF, BITTER CLASH FOR MONTE CAPRA. THEN TROOPS UNDER LIEUT. COL. ARTHUR C. FARTHING, (805 EAST SECOND ST.) STERLING, ILL., ROUNDED UP BETWEEN 300 AND 400 PRISONERS.

LESSENING OF JAPANESE RESISTANCE WAS EVIDENCED BY THE CAPTURE OF THESE THREE TOWNS IN THE OIL FIELD AREA. AN RAF ATTACK WEAKENED THE DEFENSES OF SINGU, MAKING ITS CAPTURE RELATIVELY EASY. THE BRITISH TROOPS KEPT ON MOVING SOUTH AFTER THE CAPTURE OF SINGU AND THERE IS A DEFINITE INDICATION THAT THE JAPANESE ARE WITHDRAWING BOTH OF THEIR FLANKS ALONG THE RIVER. HOWEVER, THE EXTENT OF THEIR RETREAT IS NOT KNOWN.

IN THE BANGKOK AREA, U.S. AND RAF BOMBERS HAD A FIELD DAY, BOMBING AND DESTROYING IMPORTANT DOCK FACILITIES AND KNOCKING OUT A CANAL SYSTEM THAT THE JAPANESE WERE USING AS A FREIGHT WATERWAY TO SUPPLEMENT THEIR HEAVILY DAMAGED RAILROAD TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM.

THE EXTENT OF ADVANCES BY THE BRITISH ARMORED COLUMNS IN THE MEIKTILA AREA WAS NOT DEFINITELY KNOWN BUT WAS REPORTED AS SATISFACTORY.

THE WHITEHAIRED, RUDDY FACED GENERAL WATCHED PUSHOFF OPERATIONS THIS MORNING FROM AN OBSERVATION POST OF THE 7TH DIVISION.

"OUR ARTILLERY--AIR, NAVAL AND GROUND--IS BEAUTIFULLY COORDINATED," BUCKNER COMMENTED. "IT HAS DONE A MAGNIFICENT JOB, BUT ARTILLERY AND AIRPOWER ALONE CAN'T ACCOMPLISH THE TASK. JAPS IN PILLBOXES, HOLES AND CAVES HAVE TO BE BLASTED OUT AND THAT IS ALWAYS A JOB FOR THE INFANTRY. THERE IS NOTHING NEW TO THE PROBLEM, WHICH ALREADY HAS BEEN SOLVED, BUT IT WILL BE A HEAVY JOB AND WE CAN EXPECT A GOOD MANY CASUALTIES."

BUCKNER PRAISED AMERICA'S FOOT SOLDIER AND SAID, "THERE IS NOTHING MORE INSPIRING THAN TO SEE AN AMERICAN SOLDIER'S MAGNIFICENT SPIRIT. HE GETS OUT THERE IN RAIN, COLD MUD AND ENEMY FIRE, BUT HE IS DETERMINED TO GET TO THE OTHER END OF THE ISLAND--AND HE WILL.

"BECKER GRABBED THE JAP'S THROAT WITH ONE HAND AND WITH THE OTHER HELD HIS ASSAILANT'S WRIST TO PREVENT HIM FROM EXPLODING THE GRENADE," ALLEN SAID.

"BECKER YELLED 'JOE, HURRY AND GET THE KNIFE; GET THE KNIFE JOE. PLEASE HURRY.'

"NITOWSKI SAID HE FINALLY FOUND THE TRENCH KNIFE AND STABBED THE JAP EIGHT TIMES, KILLING HIM."

ALLEN SAID HE TALKED TO A CANNONEER, PFC JAMES E.BRANCH, FOREST CITY, N.C., WHO SAID HE WAS SLEEPING IN A PUP TENT WHEN A JAPANESE THREW A GRENADE. IT EXPLODED 18 INCHES FROM BRANCH'S HEAT BUT THE CANNONEER AMAZINGLY ESCAPED DEATH OR INJURY.

"WHEN THIS NIGHTMARE ATTACK WAS OVER NINE JAPS WERE FOUND KILLED IN THE COMMAND POST AREA AND 16 OTHERS WERE KILLED NEARBY," ALLEN SAID.

"NEARLY ALL THE JAPS HAD KILLED THEMSELVES BY BLOWING THE SATCHEL CHARGES OF SELF-EXPLODING GRENADES."

ONLY ONE AMERICAN WAS KILLED AND EIGHT WOUNDED, ALLEN SAID. ONE OF THE WOUNDED HAD A HAND NEARLY SEVERED BY A JAPANESE SABER BLOW.

WHEN THE JAPANESE FOUND THEIR ATTACK WAS HOPELESS THOSE STILL ALIVE CHOSE SUICIDE BY GRENADE INSTEAD OF TRYING TO ESCAPE IN THE DARKNESS.

NO PART OF IE ISLAND IS SAFE. SNIPERS FIRE SPORADICALLY IN ALL DIRECTIONS AND THERE IS HARDLY ANY AREA NOT STREWN WITH LAND MINES OR AERIAL BOMBS PLANTED AS MINES. THE JAPANESE EVEN PLANTED SMALL MORTAR SHELLS WITH NOSE UP, INTENDED AS ANTIPERSONNEL MINES.

THERE WERE AT LEAST A THOUSAND 500-POUND BOMBS BURIED AS MINES ON THE FOUR-STRIP AIRFIELD WHICH THE AMERICANS CAPTURED THE FIRST DAY OF THE INVASION.

WITH THE 27TH DIVISION ON THE OKINAWA FRONT, APRIL 19-(DELAYED)-(AP)-JAPANESE PERCHED ON HIGH RIDGES RUNNING FROM MACHINATO, ON THE WEST COAST, CLEAR ACROSS OKINAWA WERE HARASSING ADVANCING YANKS TODAY.

MAJ. GEN. GEORGE W. GRINER OF CHAPEL HILL, N.C., SUMMED UP THE SITUATION AT DAWN WHEN THREE DIVISIONS PLUNGED INTO THE DRIVE SOUTHWARD.

"THOSE JAPANESE ON THE RIDGES WERE LOOKING RIGHT DOWN OUR THROATS."

ONE INFANTRY UNIT STORMED KAKAZU RIDGE WHERE THE HIGHEST JAPANESE OBSERVATION POST WAS LOCATED, AND WERE INCHING UP THE SLOPE UNDER HEAVY ENEMY FIRE. SUPPORTED BY MEDIUM TANKS, ANOTHER COMPANY, COMMANDED BY CAPT. JOHN MULHERN OF BANGOR, ME., HAD TAKEN KAKAZU VILLAGE AFTER THREE HOURS OF FIGHTING BUT ENEMY POSITIONS ON THE RIDGES CONTINUED TO RAKE AMERICANS WITH MORTAR AND MACHINEGUN FIRE. FIVE U.S. TANKS WERE SEEN BLAZINGON THE SLOPE AND GRINER SAID THAT COMPANY'S CASUALTIES WERE HEAVY.

ATTACKING UNITS OPENED THE DRIVE BY CROSSING A BRIDGE OVER MACHINATO INLET WHICH WAS CONSTRUCTED DURING THENIGHT BY ENGINEERS. GRINER PRAISED THEIR WORK AS A "MAGNIFICENT JOB." LATER A PONTOON WAS FLUNG ACROSS TO PERMIT TWO-WAY TRAFFIC.

MACHINATO VILLAGE WAS QUICKLY CLEANED OUT.

"THE OPERATION STARTED SLOWER THAN I EXPECTED," GRINER SAID.

FROM A RIDGE COMMANDING THE INLET A JAPANESE GUN, MUZZLE BLASTS PLAINLY VISIBLE, OPENED UP ON THE BRIDGE. ITS CLOSEST HIT WAS 25 YARDS FROM THE TARGET AND THEN A MEDIUM TANK AMBLED UP THE HILL AND KNOCKED IT OUT WITH FOUR DIRECT HITS.

GRINER EXPECTED SNIPER TROUBLE AS FAST-MOVING YANKS WENT AHEAD, AND IT WAS INDICATED THAT THIS MAY BE A SLOW, COSTLY BATTLE.

GUAM,FRIDAY, APRIL 20-(AP)-P-51 MUSTANGS OF THE SEVENTH FIGHTER COMMAND DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 84 JAPANESE AIRCRAFT IN A DARING, ROOFTOP LEVEL STRAFING ATTACK ON ATSUGI AIRFIELD, 25 MILES SOUTHWEST OF TOKYO YESTERDAY, MARKING THE FIRST ARMY FIGHTER PLANE SWEEP AGAINST THE HEART OF JAPAN. THE RAID INCREASED THE P-51S' BAG OVER HONSHU TO 132, INCLUDING JAPANESE PLANES DESTROYED ON TWO ESCORT MISSIONS WITH B-[illegible] OVER TOKYO.

SWOOPING SO LOW THAT SOME MUSTANGS WENT UNDER HIGH TENSION WIRES, A LARGE FORCE OF IWO-BASED P-51S OPENED UP ON A FORMATION OF BETWEEN 200 AND 300 FIGHTERS AND BOMBERS RANGED ALONG THE ATSUGI FIELD.

THE MUSTANG PILOTS, REPORTING THEY WERE MET BY HEAVY ANTI-AIRCRAFT AND SMALL ARMS FIRE AT THEIR LOW ALTITUDE, DESCRIBED THE SITTING PLANES AS "A PILOT'S DREAM."

THEY SO SURPRISED THE JAPANESE THAT THEIR ATTACK CAUGHT SOME OF THE NIPPONESE PLAYING TENNIS ON ATSUGI'S COURTS.

THEY SHOT 21 JAPANESE WARPLANES OUT OF THE AIR AND PROBABLY GOT TWO MORE; DESTROYED OR PROBABLY DESTROYED 26 ON THE GROUND AND DAMAGED 35.

BALABAC ISLAND, 45 MILES OFF BORNEO'S NORTH COAST, BY TROOPS OF THE 41ST DIVISION. THE JOINTLY OWNED BRITISH DUTCH OIL RICH ISLAND OF BORNEO WAS PREVIOUSLY OUTFLANKED ON THE EAST WHEN AMERICAN TROOPS INVADED THE TAWITAWI REGION. THIS PLACED THE YANKS ONLY 30 MILES OFF BORNEO'S NORTHEAST COAST.

THE BALABAC INVASION, BY UNITS OF MAJ.GEN. JENS A. DOE'S 41ST., WAS UNOPPOSED.

ON MINDANAO, SECOND MAJOR ISLAND OF THE PHILIPPINES, SOLDIERS OF THE 24TH DIVISION, HEAVILY SUPPORTED BY PLANES, WERE WITHIN 52 AIR MILES OF DAVAO, ONE OF THE FINEST PORTS IN THE ARCHIPELAGO AND AN IMPORTANT HEMP CENTER. TWO YANK COLUMNS DASHED SOUTHWARD 15 MILES TO CAPTURE COTABATO AND TAMONTAKA, CONTROL POINTS AT THE DUAL MOUTHS OF MINDANAO RIVER. THE DOUGHBOYS OF MAJ.GEN. R.B. WOODRUFF'S OUTFIT THEN ADVANCED 22 MILES INLAND TO LOMOPOG ROAD JUNCTION. AN AIRFIELD NEAR THE EXPANDED BEACHHEAD AT MALABANG, ON THE NORTH, WAS BEING USED BY AMERICAN PLANES.

THE JAPANESE HAVE AN ESTIMATED 50,000 TROOPS ON MINDANAO.

TANK-LED JAPANESE COUNTERATTACKS WERE THROWN BACK ON THE NORTHWEST LUZON FRONT WHERE BAGUIO, THE SUMMER CAPITAL, IS THE OBJECTIVE OF MAJ.GEN. PERCY W. CLARKSON'S 33RD DIVISION. INCREASED APR 21 1945 JAPANESE ARTILLERY FIRE AND RAIN IN THE BAGUIO SECTOR SLOWED THE AMERICAN CAMPAIGN.

AN ESTIMATED 300 TO 500 JAPANESE SOLDIERS ON CARABAO, TINY ISLAND AT THE MOUTH OF MANILA BAY, WERE SEALED IN CAVES AND TUNNELS BY DOUGHBOYS OF BRIG.GEN. WILLIAM CHASE'S 38TH DIVISION. THE YANKS INVADED THE ISLAND--A BAY FORTIFICATION--AFTER THE DEFENDING GARRISON HAD BEEN DRIVEN UNDERGROUND BY A NAVAL BOMBARDMENT.

A FIELD DISPATCH FROM RICHARD BERGHOLZ, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT, SAID AMERICAL DIVISION TROOPS, AFTER THREE WEEKS OF BATTLING IN RUGGED COUNTRY ON CEBU ISLAND, BROKE UP THE MAIN JAPANESE FORCE THERE. THE NIPPONESE FLED IN DISORGANIZED GROUPS. BERGHOLZ TERMED THE CEBU FIGHT ONE OF THE TOUGHEST OF THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

Russians Enter Berlin, Drive for Its Heart, Nazis Man Barricades in Shell-Torn Capital; U. S.-Soviet Link Reported Near Dresden

Heart of City Being Pounded By Siege Guns

LONDON, Sunday, April 22.—(AP) The Germans announced last night that Red Army tanks had burst three to four miles inside the flaming rubble-strewn streets of barricaded Berlin in an overwhelming 16-army assault on the three-quarters encircled Nazi capital—biggest prize of two world wars.

Moscow, whose official reports were running 24 hours behind German announcements, did not immediately confirm the dramatic flash from doomed Berlin. But a Moscow dispatch filed hours before said a Red Army entry into the Nazi citadel was "imminent."

Reds Capture Erkner

The Soviet High command said that veteran Russian forces, who have marched 1,000 miles from the gates of Moscow in one of the greatest military comebacks in history, were "engaged in fighting at Berlin's outskirts" and had captured Erkner on the city's eastern limits and seven other fortress suburbs three to 16 miles from the capital.

Raining war-ending blows on a beaten foe, the Russians by Berlin's account also irreparably split Adolf Hitler's greater Reich into two completely-isolated areas in a development as momentous as the Red Army's entry into the capital.

This left the terror-stricken and shell and bomb-pocked city without any escape routes to the south and presaged an imminent link up in force with American troops. Unconfirmed reports from Paris said American and Soviet patrols already had joined.

Berlin, caught in a swirling battle which the Germans said "never has been surpassed in ferocity," as well as all the Baltic ports and the holdout areas of Denmark and Norway, was completely cut off from the Nazis "national redoubt" in southern Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia and northern Italy.

German reports indicated that perhaps 4,000,000 Russian troops and German soldiers and home guards were locked in the death struggle for Berlin, which German broadcasts swore to defend to "its last ruin."

Shells Pound City

The broadcasts said big Soviet siege guns were "hailing" shells into Potzdamer Platz in the heart of Berlin as the capital's surviving three million civilians huddled in cellars or manned street barricades.

Life had moved underground for the siege, Berlin said, and the Nazis admitted that the "death battle" which promised to leave their capital a wasteland of rubble and ashes "is on." Berlin's Volkssturm had been thrown into the struggle and the wounded were pouring into the city from the wrecked suburbs.

From the shell-cratered heart of the city the word came just before midnight that the Russians had penetrated into the capital from the northeast, swarming through the streets of the left-wing populous working class districts of Weissensee and Pankow.

A mass of Russian tanks, artillery and infantry was about three to four miles from the heart of the city around Berlin's famed cathedral.

The Russians apparently swung across the powerful German defense line based on the circular autobahn around the capital on an 11-mile front from the captured suburbs of Bernau and Alt-Landsberg, both three miles from the city limits and 13 miles from its core.

Cut Vital Rail Route

Bernau, whose fall cut Berlin's vital rail and road communications with the embattled Baltic port of Stettin, was seized in a 20-mile Russian advance through blazing suburban forests, to which the Germans had put the torch in vain hope of halting the Soviet onslaught.

In a 28-mile arc from Bernau, Soviet tanks battled through the suburbs of Werneuchen, Strausberg, Buckow Muencheberg and Fuerstenwalde, and reached the city limits at Erkner, astride the super-highway around Berlin. Erkner was taken in a 27-mile Russian surge from Seelow, whose capture was announced Friday.

Meanwhile, the Germans, whose reports have been borne out by Moscow's conservative announcements, admitted that the sprawling city was three-quarters encircled by a huge 70-mile arc of steel thrown around the city in a gigantics pincer operation.

This was effected when the Russians reportedly lunged south of the capital in a spectacular 65-mile overnight sweep that drove to Beelitz, 13 miles southwest of the city's famed Potsdam gate.

One Soviet spearhead, by German admission, had smashed to Treuenbrietzen, 23 miles southwest of Berlin and 32 miles from American forces on the Elbe river near Dessau. The reported advance carried a wall of Russian tanks across Berlin's rail and highway links to Dresden and the south. Those communication routes that remained wound up in American lines.

Only a 40-mile gap separated Red Army claws that reportedly had clamped the huge pincer on the capital.

Moscow put the Russians 35 miles southeast of Beelitz and Treuenbrietzen. In this area, Soviet forces overran Luckau, 33 miles south of outflanked Berlin, in a 34-mile advance through Calau, 16 miles west of the by-passed fortress of Cottbus.

The Germans said that motorized infantry, supported by hundreds of tanks, had pushed north from Luckau another 31 miles and reached Berlin's southeastern suburb of Koenigs-Wusterhausen, site of Berlin's silent long-wave Deutschlandsender radio station. The situation in this area, three miles from Berlin and astride the autobahn ring, was described as "critical."

Nazis Open Flood Gates

Another spearhead of Soviet assault forces, advancing after being caught by a flood of water released from a dynamited hydro-electric power dam, advanced to the area of the big military training center of Wuensdorf, 15 miles south of Berlin, and the Soviet power-drive was pressing toward Zossen—Allied-bombed site of the German High Command headquarters.

Between Berlin and Dresden, the tidal wave of Soviet mechanized power surged across the Brandenburg plains on a 58-mile front from captured Senftenberg south to the outskirts of Koenigsbrueck, only 14 miles north northeast of Dresden.

Hurling back suicidal charges by drunken German troops the Soviet drive was officially within 48 miles of the American armies standing on the Mulde river.

Farther southwest in Austria, Moscow announced that Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army was moving across the plateaus on the southern approaches to Prague on a 35-mile front.

Gaining up to seven miles, cavalry of Malinovsky's army charged into the Czechoslovak town of Valcice, linking forces in the Breclav area, and at the southern end of the front captured Ober Gaensendorf, 10 miles north of Vienna. In the center, they slashed within four miles of the key 10-way junction of Laa by winning Fallbach.

While the Russians drove their steel wedge between the Germans in Berlin and those who have fled to the Bavarian redoubt, Moscow announced that Russian heavy bombers had heavily blasted Berlin overnight, adding huge fires to those set by a 1,000-plane RAF Mosquito bomber raid.

Enemy broadcasts admitted that whole areas of the capital were in flames from the relentless aerial and artillery bombardment.

The all-out asault gave the Germans their blackest day of the war and boreboded a devastated wasteland of crumbled stone and steel in the area that once was the proud European capital. The Germans themselves said the titanic battle dwarfed anything yet experienced in this war.

"Food And Water Will Run Out"

Transocean openly admitted a fear that food and water would run out in Berlin. Ceaselessly, propagandists called for a fight to the death, and reported that all available workers were strengthening tank traps and barricades and stringing barbed wire across the bridges of the Londwehr Canal, which runs through the city.

All along the 170-mile front from Stettin south to Dresden, said Commentator Ernest von Hammer, "German alarm units and reserves constantly are being thrown into focal points." He claimed one Russian thrust at Bernau was repulsed by such a unit.

Just A Wall Of Tanks

Said one Moscow dispatch of the great movement westward:

"The familiar operative phrase 'advanced spearheads' cannot be used in this great new offensive because there are no spearheads here—just one tremendous wall of Stalin and Sherman tanks.

"The whole Brandenburg battlefield northeast, east and southeast of Berlin is ablaze with tank fire and a heavy barrage is being laid down by German massed artillery and hundreds of self-propelled weapons and anti-tank weapons.

"The Germans have been hurled back from most of their trenches, but their lines supported by a wealth of light field pieces and machine guns sirung out in an almost continuous line in a great swinging arc around the capital. The heaviest Wehrmacht artillery is behind this, and hundreds of self-propelled guns and hundreds of tanks."

Nazis Say Russians Envelop Outskirts Of Reich Capital

APR 22 1945

German Broadcasts Place Red Forces in Suburbs at Five Points—Soviets Capture Jueterbog, Southeast of City in Sudden Flanking Move

London, April 21—(AP)—The Germans said today that massive Russian forces were enveloping Berlin through suburbs on the east, north and southwest, and were shelling the Potsdamer Platz in the center of the doomed city.

Soviet forces, by enemy account, had fought their way into Berlin suburbs at five places—Bernau, Strausberg, Fuerstenwalde, Koenigs-Wusterhausen and Zossen.

The Russian drive to Bernau, three miles from the city limits was announced by the German High Command. This action constituted part of the northern envelopment move against Berlin.

In a swift penetration of Nazi defenses below the capital, other Russian forces advanced to positions southwest of the capital, the German Transocean Agency announced. In this sweep the Russians reached the vicinity of Beelitz and Treuenbrietzen, respectively 12 and 22 miles southwest of Berlin's great southwestern suburb of Potsdam.

The German High Command communique announced a 35-mile break-through scored by Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian Army had reached Jueterbog, 27 miles south of Berlin.

To the north the First White Russian Army, making a frontal assault on Berlin, was locked in a bitter battle with Nazi defenders of the capital along the Fuerstenberg-Strausberg-Bernau Line, the German High Command said.

Still farther north other Russian forces were declared to have forced two bridgeheads over the Oder between Schwedt and Stettin, guarding the northern approaches to [illegible].

"Great Russian encircling moves are drawing closer towards the capital," the German Transocean Agency said. "Russian spearheads have reached the northeastern, eastern and southern suburbs of Berlin."

Heavy Tank Fighting

Both Germans and Russian accounts described the fighting along the outskirts of Berlin as a violent tank battle with the Russians making use of planes to disperse German armored formations.

An earlier German broadcast said that 3,000,000 persons still were in fire-blackened Berlin "awaiting the battle."

The announcement of the shelling of the German capital by Russian artillery was made by the German Transocean Agency.

By enemy account these are the five key points of the suburban fighting:

Bernau—Virtually at the northeastern city boundary just outside the ring Autobahn encircling the capital and 14 miles from the heart of the city.

Strausberg—Eight miles east-northeast of the Ring Autobahn.

Fuerstenwalde—12 miles southeast on the Frankfurt railway.

Koenigs-Wusterhausen — Three miles from the southeastern boundary.

Zossen—About 10 miles south on the main railway to Saxony.

Describing the situation in the southeastern suburbs as "most critical," Transocean said:

"The Russians have broken through between Cottbus and Bautzen and enemy spearheads have reached Koenigs - Wusterhausen, where they were halted. Another thrust is being made in the direction of Zossen."

Meanwhile, Moscow dispatches said the Nazi defenders of Berlin had fired the forests outside the city in a desperate attempt to halt the Russian tank armies grinding through suburban defense lines.

Emergency Decree

The German radio said a decree had been issued in the doomed capital requiring all men and women unable to reach their customary places of work because of the curtailment of transportation to report immediately and build anti-tank obstacles and dig trenches.

"Barricades are already blocking many streets of the town and are being strengthened and supplemented continuously," the broadcast said.

By German account the Russian assault had carried within seven miles of the city limits.

Other Soviet forces, racing for a linkup with American armies south of the doomed capital, made sensational gains across the Nazi escape corridor between the Spree and Elbe Rivers. They drove to within 18 miles of Dresden, Moscow announced.

Forces of Marshal Gregory R. Zhukov's First White Russian Army smashed strongpoint after strongpoint west of the Oder at the "very gates" of Berlin in perhaps the greatest tank battles of the war.

Peace Riots

Peace riots were reported to have broken out inside the German capital as the rumble of approaching Russian heavy guns was punctuated by incessan blasting from Allied bombers through the night.

The Germans said the Russians were thrusting ahead in Berlin's suburb on a 32-mile arc and had reached Hangelsberg and the Werneuchen area—seven miles east and seven and a half miles northeast of the capital perimeter.

Moscow accounts said Zhukov's troops and those of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian Army seized at least eight major strongholds along a 100-mile front from Berlin to Dresden and were menacing a dozen other fortified towns in the shattered Nazi defense ring east of the capital.

In their closest official approach to American vanguards, Konev's troops plunged 38 miles west from Rothenburg, through Niesky and Kletschen and reached Kamentz, 18 miles northeast of Dresden.

This advance, threatening to cut the greater Reich in two in swift fashion, already was a grave menace to the last trunk railroad from Berlin to the Nazi's national redoubt in the south.

The Germans said one Konev spearhead was only 54 miles from the American First Army positions on the Mulde River east of Leipzig, and that still another column swung north after smashing across the Spree River and entered Calau, 16 miles west of Cottbus in a flanking drive on Berlin.

Meanwhile, Russian troops in Austria drove to within five miles of Laa, key rail junction on the road to Prague.

In northern Czechoslovakia Soviet forces closed in to within two miles of Opava (Troppau) and seven miles of Moravska-Ostrava.

Berliners Huddle in Cellars As Red Shells Rock Capital

LONDON, April 21.—(AP) Three million terror-stricken Berliners, fearful of hunger as besieging Russian armies cut them off from the rest of the world, huddled in cellars tonight after being exhorted by Reich Defense Commissioner Goebbels to defend the capital to the death.

A late German broadcast declared forlornly: "The hour is too serious to hide anything now."

As shells from Russian artillery smashed into the bomb-battered city Goebbels in his second speech in three days to Berliners declared: "What you have earned with blood and tears you must defend with all the means at your disposal. What you have earned with sweat and work you must defend as only you can defend it."

Later Nazi propagandist Hans Fritsche said that "during the years of bitter battle for National Socialism we have learned to love Berlin and we will under no circumstances let the enemy take possession of our town."

Fritsche, vaguely suggesting that Hitler himself might be conducting the city's final defense, said:

"The man who at that time fought for Berlin—the man who conquered Berlin—today leads its defense."

Excerpts of Goebbels' speech were broadcast over the German general radio as the Propaganda Minister's talk was given over controlled wire facilities to Berliners, and therefore the actual tenor of his speech and his full remarks are not known.

In his final appeal Goebbels declared "your spirit, your steadfastness and your character will determine the outcome of the battle for the front line town of Berlin."

Suggestions that unrest was sweeping through the people of the city were seen in a Transocean broadcast earlier in the day which said Berliners were openly talking about the possibility of yet declaring Berlin an "open city."

The Transocean broadcast was beamed only for overseas listeners and its full significance was not immediately clear as Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler repeatedly has ordered every man, woman and child in Berlin to defend the city to the end.

"Should Berlin be declared an open town," the Transocean broadcast said, "it would be the first one in Germany in this war, as beginning with Aachen every town has been defended."

For days Nazi propagandists have been repeatedly stressing that fortifications have been built for street by street and house by house fighting in Berlin. Transocean said this morning that men and women unable to reach their places of regular employment must report to local centers for assignments to help build tank obstacles.

Walter Felchner, commentator for Transocean, said most of the population of Berlin was spending the days and nights underground and admitted the people of the city were haunted by the fear of hunger.

"Berliners do not shiver after six years of war," he said. "They expect even stronger bombardments. If Berliners are afraid of anything just now it is hunger."

Felchner said field kitchens were being set up in Berlin and authorities are "already preparing for public mass feeding."

A German broadcast gave this picture of the bomb and shell-battered capital of shrunken Germany:

"One sees people singly hurrying in the streets. We see lightly wounded who ask for an assembling point.

"Russian shells and bombs now are hailing down in the center of the capital. Our wounded are coming in on electric suburban trains from the front. The hour is too serious to hide anything now.

"We see carts and trucks fully laden with the possessions of farmers. We see land girls wrapped up in blankets sitting on top of wagons. We see soldiers on their way to garrisons to which they have been urgently summoned. They quickly say goodbye to their loved ones and we see—we canont deny it—women who with tears in their eyes look down the streets through which these soldiers are passing.

"We see Hitler youth determined to beat back the hated enemy."

Transocean said that when the first Russian shells fell in the Postdamer Platz—Berlin's Times Square—the people were puzzled whether these were bombs dropped by aircraft or antiaircraft fire.

"New ear splitting explosions were then heard and window panes were [illegible]

Admitting a serious coal shortage Transocean said drastic decrees barred all Berlin public conveyances to persons except those on extremely urgent business, and the use of electricity and gas for cooking or lighting even during the very short time it is available daily.

U.S. THIRD ARMY SEIZES ASCH IN CZECH ADVANCE

Americans Reported 25 Miles From Red Lines Near Dessau

Paris, April 21—(AP)— U. S. Third Army troops, smashing into Czechoslovakia, captured Asch today in a drive toward the munitions cities of Pilsen and Prague. At the same time Moscow dispatches declared Soviet and American outriders were but 25 miles apart south of Berlin.

The latest word at Supreme Headquarters put the two forces within 40 to 45 miles of a linkup.

Three Allied armies — the French First and the U. S. Seventh and Third—hammered southward toward the Nazis' Bavarian-Austrian redoubt, and fought within 70 miles of Munich and 30 from Lake Constance.

Asch, just inside the old Czech border, fell to Third Army units fighting to cut off the redoubt from Czechoslovak war factories. Asch is 60 miles from Pilsen. Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's troops farther south in Grafenworh were 58 miles from Pilsen and 125 from Prague.

Junction Imminent

Red Army front dispatches said Russian and U. S. patrols were as close as 25 miles south of Berlin, and a junction on the Elbe 75 miles south of the German capital was believed imminent.

The best information at Allied Headquarters was that 40 to 45 miles still separated Russians northeast of Dresden from U. S. First and Third Army forces along the Mulde River east of Leipzig. But it was clear that the two forces now could meet almost at will, perhaps within the next 24 to 48 hours.

Doughboys were 15 to 20 miles from the Elbe opposite the Russian wedge, and the Soviets were reported only 25 miles from the Elbe.

Red Guns Heard

A British correspondent with the U. S. Ninth Army declared the muffled thunder of Russian guns could be heard.

Two Ninth Army divisions opened a flank attack this morning west of Wittenberge, about midway between Berlin and Hamburg, and thrust halfway through the Gartower Forest. The 84th Infantry, in a seven mile gain, cleared Prezelle, 15 miles west of Wittenmerge, on the Elbe, and the Fifth Armored gained up to three miles. Diesdorf and Abbendorf were recaptured, and infiltrated enemy forces were mopped up.

General Eisenhower quickened his drives to crack open the areas where the Germans may make their last great stands—the northern port belt and the southern redoubt.

British armor plunged into the outskirts of Zeven, 20 miles northeast of Bremen, in a drive to encircle the river port, and also cut the main road five miles south of Zeven.

Threat to Hamburg

British troops were a mile from the suburbs of Hamburg, second city of Germany, and now dominated 20 miles of the Elbe southeast of the city.

The Canadian First Army intensified a drive on the naval ports of Emden and Wilhelmshaven against bitter opposition. Polish tanks captured Aschendorf on the railway to Emden, and patrolled into Papenburg, 20 south of Emden.

German deepened flood waters along their Grebbe line in Holland guarding the great cities of Utrecht, Amsterdam, the Hague, and Rotterdam, but Canadians skirting the flood pushed to within a mile north of Amersfoort, 12 miles east of Utrecht. Other Canadian units were within three miles of Delfziil, port on the Ems Estuary opposite Emden.

Third Army units besides seizing Asch entered Arzberg in Germany 10 miles to the south, and Feidenfels 23 miles below Asch, pushing through lightly-defended roadblocks. Erbendorf 26 miles south of Asch was cleared. The Third processed 7,185 prisoners yesterday.

Push Beyond Nuernberg

After Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's U. S. Seventh Army captured Nuernberg yesterday, the Seventh, Third and French First Armies wheeled south. In gains of up to 23 miles advance units drove to within 30 miles of Lake Constance, at the western edge of the Nazi Alpine hideout.

In the north the British Second Army was within a mile of Hamburg and with the Canadian First Army had cut off Bremen from three sides.

Far behind the front the French tri-color fluttered from a lighthouse on the tip of captured Pointe de Grave. It signalized the reopening of the long-blockaded French port of Bordeaux.

General Eisenhower conferred yesterday with Field Marshal Montgomery only a few miles from the front, and declared in a order of the day that the German armies in the west "are now tottering on the threshhold of defeat."

The fact that supreme headquarters was able to predict an imminent linkup with the Russians was seen as an indication of the closeness of co-ordination between Eisenhower's command and the Red Army generals smashing from the east.

Official disclosure of the details of this co-ordination was withheld at supreme headquarters in courtesy to the Russians.

The fall of Nuernberg released elements of two armored and three infantry divisions for the southward drive that was cutting off Nazis in the redoubt area from arsenal cities in Czechoslovakia.

The French First Army reached Rottweil, 65 miles from the Austrian border due west of Munich.

Fifty miles to the northeast the industrial and communications center of Stuttgart was all but surrounded as the French troops entered Aich, ten miles to the south. The Seventh Army's Tenth Armored Division in a 25-mile lunge reached a point 12 miles northeast of Aich.

Seventh Army tanks were clashing with German armor in a fierce battle at Neumarket, 21 miles southeast of Nuernberg and 70 miles North of Munich. It was the first stiff resistance by the Nazis at the approaches to their Alpine redoubt.

The U. S. Third Army, on the eastern flank of this southward push, was a mile or so inside Czechoslovakia. In a 16-mile push it had captured Grafenwohr, 58 miles west of Pilsen. Other Third Army forces were attacking on the outskirts of Chemnitz, 33 miles from the German Eastern front base of Dresden.

U. S. First Army troops were besieging Dessau, 52 miles southwest of Berlin, but almost all the activity in this center of the front closest to the German capital was in the nature of a mopup behind the easternmost lines.

MUNICH AREA BOMBED HARD

APR 22 1945

American Planes Also Attack Near Berchtesgaden

DOANE

London, April 21 (AP)—At least 820 American planes attacked in and around the south German "National Redoubt" almost unopposed today, dropping bombs in the area of Munich, Nazi birthplace, and near Berchtesgaden, where Nazism may make its last stand.

More than 300 8th Army Air Force Fortresses escorted by 400 Mustangs and Thunderbolts brought the total of bombs dropped on Munich to 10,500 tons, hammering the already battered railyards there and at near-by Ingolstadt and then bombing and strafing the jet plane base at Landsberg, 30 miles to the west.

9th's First Hit On Austria

The 9th Air Force, striking from advanced bases, made its first raid into Austria with an attack by 120 A-26 Invaders on the railyards at Attnang-Pucheim along the important Salsburg-Linz line and not far from Adolf Hitler's Berchtesgaden retreat.

Fighter bombers of the 9th also attacked airfields, destroying at least 34 grounded planes and damaging others. Other fighter bombers pounded motor and rail lines ahead of the armored spearheads of the United States 3d Army.

The Luftwaffe, which has lost more than 3,000 planes in the last two weeks, failed to come up. Bomber crewmen said they encountered no German planes and only light flak in the troip to Munich, from which six bombers are missing. All fighters returned.

Munich, which has now become one of the ten most heavily bombed cities in the Reich, is the focal point of the remaining rail system in southern Germany and Ingolstadt, on the Danube 45 miles north, is no one of the main escape routes south from Nuernberg.

BERLIN RAIDED

SIX TIMES BY R. A. F. BOMBERS

JAMESON

Set Record for Single Night — Yanks Back Over Germany

London, April 21—(AP)—R. A. F. Mosquitos set a record for bombing Berlin last night, hitting the besieged Reich capital six times as the climax of a day-long blitz on German railways by more than 3,000 planes.

Three times were the most Berlin ever had been raided in one night before. Last night's attacks, made without loss of a single aircraft, brought to 76 the number of raids on Berlin in the last 58 nights.

More than 600 American Flying Fortresses yesterday slammed 1,600 tons of bombs on seven key outposts in the city's defense perimeter.

Drop Record Load

U. S. Eighth Air Force Headquarters announced its planes had dropped 51,385,550 pounds of high explosives within Berlin's limits in 19 attacks since March 4. 1944.

American bombers were back over Germany today for the ninth successive day.

Probably more than 1,000 of the fast twin-engined Mosquitos participated in the six Berlin raids. Each plane carries a 2,000 pound blockbuster bomb with virtually as big an explosive charge as a German flying bomb.

Reds Bombers Active

While British raiders were hammering the western and central parts of the besieged capital, Russian bombers were mauling defense lines on the eastern outskirts by the light of flares and artillery flashes.

The day's fighter scores also included over 100 freight cars and 400 motor vehicles destroyed or damaged.

REDS, POLES SIGN FRIENDSHIP PACT

KING

20-Year Treaty Pledges Mutual Assistance, Post-war Collaboration.

LONDON, Sunday, April 22—(AP) Moscow early today confirmed signature of a 20-year treaty "of friendship, mutual assistance and post-war collaboration" by the Soviet Union and the Soviet-sponsored Polish provisional government, a regime which the United States and Britain do not recognize and which has been bidding vainly for a seat at the San Francisco conference.

First announcement was made late last night by the Lublin Polish radio without details. Later the Moscow radio disclosed that Premier Stalin himself had signed the treaty for Russia and Premier and Foreign Minister Edward Osubka-Morawski for the Polish group, whose leaders have been in Moscow since Thursday and who were Stalin's guests at dinner in the Kremlin Saturday night.

Stalin Applies Pressure

Apparently Stalin was throwing his full support behind the Soviet-sponsored regime, although the United States and Britain have taken the position that a reorganization and broadening of the government, as planned at Yalta, must take place before they will drop the Polish government in exile in London and admit the new government to the United Nations fold.

The Moscow announcement said several days of talks with Premie Stalin preceded the signatures.

"The talks, which were held in a atmosphere of sincerity and mut ual understanding," it said. "Con firmed the determination of bot countries to affect, together with the United Nations, the speedies and final routing of Hitlerite Ger many and also strengthen in the postwar period the radical change which has been achieved in the relations between the U. S. S. R. and Poland and the further development of collaboration and the joint struggle of the Soviet and Polish peoples against the German invaders."

The treaty was signed by Premier Stalin for Russia and Osubka-Morawski for the Polish government.

BALTIC SOON, CHURCHILL

SHORTON

Prime Minister Links Forecast With Plea Not To Celebrate

Bristol, England, April 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill called on Britons today to restrain any celebration of a victory over Germany in favor of "a new leap forward" to bring the war against Japan "to a conclusion altogether free from any doubt."

He disclosed that victory in Germany would be decided by Allied army commanders' notification to their governments that "their task is done," and "I do not think it need be long delayed."

"We will soon be on the Baltic," Churchill predicted in a speech to the people of Bristol, to whom he also repeated the same words he delivered exactly four years ago on a visit after a heavy bombing: "Carry on and all will be well."

Have Japanese To Finish

"We have the Japanese to finish," he said, "and we stand absolutely with our great American ally paying off at the other end of the world debts as heavy as ever were inflicted on us."

Speaking only a few days before the opening of the San Francisco world security conference, the Prime Minister affirmed that "a world security organization which we must build and shall build will be free and open to all the nations of the world," indicating the eventual inclusion of neutral and even enemy countries.

He added, "They must live in peace and justice with one another and there must be always the necessary force to restrain aggression."

Inside such an organization, "from which we hope will come a long and peaceful period, will be the open, avowed and inseparable friendship of the great English-speaking nations of the world," he said.

Speaks In Blitzed Hall

Standing in the great blitzed and fire-blackened hall of the University of Bristol, Churchill told his audience "we are coming to the end of the long journey." Speaking of victory in the European war, he went on:

"We may pause for a moment. We may rejoice, but it may only be for the purpose of regathering strength. There may be dangers that people will feel, after this long struggle and this great and undisputed victory over a formidable opponent, that we can relax. I cannot give the word for that."

Earlier Churchill indicated the possibility of either his retirement or defeat in the general elections scheduled after V-E day when speaking of the war against Japan.

Will Back Successor

"I shall have to ask you," he said, "or whoever stands in my place (and whoever it may be I shall support him); we shall have to ask you for a new leap forward, for a new lifting of the soul and body so that this second war shall also be brought to a conclusion altogether free from any doubt."

The 70-year-old Premier was made a "freeman of Bristol" after a trip through thronged streets in an ancient horse-drawn ceremonial coach flanked by outriders.

Then later he presented the degree of doctor of law on behalf of the university to two members of his war Cabinet, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Ernest Bevin, Labor Minister, who may be Labor party's choice to oppose Churchill in Britain's first general election contest in ten years.

Praises Bevin's Aid

After declaring that during the past five difficult years "I had an absolutely united nation behind me and had the support of colleagues as loyal as any Government in Britain has ever had," Churchill added:

"In Mr. Bevin I have found a colleague who has handled the most intricate and difficult problems in maintenance, not only of our armies but of our factories, and who has laid a heavy, but in many cases not an unwelcome, hand upon every human being in the kingdom."

Then the Prime Minister reiterated:

"I never could have gotten through this business if I had not had with me a powerful band of men representative of the nation, bound together by a loyalty which rose far above party politics."

War Crimes Commission Explains Atrocity Stand

London, April 21 (AP)—Lord Wright, War Crimes Commission chairman, said tonight that the commission had no jurisdiction to conduct "actual detective investigations" of German atrocities and that it acted only on reports sent in by national governments.

He added that the commission studied such reports to determine if prima facie cases exist so that appropriate authorities can take steps to arrest war criminals.

British Labor Plan Assailed

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—Ralph Assheton, chairman of the Conservative party, in an assault on the Labor party's election policy, said today that the opposition's "experiments in state ownership" would produce "general paralysis of trade."

Churchill Says Britain Must Gird Anew for Japanese War

Declares Nation Stands Squarely With U. S. and That Pacific Conflict Will Be Fought to a Victorious Conclusion.

APR 22 1945

Bristol, England, April 21 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill told the people of Britain today that a "new leap forward—a new lifting of body and soul"—would be required to defeat Japan and bring the Pacific war to a conclusion.

Mr. Churchill said that victory over Germany would be decided by Allied military commanders, who will notify their governments "when their task is done."

"I do not think it need be long delayed," he added.

He emphasized that it would bring pause only for a moment—a moment of rejoicing and for the purpose of regathering strength to carry on the war against Japan.

Here to present University of Bristol honors to two of his war cabinet associates, the Prime Minister declared:

"We have no intention of encouraging any festivities of thanksgiving until we are assured from our military commanders that the task is so far complete that every one may cheer.

"We have the Japanese to finish, and we stand absolutely with our great American ally, paying off at the other end of the world debts as heavy as ever were inflicted on us.

To Ask New Effort.

"I shall have to ask you, or whoever stands in my place—and, whoever it may be, I shall support him—we shall have to ask you for a new leap forward, for a new lifting of the soul and body so that this second war shall also be brought to a conclusion altogether free from any doubt."

The Prime Minister declared that "a world organization which we must build and shall build will be free and open to all the nations of the world."

Speaking only a few days before the opening of the world security conference at San Francisco, he asserted that "nations must live in peace and justice with one another," thus envisaging the ultimate inclusion of even present enemy nations in a world peace organization.

He added significantly: "There must be always the necessary force to restrain aggression."

Mr. Churchill told the university audience that inside the vast structure of the new world organization "from which we hope will come a long and peaceful period, (there) will be open, avowed and inseparable friendship and affection of the great English-speaking nations of the world."

He said that the Allies were approaching a period "when the Germans will be conquered completely and Europe will be entirely liberated from their thrall; when they will be added to those long melancholy and humiliated streams of prisoners that, having done their worst against the world, have no hope but in its mercy."

First Visit in Four Years.

It was just four years ago today that Mr. Churchill last came to this port city. Then he arrived immediately after a heavy bombing, bringing to Bristol's resolute people a single sentence message: "Carry on and all will be well."

Now he came to receive the freedom of the city and to help honor two of his colleagues, the First Lord of the Admiralty, H. V. Alexander, and Labor Minister Ernest Bevin, who are to receive degrees of doctor of law from the university.

Concerning the five past years, which saw Britain rise from the fear of invasion to the heights of near-victory in Europe, Mr. Churchill said simply:

"I had an absolutely united nation behind me and had the support of colleagues as loyal as any Government in Britain has ever had."

GOEBBELS URGES BERLIN TO FIGHT

London, April 21 (A. P.).—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels called on all the men, women and children of Berlin tonight to defend the besieged capital. In a broadcast, Goebbels, who is also Gauleiter of Berlin, proclaimed:

"During the years of bitter battles for National Socialism we have learned to love Berlin and will under no circumstances let the enemy take possession of our town."

The fear of starvation is gripping fear of starvation is gripping Berliners who already are ducking Russian shells falling into the heart of the Reich capital, Nazi propagandists said today as they exhorted every man, woman and child to fight to the death.

Field kitchens are being set up, and Transocean's correspondent Walter Felchner said "Berlin is already preparing for public mass feeding when the city is encircled and all communications with the outside world cut."

Britain Scents Romance For Princess Elizabeth

London, April 21 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth celebrated her nineteenth birthday quietly today in the country with the King and Queen as Britain buzzed with a disclosure that tall, handsome, 23-year-old Prince Philip of Greece had been a recent guest of the royal family.

With victory in Europe in sight and an attractive heir presumptive of marriageable age, a romance for the girl was expected.

Blond Prince Philip, cousin of King George of Greece and of Princess Elizabeth's aunt, the Duchess of Kent, is a lieutenant in the Royal Navy, which he joined as a midshipman at 19. He served on the battleship Valiant in the Battle of Matapan.

The Princess is a subaltern in the Army Territorial Services.

Hitler Hinted as Defender

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—Hans Fritsche, German radio commentator, suggesting that Adolf Hitler himself might be conducting the Berlin defense, said: "The man who conquered Berlin today leads its defense."

Excerpts of Goebbels' speech were broadcast as the Propaganda Minister's talk was given over controlled wire facilities to Berliners. The actual tenor of his speech and his full remarks are not known.

In his final appeal Goebbels declared, "Your spirit, your steadfastness and your character will determine the outcome of the battle for the front-line town of Berlin."

NEW INVASION RUMOR

London, April 21—(AP)—The Germans broadcast a Milan dispatch today quoting Italian Fascist leaders as saying that the Trieste-Fiume area of Northeastern Italy was in "grave danger" of being invaded by Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans.

PERMANENT SECURITY SEAT

London, April 21—(AP)—A probable debate over the location of a permanent seat for a new world security league was shaping up today for the San Francisco conference. Switzerland, Luxembourg, Vienna and Washington were under consideration as possible sites.

A return to Switzerland was said to be gaining increased backing despite opposition by Russia and some other countries.

Bombers Cripple Luetzow, Last Nazi Pocket Battleship

London, April 21—(AP)—R. A. F. bombs have put out of action Germany's last pocket battleship, the Luetzow.

The Russians were reported today to have seized the 26,000 ton Nazi battleship Gneisenau and the 10,000-ton heavy cruiser Seydlitz at unidentified Baltic ports.

The Air Ministry said last night that the Luetzow is lying on the bottom in shallow water at Swinemunde on the Baltic Coast.

Stockholm dispatches, meanwhile, said what was left of the German Navy had fled to Copenhagen.

Germany presumably has only the eight inch gun cruiser Prinz Eugen and the light cruiser Nuernberg left as mainstays of her once sizeable fleet.

62 Captured Canadians Freed

London, April 21 (A. P.).—The United States Eighty-seventh Infantry Division freed sixty-two Canadian soldiers captured at Dieppe when it overran the German city of Tambach, a field dispatch to the Times said today.

VICTIM OF NAZIS WAS READING BYRON

Thekla, Germany, April 21 (A. P.).—Among a mass of charred bodies in grotesque postures of agony lay the body of a distinguished looking, middle-aged, bespectacled man. He was one of 324 Polish, Russian Czech, Yugoslav, French and Italian prisoners in the concentration camp here, burned alive by the Nazis just before American troops captured this Leipzig suburb. His body lay halfway through a barbed wire barrier, but his face was serene.

The little man, whom Major Robert Rashid of Berlin, Wis., identified as a Polish scientist, evidently had been studying English. A half-charred book had fallen from his burned coat pocket. It was open at a page upon which appeared a selection from Lord Byron. The best that could be deciphered from the burned page read:

"And guide thy soul to mine even here. . . .

"When thou beholdest them dropping nigh. . . .

"And knowest them gathered by the Rhine. . . .

"And offered from my heart to thine!"

FLYING FORTRESS IN ROCKET TAKE-OFF

A United States Bomber Base in England, April 21 (A. P.).—Aided by rockets, Capt. Richard C. Holub of Gras Valley, Cal., took a Flying Fortress off the ground recently after a run of only 372 feet. The normal taekoff requires 800 or 900 feet. Gen. Carl Spaatz saw the experiment.

Six rockets of the type used by British Royal Navy planes were mounted under each wing. Rocket takeoffs from carriers and from the water have been reported, but this was believed the first time rockets were used for land-based craft.

Champagne Chow Line in Leipzig

With the United States Sixty-ninth Division Attacking Leipzig (A. P.).—Medical corps men had their first champagne chow line of the war in Naumburg. Huge stores of champagne, cognac and food were captured in Nazi supply dumps at the Bismarck Caserne, and a small amount was parceled out to the first units to take the city. As they passed the mess table each medic was asked by a grinning cook standing with a bottle in one hand and a dipper in the other:

"Champagne or coffee."

Believe it or not, a lot of coffee was drunk.

Nuernberg Women Say: 'We're Tired of the War'

Help the Men to Surrender; Vast Food Cache Found

NUERNBERG, Germany, April 20 (Delayed) (AP).—During Nuernberg's dying hours today the women of the city, freed from the discipline of the Gestapo and the S. S. (Elite Guard), surrendered their sons and husbands to the Americans. Some of them were in uniform, some not. The women said rather mechanically, "we're tired of the war."

Units of the 3d Infantry Division, their job of clearing up half of Nuernberg finished, hoisted an American flag in Adolph Hitler Platz in the heart of the old walled city.

What must be one of the biggest stores of meat and food the Allies have captured in Germany was uncovered by Company G, commanded by Lieutenant Pete Dougherty of Newton, Mass.

Dougherty and his men went inside a huge six-story building to drive out six snipers. They discovered that the building, covering about a city block, was a frozen-food concern and all six floors were stacked to the ceilings with sides of beef, pork, barrels of butter, frozen vegetables, fruit juices, ducks, chickens, steaks, eggs and ice cream.

Ninth Army Halts Along Elbe to Wait for Soviet Armies.

APR 22 1945

SEVENTH PERILS ULM

French Reach Upper Danube, Doughboys Closing on Munich.

PARIS, Sunday, April 22—(AP) Formal announcement that the Americans and Russians have joined in central Germany was expected today in a matter of hours, and there were indications that the U. S. Ninth army might be the chosen force for the historic meeting with the Red Army at or near Berlin.

Associated Press Correspondent Wes Gallagher, with the Ninth army at Magdeburg, reported that the great Russian breakthrough—which now has entered Berlin—explained why the Ninth army had been sitting on the Elbe river west of the German capital since April 11.

Yanks Wait for Reds

The Ninth army had, and still has, the power to have marched to Berlin within ten days of its reaching the Elbe, Gallagher noted, and referred to the expected junction of the Ninth and the Russians in the Berlin area.

Simultaneously with Gallagher's dispatch, U. S. 12th Army group headquarters announced cryptically that a reconnaissance plane "in contact with the 83rd division (which is a Ninth army division) reported having sighted what is believed to be Russian armor somewhere east of the Elbe river this afternoon."

The very fact that Army group headquarters saw fit to make such an announcement lent it added significance. Reconnaissance planes in contact with frontline divisions do not operate at extreme range ahead of the line.

Paris radio reported the dramatic junction already had been made, and there were reports here that patrols had made preliminary contacts. Supreme headquarters did not confirm these reports, and it was regarded here as certain that the actual formal meeting was still to come—but that it would come within hours, not days.

The two Allies last were reported 32 miles apart east of Leipzig in an area about 75 miles south of Berlin, and it was in that sector around Dresden that the French said they had come together.

However, the Germans said the Russian forces already were three to four miles inside the Berlin city limits on the northeast and had cut around the city to Beelitz, on the southwest, while field reports from the American front put those Russians within 35 miles of the U. S. Ninth Army drawn up on the Elbe river.

The severed Reich was under slashing attack in the north and south.

French First Army tanks in an 18-mile dash reached the upper Danube at a point 10 miles from the Swiss frontier.

Farther east the U. S. Seventh army was only 20 miles from the river as American tanks and troops swung south on a broad front, perilling the Danubian stronghold of Ulm, sentinel city on the route to Munich, in Hitler's redoubt. Ulm is 72 miles west of Munich.

In between these steel spearheads, the French and Americans met southeast of Stuttgart, completing the encirclement of that key communications and industrial city with a population of 459,000.

French troops were two and a half miles west of the city and the Americans last were reported about nine miles away on the northeast.

U. S. Ninth army troops, which kicked off in a new attack west of the Elbe to clear their flanks for the climactic eastward drive, heard over their field radios Russian commanders leading their armies in the grand assault on Berlin. A report from the front said the rumble of Russian guns attacking the capital could be plainly heard.

While the Allies of the west marshalled their forces for the renewed drive to the east, furious blows were rained on the stricken Germans in the north and south.

Drive Into Czechoslovakia

The U. S. Third Army drove a second wedge into Czechoslovakia, capturing the city of Asch. Seeking to split that last Nazi arsenal country from the Alpine retreat, these troops plunged farther south where they were 55 miles west of Pilsen, biggest munitions city in Czechoslovakia.

The French First Army was only eight miles from the headwaters of the Danube and 28 miles from Lake Constance, which guards the redoubt on the west.

The U. S. Seventh army, flushed by its great victory in conquering Hitler's shrine of Nuernberg, rolled southward 18 miles or more and was 25 miles from the Danube stronghold of Ulm, northern doorway to the mountainous retreat.

In the north, Hamburg's suburb of Harburg was under assault by British troops fighting through the outskirts. Bremen was all but cut off.

The Poles to the west seized Papenburg, hinge of the defense line which the Germans had formed to protect their ports of Bremen, Wilhelmshaven and Emden.

The Canadians dug into the Grebbe line defending western Holland's cities of Rotterdam, Amsterdam, Utrecht and the Hague, passing north of the Dutch fortress of Amersfoort.

In the center of the front, the U. S. First Army stormed with tanks and troops into Dessau, 52 miles southwest of Berlin and 32 miles from the Russian troops cutting southwest of Berlin.

It was revealed that this junction, when it comes, will be the results of well co-ordinated planning between the commanders of the Eastern and Western armies, who arrange carefully beforehand to prevent any confusion.

Americans Find Women Abandoned in Czech Jail

Nazis Had Left Them There Without Food or Water

ASCH, Czechoslovakia, April 21 (AP).—Lieutenant General George S. Patton's troops swept today into Asch, the first Czech city to fall to American arms, and uncovered another Nazi atrocity story.

Lying almost naked in a vermin-ridden jail, where they had been abandoned without food or water five days ago, were twelve Hungarian Jewish women, survivors of a march across Germany in which hundreds died.

The 3d Army men chased the last German defenders out of this Sudetenland city of 26,000 population at mid-afternoon today.

the naggard, helpless women, half of them too weak to stand, had been moved into comfortable German beds and the Americans were preparing chicken broth for the sufferers, using fowl from a well stocked barnyard. The beds were the first the women had seen and the food the best they had eaten sinc thy were driven from their homes in Hungarian Transylvania May 27, 1944.

Foe Seen Set To Give Up After Fall Of Big Cities

Stockholm, April 21 (AP)—The Free Danish Press Service said today that the Germans in Denmark would probably capitulate after the fall of Berlin, Hamburg and Kiel, although there have been previous strong indications that the Nazis would fight on Danish soil.

"Much indicates that the German soldier has lost his fighting spirit," the agency said, "and the fall of Berlin and Hamburg will surely mean the collapse of his psychological resistance to surrender."

This statement seemed to offer some confirmation to rumors current, especially in southern Sweden, that the Germans, possibly 100,000 strong there, planned to give up Denmark either by evacuation or capitulation within the next two weeks. There has been no confirmation of this from Allied or official Swedish quarters.

AMERICANS KILL GERMAN GENERAL

With the First Army in Germany, April 21 (A. P.).—American tankmen shot a high ranking German general to death yesterday in the Ruhr pocket when he and his men ran from a house and killed an American soldier with a machine pistol.

The Americans were making a routine patrol south of Schmallenberg when eight Germans burst out of the house and fired on them. A tankman opened fire with a machine gun. Besides the American and the German general, two of the general's fleeing men were killed and two others wounded. Three escaped.

U. S. PLANES BOMB SS TROOP COLUMN

Leipzig, April 21 (A. P.).—United States Ninth Tactical Air Force planes yesterday afternoon caught and attacked a Luftwaffe-guarded column of 2,000 SS troops moving west in 150 vehicles, between Luckau and Dahme, which lie between Berlin and Leipzig.

Eleven P-38s bombed and strafed the column for half an hour, while four German planes assigned to guard it fought in the skies with four American covering planes.

One United States plane and one ME-109 were shot down. The Air Force said 140 SS troops were killed on the ground, twenty-three trucks destroyed, twenty-three more damaged, two half-tracks and two horse-drawn vehicles destroyed, and one armored vehicle damaged.

SITDOWN BROUGHT CAPTIVES' RESCUE

Somewhere in Germany, April 18 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Hundreds of American and British prisoners of war recently held a successful sitdown strike against their German captors long enough for United States First Army troops to overtake and rescue them. The incident was reported today by five young American prisoners who escaped by walking off to a woods when their harassed elderly guards were busy. All five had spent three months in carpentry and debris clearing jobs after their capture last December in Luxembourg and Belgium.

"We heard American artillery guns approaching the city five days ago," Private Marvin A. Bramson of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, said. (The dispatch did not identify the city where the men were held.) The others who escaped with him were Pfc. Langdon Prouty Jr., Littleton, Mass.; Private Eugene E. Schiling, Springfield, Ohio; Pfc. Angelo J. Dovas, Toledo, Ohio, and Private Philip W. Estabrook, Bangor, Me.

Bombs Hit Admiralty Building, Churchill Says

Bristol, April 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill disclosed today that German bombs had blasted a "hideous gap" in the British Admiralty building—only a few hundred feet from famed No. 10 Downing street—while he was looking on.

"I have often looked across from No. 10 Downing street to the other side of the parade ground to the Admiralty building to see that building crumbling under fire of the enemy," he said.

He reported the dwelling of the First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, also had been "pierced with fragments so that many of the pictures we value saw action and will go down to all generations with little marks in them to tell of the brave days of old."

Churchill did not give the date of the bombing.

47 Starving Americans Freed in German Hospital

Belgian Break-Through Captives Beaten in Rock Quarry

WITH THE UNITED STATES 90TH DIVISION, April 21 (AP).—Freedom arrived just ahead of death from starvation for a number of American soldiers in a German hospital overrun by the 90th Division.

Forty-seven American soldiers, captured in the Belgian breakthrough last December, were liberated yesterday by the 90th. All were suffering from acute malnutrition, overwork and frequent beatings administered by the Germans who had worked them in a rock quarry.

Fifteen of the forty-seven were wasted away to little more than living skeletons. All were crawling with lice and some still bore livid welts and infected sores from the beatings by German civilian and military guards.

The satisfaction of liberation was doubled by the fact that one of the two German soldiers who had been most brutal was captured. The other German was in hiding hereabouts today and the order went out to get him, dead or alive.

The freed Americans said that many of their comrades died of malnutrition, disease and mistreatment while they slaved in the quarry at Burgau. They estimated that out of 308 men originally employed there, only 142 survived.

MODERN U. S. 'INDIANS' OUTWIT GERMAN UNIT

WITH UNITED STATES NINTH ARMY in Germany, April 21 (AP)—Cognac-inspired German Lieut. Gen. Unrein's veteran von Clausewitz Division, which has been rampaging around in the Ninth Army's rear areas fifty miles from the Elbe, was put out of action today when it ran into a mechanized version of American Indian warfare.

What was left of the division came down the road just northeast of Wofenbuttel this morning to find the veteran United Second Armored Division sitting on road blocks and ready. When the shooting was over the Germans were either dead or neatly wraped upon prisoner cages.

The Second Armored Division's reconnaissance screen met the Germans coming south and guided them into a trap set by Combat Command B.

Finding themselves outnumbered the Germans tried to escape through some woods, but the Second Armored Division's tanks raced around the Germans, like Indians riding around the wagon train in the horse opera.

American artillery fire then pounded the Germans and then infantry men went in to dig out the stragglers.

At last reports, General Unrein himself, the division's battle loving commander, was last seen headed up the road with American tanks in hot pursuit.

U. S. WOMAN SET FREE IN LEIPZIG

Tells of Hiding R.A.F. and Yank Flyers in France.

Leipzig, April 21 (A. P.).—The American-born Countess Henry de Mauduit, 45 years old, liberated after spending twenty-two months in six different jails and camps, said today that she had once "had to undress completely" while German guards searched her.

The former Roberta Laurie of Stoughton, Mass., blue-eyed and prematurely gray, she said she was seized by the Gestapo for concealing Allied flyers in a secret double floor of her Brittany chateau. She said she hid in a typhoid ward to escape being marched off by the Nazis from suburban Schoenefeld Barracks with 6,000 other women and political prisoners as the Americans approached Leipzig.

All the women worked twelve hours a day at the dangerous task of loading artillery shells in the great Hasag munitions plant, she also reported.

When first arrested, she said, "they beat me five times in six months while I was wearing nothing but my night clothes."

Women Don't Squeal.

"Don't ever tell me women talk," she said, relating how she had been in the main women's camp north of Berlin with "80,000 women from all over Europe," some of whom were held under water until they drowned during third-degree questioning, "and I don't remember any woman who talked."

Married in Paris seventeen years ago, the Countess said the Gestapo at first fed her on bread and water for thirty-five days at Rennes prison, but she failed to crack. "It's O. K. with me, boys," she said she told them. "I have been trying for years to get thin, but I never had the courage to stick to a diet before."

The Countess told her story to the Military Government in Leipzig to which the soldiers took her. Then she said: "I guess I had better be getting back to my prison now. The other girls will be worrying about me."

She was arrested on June 12, 1943, at her chateau at Bourg Blanc, near the North Breton port of Paimpol, where she had strange problems after the escape of her husband to England in 1941 to join Gen. de Gaulle.

"At one time I had nineteen American and British airmen living between the double floor, and that same evening I was entertaining for dinner the German army engineer in control of the Brittany coastal defenses."

She was concealing five American aviators the day she was arrested. "A hundred Gestapo agents came to my chateau without warning and searched it from basement to attic, and did not find them. Some one must have tipped them off that I was helping shot-down flyers get away, because they arrested me anyway."

The Gestapo's failure to find the five Americans may have been what saved her from the death penalty.

When the Americans entered Leipzig the first soldier she saw was Private Eddie Miller of New York city, of the Sixty-ninth Division. "He was a good boy," she laughed. "He gave me this dollar bill as a souvenir because he said no American ever should be without one." She was wearing it in the lapel of her striped prison coat.

MRS. LUCE VISITS NAZI HORROR CAMP

Sees Crematorium at Buchenwald; Talks with Freed Prisoners in Hospital.

WEIMAR, Germany, April 21—(AP) A congressional delegation composed of Representatives Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.), John Kunkel (R-Pa.) and Leonard Hall (R-N.Y.), today visited the Buchenwald concentration camp, and saw the horrors which liberating United States troops found in this German den of death and brutality.

Mrs. Luce spared herself none of the grisly spectacles, and said she hoped the people of the United States would see motion picture records which have been made there.

Visits Crematorium

She visited the basement crematorium where, in a white walled room, bodies had been hanged from iron hooks.

Her prisoner guide told her how the executioners used clubs shaped like potato mashers to kill victims who did not die quickly enough in the noose.

She saw the elevator which carried the bodies upstairs to the furnaces.

Outside the crematorium she saw a wagon stacked high with shriveled bodies.

She did not remain long, saying, "It's just too horrible.

In the barracks she saw prisoners too weak to move from the tiered shelves on which they lay. Six had been forced to lie on the shelves in a space big enough only for three.

Talks to Patients

She talked to many patients in the hospital—once a brothel—getting first hand information about Buchenwald's brutalities.

Scores of American Doughboys

silently had been viewing the concentration camp, which has been cleaned up considerably since its liberation. There were 51,000 dead of Buchenwald's atrocities.

"Only a few years ago some were talking about there being good German people," said Mrs. Luce. "After seeing this, one wonders whether there is good in any German people."

She was visibly affected by the sight of an emaciated 6 1-2 year old boy who had been imprisoned 2 1-2 years—for being out after the curfew in Paris. "No one wants to believe these things, but it is important that people know they're true," she said.

Kunkel said, "no one could visualize these horrors without seeing them. x x x It is incredible that some of the people were able to survive such an ordeal. This is a sight I hope never to see again."

Said Hall: "You have to see Buchenwald to realize fully what debased beasts the Germans are. There is nothing here except brutality; corpses by the wagon loads. It certainly points up the question as to what should be done with Germany after the war."

Informed that news reel cameramen had made a film record of the atrocities found in the camp, Mrs. Luce told newsmen:

"Everyone should see these films and never forget them."

Correspondents told her that one cameraman, Tom Priestley, of Rockaway Beach, L. I., had said he doubted the films would reach public theater screens "because they portray scenes so horrible they would shock the average moviegoer."

She retorted:

"No one wants to believe such things could happen. But they have happened here. We must always remember this could happen to us, too, in 20 years."

German Horrors Seen By Clare Boothe Luce

Weimar, Germany, April 21 (AP). Republican Representatives Clare Boothe Luce (Conn.), John Kunkel (Pa.) and Leonard Hall (N.Y.) viewed the horrors of Buchenwald concentration camp today along with ten members of Britain's Parliament. The visits of the two parties of legislators coincided by accident.

Mrs. Luce saw stacks of bodies of Buchenwald's victims and declared:

"The most important thing to remember is that this could happen to us in twenty years.

"Only a few years ago, some were talking about there being good German people. After seeing this, one wonders whether there is good in any German people."

Boy Held 2½ Years

Among the emaciated internees was a 6½-year-old boy, who had been imprisoned 2½ years.

"He was picked up in Paris because he was out after the curfew," Mrs. Luce said. "No one wants to believe these things, but it is important that people know they're true."

She asked several of the former prisoners what should be done with Germans responsible for the atrocities, and they replied:

"The same as they did to us."

"That's no answer," Mrs. Luce told newsmen, but she did not amplify.

HALT ON ELBE LAID TO PLAN

Instance Of Co-Ordinated Strategy Of Allies Pointed Out

Magdeburg, Germany, April 21 (AP)—The great Russian breakthrough on the eastern front, with latest reports putting the Red Army 35 miles from the Elbe River, explains why the United States 9th Army has been sitting on the Elbe for more than a week.

It seems obvious that the western front has been coordinated with the eastern front for present operations.

The day after the 9th Army stopped on the Elbe and failed to exploit its bridgehead across the river, the Russians kicked off in their big Berlin drive, which now has all the aspects of avalanche-like power that the Western Allies drive from the Rhine displayed.

Could Have Gone On

The 9th Army had the troops, supplies and powder to go on. It still has them and many military men ha dthought it would have taken no more than ten days to put them into Berlin. However, had the 9th gone on while the Russians kicked off on their drive, the troops would have become so entangled that it would have been difficult to tell who was fighting whom, and there would have been grave danger of an international incident—of Americans clashing with Russians.

The eastern and western fronts are not under one commander, and are not easily controlled as are Allied Army groups such as the British and Americans, who have been working side by side with good liaison.

Plum

When the esatern and western fronts came sclose enough to unite, it was a military necessity for one force to halt along some well-defined line and wait. Only in this way could an incident be avoided.

Apparently the joint chiefs of staff decided that the Elbe River would be the halting line. The Americans reached it first and stopped. Just what caused the Elbe line to be set, or when, was not apparent, but since the American and British armies got well across the Weser River they have probably been fighting in territory which is assigned for Russian occupation after the war.

Both the Americans and British may give up to the Russians some of the territory they now hold.

The capture of Berlin, however, is a rich prestige plum (some words apparently omitted at this point, possibly censored) in a postwar conference.

Ninth Closes on Nazi Raider

German Force Led by Hard-drinking General Strikes at U. S. Columns From Forest.

APR 22 1945

With the United States Ninth Army, April 21 (A. P.).—Thirty to fifty miles behind the Ninth Army's Elbe River front, a German general and more than 1,000 troops are waging a spectacular raiding campaign.

Villagers said that the General, identified by official Army reports as Lieut.-Gen. Unrein, sometimes is drunk in his sorties. But he apparently stays sober enough to map out efficient and consistent strategy for his night raids.

His entire staff had surrendered, but Gen. Unrein divided his forces into two combat commands, each charged with harassing American rear areas and supply lines. Last night a ring of Ninth Army guns closed slowly around one group hidden in a dense dark forest. Shells started fires which might drive the Nazis out.

The forays began several days ago when German troops struck southward, piercing the Ninth Army's northern flank, and then being swallowed up in the forests.

Gen. Unrein's infantry units, augmented by about a score of tanks and perhaps 100 self-propelled guns, halftracks, and other armored vehicles hidden in the unpatrolled forests, wait until a small American unit, such as a lightly armed truck convoy, approaches. Then they strike swiftly, usually outnumbering the Americans so greatly that battle is futile. The spoils are carted back to the forest hide-outs.

Gen. Unrein and his men have been meticulously careful in their treatment of prisoners—probably conscious that they will eventually be captured themselves.

Capt. Henry A. Fox of Brooklyn, a medic, was rejoining his outfit in the line after a two-day absence. For a day he dodged sniper zones and circled resistance pockets.

"It's going to be a relief to get back to my outfit," he said. "For the first time I believe it's safer up in the line than thirty miles behind the front."

Army Paper Vetoes G. I. Peace Delegate

Paris, April 21 (A. P.).—The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes today vetoed the suggestion of Senator Magnuson (D.-Wash.) that it select a combat soldier to represent the G. I.'s at the World Security Conference in San Francisco.

"The typical G. I. . . . would be a two-headed calf at a world conference for dignified study of a confusing situation," the newspaper said, adding that the soldier would be wined, dined and flattered, but completely bewildered by the complexity of the problems to be examined. America's eight trained delegates are competent to represent soldier opinion as well as the rest of the nation, the paper said, "and that's good enough for us."

German Prison Labor Is Sought by French

PARIS, April 21—(AP) France will seek to obtain from Germany manpower equivalent to what she lost through deportation of forced laborers and prisoners of war—a total of about 3,000,000—Finance Minister Rene Pleven declared tonight in a radio broadcast.

Pleven called it "payment in kind" and said the French government had decided to give French farmers top priority in allocation of German prison labor.

While he is in San Francisco attending the United Nations conference, Pleven said, he intends to emphasize the necessity of alloting more shipping for imports to France, especially meats from South America.

Buzzbombs Destroyed On Czech Airdromes

Paris, April 21 (AP)—The first flying bombs the Allies have seen in weeks were spotted and destroyed from the air today—in Czechslovakia.

The implications have not been weighed fully at supreme headquarters. It could be merely a matter of tests. But that would indicate some future German plans for using buzzbombs which are now out of range of England.

The bombs destroyed today were sighted on the ground at an airfield at Eber, Czechslovakia, by 8th Air Force pilots.

Allies Plan To Restore Sudetenland To Czechs

Paris, April 21 (AP)—The Americans, who have stabbed two columns into the western Sudetenland end of Czechoslovakia, are proceeding on the same basis as in any country being liberated.

Most of the Czech population of Sudetenland had been moved out and the residents are primarily German, but the Allies intend [illegible] to recognize the original territorial limits of Czechoslovakia in complete repudiation of Hitler's pre-war land grab.

It was pointed out to correspondents here that Czechoslovakia has an Allied-recognized Government and that that Government already is back in Czechoslovakia after Russian liberation of the eastern end of the former republic.

ALLIES ADVANCE 10 MILES IN ITALY

Pursue Nazis Fleeing Across Po Plains After Capturing Bologna.

ROME, April 21—(AP) The U. S. Fifth and British Eighth armies quickly toppled the great fortress city of Bologna today and swept on 10 miles northwest in pursuit of German troops fleeing for their lives across the Po plain.

Gen. Mark W. Clark told his 15th Army group that the fall of this ancient city of 270,000 population—which through the winter's bitter fighting stood as a defiant German symbol of resistance—"represents to us the beginning of final victory in Italy."

Meet Light Resistance

Troops smashing into the city met only light resistance and by tonight the great pursuit of the Germans was well under way. San Giovanni, 10 miles northwest of Bologna, was overrun and Polish troops went on to score gains northeast of the city.

Members of the U. S. 34th and 91st divisions entering Bologna touched off a great victory celebration among tens of thousands of joyful Italians.

At the eastern end of the front the British Eighth army drove three miles beyond Portomaggiore, capturing Marrara, and were reported within eight miles of Ferrara, important communications center just below the Po river and 30 miles northeast of Bologna. These troops were driving to cut off and annihilate segments of the retreating Germans.

West of Bologna enemy resistance was spotty and the Germans were apparently withdrawing hastily from this dangerous sector, leaving rearguards to slow the Allied advance.

The general situation was described as fluid, with the Germans using self-propelled weapons and small arms to fight their delaying actions.

Back in the Apennines, Brazilian troops captured the village of Zocca. Italian partisans entered Sestola without meeting enemy resistance. The Germans were still holding the coastal sector and Fifth army troops there were meeting strong opposition.

Far below, the Germans were still offering stiff resistance to bridgeheads over the Idice river and threw in one heavy counter-attack against the bridgehead southwest of Rudrio.

The prize of Bologna, described by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy supreme commander in the Mediterranean, as "the most important northern rail center" of the Germans, was a victory for all Allied arms.

APR 22 1945

The Second Polish corps of the Eighth army and veteran American infantry of the 34th and 91st converged on the city from east and west at almost the same hour this morning.

Cut Bologna Highway

Its fall had become inevitable yesterday when the hard-driving U. S. 10th mountain division cut the main highway No. 9 northwest of the city.

Then Polish troops under Maj. Gen. Bousz-Syzska in a brilliant breakthrough of German defenses on the highway pounded into the city from the southeast.

At about the same hour the 34th division under Maj. Gen. Charles Bolte and the 91st under Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay poured into the city from the southwest, driving through the last of the mountain positions.

The Italian Legnano group, commanded by Maj. Gen. Umberto Utili, also had a hand in the final liberation of Bologna.

There was no report as to opposition the Allies encountered as they entered the ancient city of Roman education and culture, but it seemed probable the Germans had pulled out most of their forces and equipment under the cover of darkness.

Waves of armor and infantry now spilled out on the Po plain in pursuit of the enemy. Italian civilians greeting the spearheads said the Germans were without vehicles, heavy weapons or food.

Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr. was in position to exploit the U. S. Fifth Army's armored power, join with Lt. Gen. Richard L. McCreery's British Eighth army veterans and smash the Germans before they can reach the haven of northern Italy's mountains.

Clark warned his troops that the Germans might "still stand and fight" and the fertile plain, cut by numerous canals and drainage ditches, provides plenty of tank obstacles.

Prime Objective in Full Offensive Wrested From Germans

Rome, April 21—(AP)—Bologna, first major objective of the all-out Allied offensive in Northern Italy, fell today to troops of the Fifth and Eighth Armies.

Polish troops of the British Eighth Army under Maj. Gen. Bohusszyska and the U. S. 91st Division commanded by Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay and the 34th Division under Maj. Gen. Charles Botel all entered the historic Italian fortress city on the southern edge of the Po Valley at the foot of the Apennines.

With Bologna captured the major German defense position south of the Po River was eliminated and the Nazi once again moved northward.

Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander in a message of congratulations to the victorious troops said:

"Let us keep driving forward until the last enemy soldier has been driven from Italy."

Gateway to Po Plain

Gen. Mark W. Clark, Allied ground commander, said his 15th Army group now stands "inside the gateway to the Po Plain posed to destroy the Germans who continue to enslave and exploit Northern Italy."

The fall of the city of 270,000, which had blocked Allied troops for months came quickly after Fifth Army troops had severed the important Bologna-Modena Highway northwest of the city yesterday.

It was disclosed that the U. S. Tenth and 85th Divisions were the units who cut the highway after springing from mountain positions in a lightning seven-mile advance. general withdrawal in the face of

There was no indication of any Lieut. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott's sledgehammer blows although considerable enemy movement was reported north and northwest of Bologna.

Caselecchio was entered by hard-fighting South African units who blasted their way along the mountainous terrain approaching that outer fortress of Bologna.

Continuing the momentum of the drive on Bologna from the East, Eigth Army troops cleared Budrio, eight miles distant.

The Nazis have been cleared from most of the high ground defensive positions ringing Bologna on the South. There seemed a good possibility German inner defense lines may be crumbling.

Eighth Army troops fighting northeast of Bologna rolled through heavy shell fire. They entered San Nicolo Ferrarese, key village nine miles southeast of Ferrara.

The British troops which entered Budrio pushed on and forced the Idice River at two places southwest of the town.

Stiff German resistance was broken in this sector. The Nazis were forced to move back from their advanced Idice defenses. Allied troops were within six miles of Bologna in that area.

Brazilian units driving northward on the left flank of the Americans occupied Montalto, 22 miles south of Modena, after driving forward about three miles.

Bombs Damage Church Properties In Tokyo

Vatican City, April 21 (AP)—The Vatican press service reported today that the air bombing of Tokyo and Japanese-occupied areas of China has caused "grave damage" to church properties.

"At Tokyo the school of the Sisters of San Mauro was destroyed and the theological seminary and university of the Jesuit Fathers partially destroyed by fire," the service said, adding that "nearly all religious communities had left the capital."

"At Hong Kong," the report continued, "the monastery of the Sisters of St. Paul was destroyed. Fifty persons were killed, among whom were some Chinese sisters and a French sister."

"The letter was from my grandmother," Butte related, "and I learned later from the mail clerk that he gave the letter to a buddy of mine and asked him to deliver it. My buddy is missing in action. That German either killed or captured him and stole the letter as a souvenir."

Main Streets Reported Shelled

STOCKHOLM, April 21 (AP)—Russian shells are falling in Unter den Linden, the Leipzigerstrasse and around the Brandenburg Gate, the Berlin correspondent for the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today.

He said that Berliners had been "standing for five or six hours in dark shelters in recent nights because there is no electric current."

"Life in Berlin is steadily becoming more strained," he said. "Besides the placard appeals in the subways calling soldiers to duty, there are also notices asking passengers to leave the underground trains immediately because the space is needed to transport the wounded."

Refugee Ship Hits Mine

Malmoe, Sweden, April 21 (AP)—The 17,000-ton liner Pretoria of the German East Africa lines, loaded with refugees and bound for Copenhagen, struck a mine south of Oresund and sank within a few minutes early today, reports from Denmark said. The North German Lloyd ship Potsdam was reported to have reached Copenhagen safely with other refugees.

Soviet Magazine Airs 'Democracy'

Moscow, April 21 (AP)—The magazine War and the Working Class, addressing commentators abroad, said today "it would be a completely hopeless business to demand that democracy in all European countries be constructed exactly along British or American lines."

Replying to questions raised abroad about democracy in the liberated countries of Europe, the writer, Alexander Sokolov, said:

"There is no dispute over the fact that there is a difference between the democracy which is fulfilled in the Soviet Union and the democracy which exists in a number of other countries.

"But it also is indisputable that this distinction should not serve as an obstacle in the way of strong and lasting collaboration among the Allies."

AMERICANS STRIDE IN MINDANAO DRIVE

Push to Vital Road Junction 32 Miles From Illana Bay—Win Cagayan Key on Luzon

MANILA, Sunday, April 22 (AP)—American troops made new advances in northern Luzon and on Mindanao, against the last two Japanese strongholds in the Philippines, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

In a swift, amphibious advance up the Mindanao River on the southernmost major island of the archipelago, Twenty-fourth Division troops pushed to a point thirty-two miles inland from their Illana Bay beachhead. They captured the Fidel Calvo terminus of a road connecting with vital Highway No. 1,

Another column continued to press eastward along the highway farther north, in the drive across Cotabato Peninsula toward Davao Gulf. Other units fanned out north of Illana Bay throughout Lanao Province.

Japanese troops at Davao and other centers were blasted by heavy, medium and dive-bombers.

On Luzon Twenty-fifth Division doughboys, in a bitterly contested advance, secured Kapintala and the adjacent high ground commanding the Cagayan Valley road.

The new advance placed the Twenty-fifth's doughboys two miles from the crest of Balete Pass, toward which they have been fighting for weeks. Other forces were closing in on the pass from the west, along the Villa Verde Trail. They reported a definite weakening in the Japanese resistance.

Supporting bombers and fighters dropped 500 tons of bombs on Japanese positions in the area and strafed troop concentrations.

Philippine based bombers, continuing their south China Sea blockade and daily strikes against Formosa and the Netherland East Indies, sank five Japanese cargo ships and a score of smaller craft.

Guerrillas, including Mohammedan Moros, pursued fleeing Japanese in hills and jungles as General MacArthur announced organized Japanese resistance had been broken everywhere in the Philippines except in northern Luzon and in Mindanao.

An Associated Press correspondent reported in a field dispatch from Mindanao that 7,000 Moros were in a force of four guerrilla divisions commanded by Col. Robert V. Bowler of Bellingham, Wash.

Colonel Bowler, who has been assigned to assist in organizing a regular Philippine Army, said the Japanese particularly feared the Moros. The fierce tribesmen, he added, do not have "any great love" for Americans, "but they are greatly impressed by our power."

MacArthur Says Death of 5,000 Japs on Cebu Brings Campaign to Virtual Conclusion — Over 6,400,000 Filipinos Freed in Area

Manila, April 21—(AP)—With the death of 5,000 Japanese on Cebu Island, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today the "virtual conclusion" of the Central Philippines campaign.

Liberated in this 33,000 square mile Visayan Islands area are more than 6,400,000 Filipinos.

This leaves the "only remaining enemy organized resistance in Mindanao on the south and Luzon on the north," the communique said.

U. S. Losses Light

"Our losses in this campaign were extraordinarily light, due largely to the enemy's continued inability to diagnose our point of attack and to understand our local tactics of combat," MacArthur declared. . . . He has seemed bewildered and confused and although one of the most tenacious of fighters, has permitted himself to be constantly surprised, divided and destroyed in detail without being able to inflict more than a minor fraction of compensating losses.'

Twenty-fourth Division troops which landed on Mindanao Tuesday widened their beachheads at Malabang and Parang and by Thursday had thrust 16 miles inland along the Cotabato-Davao Road to the town of Mantuangan, north of immense Libungan marsh.

No Serious Opposition

No serious opposition has developed so far although a strong Japanese force is believed entrenched near Davao.

From Malabang, U. S. troops pushed 15 miles northeast to the shores of Lake Lanao, a former Moro stronghold, 700 feet above sea level.

The southern force below Cotabato turned back a light Japanese counterattack and pushed up danao River from Lomopog. All actions were supported by 13th Air Force planes.

From Cebu came reports of a dramatic end to the sharp cleanup battle Thursday, with Japanese forces dispersing under the impact of heavy blows on flank and rear by Americal Division troops. Five thousand dead were left on the battlefield and considerable equipment was captured.

In North Luzon, U. S. troops, approaching Baguio from the northwest down Highway 9 reached the village of Calot. Taking considerable high ground from entrenched Nipponese.

In the Central Luzon sector, the 43d Division took hill positions 4,500 yards northeast of Bosoboso against organized resistance.

Three additional members of the Philippine cabinet and a number of other prominent members of the collaborationist government were captured near Baguio.

A prize collaborationist, Jose P. Laurel, who headed the Philippine puppet government, and two other prominent members escaped to Formosa in a plane by night. Previous reports from Baguio refugees said that Laurel had gone to Japan.

Bombers of the Fifth Air Force and the Seventh Fleet continued their punishing raids on Formosa and the China coast, sinking or damaging 11 freighters, a schooner and smaller craft.

Thirteenth Air Force and the Royal Australian Air Force walloped East Indies airdromes, oil installations and destroyed two freighters and three coastal vessels.

In a special announcement, MacArthur's headquarters disclosed the hanging, April 19, of Maj. Sakae Narioka, of the Japanese Army, convicted of spying. He penetrated American lines in civilian clothes.

Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, was "now in our possession."

Airplanes Use Base

Ie was invaded primarily for its four-strip airfield, captured Monday and already in use by U. S. planes. The tough five-day fight cost hundreds of American casualties. Popular correspondent Ernie Pyle was killed there by a Japanese machine-gunner.

Fighting in the three-day-old offensive on southern Okinawa was so severe one section of high ground changed hands several times. Nimitz reported the "bitterest kind of fighting" marked the Seventh Division's battle for Hill 178, near the east coast.

In other sectors the 27th and 96th divisions punched out small gains through the heavily-fortified enemy line defending the capital city of Naha, four miles to the south.

This line now runs jaggedly across Okinawa from a point about 800 yards north of the Machinato airstrip on the west coast to a point about 200 yards north of the Yonabaru airfield on the east.

Naval guns, carrier aircraft and artillery of both the Army and Marines continued to pour thousands of tons of explosives into the deep and solid enemy line, elaborately dug into the rugged terrain well suited to defensive tactics.

Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine amphibious corps completes conquest of northern Okinawa as they overran the Motobu peninsula on the northwest coast.

A few Japanese aircraft raided the Yontan and Katena airfields on central Okinawa Friday night, causing minor damage.

Two other Okinawa airfields are prime objectives of the big Tenth Army push.

Seventh division doughboys, after a 1400-yard advance down the east coast of the island Friday were 200 yards from Yonabaru field, while on the west coast the 27th division was 800 yards from Machinato strip.

In the center of the line the 96th division encountered hard going. The ground there is the highest along the five-mile long, four-mile deep Japanese pillbox and cave line.

Tokyo radio in a homeland broadcast said the American offensive on Okinawa had been "completely stopped," but another broadcast beamed overseas in English said the fighting was "gaining in intensity."

While American headquarters yesterday said U. S. Naval losses in Okinawa invasion operations totaled 15 vessels sunk from March 18 to April 18, the Japanese radio added a destroyer to the 300-odd "enemy" warcraft Tokyo said had been sunk or damaged.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said the "complete list" of American vessels sunk included five destroyers, a destroyer transport, two minecraft, a gunboat, four landing craft and two ammunition vessels.

Japanese losses around Okinawa and other Ryukyu islands have totaled 100 warships, including the 45,000-ton battleship Yamato, and 2,569 planes, by official American count.

Superfortresses from Marianas bases yesterday hit nine airfields on Kyushu, Japan's southern-most home island 325 miles north of Okinawa, in the third B-29 attack in five days to neutralize airdromes from which Nipponese suicide fliers have struck at Yank Ryukyu operations.

YANKS ADVANCE IN FIERCE FIGHT FOR OKINAWA

DOPKING

Battle Mounts in Fury—15 U. S. Ships Lost Says Nimitz Report

Guam, April 21—(AP)—The battle of Okinawa, stirred to new fury by an all-out American push against strong, deep Japanese defenses, may become as tough and bloody as Iwo Jima.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique reported Yank gains Friday, the second day of the renewed assault, and at the same time disclosed the sinking of 15 U. S. vessels in the Okinawa and related operations between March 18 and April 18. That period covered preliminary naval and air attacks on Japan as well as land operations.

Desperate counter moves by sea and air cost the Japanese more than 100 ships, including the super-dreadnought Yamato, and 2,569 planes.

Casualty Figures

Previously, Nimitz announced American casualties in the area up to April 18 were 7,895, of whom 1,467 were killed. Naval casualties were more than half of these—4,700, of whom 989 were killed. Counted enemy dead on Okinawa totaled 9,108 through April 13.

Although these figures did not approach the 19,938 Yank casualties and the more than 20,000 counted enemy dead in the 26 days of fighting on Iwo, they covered only 18 days of land operations on Okinawa, 13 days of which were marked by a stalemate on the southern front. Since then the front has flared to white heat.

Reports from the lines reflected graphically the deadliness of the encounter. S/Sgt. Ray Fitzpatrick a Marine combat correspondent from Hartford, Conn., said G Company of the Sixth Leatherneck Division fighting on Motobu Peninsula, where the going was comparatively easy, had 83 of its more than 200 men killed or wounded in taking the Big Nose Ridge.

One platoon of 46 men had 22 casualties, he added.

Hardest Fighting Yet

The battle-hardened 77th Army Division came up against some of the hardest fighting of its career in attacking Mt. Iegusugu, a rocklike fortress on little Ie Island to the west of Okinawa, Associated Press Correspondent Grant MacDonald reported. The enemy had gun positions three stories deep in solid rock.

Also reflecting the intensity of the struggle, Superfortresses from Marianas bases today attacked Kyushu for the third time in five days. A force of between 200 and 300 B-29s bombed nine airfields on Kyushu Island of the Japanese homeland, from which the enemy has been attacking U. S. Forces in the Ryukyus.

Yesterday's advances included a 1,400 yard gain by the Seventh Division of the 24th Army Corps to a point near the airstrip of Yonabaru Town, which was almost flattened by big guns.

Inlet Bridged

Engineers of the 27th Division bridged Machinato Inlet the night before the offensive on the west, enabling a battalion of troops to move across for an attack on Machinato Town, which was taken in the early stages of the big push.

Fighting on high ground in the center of the line, the 96th Division encountered hard going, Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland reported.

The announced American ship losses included five destroyers, the Halligan, Bush and Pringle of the 2,100-ton class, and the older destroyers Colhoun and M. L. Abele; two ammunition ships, the Hobbs Victory and the Logan Victory; the minecraft Emmons and Skylark, the destroyer-transport Dickerson, and one gunboat and four landing craft, all of which were listed by number.

Nimitz said the 15 constituted all the U. S. ships sunk in the Okinawa campaign to April 18. Previously he said several fleet units were damaged, but did not name them.

SUPERFORTS POUND KYUSHU AIRFIELDS

DOPKING

GUAM, Sunday, April 22—(AP) One hundred to 150 Superfortresses visually bombed airfields on Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands, this morning.

Five airfields were the targets. It was the second B-29 raid on Kyushu in as many days, the fourth in six days, and the seventh since March 27, when B-29s began their series of neutralizing attacks on the island's airdromes.

Two hundred to 300 Superforts attacked nine Kyushu airfields yesterday.

Although there is every indication that the airfields have been well neutralized in the previous three raids—the Japanese have sent no aerial attacks in any strength against the U. S. Okinawa force since April 16—the 21st bomber command apparently has decided to take no chances on the enemy making quick repairs to its runways and other installations.

B-29 crews reported encountering no fighter opposition as they made runs on the five airfields. Two fields, Tomitakanaj and Miyazaki on the eastern coast, were attacked for the first time.

Bombings were made from medium altitude, probably 20,000 feet.

Crews returning from yesterday's mission said they had encountered little enemy opposition in their strikes on any of the nine airfields attacked, although about 100 fighters were sighted. Only a few pressed an attack.

All B-29s returned safely from Saturday's raids.

Headquarters did not issue any report on the extent of damage.

Okinawa Offensive Gains

GUAM, April 22 (Sunday) (AP).—Three American infantry divisions made small gains in the "bitterest kind of fighting" in their all-out offensive on southern Okinawa yesterday, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported in his communique today.

Fighting was so fierce on southern Okinawa that one section of high ground changed hands several times, he said. Americans of the 7th, 27th and 96th Divisions made "small gains through heavily defended areas" in the third day of their push toward the Okinawa capital of Naha, four miles to the south through some of the most elaborate enemy positions yet seen in the Pacific.

The American flag, meantime, was raised on Ie Island off the west coast of Okinawa, marking the end of a six-day campaign.

On Okinawa, a marine combat correspondent reported, a company of the 6th Marine Division, fighting on Motobu Peninsula, where the going was supposed to be comparatively "easy," had eighty-three of its more than 200 men killed or wounded in taking Big Nose Ridge. One platoon of forty-six men had twenty-two casualties, he said.

200 SUPERFORTS HIT JAP HOMELAND

APR 22 1945

Guam, April 21 (A. P.).—The Japanese homeland felt the thunder and crash of bombs again today as a fleet of between 200 and 300 Superfortresses blasted nine airfields on Kyushu Island. Enemy planes attacking the American forces in the Ryukyus have been taking off from these fields.

A Bitter Fight in North

By S/SGT. RAY FITSPATRICK

Marine Combat Correspondent.

WITH THE SIXTH MARINE DIVISION, Okinawa (Delayed) — Don't talk to marines of G Company about "easy" advances on northern Okinawa.

In a drive that ended when they captured Big Nose Ridge on Motobu peninsula, the company had 83 of its more than 200 men killed or wounded.

DAY

One platoon of forty-six men had twenty-two casualties. One squad of thirteen suffered nine casualties.

When a company unit of the veteran Fourth Regiment left the lines, its remaining members were sought out by their division commander, Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr., and personally congratulated for their part in taking Motobu.

"We were fighting like blind men and deaf men, too," said First Lieut. Leo Gottsponer, 33, of Morrilton, Ark., acting commander.

"The mountains so echoed with the sound of weapons that they couldn't be traced. We had them at the end, though. They were running and we were piling them up."

Okinawa Commander Declares They Deserve More Pay

TWENTY-SEVENTH DIVISION ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, Okinawa, April 21 (AP)—Maj. Gen. George W. Griner laid aside battle maps for a moment today to put in a plug for the front-line infantryman.

"The 50 per cent extra pay for aviators is all right," he remarked, "but if anybody gets it, the infantryman should. The 10 per cent bonus for combat soldiers is a step in the right direction, but it is insufficient."

General Griner, who commands this division, said of the fighting men in the ranks that "their educational level may be below the average—but when you're in there looking down the enemy's guns, college degrees don't count. It is misleading when we report a regiment has suffered 10 per cent casualties, because it's a cinch most of the casualties come from the front-liners; so loss in fighting strength is actually 30 to 40 per cent."

Allies Threaten Burma Oil Area

MARTIN

Calcutta, April 21 (AP)—The Southeast Asia Command announced tonight that British and Indian troops now threaten the entire Chauk-Yenang-Yaung oil fields in central Burma and the entire area may be occupied by Allied forces within a few days.

With Chauk and the surrounding area where some 800 wells are located already in British hands, a military blackout covered the operations of the 14th Army striking toward Yenangyaung, 30 miles south. There are about 3,000 wells in the southern region of the rich oil belt, which produces about 300,000,000 gallons annually.

British striking down the Mandalay-Rangoon railway from Meiktila were threatening Pyinmana, 200 miles north of the big port of Rangoon, after advancing more than 70 miles in the last twelve days.

The ground offensive by British and Indian troops throughout central Burma was strongly supported by warplanes of the Eastern Air Command.

NEW DRIVE IN BURMA

Calcutta, April 21 (A. P.).—The British have opened a strong new campaign to drive the Japanese from southern Burma. A seventy-mile thrust south from Meiktila has carried to within 214 miles of the capital seaport of Rangoon, it was announced last night. A Fourteenth Army spearhead lunged down the main Burma railway line to a few miles north of Pyinmana.

The advancing British killed 3,500 Japanese in engagements in Pyawbe, twenty-six miles south of Meiktila; at Yamethin, fourteen miles farther south, and at Tatkon, beyond Yamethin.

CHINESE HURL BACK THREAT TO AIR BASE

Japanese Spearhead Destroyed —Chungking Claims Gains in Other Fierce Battles

CHUNGKING, China, April 21 (AP)—A small Japanese force that had speared to within sixty-five miles of the United States Fourteenth Air Force base at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking, was destroyed by Chinese troops yesterday, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Northeast of Chungking violent fighting raged near the Shensi border. The High Command claimed that the Japanese stronghold of Hsihsiakow, eighty miles north of Laohokow, had been recaptured in heavy fighting and that Japanese forces that had by-passed the town to the west were being surrounded. More than 300 Japanese were killed in the fighting.

Vigorous fighting was also reported in the suburbs of Shenhsien-Lunghai, Japanese bastion sixty miles from the Shensi border.

Five hundred Japanese troops were killed near Japanese-held Nanyang, formerly a Chinese strong point, in Honan Province. Chinese forces cut the highway running northeast from Nanyang at a number of points.

The High Command said that Chinese forces had reduced three enemy strong points eighteen to twenty-five miles northwest of Paoking and had beaten off several enemy assaults twenty-five miles west of the city.

Fighter planes of the Fourteenth Air Force supported Chinese ground actions in the Paoking, Sinning and Sinhwa areas, west of Hengyang, causing casualties to enemy troops.

A force of B-25 medium bombers of the Chinese-American Wing bombed Loyang and dumped fire bombs on Neisiang, north of Laohokow.

Chinese Check Hunan Drive

CHUNGKING, April 21 (AP)—Chinese troops, battling large Japanese forces driving across western Hunan Province, have destroyed enemy spearheads within sixty-five miles of the United States 14th Air Force air base at Chihkiang.

A Chinese high command communique said today that heavy fighting was in progress at several points in Hunan to stem the Japanese advance on the air base 250 miles southeast of Chungking.

Earth Tremor Rocks Mexico City Buildings

Mexico City, April 21 (AP)—An earth tremor swayed chandeliers and gently rocked buildings at 12.24 A.M. (Mexican War Time) today.

No damage was reported. The tremor was slightly stronger than most of the frequent tremors which are felt here.

Supply Officer Wins Award

Kunming, China, April 21 (AP)—Col. Burton Vaughan, Washington, D.C., and Little Rock, Ark., was awarded the Legion of Merit today for his services as chief of the procurement section of the services of supply in the old China-Burma-India theater.

U.S. Delegates Back Human Rights

Washington, April 21 (AP)—American delegates are going to the United Nations conference in San Francisco determined that human rights shan't be overlooked in the diplomatic maneuvering.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Republican Conference, calls it "justice." He dramatizes his plea for self-determination of people by insisting that political decisions made in the stress of war should be reviewed by the peace organization for which the San Francisco delegates are to write a charter.

Commander Harold E. Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota and also a Republican, wants a bill of rights for the world. He says a start can be made if the nations agree at least that every man must have a fair trial in peacetime before his life can be taken by the state.

Hull Weight To Be Felt

Representative Sol Bloom (D., N.Y.), chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, says he plans to offer within the American delegation some amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks formula, which is to be the basis for San Francisco deliberations. If adopted by the conference, he says, they would provide human rights guarantees.

Venerable Cordell Hull, 73-year-old former Secretary of State, who may or may not be well enough to attend the conference in person, is certain to make his weight felt along the same lines.

Headed by Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Secretary of State, the eight-member group was personally assured by President Roosevelt before his death that it would have a free hand at the conference. President Truman also has left responsibility for American decisions in the delegation's hands.

Three Votes For Russia

American policy on some controversial questions has been settled in advance. As an instance, Mr. Roosevelt promised at Yalta to back a Russian request for three votes in the assembly of the proposed peace-keeping league.

Senator Connally (D., Texas), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, thinks the delegation will be rather closely united on most questions. He looks for controversy to crop up in the age-old division of opinion between small and large nations. But believes it will turn largely on representation allotments on the proposed security council and the general assembly.

Veto May Be Disputed

The agreement of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin to give each of the five permanent members a veto on the use of force may be a subject of dispute at the San Francisco conference. But most of the American delegates have been through international disputes before, and several of them are adept at working out compromises.

Hull, named as senior adviser to the delegation, has been building the trail toward world peace since 1933, when he became Secretary of State after a long career in Congress. This Tennessee Democrat authored the good-neighbor policy in dealings with Latin-American countries and helped put into effect the reciprocal trade agreements he contends are potent instruments for international goodwill.

Among his colleagues on the delegation, Secretary Stettinius is the "Johnnie-come-lately" into international affairs. A career in business, starting in 1924, led him to the chairmanship of the board of United States Steel.

He quit business in 1940 to get into Government on a full-time basis and began his first-hand dealings with other nations as lend-lease administrator from 1941 to 1943. Then, in September, 1943, he was named Under Secretary of State after Sumner Welles resigned, and Secretary, when Hull quit because of ill-health last October. He is a registered Democrat.

Wisdom Of Connally

Senator Connally takes with him to the conference a wisdom about legislative matters acquired in congressional service since 1917. The Administration looks to him to jockey through the Senate the enabling treaty which must be approved if the United States is to join an international peace-keeping league.

Connally's greatest hope is that Vandenberg, the lone wolf of the Senate, will go along t' s time.

Vandenberg's speech indorsing the principle of international collaboration along the lines laid down at Dumbarton Oaks not only heartened the Administration but also attracted world-wide attention.

Brought into prominence as a possible GOP presidential nominee during his seventeen years in public life, Vandenberg is a powerful orator—but he accomplishes most of his aims in behind-the-scenes swaying of opinion among his colleagues.

Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N.J.), another of the delegates, joined with Vandenberg and other Republicans at their Mackinac Island conference in pledging the party to back co-operative organization with other nations to prevent future aggression.

Ranking GOP member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, the 76-year-old clergyman-legislator has fought repeatedly what he regarded as isolationist trends.

Bloom has demonstrated a willingness to give all-out support to the original Administration ideas for a peace organization.

The colorful New Yorker has been a song writer, real estate operator and prize-fight manager. He helped push through the House the "lasting-peace" resolution of the Seventy-eighth Congress, pledging the United States to an active role in postwar international collaboration. That was the same resolution on which Tom Connally carried the ball in the Senate.

Commander Stassen, author of a world organization plan which in effect calls for creation of a super government to police the peace, is an outspoken critic of "isolationism."

Mentioned as a possible Republican nominee for the presidency in 1948, Stassen is looked upon by some legislators as a symbol of the "One World" wing of the GOP.

Believes In Compromise

Of German and Czech parentage, Stassen overcame inexperience, serious illness and lack of funds to become Minnesota's youngest governor within ten years after his graduation from law school.

Dean Virginia Gildersleeve, of Barnard College for Women, New York city, the only representative of the distaff side on the conference delegation, is a believe. in the philosophy of compromise at a conference table.

"The agreement at Yalta was a great achievement; it represented compromise and give and take," maintains the 67-year-old educator who styles herself an "Independent Democrat."

ATROCITY CAMP TOUR PLANNED

Clare Luce Already There —Congressmen Going.

Washington, April 21 (A. P.).—A group of Senators and House members prepared today for a prompt departure for Europe to view German war atrocities at the suggestion of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. A similar inspection by American newspaper editors—also at Gen. Eisenhower's suggestion—is being organized.

The names of those designated to go were not immediately announced. Indications were that at least some of the congressional delegation would be off for the war zone by Monday at the latest. Meanwhile, there was a movement in both branches of Congress for a commission to make a formal report on Nazi atrocities.

Senator Chandler (D.-Ky.) and Representative Overton Brooks (D.-La.) joined in drafting a resolution calling for appointment of a War Atrocities Commission to look into "the Axis annihilations far below the level of animal cruelty." The two lawmakers planned to introduce the resolution Monday.

Chandler and Brooks proposed that the commission include members of both Houses of Congress, private citizens and "at least two wearers of the Purple Heart from the lower echelons of the armed forces."

They proposed that the commission report their findings to the international conference at San Francisco.

Sees Stacks of Bodies.

Weimar, Germany, April 21 (A. P.).—Republican Representatives Clare Boothe Luce (Conn.), John Kunkel (Pa.) and Leonard Hall (N. Y.) viewed the horrors of Buchenwald concentration camp today along with ten members of Britain's Parliament. The visits of the two parties of legislators coincided by accident.

Mrs. Luce saw stacks of bodies of Buchenwald's victims and declared:

"The most important thing to remember is that this could happen to us in twenty years.

"Only a few years ago, some were talking about there being good German people. After seeing this, one wonders whether there is good in any German people."

Among the emaciated internees was a 6½-year-old boy who had been imprisoned two and one-half years. "He was picked up in Paris because he was out after the curfew," Mrs. Luce said. "No one wants to believe these things, but it is important that people know they're true." She asked several of the former prisoners what should be done with Germans responsible for the atrocities, and they replied, "The same as they did to us."

"That's no answer," Mrs. Luce told newsmen, but she did not amplify. "No one could visualize these horrors without seeing them. It is hard to believe that such brutality existed anywhere in the world, but it certainly did here. It is incredible that some of the people were able to survive such an awful ordeal. This is a sight I hope never to see again."

After a half-hour tour, Mr. Hall said: "You have to see Buchenwald to realize fully what debased beasts the Germans are. There is nothing here except brutality; corpses by the wagon loads. It certainly points up the question as to what should be done with Germany after the war."

McKellar Is at Cabinet Meetings; Truman Gives Senate Leader Seat

Breaks Precedent in Move to Compensate for Lack of Vice-Presidential Link

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 21. — President Truman blazed a new path of co-operation between Congress and the White House today with an invitation for Senator Kenneth McKellar, President pro tempore of the Senate, to sit at Cabinet meetings.

The action was believed to be unprecedented. Not since Calvin Coolidge took over the Presidency on the death of Warren G. Harding has the nation been without a Vice-President, and the custom of having the Senate's presiding officer sit in on Cabinet sessions was started by the late President Roosevelt.

Mr. Truman, however, already has demonstrated his determination to perfect and maintain a solid liaison with Capitol Hill, and the invitation he extended to Senator McKellar underscored that aim.

Senator McKellar sat in at his first Cabinet session yesterday, occupying the seat reserved for the Vice-President at the end of the long table.

The honor was perhaps the greatest yet conferred on the solidly built Tennessee Democrat, dean of the Senate by virtue of more than twenty-eight years of continuous service. He is seventy-six years old.

Last January he was elected President pro tempore, succeeding Virginia's ailing Senator Carter Glass, who is eighty-three. When President Roosevelt died and Mr. Truman moved up from the Vice-Presidency to the White House, Senator McKellar became the Senate's regular presiding officer, although his title remained unchanged. By reason of his increased duties, he is entitled to an additional $5,000 a year compensation, bringing his salary to $15,000 annually.

But that is only a start in his official duties. He is chairman of the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads; acting chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, and an active worker on its subcommittees, and a member of the Senate Committees on Rules, Library and Civil Service. He has an important voice in proceedings of the joint Senate-House Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Federal Expenditures, better known as the Byrd economy committee for advocacy of its purposes by Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia.

In addition Senator McKellar is a frequent and spirited participant in Senate debate.

In his new vantage point at Cabinet meetings Senator McKellar will be in a position to give two-way help to the Truman administration. He will be available for instant consultation on legislative matters, and from his chair as presiding officer he can smooth the way for Administration measures in the Senate.

President Truman kept only three appointments at the White House today, then went to lunch at his temporary residence at the near-by Blair House while painters started redoing his office and the rest of the White House.

The whole White House interior will be redecorated for the Truman family. It will be largely a paint job, taking about ten days or two weeks. Meanwhile, the Trumans will continue to live across the street in Blair House which is used for receiving foreign visitors.

When he left for lunch today, the President left word he would not return to the Executive offices until 8:30 a. m. Monday.

His Sunday plans were not announced. When asked whether the President would attend church, Jonathan Daniels, acting press secretary, said Mr. Truman preferred that his religious activities be not publicized. He is a Baptist.

Compared with his previous daily visitors' lists, today's was the shortest of his nine days in the White House.

Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius jr. called with Bernard M. Baruch, then Senator Carl A. Hatch, Democrat, of New Mexico, and W. Averell Harriman, American Ambassador to Russia, visited the Executive offices separately.

Mr. Baruch said he reported on some of the observations he had made abroad as a special emissary for the late President Roosevelt; Senator Hatch said his was a "friendly call," and Mr. Harriman, who discussed Russian questions at the White House yesterday, left through a side door today after forty-five minutes in Mr. Truman's office.

Matthew J. Connelly, of Clinton, Mass., was sworn in today as President Truman's appointment secretary.

Stephen T. Early took the oath as special assistant to the President at the same ceremony in the Chief Executive's office. It was announced that Mr. Early will keep the same agreement with Mr. Truman as he had with the late President Roosevelt, remain at the White House until about June 1, when he will leave to enter private business. It was said that Mr. Early would be available for service after that if President Truman wanted him.

Mr. Connelly, a former investigator for Congressional committees, will be one of three of the new President's regular secretariat. The others will be William D. Hassett, who was Mr. Roosevelt's mail secretary, and Charles G. Ross, who will take the oath as press secretary around the middle of May.

PROBERS OKAY VETERANS' UNIT

Congressmen Fail To Discover Cases Of Mistreatment

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Investigating congressmen said today that nothing had been discovered to substantiate charges that "shocking mistreatment" is being given patients in Veterans' Administration hospitals.

Coincidental with that development, the Veterans of Foreign Wars criticized the policies of the Veterans' Administration in handling insurance claims.

"Generally good conditions prevail," in the veterans' hospitals, a number of congressmen reported on the basis of a personal survey of various institutions throughout the country.

Evidence Not Found

No evidence has been found, they asserted, to support the contentions of Representative Philbin (D., Mass.) and others that "a scandal exists" in the treatment of wounded veterans.

In questioning the Veterans' Administration handling of insurance claims, Casey Jones, national service officer of the VFW, said the Veterans' Administration was afflicted with "red tape" processes, "undue delay" and duplication of effort in handling beneficiaries' claims for dependency pension and national service life insurance of men who die or are killed in the armed forces.

The Veterans' Administration, Jones said in a statement, even had once requested "a mother 81 years of age to secure a statement from the midwife in attendance at her birth" in order to establish proof of her age on an insurance claim.

Each Man "A Committee"

In conducting the congressional investigation of the veterans' hospitals, Chairman Rankin (D., Miss.), of the House Veterans' Committee, authorized each member of the committee to function as a one-man subcommittee in checking the allegations of mistreatment.

Rankin declined to make public the full reports of the various committeemen at this time. Instead they will be asked to make them as witnesses at hearings he expects to start within a few days.

TRUMAN HAS TALK WITH STETTINIUS

APR 22 1945

Washington, April 21 (A. P.).—President Truman listed only three formal engagements today for the slimmest calendar since he became President.

Conferring with the President today were Secretary of State Stettinius, Bernard M. Baruch, Senator Hatch (D.-N. M.) and W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador to Moscow.

Baruch told reporters after his visit that he reported to the President on "some of the observations" he had made in Europe where he carried out a special mission for the late President Roosevelt. Asked if he would conduct a similar mission for President Truman, he said he had not been asked to.

Senator Hatch said later that he had not been offered any position and that if he had been he would have declined it "The Senate of the United States is the most important position in government next to the President," he said.

He told reporters he had made just a friendly visit and settled no questions of State because none was discussed.

Latin America Seeking Larger Role in Council

Will Ask San Francisco to Add 4 Security Board Seats for Its Nations

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21.—Expansion of the proposed World Security Council to give small nations a greater voice on issues of war and peace was demanded today by representatives of Latin-American countries arriving for the United Nations conference which opens Wednesday.

The Latin Americans' conference plans cover three main points:

1. A demand for four more temporary seats on the Security Council, which under the Dumbarton Oaks plan would have five permanent big power seats and six which would change periodically for the other nations. The Latin Americans said they would like to reserve these four for themselves.

2. A prediction that Brazil would seek an additional permanent seat on the council for one of the Latin-American nations.

3. A strongly expressed intention to dovetail the inter-American system into the proposed world organization without weakening the hemisphere arrangement.

The three principal delegates—Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius jr., British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Russian Foreign Commissar Viacheslav M. Molotov—are not expected here until immediately before the conference opening Wednesday. The Washington meetings on the issues of Polish representation were regarded here as bearing vitally on the success of the San Francisco sessions.

The Russian delegation's entertainment ship for the conference is equipped for high-speed communication with Moscow. This was taken as a hopeful sign for keeping the conference moving on schedule. At Dumbarton Oaks last fall the problem of communications between Washington and Moscow cost weeks of time.

A suggestion that the conference would be comparatively brief, despite problems that could prolong it for months, was heard today at the first informal behind-the-scenes session here.

The suggestion came, significantly, from a small-nation source—big-power delegates having yet to put in an appearance—but gave support to a big-power move to limit this first conference largely to organizational problems.

A consensus has already been openly voiced here that unless the heavyweight sponsoring powers exercise strict control both over the proposed amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan and over the agenda in general, the slowly arriving delegates might be involved here for months. Such control, nevertheless, would necessarily postpone decision on dozens of pending problems.

In Washington the White House said that President Truman's opening broadcast to the gathering would last ten minutes—time for less than 1,000 words—and would be given in the first half-hour of the first session. Others who will speak include Mr. Stettinius, Mayor Roger Lapham of San Francisco and Governor Earl Warren of California.

The Office of Price Administration assigned a special official to determine whether the city requires a greater food allotment to take care of its estimated 5,000 guests from the forty-six nations. Principal hotel keepers are already complaining that there is not enough food to enable this West Coast metropolis to keep up its reputation as a center of fine eating.

TARIFF RATIFICATION OPPOSED BY CLAYTON

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—William Clayton, assistant Secretary of State, strongly opposed today a suggestion that future trade agreements be ratified by Congress.

Appearing before the House Ways and Means Committee in support of the Administration's bill to extend the reciprocal trade act three years and legalize deep tariff cuts, Mr. Clayton said he would never use a trade agreement for "diplomatic considerations" at the expense of American business men.

Representative Simpson of Pennsylvania asked if the world would regard it an unfriendly act if Congress limited the act's extension to two instead of three years and required Congressional approval of trade agreements.

"I don't put it on a basis of unfriendliness," Mr. Clayton replied: "But it would be looked upon as a reversal of the policy we've been looking forward to of cooperating economically, militarily and politically to remove the causes of war and to prevent war."

"I'm sorry you used the words 'complete reversal,'" Mr. Simpson said. "Because I envision the day when Congress will reclaim its authority over tariff agreements."

Members of the committee questioned Mr. Clayton closely about the use of trade agreements to win political or diplomatic good-will, but he replied he would "not sell out American industry for diplomatic considerations." He added: "My own idea would be that nothing of that kind would be or should be done, but we will consider as to countries we should make agreements with whether they share our beliefs on peace and principles of government."

Civilian Ration Of Tires Likely To Rise by June

APR 22 1945

W.P.B. Increases Output Quota 60%; Production for Trucks Also Raised

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP).—Some liberalization of civilian tire rations by June was indicated tonight in a War Production Board action increasing passenger-tire manufacturing goals 60 per cent.

The increase, covering the April-May-June quarter, is accompanied by boosts in the production schedules of tires for trucks and buses, aircraft and tractors. It was made possible, the W.P.B. said, by prospects of improved supplies of carbon black and tire cord.

Office of Price Administration officials said, however, that the improved production rate would not show up in larger tire rations for next month, but probably would be reflected in better supplies for motorists in June.

The May allotment of tires for civilian drivers probably will be close to that of the present month, or around 1,000,000 casings, a steep drop from the March ration of 1,600,000 tires.

The new second-quarter schedule calls for 5,200,000 passenger and motorcycle tires, compared with the earlier program of 3,165,000. Truck and bus-tire production was increased from 5,085,000 tires to 5,775,000; tractor tires from 380,000 to 450,000; airplane tires from 330,000 to 338,000. Production of camelback, the tire recapping material, was set at 90,000,000 pounds compared with the earlier schedule of 72,000,000.

American Diplomats Rush to Work Out Czech Civil Affairs

Washington, April 21 — (AP) — American diplomats rushed today to work out a civil affairs agreement with Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia is the first country entered by both Russian and western allied liberating troops. The diplomats are confronted with the new problem of mapping a joint policy with the Red Army and the Czech Government.

Early last year, before D-Day, when the Czechs negotiated a civil affairs agreement with Russia, they offered to conclude similar pacts with the U. S. and Britain. Nothing was done since Washington and London did not think they would play a direct part in liberating Czechoslovakia.

By such agreements the Allies assume responsibility for the direction of civil affairs in areas of active military operations. Similar pacts were concluded with Belgium and the Netherlands before the invasion of Western Europe.

The Czech Government already has moved from London, where it was in exile, to Koscice, in territory liberated by the Soviet Army.

SENATOR GEORGE IS BOOMED FOR TREASURY POST

Washington, April 21—(AP)—A quiet boom was underway today for the appointment of Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga)) as Secretary of the Treasury.

Friends of the senator disclosed they have urged President Truman to choose the Georgian if Henry Morgenthau Jr., leaves the cabinet.

The President's reaction was not known. Nine days ago, when he took the oath as chief executive, he asked all members of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet to stay on indefinitely. Nevertheless, there is good reason to believe that a number of changes are in the making.

An intimate personal friend and neighbor of the late President, Morgenthau may decide to step aside after the 7th War Loan and clear the way for Mr. Truman to chose a new fiscal adviser. Such a decision would hardly surprise Capitol Hill Morgenthau, treasury chief for 11 years, apparently never found the correct formula for getting along with Congress. Some of his appearance as the government's chief witness on tax legislation have been stormy.

Intensely loyal to Mr. Roosevelt, Morgenthau irritated members of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee last year by his brick-wall insistence on a Roosevelt-sponsored tax bill which the lawmakers considered too heavy for the nation's economy.

12 OF CONGRESS TO TOUR REICH

17 Publishers, Editors Also To See Prison-Camp Atrocities

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Congress and the army today arranged to send a delegation of twelve lawmakers and seventeen publishers and editors to see first-hand evidence of Nazi atrocities.

Gen, Dwight D. Eisenhower, in uring that such a delegation be sent, had said that the conditions prevailing in overrun prison camps are "almost impossible to describe in words."

The twelve congressmen designated today will join three Republican representatives—Clare Boothe Luce, of Connecticut; John Kunkel, of Pennsylvania, and Leonard W. Hall, of New York—who are already on the scene.

M.P.'s Also Making Tour

A ten-member group from the British Parliament also is undertaking a similar first-hand inspection.

The War Department said it will fly the following men to Germany within a few days:

Senators:

BARKLEY (D., Ky.), majority leader.
GEORGE (D., Ga.).
THOMAS (D., Utah).
BROOKS (R., Ill.).
WHERRY (R., Neb.).
SALTONSTALL (R., Mass.).

Representatives:

EWING THOMASON (D., Texas).
RICHARDS (D., S.C.).
IZAC (D., Cal.).
MOTT (R., Ore.).
SHORT (R., Mo.).
VORYS (R., Ohio).

Newspaper and magazine representatives will be:

JULIUS OCHS ADLER, vice president and general manager, New York Times.
MALCOLM BINGAY, editor, Detroit Free Press.
NORMAN CHANDLER, general manager, Los Angeles Times.
WILLIAM L. CHENERY, publisher, Collier's.
E. Z. DIMITMAN, executive editor, Chicago Sun.
BEN GIBBS, editor, Saturday Evening Post.
STANLEY HIGH, associate editor, Reader's Digest.
BEN McKELWAY, editor, Washington Star.
GLEN NEVILLE, executive editor, New York Daily Mirror.
WILLIAM I. NICHOLS, editor, This Week magazine.
L. K. NICHOLSON, president and editor, New Orleans Times-Picayune.
JOSEPH PULITZER, editor and publisher, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
GIDEON SEYMOUR, executive editor, Minnpeaolis Star-Journal.
Duke Shoop, Kansas City Star.
BEVERLY SMITH, associate editor, American Magazine.
WALKER STONE, editor, Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance.
M. E. WALTER, managing editor, Houston Chronicle.

For Representative Richards it will be the second visit to European battlefields since the war started. He was in France and England last fall at the height of the German vengeance-weapon campaign.

Congress Probe Urged

Prior to announcement of the selection of the congressional investigating group, Representative Gossett (D., Texas) said he would offer a resolution for a congressional war-crimes investigating committee to fix responsibility for enemy atrocities. Representative Flood (D., Pa.) reported similar plans.

Senator Brooks, a member of the army's tour group, announced plans to propose the naming of a congressional inquiry committee, but abandoned the idea when he found such a group already was being selected.

WILSON ASKS EASY GRIEVANCE METHOD

GOP Adviser Cites Fault Of Old League Procedure

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Every encouragement should be given in the plan adopted at the San Francisco United Nations conference for the raising of grievances no matter what their origin, Hugh R. Wilson, a former diplomat, said today.

Newly appointed chief of the foreign affairs section of Republican National Committee, Wilson was for ten years American Minister to Switzerland.

"In Their Earlier Stages"

"Disputes are far easier to settle in their earlier stages," he said in a broadcast speech.

"The great states, the small states, should hav eaccess to the organization (to be se tup at San Francisco) for the statement of grievances and for an endeavor on the part of member states to bring about conciliation."

League Difficulty Cited

A principal difficulty of the old League of Nations, he said, was that too often it took up disputes only after they had become aggravated and disputants had taken irrevocable positions.

He expressed belief that the American peple now are far more realistic, more understanding and more resolute in their determination to co-operatein an international undertaking for the maintenance of peae cthan they were in the days of the league.

Armed Forces Taught How to Fight Fascism

Paper Reportedly Sent by War Department Is Put in Congressional Record

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP).—Representative Adolph J. Sabath, Democrat, of Illinois, has inserted in the Congressional Record a paper he described as a "War Department warning" and a "United States expose of native Fascism."

"Right now our native Fascists are spreading anti-British, anti-Soviet, anti-French and anti-United Nations propaganda," said the document.

Titled "Note for This Week's Discussion," the paper said: "It is important for our future and that of the world that as many of us as possible understand the causes and practices of Fascism, in order to combat it."

After an extended discourse on Fascism in Europe, the document said in part:

"Fascists in America may differ slightly from Fascists in other countries, but there are a number of attitudes and practices that they have in common. Following are three: Every person who has one of them is not necessarily a Fascist. But he is in a mental state that lends itself to he acceptance of Fascist aims.

"1. Pitting of religious, racial and economic groups against one another in order to break down national unity is a device of the 'divide and conquer' technique used by Hitler to gain power in Germany and in other countries.

"2. Fascism cannot tolerate such religious and ethical concepts as the 'brotherhood of man.' Fascists deny the need for international co-operation. These ideas contradict the Fascist theory of the 'master race.' . . . International co-operation, as expressed in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, runs counter to the Fascist program of war and world dominion. Right now our native Fascists are spreading anti-British, anti-Soviet, anti-French and anti-United Nations propaganda.

"3. It is accurate to call a member of a Communist party a 'Communit.' For short, he is often called a 'Red.' Indiscriminate pinning of the label 'Red' on people and proposals which one opposes is a common political device. It is a favorite trick of native as well as foreign Fascists."

Molotov Is Expected In Washington For Weekend Pre-Parley Conference

APR 22 1945

Washington, April 21—(AP)—Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov was expected to arrive today for a Big Three foreign ministers conference preliminary to the United Nations meeting opening in San Francisco Wednesday.

Toughest and gravest question on the long list of problems to be discussed by Molotov, Secretary of State Stettinius and British Foreign Secretary Eden is Allied policy on Poland.

There was some hope that the Russians would back down on their twice-presented demand that the present Provisional Government in Warsaw be invited to San Francisco. American diplomats were prepared to stand firm in their refusal to admit the Warsaw group, until it is reorganized along the lines laid down at Yalta.

To Discuss Polish Situation

British-Russian-American talks on establishment of a new Polish Government stalemated in Moscow several weeks ago and will be carried here over the weekend. Although there still is no indication of what can be expected.

Diplomats also were awaiting Molotov's arrival for release of a three-power warning to Germans on atrocities which Allied troops have found mounting in horror as the Nazis slide down to defeat.

Prime Minister Churchill announced in Commons yesterday that he had drafted a declaration on German crimes with Marshal Stalin and President Truman, which would be published after the meeting of foreign ministers here.

Churchill made clear that the declaration would pin the blame for German barbarism on the fanatics who torture, starve and kill with their own hands as well as on the higher-ups who order such crimes.

The Big Three talks are expected to last about three days, as each of the foreign ministers will hurry to San Francisco for the opening of the conference Wednesday. The conversations probably will continue there.

It is expected that the foreign ministers of China and France will be brought into the parley at various times. It was agreed at Yalta that both of those countries would be invited to join in drafting plans for a system of international trusteeships, second to the Polish issue on the Big Three's agenda.

There also are detailed plans to be approved for San Francisco, such as voting rules in the conference and its own organization.

It seems likely that Stettinius, Eden and Molotov will seek agreement on the timing and manner in which Russia will introduce its bid for seats for the White Russian and Ukrainian Soviet Republics in the assembly of the peace agency.

The U. S. and Britain promised to support the Russian request at Yalta. Although there was hope that Moscow could be persuaded to drop this proposal at San Francisco, there is no indication as yet that the Kremlin has changed its mind.

The U. S. delegation also has agreed on changes in the Dumbarton Oaks formula which would enable the assembly of the new organization to propose but not enforce treaty revisions.

This and other suggestions, such as Senator Vanderberg's (R.-Mich.) for inclusion of a statement of the principles of justice, will be taken up with the other sponsoring nations in Washington before the foreign ministers move west.

The State Department expects to hear from Eden, Molotov and Chinese Foreign Minister T. V. Soong any changes those Governments want to offer, before they are brought up in San Francisco.

SENATE AWAITS TRUMAN ACTION ON LILIENTHAL

Washington, April 21—(AP)—The Senate is getting ready to gauge the trend of President Truman's political thinking by what he does about the reappointment of TVA Chairman David Lilienthal.

30.24-25019

Lilienthal's term expires soon and Mr. Truman then will be on the hottest of personal and political spots.

If the President renominates Lilienthal he will please the Senate's so-called left wingers. They will feel that he is safely started on the "little left of center" course which Mr. Truman mapped in his campaign for the Vice-Presidency.

May Lose Support

But if he renominates Lilienthal, the President probably will lose the support of Senator McKellar (D.-Tenn.), the president pro-tempore and acting chairman of the powerful Appropriations Committee.

He also would disappoint some of the conservative Southern Wing of Democrats who hope he recalls the support they gave him at the Democratic National Convention last year when the CIO was trying desperately to renominate Henry A. Wallace.

Mr. Truman personally is involved in the Lilienthal matter as a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee he voted consistently with McKellar, Lilienthal's arch foe, on measures restricting the TVA Board's authority.

Beyond that, McKellar told a reporter that President Roosevelt had assured him before Mr. Roosevelt died that Lilienthal would not be renamed.

Mr. Truman's appointment of John W. Snyder, St. Louis banker and old friend, to be Federal Loan Administrator was received in the Senate as without political significance in the battle between the divergent Democratic elements.

Although the choice of Snyder was applauded by Jesse Jones, whom President Roosevelt ousted as Commerce Secretary in favor of Wallace, Senate Left Wingers dismissed it as a reward to a tried and trusted friend.

"We'll wait and see what he does about Lilienthal," one of them told a reporter, adding: "That will be the test."

Awarded Navy Cross

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Brig. Gen. John T. Walker, Marine Corps, has been awarded the Navy Cross for "extraordinary heroism" as commanding officer of the 22d Marines, reinforced, during the assault against Eniwetok in February, 1944, the Navy announced.

Eden Calls Views Uniform

APR 22 1945

Reports on Conference With Stettinius—Believed to Have Discussed Poland.

Washington, April 21 (A. P.).—British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden today declared "we are in complete agreement on all points" after a conference with Secretary of State Stettinius.

The two presumably discussed the attitude they will take on the ticklish Polish problem at their meeting with Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, who was expected to arrive here tonight or tomorrow.

"We had very useful discussions on a number of subjects," Mr. Eden told reporters as he emerged from an hour and a quarter session with Mr. Stettinius. He would not elaborate.

Molotov's delay in reaching Washington has left very little time for the Big Three to settle the broad range of problems facing them and both Eden and Stettinius appeared to be growing impatient.

Eden was asked if he knew when Molotov would get here and he said he did not. Then a reporter asked him when he would leave for San Francisco.

"Those two things are connected," he replied.

Another part of the hurried international discussions taking place here was carried on at the White House, where W. Averell Harriman, United States Ambassador to Russia, spent three quarters of an hour talking with President Truman.

24 P.C. Cut Ordered In Tanker Construction

Washington, April 21 (AP)—The Maritime Commission today ordered a 24 per cent cut in tanker construction.

Acting at the direction of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, the commission canceled contracts for 30 of 126 ships which had been scheduled in January.

The commission said it expects no cancellation of existing contracts for cargo vessels. It added that production of all types of merchant ships will amount to about 12,000,000 deadweight tons this year, as planned.

18 NATIONS UNINVITED TO THE WORLD PARLEY

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Eighteen nations have not been invited to send representatives to the United Nations Conference at San Francisco. Some or all of them might be admitted to a world peace league.

These nations are:

The Neutrals—Sweden, Switzerland, Eire, Spain, Portugal, Afghanistan.

The Enemy—Germany and Japan.

Enemy Satellites — Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungaria, Finland.

Those with vague diplomatic status—Denmark, Poland, Iceland, Italy, Argentina and Thailand.

Navy Rule To Prevent Brothers On Same Ship

Washington, April 21 (AP)—The Navy turned thumbs down today on any more "brother teams" aboard ships of the fleet.

Vice Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the Bureau of Personnel, has issued orders to discontinue assignment of brothers, including twins, to the same vessel, even though requested by their families or the men themselves, since assignment together "may result in the loss of two or more members of the family."

At the same time, officials disclosed that a joint Army-Navy announcement is in preparation modifying present policy on duty assignment of surviving members of a family.

Heretofore the policy has been to assign a sole surviving son to non-hazardous duty aboard or to return him to the United States. In hardship cases, the sole survivor may be discharged

Nacy May Be Hannegan's Aid

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP).—Richard Nacy, Jefferson City, Mo., banker, is in line for appointment to a key post in the Democratic National Committee, it was learned today. It was said that he probably will be named a paid executive assistant to chairman Robert E. Hannegan, who also is a Missourian. Mr. Nacy conferred yesterday with President Harry S. Truman.

Farm Bureau Chief Backs Bretton Woods

Washington, April 21—(AP)—The Bretton Woods international monetary agreements were endorsed today by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

At the same time, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau declared that adoption of the Bretton Woods program would "provide the necessary setting for a large expansion in our foreign trade."

O'Neal told the House Banking Committee considering the Bretton Woods agreement that the proposed bank for reconstruction aid and the international fund for stabilization of currency "are a necessary part of international cooperation . . . and domestic economy."

OPA ACTS ON PARLEY FOOD

Increased Quotas Are in View for San Francisco

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—San Francisco restaurants may receive increased food quotas to take care of delegates to the United Nations Conference.

Chairman Anderson of the House Food Investigating Committe said today that the Office of Price Administration had appointed a special rationing official to look into the situation. The committee, he stated, received the information at a hearing yesterday and he had passed along the word to J. D. Sullivan of the Hotel Employers Association of San Francisco.

RED CROSS FUND SWELLS

MEAT-CEILING END FAVORED

APR 22 1945

Taft Sees Rationing And New Supply Holding Prices

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) expressed belief today that the best way to get more meat and end black markets would be to remove price ceilings all down the line while retaining rationing.

But the Ohioan made clear in an interview that he had no intention of formally advocating legislation to that effect.

"As a practical matter, you could not get it done," he said.

Asked if taking off retail ceilings would not result in a sharp rise in consumer prices, Taft said he thought not if rationing were retained.

Senator Taft's Argument

Lack of red points, he argued, would prevent consumers with money from bidding up the price while elimination of controls from the cattle range and hog lots to the consumer would increase supplies.

The alternative approach to the problem, Taft said, is additional subsidies. The OPA is reported to have taken the subsidy approach in a revision of its meat price and subsidy program which is expected to be announced within a few days, if it receives approval from William H. Davis, stabilization director.

The OPA has worked out the program under heavy pressure from the meat industry and under a "squeeze" from the Senate Banking and Agricultural committees.

Two Escaped Nazis Captured

GARY, Ind., April 21 (AP).—Gary police have seized two escaped German prisoners of war who had fled from Camp Wainwright No. 135, Alberta, Ont., a month ago, Police Captain Peter Billick reported. The men identified themselves as Lieutenant Klaus Conrad, twenty-seven years old, of Hamburg, a Luftwaffe pilot who was shot down over England April 10, 1941, and Lieutenant Heinz Muche, twenty-nine, of the Afrika Corps, who was captured at Hell's Fire Pass in Tunisia January 17, 1943. Both carried forged Canadian draft cards and detailed hand-drawn maps of the United States.

Library Is Proposed As Pyle Memorial

Dana, Ind., April 21 (AP)—The Dana Lions Club today announced it was sponsoring the construction of an Ernie Pyle memorial library in honor of the doughboys' favorite war correspondent who was killed on Ie Jima last Tuesday.

Don Bussing, chairman of the memorial organization, said there had been numerous inquiries, locally and nationally, about a memorial to Pyle in Dana, his home town, and the club decided on the library, to be built with funds from public subscriptions.

William Pyle, father of the correspondent, has been made honorary president of the memorial committee, and Ernie's beloved Aunt Mary, Mrs. Mary Bales, was named honorary director.

$1,267,000 Earmarked For Paralysis Research

Chicago, April 21 (AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis appropriated $1,267,000 for scholarships, teaching fellowships and development of the field of physical therapy, Miss Dorothy Wrights, personal physical therapist to the late President Roosevelt, said today.

Miss Wright said in a statement there is a current shortage of 5,000 physical therapists "and no one knows how much greater the need will be after the war." The foundation's fund was established to meet the shortage of therapists, she added.

GETS SON'S MEDAL

Fort George G. Meade, Md., April 21 (A. P.)John Sadowski, of 450 State street, Perth Amboy, father of Sergt. Joseph J. Sadowski, who lost his life trying to rescue a trapped comrade in a flaming tank, received for his son today the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Major-Gen. Francis B. Mallon, post commander, made the presentation before the sergeant's mother and five brothers and two sisters.

The citation, read by Lieut.-Col. Donald R. Patterson, fort executive, was signed by the late President Roosevelt in what Col. Patterson called "one of the President's last official acts."

War Prisoners To Dorchester

Cambridge, Md., April 21—Representative Dudley C. Roe has announced that some 700 German war prisoners have been assigned to Dorchester county to assist in canning work this summer and to help farmers during their rush season. The prisoners, he said, were to be located at two camps, 300 at Hurlock and 400 at Cambridge.

Captive Nazis Put On Bread, Water

Rupert, Idaho, April 21 (AP)—Bread-and-water diet and outdoor sleeping quarters were in order today for approximately half the more than 500 Germans held at the prisoner-of-war camp here.

Army authorities said the disciplinary action was ordered when 258 privates refused to work in southern Idaho pea fields alongside noncommissioned officers.

Later 35 others were added because of a "sullen" attitude and their lack of interest in going to work.

The action was announced at Fort Douglas, Utah, by Lieut. Col. Eugene D. Mullins, public relations officer of the 9th Service Command, who said the order would be effective until the situation was corrected.

The men are required to sleep in an open field within the prison camp inclosure, without cots and with only one blanket apiece, Mullins said. They are given all the water they want but "not too much bread."

Nation's Highest Honor Awarded To Georgian

San Antonio, Texas, April 21 (AP). Sergt. Hulon B. Whittington, infantryman, of Ellavilla, Ga., was presented the nation's highest award, the Congressional Medal of Honor, today at Brooke General Hospital, where he is a patient.

Presentation was made by Maj. Gen. J. P. Lucas, commanding the 4th Army. Sergeant Whittington's father, Henry B. Whittington, of Natchitoches, Ala., was present.

The citation, signed by President Roosevelt, was for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity" on the night of July 29, 1944, near Grimesnil, France, where the sergeant during an enemy armored attack reorganized the defense of his platoon when its leaders were lost.

APR 22 1945

Brief San Francisco Meeting Suggested By Small Nation

San Francisco, April 21 (AP) — A suggestion that the world security conference would be comparatively brief in duration, despite prickly problems that could prolong it for months, was heard today inside the first informal behind-the-scenes session here.

The suggestion came, significantly, from a small-nation source—big-power delegates having yet to put in an appearance—but gave support to a big-power move to limit this first big conference largely to organization problems.

Smuts Early Arrival

A consensus already has been openly voiced here that unless the heavyweight sponsoring powers exercised strict control both over the proposed amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan and the agenda in general, the slowly arriving delegates might be involved here for months.

Such control, nevertheless, would necessarily postpone decision on dozens of pending problems.

Considerable importance was attached, meanwhile, to the fact that Jan Christiaan Smuts, South African Prime Minister and champion of big-nation responsibility for future world security, was the first of the highly influential delegates to set up shop here.

Smuts arrived expressing high hope that the sessions opening next Wednesday would provide the world with its big chance for permanent peace. He said he had "very, very good expectations."

Backs Voting Procedure

Although he did not enlarge significantly upon his statement, the South African field marshal and political chief is known to feel that the voting procedure outlined at Yalta was at least a realistic decision.

Although the plan whereby a major nation could veto action against itself has drawn fire from several smaller nations, Smuts has argued that the future security of the world must rest almost entirely with and on the good intentions of the few big powers.

All delegates here, including Smuts, looked to Washington for the all-important decision on whether the four sponsoring powers could present a solid front at the opening of the conference itself on the thorny questions of representation for Poland and on voting procedure.

Unanimity At Outset

Given unanimity at the outset, the consensus among observers seemed to be that the big powers could keep a firm grip on the fate of the amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan which will be offered here.

Some will come from the sponsoring powers themselves, but so long as they can present surface harmony and settle their fights in private, hope of a reasonably brief and peaceful conference seemed within reach.

Glenn L. Martin To Get Honorary Degree In Ohio

Cleveland, April 21 (AP)—Honorary degrees will be awarded to four men for outstanding contributions to science at commencement exercises of Case School of Applied Science tomorrow.

An honorary doctor of engineering degree will be conferred upon Glenn L. Martin, pioneer plane builder and president of the Glenn L. Martin Company of Baltimore.

Others to be honored are Otto D. Donnell, president of the Ohio Oil Company; Clyde Williams, director of Battelle Institute, Columbus, Ohio, and Dr. John T. Tate, chief of the research division of the Office of Scientific Research and Development. Dr. Tate will address the Case graduating class.

JAPAN'S OFFICIALS IN WIDE SHAKE-UP

125 Jobs Involved in Changes Made to Increase Regional Power in Case of Invasion

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21 (AP) —Another Government shake-up in invasion-jittery Japan was reported today by Tokyo radio which said a reshuffle of regional officials was the largest of its kind since the outbreak of the Greater East Asia War.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said the changes ordered by Home Minister Genki Abe were intended to increase the power of local administrative authorities in the event of an American invasion of the homeland.

Domei News Agency said the reorganization moves had extended to Korea. Government departments there were reduced, thus "freeing more than 400 capable persons" for "front-line Government positions."

Domei also reported the appointment of Vice Admiral Gisaburo Yamaguchi, former commander of the Port Arthur naval station, to command the Korean naval station, succeeding Vice Admiral Keijun Oka. Oka was assigned to the naval general staff.

Terming the homeland shake-up a "bold step but an effective one," Tokyo domestic broadcast said it was a "manifestation of the determination of Abe"—apparently to strengthen Japan's home defenses.

The reshuffle affected 125 key jobs.

Elected Broadcasting Chairman

Hachiro Ohashi, president of the Japanese Domei Agency and a member of the House of Peers, was elected today to the post of chairman of the board of directors of the Japan Broadcasting Corporation, Domei said.

The Domei wireless dispatch was reported by the Federal Communications Commission. Ohashi will succeed Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, former chairman of the broadcasting corporation, who is now a Minister of State and the president of the board of information in the new Cabinet of Premier Kantaro Suzuki.

THE ALLIES INVADED NORMANDY--IS GERMANY HOLDING A STRONG AIR FORCE IN RESERVE?

GERMANY WAS NOT EXACTLY HOLDING SUCH A F[illegible]RCE IN RESERVE BUT THE OVERWHELMING ALLIED AIR SUPERIORITY, PLUS THE SHORTAGE OF GASOLINE, MADE THE GERMAN AIR FORCE A FAIRLY IMPOTENT ASSET AT THE MOST CRUCIAL STAGE OF THE WAR. IT IS ESTIMATED THAT THERE NEVER WAS A TIME UNTIL THE PRESENT WHEN GERMANY HAD FEWER THAN 4,000 PLANES SUITABLE FOR COMBAT.

HIGH CASUALTIES AMONG GERMAN PILOTS AND THE COUNTRY'S INABILITY TO SPARE GASOLINE FOR THE PROPER TRAINING OF NEW ONES LED TO THE DOWNFALL OF THE ENTIRE ORGANIZATION.

MORE THAN 100 OF GERMANY'S BEST AIRFIELDS HAVE BEEN OVERRUN BY ALLIED ARMIES. MOST OF THE REMAINING BASES, FROM WHICH SMALL NUMBERS OF PLANES NOW ARE BEING FLOWN, ARE JUST POCKETS OF RESISTANCE ORGANIZED BY A HANDFUL OF FANATICAL PILOTS HANGING ON UNTIL WHAT GASOLINE THEY HAVE IS EXHAUSTED.

THE CAPTURED DIARY OF ONE FIGHTER PILOT REVEALED THAT THERE HAVE BEEN ALMOST DAILY ROWS BETWEEN OFFICERS BECAUSE OF ALL SORTS OF CONFLICTING ORDERS. BUT NONE OF THESE ORDERS CAME FROM THE AIR COMMAND.

LONDON, APRIL 21-(AP)-AS AN ORGANIZED FORCE THE ONCE DREADED GERMAN AIR FORCE IS DEAD.

FROM VARIOUS SOURCES ALLIED AIR OFFICERS HAVE GATHERED EVIDENCE SHOWING THAT THE GERMAN AIR FORCE NO LONGER IS REALLY DIRECTED BY ANYONE.

WHAT DISJOINTED LIFE IT HAD LEFT WAS KNOCKED OUT DURING THE LAST TWO WEEKS OF INCESSANT ALLIED ATTACKS ON OVER-CROWDED AIRFIELDS ALL OVER WHAT IS LEFT OF THE REICH.

DURING THIS BRIEF PERIOD ALLIED PILOTS HUNTED DOWN AND DESTROYED AN AMAZING TOTAL OF 3,200 ENEMY AIRCRAFT WHILE BEING ENGAGED IN BUT ONE AIR BATTLE. A MAJORITY OF THE NAZI PLANES WERE SMASHED ON THE GROUND BY U.S. EIGHTH AND NINTH AIR FORCE FIGHTERS AT A COST OF LESS THAN 100 OF THEIR OWN PLANES.

THE CHARRED SHELLS OF THESE 3,200 PLANES FURNISH A MUTE ANSWER TO THE QUESTION UPPERMOST IN THE MINDS OF MANY MILITARY MEN SINCE BEFORE

FIELD KITCHENS ARE BEING SET UP, AND TRANSOCEAN'S CORRESPONDENT WALTER FELCHNER SAID "BERLIN IS ALREADY PREPARING FOR PUBLIC MASS FEEING WHEN THE CITY IS ENCIRCLED AND ALL COMMUNICATIONS WITH THE OUTSIDE WORLD CUT."

FELCHNER TOLD OF THE FIRST RUSSIAN SHELLS TO LAND IN POTSDAMER PLATZ--THE TIMES SQUARE OF BERLIN.

"THE NEXT HITS WERE OFF AND LIFE BECAME NORMAL AGAIN. GROUPS OF PEOPLE GATHERED IN THE STREETS AND EAGERLY DISCUSSED THE DANGERS OF ARTILLERY FIRE. AT THE PRESENT THE OPINION PREVAILS THAT SHELLS ARE BETTER THAN BOMBS."

VIRTUALLY THE ENTIRE POPULATION IS SPENDING MOST OF THE TIME UNDERGROUND, HE REVEALED, EXPLAINING THAT "EVERYBODY HOPES TO BE PRETTY SAFE IN THE CELLARS."

BY JAMES M.LONG (500)

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, PARIS, APRIL 21-(A

IT WAS CLEAR TONIGHT FROM THE CAREFULLY PLOTTED MOVES OF THE ARMIES AS THE AMERICANS AND RUSSIANS MOVED TOWARD THEIR HISTORIC MEETING IN THE HEART OF GERMANY THAT ALREADY THERE IS THE CLOSEST COORDINATION OF COMMAND.

GEN.EISENHOWER REPEATEDLY HAS EMPHASIZED THAT SUCH COORDINATION HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED.

CORRESPONDENTS HERE WERE GIVEN NO SPECIFIC INFORMATION, HOWEVER, AS TO WHAT THE INTER-ALLIED COMMAND CORRELATION WILL BE IN DEALING WITH THE GERMAN FORCES SPLIT INTO NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN FRONTS. DETAILS WERE WITHHELD OUT OF COURTESY TO THE RUSSIANS.

TODAY IT WAS INDICATED THAT THE ELBE RIVER HAD BEEN CHOSEN AS THE LINE FOR THE LINKUP OF THE TWO GREAT ALLIED GROUPS OF ARMIES, SINCE IT IS A SUFFICIENTLY PROMINENT NATURAL BARRIER TO PREVENT ANY ACCIDENTAL OVERSHOOTING OF POSITION AND UNINTENTIONAL INTERMESHING OF THE TWO DRIVES.

GEN.EISENHOWER IS CONDUCTING HIS CAMPAIGN ON A STRICTLY MILITARY PLANE AND HIS LIAISON WITH THE RUSSIANS IS LIMITED TO MILITARY MATTERS, HIS CHIEF OF STAFF, LT.GEN.WALTER BEDELL SMITH, TOLD CORRESPONDENTS HERE.

ALL POLITICAL ASPECTS OF INTER-ALLIED COORDINATION ARE IN THE HANDS OF THE BIG THREE GOVERNMENTS.

SMITH MADE HIS COMMENT AS REPORTS WERE CURRENT THAT THE AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE WESTERN ALLIES AND MOSCOW AS TO WHAT PARTS OF THE REICH EACH SHALL OCCUPY HAS AFFECTED MILITARY OPERATIONS AND IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE AMERICAN ARMIES STOPPING ON THE LINE OF THE ELBE.

(THE AMERICAN NINTH ARMY HAS BEEN DRAWN UP ALONG A WIDE EXPANSE OF THE ELBE'S WEST BANK FOR MORE THAN A WEEK AND HAS HELD A BRIDGEHEAD EAST OF THE RIVER IN THE BARBY REGION, SOUTHWEST OF BERLIN. ANOTHER BRIDGEHEAD IN THE MAGDEBURG REGION WAS GIVEN UP.)

IT SEEMED CLEAR TODAY THAT THE RACE OF THE AMERICAN FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES ACROSS THE THURINGIAN PLAIN HAD CLOSED UP TOWARD THE LINKUP LINE PERHAPS EVEN FASTER THAN ANTICIPATED AND THAT THE TWO ARMIES PAUSED ON THE MULDE TO MOVE FORWARD SLOWLY AS THE RED ARMY UNCORKED ITS NEW OFFENSIVE AND CAME RACING UP FROM SOUTH OF COTTBUS.

ON THE MULDE, A WESTERN TRIBUTARY OF THE ELBE, THE AMERICANS WERE 15 TO 20 MILES FROM THE ELBE. THE APPARENT LINKUP LINE.

IN THE STEADILY NARROWING NECK BETWEEN THE RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN ADVANCES IT WAS EVIDENT EARLY TODAY THAT THE GERMANS HAD NOTHING LEFT CAPABLE OF WITHSTANDING THE WEIGHT OF THE ALLIED ATTACK.

IT WAS APPARENT THAT THE LINKUP COULD BE MADE AT WILL AND THAT THE ALLIES FROM THE EAST AND WEST WERE CLOSING UP CAREFULLY, LESS BECAUSE OF GERMAN RESISTANCE THAN BECAUSE OF CAREFUL PLANS DESIGNED TO AVOID CONFUSION IN THE MESHING OF FORCES.

IT CAN BE REVEALED THAT THERE HAS BEEN WELL COORDINATED PLANNING BETWEEN EISENHOWER AND THE RUSSIAN COMMANDERS FOR THE HOOKUP, WITH ITS TIME AND PLACES FIXED.

THE FACT THAT SUPREME HEADQUARTERS WAS ABLE TO PREDICT THE IMMINENT LINKUP WITH THE RUSSIANS, EVEN THOUGH THE EASTERNMOST OF THE AMERICAN ARMIES HAD HARDLY MOVED IN SEVERAL DAYS, WAS INDICATION OF THE CLOSENESS OF COORDINATION BETWEEN EISENHOWER'S COMMAND AND THE CHIEFS OF THE RED ARMIES.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, PARIS, April 21 (ap)---It was clear tonight from the carefully plotted moves of the armies as the Americans and Russians moved toward their historic meeting in the heart of Germany that already there is the closest coordination of command.

Gen. Eisenhower repeatedly has emphasized that such coordination has been established.

Correspondents here were given n o specific information however, as to what the inter-allied command correlation will be in dealing with the Germans forces split APR 22 1945 into northern and southern fronts. Details were withheld out of courtesy to the Russians.

Today it was indicated that the Elbe river had been chosen as the line for the link up of the two great allied groups of armies, since it is a sufficiently prominent natural barrier to prevent any accidental overshooting of position and unintentional intermeshing of the two drives.

Gen. Eisenhower is conducting his campaign on a strictly military plane and his liaison with the Russians is limited to military matters, his chief of staff, lt. gen. Walter Bedell Smith, told correspondents here.

All political aspects of inter-allied coordination are in the hands of the big three governments. APR 22 1945

Smith made this comment as reports were current that the agreement between the western allies and Moscow as to what parts of the reich each shall occupy has affected military operations and is responsible for the american armies stopping on the [illegible] line of the elbe.

(The American Ninth Army has been drawn up along a wide expanse of the Elbe's west bank for more than a week and has held a bridgehead east of the river in the Barby region, southwest of Berlin. Another bridgehead in the Magdeburg region was given up.)

It seemed clear today that the race of the American first and third armies across the thuringian plain had closed up toward the linkup line perhaps even faster than anticipated and that the two armies paused on the mulde to move forward slowly as the red army uncorked its new offensive and came racing up from south of cottbus.

On the mulde, a western tributary of the elbe, the americans were 15 to 20 miles from the elbe, the apparent linkup line.

In the steadily narrowing neck between the Russian and American advances it was evident early today that the Russians had nothing left capable of withstanding the weight of the Allied attack. APR 22 1945

It was apparent that the linkup could be made at will and that the allies from the east and west were closing up carefully less because of german resistance than because of confusion in the meshing of forces. careful plans designed to avoid overshooting and meshing of the allies at the juncture.

It can be revealed that there has been well coordinated planning between Eisenhower and the Russian commanders for the [illegible] with its time and places fixed.

The fact that supreme headquarters was able to predict the imminent linkup with the russians, even though the easternmost of the american armies had hardly moved in several days, was indication of the closeness of coordination between eisenhower's command and the chiefs of the red armies. APR 22 1945

Official disclosure of details of this coordination, however, still is withheld here in courtesy to the russians.

PARIS, APRIL 21-(AP)-LT. GEN. WALTER BEDELL SMITH, GEN. EISENHOWER'S CHIEF OF STAFF, SAID TODAY HE HELD NO HOPE FOR AN IMMEDIATE END TO THE WAR IN EUROPE AND ADDED THAT THERE MAY BE BITTER FIGHTING AND HEAVY CASUALTIES TO COME.

ADDRESSING WAR CORRESPONDENTS AT SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, SMITH SAID GENERAL EISENHOWER WOULD TRY TO GET THE WAR OVER AS SOON AS POSSIBLE BUT HAD NO INTENTION OF THROWING AWAY THE LIVES ENTRUSTED TO HIM AND WOULD FIGHT AS ECONOMICALLY AS HE COULD.

WITH THE GERMANS STILL RESISTING AND APPARENTLY DETERMINED TO STAND TO THE END IN A NATIONAL REDOUBT, ROOTING THEM OUT MAY TAKE CONSIDERABLE TIME, SMITH ADDED.

APR 22 1945

OKE AS AMERICAN AND RUSSIAN TROOPS WERE MOVING TOWARD A JUNCTION, BUT HE MADE IT CLEAR THIS DID NOT MEAN THE END OF THE BATTLE OF EUROPE AND REITERATED EISENHOWER'S VIEW THAT THERE WOULD BE NO FORMAL SURRENDER OF GERMANY.

SMITH HAS SERVED AS EISENHOWER'S CHIEF OF STAFF BOTH IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND ON THE CONTINENT. HE SAID THAT OF ALL THE BIG CAMPAIGNS IN HISTORY THE GERMAN CAMPAIGN CAME CLOSEST TO FOLLOWING THE ORIGINAL PATTERN LAID OUT BY THE COMMANDER WHO PLANNED IT. IN ONLY ONE INSTANCE DID IT DEVIATE FROM THE PLANNED ATTACK AND THAT WAS BECAUSE THE GERMANS MADE A LESS DETERMINED DEFENSE OF COLOGNE AND THE PLAIN BEFORE IT THAN EISENHOWER HAD ANTICIPATED.

THEKLA, GERMANY, APRIL 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE CHARRED BODIES OF 220 POLITICAL PRISONERS WHO WERE SPRAYED WITH FLAMING ACETONE AND BURNED AND SHOT TO DEATH JUST BEFORE AMERICAN TROOPS CAPTURED THIS LEIPZIG SUBURB STILL WERE SPRAWLED TODAY IN POSTURES OF AGONY.

SOME LAY IN THE RUINS OF THE CONCENTRATION CAMP BARRACKS. OTHERS WERE CAUGHT ON THE SHARP SPIKES OF BARBED WIRE ENCLOSING THE CAMP.

OF 324 POLISH, RUSSIAN, CZECH, YUGOSLAV, FRENCH AND ITALIAN POLITICAL PRISONERS IN THE CAMP ONLY ABOUT 80 SURVIVED. A CZECH BARBER WHO MANAGED TO SHORT CIRCUIT THE ELECTRICALLY CHARGED BARBED WIRE ENCLOSURE LED THEM TO SAFETY.

THIS ATROCITY TOOK PLACE IN PLANT NO.3 OF THE ERLA WORKS, WHICH MADE MESSERSCHMITT AIRPLANE PARTS. THE CAMP, IN THE MIDDLE OF THE FACTORY BUILDINGS, WAS A DIVISION OF THE NOTORIOUS BUCHENWALD "MURDER FACTORY" NEAR WEIMAR.

FROM HERE THE GERMANS WERE MARCHING PRISONERS BY THE HUNDREDS TO POINTS FARTHER EAST UNTIL LAST SATURDAY. WHEN GUARDS LEARNED THE U.S.NINTH ARMORED DIVISION HAD SWUNG AROUND EAST OF LEIPZIG THEY DECIDED TO DESTROY THE LAST 324 LEFT ON THEIR HANDS.

"ALL WERE SCHEDULED TO BE KILLED THAT NIGHT--TUESDAY," SAID THE CZECH BARBER, CARL TYKAL. "BUT FOR SOME REASON THE GUARDS DECIDED TO WAIT UNTIL THE NEXT DAY. DURING THE NIGHT 30 MEN MANAGED TO CLIMB OVER THE FENCE. MOST OF THEM HID IN HOLES AND CORNERS OF THE FACTORY.

"TO GET THEM OUT OF HIDING THE GUARDS WENT AROUND THE NEXT DAY, CARRYING BIG STEAMING CANS OF POTATO SOUP AND SHOUTING THAT ALL WHO CAME OUT WOULD BE FED. MOST OF THOSE HIDING WERE SO HUNGRY THEY FELL FOR THIS TRAP.

"THERE WERE ALMOST 300 MEN IN THE BARRACKS. THE GUARDS SAW THAT SOUP WAS SERVED TO ALL AND THEN WHILE THEY WERE EATING QUICKLY HUNG BLANKETS UP OUTSIDE THE WINDOWS. OTHER SS MEN RAN INTO TWO DOORS, THREW CANS OF INFLAMMABLE ACETONE OVER THE PRISONERS, AND THEN SET THE BUILDING ON FIRE.

A52

"IT WENT UP LIKE A TINDER BOX. I COULD HEAR MY FRIENDS SCREAMING AND PRAYING AS THE FLAMES SEARED THEM AND THEY TRIED TO RUN THROUGH THE DOORS AND CLIMB THROUGH THE WINDOWS.

"THE SS GUARDS AND ONE GESTAPO MAN WERE READY. THEY FIRED INTO BOTH DOORS AND EVERY WINDOW."

I WALKED OVER TO THE RUINS OF THIS 40 BY 150 FOOT BUILDING AND SAW THE CHARRED SKELETONS, MORE THAN 25 AT EACH DOOR. THEY HAD BURNED INTO A MINGLED MASS OF BONES. ONE SKELETON HEAD LIFTED ABOVE THE OTHERS AND ITS BLIND EYEPITS STARED SIGHTLESSLY UNDER THE WARM SPRING SUN.

TWO MILES AWAY YOUNG GERMAN MOTHERS WERE TRUNDLING BABIES PEACEFULLY ALONG AMERICAN PATROLLED STREETS.

THE BARBER CONTINUED:

"SO MANY PRISONERS MANAGED TO RUN OUT OF THE BUILDING WITH THEIR CLOTHES FLAMING THAT THE GUARDS BEGAN TO THROW IN HAND GRENADES. SOME PRISONERS MANAGED TO CRAWL OUT ON HANDS AND KNEES AND BURNED TO DEATH BLINDLY ON ROLLS OF WIRE."

I WALKED OVER AND FOUND FOUR CRISPED, BURNED BODIES RESTING ON SHARP SPIKES WHICH HAD NO POWER TO HURT FLAME-BLINDED MEN ROASTED TO DEATH.

ONE MAN HAD BITTEN HIS FINGER IN HALF IN HIS AGONY. ANOTHER, WHOSE SUFFERINGS WERE ERASED BY A BULLET THROUGH HIS HEAD, HAD STUFFED THE END OF A BURNING CLOTH INTO HIS MOUTH.

BLOOD FROM HIS HEAD WOUND HAD RUN DOWN AND PUT OUT THE FLAMES.

THE 45TH DIVISION'S 157TH REGIMENT STILL HAD A SCRAP IN THE SOUTHWESTERN PART OF THE OLD WALLED CITY.

WHAT MUST BE ONE OF THE BIGGEST STORES OF MEAT AND FOOD THE ALLIES HAVE CAPTURED IN GERMANY WAS UNCOVERED BY COMPANY G, COMMANDED BY LT. PETE DOUGHERTY OF TWO BARNES ROAD, NEWTON, MASS.

DOUGHERTY AND HIS MEN WENT INSIDE A HUGE SIX STORY BUILDING TO DRIVE OUT SIX NSIPERS. THEY DISCOVERED THAT THE BUILDING, COVERING ABOUT A SQUARE CITY BLOCK, WAS A FROZEN FOOD CONCERN AND ALL SIX FLOORS WERE STACKED TO THE CEILINGS WITH SIDES OF BEEF, PORK, BARRELS OF BUTTER, FROZEN VEGETABLES, FRUIT JUICES, DUCKS, CHICKENS, STEAKS, EGGS AND ICE CREAM.

THE PACKAGES WERE LABELED IN GERMAN, AND THE INFANTRYMEN HAD A SORT OF POT LUCK AFFAIR. ONE INFANTRYMAN CARRIED AN ARMLOAD OF PACKAGES SIX BLOCKS ONLY TO FIND THAT THE CONTENTS CONSISTED OF FROZEN SLICED CUCUMBERS INSTEAD OF THE STRAWBERRIES HE HAD EXPECTED TO GET.

HOPING TO PICK UP SOME LUGERS FOR HIS BOYS CHAPLAIN D.D.DILLON (RANK NOT GIVEN) WHO FORMERLY WAS A PASTOR IN A METHODIST CHURCH IN ELIZABETH, PA., FOLLOWED A LIBERATED RUSSIAN INTO AN AIR RAID SHELTER OCCUPIED BY 57 GERMAN SOLDIERS AND THREE OFFICERS. THE GERMANS HAD NOT MADE UP THEIR MINDS YET ABOUT SURRENDERING.

DILLON, WHOSE FAMILY LIVES AT 1605 CULVER ROAD, ROCHESTER, N.Y., WENT BACK UP THE STEPS AND RAN FOR LT.L.A.BURKHOLDER OF 2732 FIFTH AVE., SACRAMENTO, CALIF. BURKHOLDER WENT TO EH ENTRANCE AND FILLED THE CORRIDOR WITH RICHOCHETING LEAD. THE GERMANS SURRENDERED TO A MAN AND DILLON GET SOME LUGERS.

HE DECIDED TO TRY OUT A PISTOL HE HAD FOUND ON A BIG PICTURE OF HITLER IN ONE OF THE SWANKY OFFICES ON THE SECOND FLOOR. A FEW MOMENTS AFTER HE FIRED THE SHOT 140 GERMAN SOLDIERS HIDING IN THE BASEMENT WALKED INTO THE STREET WITH THEIR HANDS UP.

"WE'RE NOT COMBAT TROOPS," ANDREOLI SAID, "AND I WAS ASTONISHED. I RAN AND GOT THE MAJOR (JOHN J.WETZEL OF DECATUR, ILL.) AND WE COUNTE THEM AND TOOK THEM AWAY."

WITH 90TH DIVISION--FIRST ADD BALL'S STARVATION (A44) X X X
142 SURVIVED.

MEDICOS SAID SOME WERE IN SO ADVANCED A STAGE OF STARVATION THAT THEY COULD NOT HAVE SURVIVED MUCH LONGER. ONE MAN DIED AT FUSCHMUEHL WHERE THE AMERICANS STAYED FOR FIVE DAYS AFTER THEY WERE ABANDONED BY THE GERMANS.

WHILE THE PRISONERS WORKED 12 HOURS A DAY IN THE QUARRY, THEY WERE GIVEN TWO HELPINGS OF THIN SOUP DAILY PLUS ONE LOAF OF BREAD FOR FIVE MEN. ON THE MARCH THEY WERE GIVEN ONE LOAF FOR 10 ME, AND NOTHING ELSE.

THE MEN SAID THAT WHEN BECAUSE OF HUNGER THEY WERE UNABLE TO WORK AS FAST AS THE GERMANS DEMANDED THEY WERE BEATEN WITH SHOVELS, CLUBBED WITH RIFLE BUTTS AND THEN KICKED WHEN THEY WERE DOWN.

ONE DAY A GROUP OF JEWISH PRISONERS, TOO WEAK TO GO INTO THE QUARRY, WERE PRODDED OUT OF THEIR BARRACKS BY GERMANS WITH BAYONETS.

TANK-RIDING TROOPS OF THE 357TH INFANTRY UNDER LT. FRED MCGUIRE AND CAPT. RALPH MERRICK OF AKRON, OHIO, LIBERATED THE PRISONERS LATE FRIDAY. WHEN WORD OF THEIR CONDITION REACHED REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS, LT. COL.GILBERT STRICKLER OF NEW GLARUS, WIS., GAVE PRIORITY TO AMBULANCES TO GO INTO TO FUSCHMUEHL, WHICH WAS THEN IN THE FRONT LINES, TO BRING THEM OUT.

UPON ARRIVING BACK AT THE AID STATION EARLY THIS MORNING, A NUMBER OF LITTER CASES WERE TOO WEAK FROM HUNGER AND EXCITEMENT TO TALK. OTHERS WERE ONLY HALF-CONSCIOUS.

"I SEE ONLY RAINBOWS IN THOSE LIGHTS," ONE DELIRIOUS 19-YEAR-OLD SAID AS HE WAS BROUGHT INTO THE CLEARING ROOM.

MEDICS PASSED AROUND COFFEE AND CIGARETS TO THOSE ABLE TO WALK AND USED TUBES TO FEED THOSE UNABLE TO MOVE FROM THE LITTERS.

A CAPTURED GERMAN GUARD SAT IN A CORNER LOOKING AT THE MEN. HE WAS PERSPIRING FREELY. HE HAD A BANDAGE AROUND HIS HEAD AND HIS NOSE HAD BEEN BLOODIED. SOMEBODY SAID HE HAD A BOIL ON HIS HEAD.

THE LIBERATED DOUGHBOYS UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDED FOR THE HALL OF FAVE PVT. SAMUEL FAHRER OF 299 EAST EIGHTH ST., NEW YORK CITY. HE HAD TURNED DOWN A CHANCE TO ESCAPE BECAUSE HE WANTED TO STAY AND LOOK AFTER HIS COMRADES.

B68

APR 22 1945

THEY SAID FAHRER WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR KEEPING MANY MEN ALIVE. HE HAD BEEN FORCED TO WORK IN THE ROCK QUARRY BY THE GERMANS WHO ACCUSED HIM OF "INSOLENCE" WHEN HE ASKED THAT HE BE PERMITTED TO USE A RED CROSS PARCEL WHICH HAD BELONGED TO A DEAD AMERICAN TO FEED THOSE WHO WERE STILL LIVING. THE GERMANS KEPT THE PARCEL.

BRUNSWICK, GERMANY, APRIL 21-(AP)-A GERMAN "WILLOW RUN" DESIGNED TO BUILD LOW-COST CIVILIAN AUTOMOBILES BUT CONVERTED TO MAKE GERMAN JEEPS, V-1 BOMBS AND OTHER WEAPONS, WAS HEADED BY A TECHNICAL EXPERT WHO ONCE LIVED IN AMERICA AND SAID HE WORKED 20 YEARS FOR HENRY FORD.
EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBERS PUT THE V-1, AIRPLANE REPAIR, AND AMPHIBIOUS JEEP DEPARTMENTS OF THE BIG PLANT OUT OF BUSINESS LAST JUNE, AND CUT PRODUCTION OF THE JEEPS (VOLKSWAGON) 80 PER CENT. THIS REDUCED PRODUCTION WAS MAINTAINED UNTIL THE U.S. NINTH ARMY OVERRAN THE FACTORY ON ITS SMASH TO THE ELBE RIVER.
A SADLY BEATEN HERR MAYER STOOD TODAY AMID THE RUSTING RUINS OF THE PLANT HE SAID WAS COPIED FROM THE FORD PLANTS IN MICHIGAN, AND TOLD HOW THE PLAN FOR A CAR FOR EVERY LABORER HAD BEEN OUTLINED TO HIM WHEN HE CAME HERE "FOR MY HEALTH" FROM DETROIT IN 1937.
GERMAN LABORERS PUT UP THE MONEY TO CONSTRUCT THE FACTORY IN 1938 UNDER THE PLAN OF DR.ROBERT LEY, ITS HEAD. EVERY WORKER HAD TO BELONG TO A UNION TAXING ITS MEMBERS ON AN INSTALLMENT PLAN PROPOSITION FOR BUYING THE CARS.
THEORETICALLY, WHEN THE WORKER HAD 900 MARKS IN THE FUND HE WOULD GET A NEW AUTOMOBILE, BUT ONLY 500 OF THE CARS EVER WERE PRODUCED AND THESE WERE GIVEN AWAY BY LEY.
THE MILE-LONG PLANT AT FALLERSLEBEN HAD AN ASSEMBLY LINE IDENTICAL TO THAT IN ANY SMALL FORD ASSEMBLY PLANT. THE GERMAN MODEL COULD TURN OUT A CAR EVERY TWO MINUTES, AND MAYER'S ULTIMATE SCHEME CALLED FOR FOUR LINES.
MAYER'S PLANT, INCLUDING 2,000 SLAVE LABORERS, HIT A PRODUCTION PEAK IN MAY, 1944, OF 1,800 GERMAN-TYPE JEEPS, 1,000 AMPHIBIOUS JEEPS, 1,200 V-ONES, 100,000 MINES AND THE REPAIR OF 30 JUNKERS 88S A MONTH.
A GERMAN JEEP IS NOT SO HOT. EVEN MAYER ADMITTED THIS.
"YOUR JEEP HAS 70 TO 80 HORSEPOWER WHILE OURS HAS 26," HE SAID. "OUR VEHICLE HAS ONLY A TWO-WHEEL DRIVE AND YOURS HAS FOUR."
THE GERMAN JEEP HAS AN AIR-COOLED ENGINE AND A SLANTING HOOD. ITS CONVERTIBLE TOP AND SPEED GIVE MAYER'S PRODUCT A VERY CONTINENTAL APPEARANCE, BUT ACTUALLY THE BODY IS FLIMSY AND THE MACHINE DOES NOT STAND UP UNDER PUNISHMENT.

TODAY'S BEST RUMOR IS OF THE PHANTON TRAIN SAID TO HAVE BEEN SEEN TO ENTER THE FOREST FROM BLANKENBURG TWO WEEKS AGO, AND NEVER EMERGED.
ONLY ONE THING IS SURE, ALL THE WITNESSES AGREE. TWO WEEKS AGO A TRAIN BEARING TWO LUXURY COACHES AND PROTECTED BY FLAK CARS ROLLED THROUGH BLANKENBURG FROM THE NORTH, PRESUMABLY FROM BERLIN.
IT HAD A TOP PRIORITY AND ITS OWN TRAIN CREW. IT HEADED TOWARD ELBINGERODE THAT WAS THE LAST SEEN OF IT, EXCEPT FOR REPORTS THAT IT UNLOADED IN A NARROW GORGE IN THE HARTZ MOUNTAINS WHERE NAZI CHIEFTAINS ARE SAID TO HAVE DEFENSE CAVES PREPARED.

GERMANY IS BEING CUT INTO UNCOORDINATED SLICES LIKE PIECES OF SAUSAGE.

WITH WHOLE ARMY GROUPS CUT OFF BY THESE MOVES, MASS SURRENDER OF GERMAN TROOPS IS CONSIDERED LIKELY. ONCE GERMAN COMMANDERS ARE PLACED IN A HOPELESS POSITION WHERE THEY CAN SURRENDER "WITH HONOR," THEY HAVE SHOWN LITTLE INCLINATION IN THE PAST TO CONTINUE A FIGHT.

APR 22 1945

EXCEPT AS REGARDS THE FANATICAL SS.ELITE GUARD TROOPS, THE SITUATION IS EXACTLY THE SAME AS WHEN THE U.S. FIRST AND NINTH ARMIES CUT OFF THE RUHR POCKET, WHICH EVENTUALLY DISGORGED MORE THAN 317,000 PRISONERS WITHOUT ANY GREAT STRUGGLE.

JUST HOW MANY GERMAN TROOPS WILL BE CUT OFF IN THE VARIOUS POCKETS, SUCH AS THE RUSSIAN JUNCTION WITH THE NINTH ARMY NORTH OF BERLIN AND THE OTHER POCKET SOUTH OF THIS JUNCTION DOWN TO THE U.S. THIRD ARMY COLUMNS IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, IS NOT KNOWN, OF COURSE, BUT IT PROBABLY WILL RUN WELL OVER ONE MILLION.

HOW LONG THIS FIGHT WILL GO ON DEPENDS ENTIRELY ON LOCAL GERMAN COMMANDERS AND THE NUMBERS OF SS.TROOPS LEFT IN THE TWO AREAS. WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE LAKE DEFENSES OF BERLIN, THE TERRAIN OFFERS LITTLE ADVANTAGE TO DEFENSE.

THERE IS NOT EXPECTED TO BE ANY VAST NUMBER OF SS.TROOPS ON EITHER THE EASTERN OR WESTERN FRONTS FROM CZECHOSLOVAKIA NORTHWARD. MOST OF THEM ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN PULLED SOUTHWARD IN RECENT WEEKS FOR A PLANNED SUICIDE STAND IN HITLER'S LAST REDOUBT AREA IN THE MOUNTAINS BORDERING SWITZERLAND AND RUNNING INTO AUSTRIA.

THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY NOW IS FIGHTING ITS WAY INTO THE REDOUBT AREA, STRIKING BEFORE HITLER AND HIS FANATICS CAN GET TOO WELL SET. THE REDOUBT, HOWEVER, IS A MOUNTAIN FORTRESS THAT NULLIFIES USE OF ALLIED ARMORED SUPERIORITY AND, TO SOME EXTENT, AIR SUPERIORITY, AND IS A FORMIDABLE MILITARY OBSTACLE.

THE ASSAULT ON THE AREA MIGHT WELL RUN INTO MONTHS, AND COULD BE A SLOW INFANTRY JOB. IT IS EXPECTED THAT THE GERMANS NOW IN ITALY WILL WITHDRAW INTO THE AUSTRIAN TYROL AND AID THE DEFENSE.

IN ALL, PROBABLY THERE WILL BE 200,000 TO 300,000 NAZI FANATICS AVAILABLE IN WELL-EQUIPPED, SELF-SUFFICIENT UNDERGROUND DEFENSES.

APR 22 1945

FOR ALL PRACTICAL PURPOSES THE GERMAN NATION WILL HAVE BEEN DEFEATED BY THE RUSSIAN-AMERICAN LINK-UP, BUT IF GEN.EISENHOWER ADHERES TO HIS LATEST STATEMENT, THERE WILL BE NO "V-E DAY" UNTIL THE REDOUBT IS CLEAN UP.

THIS POLICY IS BEING FOLLOWED APPARENTLY TO GUARD AGAINST ANY CIVILIAN LET-UP IN BRITAIN OR AMERICA, WITH POSSIBLE RESULTING DISAPPOINTMENT IF THE REDOUBT FIGHTING SHOULD DRAG ON WITH HEAVY CASUALTIES.

ANOTHER SCHOOL OF THOUGHT--APPARENTLY IN THE MINORITY--FEELS THAT DECLARATION OF VICTORY AND AN ANNOUNCEMENT THAT PERSONS RESISTING AFTER THAT DAY WILL BE TREATED AS BRIGANDS MIGHT INFLUENCE MANY OF THE GERMAN REGULAR ARMY OFFICERS TO SURRENDER MORE QUICKLY.

GARDELEGEN, GERMANY, APRIL 21-(AP)-MAYOR KARL LEPA IS A PROSPEROUS LOOKING LITTLE MAN WHO WAS STRICTLY THE BIGGEST BIG SHOT IN THIS HOT BED CITY OF FANATICAL NAZI MOVEMENTS WHERE 1,100 POLITICAL PRISONERS WERE BURNED TO DEATH A WEEK AGO LAST NIGHT.

BUT TODAY LEPA WAS JUST ANOTHER GRAVEDIGGER CHARGED WITH THE MOST GRISLY JOB IN THE ENTIRE SICKENING BUSINESS OF DISPOSING OF THE BODIES OF THOSE VICTIMS. HIS WELL SHINED SHOES WERE SMEARED WITH MUCK FROM THE BOTTOM OF A COMMUNITY DITCH GRAVE WHERE SOME OF THE BODIES HAD BEEN HURRIEDLY HIDDEN BEFORE AMERICAN INFANTRY ENTERED THE TOWN.

HIS HANDS WERE COVERED WITH BLOOD, CHARRED FLESH AND SCORCHED CLOTHING. HIS STAFF OF SEVEN MEN FOUND THEMSELVES IN THE SAME PLIGHT AND THIS IS WHY.

WHEN 12TH ARMY GROUP COMMANDERS HEARD THE STORY OF THE ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE ATROCITY--THE MASS MURDER IN THE GARDELEGEN BARN--THEY RULED THAT THE FRENCH, POLISH, RUSSIAN, HUNGARIAN AND GERMAN VICTIMS WOULD BE BURIED IN INDIVIDUAL GRAVES AND THAT THOSE GRAVES WOULD BECOME A WELL TENDED MEMORIAL CEMETERY.

THEY SAID ONE GARDELEGEN MAN SHOULD BE ASSIGNED TO EACH GRAVE. HE MUST DIG IT AND PROVIDE A DECENT SHROUD FOR THE BODY IN HIS CARE. OTHER TOWNSPEOPLE MUST BUILD CROSSES. THEN EACH MAN MUST CARE FOR THE GRAVE IN THE YEARS TO COME.

WITH THE U.S. 90TH DIVISION, APRIL 21-(AP)-FREEDOM ARRIVED JUST AHEAD OF DEATH FROM STARVATION FOR A NUMBER OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS IN A GERMAN HOSPITAL OVERRUN BY THE 90TH DIVISION.

FORTY-SEVEN AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS, CAPTURED IN THE BELGIAN BREAKTHROUGH LAST DECEMBER, WERE LIBERATED YESTERDAY BY THE 90TH. ALL OF THEM WERE SUFFERING FROM ACUTE MALNUTRITION, OVERWORK AND FREQUENT BEATINGS ADMINISTERED BY THE GERMANS WHO HAD WORKED THEM IN A ROCK QUARRY.

BOLOGNA, ITALY, APRIL 21-(AP)-THIS ANCIENT GATEWAY TO THE PO VALLEY FELL TODAY BEFORE A TRIUMPHANT SURGE OF ALLIED TROOPS, TOUCHING OFF ONE OF THE GREATEST LIBERATION CELEBRATIONS OF THE ENTIRE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN.

ALLIED FORCES TOOK QUICK ADVANTAGE OF THEIR VICTORY AND TONIGHT WERE CHEWING UP THE FLEEING REMNANTS OF TWO GERMAN ARMIES. THE GERMANS MADE ONE ATTEMPT TO STAND OFF THE ALLIES--AT SAN GIOVANNI, SOME EIGHT MILES NORTHWEST OF BOLOGNA--BUT THE TOWN WAS FINALLY SEIZED.

AT LEAST TWO GERMAN DIVISIONS WERE DESTROYED IN THE ALLIED SMASH DURING THE LAST SIX DAYS. ONE DIVISION WAS REPUTED TO BE A PICKED UNIT OF MOUNTAIN TROOPS.

HUNDREDS OF GERMANS CAME STREAMING IN TODAY TO SURRENDER.

A LONE AMERICAN TANK, WITH TWO AMERICAN OFFICERS RIDING ON TOPG CHASED THE LAST GERMAN SELF-PROPELLED GUN FROM THE HIGHWAY BRIDGE GUARDING THE ENTRANCE TO THE CITY AND OPENED THE WAY FOR THE ENTRANCE OF VICTORIOUS AMERICAN, POLISH AND ITALIAN TROOPS.

MARCHI'S TANK SLIPPED DOWN THE MAIN STREET OF THE CITY WITHOUT MEETING ANY OPPOSITION, ROUNDING UP A FEW NON-FIGHTING NAZIS AS IT WENT ALONG. AS THE TANK TURNED A CORNER AND HEADED INTO CATHEDRAL SQUARE, THE AMERICANS HEARD A SUDDEN BURST OF FIRE. THE SHOOTING TURNED OUT TO BE LOCAL PATRIOTS EXECUTING THE DEPUTY CHIEF OF THE FASCIST POLICE AGAINST THE SAME REPRISAL WALL THE GERMANS HAD USED.

WOODBURY SAID THE FIRST THING THE ITALIANS SAID WAS: "IS IT TRUE BERLIN HAS FALLEN? ARE YOU AN AMERICAN? GIVE ME A CIGARETTE."

THE CITIZENS TOSSED TULIPS AND LILIES INTO MILITARY VEHICLES AS THEY PARADED THROUGH THE STREETS. THERE WERE CHEERS, APPLAUSE AND A LOT OF "VINO BIANCHO."

MOST OF THE CITY WAS UNDAMAGED, ALTHOUGH THE SOUTHERN FRINGES HAD BEEN POUNDED TO BITS BY RECENT ARTILLERY AND AIR BOMBARDMENT.

THE MAIN HIGHWAYS LEADING INTO TOWN WERE STREWN FOR SEVERAL MILES WITH WRECKED VEHICLES AND DEAD HORSES. THE GERMANS BLEW UP THE CENTRAL ELECTRICAL PLANT AND THE TELEPHONE EXCHANGE, BUT AN AUXILIARY PLANT PROVIDED LIGHT TONIGHT. THE GAS AND WATER WORKS WERE UNTOUCHED.

THE COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION WAS ALREADY FUNCTIONING AS THE CITY GOVERNMENT WHEN THE ALLIED TROOPS ARRIVED AND HAD ELECTED A MAYOR.

SCATTERED REMNANTS OF THE GERMAN GARRISON WERE PICKED UP TODAY IN VARIOUS PARTS OF THE CITY AND THERE WAS THE USUAL SEARCH FOR MINES WHICH THE GERMANS PLANTED THROUGHOUT THE TOWN, AS IS THEIR UNPLEASANT HABIT.

CIVILIAN REFUGEES LINED THE ROADS, RETURNING TO WHATEVER IS LEFT OF THEIR HOMES, PACKING ALL THEIR BELONGINGS ON THEIR BACKS.

15TH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, ITALY, APRIL 21-(AP)-ENEMY FORCES WERE BEING DRIVEN BACK BY WAVES OF ARMOR AND INFANTRY RACING OVER THE FLAT FARM LANDS OF THE PO VALLEY TODAY AS ALLIED SOLDIERS STREAMED INTO BOLOGNA.

ITALIAN CIVILIANS GREETING FIFTH ARMY SPEARHEADS SAID THE GERMANS WERE WITHOUT VEHICLES, HEAVY WEAPONS AND FOOD. ONE ITALIAN WAR VETERAN SAID:

"THEY HAVE NO TANKS. THEY WALK. THEY BEG FOOD. THEY HAVE ONLY A FEW HORSES LEFT. FOR WEEKS THEY HAVE HAD NO GASOLINE. THEY CANNOT STOP ALL THIS"--AND HE POINTED TOWARD THE STREAMS OF ALLIED VEHICLES POURING INTO THE VALLEY.

AFTER LONG MONTHS OF BATTLING IN THE RUGGED ITALIAN MOUNTAINS THE INFANTRYMEN WHO MOVED OUT INTO THE FLAT COOUNTRY AROUND BOLOGNA HAD VARIED REACTIONS.

ONE SAID, "I DON'T RECKON I KNOW MUCH ABOUT FIGHTING ON A FLAT LAND." ANOTHER SAID, "NO MORE RIDGES, BROTHER." A THIRD DECLARED, "MY GOD! PAVED ROADS."

PVT.ROBERT WHITLOCK, A RIFLE COMPANY AID MAN FROM BALTIMORE SAID: "SO THAT'S THE PO VALLEY. TO HELL WITH IT. I WANT TO SEE BALTIMORE."

STOCKHOLM, SUNDAY, APRIL 22-(AP)-THE GERMAN-CONTROLLED SCANDINAVIAN TELEGRAPH BUREAU [illegible] TODAY THAT BERLIN RESIDENTS WERE FLEEING WESTWARD "BY TENS OF THOUSANDS" IN AN EFFORT TO ESCAPE THE HEAVY RUSSIAN ARTILLERY BARRAGE SWEEPING THE CITY FROM THE EAST.

TRANSPORT MEANS ARE LIMITED AND THE ELEVATED RAILWAY STATIONS ARE JAMMED, THE AGENCY SAID.

"WHEN A TRAIN ARRIVED THERE WAS PANIC," IT RELATED. "BERLINERS FOUGHT WITH ONE ANOTHER IN ORDER TO BOARD THE CARS HEADED WEST. IN SUBURBAN STATIONS EYEWITNESS REPORTS SEEM ALMOST TOO TERRIBLE. IT IS ENOUGH TO SAY THAT PEOPLE TOOK NO REGARD EVEN FOR SERIOUSLY-WOUNDED SOLDIERS. SOME EVEN WERE THROWN OUT OF CARS BY THE PANIC-STRICKEN."

STOCKHOLM, April 21 (ap)---Berlin lay sunk in a deathly dreamless sleep when I drove carefully out through the ## iron gates before my half-burned house. "THAT WAS OUR DICTATOR, MMMM FRITZ CLAUSEN (FORMER NAZI LEADER IN DENMARK). WHAT DOES HE DO? ABSOLUTELY NOTHING. BUT HE NEEDS A GERMAN ESCORT."

IN SOUTH JUTLAND THE GERMANS ABEMMMM WERE PREPARING TO DEFEND THE DANISH FORTRESS LINE HADERSLEV-RIBE. IT WAS FORTIFIED WITH TANK BLOCKS SIMILAR TO THOSE EMPLOYED IN THE SIEGFRIED LINE, AND ITS AIRFIELDS HAD BEEN PUT IN ORDER. THE GERMAN COMMANDER HAD ESTABLISHED HEADQUARTERS IN STRONGLY-GUARDED GRAM CASTLE.

THE DANES, WITH A CHARMING IMPUDENCE AND SMILES, HAVE BEEN MAKING LIFE MISERABLE FOR THE GERMAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION.

NOT A DAY OR NIGHT PASSES WITHOUT SOME DARING COUP TO MAKE TROUBLE FOR THE NAZIS, MMMMMMMMMMMMMMMM A RAILWAY LINE IS BLOWN UP, THE TELEPHONES LINES CUT, HOSTAGES MYSTERIOUSLY FREED--ALWAYS SOMETHING.

THE DANES WORK FEVERISHLY ON THESE COUPS, FERVENTLY AND FEVERISHLY LONGING FOR OPPORTUNITY TO PARTICIPATE IN THE LAST SETTLEMENT WITH THE SS TROOPS, THE GESTAPO AND OTHER GERMANS THEY CALL KNAVES.

THEIR FREEDOM MOVEMENT HAS WIND IN ITS SAILS. IN ONE CITY THE PATRIOT TOLD ME 200,000 DANES ARE ARMED, READY TO STRIKE WHEN THEY MMMM MAY. THEY BELIEVE CONFIDENTLY ALLIED AIRBORNE FORCES WILL LAND IN DENMARK THE MOMENT THE GROUND FORCES BREAK THROUGH THE DANISH BOTTLENECK FROM GERMANY.

THERE IS STRONG REASON TO SUPPOSE THAT CIVIL WAR WILL BREAK OUT AMONG THE GERMANS THEMSELVES WHEN THAT TIME ARRIVES. LARGE GROUPS OF THEM WILL WANT TO LAY DOWN THEIR ARMS WHEN CENTRAL GERMANY COLLAPSES, AND THEY PROBABLY WILL COME IN CONFLICT WITH THOSE WHO WANT TO CONTINUE THE FIGHT.

APR 22 1945

EVEN NOW IN COPENHAGEN THE NIGHTS ARE MARKED WITH STREET FIGHTING AND GUERILLA FIGHTING IN THE PARKS. THE GERMANS NEVER SPARE AMMUNITION WHEN THIS HAPPENS--OR AT OTHER TIMES--AND BEHAVE MMMMMMMM INSOLENTLY.

MOSCOW, APRIL 21-(AP)-THE PUBLICATION "WAR AND THE WORKING CLASS" TODAY EXPRESSED ANXIETY OVER CHINA'S POLITICAL FUTURE, SAYING "ONE THING IS OBVIOUS--WITHOUT CARRYING OUT AN IMMEDIATE DEMOCRATIZATION OF HER POLITICAL LIFE AND CREATING NATIONAL UNITY, CHINA WILL NOT BE ABLE TO OCCUPY THE PLACE IN THE DEMOCRACY OF NATIONS TO WHICH SHE IS ENTITLED."

IN A LENGTHY DISCUSSION ENTITLED "WHITHER GOES CHINA," VIKTOR AVARIN, THE WRITER, HAD THESE CRITICISMS TO MAKE:

1. "MANY KOUMINTANG GENERALS HAVE GONE OVER TO THE IMPERIALISTIC JAPANESE. OUT OF A HALF MILLION KOUMINTANG ARMY WHICH WAS IN THE REAR OF THE JAPANESE AT THE FIRST OF THE WAR, BY 1944 ALMOST NOTHING WAS LEFT."
2. "INFORMATION HAS BEEN RECEIVED FROM CHINA REVEALING THAT GENERALS IN CUTOFF TERRITORY ALREADY HAD COMMENCED WORKING FOR THE JAPANESE."
3. HE CONTENDED THE ARMY OF FORMER WAR MINISTER HO IN TSIN CONTAINS MANY UNITS WHICH ARE "A DEAD WEIGHT ON THE NECK OF THE CHINESE PEOPLE," HAS COSTALY AND UNNECESSARY BUREAUS, AND THAT "IT IS VERY POSSIBLE" MANY DEAD MEN'S NAMES ARE CARRIED AS MEMBERS OF THE ARMY SO THE GENERALS CAN DRAW THEIR PAY AND FOOD AND EQUIPMENT ALLOWANCES.

"REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BROAD MASSES OF THE PEOPLE AND THE DEMOCRATIC PRESS STILL SUFFER PERSECUTION," HE WROTE. "IN DISTRICTS WHERE POWER IS IN THE HANDS OF THE KOUMINTANG, ANTI-JAPANESE DEMOCRATIC FIGHTERS ARE JAILED. ONLY ONE PARTY IS LEGAL--THE KOUMINTANG. PLANES AND SHIPS' ACKACK GUNS OF THIS TASK FORCE HAVE DESTROYED 1,684 JAPANESE PLANES IN THE LAST 31 DAYS-MORE THAN NIPPON'S INDUSTRY IS CREDITED WITH PRODUCING IN A SIMILAR PERIOD.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN THE PLANES DESTROYED, IS THE LOSS OF ENEMY PILOTS IN 1,035 PLANES SHOT OUT OF THE AIR. MANY NIPPONESE PLANES DOWNED RECENTLY WERE FLOWN BY PILOTS WITH OBVIOUSLY ONLY RUDIMENTARY TRAINING.

ENEMY BOMBERS, FIGHTERS AND TORPEDO PLANES, SOME ON SUICIDE MISSIONS, WERE SENT FLAMING INTO THE SEA, CRASHING ONTO ISLANDS OR CAUGHT HELPLESS ON THE GROUND IN RAIDS ON JAPANESE AIRFIELDS SINCE MARCH 18.

CARRIER FIGHTERS, RANGING FAR FRTM THE TASK FORCE TO INTERCEPT DESPERATE ENEMY AIR ATTACK, IN THE LAST TWO WEEKS ACCOUNTED FOR THE GREATER PART OF THE HUGE TOTAL. THEY WERE CREDITED WITH ALL BUT ABOUT A DOZEN OF 217 ENEMY BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN YESTERDAY AND TODAY.

OTHERS WERE KNOCKED OUT OF THE AIR BY SHIPS' GUNS WHEN THEY SOUGHT TO ATTACK THE FLEET OPERATING OFF OKINAWA. SOME OBVIOUSLY FLEW WITH SUICIDAL INTENT, PARTICULARLY ONE WHICH DIVED FOR A SHIP FROM A HIGH ALTITUDE. HOLDING A TRUE COURSE DESPITE THE FLAMES FLYING FROM ITS TAIL, THE PLANE SPED CLOSE TO THE VESSEL BEFORE IT WAS FORCED INTO THE SEA BY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE.

THAT PLANE FLAMED IN THE WATER AT LEAST 15 MINUTES. THE SIZE OF THE FIRE INDICATED THE BOMBER CARRIED A LARGE LOAD OF INCENDIARY MATERIALS.

THE MONTH'S TOTAL OF JAPANESE PLANES ACCOUNTED FOR BY MITSCHER'S CARRIER FORCE FLIERS INCLUDED 649 DEFINITELY DESTROYED ON THE GROUND IN CRIPPLING RAIDS ON AIRFIELDS ON KYUSHU, SOUTHERN-MOST JAPANESE HOME ISLAND, WHERE MUCH OF THE ENEMY'S PILOT TRAINING ACTIVITIES ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN CENTERED.

WITH THE 24TH DIVISION, MINDANAO, APRIL 19-(DELAYED)-(AP)-CHRISTIAN-HATING MOROS WHO BITTERLY FOUGHT AMERICANS IN 1900, ARE NOW ASSISTING YANKS BATTLING THE JAPANESE, AGAINST WHOM THE MOROS HAVE DECLARED WAR.

COL.ROBERT V. BOWLER, A GUERRILLA LEADER, REPORTED THIS DEVELOPMENT AS "NOT DUE TO ANY GREAT LOVE OF THE MOROS FOR THE AMERICANS, BUT THEY ARE GREATLY IMPRESSED BY OUR POWER."

THE JAPANESE SHOWED FEAR OF MORO TRIBESMEN AT THE OUTSET OF THE WAR, BOWLER RELATED. AS A RESULT, JAPANESE PROPAGANDA AFFECTED VERY FEW MOROS.

EFFORTS ALSO WERE MADE BY THE JAPANESE TO EXPLOIT THE MOHAMMEDAN RELIGION.

BOWLER HEARD AT HIS GUERRILLA HEADQUARTERS THE MOROS, WHO CONSIDER THEMSELVES A SEPARATE NATION, HAD DECLARED WAR ON JAPAN.

FOUR GERRILLA DIVISIONS WERE COMMANDED BY BOWLER ON WESTERN MINDANAO, INCLUDING ONE WHICH CONTAINED 7,000 MOROS. THIS, HOWEVER, DID NOT CHANGE THE TIME-HONORED PICTURE ON MINDANAO, AND ONE GUERRILLA DUTY WAS TO PROTECT CHRISTIAN FILIPINOS FROM OCCASIONAL MORO ATTACKS FROM WITHOUT THE RANKS.

JAPANESE VENTURED INTO MORO TERRITORY--MAINLY AROUND LAKE LANAO AND FARTHER SOUTHWARD IN COTABATO PROVINCE--ONLY WITH WELL-ARMED EXPEDITIONS.

"MANY FILIPINOS WERE KILLED FOR PROTECTING ME AND THE JAPANESE EVENTUALLY BURNED EVERY HOUSE IN WHICH I LIVED. I OWE THE FILIPINOS A DEBT I NEVER CAN REPAY," SAID BOWLER, WHO CAME TO MINDANAO EARLY IN 1942. ALTHOUGH HE HASN'T SEEN HIS WIFE, LILLIAN, AND THEIR SEVEN-YEAR-OLD SON, STUART, FOR NEARLY FOUR YEARS, BOWLER SAID HE PLANS TO REMAIN IN THE PHILIPPINES AS LONG AS HIS SPECIAL KNOWLEDGE IS NEEDED.

GUERRILLAS UNDER BOWLER CLEARED LANAO PROVINCE, THUS PROTECTING THE LEFT FLANK OF THE CURRENT AMERICAN DRIVE ON MINDANAO, AND CONTROL MANY SECTIONS IN OTHER WESTERN PROVINCES.

BOWLER WAS TWICE WOUNDED AND WEATHERED MANY ILLNESSES BUT NOW SHOWS NO ILL EFFECTS. AFTER CAPITULATION OF AMERICAN TROOPS EARLY IN THE WAR, HE EVADED CAPTURE WITH MAJ. WILLIAM L.F. MCLAUGHLIN OF KEYSPORT, PENNA., WHO WAS THEN A CORPORAL IN THE 31ST INFANTRY. LATER THEY JOINED THE GUERRILLAS, WITH WHOM MCLAUGHLIN IS NOW SERVING. BOWLER IS ASSIGNED TO ASSIST IN ORGANIZING A PHILIPPINE ARMY ON THIS ISLAND.

IN TAKING THE SMALL CRAG THE BATTALION HAD TO SEAL OFF 27 CAVES CONTAINING JAPANESE. AT LEAST 25 PILLBOXES WERE NEUTRALIZED.

JAPANESE ARTILLERY IS COMPARATIVELY QUIET ALONG THIS SECTOR, BUT THE ENEMY'S LIGHTER WEAPONS ARE ACTIVE WITH MORTAR FIRE SHOWERING THE ENTIRE FRONT. ONE YANK COMPANY SUSTAINED MORE THAN 20 CASUALTIES LAST NIGHT, EVEN THOUGH THE MEN WERE DUG IN.

AMPHIBIAN TANKS FURNISHED TERRIFIC HOWITZER FIRE SUPPORT TO THE SEVENTH DIVISION IN YESTERDAY'S PUSHOFF.

CAPT.LAWRENCE HOCKADAY, ST.LOUIS,MO., AMTANK OPERATIONS OFFICER, SAID THE GUNNERS "THREW EVERYTHING BUT THE GUN TUBES" AT THE JAPANESE.

BY JAMES LINDSLEY
WITH 27TH DIVISION AT THE FRONT, OKINAWA, APRIL 18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THROUGH EDDYING SHELL SMOKE, A SOLDIER WITH A FULL PACK, HIS RIFLE AT READY, LEFT THE SHELTER OF A STONE HUT, DASHED ACROSS A 50-YARD OPEN SPACE AND CLAMBERED ONTO A 20-INCH PIPELINE SPANNING MACHINATO INLATE.
AS HE REACHED THE OTHER END AND THREW HIMSELF INTO COVERING TREES, A SECOND SOLDIER FOLLOWED. THEY WERE MEMBERS OF A COMPANY OF INFANTRY WHICH, AFTER NINE DAYS OF LULL IN THE OKINAWA FIGHTING, HAD BEEN GIVEN A MISSION. THEY HOPED TO CLEAR THE WAY FOR A CONCERTED PUSH SOUTHWARD.
THE INLET, FLOODED AT HIGH TIDE AND AN UNSTABLE MASS OF MUD AT LOW, BARRED THE WAY SOUTHWARD FOR ELEMENTS ON THE RIGHT FLANK (THE WESTERN COAST, NORTH OF NAHA CITY.)
A BRIDGE AND RAILROAD TRESTLE HAD BEEN BLOWN BY THE ENEMY, SO THE NARROW PIPELINE WAS THE ONLY WAY FOR THE COMPANY TO CROSS.
I WATCHED THE CROSSING FROM UCHITOMARI RIDGE, ABOUT 250 YARDS FROM THE JAPANESE LINES. THE COMPANY'S FIRST JOB WAS TO CROSS THE INLET AND SECURE THE RIDGE TO THE SOUTHWARD FROM WHICH THE ENEMY WAS WATCHING AMERICAN MOVEMENTS. THEN IT WAS TO MOVE WEST AND TAKE THE VILLAGE OF MACHINATO, AN OBSERVATION POINT FOR JAPANESE CONTAINING MORTAR EMPLACEMENTS FROM WHICH THEY HAD BEEN HARASSING

YANKS.
LT. FREDERICK FOTHENBERG, WASHINGTON, PA., PLATOON LEADER, WAS THE FIRST MAN ACROSS THE PIPELINE. THEN CAME LT. CLARENCE STOECKLEY, FORT WAYNE, IND., COMMANDING THE MISSION.
IN HALF AN HOUR WE WATCHED ABOUT 50 MEN CROSS THE PIPELINE. THEN COVERING SMOKE FROM U.S. BATTERIES WAS BLOWN THICKLY ACROSS THE AREA BY A LATE AFTERNOON BREEZE AND WE COULD SEE NO MORE.
WHILE WE WATCHED, NOT ONE MAN WAS KNOCKED FROM THE SPAN. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO SAY WHETHER THE JAPANESE WERE FIRING ON THEM, AS THUNDER OF AMERICAN GUNS WOULD HAVE MADE ENEMY MORTARS AND ARTILLERY INDISTINGUISHABLE. EXPERTS SAID PERHAPS THE JAPANESE WERE TAKEN COMPLETELY BY SURPRISE AS THE ENTIRE AREA WAS UNDER FULL VIEW OF THE ENEMY FROM HIGH POINTS TO THE SOUTH, EAST AND WEST.
THE OPERATION ALSO WAS WATCHED FROM A RIDGE BY THE BATTALION COMMANDER, LT. COL. ALMERIN (CORRECT) C. O'HARA, HUDSON, N.Y., INSURANCE BROKER, AND BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM B. BRADFORD, NEW YORK CITY, ASSISTANT DIVISION COMMANDER.

MINDANAO ISLAND, PHILIPPINES, APRIL 21-(AP)-JAPAN'S INVADING TROOPS NEVER DID DEFEAT THE AMERICANS AND FILIPINOS DEFENDING THIS SECOND LARGEST ISLAND OF THE PHILIPPINES.
THIS WAS DISCLOSED TODAY BY CTL. ROBERT V.BOWLER OF BELLINGHAM, WASH., NOW A GUERRILLA LEADER.
FOR FOUR MONTHS IN 1941 AND 1942, HE REPORTED, THE DEFENDERS OF THE BIG ISLAND FOUGHT THE JAPANESE TO A STANDSTILL. THEY SURRENDERED FINALLY, UNDER THE TERMS IMPOSED BY THE JAPANESE ON LT. GEN. JONATHAN M.WAINWRIGHT AT CORREGIDOR, ONLY TO SAVE LIVES OF AMERICANS AND FILIPINOS IN JAPANESE HANDS.
THE JAPANESE LANDED IN FORCE AT DAVAO, PRESENT GOAL OF AN AMERICAN DRIVE IN SOUTHEASTERN MINDANAO, DEC. 20, 1941, AND HEADED SOUTHWARD ALONG THE COASTAL HIGHWAY OF DAVAO GULF. THEY TURNED INLAND BUT WERE STOPPED SHORT AFTER ADVANCING SIX MILES ON JUNGLE-HEMMED HIGHWAY NO.1.
BOWLER, THEN A MAJOR, WAS ONE OF THE AMERICAN OFFICERS LEADING THE 121ST AND 123RD FILIPINO INFANTRY REGIMENTS.
THESE UNITS AND OTHERS HELD BACK THE SUPERIOR JAPANESE FORCE UNTIL APRIL 24, 1942, WHEN THE NIPPONESE THREATENED THEIR REAR BY LANDING AT COTABATO.
"AFTER THE JAPANESE LANDED AT COTABATO," SAID BOWLER, "WE PULLED NORTHWARD TOWARD CAGAYAN. AT THE TIME OF THE SURRENDER, WE STILL HAD ABOUT FOUR DIVISIONS IN GOOD FIGHTING CONDITION."
BOWLER SAID THAT JAPANESE LT.GEN.MASAHARU HOMMA, TO WHOM WAINWRIGHT WAS FORCED TO SURRENDER AT CORREGIDOR, THREATENED TO SLAUGHTER THE HELPLESS CORREGIDOR GARRISON AND FILIPINO CIVILIANS UNLESS SURRENDER TERMS COVERED ALL THE PHILIPPINES.
"I SAW HEADQUARTERS DISPATCHES," BOWLER SAID, "WHICH LIMITED WAINWRIGHT'S AUTHORITY TO BATAAN AND CORREGIDOR AND GAVE SEPARATE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE VISAYANS AND MINDANAO TO MAJ.WILLIAM F.SHARP. HOMMA MADE GOOD HIS PLEDGE BY BEGINNING THE SLAUGHTER OF FILIPINOS. SHARP DECIDED TO CAPITULATE IN ORDER TO AVOID FURTHER BLOODSHED AND THAT'S WHY WE QUIT WHEN WE WERE STILL ABLE TO FIGHT."
BOWLER, WHO BECAME A GUERRILLA LEADER AFTER THE SURRENDER, HAS BEEN ASSIGNED TO HELP ORGANIZE THE NEW PHILIPPINE ARMY.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 21-(AP)-APPOINTMENT OF A NEW HIGH COMMISSIONER TO THE PHILIPPINES MAY BE DELAYED INDEFINITELY BY AN APPARENT INABILITY TO RECONCILE STATE, WAR AND INTERIOR DEPARTMENT DIFFERENCES.

AN OFFICIAL WHO IS IN POSITION TO KNOW BUT WHO DOESN'T WANT TO BE QUOTED BY NAME SAID THIS ISTHE PICTURE:

1. INTERIOR SECRETARY ICKES WANTS A HIGH COMMISSIONER SENT TO THE ISLANDS TO STUDY ECONOMIC CONDITIONS AND MAKE REPORTS ON WHICH TRADE PREFERENCES FOR THE COMMONWEALTH WOULD BE BASED.

2. THE STATE DEPARTMENT WANTS ASSURANCE THAT ONE OF ITS MEN WILL BE NAMED HIGH COMMISSIONER AND BECOME AMERICAN AMBASSADOR AT MANILA WHEN THE PHILIPPINES ATTAIN INDEPENDENCE.

E. THE WAR DEPARTMENT DOES NOT FAVOR THE NAMING OF A HIGH COMMISSIONER, A VIEW REPORTEDLY HELD BY GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR. THE OPINION HAS BEEN EXPRESSED BY MANY OFFICIALS HERE THAT MACARTHUR WOULD BE RECEPTIVE TO A POSTWAR OFFER OF AMBASSADOR TO THE ISLANDS HE IS NOW LIBERATING FROM THE JAPANESE.

MEANWHILE, PRESIDENT SERGIO OSMENA SAID IN AN INTERVIEW YESTERDAY THAT HE WILL CONFER WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN SOON. HE SAID IT "IS TOO EARLY TO TELL" WHAT THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S ATTITUDE WILL BE ON THE TRADE ASPECTS OF THE INDEPENDENCE QUESTION. HE ADDED THAT HE BELIEVED IT WOULD FOLLOW THE LINE OF THE LATE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S EXPRESSED HOPE THATTHE UNITED STATES WOULD GIVE THE COMMONWEALTH ALL POSSIBLE AID.

OSMENA SAID ONE OF THE BIG UNSETTLED QUESTIONS IS WHETHER THE GREAT PHILIPPINE SUGAR INDUSTRY--ALMOST DESTROYED BY THE JAPANESE--WILL BE REBUILT. THE INDUSTRY'S FUTURE APPARENTLY DEPENDS UPON THE EXTENT OF U.S. AID IN THE FORM OF TRADE CONCESSIONS. SOME BUSINESS INTERESTS, OSMENA SAID, HAVE EXPRESSED THE VIEW THAT IF ONLY SHORT TERM AID IS TO BE GIVEN THE ISLANDS, IT WOULD NOT BE PRACTICAL TO INVEST HEAVILY IN PHILIPPINE INDUSTRY.

ON THE OTHER HAND, THERE IS EXPECTED TO BE SHARP OPPOSITION BY U.S. SUGAR INTERESTS TO ANY EXTENDED TRADE FAVORS FOR THE PHILIPPINE SUGAR INDUSTRY.

THE ISLANDS, OSMENA DISCLOSED, WILL ASK THAT THERE BE NO REDUCTION IN THE PREWAR QUOTAS ON SUGAR EXPORTED FROM THE ISLANDS TO THE UNITED STATES--850,000 LONG TONS ANNUALLY.

18 INNER DISTRICTS AND 3 OUTER SUBURBS TAKEN; NAZIS LOSE 8,000 DEAD

3,000,000 Packed In Underground Shelters; Tanks And Infantry In City's Center; 23,000 Are Made Prisoners

WHEELER APR 23 1945

London, Monday, April 23 (AP)—Red Army shock troops were reported fighting in the heart of Berlin today against fanatical Nazis who lost at least 8,000 dead Sunday in a desolating block-by-block defense of the German capital.

Twenty-one of the city's districts, comprising one sixth of its area, already were in Russian hands, the Soviet communiqué said Sunday night and an early morning Moscow official bulletin said the fighting was "raging day and night without dying down a single moment."

Russians were back in Berlin for the first time since they occupied the city in 1760 during the Seven Years' War.

Civilians Packed Underground

The Germans themselves said, through the Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau which they control, that Russian tanks and infantry reached the center of Berlin Sunday, and related a frank tale of the horror of 3,000,000 civilians packed so closely in underground shelters that they could not sit down and dared not go outside even momentarily while the tremendous and destructive battle raged over their heads.

NIGHT

The Soviet communiqué, more conservative than the German accounts, said, nevertheless, that eighteen of Berlin's inner districts and three outer suburbs had been taken and that fighting now was in progress in the area of the Berlin belt railway after the crushing of suburban resistance centered around streetcar stations.

Berlin Radio Is Silent

The Berlin radio was silent, and the huddling millions in the shelters followed the course of the battle from wall maps. These showed, the Germans themselves said, that by Sunday morning the Russians were within a mile of the famous intersection of Unter den Linden and the Friedrichstrasse.

As whole acres of the once-proud center of Adolf Hitler's Third Reich were churned into a smoldering tangle of wreckage, Russian troops, by Moscow's account, were within 34 miles of a juncture with American troops. But reports from Allied headquarters indicated 20 miles or less separated the western and eastern Allies.

23,000 Germans Captured

Begrimed, dust-laden, Russian fighters, who have fought their way from Moscow and Stalingrad, swarmed through Berlin's streets as 23,000 Nazi soldiers gave up one of history's greatest struggles and were roped into Red Army prisoner cages during five days.

By Moscow's account since the great offensive began a week ago more than 945 Nazi tanks have been destroyed or captured and 780 of the Luftwaffe's last planes have been shot down or seized.

APR 23 1945

Smashing forward under a hail of fire from the heaviest concentration of artillery employed in this war, the Soviet wall of steel swept into Berlin's northern and eastern districts on a twisting 30-mile front from the northwestern district of Glienicke to Wilhelmshagen and Friedrichshagen on the east, Moscow revealed.

Reds Push Beyond Potsdam

While the Soviets pushed as much as 7 miles inside the city by Moscow's official reports, a dispatch from the blazing capital to the Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau said the escape gap to the west had been narrowed to 9 miles.

There was no confirmation from the Soviet high command or from Berlin's radio transmitters, but the dispatch said Russians had swept beyond the southwestern suburb of Potsdam and that "it is not impossible that the capital will be entirely encircled within the next 24 hours.

The center of the three quarters encircled capital was outflanked by the capture of Iluebars, Blankenfelde and Rosenthal, taken in a 7-mile sweep into the city in a 12-mile advance from Bernau, Moscow revealed.

Big Machine-Gun Fight

At Rosenthal, Premier Stalin's tankmen were 5½ miles north of the burning city center. The STB's Berlin correspondent, Edward Sandberg, relaying this dispatch through Copenhagen, said Russian tank-riding tommygunners had pushed down through the city to its built-up center.

In an effort to bring about capture of the city for the second time in the history of Russian arms, Russians were said to have lunged down through debris-littered Reinickendorf and Wedding, two populous workers' districts, to Stettiner station.

A machine-gun battle was reported raging in the depot area at sunrise yesterday and the report, if true, meant the Russians were only two blocks from Orianenburg, Tor, one of the ancient gates of the old city, and were a mile from Unter Den Linden.

Wave Of Tanks Used

The Soviet communiqué said that the Red Army shock troops, lunging 4 miles inside the city limits in a 10-mile surge on the north, captured industrial, left-wing Weissensee, 4 miles from the center of the city.

Other Moscow reports said that from Weissensee a wave of tanks was sweeping down Greitswalder Strasse, sweeping before it German armored units, self-propelled guns and anti-tank battalions. They were moving toward Alexander Platz, the reports said.

From captured Hohenschoenhausen and near-by Marzahn in northeastern Berlin, other assault groups were battling along Landsberger Chaussee and were within 3 miles of Schlesischer rail depot by Moscow's account.

Fight For Industrial Area

On the east, the Russians plunged into Biesdorf and, according to the German high command, were fighting forward into the great industrial district of Lichtenberg, 4 miles from the center of the capital. Other troops poured into the city near captured Erkner, avoided Gross Mueggel See and took Friedrichhagen in a sweep through Schoenicke .

Meanwhile, south of Berlin, Red Army tanks pounded across the heavily wooded plains of Brandenburg along a 104-mile front, gaining up to 21 miles in their greatest advance that carried them into the strategic rail and road center of Elsterwalde, 27 miles northwest of the outflanked Saxon capital of Dresden.

Allied and Berlin reports indicated all escape routes from Berlin to the Nazis' Bavarian redoubt had been securely severed.

Northeast of Dresden, Red Army men advanced 10 miles and captured Bischofswerda, 16 miles from the city threatened by a powerful 43-mile Soviet arc of steel.

Resistance Fanatical

Below Berlin, other heard-hitting spearheads captured Luebbenau, 35 miles southeast, and Dahme, 35 miles south. There still was no confirmation from the Soviet high command of German reports that the Russians had swept 31 miles beyond to Beelitz on Berlin's southwestern approaches.

Neither did the Russians confirm German high command statements that fighting was raging for Koenigswusterhausen, 3 miles southeast of Berlin. The STB agency in Stockholm reported that the Russians had swept into Berlin from the south and had reached Neukoelln and were approaching Templehof airdrome.

Moscow reports told of fanatical resistance in the strets of Berlin and the Soviet communiqués said fighting raged night and day without a letup as the Germans threw all manner of forces and weapons into the historic struggle. Not since 1806 has Berlin been entered. At that time, Napoleon swept in from the west. In 1760 Russian Cossacks sacked Berlin after driving out the forces of Frederick the Great.

Reds Gain New Vienna

Meanwhile, north of Vienna, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army drove to within 3 miles south of the important rail center of Laa by capturing Altenmarkt, and swept 5 miles northeast of the transit hub in a lunge to Wildenduernbach. Malinovsky's troops were advancing on a 28-mile front.

In northern Yugoslavia, large, organized forces of Marshal Tito's Army of liberation continued their drive westward in the valley between the Drava and Sava rivers. Gaining 18 miles, they hammered to within 75 miles east of the Croatian capital of Zagreb, and captured t o important rail towns of Brod and Pozega.

Roar of American, Soviet Guns Blends on Front Before Berlin

APR 23 1945

PARIS, Monday, April 23—(AP) The thunder of U. S. and Russian guns 15 to 20 miles apart blended into a single victorious roar on the Berlin front Sunday as south-bound Allied armies hurdled the Danube and reached Lake Constance, 37 miles from Hitler's last stand in the Alps.

Besides reaching the big lake that forms the western bulwark of Hitler's redoubt, the French seized Stuttgart—most important industrial city of south Germany with a population of 456,000 and sealed off thousands of Germans in the Black Forest by ramming to the Swiss frontier.

Seize Danube Bridge

Tanks of the U. S. Seventh army in a 30-mile dash seized a bridge and sped across the Danube less than 10 miles from a superhighway leading 50 miles east to Munich, birthplace of Hitler's Nazi movement.

The U. S. Third army on the east drove 11 miles on southeast in its envelopment of Czechoslovakia within about 185 miles of the Russians fighting up through Austria.

While these trip-hammer blows fell in the south, the world awaited the electrifying news that the Allies of the east and west had met in the heart of Germany.

A field dispatch from the U. S. First army front, where patrols pushing across the Mulde river east of Leipzig ran into resistance, said the Russians in that area were 25 miles from the American lines. (BBC, heard by NBC, put the distance at less than 10 miles on the basis of reports from its field correspondents.)

Yanks Hear Red Leaders

As on the U. S. Ninth army front before Berlin, the Americans could hear Red army commanders issuing instructions via field radios.

An American pilot back from reconnaissance in an artillery spotter 15 miles east of the First army lines said he saw German villages ablaze from Red army artillery and Russian columns were spotted.

Correspondents on the Ninth army front were hurriedly assembled and told that news of the junction would come in the form of a "United Nations" announcement, probably simultaneously from Washington, London and Moscow—one more indication that the historic hour was near.

For the first time it was disclosed that Allied air forces had a definite bomb line stretching an undisclosed distance in front of the Russian armies to prevent any chance of accidental bombing.

Adolf Hitler himself indirectly admitted that his armies of the west now stood beaten and incapable of more than guerrilla warfare.

Hitler's great redoubt in the Alps of Bavaria and Austria was in the direct peril as three Allied armies pounded on south.

French First Army troops in a 15-mile dash reached Stockach and Ludwigshafen, on the shores of Lake Constance 12 miles northwest of the famous restort of Constance, where the families of many high Nazis were reported holed up from the gathering Allied storm.

(Radio Atlantik said the Germans had declared Constance an open city—the first time this had been done anywhere in the war-torn Reich.)

There the French were 37 miles from the frontier of Austria at the western end of Hitler's redoubt.

French Reach Swiss Frontier

The French reached the Swiss frontier 20 miles west of Lake Constance, turning the Black Forest — where once the enemy hoped to hold out against the Allies—into a 1,000-square mile trap of death for units of the German 19th army.

Forty miles northwest of these positions, other French forces from the Rhine began hammering against the west side of the pocket and pushed into Freiburg, population 91,000 and chief marketing center of the Black Forest.

The U. S. Seventh army broke across the Danube by seizing a bridge intact at Dillingen, only 53 miles northwest of the Nazi party's birthplace of Munich and itself a citadel within the redoubt.

Other French troops pounding southward farther east were only 45 miles from the eastern end of Lake Constance, the beginning of the redoubt itself, after driving into Sigmaringen, where the Vichy government set up business after the fall of France.

A Swiss dispatch said panic swept through Germans holed up around Lake Constance in their supposedly impregnable retreat as the French pounded nearer.

The French also captured a considerable part of Stuttgart, capital of Wuerttemberg province with a pre-war population of 459,000 and the most important industrial city of southern Germany.

(The French press agency said both Stuttgart and Sigmaringen were captured, the Federal Communications commission reported.)

MOLOTOV CONFERS WITH STETTINIUS AND BRITISH CHIEF

Eden at Parley That Follows Call by Soviet Envoy on Truman.

ARRIVES BY AIR

Agreement on Polish Issue Sought Before San Francisco Conference Opens.

APR 23 1945

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) Urgent conferences of the Big Three foreign ministers started at the State department tonight, less than four hours after the arrival of Russian Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov by air from Moscow. Molotov made a call on President Truman just after 8:30 p.m. (EWT). Then, with Secretary of State Stettinius who had accompanied him to see the Chief Executive at the Blair House, he moved across the street to the State department. There the two were met by Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary.

NIGHT

While a call on the Chief Executive was required protocol and a Sunday night visit not unprecedented, the Sunday formalities and the speed of the program just after a long and tiring trip emphasized the urgency of the Soviet official's business.

Enroute To Conference

Molotov is enroute to the San Francisco United Nations conference opening Wednesday and there are pressing Russian-British-American problems to be settled before then, particularly on Poland.

The Truman-Molotov meeting was arranged as a next-door neighbor affair. Molotov was assigned quarters in the adjoining Blair-Lee House. The two residences, across the street from the State department, are maintained for visiting government dignitaries.

Secretary of State Stettinius was called on to make the introduction, accompanying Molotov on the short walk to see Mr. Truman. Molotov visited the United States in 1942, but during most of his stay he was incognito, and the State department had no record that he had met Mr. Truman, then a senator.

The speedy arrangement of the meeting with Mr. Truman underscored the importance of pending Big Three conferences preliminary to the United Nations meeting.

After meeting the Russian party at the airport, Stettinius rode with Molotov to the Blair-Lee House. He emerged a few minutes later and went next door, presumably to talk to the President.

In addition to Stettinius and other American officials, the welcoming party at the airport included Russian Ambassador Andrei Gromyko and Mrs. Gromyko, with ranking members of the Embassy staff, and Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, British ambassador to Moscow.

Sir Archibald and W. Averell Harriman, U. S. ambassador to Russia who also was in the greeting party, flew here ahead of Molotov for the Big Three conferences.

Others in the American group were James Dunn, Assistant Secretary of State assigned to European affairs; Charles Bohlen, State department Eastern European specialist; and officials of the department's Russian desk.

Military ceremonies customary in greeting a foreign guest of Molotov's rank were omitted on account of the period of mourning proclaimed for the death of President Roosevelt.

There was only a brief session of handshaking after Molotov stepped from the giant C-54 plane.

Then Molotov walked with Stettinius to a waiting limousine and they drove quickly to the Blair-Lee House.

Molotov's arrival climaxed a week of mounting diplomatic tension over the Polish issue, heightened by the approaching end of the war in Europe and announcement of a 20-year friendship treaty between Russia and the Moscow-sponsored Warsaw regime which Britain and the United States have declined to accept without dilution.

Russia has twice requested that the Warsaw provisional government be represented at San Francisco. Britain and this country have turned the demand down, insisting that only a broader Polish government, including elements outside Poland, could fulfill the plans for Poland which the Big Three agreed upon at Yalta.

Eden conferred for more than an hour yesterday with Stettinius and said they had reached complete agreement on all points discussed.

Polish Issue Foremost

As the Polish issue is the most immediate one in the way of Big Three accord, it was asserted that it entered into this two-way discussion which had been planned to include Molotov had he arrived in time.

The Warsaw-Moscow treaty was considered to have emphasized Russian determination to have nothing to do with the Polish government-in-exile in London which is still recognized by both Britain and America.

Opinions in Washington ranged from the pessimistic view that the seeming impasse was extremely serious, to the more optimistic speculation that Soviet Russia, bent on insuring her own security first, had merely accumulated another bargaining point by concluding the pact with Warsaw.

Nazis Throwing Everything Into Berlin Battle

APR 23 1945

'Halt Reds at Any Price' Is Order, With Artillery, Tanks, Planes in Action

MOSCOW, April 22 (AP).—Front dispatches from Berlin told of fanatical German resistance today in the stree. leading to the heart of the German capital, with the Nazis throwing in all kinds of forces. These included soldiers and officers who had returned to Berlin from the fighting on the eastern front.

"The foe has concentrated an enormous amount of artillery," the newspaper "Izvestia" reported. "He has brought up tanks and aviation and selected defense units armed with tank-destroying weapons."

The Russians said they had intercepted an order issued by the Germans which said, "Halt them at any price!"

The vanguard of the troops storming Berlin was made up of veterans of the defense of Moscow and Stalingrad and the liberators of Warsaw, "Izvestia" said.

Another dispatch said there was so much air activity it appeared that the skies were more crowded than the blazing environs.

The newspaper "Pravda" told of Russians capturing Germans who passed last night in trucks and trolleys in Berlin suburbs and streets leading to the center of the city.

The front dispatches said that the big Red Army guns had "On to Berlin" painted on their long barrels. "Shells made in Moscow and the Urals are now exploding in the streets of the German capital," said one dispatch, adding that "Fire on Berlin" is the most common command on a continuous front around the city.

[A London dispatch said that thousands upon thousands of Soviet troops were reported to be pouring across the Spree River into the country leading to the Elbe. These columns of begrimed, dust-laden fighters halted temporarily at the river for a joyous ceremony, the dispatch said. They dipped their hands in the waters of the Spree, washed their dust-caked faces and shouted: "The war is coming to an end!"

[One correspondent told of the burning of a house bearing Adolf Hitler's picture and a Russian fighting man exclaiming: "Shrivel and burn—burn, dog, burn."]

Effectiveness of the Red Army shelling was disclosed in a message from the city found in a captured German gun position. "They are blasting us hellishly," the message said.

The newspaper, "Red Star," reported Berlin being entered from the south by cavalry tanks and infantry.

There was heavy fighting around the Autobahn (express highway), which circles Berlin, but it had been pierced at several places. "Red Star" dispatches said the Germans had converted numerous giant anti-aircraft guns into anti-tank weapons along the Autobahn and were firing point-blank at tanks. The heaviest fire of this type was in the northeast and east suburbs.

HITLER ADMITS DEFEAT OF REICH

DAY

Official Order Captured by British Calls for Guerrilla Warfare.

APR 23 1945

30.24-25041

WITH BRITISH 2ND Army, April 22—(AP) Adolf Hitler has admitted in an official order that the German army has been shattered by the Allied armies in the West and that German legions have been reduced to guerrilla warfare.

The order, captured by British forces below Hildesheim, said Allied superiority on the Western Front had ended the possibility of major military operations by the Germans and left only guerrilla methods "shown and taught to us by the Russians in the years 1942-44."

Hitler ordered his commanders not to attack Allied strongpoints, but "against weak spots, flanks, rear, lines of communication, if possible in his administrative areas."

"The situation on the Western front is unfavorable to us because of the enemy's superiority in manpower, material and ammunition. Despite this, or rather because of it, we have to keep our energy up to key pitch.

"Only attacks against the enemy's flank and rear, with the disruption and cutting of his lines of communication, can guarantee success. Success in battle consists of constant attacks on the enemy's rear in conjunction with partisan warfare. The main point in these attacks is to force the enemy with cunning and guile into positions in which his troops are spread out all over the country and in the greatest strength in those areas where he cannot afford it.

"Our own attacks have therefore not to be directed against the enemy's strongpoints but against his weak spots—the flanks, the rear and the lines of communication—if possible in his administrative areas. Infiltration of our own attacking troops through the enemy lines is therefore of supreme importance.

Cites Russian Pattern

"We have to adopt the same method which was shown and taught us by the Russians in the years 1942-44. Our men have to infiltrate through the lines by ones or in small groups supplied with sufficient ammunition, petrol and other materials, and must attack only if they reach the rear areas where they can achieve complete surprise against the most sensitive points.

"This order will naturally be applied to any major operation.

"This order will be transmitted immediately to all troops of the army in the West."

Goebbels Reported in Flight After Pledging Stand in Berlin

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, April 22—(AP) Dispatches from Stockholm, quoting the German-controlled Swedish Telegraph bureau, said today that Gauleiter Paul Joseph Goebbels had fled Berlin to Mecklenburg after promising its panic-stricken residents to stay in the burning capital and appealing to men, women and children to mount its defenses.

Communications between Berlin and Stockholm were broken just after this report was received, the dispatch said.

Rumors, some fantastic, fed on an atmosphere of panic in the German capital.

One of these rumors, the German-controlled STB said, spread word of "capitulation negotiations." But this, like the report concerning Goebbels, could not be checked, the agency added.

It was clear, the Berlin dispatch was quoted, that "the great part of the Berlin population" was not going to follow the authorities' appeal and take up arms," and the civil population was said to be "mostly remaining passive."

A report from Switzerland said that Nazi party leaders, Gestapo men and collaborationists of all nationalities who had swarmed recently into the Lake Constance area from Berlin were fleeing there now, plodding eastward as French tanks thundered toward the Swiss border.

Panic swept the German border area around Lake Constance, said a Swiss frontier dispatch. This dispatch said Allied planes and French forces had cut off almost the last escape routes for Nazis trying to get away. Lake Constance is the western border of the "national redoubt" area into which Nazi troops were streaming for a death stand.

One Swiss report said that the wives of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, Reichminister Hermann Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim Ribbentrop were among those reported in flight.

The Swiss army moved into position along the frontier as a vast stream of refugees streamed toward the border in hope of safety in a neutral country.

Inside burning Berlin, a new commander may have taken over for the last-ditch Nazi stand. A DNB wireless dispatch directed outside Germany mentioned a "Lt. Gen. Heymann" as the commander of Nazi troops in the capital. This would indicate that Lt. Gen. Bruno Ritter Von Hauenschild no longer was in command.

"Led by its gauleiter, Reichminister Goebbels," the DNB dispatch said, "the Berlin population has joined its fanatical will to fight with that of our troops commanded by Lt. Gen. Heymann."

Germany's propaganda voice faltered to a whisper. Her radio network, which kept going under aerial siege, was heard infrequently. The morning war roundup usually transmitted on every network was heard today only on the south German station and even it was devoid of military news. Instead it was devoted to a tirade against Prime Minister Churchill, and the late President Roosevelt.

Transocean wave station at Zeesen, eight miles southeast of Berlin, in an area presumably now overrun by the Russians, has been silent since 10:45 p.m. Saturday.

The great long-wave Deutschlandsender which once reached all Europe has been silent for three days. It had been situated six miles southeast of Berlin, but there have been reports it had been moved many times to escape Allied bombings.

British Raid Ports As Yank Flyers Pace Patton Drive

London, April 22 (AP)—Heavy Lancaster bombers of the RAF bombed Bremen tonight, striking Germany's second largest port less than 24 hours after RAF Mosquitos hammered Kiel.

The British planes pounded Bremen after fighter-bombers of the United States 9th Air Force slashed German rail lines and highways along the path of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army drive into Czechoslovakia.

Keys To Defense Area

Both Bremen and Kiel are keys to Germany's northern defense area which is now virtually cut off from the rest of the Reich by the impending linkup of the American and Russian armies south of Berlin.

Bremen, which the Lancasters attacked with an escort of Mustangs, has direct rail communications to Hamburg, Germany's greatest port, and to Berlin.

The Kiel naval base—turned by recent Allied air raids into a graveyard for German warships—was hit last night by Mosquito bombers which had been deprived of their favorite target, Berlin, by the invasion of the Red Army.

Announcement that a bombing line had been drawn in front of the Russian lines to prevent the accidental bombing of Soviet troops apparently signaled the end of the RAF's almost nightly raids on Berlin.

Heavy bombers of the United States 8th Air Force were grounded by bad weather for their first day of idleness since April 2.

Besides Kiel, the RAF last night hit two ships on the Nazis northern supply routes and shot down nine out of eighteen German torpedo planes apparently on the way to attack British shipping. Several German airfields were raked and mines were sown in enemy waters. Two RAF planes were lost.

A final roundup of yesterday's activities showed that at least 61 German planes were destroyed, including 46 which the 9th caught on the ground.

Yesterday's toll raised the unofficial count to at least 3,238 German planes lost in the last two weeks. Allied losses for the same period have been about 100 planes.

Mussolini's Villa In Milan Bombed

London, April 22 (AP)—BBC quoted a French telegraph service dispatch from the Italian frontier today saying Mussolini's villa in Milan had been attacked with bombs by "members of the Italian resistance."

Two bombs placed in rooms usually occupied by the former duce exploded in his absence, killing two bodyguards, it said. Mussolini was said to have gone to Lake Como.

World War I Plane Shot Down By Yanks

London, April 22 (AP)—The Luftwaffe is apparently not only scraping the bottom of the barrel, it seems to be scratching around in the museum.

United States 9th Air Force fighter bombers today shot down a German byplane of World War I type.

Food Forms Foil British

LONDON, April 22 (AP).—The Grocers National Council today scheduled a meeting Wednesday to decide if grocers should fill out a new Ministry food form which Secretary Alban Curtis declared would require five hours' work and was issued only because the Ministry "received an increase in paper supplies."

Parliament Group Tells Horror Of Buchenwald

London, April 22 (AP)—Members of the Parliament committee returned today from Buchenwald and agreed that "there has been no exaggeration" of the horrors at the German concentration camp.

"It beggars description," said Sir Henry Morris-Jones.

"Every bit as bad as we heard," wa sthe comment of Earl Stanhipe.

Ness Edwards said the camp was a "most cadistic, cruel and hellish thing."

The delegation of eight members of Parliament and two peers will report to the Seaker of the House and a written account of what they saw is expected to be published as a White Paper. Further requests that other parliamentary delegations be allowed to visit the camp are expected.

Swiss-German Border Is Closed Off by Bern

Action Will Bar Flight by High Nazi Officials

LONDON, April 22 (AP).—The Swiss radio announced tonight that the Swiss-German frontier had been closed and traffic similarly halted between Switzerland and Lichtenstein, on the eastern border of Switzerland. The broadcast quoted an announcement by the Swiss Federal Council.

The Swiss offered no official explanation for the action, but the development caused speculation at London that it was aimed at preventing a flight by high Nazi officials or their families across the frontier to neutral Switzerland under their own names or with assumed identities.

ALLIES, 'TOO, HAVE SEEN'

Nazi Murders Enlighten West on Russia's Temper, Moscow Says

LONDON, Monday, April 23 (AP)—Murder camps found in Germany will help the Western Allies to understand Russia's demand for trial of Fascist war criminals, the Moscow radio, quoting the Soviet newspaper Pravda, said today.

"Allied troops are moving through Germany today," said the Russian broadcast. "They see not only smooth German landscapes and clean little town houses. They also see concentration camps.

"The British press with just indignation writes of the atrocities committed by the Hitlerites in concentration camps in Buchenwald. What is Buchenwald? It is Maidanek, but in miniature.

"These are the same gallows, the same twisted and mutilated persons, the same furnaces in which the unhappy victims of the Fascist hangmen were burned. We have long since exposed the true faith of our enemy. Our allies had not seen what we had seen.

"Now that they too have seen, now that they share what we know, they will understand us better, will understand why we so steadfastly demand trial of the Fascist hangmen on whose conscience are millions of tortured Soviet people.

"Fascism is not compatible with human dignity. The world must be freed from fascism. German soil, too, must be cleared of it."

Link-Up of Yanks, Russian Will Not End European War

PARIS, April 22—(AP). The junction of the American and Russian armies in the heart of Germany will not mean the end of the war in Europe but on the contrary there may be much more bitter fighting and heavy casualties, Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Gen. Eisenhower's chief of staff, told war correspondents at Supreme headquarters yesterday.

Gen. Smith said that as great as the victory on the Western front has been it would be disastrous to the war effort to represent the junction as the final defeat of the Germans. They are still resisting fanatically and retiring into their so-called national redoubt where they will have to be exterminated—and this, he said, will take time and cost lives.

Will Not Sacrifice Lives

The American officer said General Eisenhower would clean the Hitlerites up as soon as he can but that he had no intention of throwing away the lives of his men needlessly.

APR 23 1945

Smith outlined the entire European campaign and said that of all the famous campaigns in history it came the closest to following the original pattern laid out by the commander who planned it. With but one small exception—failure of the Germans to put up as strong a defense of the plain before Cologne—the battle for Germany, Smith said, was carried out exactly as General Eisenhower originally planned it.

Gen. Smith said Eisenhower was conducting the campaign on a strictly military plane and his liaison with the Russians is limited to military matters. All political aspects are being handled by the leaders of the Allied governments.

The chief of staff made this remark as reports were widespread that an agreement between the Western Allies and Moscow as to what parts of Germany each will occupy was affecting military operations and was responsible for the stopping of the Americans on the Elbe river line.

Two of Eisenhower's decisions during the course of the Allied campaign in Germany were vital, Smith said.

The Supreme Commander, he said, decided to occupy all the western bank of the Rhine between Wesel and Coblenz before fully exploiting the First Army's Remagen bridgehead. His other decision was to send Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army south across the Moselle instead of directly across the Rhine.

Both times, Smith said, the Germans miscalculated Eisenhower's strategy.

"The Remagen bridge didn't last long," he said. But while it lasted it was worth its weight in gold."

Eisenhower's directive, his deputy said, was to strike into the heart of Germany, and he added that "Germany has two hearts—one, Berlin, and two, the Ruhr."

Strangles Ruhr First

APR 23 1945

Eisenhower decided to strangle the Ruhr first, with a double envelopment, and then march toward Berlin.

"It is the ideal of every military commander to execute a double envelopment of this kind," Smith said. "Nobody ever expected to do it. And now it has been done."

NO. 1 ANTI-JEW ESCAPES YANKS

Julius Streicher Flees Nuernberg To Fortress Area

Nuernberg, Germany, April 22 (AP)—Julius Streicher, the Nazis' No. 1 anti-Semite, publisher of the anti-Jewish Der Stuermer and until about 1938 the official Nazi leader of Franconia, fled from Nuernberg a day of two before the Americans moved in. Streicher presumably fled to the Berchtesgaden area, military government officials said.

His successor, Karl Holz, committed suicide after first shooting and killing Nuernberg's Mayor, Willi Liebl.

Lieut. Martin Van Brauman, Amarillo, Texas, the Allied Military Government's safety and public relations officer of Nuernberg, gave me this information.

Successor Kills Mayor

"Various sources we contacted all agreed Streicher scrammed, and that Holz shot Liebl and then himself," Van Braumen said. "Holz and Liebl were in a tunnel running from the City Hall to the castle. Just what happened between the two is not clear, but probably they indulged in recriminations.

"It's possible Liebl counseled surrender of the city. At any rate, Holz evidently killed Liebl, then committed suicide."

Streicher always regarded Nuernberg as having been personally won by himself for Nazism. While other Nazi regional bosses merely called themselves gauleiter or mayor of the region, Streicher assumed the title of Frankenführer or leader of Franconians, the North Bavarians.

He strutted about the town dressed in high boots and brown uniform, whip in hand, bulletlike bald head bare.

His debaucheries and thefts of winter relief funds became such a scandal that even Hitler could not defend and keep this early follower of his who every year carried the bloodstained Nazi flag of the 1923 beer cellar putsch in the annual Munich memorial parade. He was always directly ahead of Hitler on these occasions.

So Hitler paid him off by presenting him with a beautiful farm outside Nuernberg. He permitted his name to continue on the masthead of Der Stuermer as its publisher.

Streicher employed a slightly patronizing air toward Hitler, which irritated the Führer, especially when foreigners were around. In 1935 when Hitler invited a group of foreign correspondents to Nuernberg for lunch during a party rally, Streicher stood beside him as he looked at the heiling, ecstatic crowds below.

Streicher placed his hand condescendingly on Hitler's shoulder, saying, "Mein Führer, remember how you thought it was hopeless to try to win Nuernbergers over to Nazism? Buf we did it, all the same, didn't we?"

Hitler, visibly nettled, walked away.

GERMAN NAVY BASE ON NORTH SEA WON

Admiral, Staff and 500 Women Sailors Seized—Complete Circus Also Is Captured

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY in Germany, April 22 (AP)—The German North Sea naval district headquarters of Buxtehude was surrendered to the British Eleventh Armored Division today by the commandant admiral.

Besides the admiral, Siegfried Engel, and his staff and the elaborate buildings and barracks at the base, the division also took about 500 German women naval personnel—dressed in bell-bottom trousers and navy blue coats—plus as many or more enemy ratings.

The enemy "Wrens" or "Waves" [illegible] variety, as well as something of a problem, to the already-varied prisoner catch of the Eleventh Armored Division.

In the last few days the division has taken two confessed "werewolves": a German colonel who arrived behind a group of liberated British prisoners, and Major von Cramm, said to be the brother of the tennis star, Baron Gottfried von Cramm. Major von Cramm, formerly a Luftwaffe pilot but grounded and put in command of a miscellaneous battle group below Harburg, surrendered promptly.

Eastward, Eleventh Armored forces also have been picking up a curious assortment. Their latest prisoners included a circus in working order—except for two bears that had been wounded. Two elephants were unhurt.

The Eleventh also welcomed back to British lines a staff sergeant of the Second North African Division who had been captured at Tobruk. He had been detailed by the Germans to handle welfare, including Red Cross parcels, for British prisoners and had a truck in which to move about. Two days ago he left Berlin, drove to Hamburg, and crossed the Elbe, running into British lines.

The staff sergeant was unable to supply even an inkling as to the whereabouts of the top Nazis, but he did say the bomb damage to Berlin was "illusory" and that the Germans had rebuilt a large part of the city inside the ruins—wreckage that is now camouflaged for emergency reconstruction underneath.

Prisoners and civilians are bringing in the usual crop of rumors. One that could not be confirmed now was that the Nazi party leader at Hamburg named Kaufman had been shot on the personal orders of Heinrich Himmler because he had told the Gestapo chieftain that he was unable to be responsible for the behavior of the population in event of an attack by the British. Hamburg has been the center of what anti-Nazi sentiment there was in Germany.

Ahead of the British lies a prison camp north of Zeven and word received from a French colonel, senior officer among the prisoners, said that conditions were bad, with many prisoners sick and the problem complicated by the assignment recently of 8,000 political captives to the camp.

At the same time negotiations were completed for the safe conduct through the lines for 400 British prisoners of the Germans caught in an enemy pocket under attack north of Bilsen.

FIVE YANKS WIN CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR

NUERNBERG, Germany, April 22 (AP) The Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded today to five heroes of the Third division by Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, commander of the U. S. Seventh army.

It was the third ceremony of its kind in as many days, and probably the first in which five men received the nation's highest decoration. It took place in the debris-ringed Adolf Hitler platz.

The men honored were Lt. Col. Keith L. Ware, Glendale, Calif.; Tech. Sgt. Russell Dunham, Wood River, Ill.; Lt. John J. Tominic, Lincoln, Neb.; Sgt. Lucian Adams, Port Arthur, Tex.; Pfc. Wilbur N. Ross, Strunk, Ky.

Dunham captured three German machine guns and a mortar, killed nine Germans, wounded two and took two prisoners, although he himself was wounded in the back by a sniper, in action near Colmar late in December. He was captured on Jan. 23, but shot his way out with a small pistol he had concealed and three days later made his way back to his outfit across rugged, snow-covered terrain.

Ware, commander of the 15th regiment, led a charge up Hill 216 near Sigolsheim in the Colmar fighting. Two hundred SS troops entrenched there were holding up an advance. Ware said, "I'm going up the hill. Who's going with me?" Ten men followed him.

Only Ware and Capt. Merlin O. Stokes, of Deep River, Iowa, reached the top. The Colonel killed five of the enemy, and captured more than 40 more. The rest fled. He was wounded in the hand.

Tominic was decorated for heroism near Vesoul, France, last Oct. 21. His platoon was attacking ahead of tanks and he was walking down a road leading one Sherman tank.

A German anti-tank gun scored a direct hit on the tank and the crew abandoned it. Tominic noticed the vehicle still moving and crawled on to man a machine gun and spray enemy positions. A second anti-tank shot then struck, passing through Tominic's shoulder. He dropped off and the driverless tank lumbered into the middle of enemy positions and exploded.

Tominic took 30 prisoners, and a few minutes later went into Vesoul and captured 30 more. Then he had his wound tended.

Adams destroyed several German machine-pistol positions and seized an American .50-caliber machinegun which the enemy was using against the Third division in the Vosges west of St. Die last October. His bravery broke up the German counter-attack.

Ross killed 58 Germans and wounded 10 last Nov. 30. He was alone with a machine gun in a fox hole in front of riflemen.

The Kentuckian was credited with holding off nine consecutive counter-attacks by Germany infantry.

His outfit had lost 55 out of 80 men. But he clung to his position even after he had run out of ammunition. He encouraged the riflemen with the shout, "they'll send up more."

The Germans' last assault carried to within four yaards of his position and the enemy tossed hand grenades at him. More ammunition arrived, however, and he and eight remaining riflemen dispersed the Germans.

He refused to leave after his harrowing experience, staying in the lines 24 hours on guard duty.

Drinking Bout Kills Freed Men

LEIPZIG, April 22 (AP).—Twenty-six liberated Russian or Polish workers died and 150 others were taken to hospitals in critical condition after a drinking celebration in the Leipzig railway yards. They broke into an unguarded box car and drained many bottles of an unidentified liquid which American authorities believe was denatured alcohol.

Rumors Flood Ninth Army

EAST OF THE ELBE RIVER in Germany, April 22 (AP)—The western front has gone Russian wacky, seeing Marshal Stalin's troops around every bend, hearing strange voices on the air and developing rumors twenty to the minute.

The meeting of the Russian and American armies depends on the Russians, because the American armies are staying where they are for the moment at least.

Sitting in the front lines of their bridgehead over the Elbe, American GI's could hear Russian tankmen shouting to one another over Army radio jeeps. Each unit had a Russian translator hurriedly combed from the ranks or nearby Russian prisoner of war camps.

Several attempts were made by the Eighty-third Infantry Division to get in touch with these Russian forces by radio to ascertain their positions. One of these efforts resulted in a false alarm that the Russians were in Eighty-third territory. One of two regiments had Russian officers, released from prisoner of war camps, calling Red Army units from field sets. One heard the other and each thought he had made contact with the Russian Army and so reported. There was considerable excitement at headquarters until it was discovered they had been talking to one another.

Eight Congressmen Inspect Prison Camp At Buchenwald

APR 23 1945

By DON WHITEHEAD

Buchenwald Prison, Germany, April 22 (AP)—Eight American congressmen walked among the horrors of Buchenwald prison today and got eyewitness proof of a Nazi world in which human life was not worth that of an animal.

They came at the personal invitation of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who wanted them to see for themselves this village where decency was torn aside and men died like beasts in one of Germany's worst butcher shops.

"Barbarism At Its Worst"

"This is barbarism at its worst," said Representative Gordon Canfield (R., N.J.), "and it is a bad commentary on civilization. General Eisenhower has presented proof of the atrocities. This bears out everything he or anyone else has said."

With Canfield were Representatives Carter Manasco (D., Ala.), Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.), Earl Wilson (R., Ind), Albert Rains (D., Ala.), Eugene Worley (D., Texas), Marion T. Bennet (R., Mo.) and Francis E Walter (D., Pa.).

They were in England on various missions when they received the invitation from Eisenhower to make a special trip to Buchenwald.

"This is the most horrible thing that anyone could conceive," said Manasco.

Bodies Stacked Like Cordwood

Jackson said: "We had atrocity stories from the last war which were not verified, but now we have seen them with our own eyes and they are the most sordid I have ever imagined."

That is the reaction of everyone who goes through this camp of horrors—a camp where emanciated bodies still are stacked like cordwood, where bodies were shoved into furnaces and burned, where men were hung on spikes like sides of beef until they died, and where thin, emaciated children look at you from great lifeless eyes because they remembered nothing but prison life.

The Americans liberated 21,000 prisoners in Buchenwald eleven days ago and conditions have improved considerably since then, but there is no way to erase this tragedy as long as the shambles of humanity who were the prisoners wander about the place waiting until somebody takes them home.

Visited By Hundreds Daily

Hundreds of Americans, British—and German civilians from the near-by town of Weimar—visit the camp daily to see the living dead and be convinced that the report of Nazi atrocities is not just propaganda.

Behind one building was the most gruesome sight I have ever seen—bodies piled up on each other like logs ready for mass burial. They were pitifully thin and wasted, with the skin tight over bones and purple faces contorted into expressions of suffering. They simply starved to death.

Beside this stack of 40 bodies was a truck with some 60 naked dead. Their bodies with names and prison numbers tattooed on the arms were like something out of a nightmare.

Bones In Crematory Ashes

In the courtyard near by was a pile of ashes and bits of bone—the remains of the dead burned in the twelve-furnace crematory. In the furnace grates lay blackened portions of skulls, and in one was a body which the fire had not entirely consumed.

Below the furnaces was a room from which the prisoners said none of their number ever emerged alive. Along the walls were hooks like those in a butcher shop. Bodies—and the prisoners said some that still had life—were hung there until the furnaces were ready.

30.24-25043

Yet somehow the dead were not as pitiful as those hulks of men and boys walking about the place. There was death in their eyes, but they still moved and talked—Zombies created by the Nazis.

Whenever a vehicle stopped these people crowded around it, staring with vacant eyes.

800 Children In Barracks

In one barracks which had housed Nazi SS troops, the American camp commandant, Major L. C. Schmuhl, of Michigan City, Ind., had put 800 children, most of whom had been evacuated from the dread Oswiecim camp in Poland by the Germans.

The youngest of them was a boy who had spent four of his eight years as a prisoner of the Nazis. He remembers nothing but prison life. He has no recollection of his father or mother or any life except that within Buchenwald.

There was another 9-year-old who had been a prisoner for three years. He has the face of a 16-year-old. One of the boys was bald and gray; his eyes were those of an old man.

None Know About Families

Most of them are Polish Jews who were brought to Buchenwald to work. None of them knew what had become of their families. Some had a faint remembrance of their mothers and fathers.

For months their daily diet had been a piece of bread, a small bit of margarine and a liter (about 34 ounces) of thin soup.

Their arms were thin and emaciated and there was the look of starvation in all their faces.

But now they are getting milk, bread, soup, butter, jam, honey, sugar, eggs, chocolate, peas—food captured from the German Army and now being used to feed Buchenwald's thousands.

Effect Hard To Predict

"It's hard to say how the treatment will affect these boys," said Col. Williams E. Williams, of Austin, Texas, who is directing the medical care of the prisoners.

"Perhaps the worst part is they have just lost that part of their childhood which plays such an important part in a normal being.

"Just think of your own childhood and know that they have been deprived of that."

The Americans are caring for some 5,000 patients suffering from typhoid, typhus, dysentery, tuberculosis and malnutrition.

Attended By 15 Doctors

"Most of the illness can be traced to malnutrition," said Williams, who has fifteen doctors treating the patients. "These people simply were being starved to death. When they worked they did not get enough food to produce the energy to stay alive."

The biggest job of the American authorities is feeding and sanitation. Of the 5,000 ill, Williams estimated that 90 per cent can be saved by proper diet, blood transfusions, glucose and saline injections. Since January 1 an estimated 15,000 prisoners died in Buchenwald, principally from starvation.

When the Americans took over the camp the death rate was about 100 per day, but now it has dropped to less than 30 a day.

BROOKLYNITE IN LEIPZIG

Civilian Jailed by Germans Set Free by Former Neighbor

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 22 (AP)—When American troops of the Sixty-ninth Division rolled into Leipzig, Giovanni Rovere of 1668 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., a civilian jailed by the Germans, shouldered his way through Russian prisoners crowded at a window and shouted, "Any guys from Brooklyn?"

Sgt. Eric Weil, a former Brooklynite whose home is in Westwood, N. J., shouted back that he was from Brooklyn.

"Well, for Pete's sake," Rovere yelled, "get me out of here."

Conditions in the jail became tense as the Russian prisoners started a riot. Rovere's heart sank when a Nazi captain appeared at the door and called for the fellow who spoke English. Then Rovere noticed that there was a pistol in the German's back—and that the pistol was held by Sergeant Weil.

French Boy Scouts Hold Celebration

Paris, April 22 (AP)—About 35,000 Boy Scouts from Paris and vicinity held their first St. George's Day celebration today since the Germans banned the organization five years ago.

For more than two hours the parade was reviewed by Lady Baden-Powell, widow of the founder of the movement. With her were representatives of scouts from Poland, Denmark, Greece and Belgium.

The United States was not represented officially, but hundreds of GI's who had been scouts before joining the Army mingled with the crowds.

STARVED YANK SOLDIERS LIBERATED FROM NAZIS

WITH THE U. S. 90TH DIVISION, April 22—(AP) Freedom arrived just ahead of death from starvation for a number of American soldiers in a German hospital overrun by the 90th division.

Forty-seven American Doughboys, captured in the Belgian breakthrough last December, were liberated yesterday by the 90th. All of them were suffering from acute malnutrition, overwork and frequent beatings administered by the Germans who had worked them in a rock quarry.

Fifteen of the 47 were wasted away to little more than living skeletons. All of the men were crawling with lice; some still bore livid welts and infected sores from the beating by German civilian and military guards.

Body May Be U. S. Organist's

PARIS, April 22 (AP)—Police disclosed today that a body believed to be that of Lawrence Whipp, American organist and choirmaster of the American (Episcopal) Cathedral of the Holy Trinity here, had been recovered on Friday from the Seine River. Mr. Whipp, an organist in Denver, Col., before he came here twenty-three years ago, had been missing since Feb. 2. He was interned by the Germans after the United States had entered the war.

Snowstorms Hit West Front

PARIS, April 22 (AP)—American doughboys of the Third, Seventh and Ninth Armies — widely separated in eastern, northern and southwestern Germany — ran into the same sort of spring weather today: snowstorms.

VON PAPEN PERMITTED HIMSELF BE CAPTURED

PARIS, April 22—(AP) Franz Von Papen let himself be captured in the Ruhr pocket, not because the Nazis had entrusted him with a peace mission, but because he thought the Allies might send him on a peace mission to the Nazis.

This conclusion has been reached by Allied officers, including Russians, who questioned the wily diplomat, it was learned tonight.

Von Papen's services have been declined and he is still under guard in a house in Rheims.

Rescued Prisoner Surprises Paris With Attire And Arms

APR 23 1945

Paris, April 22 (AP)—Even the almost shock-proof Parisians gaped as 21-year-old George Wilson, Easton, Pa., stepped out of a train bringing liberated prisoners from Germany today.

He wore a thick gray fur coat, a bright blue shirt and a brighter yellow tie. Six German swords hung from his arm, clashing and clanging with every step. A heavy German pistol was stuck in his belt beside a metal badge marked "Stalag 2A," the number of a prison camp near Zwickau.

Caught In Nazi Breakthrough

"Are you a prisoner?" an astonished observer asked him in French.

"Nope," answered Wilson in Pennsylvania American. "But I was."

He was caught in the German breakthrough last December and spent the next four months at Zwickau, rebuilding German railroads and progressively starving, until a week ago when the American tanks approached. The Germans fled.

The erstwhile prisoners "took over the town," Wilson said.

"First we unlocked the barracks, freeing about 150 Frenchwomen. They asked us for shoes, so we scoured the town and got shoes. The rest of us wanted food and schnapps. We got that too."

Garb Almost Cost Rescue

The fur coat and snappy haberdashery which Wilson also collected almost kept him in Germany, he said.

"We saw an American transport plane land in a near-by airfield and ran toward it. I guess we did look a little strange. One of the boys was wearing a nice shiny top hat. Anyway, they pulled their guns and wouldn't let us come near until they heard our voices."

With Wilson was Jack W. Marlar, Los Angeles, Cal., who was shot down over Germany last week and had only four days of captivity. Marlar said 500 Germans tried to surrender to him as the Americans approached.

BRITISH 2 MILES FROM FERRARA

APR 23 1945

American 5th Army Closing Upon Modena

NORTHERD

Rome, April 22 (AP)—Allied armor in headlong pursuit of badly disorganized Nazi forces fleeing toward the Po River from Bologna today were within 2 miles of Ferrara and closing in on Modena.

Ferrera, important objective of the British 8th Army, is 30 miles northeast of Bologna, while Modena is 22 miles northwest of that fallen Nazi bastion on the edge of the Po Valley.

A partial news blackout was imposed on the progress of the Allied forces, with the names of towns overrun in the chase being withheld temporarily.

Secchia Bridges Seized

The 5th Army, driving toward Modena, important highway town, reported "fairly strong enemy rearguard resistance."

American and South African troops were reported to have seized two bridges acros the Secchia River intact. The Secchia flows about a mile west of Modena northward into the Po, indicating Allied troops possibly were planning to outflank the city.

Earlier the same units were reported to have crossed the Panaro River in several places. Northwest of Bologna the Panaro flows roughly parallel to and within 3 to 5 miles east of Secchia. Then it swings eastward and flows into the Po about 12 miles northwest of Ferrara.

APR 23 1945

Castelfranco Captured

Associated Press War Correspondent Maurice Moron, who rode over the wide battle area in a bomber piloted by Capt. William Dotson of San Antonio, Texas, reported the roads were choked with fleeing German troops and vehicles.

The only town specifically mentioned as having fallen to troops under Lieut. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott was Castelfranco, 7 miles southeast of Modena.

With the 8th Army only 2 miles from Ferrara the Allies were only 5 miles from the Po River.

Ferry Sites Attacked

Another 8th Army force moved on to the banks of the Po di Volano River, at Sabbioncello, 10 miles due east of Ferrara, and at Finale di Reno, 3 miles southeast of Sabbioncello.

Allied air headquarters said the full force of the Allied Tactical Air Forces had been "turned loose on German forces retreating across the Po Valley, with devastating results."

Thirteen pontoon bridges and ferry sites along the Po were attacked in addition to day-long assaults on enemy transport.

Many Prisoners Taken

Airmen reported long columns of German transport and marching troops jamming the roads leading northward as the Nazi command strove frantically to get battered remnants of their armies back behind the Po River.

Great numbers of prisoners were taken as the British 8th and Allied 5th armies ground up fleeing Nazis in what Gen. Mark W. Clark, Allied ground commander, termed "beginning of the final victory in Italy."

Many hundreds of Allied warplanes bombed and strafed the retreating Germans throughout yesterday, last night and today, taking a terrific toll of men and matériel. Preliminary reports showed at least 425 enemy vehicles destroyed or damaged by United States 12th Air Force Thunderbolts yesterday alone. At least another hundred were wrecked early today. B-25's struck at Po River pontoon bridges, and concentrations of vehicles waiting to cross.

Nazi Casualties Heavy

Other 8th Army units cracked the enemy's defense line behind the Idice River, and captured Mezzolara and Granarolo Dell Emilia, respectively, 12 and 6 miles northeast of Bologna.

The mounting toll by Allied air forces supported the general hope in Italy that a substantial portion of the German forces would be destroyed south of the Po. These losses may doom in advance whatever hopes the Germans might have for a prolonged stand on the other side of the Po.

No Luftwaffe Protection

Headquarters of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force quoted a German prisoner as saying aerial attacks were causing extremely heavy casualties among the Nazis and that the commanding general of an infantry division had been wounded and many of his staff killed or wounded when Allied planes bombed his command post near the 8th Army front.

An officer at 15th Army Group headquarters said if the enemy attempted to make a stand at the Po the Germans would be exposed to merciless attacks by Allied planes with no protection at all from a defeated Luftwaffe.

When the spring offensive began, the Germans had sixteen divisions in the front lines. But during the last fortnight practically all their reserves have been committed. Air assault had left no main rail lines intact in northern Italy and no Po River bridges still standing.

At least two German divisions, including a picked unit of mountain fighters, were reported destroyed in the fighting prior to the fall of Bologna, which shattered the German's major defense line along the southern edge of the Po plain at the foot of the Apennines.

Students Demonstrate For Trieste "Italianity"

Rome, April 22 (AP)—A government communiqué said today that several thousand students paraded at Palerno yesterday in a demonstration for the "Italianity" of Trieste.

The crowd also stormed the headquarters of the Sicilian Separatist Movement, hoisting Italian flags, the communiqué reported.

Italian Spies Hanged

BOLOGNA, Italy, April 22 (AP).—Five civilians who were spies for the Germans during the occupation of Bologna were hanged today by Italian patriots from the crossbeam over the front door of the city's bomb-wrecked major hospital.

The spies were executed while military and civilian government officials attacked the problem of getting the refugee-swollen city running as close to normal as possible and as the local Committee of National Liberation underground assured military government officials that such reprisals would be curbed.

Bologna's new government formally took office today, with Giuseppe Dozza, a Communist elected by the Committee of National Liberation yesterday, ushered in as Mayor.

POLISH-SOVIET ACCORD SOLID

Stalin Hails Moscow-Warsaw 20-Year Friendship Pact

APR 23 1945

Moscow, April 22 (AP)—Signature of a twenty-year treaty of friendship, mutual aid and postwar collaboration by the Soviet Union with the Warsaw Polish Provisional Government marks the binding of three Slav governments to Moscow in a solid accord.

After signing the pact last night in the Kremlin, Marshal Stalin hailed it as of "great historical significance" and declared, "now it is possible to say with assurance that German aggression has been checked from the east."

The treaty gives the rapidly expanding Polish Provisional Government new prestige.

Stay Bond Helped

[The Polish Warsaw Government is not recognized by Britain and the United States, which nations denied a Soviet request for representation of that regime at the San Francisco world security conference opening Wednesday Negotiations are in progress in Washington seeking to establish a broader united Polish Government along lines set forth in the Yalta agreement among the three big powers.]

The newest of the Soviet pacts, signed for the Poles by Prime Minister Eduard Osubka Morawski, does not differ in any major respect from the treaties which Russia signed earlier with Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. Both these countries, like Russia, have recognized the provisional Government as the government of Poland, a fact which strengthens the bond between the four Slav governments.

Stalin Makes Long Talk

Stalin gave an indication of the importance he attached to the treaty by a lengthy speech overflowing with praise. He called it "a guaranty of the independence of a new democratic Poland."

It meant, he said, "a liquidation of the old destructive political play (by Poland) between Germany and the Soviet Union and replaces it with a policy of alliance and friendship between Poland, her eastern neighbor."

He added:

"Now it is possible to say with assurance that German aggression is checked from the east. Undoubtedly this barrier on the east will be supplemented by a barrier from the west, that is by an alliance of our countries with our allies on the west. Then it may boldly be stated that German aggression will be restrained and will not be easily loosed.

Treaty To Run 20 Years

"For this reason," Stalin concluded, "I do not doubt that our allies in the west will hail this treaty."

The treaty runs for twenty years and is automatically renewed for five-year periods indefinitely after that unless officially denounced by one party a year before a date of expiration.

The preamble states as its first aims, "to wage war jointly against the German invaders to complete and final victory" and "to consolidate the basic change in the history of Soviet-Polish relations into the friendly allied co-operation which has been formed between the U.S.S.R. and Poland in the course of the joint war against German imperialism.

Main Points In Treaty

Among the points in the treaty are:

1. "Continue the struggle against Germany in common with the United Nations until final victory."

2. "Maintenance and strengthening in wartime and after the war of a firm and permanent friendship" between Russia and Poland.

APR 23 1945

3. Postwar use by both parties of "all measures at their disposal for elimination of the threat of repeated aggression on the part of Germany," including participation "in all international activities directed toward the insurance of peace and security."

"The high contracting parties declare that the present treaty will be implemented in conformity with international principles in the acceptance of which they have participated."

4. "Should one of the high contracting parties be drawn in the postwar period into military operations against Germany in the event of Germany's renewing her aggressive policy, or against any state acting in concert with Germany, directly or in any other way, the other high contracting party will immediately render . . . military and other assistance and support with all the means at its disposal."

5. "Not to conclude without mutual agreement an armistice or peace treaty" with Germany "encroaching or likely to encroach on the independent territorial integrity and security of each."

6. "Not to conclude any alliance or to participate in a coalition directed against the other high contracting party."

7. Postwar mutual action "in a spirit of friendship further to strengthen and develop the economic and cultural ties between both countries" and to aid in economic reconstruction.

Presumably in connection with the last point, the official Government newspaper Izvestia disclosed yesterday that "the Soviet state has sent the Warsaw population 600,000 tons of provisions, several thousand automobiles and other goods. It has accepted full participation in rebuilding the Polish capital by taking upon itself one half of the necessary expenses."

Truman "Disperses" Hopes Of Hitlerites

Moscow, April 22 (AP)—Pravda's international commentator today declared President Truman "has dispersed the useless hopes of the Hitlerite brigands" that the death of President Roosevelt would bring some change in the policies of the United States.

The commentator applauded Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, of the United States 3d Army, for forcing local German populations to view the scenes in freed German prison camps.

Leningrad Battery Shells Berlin

MOSCOW, April 22 (AP) — The honor of firing the first Russian shell into Berlin went to Maj. Leonid Garkun's Leningrad Battery, which for two years helped to stand off the German siege of Russia's second city, it was revealed tonight. The battery had been one of the Red Army's crack artillery units in the battles of Stalingrad, Moscow, Voronezh and Warsaw.

MOSCOW, April 22 (AP)—Russian and American patrols apparently were but fifteen or twenty miles apart in the Dresden-Leipzig area today.

Fighting in Copenhagen

STOCKHOLM, April 22 (UP).—Reliable underground reports reaching Stockholm via Malmoe said tonight that Hungarian and German troops clashed at several places in Copenhagen this morning. Similar fighting was reported in other Danish cities.

Berlin Telephones Disrupted

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 22 (AP)—Telephone and telegraph communication between Sweden and Germany was virtually broken off at 6:50 A. M. today. Berlin was isolated, but state calls and telegrams still reached Hamburg.

Hitler's Paper Plant Reported Destroyed

Stockholm, April 22 (AP) — The building housing Adolf Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter was burned to the ground Friday night, the German-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau reported from Berlin today. The agency said carelessness by workers using a welding machine was blamed.

The plant was located in the Berlin newspaper quarter around the Zimmerstrasse.

Sweden Loses Contact With Envoy in Berlin

By The Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 22—The Swedish Foreign Office announced today it had lost contact with its Minister in Berlin, Arvid G. Richert.

The Swedish Legation's first secretary and attaché were expected to remain in Berlin to await the Allied occupation, but the Foreign Office declared "the situation in Germany is now so liquid it is impossible to tell where the officials are."

The Swedish Consulate General in Hamburg is being closed.

5 Danes Die Battling Nazis In Copenhagen

Stockholm, Monday, April 23 (AP). Five Danes were killed, ten were wounded and a "considerable" number of Germans became casualties in a skirmish in Copenhagen early Sunday when Danish patriots tried to take a cannon out of a German barracks, Swedish dispatches from Malmo said today.

Several detachments of Austrians housed in the barracks were said to have mutinied and supported the Danes.

Commander Quits Hamburg

Malmo, Sweden, April 22 (AP)—Field Marshal Ernst Busch, commander in chief in northern Germany, has moved his headquarters from threatened Hamburg to the little town of Ploen, 20 miles southeast of Kiel, a reliable informant who arrived here from Luebeck said today.

B-29'S STRIKE KYUSHU AGAIN

DOHERTY

Americans Hit There Fourth Time In Five Days

APR 23 1945

Guam, Monday, April 23 (AP)—Striking for the fourth time in five days at vital airfields in southern Japan, United States Superfortresses hit Kyushu Island yesterday Tokyo reported fighter-plane sweeps over Nippon's main Honshu Island.

The B-29 attack, made by possibly 150 planes, was directed at five Kyushu airfields less than 24 hours after a force of around 300 Superfortresses had hit nine of the island's airdromes.

Japs Claim "Light" Damage

A 20th Air Force communiqué at Washington said the latest B-29 mission hit new targets, "important airfields" at Miyazaki and Tomitaka, on the southernmost of the home islands. All planes returned safely after encountering slight fighter opposition and moderate antiaircraft fire.

Tokyo said about 40 American fighter planes from Iwo Jima bases bombed and strafed the Tokai area, which includes the oft-bombed industrial city of Nagoya, on Honshu northeast of Kyushu. There was no American confirmation.

The Japanese broadcasts also told of the Kyushu attack, saying "about 100" B-29's with about 30 carrier fighters had hit the island's airfields in a three-hour attack.

All B-29's Return Safely

Tokyo said all raids resulted in only "light" damage to military installations, but a section of a city bordering one Kyushu field was burned.

Seventy of the Superfortresses carried out the attacks on air installations in southern Kyushu on the Osumi and Satuma peninsulas, while 30 hit the Oita sector on the northeast coast of the island, Tokyo said.

The Saturday Kyushu raid was declared successful by Superfortress crewmen. All the B-29's returned safely. About 100 Japanese fighters were sighted, but only a few pressed an attack, the flyers said.

Doughboys Kill 11,738, Seize 27 Japs In Bitter Fighting on Southern Okinawa

ERICKSON

Desperate Defenders Hold Americans to Slight Gains, Nimitz Says.

GUAM, Monday, April 23—(AP) Doughboys of the 24th Army corps have killed 11,738 Japanese and captured 27 on southern Okinawa alone, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today. This excludes Japanese killed by the Marines on northern Okinawa.

In an action-packed communique, Nimitz also reported:

Desperate Japanese defenders held the 27th, 77th and 96th Infantry division to no gains through Sunday as heavy artillery, naval and air bombardment continued all along the southern front.

Marines of the Third Amphibious Corps occupied Taka island east of Okinawa and seized half of Sesoko island, one mile west of Motobu peninsula, yesterday.

Carrier aircraft swept the Sakishima islands, southernmost of the Ryukyus, Saturday and Sunday, and Amami and other northern Ryukyus islands Wednesday through Friday, destroying 26 Japanese planes and heavily damaging Amami airfield installations.

Army Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima heavily raided Suzuka airfield, 32 miles southwest of Nagoya on Honshu island, Sunday. They destroyed 26 Japanese planes and damaged 21; exploded a 6,000 to 8,000 ton ship in Ise bay south of Nagoya, sank two small oilers and one small tanker, and damaged one small coastal vessel.

Yanks on Iwo, secured March 16, killed 60 Japanese and captured 61 in a 24-hour period ending at 6 p. m., Friday. This increased Japanese casualties on Iwo from the American invasion on Feb. 19 through Friday to 23,049 killed and 850 captured.

Nimitz corrected his Saturday communique to eliminate LST (Landing Ship, Tank) No. 477 from the list of those sunk by enemy action in the far western Pacific between March 18 and April 18. This reduced the total U. S. losses for that period to 14.

Nimitz's report that Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th corps troops have killed 11,738 Japanese since their Okinawa landings April 1 indicates that many more than 15,000 of the enemy have been killed in Ryukyus amphibious operations. This figure did not include Japanese killed on any of the nine Kerama islands or Ie Shima, all captured by the 77th Army division, or any of the enemy slain by the 1st and 6th Marine divisions as they captured Motobu peninsula and the northern half of Okinawa.

Earlier, Nimitz said 736 Nipponese were killed in the first two days of fighting on Ie Shima, which was captured Friday.

American casualties in the Okinawa land fighting, through Wednesday, were 3,195, of whom 478 were killed, 2,457 wounded and 260 missing. These included all land units.

Hodge's corps—the 27th, 77th and 96th infantry divisions — carried their all-out offensive against the Japanese's fortified positions on southern Okinawa through the fourth day but were unable to force any substantial changes in the front. They were supported by field artillery, naval bombardment and aerial bombing, rocketing and strafing.

The Mustang attack on the Suzuka naval air base made by fighter pilots of Brig. Gen. Ernest (Mickey) Moore's 7th Army fighter command was their second fighter sweep on Honshu in three days. They attacked the big Atsugi air base near Tokyo Friday.

The carrier sweep against Amami was designed to re-neutralize airfields from which the Japanese could attack the American Okinawa forces and to intercept warplanes winging south from Japan proper as replacements.

The enemy's Sunday afternoon attack on the U. S. Okinawa forces was his first in any strength since April 16. In the past week, B-29s, Mustangs and carrier planes heavily attacked airfields from the northern Ryukyus to Kyushu and Tokyo from which aerial strikes might have been launched.

The American flag flew from the top of Iegusugu peak on Ie island, signalizing the end of a short but stiff fight for that 10-square-mile chunk of the Ryukyus just off Okinawa's west-central coast.

Ie was invaded Monday by Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce's 77th (Statue of Liberty) division, primarily for its four-strip airfield, which has been put in use by American planes. Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced yesterday that Ie was "now in our possession." There still was mopping up to finish.

2 PUPPET RULERS SEIZED ON LUZON

Collaborationists Captured by Yanks in Sweep Toward Baguio.

APR 23 1945

MANILA, Monday, April 23—(AP) Two additional cabinet members and accused collaborationists of the fallen Japanese dominated Philippine puppet government have been captured near Baguio, besieged Commonwealth Summer capital on northern Luzon.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communique today the cabinet members were Claro M. Recto, minister of foreign affairs, and Rafael Alunan, minister of agriculture and commerce.

Four Captured Last Week

Four members of the cabinet were captured last week as Yanks of the 33rd division closed in on Baguio. They were Jose Yulo, chief justice of the Supreme court; Antonio De Las Alas, minister of finance; Teofilo Sison, minister of the interior, and Quentin Paredes, minister of justice.

All are to be confined for the duration as a matter of military security and then turned over to the government of the Philippines for trial.

On Mindanao island, meantime, the 24th division continued its drive eastward toward Davao along the highway and the valley of the big Mindanao river, while bombers swept enemy concentrations and lines of communication.

Heavy bombers sank or damaged an 8,000-ton transport and four other vessels off Formosa and wrecked a 7,000-ton freighter-transport at Saigon, French Indo-China.

Rail installations in Indo-China were heavily pounded.

Bombers of all categories dropped 130 tons of bombs on northern Borneo at the cost of one plane lost to anti-aircraft fire. Targets included airdromes, oil producing areas and barracks.

MacArthur announced that Australian ground forces had killed an additional 1,214 Japanese troops on Bougainville, New Guinea and New Britain islands.

Close On Davao

In the lightly-opposed drive toward Davao, the Yanks captured Fort Pikit, 40-odd miles inland on the main trans-island highway, Saturday. This gave them control of a junction where a new feeder highway from the rich Cotabato valley of the south joins the main Davao road.

The Davao city limits were 42 miles away. The Japanese are expected to make a bitter stand at Davao. Some 50,000 Nipponese troops are estimated on the island, second largest of the Philippines.

On Central Luzon the 112nd regiment of the 32nd division counted its 1,000th dead Japanese in current cave fighting in the Santa Maria valley northeast of Manila. The Japanese were strongly dug in and fighting was slow.

The 32nd division, which also is fighting around Balete pass in the Caraballo mountains in the north, marked its third year overseas yesterday with another day of slow battling against Japanese holed up in caves.

The 25th division, meantime, wrested high ground south of Balete pass from the enemy in the most important recent development of the two-day drive to rid northern Luzon of Japanese.

Fifth Airforce fighters dropped 270 tons of explosives in support of these actions and that at Baguio, where a ridge at the northwestern outskirts was captured.

One British Ship Hit By Jap Suicide Plane

Aboard a British Pacific Fleet Carrier, Western Pacific, April 18 (AP)—Delayed—The British Pacific fleet task force came under attack by Japanese suicide planes early in its operations.

In three attempts to dive into the ships, the Nipponese planes hit one but missed two others almost by inches. In recent strikes, however, only a few Japanese bombers have managed to get by the British combat air patrol.

SAVED BY WASHING FACE

Colonel on Mindanao Merely Grazed by Sniper's Shot

WITH THE TWENTY-FOURTH DIVISION on Mindanao, April 18 (Delayed) (AP)—Col. William J. Verbeck, commander of an infantry regiment, was the first American wounded on central Mindanao. He probably saved his life by washing his face.

Verbeck received his fourth wound of the war yesterday when a sniper fired at him in front of a regimental command post. The officer was bending over to wash his face. The bullet merely grazed his back, inflicting a painful but not serious wound. If he had been erect it might have been a different story. Colonel Verbeck, whose wife lives at 68 Montague Street, Brooklyn, was back at work today.

FLAG PUT ON IE PEAK BY 6 SHARPSHOOTERS

IE ISLAND, Ryukyus, April 21 (Delayed) (AP)—Six sharp-shooting infantrymen today fought their way foot by foot and cave by cave to the highest peak of Iegusugu pinnacle to raise the American flag and officially end organized resistance on this tiny island after six days of bitter fighting.

While troops of three infantry regiments of the Seventy-seventh (Statue of Liberty) Division completely encircled the base of the 557-foot pinnacle, the six began snaking their way toward the peak early this morning.

Old Glory was held in the hands of S/Sgt. Paul E. Szypka of Buffalo, N. Y.; Pfc. William McDonnell of Irvington, N. J., and Sgt. Vernon Fuquay of Greenville, Miss., of Company A.

As the hand-held banner waved for all to see, the other three men, Capt. Steven K. Smith, Hudson, N. Y.; Pfc. Josph M. Cotter of Perth Amboy, N. J., and Pfc. Joseph Giepr of Yonkers, N. Y., searched for a crevice to anchor the flag pole. They were unable to find a suitable hole in the solid rock. So when the three men were too tired to hold the flag longer, they brought it down and left a couple of men on guard while the others went back to get tools to dig a hole.

Later Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, commander of the division, was able to announce that Ie Island was secured and that the flag was waving from the pinnacle fortress.

Japanese Losses High In Drive On Chihkiang

Chungking, April 22 (AP)—Chinese forces counterattacking on the right flank of the Japanese driving toward the United States 14th Air Force base at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking, drove the enemy back and inflicted several hundred casualties, the high command said tonight.

The enemy's left flank also was pressed back near the Hunan-Kwangsi border in a 3-mile advance by other Chinese forces, the communiqué added.

Warplanes of the 14th Air Force aided the ground offensive, striking at Japanese troops and tank concentrations and inflicting heavy casualties and damage, an American communiqué said.

Hurley In Chungking After Trip To Washington

Chungking, April 22 (AP)—United States Ambassador Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley returned today after visiting Washington, London and Moscow, and was greeted at the airport by embassy staff members and Chinese officials headed by Gen. Chen Cheng, War Minister.

He may see Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek within a few days. Hurley is expected to continue his efforts to settle differences between the Government and Chinese Communists.

It was widely believed that Hurley during his Moscow visit had discussed the Chinese Communist question, as well as Russia's policy toward Japan.

Japanese Resistance Stiffens In Shan Hills

Calcutta, April 22 (AP)—Japanese resistance has stiffened in the Shan Hills and the enemy has brought up artillery on the road running east from Thazi in central Burma in attempts to stop the British advance, a southeast Asia communiqué said tonight.

British 14th Army troops have overcome resistance on Mount Popa, 30 miles south-southeast of Pakokku.

INDIA SEEKS PART IN AUTO INDUSTRY

NEW DELHI, India, April 22.—(AP) The Indian government announced today a policy of "taking over" development of major industries, such as automobile manufacture and steel production, if private capital is not available for that purpose.

The statement, by the government's planning and development department, came on the heels of an announcement that large American automobile concerns such as Chrysler and Studebaker were planning to establish plants in India. Ford and General Motors already have assembly plants in Bombay.

It was understood that the government planned to have a definite hand in the control of such industries through "representation on the board of management."

The government stated that after a period of consultation with provincial governments, it would be prepared to ask for necessary legislation to proceed with the plan.

It was pointed out that ordnance factories, public utilities and railways were already largely state-owned.

"Apart from these," the statement added, "basic industries of national importance such as aircraft, automobiles, and tractors, chemicals, iron and steel, prime movers, machine tools and electrical machinery industries may be nationalized."

YUGOSLAVS LIBERATE CRES, CAPTURE HARBOR

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Yugoslav radio reported last night that Yugoslav forces have captured "one of the main harbors in the Adriatic town of Susak" and "liberated" the Adriatic islands of Cres (Cherso) and Losinj (Lusin). The Federal Communications commission reported the broadcast.

The islands were described as Italian-occupied.

YANK IN PRISON CAMP TO GET MEDAL OF HONOR

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) There'll be a congressional medal of honor waiting for Staff Sergeant Thomas E. McCall once he gets out of a Nazi prison camp.

The 29-year-old Veedersburg, Ind. infantryman, the War department said today, won the decoration during an attack on German positions along the Rapido river in Italy, Jan. 22, 1944.

The last man in his section left alive and unwounded, he was last seen advancing on an enemy machinegun nest with his own machinegun blazing from his hip. By that time, he had knocked out two Nazi machine guns and killed or routed their crews.

Later, word was received that he had been taken prisoner and is now in Germany. The medal will be presented to his father, Richard D. McCall of R.F.D. 3, Veedersburg.

ASK FOOD FOR LIBERATED

Groups in Appeal to Truman Want Promises Fulfilled

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—An appeal to President Truman to "fulfill our promises of food to relieve hunger in liberated countries" was made today by representatives of a large group of national organizations.

A letter signed by officials of women's, labor, farmers', religious, welfare, educational and veterans' groups expressed "deep distress" at reports that "UNRRA has been unable to secure the foods it has sought to buy to supplement starvation diets abroad." The letter added:

"Though individuals among us may have been inconvenienced by difficulties in finding the foods we prefer, all know that we are well fed, while the children of our Allies are stunted by prolonged malnutrition."

FULTON MISSING ON CAPITAL SCENE

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) The question, "where's Fulton?" echoed around the Capital today.

Hugh Alfred Fulton, 36-year old lawyer, hasn't been seen about President Truman's offices since early last week.

His absence aroused speculation since he formerly was one of Mr. Truman's close advisors.

He was chief counsel for the Senate War Investigating committee under Mr. Truman's chairmanship and helped with the drafting of the latter's vice presidential campaign speeches last Fall.

Congressional circles had mentioned him as a possible nominee for attorney general but recently, highly-placed friends of the President have thrown the coldest water they could find on such speculation.

Fulton visited the President a week ago Friday at his old Connecticut avenue apartment before Mr. Truman drove to the White House for his first full day in the chief executive offices.

He saw the President briefly again the following Monday. While he told reporters he saw the draft of the President's speech to Congress at noon that day and thought it was excellent, he said he did not participate in its drafting.

There have been increasing indications that Mr. Truman has decided to keep his executive family clear of unofficial advisors except where he may assign them to do specific tasks under his personal direction.

Whether Fulton might be so utilized was yet to be seen.

Fulton, a New York and Washington lawyer, was reported to have returned to his New York offices last week for a few days of private work.

Meanwhile one of Mr. Truman's admirers, George Allen, a former Mississippian and protege of the late Senator Pat Harrison of that state, has been seen around the White House frequently.

The big, jovial, Allen, a companion of Mr. Truman on his vice-presidential campaign tour, is not working in any official capacity. He has told friends that he simply has been available to do "spade work" if and when the President wants his services.

CUT IN RED TAPE IS DEMANDED IN VETERANS GROUP

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) Red tape slashing in the Veterans administration was demanded today by both the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

But in criticizing the VA, the VFW said it took note of the fact that the agency is having difficulty in securing adequate trained personnel.

Hits Veterans Administration

The Legion, reviewing the operation of the G. I. Bill of Rights which it sponsored, said the Veterans administration has been ultra conservative in making loans to veterans for homes, farms or business.

"Many loan applications have been smothered in red tape," it said in a statement.

Calling for speedier handling of claims for the payment of dependency pensions and the service insurance of men killed or dying in the armed forces, Jean A. Brunner, national commander of the VFW, also asserted in a statement:

"With red tape binding the Veterans administration's creaking claims machinery, unnecessary and inexcusable financial hardship is being forced on the dependents of men who could not wait to die in the service of their country."

Brunner said the VFW would press for action by the VA on these two suggestions:

1—Adjucation of all claims for dependency pensions and national service life insurance by one adjucation unit, instead of the present over-lapping system of two units.

2—Acceptance of the affidavit of the beneficiary in establishing the beneficiary's age, instead of requiring birth certificates or other difficult-to-obtain evidence.

Seeks Changes in G.I. Bill

The Legion's complaint about the Veterans administration policy in handling loans to veterans was but one point it raised in proposing changes in the G.I. Bill of Rights, which provides for helping educate returned war veterans, or helping them otherwise get established.

Col. John Thomas Taylor, national legislative director for the Legion, said complaints against the "operation" of the G.I. Bill include:

The present age limitation—which presumes a veteran's education to have been interfered with by the war if he is 25 or under—bars many men from enjoying educational advantages.

Under present regulations as prepared by the Veterans administration, full tuition is not paid for men taking short intensive courses.

The subsistence allowance to veterans going to school, $50 a month to a single man; $75 a month to a man with dependents, may be inadequate in the light of present living costs.

The Legion's national legislative committee is now drawing up a series of proposed amendments to the G.I. Bill for submission to Congress.

TRUCE IS SOUGHT ON TARIFF FIGHT, BRETTON WOODS

APR 23 1945

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) Postponement of the congressional battles now raging over Bretton Woods and tariff-cutting proposals is urged by Senator Brewster (R-Me.), lest "strong feelings" endanger the work of the San Francisco United Nations conference.

A Democrat, Senator Pepper of Florida, vigorously opposes such a truce, saying: "I believe that favorable action on the Bretton Woods proposal would give great impetus to the San Francisco conference."

They spoke in an NBC broadcast last night.

FDR Backed Proposals

The late President Roosevelt, in messages to Congress, declared the tariff proposal and the Bretton Woods plan for a world bank to aid reconstruction and development, and a United Nations fund to stabilize international currencies, are inseparable from political and military planning for peace. President Truman has endorsed his predecessor's stand.

"It would be tragic indeed if strong feeling aroused in the discussion of banks, or exchange, or aviation, or tariffs, or other subsidiary issues should endanger the approval of the agreements reached at San Francisco regarding a world security organization," said Brewster.

There is considerable doubt on Capitol Hill that the administration will have its way on either the tariff or Bretton Woods proposals.

It is conceded the division is close in the House Banking committee, now considering the Bretton Woods documents, with Republicans battling the proposal of an independent stabilization fund.

Republicans on the House Ways and Means committee have aligned themselves against the Administration's effort to obtain new authority to cut tariff rates.

Henry A. Wallace, Commerce secretary, will appear before the committee tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the International Policy committee of the National Planning association issued a statement endorsing the Bretton Woods proposals as "a necessary means" for the reestablishment of non-discriminatory trade throughout the world.

The group, headed by Stacy May of the McGraw-Hill Publishing company and comprising agriculture, business and labor representatives, supported the agreement's plan ofr a currency stabilization fund entirely separate from the world bank.

Should the proposals fail to be accepted by the United States, the committee said, this country "probably would have to match the state management of other groups."

Robert H. Patchin, vice president of W. R. Grace and company, a member of the committee, dissented from the group's approval of the separate currency stabilization fund, but favored the World Bank idea.

M'KELLAR TO SIT IN WITH CABINET

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) President Truman blazed a new path of cooperation between Congress and the White House today with an invitation for Kenneth D. McKellar, president pro tempore of the Senate, to sit at cabinet meetings.

The action was believed to be unprecedented. Not since Calvin Coolidge took over the presidency on the death of Warren G. Harding has the nation been without a vice president, and the custom of having the Senate's presiding officer sit in on cabinet sessions was started by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Truman, however, already has demonstrated his determination to perfect and maintain a solid liaison with Capitol Hill, and the invitation he extended McKellar underscored that aim.

More Meat Is Predicted Under New Federal Policy

APR 23 1945

APR 23 1945

Program Boosts Subsidies but Leaves Retail Ceilings Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) The government today announced a sweeping revision of the meat price and distribution structure designed to give housewives more meat and eliminate packers' financial losses.

The new program, stemming from vigorous complaints to Congress against the present setup, is expected to increase slaughterers' gross revenue by upwards of $34,000,000 a year. This comes from $15,000,000 in increased subsidies, $12,000,000 in cancellation of scheduled reductions, a $7,000,000 increase in Army beef ceilings and an expected pork subsidy boost.

It permits no increase in retail ceilings.

The annual meat subsidy bill heretofore has run about $560,000,000.

The 10-point program was worked out jointly by the OPA, the Office of Economic Stabilization, the War Food Administration and the War department. It provides for:

1. Control of the amount of slaughter by non-Federally inspected packers, with a view to diverting more meat to Federally inspected packing houses. The purpose of this step is to move more meat across state lines, away from producing centers, and thereby achieve more equitable nationwide distribution.

2. A limit on the amount of livestock farmers may slaughter to sell. This is to increase the supply of meat moving in regular commercial channels.

Drive On Black Market

3. A "rigorous" drive against the black market, which Congress has been told is a major cause of inequitable distribution. OPA is immediately assigning 500 additional investigators for the enforcement of meat regulations. This will treble the staff.

4. A special subsidy, payable in addition to all others, "to assure that no individual slaughterer who operated profitably in peacetime" will be forced out of business under wartime conditions.

This provision is effective May 1, but the subsidy will be paid at the end of the packer's fiscal year.

5. Encouragement for feeding cattle to greater weights. This is in the form of cancellation of a scheduled reduction of 50 cents a hundred pounds in the overriding ceiling, price range and subsidy on choice grade cattle. This cut would have gone into effect July 2.

6. Immediate increases aggregating $7,000,000 annually in ceiling prices for Army beef, also, a sliding scale increase in the general subsidy for choice, good and commercial grades of beef, with a maximum increase of 25 cents a hundred pounds when cattle are selling at the top of the price range. This, the agencies said, is to keep slaughter on a profitable basis and minimize seasonable losses. This increase is effective May 1 or 5, packer's option.

To Study Pork Costs

7. Completion of a study of pork and pork product cost data to determine whether subsidy or ceiling increases are necessary. Any allowed will be retroactive to April 1.

8. Intensification by the Army of its present program of encouraging non-Federally inspected packing houses to take Federal inspection. The goal is to obtain 10 per cent of Army requirements in this way and thus free more meat for civilians from plants already Federally inspected.

9. A request to slaughterers to distribute their meat fairly among those dependent on them in the past. If this fails, an allocation order to achieve that end will be put into effect.

10. Preparation of a program for the protection of livestock ceilings should the higher subsidies "be used not to believe the 'squeeze' but to bid up to prices of live animals still further." If severe pressure on ceilings develops and threatens to break down the ceiling system, live animals will be allocated to Federally-inspected plants.

"This program will remove the last vestige of excuse for either the sale or purchase of meat at over-ceiling prices or without ration points," said Economic Stabilization Director William H. Davis in a statement. "This having been done, the full force of the government will be brought to bear to wipe out black market operations."

Davis added, however, that the meat shortages stem directly from the war and that the new program "will not solve the problem in the sense of giving everybody all the meat he wants."

In Chicago officials of the American Meat Institute said:

"It will take a little time to determine just what effect the new regulations will have. It is gratifying to have the OPA recognize there is need for the changes the meat industry has been urging, and that prices required an adjustment."

Non-federally inspected packers, whose kill is about 46 per cent of the total, will be given slaughter quotas for each 1945 accounting period. These will be equal to a percentage of the livestock slaughtered by them in the corresponding 1944 accounting period, and for which they surrendered the required ration stamps.

Davis said that this provision "will strike a heavy blow at the black market," since it excludes, in the computation of quotas, meat sales for which no ration points were given up.

Farmers to Register

The farm slaughter restrictions limit sales of dressed meat in any quarter of 1944. All farmers engaged in such business will be required to register at local ration boards. The ruling applies to all those who in 1944 sold not more than 6,000 pounds of farm-slaughtered meat.

Rules requiring the surrender of ration points for meat sold from farms will be strictly enforced, the agencies said.

In connection with the new black market drive, OPA said its program of criminal prosecution will be intensified, along with greater use of treble damage suits, injunctions and suspension orders, revocation of slaughtering permits and the withholding of subsidies.

The 500 additional investigators for the meat enforcement program will be transferred from other departments of OPA, the agency said.

The special new subsidy to insure against packers being forced out of business results from sharp criticism at congressional hearings that the agency's price policies were forcing slaughterers to close their doors.

To qualify for this extra relief a packer will be required to show that he operated profitably in 1938-41, or during whatever part of the period he was in business. The amount paid at the end of the packer's fiscal year will be whatever is necessary to make his total revenue from consolidated operations equal to total operation costs.

"With this assurance that a slaughterer can operate legitimately at ceiling prices without danger of losses, an applicant will be in a favorable position to obtain such bank loans as a necessary for month-to-month operation of his business," the announcement said.

Subject to termination on 10 days' notice, the special subsidy will continue in effect only as long as large Army set-asides and other emergency quota restrictions continue.

Army Ceiling Raised

The increase in packers' Army beef ceilings is 25 cents a hundred pounds for carcass beef of choice, good and commercial grades. It is 35 cents a hundred pounds for frozen boneless beef.

The general increase in the beef subsidy establishes these new rates when cattle are selling at the top of the stabilization range, which is the $1.50 spread between floor and ceiling within which packers must stay to qualify for a full subsidy:

Choice grade, $2.75 a hundred pounds; good, $2.70; and commercial $1.65. Utility and cutter and canner grade subsidies remain at $1 for each.

These payments will be decreased by two cents for each three-cent decline in cost toward the bottom of the stabilization range. Since the range is $1.50, the maximum possible reduction, on purchases within limits of the range, is $1 a hundred pounds.

The new program leaves in effect a maximum additional payment of 50 cents a hundred pounds for all grades, which went into effect April 1.

"The result of the new action," the announcement stated, "will be to provide extra subsidy for slaughterers when cattle prices are at or near the ceiling, and to reduce the payments more quickly when prices fall away from the maximum."

Senator Hart Urges U.S. Keep Control Over Pacific Islands

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) Senator Hart (R-Conn.) today advocated American retention of the Marshall, Caroline and Marianas islands "to insure peace in the Pacific."

The former admiral in command of the Pacific fleet asserted in a speech broadcast by NBC that Pacific islands in general "are—and probably always will be—economic liabilities to any nation which carries responsibility for them. The only economic value will lie in facilitating sea but air communications across the Pacific."

In the case of the Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas, he said:

"Japan, of course, must be evicted from those and some other Pacific islands where for years they have broken faith with the world and exploited the natives. Their departure will leave a vacuum which someone must fill for the welfare of what will remain of the poor natives—if for no other reason."

30.24-25047

"I don't think their future is necessarily something which should be settled at San Francisco, say, next month," he declared.

"That future will be a proper subject for the action of the international organization which is to come out of the conference which begins this week. Quite possibly the problem will not be solved until the peace conference that will be held after Japan is crushed. However, it is time to be thinking it over."

The white-haired seaman-lawmaker said the three groups of islands could come closest to self-maintenance if integrated under one government.

"The march of history, our record and standing before the world in treatment of the people of the Philippines, Guam, etc., and our prospective responsibilities for security of the Pacific, all point to the United States as the nation to take over those islands from which our forces will have evicted the Japanese."

Hart noted that a lot of words are flying around these days—"sovereignty," "mandate," "trusteeship," "accountability."

Sovereignty, he said, "still happens to be a word of definite meaning," but he expressed the opinion that "mandate" has come to have such an indefinite meaning that perhaps the whole international situation would become clearer if the word were tossed out of the dictionary.

Whatever "trusteeship" means, he said, "need not concern us because our record in the Philippines clearly proves that we have been a true and proper trustee over dependent people of other races—in the best and most inclusive meaning of the word."

As for "accountability," the Senator said, "I think that being the kind of people we are, we need have little concern about being held to account for the welfare of those islanders by anyone with a conscience more strict than our own."

President Truman Worships With Wounded At Walter Reed

APR 23 1945

Washington, April 22 (AP)—President Truman worshiped with the war wounded at Walter Reed Army Hospital today in an interdenominational church service.

Afterward he and his family visited 84-year-old John J. Pershing, General of the Armies, under whom the President served as an artillery officer in the first World War.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Mary Margaret, and Mrs. Truman's secretary, Miss Rethel Odum, made an unostentious departure from the Blair House en route to the chapel at the army hospital, several miles away. Only two Secret Service men accompanied them, and the presidential car stopped at all traffic lights.

In the gray-stone, ivy-covered chapel of the hospital the President joined with soldiers, officers and WACS in prayer and singing of the hymns.

When the hour-long services were concluded, the Trumans stopped by the quarters of General Pershing for a five-minute visit.

Later they dropped into a ward of wounded officers and another of enlisted men to shake their hands and wish them speedy recovery.

Shakes Hands With Patients

Few people were in the chapel when the President took a front pew quietly.

He followed the service closely, singing the processional hymn "Stand Up, Stand Up For Jesus" in a strong voice and following the chaplain, Feltham S. James, in the Lord's Prayer and the reading of the Apostles' Creed.

As Truman started out of the chapel he turned to shake hands with all of the wounded, including those in wheel chairs. He congratulated the chaplain on his sermon before proceeding to General Pershing's quarters.

Sweden To Return 30 German Refugees

New York, April 22 (AP)—Thirty German civilian refugees will be returned to their homeland by way of Denmark, the Swedish radio said today in a dispatch heard by the FCC.

They all protested, the dispatch said, that they got to Sweden "by mistake."

Yugoslavians Report Adriatic Harbor Taken

New York, April 22—The Yugo that Yugoslav forces have captured "one of the main harbors in the Adriatic town of Susak" and "liberated" the Adriatic islands of Cres (Cherso) and Losinj (Lusin).

The islands were described as Italian-occupied.

Earlier today, a Yugoslav communiqué had reported the capture of "enemy strongpoints" on the outskirts of Fiume and Susak.

Werewolf Broadcast Talks Of Endless War

New York, April 22 (AP)—A broadcast by the German werewolf organization, reported tonight by the Federal Communications Commission, declared the German people would "not lay down their arms, even if we have to fight at the North Pole," and threatened to make this an "endless war."

"We shall fight in southern Germany," the broadcast was quoted. "We shall make a stand in the Protectorate, (Czechoslovakia), we shall contest the enemy in the central German area and in the Bohemian Forest. We shall inflict enormous losses on him in the greater Berlin area, and in the north German area.

"From the Baltic to Stettin we shall not yield any ground without fighting and we shall defend ourselves in our fortresses of Denmark and Norway and resist the enemy until he realizes there will be no end to such a war."

2 YANKS WIN AWARDS FOR LITERARY WORKS

NEW YORK, April 22—(AP) Two Army sergeants, Josiah E. Greene, of Washington, Conn., and Spencer Logan, of North Plainfield, N. J., won the ficton and nonfiction prizes of $2,500 in the MacMillan awards for the armed forces, it was announced today by MacMillan, publisher.

Greene, native of Duluth, Minn., graduate of Brown university and formerly on the Providence Journal, won the fiction prize with a novel, "Not In Our Stars." The author, who has been overseas, is now at Lowry Field, Colorado.

Logan, until recently a mess sergeant at Camp Lee, Virginia but now overseas, got the award for a manuscript tentatively entitled: "Democracy Needs The Negro."

Both men are 34 and married. Their books are scheduled for publication this Fall in this country, Canada and England. The $2,500 cash prizes are in addition to royalties.

U.S. Indians Off For Frisco Parley

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 22 (AP). A delegation of Indians has left for San Francisco to present at the United Nations conference a plea for recognition of the six nations' independence, basing their case upon treaties no longer recognized by the United States and Canada.

Chief Clinton Rickard of the Tuscarora tribe said tonight the delegates carried copies of the treaties, including the Treaty of Ghent, signed by the United States, Great Britain and the six nations, which guaranteed the Indians the status of an independent nation.

The six nations maintain these treaties should still be operative. They have been declared "null and void," however, Chief Rickard said, by the United States and Canada, which passed laws in 1924 bringing the Indians under laws of the land.

Cruiser Galveston Launched At Cramp's

Philadelphia, April 22 (AP)—The light cruiser Galveston, second to bear the name of the Texas city, was launched today at the Cramp Shipbuilding Company.

Mrs. Clark W. Thompson, wife of Col. C. W. Thompson, USMCR, and daughter of W. L. Moody, Jr., president of the News Publishing Company, Galveston, was sponsor.

Two Earthquakes Recorded

ST. LOUIS, April 22 (AP).—Two earthquakes centered probably in Lower California were reported today by the Rev. James B. MacElwane, of the St. Louis University Seismograph Station. The first shock, described as "fairly strong," started at 12:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon (C. W. T.) and lasted two hours. It was sixty miles deep and 1,585 miles southwest of St. Louis. The second shock of about the same duration and in the same general direction was 1,495 miles from St. Louis and was described as "moderate." It began recording at 4:50 a. m. today (C. W. T.).

New Canaan Lieutenant Awarded Postwar Guggenheim Fellowship

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP) The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial foundation announced today the awards of fellowships valued at $230,000 to 96 persons, 41 of whom are in military service or war work.

The fellowship for those in service or civilian war agencies will be held for them for use after their discharge, the foundation said.

Winners include four combat soldiers with the Fifth army in Italy, whose awards were based on work done between tours of duty.

They are Lt. Edward A. Reep of Monterey, Calif., infantry volunteer with the First Armored division; Lt. Rudolph Von Ripper of New Canaan, Conn., winner of the Silver Star with Oak Leaf clusters and Purple Heart, with the 34th Infantry division; T-4 Frank D. Duncan, Jr., of New Rochelle, N. Y., who is with the 36th division, and T-Sgt. Mitchell Siporin of Chicago, who has served with the 3rd Infantry division.

Twenty-three year old Lukas Foss, composer and pianist for the Boston Symphony orchestra, won an award for work in musical composition. He is the youngest composer ever granted a Guggenheim fellowship. Besides the Boston, he has played with the New York Philharmonic and other major orchestras.

Landon Discusses Frisco Problems

APR 23 1945

Topeka, April 22 (AP)—Alf M. Landon told an audience tonight that President Truman was faced with the immediate task of "constructing a foreign policy out of mysteries, secrets and chaos."

The 1936 Republican presidential candidate, discussing the imminent San Francisco conference of United Nations, said it would be Truman's job to bridge the "widening gap in our unity on postwar proposals caused by the ever-growing protests—'Why weren't we told this?'"

Landon's speech, sponsored by the First Methodist Church Committee for World Peace, likened Truman to an embattled general who must make decisions in the battlefield, "encouraged by the hopes and prayers of his fellow citizens—inspired by the spirit of his exalted office."

"The President's untimely death," Landon said, "which has plunged civilization into sorrow, undoubtedly gives the American delegation at San Francisco a freer hand to decide America's policies on highly important and still undecided questions.

"Undoubtedly the weight, the prestige and the influence, especially of the delegates that are members of the Congress, are enhanced," Landon told his audience at the church.

Dutch May Seek Land

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22 (AP)—With one-fourth of the Netherlands flooded by the Germans, the Dutch Government may seek territorial compensation from Germany by requesting the United Nations to annex West Frisia and a strip along the eastern frontier of the Netherlands for thousands of farmers whose lands have been destroyed.

This was indicated tonight in ofifcial Dutch quarters concerned with the problem of rebuilding Holland's rich agricultural lands which will be unproductive for years as a result of the flooding. The Dutch Government already has notified her allies that she reserves the right to seek territorial compensation from Germany.

SMUTS PROPOSES A SUPER-TREATY

Asks That Delegates Draft A 'True Confession Of Faith'

San Francisco, April 22 (AP)—Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa, last surviving elder statesman of the Versailles conference, declared today that delegates to the San Francisco world meeting must draft more than a treaty—"we must write a true confession of faith."

"Our race has reached the limit of human endurance," he told the Associated Press. "If we fail here the world may be psychologically shocked beyond repair."

Put Forward As Key Figure

Just before Smuts spoke it was disclosed authoritatively he had been put forward as a key figure in a strategic plan intended both to strengthen the projected world security treaty and smooth the path of the conference opening Wednesday.

Under it the cold language setting up the Dumbarton Oaks security machinery would be prefaced by a statement of principles intended to stand for all time as a moving human document.

Simultaneously, the drafting committee would be able to give hearing without final decision to the dozens of human rights controversies already pressing in upon the San Francisco conference.

As For Broad Principles

Thus, broad principles could be laid down which could serve as a guide for future settlement of such matters as the Arab-Jewish problem, as well as questions of race discrimination, backward countries, world labor standards and other prickly matters. The conference itself could be left with the setting up of new world machinery as its sole task.

Field Marshal Smuts, wearing South African battledress unrelieved by insigne of rank, spoke eloquently about this in the quiet of his hotel room.

"We have made great sacrifices in this war and the last," he said. "They have given us a cause, a faith. Surely we have things of the spirit. And now we should state all these things.

"Hitler and Mussolini, the gangsters, flooded the world with their evil beliefs. Now it the time for us to sit down and write of why we fought them and what we have been fighting for."

Anti-Semitism Rise Worries Netherlands

Conference Delegate Blames German Propaganda

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22 (AP).—Dutch officials today expressed concern over the increasing trend toward anti-Semitism in Holland, which they attributed completely to German propaganda.

A. A. Pelt, one of the Netherlands assistant delegates to the world security conference, said that for the first time in the history of Holland the people had become race-conscious. He arrived here from Holland where, as chief of the Netherlands Information Service, he had been attached to the Dutch Army for six months.

He said that of 180,000 Jews in Holland when the Germans occupied the country, fewer than 10,000 remain. The others have been either deported or killed by the Germans.

'Poland' Watchword At Frisco; Delegates Eye Big-3 Accord

APR 23 1945

San Francisco, April 22 (AP)—The United Nations entered one of the most fateful weeks of the war today with victory in Europe almost at hand, but victory in San Francisco by no means guaranteed.

Every new arrival for the historic conference opening here Wednesday, including members of the United States delegation, predicted success in creating a world-security league.

Yet each one was looking over his shoulder at Washington, looking almost desperately, for a sign of Big Three agreement on Polish and other troublesome issues.

"Poland" The Watchword

What Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Secretary of State; Anthony Eden, British Foreign Minister, and Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar, are able to do about these things in the next two preconference days is expected to fix the limits of real conference accomplishment by showing exactly how far the United States, Britain and Russia can co-operate—and where they split.

"Poland" has become a sort of watchword for arriving delegates.

There is a widely held convention that it would be dangerous to let the issue get by the Big Three and reach the conference floor.

The impact of the whole conflict on the conference has already been considerable, and authorities here were brought up sharply by Marshal Stalin's action in rushing through a Soviet alliance with the Warsaw Government on the eve of scheduled foreign-minister talks in Washington.

Smuts Heads Preamble Task

Developing plans for the conference kept pace with arrivals:

1. Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts, of South Africa, is slated for top spot in the big conference commission which will be set up, it was learned, to draft a sort of "Atlantic Charter preamble" to the treaty creating the proposed world organization. This is to be a statement of high aims and purposes of the organization toward all mankind, a promise that—as Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) demanded—it will function justly for all nations.

2. It was conclusive that Argentina would not be represented at the opening of the conference but might get in before it ended. This became evident following a conference last night between Latin American Ambassadors Nelson and Rockefeller and Assistant Secretary of State, soon after they arrived together by plane from Washington. They adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude on the whole Argentine question.

3. First-arriving United States delegates declined to go beyond expressing more than general hopes for success of the parley. The delegation has agreed to act as a unit on all issues and its members have agreed to make all statements on policy only through the delegation.

4. First members of the delegation to get in were Senator Vandenberg and Dean Virginia Gildersleeve, last night. Today Commander Harold Stassen, in civilian dress and on leave from the Navy, arrived. Later in the day came two more, Chairman Bloom (D., N.Y.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and Representative Eaton (R., N.J.), the ranking minority member of that committee.

5. John Foster Dulles, international lawyer and adviser to the United States delegation, told an Oakland meeting, one of a nation-wide series, to consider and pray for the San Francisco conference—that only an elemental start can be made on peace organization now because the world is still in a primitive state as a society of nations.

Dr. E. Van Kleffens, Dutch Foreign Minister, and head of his country's delegation to the conference, arrived by plane last night. To reporters at the airport he expressed the view that the conference here would be a "business proposition" of dealing with realities..

Dutch officials expressed concern over the increasing trend toward anti-Semitism in Holland, which they attributed completely to German propaganda.

Blamed On Germans

A. A. Pelt, one of the Netherland's assistant delegates to the conference, said that for the first time in Low Country history the people had become race conscious.

"I was surprised to find that people who before the war mixed with the Jews and were friendly with them have now turned against them," he said.

"It is noticeable everywhere. Dutch people who feel this way can give no explanation."

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY ON THE MULDE RIVER, APRIL 22-(AP)-FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE RUSSIANS BEGAN THEIR OFFENSIVE, THEIR TROOPS WERE CLOSE ENOUGH TODAY FOR U.S.FIRST ARMY SOLDIERS TO TUNE IN ON OPERATIONAL FIELD RADIOS AND HEAR THEM ISSUE BATTLE ORDERS.

(A DISPATCH SATURDAY FROM THE U.S.NINTH ARMY FRONT SAID THAT THE AMERICANS THERE COULD HEAR THE RUSSIAN FIELD RADIOS PLAINLY.)

AIR AND GROUND PATROLS HAVE BEEN ALERTED FOR THE INITIAL CONTACT. COMMANDERS HAVE BEGUN TO LAY DOWN RULES OF PROCEDURE TO BE FOLLOWED AS RED ARMY TROOPS DRAW NEAR, AND THEY ARE NOT MORE THAN 25 MILES AWAY SINCE THEIR COLUMNS WERE SIGHTED BY AIR RECONNAISSANCE EAST OF THE ELBE RIVER.

LT.COL.PHILIP H.POPE, WASHINGTON, D.C., FLEW IN A CUB PLANE FROM THE BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE MULDE RIVER IN THE AREA OF MITTWEIDA, 32 MILES WEST OF DRESDEN, AND OBSERVED IN THE DISTANCE GERMAN VILLAGES SET AFLAME BY RED ARMY ARTILLERY.

PICKING UP RUSSIAN RADIO COMMANDS AND SEEING THE RESULTS OF RED ARMY ARTILLERY WERE THE FIRST BITS OF EVIDENCE THAT THE JUNCTION OF LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' ARMY AND THE RUSSIANS IS DRAWING NEAR AND IS POSSIBLE ANY DAY.

JUST WHERE THIS JUNCTION WILL TAKE PLACE IS STRICTLY UP TO THE RUSSIANS AND IT WILL BE WITHOUT POMP OR CEREMONY. SOMEWHERE ALONG THE FRONT A GI WILL MEET HIS RUSSIAN COUNTERPART AND THAT WILL BE THE LINKING UP OF ARMIES.

HOWEVER, ONE UNIT AT THE FRONT IS TAKING NO CHANCES AND TROOPS ALREADY HAVE RECEIVED THIS ORDER FROM THEIR COMMANDER:

APR 23 1945

"OUR VEHICLES MUST BE PARTICULARLY CAREFUL THAT THEY BE MARKED WITH PROPER PANELS. I ORDERED YESTERDAY ANOTHER IDENTIFICATION AND THAT IS AN AMERICAN FLAG. IT WILL BE CARRIED BY ANY LEADING ELEMENTS.

"I WILL ANNOUNCE RULES. I DO NOT KNOW THAT ANY OF YOU WILL BE INVOLVED IN ANY MEETING, BUT THE FIRST TROOPS TO MEET THE SOVIETS WILL OF COURSE PASS THE INFORMATION BACK AND THE COMMANDER WILL GUIDE SOVIET TROOPS AS TO OUR OWN MAIN LINE.

"THE SAME THING APPLIES TO ANY POINT ON THE DIVISION FRONT. THE RUSSIAN COMMANDER WILL BE TOLD EXACTLY WHERE OUR TROOPS ARE AND WILL BE ASKED NOT TO MOVE ANY TROOPS WEST OF THAT LINE UNLESS IT IS DECIDED BY THE ARMY COMMANDERS CONCERNED. HE WILL BE INVITED TO SEE THE CORPS COMMANDER IN REGARD TO FURTHER MOVTMENT OF RUSSIAN TROOPS.

"THESE THINGS ARE COMING OUT AS A MEMORANDUM AND WILL REACH YOU THIS MORNING. THE PROBABILITY THAT GERMANS IN OUR IMMEDIATE FRONT DO NOT KNOW THE PROXIMITY OF THE RUSSIANS IS GREAT. WE MAY EXPECT QUITE A NUMBER OF GERMANS TO COME THROUGH OUR FRONT LINES, POSSIBLY FIGHTING, BUT MORE PROBABLY SURRENDERING.

"THEY WILL PROBABLY TRY TO COME SLIPPING INTO OUR LINES FROM THE NORTH. WE MAY GET A GOOD MANY GERMANS OUO OF THE CHEMNITZ AREA (WEST OF DRESDEN). OUR TROOPS HAVE BEEN WARNED OF A PROBABLE INCREASE IN THE NUMBER OF GERMAN TROOPS COMING INTO OUR LINES. ALL OF THIS RUMOR MAY BE TRUE AND WE MAY MEET THEM TODAY."

CONSTANT CUB PLANE PATROL IS BEING KEPT IN FRONT OF THE AMERICAN LINES, WATCHING FOR THE APPROACH OF THE RUSSIANS SO THERE WILL BE NO INCIDENTS OR TRAGIC ERROR AND EACH WILL KNOW EXACTLY THE POSITION OF THE OTHER.

THE LINKUP COULD COME EAST OF MITTWEIDA, WHERE THE DOUGHBOYS ARE LISTENING TO THE RUSSIAN RADIOS, OR IT COULD BE ACHIEVED FARTHER NORTH IF THE RED ARMY DRIVES ACROSS THE ELBE FROM POINTS WHERE THEIR COLUMNS HAVE BEEN IDENTIFIED BY AIR RECONNAISSANCE.

THE FIRST AMERICAN WHO REPORTED HEARING THE RUSSIANS TALKING OVER THE RADIO WAS LT.COL.WILLIAM J.GIVEN, JACKSON, TENN., DIVISION SIGNAL OFFICER.

HE KNEW HE WAS LISTENING TO THE RUSSIANS BUT COULDN'T UNDERSTAND THE WORDS UNTIL HE GOT AN INTERPRETER, PVT.ANDREW DAMAN, 759 MILWAUKEE AVE., CHICAGO.

DAMAN HEARD THEM TALKING IN CODE WITH SUCH WORDS AS "SHEEP," "VULTURE," AND "DAISY."

THEN THE RUSSIAN, WHO APPARENTLY WAS A TANK COMMANDER, BROKE INTO THE CLEAR AND ORDERED A MACHINEGUN TO GET INTO ACTION FAST. LATER AN ORDER CAME IN CLEAR FOR THREE GUNS TO FIRE ON AN UNNAMED TARGET.

WITH THE U.S. NINTH ARMY, APRIL 22-(AP)-THE IMPENDING JUNCTION BETWEEN RUSSIAN, AMERICAN, AND BRITISH FORCES CAN NOT BE OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED ON THIS FRONT WHEN IT OCCURS.
CORRESPONDENTS HERE WERE TOLD TODAY THAT NEWS OF THE JUNCTION WOULD BE GIVEN TO THE WORLD IN THE FORM OF "A UNITED NATIONS ANNOUNCEMENT."
MORE SPECIFICALLY, THEY WERE TOLD THE ANNOUNCEMENT MAY EMANATE FROM THE GOVERNMENTS OF AMERICA, ENGLAND, AND RUSSIA, PRESUMABLY SIMULTANEOUSLY AS SOON AS THE MEETING IS OFFICIALLY VERIFIED.
CORRESPONDENTS WERE TOLD, HOWEVER, THAT "REASONABLE SPECULATION" CONCERNING THE JUNCTION WOULD BE PERMITTED FROM THIS FRONT.
HOW FAR THIS WOULD PERMIT THEM TO GO REMAINED DOUBTFUL. PRESUMABLY IT WOULD EMBARGO EYEWITNESS STORIES OF THE JUNCTION UNTIL AFTER THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
NO REASON WAS GIVEN FOR THE REGULATION OTHER THAN THE ASSUMED IMPORTANCE OF THE HISTORIC EVENT. NEITHER WAS THERE ANY EXPLANATION FOR ITS TIMING.
HOWEVER, IT CAME AT A TIME WHEN THE THUNDER OF RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN GUNS WAS PRACTICALLY BLENDING ON THIS FRONT, AND WHEN EVERY DOUGHBOY OUTPOST HAD BEEN ALERTED ON RUSSIAN GREETING PHRASES.
AND THE SPEED WITH WHICH THE ORDER WAS TRANSMITTED TO FRONT LINE PRESS CAMPS INCREASED INDICATIONS THAT THE JUNCTION PERHAPS WAS ONLY A MATTER OF HOURS AWAY.

BUT TO ONE OF THE WOMEN, MME. HENRI MAUDUIT, THE FORMER ROBERTA LAURI OF STOUGHTON AND BOSTON, MASS., THE WORDS GROWLED BY THE SOLDIER WERE "THE SWEETEST WORDS I EVER HEARD."

THE WORDS, UTTERED BY PVT. EDDY MILLER OF (STREET ADDRESS NOT GIVEN) NEW YORK CITY, WERE:

"THIS IS THE WORST GODDAM BIKE IN THE WHOLE AMERICAN ARMY."

MME. MAUDUIT, 45, A POLITICAL PRISONER OF THE NAZIS SINCE JUNE 12, 1943, WHEN SHE WAS ARRESTED ON SUSPICION OF AIDING ALLIED

FLIERS ESCAPE, SAID SHE WORKED SEVERAL MONTHS INSPECTING GERMAN SHELLS AND PANZERFAUST -- BAZOOKA -- WEAPONS.

"THE SUSPICION WAS WELL-FOUNDED," SHE SAID, "BUT THEY WERE NEVER ABLE TO PROVE ANYTHING."

AS THE AMERICANS APPROACHED BY LEIPZIG, THERE WERE 6,043 WOMEN PRISONERS OF MANY NATIONALITIES. MME. MAUDUIT WAS THE ONLY AMERICAN. HER HUSBAND FIGHTS WITH GEN. DEGAULLE'S FORCES.

OF THIS NUMBER ONLY ABOUT 200 WERE LEFT WHEN THE AMERICANS ARRIVED. THE OTHERS WERE [redacted] MARCHED BY SS (ELITE GUARD) TROOPS TOWARD DRESDEN. THE FEW WHO ESCAPED FROM THE MARCH BROUGHT BACK THE STORY THAT IT WAS A VERITABLE DEATH MARCH, WITH THOSE UNABLE TO STAND THE LONG MARCH BEING SHOT BY THE ROADSIDE. THE REPORTS HAVE N O T YET BEEN OFFICIALLY VERIFIED.

THE 200 WOMEN WHO REMAINED AT THE FACTORY PRISON POURED OUT BLOOD-CHILLING ACCOUNTS OF THE TREATMENT AT THE HANDS OF THE GERMANS AT THE FACTORY. ONE [redacted] SPANISH [redacted] WOMAN WAS STILL BLEEDING FROM INTERNAL INJURIES [redacted] RECEIVED WHEN THE GERMANS BEAT HER.

MME. MAUDUIT SAID THAT SHE HAD BEEN SCHEDULED FOR THE DRESDEN MARCH BUT THAT IN THE CONFUSION SHE ESCAPED BY HIDING UNDER SOME BLANKETS IN THE DIPTHERIA WARD OF THE FACTORY'S MISERABLE HOSPITAL.

SHE SAID THAT THE WOMEN WHO WERE LEFT BEHIND WATCHED WHILE MEN PRISONERS AT THE FACTORY WERE EXTERMINATED WHEN THE GERMANS SET FIRE TO THEIR BARRACKS. A HALF DOZEN MEN, THEIR CLOTHES AFIRE, ESCAPED FROM THE BURNING BUILDING AND RACED ACROSS A FIELD TO THE WOMEN'S SECTION. THE ELECTRIFIED FENCE FAILED TO STOP THE MEN. THE NAZI GUARDS SCATTERED AND THE WOMEN MANAGED TO OPEN THE GATES AND SAVE THE FLEEING MEN.

MME. MAUDUIT SAID THAT THE GERMAN WAR MATERIAL SHE HAD INSPECTED DURING [redacted] RECENT MONTHS HAD DETERIORATED.

ONE OF HER MAIN JOBS WAS DELETING TWO F[redacted] PARAGRAPHS FROM THE SHEET OF INSTRUCTIONS WHICH WENT OUT WITH EACH GERMAN BAZOOKA. THE ORIGINAL INSTRUCTIONS HAD BEEN INCORRECT AND HAD CAUSED THE ACCIDENTAL DEATH OF NUMEROUS GERMANS, SHE SAID.

SHE SAID THAT [redacted] AFTER THE AMERICANS ARRIVED SEVERAL SOLDIERS CAME IN THE FACTORY PRISON AND ATE WITH THE WOMEN.

"THEY DRIFTED IN, OPENED THEIR RATIONS AND ATE WITH US AT THIS TABLE," SHE SAID. "AND WE COOKED OUR LAST POTATOES, BUT WE DIDN'T TELL THEM THEY WERE OUR LAST.

FOR MOST BERLINERS IT WAS A QUESTION ONLY OF PROTECTING AND SAVING THEIR LIVES.

"TRANSPORT OF WOUNDED FROM BERLIN'S EAST END IS ALSO INCREASING. BERLIN'S TRAMS, BUSES, TRUCKS, HORSE CARRIAGES AND UNDERGROUND AND ELEVATED RAILWAYS ARE STEADILY CARRYING WOUNDED THROUGH CENTRAL AND WESTERN BERLIN TOWARD SPANDAU. IT IS DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND HOW OR WHERE THEY WILL BE TREATED. AMONG THEM ARE MORE AND MORE BOYS AND WOMEN.

"IT IS COMMON TALK THAT THE 'HITLER BOYS'--12 TO 14-YEAR-OLDS AND SOMETIMES YOUNGER--ARE FIGHTING BETTER THAN MOST GROWN-UP SOLDIERS.

"THE BERLIN AUTHORITIES TODAY ORDERED ALL PRODUCTIVE LIFE IN THE CITY TO ADJUST ITSELF TO THE FRONT SITUATION. WHAT THE ORDER MEANS IS NOT ENTIRELY CLEAR, BECAUSE THERE ISN'T ANY PRODUCTIVE LIF TO SPEAK OF. THE EMPLOYES OF THE TRAM, BUS AND UNDERGROUND AND ELEVATED LINES, HOWEVER, WERE IN SERVICE AS USUAL."

SANDEBERG REPORTED THAT BERLIN'S CHURCHES WERE CROWDED ON SUNDAY MORNING, "BUT," HE SAID, "NO BELLS RANG, AND THE SERVICES WERE PUNCTUATED BY UNINTERRUPTED BURSTS OF SHELLS AND BOMBS."

STORES REMAINED OPEN THROUGHOUT THE DAY AND "WHERE SHOPS HAD FOOD THEY GAVE OUT LIBERALLY, BUT IN DISTRICTS WHERE THERE WAS A SHORTAGE FAMILIES GOT FAR LESS THAN EVEN THE NORMAL RATION."

HE SAID BERLINERS KEPT UP WITH THE ADVANCE OF THE RUSSIANS BY WATCHING MAPS IN UNDERGROUND STATIONS.

"A RED LINE WAS DRAWN ACROSS EACH STATION TAKEN BY THE RUSSIANS," HE SAID.

WITH THE U.S. 24TH DIVISION, MINDANAO ISLAND, APRIL 1-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE BATTLE FOR CENTRAL MINDANAO, SECOND ISLAND OF THE PHILIPPINES, WILL LEAD AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS ALONG NARROW, FOREST-FLANKED ROADWAYS, ALONG CROCODILE-INFESTED RIVERS AND THROUGH JUNGLE TERRITORY MARKED AS "UNEXPLORED" ON AVAILABLE MAPS.

THE CLEANING OUT OF THIS LAST MAJOR JAPANESE STRONGHOLD IN THE SOUTHERN PHILIPPINES PROBABLY WILL PRODUCE PITCHED BATTLES IN JUNGLES, MOUNTAINS AND TOWNS AND WILL INVOLVE WHAT IS EXPECTED TO BE THE LARGEST GROUP OF NIPPONESE CIVILIANS YET CONTACTED IN THIS ARCHIPELAGO.

MINDANAO'S MAIN PRE-WAR HIGHWAY NO.1 RUNS EAST-WEST THROUGH ALTERNATE FORESTED FLATLANDS AND SMALL RISES AND ALONG THE EDGES OF SWAMPS TO DAVAO, GREAT PORT CITY ON DAVAO GULF. BEFORE THE WAR DAVAO, A WORLD HEMP CENTER, WAS PRACTICALLY CONTROLLED BY JAPANESE BUSINESS INTERESTS AND HEMP GROWERS.

THE SMALL TOWN OF PIKIT, LYING 33 MILES EASTWARD FROM THE YANK BEACHHEAD, IS ON HIGHWAY NO.1 AND IS BELIEVED TO BE A MAJOR JAPANESE STRONGPOINT WHERE A MAJORITY OF THE JAPANESE WOMEN AND CHILDREN FROM COTABATO AND TAMONTACA ARE REPORTED CONCENTRATED. PIKIT IS ON THE MINDANAO RIVER--ALSO KNOWN AS THE PULANGI RIVER IN THIS AREA.

MAJOR HIGHWAY FLANK POSITIONS WEST OF PIKIT ARE THE TOWNS OF MIDSAYAP, TO THE NORTHWEST, AND DULAWAN, TO THE SOUTHWEST. ALL THESE POSITIONS ARE EXPECTED TO BE HEAVILY DEFENDED.

ABOUT 20 MILES EAST OF PIKIT ANOTHER JAPANESE STRONGPOINT IS REPORTED AT KABACAN, ONCE A GUERRILLA CENTER.

IF THE JAPANESE LOSE THESE POINTS THEY WILL BE UNABLE TO MOVE TROOPS IN CENTRAL MINDANAO AND WILL YIELD TO THE AMERICANS THE SOLE OVERLAND APPROACHES TO THE DAVAO SECTOR.

WITH 24TH DIVISION, MINDANAO ISLAND, PHILIPPINES, APRIL 20-(DELAYE (AP)-LIEUT.COL.ROBERT AMORY, JR., OF MASSACHUSETTS, TODAY RECEIVED THE SILVER STAR FOR COMMANDING WHAT HE CALLED "HOME MADE GUNBOATS" IN A SWIFT DRIVE UP THE MINDANAO RIVER.
MAJ.GEN.R.B.WOODRUFF, 24TH DIVISION COMMANDER, MAKING THE AWARD, SAID THE RIVER BOAT FORCE UNDER AMORY, EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE 533D ENGINEERS BOAT REGIMENT, MADE EXCELLENT PROGRESS IN EXPLORING THE RIVER, CONVOYING TROOPS AND ACQUIRING BASES FOR FUTURE OPERATIONS.
AMORY SAID OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE REGIMENT CONVERTED FIVE ORDINARY 65-FOOT LCM'S INTO GUNBOATS BY UTILIZING CAPTURED JAPANESE MACHINE GUNS AND WEAPONS FROM WRECKED AMERICAN PLANES. THESE GUNBOATS SPEARHEADED THE RIVER DRIVE, OPERATING ON THE PRINCIPLES OF TANK WARFARE, SWIFTLY CONVOYING INFANTRYMEN.
"THIS IS THE FIRST CHANCE THESE GUNBOATS HAD TO PROVE THEIR VALUE," SAID AMORY. "THE IDEA WAS DEVELOPED BY MEN IN THE REGIMENT AND THEY DID ALL THE WORK IN CONVERTING THE LANDING CRAFT INTO GUNBOATS."
PLOWING UP THE RIVER THE BOATS FOUGHT A FEW SKIRMISHES WITH THE JAPANESE AND BYPASSED PROBABLY 400 OF THE NIPPONESE, AMORY DECLARED. THE VESSELS FIRE ROCKETS, SMALL CANNON AND MACHINE GUNS. THEY WERE FIRST USED ON A NEW GUINEA RIVER, BUT THE MINDANAO RIVER WAS THHEIR INITIAL IMPORTANT TEST BECAUSE MUDBANKS BLOCKED OTHER CRAFT FROM USING THE STREAM.

(ADVANCE FOR AMS OF MONDAY, APRIL 23RD)

(ADVANCE)-SAN FRANCISCO, APRIL 23-(AP)-BUTTON, BUTTON, BUTTON, WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON? IT WILL MAKE QUITE A DIFFERENCE AS TO WHO HAS WHAT BUTTON AFTER NEXT WEDNESDAY.

THAT'S WHEN THE UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE GETS DOWN TO THE JOB OF SETTING UP A LEAGUE TO PREVENT FUTURE WARS. ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE WILL TAKE PART IN IT IN ONE WAY OR ANOTHER.

THERE WILL BE DIPLOMATS, DELEGATES, EXPERTS ON THINGS LIKE TRADE AND BANKING, NEWSMEN, RADIO COMMENTATORS AND THEIR ENGINEERS, MESSENGER BOYS, PORTERS, CARPENTERS, -,$ &-,$6-MEN TO FIX THINGS.

JUST SO THE WRONG PEOPLE WON'T WANDER INTO THE RIGHT PLACES AT THE WRONG TIME, THE STATE DEPARTMENT HAS A SCHEME. AND THIS IS IT.

EVERYONE WHO WILL HAVE ANY BUSINESS IN THE TWO BUILDINGS WHERE THE CONFERENCE WILL BE HELD--THE OPERA HOUSE OR THE VETERANS BUILDING NEXT DOOR--MUST HAVE A PASS. THE STATE DEPARTMENT ISSUES THEM.

FOR INSTANCE: A DELEGATE FROM ONE OF THE 46 UNITED NATIONS WILL GET A GRAY PASS TO CARRY IN HIS POCKET IN CASE A GUARD STOPS HIM.

A MEMBER OF THE SECRETARIAT--THE STENOGRAPHERS, CLERKS AND SPECIALISTS WHO HAVE BEEN PICKED TO WORK FOR THE DELEGATES--WILL ALSO GET A GRAY PASS.

A NEWSPAPERMAN--EACH MUST ALREADY HAVE OBTAINED PERMISSION FROM THE STATE DEPARTMENT TO BE AT THE CONFERENCE--WILL GET A DIFFERENT COLORED PASS.

APR 23 1945

A VISITOR--THAT IS, JUST A ONE-DAY VISITOR--WILL GET A WHITE PASS.

AND THERE WILL BE SPECIAL YELLOW PASSES FOR SPECIAL VISITORS. THESE ARE PEOPLE WHO, ALTHOUGH NOT TAKING PART IN THE PROCEEDINGS, HAVE BEEN INVITED TO BE PRESENT AT THE CONFERENCE.

A ONE-DAY VISITOR WILL BE ALLOWED ONLY INTO THE OPERA HOUSE ON ONE OF THOSE STATE DAYS WHEN THE DELEGATES PUT ON THEIR STRIPED PANTS, GET TOGETHER PUBLICLY FOR SOME FORMAL ACTION OR TO LISTEN TO SPEECHES.

BUT A SPECIAL VISITOR WITH THE YELLOW PASS CAN GO TO ALL THE OPERA HOUSE SESSIONS AND WANDER AROUND AS HE PLEASES--BUT NOT INTO CERTAIN OFFICES--IN THE VETERANS BUILDING WHERE THE REAL WORK OF THE CONFERENCE WILL BE DONE.

AT THIS POINT, MAYBE, YOU'RE BEGINNING TO WONDER: WHERE DO THE BTTONS COME IN? WHO GETS THE BUTTON? WHO GETS WHAT BUTTON?

THE DELEGATES AND THE MEMBERS OF THE SECRETARIAT WILL GET NOT ONLY A GRAY PASS. THEY'LL ALSO GET A GRAY BUTTON--ABOUT 1-INCH ACROSS --TO WEAR ON THEIR COATS.

APR 23 1945

AND MAYBE THE NEWSPAPERMEN WILL GET BUTTONS TO GO WITH THEIR PASSES BUT THIS IS NOT CERTAIN. IT SEEMS THE STATE DEPARTMENT ONLY PUT IN AN ORDER FOR BUTTONS FOR NEWSPAPERMEN TWO DAYS AGO. MAYBE THEY WON'T ARRIVE.

BUT OUTSIDE OF THOSE--DELEGATES, MEMBERS OF THE SECRETARIAT AND NEWSPAPERMEN AND RADIO PEOPLE--NO ONE GETS A BUTTON.

SO--IF YOU'RE ONE OF THOSE CASUAL VISITORS WHO COME POKING AROUND AND GET A WHITE, ONE-DAY VISITOR'S PASS, DON'T TRY TO FLASH IT ON THE GUARDS AND FIGURE IT WILL GET YOU THROUGH TO HOB-NOB WITH THE DIPLOMATS.

Soviet Link-Up With U.S. Units Expected Today

WHEELER

LONDON, Tuesday, April 24.—(AP) With the guns of Nazi SS fanatics at their backs German army troops counter-attacked vainly in Berlin today, but the Russians swarmed over one-third of the city and German reports indicated savage fighting was swirling through nearly one-half of the wrecked German capital.

Southwest of the burning city, Red army tanks surged to the Elbe river within 20 miles of American forces awaiting a link-up, and a three-power announcement that the western and eastern Allies had joined was expected momentarily.

Berlin was almost encircled, and a supplement to the Soviet communique said early today that two Russian armies, attacking after a massive artillery barrage, had hurled the Germans back into the inner built-up area of Berlin.

Hitler Reported in Berlin

The Germans said that Adolf Hitler in person was directing the defense.

The Soviet war bulletin said the Russian tanks had burst across the belt railroad protecting the inner city and had captured the metropolitan gas works only eight blocks from Alexander Platz, one of Berlin's major commercial centers. Several blocks in the area were seized after heavy German counter-attacks were repelled.

But the German counterattacks were being launched apparently only because the guns of SS troopers were at the backs of German army officers.

Moscow said that German commanders had asked permission to retreat but the orders came back:

"Hold out at any event—whoever retreats will be shot." German artillery had been ordered by radio to fire on retreating German soldiers, Moscow said.

Marshal Stalin disclosed that only a 16-mile gap remained to be sealed on the west. The Germans admitted it had been narrowed to 10 miles and the Luxembourg radio broadcast an unconfirmed report that the city which Hitler had planned to be capital of the world for 1,000 years was caught in a steel ring.

Reds Reach Elbe

Southwest of Berlin's smouldering and debris-littered streets Soviet forces, climaxing a dramatic 100-mile sweep in seven days, reached the Elbe at Muehlberg northwest of Dresden and approached the river on a 38-mile front.

The defenders of the sprawling German capital were fighting a losing battle. Late last night the German radio—in probably the most authoritative report from the city—said the Soviets were fighting on Friedrich's park and near Koenigs gate, a mile and a half from the center of the city at the intersection of Unter Den Linden and Friedrichstrasse.

But throughout the city waves of Soviet tanks were battering through the streets, smashing down barricades, overcoming tank traps and plunging in a great arc extending 35 miles around the city from the northwest through the east and south to the southwest.

Swedish and Swiss reports said that Russian tanks were rolling down shell-cratered Unter Den Linden toward Hitler's Reichs Chancellery on the Wilhelmstrasse. The Russians' mass of armor was sweeping forward at an almost unbelievable rate. Some observers speculated that the entire city might fall within two days, as another 11,000 prisoners were herded into Red army cages.

The Russians' mighty spurge to the Elbe completely isolated Berlin from the Nazis national redoubt to the south and effectively split Hitler's "Fortress Europe" in two.

The Russians were 22 miles from last reported American positions on the Mulde river near Wurzen, west of the Elbe, but the swift drive had effectively cut off all northern Germany from the south, from Austria, Czechoslovakia and northern Italy.

Germans Fight Germans

The Nazi underground "Werewolf" radio said that Germans were fighting Germans inside Berlin's barricades, reporting that "traitors" were firing at German troops in northern Berlin, where waves of Red army tanks were plunging relentlessly toward Unter Den Linden and Friedrichstrasse, dead center of the city.

At the same time, an overwhelming mass of Soviet armor was blasting into Berlin from the south.

The escape gap rapidly was being closed and one report said it had been narrowed to five miles in the area of menaced Spandau on the northwest.

The Nazis, rooting huddling civilians from shelters, threw women and boys into the inferno of the city's death battle as the Russians bored in from three sides under a blanket of shellfire which had churned mile after mile of the city into a wasteland of twisted steel and stone.

In the first of three orders of the day, Stalin announced that massive Russian forces under the 99 generals and 50 other commanding officers of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army had captured five major districts of Berlin proper and four outlying towns.

APR 24 1945

In the city, Zhukov's tidal wave swept into Pankow, populous working class industrial district on the north, three miles from the city, and on the east captured Coepenik, Friedrichsfelde, Wandlitz and Karlshorst.

From Pankow, the Soviet power-drive battered down Muellerstrasse, upper half of Friedrichstrasse, neared the terminus of the Friedrichstrasse subway and moved toward the city center. The Germans admitted also that bitter fighting was raging in Prenzlauer Allee as tank-riding infantrymen converged toward Alexander Platz near the inner city.

Smash Toward Center

From captured Friedrichstrasse and Coeppnik, the Russians pressed along Frankfurterstrasse and Landsbergerstrasse toward Alexanderplatz and Berlin's cathedral. Friedrichstrasse is five miles from the heart of the capital.

At the same time, Zhukov's troops surged westward north of the city and captured Oranienburg, 17 miles northeast of the heart of Berlin, took nearby Birkenwerder and surged across the Havel river in the northern arm of a closing pincer on the city. They won Hennisdorf on Lake Tegel and were reported in German broadcasts to have swept into the northwestern suburb of Heiligensee.

Meanwhile as Stalin disclosed that by-passed and embattled Frankfurt on the Oder, 33 miles east of Berlin, fell, troops of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army plunged into Berlin from the south, breaking through the German defense ring based on the circular autobahn.

Konev's assault forces had penetrated to Tetlow, 13 miles south of Zhukov's troops reported in Heiligensee. Tetlow lies on the southwestern fringe of Berlin proper, and Mariendorf and nearby Lichtenfelde in the southern half of the city also had been invested, the Germans said.

Konev's troops pushed into southern Berlin by capturing Marienfelde, and Moscow dispatches said that Tempelhof, in the southern half of the city, also had been entered. One unconfirmed report said that the great Tempelhof air-drome, cratered by artillery and aerial bombardment, had been captured.

Stalin revealed that Konev's forces had advanced up to 97 miles in their mighty offensive south of Berlin which broke through to the Elbe river, and won more than 17 major towns in a drive that slashed across all Berlin's communications with the mountain redoubt of Bavaria.

The Hamburg radio said that German Army reserves had been thrown into the battle for Berlin.

Border Bastion Captured

Earlier German broadcasts said that Russian troops which pushed into the capital from the north were engaged in violent fighting in the workers' district of Wedding.

only 2 from Brandenburg gate.

Stalin's third order of the day announced that Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's Fourth Ukrainian Army in the Silesian Basin had captured the German-Czechoslovak border bastion of Opava (Troppau), guarding the gate to Central Moravia, one of the last remaining German arsenals.

Stalin's orders disclosed that Gen. Ivan I. Petrov, former commander of the 4th Ukrainian Army, was chief of staff under Marshal Konev in the great 1st Ukrainian Army drive south of Berlin.

APR 24 1945

Reds Gain In Berlin, Take Frankfurt On Oder

London, April 23 (AP)—Marshal Stalin announced today that the Red Army had reached the Elbe River.

London, April 23 (AP)—Marshal Stalin, proclaiming Russian entry into Berlin, announced today the fall of Frankfurt on the Oder River and said Red Army troops were within 4 miles of the heart of the German capital.

Stalin in an order of the day directed to 99 generals and 50 other officers said Red Army troops had smashed the German capital's defenses and captured Pankow, Oranienburg, Coepenik and Friedrichsfelde—suburban communities on the northwest, north, east and southeast of Berlin.

Other Towns Taken

In addition, the order said Marshal Gregory Zhukov's White Russian Army troops captured Birkenwerder and Henningsdorf—the latter on the west bank of the Havel River and 4 miles from Lake Tegel on the northwest fringe of the capital. Wandlitz and Karlshorst also fell to the advancing Russians.

The order, which directed that Moscow's victory guns give twenty salvoes from 224 guns, said units of the Polish 1st Army under Lieutenant General Poplawski participated in the Russian victory.

Pankow is 4 miles north of the center of the German capital and Friedricksfelde 4 miles east of the center. Oranienburg is 7 miles north of Greater Berlin and Coepenik is 9 miles southeast of the city. Karlshorst is near Friedricksfelde and Birkenwerder close to Oranienburg.

Frankfort Bypassed Week Ago

Frankfurt-on-the-Oder was bypassed by the Russians at the start of the offensive against Berlin a week ago. The order said the Russians advanced from 37 to 62 miles from their jumpoff points.

Stalin's order was the first mention of Marshal Zhukov since March 20, when his army took Alidamm, near Stettin, and apparently dispelled reports broadcast by the Germans that he had been recalled to Moscow and displaced.

Moscow dispatches said Red banners fluttered from battered and smoking buildings in the capital and that Soviet storm units appeared to be only a few miles from the Wilhelmstrasse and from Under den Linden and Tiergarten in the heart of the city.

There was only one way out of Berlin—westward by way of Spandau—and unconfirmed reports said this escape corridor now was narrowed to little more than 5 miles.

To the south other Russian forces were within 15 miles or less of a junction with their American allies.

[The Moscow radio said today the German air force had massed 1,000 aircraft for the defense of Berlin and that Soviet pilots shot down 411 in air combat during the past four days. The broadcast was recorded by Blue Network monitors.]

Fighting In Suburbs

The German high command communiqué said fighting was raging through Beelitz, Trebbin, Tetlow and Dahlwitz, a string of southern suburbs within 10 to 24 miles of the heart of the capital.

The high command claimed that a Russian breach along the Prenzlauer allee running almost due north 3 miles from the Potsdamplatz had been sealed off and disclosed that a Soviet encircling swing north of the city had reached the Havel River, which runs north and south just west of the capital through Spandau and Charlottenburg, western suburbs.

Moscow dispatches said the Soviet assault was being directed from the Red Army's 1st headquarters post inside Berlin's outskirts, where commanders worked in a German-built air-raid shelter.

Red Army groups were reported making their way along Landsburg and Frankfurter strassen—broad thoroughfares running east and southeast, 3 and 2½ miles from the heart of the city.

Moscow reports also said heavy fighting was raging along the Muller strasse, 3½ miles northwest of the Potsdamer platz.

In the southwestern suburbs, Russian forces were fighting in the Tempelhof area, site of Berlin's great airport and 4 miles from the city's heart.

Barricades On Every Avenue

The Russians were reported using mortars and anti-tank guns to blast a path for their advancing forces. On every avenue they had to smash barricades and destroy machine gun and sniper nests.

The Germans were said to be fighting from many concrete pillboxes as well as from barricades constructed of sandbags, overturned trucks and busses and rubble from bombed buildings.

In some places furniture and store furnishings were dragged from blasted buildings and heaped in the streets to provide breastworks, the Russians said.

A Pravda dispatch told of the banners of the Stalingrad Guards divisions being planted in the German capital.

In addition to the Guards banners which have gone up in Berlin, Pravda said Russian Guardsmen were carrying Red flags even in the front lines of the Berlin streets—carrying them like runners in a relay race. When one falls another darts forward, takes up the flag and dashes forward with it to a newly won position, the newspaper said.

Rockets Fired On Reds

Dispatches told of stubborn German resistance in the streets and from the air with rocket-firing Messerschmitts and bombers flying 200 feet over the heads of the Russians.

From buildings in the city, many of which have deep trenches around them, the Germans are endeavoring to maintain contact over field radios.

"My command point is surrounded by Russians and I can't see to fire," one Nazi officer was quoted by Pravda as saying. "All I can see is fire and smoke. What must we do?"

Another front-line dispatch reported groups of Germans marched forward with white flags above their heads and grenades hidden behind their backs. They were shot down.

The enemy has poisoned water supplies, a correspondent wrote.

The German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau reported Soviet tanks and infantry in the heart of the city, and told of 3,000,000 residents crowded so closely in underground shelters they could not be seated.

The Paris radio reported that Soviet troops had reached Unter den Linden and that fierce fighting was raging around the Brandenburger tor in the area that once was the center of Berlin's official and social life. The broadcast attributed its information to "a secret German language station."

Station Seizure Claimed

Earlier the Paris radio carried an unconfirmed report that foreign workers had seized the Warschauer Bruecke railway station, about 2½ miles from Unter den Linden. This report said foreign workers were battling SS troops in the Zimmerstrasse, which runs ten blocks south of Unter den Linden and is the site of many of Berlin's newspaper plants.

The Swiss radio chimed in with a report that the Russians were fighting for the great Anhalter railway station, about a mile south of the Brandenburger Tor. Farther southwest other Red Army troops were reported in the Neukoelln district, once a Communist center. Flames were raging through the Anhalter station, the Swiss report said.

The official Soviet war bulletin was more conservative than these accounts, but said eighteen of Berlin's inner districts and three outer suburbs were captured and that fighting was in progress in the area of the Berlin belt railway. At least 8,000 Germans were killed in Berlin Sunday, and prisoners taken in the past five days mounted to 23,000, the Russians said.

As Red Army forces advanced through Berlin, Soviet tanks to the south rolled as much as twenty-one miles across the Brandenburg plain along a 104-mile front that carried them into the strategic rail and road center of Elsterwerde, twenty - seven miles northeast of outflanked Dresden.

In an advance ten miles northeast of Dresden the Russians captured Bischofswerda, sixteen miles from their goal. Other Red Army spearheads enveloped Luebben, thirty-five miles southeast of Berlin, and Dahme, thirty-five miles south. The Russians did not confirm German reports that fighting raged in Koenigswusterhausen, three miles southeast of Berlin.

Since the drive on Berlin the Russians have claimed the destruction of more than 945 Nazi tanks and the capture or shooting down of 780 German planes.

Moscow said the push into Berlin's northern and eastern districts was on a twisting thirty-mile front from the northwest district of Glienicke to Wilhelmshagen and Friederichshagen on the east.

Third Army Takes 33,000 German Prisoners in 53-Mile Sweep.

PARIS, Tuesday, April 24—(AP) A powerful new U. S. Third army offensive swept 53 miles across the northern approaches to Hitler's Alpine fortress yesterday as Russian forces in radio contact with the Americans on the U. S. First army front hinted that the historic junction might come today.

A Russian from the front south of Berlin sent "cheerful greetings to our American comrades" crackling across to the listening Americans. The U. S. Ninth army saw Russian flares on the Berlin front, a possible indicator that the Red army was approaching the Ninth army under cover of night.

Junction Is Imminent

While the world waited for this welding of the Allies of east and west at the center of the Reich, three Allied armies set the whole 225-mile southern front ablaze with a relentless onslaught that was threatening hourly to burst into Germany's last battleground in the south.

Once more the power of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army was turned on, and 33,000 prisoners taken in the opening hours of the drive. Now his tanks and troops were hurdling the river barriers 75 miles north of Munich, northern sentinel city of the Alpine redoubt.

The hard-hitting tank columns had been moved secretly 125 miles south from the front pointed toward the Elbe, and they fell upon the fanatic SS troops, chosen to stand and die in the south, before they knew what hit them.

Yanks Run Wild

A field dispatch declared that tanks and troops were running wild across the rivers and hills and reports were current on the front that the Germans were hurriedly clearing civilians from Salzburg, eastern anchor of the redoubt. Salzburg now is 106 miles ahead of the American troops.

The French First Army and the U. S. Seventh Army had torn breaches in the Danube river line 25 and 48 miles from the western outposts of the retreat at Lake Constance.

The Seventh Army threw back the Germans four miles from its bridgehead on the Danube 50 miles from Munich. Swift moving spearheads drove up to the river for close support at Donauwoerth and Erlingshofen, only nine miles to the northeast.

Here the Seventh was 17 miles from the German city of Augsburg and farther to the southwest infantry battled nine miles west of the Danube stronghold of Ulm.

Disorganization spread through German ranks north of the Danube, a battle dispatch said. Whole units, surprised that all retreat had been cut off, were surrendering.

While the Germans were hotly pressed to keep the French and the U. S. Seventh Army out of their well-manned and well-stocked mountain fortress, the Third Army threw its enormous weight into the struggle.

The French First Army closed up to the Swiss frontier on a 38-mile front east of the Black Forest pocket and was driving east along the north shores of Lake Constance toward Friedrichshafen, 15 miles from the Austrian frontier at the east end of the lake.

On the British front far to the north, Bremen—second greatest port of Germany—was under heavy assault and troops driving in from the east last were reported five miles from the heart of the city.

British Close on Bremen

Troops and tanks driving in less than two miles south of Bremen cut the mains furnishing the city's principal water supply.

Other British forces hammering a siege arc around Hamburg, the No. 1 port of the Reich, seized Harsefeld, 20 miles to the west and Esterbrugge, 10 miles west. From the latter point they began shelling enemy shipping in the Elbe estuary.

Canadians in western Holland made a surprise crossing of the Maas river 25 miles west of Rotterdam, and in the north Polish troops fought up to within six and a half miles of the port of Emden.

The U. S. Third army threw its enormous weight southward at a time when the Germans were hotly pressed to keep the French and the Seventh army out of their well-manned and well-stocked mountain fortress.

Bent on making the kill quickly one armored column rumbled up 13 miles from the Danubian stronghold of Regensburg and about 75 miles from Munich, which stands at the northern edge of the Alpine redoubt.

Other columns burst across the Naab river and swept almost unopposed 23 miles southeast through disorganized defenses into Haag and Wetterfeld, northeast of Regensburg and 43 miles southwest of the Czech armaments city of Pilsen.

The blows were dealt in concert with those of the U. S. Seventh and French First armies, already 29 to 48 miles from the westernmost ramparts of the redoubt, and pouring southward in tremendous strength.

Danube Line Buckles

The Danube river line was buckling under the impact of the U. S. Seventh army's armored attack which carried across the historic barrier 50 miles west of Munich and was closing up to the stream on a 50-mile front.

The Seventh army deepened its Danube bridgehead at Dillingen to four miles, hammering back Elite troops rushed up to meet it, and was six miles from a super highway leading into Munich.

Other Seventh Army armored forces stabbed to the Danube 48 miles from the western outpost of the Nazis' Alpine retreat on the eastern shores of Lake Constance.

In the center of the Western front, the U. S. First and Ninth armies listened to the rumble of Russian guns and, with junction patrols alerted, waited for the link-up that would be announced from Washington, London and Moscow simultaneously.

It was clear that the two big American armies were waitnig for the Russians to come to them, since only patrols were operating beyond or close to the Elbe river—the probable junction point.

Drive Launched To Cut Off Nazi Redoubt In South. LONG

Paris, April 23 (AP)—General Patton's 3d Army smashed 28 miles against the roof of Hitler's Bavarian redoubt today, joining the general offensive in the south which burst through the enemy's Danube River line within 50 miles of Munich.

In the north, the British opened the final onslaught against Bremen and the American 1st and 9th armies anxiously awaited a junction with the Russians—expected momentarily.

APR 24 1945

The Luxembourg radio asserted that the 1st Army had joined the Russians near Torgau, 31 miles northeast of Leipzig, finally splitting the Germans' northern redoubt from the mountain-fastness in the south.

Supreme headquarters had no confirmation and said the junction would be announced by Washington, London and Moscow. At last reports, the Allies and Russians were 15 to 20 miles apart.

Dessau Captured

The 1st Army captured Dessau, 52 miles southwest of beleaguered Berlin, along with 21,373 prisoners. The fall of Dessau left only fourteen German cities under the Nazi flag.

Patton imposed a security blackout soon after his 3d Army captured two bridges intact across the Naab River, a tributary of the Danube, northwest of Regensburg. Blackouts in the past have cloaked breakthroughs of transcendant importance.

Resistance stiffened late in the day, however, as 3d Army troops started encountering knots of fanatical SS troops, possibly garrison forces of the redoubt.

Many Routes Cut Off

Patton's new offensive carried within 128 miles of Berchtesgaden and within 25 of the Danubian city of Regensburg. His troops reached within 125 miles of the Austrian stronghold of Linz in a swift advance which severed many of the routes between the redoubt and the Pilsen-Prague munitions area.

The 3d Army operated on the left of General Patch's 7th Army, which closed up to the Danube to within 50 miles of Munich and 110 of the Brenner Pass. The French on the right curled around Lake Constance, western edge of the redoubt, and closed up to the Swiss border behind a 1,000-square-mile trap sprung in the Black Forest.

Race Across Danube

Stuttgart and Freiburg, two of Hitler's last major cities, fell to General Devers' 6th Army group. The 7th Army was racing across the Danube on a bridge captured intact.

The new 3d Army offensive was estimated to have netted 33,000 prisoners in the first 24 hours. It extended the southern offensive all the way from the Swiss to Czechoslovak frontiers.

Hitler's hideaway in the towering mountains from Berchtesgaden to Lake Constance was being brought under attack, even before the formal splitting of the German armies was announced.

3d Turns Secretly

The 3d Army turned abruptly and secretly from its eastward drive against Dresden and other parts of Saxony, in an operation scarcely less difficult than when it shifted from the Saar into the Ardennes to counter the German Christmas breakthrough.

The Germans apparently had not expected the outer ramparts of their last fortress to be charged so soon. They were reeling back, offering slight opposition.

The 9th Army captured Dannenburg, 45 miles southeast of besieged Hamburg, and won control of all the west bank of the Elbe River from opposite Dannenburg to a point south of Barby, where a bridgehead extends 6 miles across the river. The British held another 50-mile stretch of the Elbe and were within 20 miles of a junction with the 9th Army.

Maas River Crossed

On General Eisenhower's extreme left flank, British and other troops of the Canadian 1st Army established two bridgeheads over the Maas River due south of Utrecht and west of 'sHertogenbosch. Opposition was light, as the bulk of the enemy had withdrawn north of the Neder Rhine. The move threatened to outflank the flooded Grebbe River line.

The 3d Army push was paced by the Thunderbolt (11th Armored) Division which drove into Schwarzenfeld and Naburg.

Neumarket, southeast of Nuernberg, and Weiden were among the towns which fell.

Patton's troops in Czechoslovakia also gained. Thonbrun, three miles north of captured Asch, an industrial Sudeteland city, and Dolreuth, two miles east of Asch, were taken.

His troops were within 5 miles of Eger.

Prisoner Bag Rises

Tirschenreuth, closest to Pilsen and Prague, fell to the Texas and Oklahoma (90th) Division, which captured 1,500 Hungarian troops.

Meanwhile, supreme headquarters announced that 37,276 prisoners were captured Saturday, raising the total for April to 963,200 and the aggregate since D-day ten months ago to 2,292,905.

APR 24 1945

The Harz Mountain pocket was erased finally with 56,000 captives taken.

The 1st Army, 52 miles southwest of Berlin, captured Bitterfeld. Chemnitz, in Saxony, remained besieged by troops in its outskirts.

Crailshelm fell to the 7th Army, and the troops of General Devers also captured Sigmaringen, where Petain and Laval had conducted a puppet French government in the old haunts of the Hohenzollerns.

In reaching the western shores of Lake Constance, General de Tassigny's French Army was within 230 miles of Modena, which Allied armies in Italy besieged. They were 108 miles across the Alps from the northern boundary of Italy.

The 7th Army reached a point only 10 miles from Ulm. At Seissen the 44th Division was within cannon shot of Ulm.

Bremen Hammered

The French press agency asserted that the Germans had declared Constance an open city and that "thousands of Americans and British injured prisoners of war" were there.

The final crushing blow at Bremen was undertaken with the full weight of Allied air fleets and a formidable array of British armor and infantry which had the U-boat base virtually surrounded and cut off from Hamburg.

On Friday night, planes dropped 100,000 leaflets informing the people of Bremen of the impending attack, declaring that the city would be bombed and shelled unless the garrison surrendered. The ultimatum was not heeded and yesterday the RAF dumped massive loads of bombs into the heart of the port.

Hit From End To End

A telephoned surrender demand was formulated, but the commandant refused to come to the phone.

Bremen defenses were predicated on canals, dikes, rail embankments and watersoaked plains. Artillery battered the positions from one end to the other.

How long the Bremen garrison could hold out depended upon the fighting temper of the troops, many of whom are hand-picked Marines. The bulk of the civiltans probably are more than ready to quit by now, Associated Press Correspondent William Frye reported.

In winning 50 miles of the Elbe, which attains a width of two to four miles beyond Hamburg, the British captured the North Sea naval headquarters at Buxtehude, west of Hamburg, where Admiral Engel was taken prisoner. He was second in command in the North Sea area. Rotenburg also fell.

The Canadians west of Bremen eliminated a German bulge southeast of Friesoythe and marched to within seven miles of Oldenburg.

Ten Miles From Utrecht

Canadian advances in northwest Germany ranged up to 4 miles, but only patroling was reported on the Grebbe line, 10 miles from Utrecht and 20-odd miles from Amsterdam. The German 25th Army appeared to have caught its second wind and to be in stout positions to defend western Holland. There was fighting near Amersfoort.

Polish troops occupied Folmhusen and reached Bockhorst, just north of the Kusten Canal near the Ems River. Advancing northeast of Papenburg in the Emden vicinity, the 1st Polish Armored Division established itself in the area of Rhaudermoor and Killinghorst. Mined roads and blown culverts were encountered.

Meanwhile, the German communique said the German front was torn open in the Wurttemberg-Baden area and that the 7th Army had reached the Danube at several points between Dillingen and Donau-Eschingen.

Airbases Near Danish Border Are Also Attacked

APR 24 1945

London, April 23 (AP)—British planes today pelted bombs and rockets into troop-laden enemy ships sneaking out from the Frisian Islands off the Dutch coast, and set fire to at least two.

Second Tactical Air Force Typhoons and Spitfires also attacked German airbases near the Danish border, destroying 50 parked planes and shooting down two, while other groups caught a fleet of German aircraft fueled and loaded for a takeoff from the Eggebek airfield, exploding eleven of them on the ground and damaging thirteen others.

Still other units raked German troops retreating north from Emden, and bombed and knocked out 22 locomotives and 100 railway cars in another crippling blow at enemy transportation.

German Freighter Sunk

Rocket-firing RAF Beaufighters guarded by Mustangs sank a medium sized German freighter and damaged two escorting flak ships in the Sogne Fjord on the Norwegian coast, diving between cliffs 3,000 feet high to reach their targets.

Despite bad weather the 9th Air Force flew 150 fighter-bomber trips in late afternoon, destroying seventeen enemy planes on an airfield and plastering scattered rail and road targets ahead of the 3d Army.

The Tactical Air Force said its Frisian Island operation climaxed a week in which it made "successful" attacks on 60 enemy ships and nearly 100 barges in that general area, apparently evacuating troops from the Zuyder Zee who were threatened with being cut off by Canadian troops.

Berlin Greatest Target

With targets in Germany becoming fewer as the Allied armies advanced across the stricken Reich, it was revealed today that Berlin has afforded Allied bombers their greatest single target of the war.

A review of air force records shows that the RAF has dropped more than 51,000 tons of bombs in 282 night raids on Berlin, while United States 8th Air Force heavies delivered nearly 26,000 tons on nineteen daylight raids, making a British-American total of 77,000 tons let loose in 301 missions over Hitler's first city.

Some bomb cavities here cover whole square blocks. Normal living conditions ceased to exist in the German capital months ago. Hundreds of acres of the city have been devastated. Casualties and homeless run into hundreds of thousands.

RAID PRECEDES ATTACK ON BREMEN

JAMESON

London, April 23 (A. P.),—Bremen, Germany's second largest city, apparently was being readied for the kill today by the R. A. F., which hit the great port yesterday and again last night in a prelude to a final all-out assault by Field Marshal Montgomery's land forces.

A fleet of approximately 250 Lancasters blasted the dock areas with 12,000-pound earthquake bombs just a few hours before dusk and Mosquitoes, switching from their nightly attacks on Berlin, followed up a few hours later with a salvo of 2,000-pound blockbusters.

The big naval base of Kiel also was bombed twice by Mosquitoes over the week end. Two bombers and one fighter were lost in the four raids the Air Ministry said.

Friday night British planes dropped 100,000 copies of a leaflet on Bremen urging the people to surrender the city.

United States Ninth Air Force fighters flew 400 sorties against railways in Czecho-Slovakia and Austria without loss.

HITLER TELLS WOES TO DUCE

EASTSEIKE

Struggle For Existence At Climax, Fuehrer Asserts

London, April 23 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, reported by Nazi sources to be still in Berlin, cried out today in an eleventh-hour message to his one-time Axis partner, Benito Mussolini, that the "struggle for our very existence has reached its climax."

As the German Führer sent his report to the deposed Duce in Milan, the Nazi "Werewolf" radio hinted at fratricidal denouncement inside the capital, asserting that Germans were now fighting Germans in the streets.

Report On Hitler Changed

Earlier today Nazi propagandists broadcast that Hitler, with Gauleiter Paul Joseph Goebbels at his side, was inside Berlin "directing from the front line." Tonight, a station broadcasting on the wavelength used by the underground Werewolves changed this to say Hitler was not in the city but that Goebbels, "the Führer's trusted friend, is directing the Berlin Volkssturm."

This late broadcast did not say where Hitler was but added that "the Werewolves have been informed the Führer has issued an historic order for the German troops from the west to march upon Berlin."

"These tested units," it continued, "have been ordered to intervene in the battle for Berlin and the first of them has already reached the capital periphery. There is no doubt a few days, perhaps a few hours, will decide this battle."

Quotes Message To Duce

The German radio quoted Hitler's message to Mussolini as saying:

"The struggle for our very existence has reached its climax. Employing vast masses of material, Bolshevism and the troops of Jewry are staking all with the object of combining their destructive forces in Germany to precipitate our continent into chaos."

The Werewolf broadcast on fighting among Germans inside Berlin said "traitors" were firing at German troops from several blocks of buildings.

Commandos Sent To Area

"When the traitors in blocks of flats in a northern Berlin district opened fire on German troops," the station said, "a Werewolf commando unit was detached to eliminate the traitors' nest. After a fierce battle the Werewolves stormed the building and brought out the surviving traitors. They were shot in the streets."

The broadcast telling of Hitler and Goebbels standing side by side amidst a Goetterdaemmerung scene, said they demanded "iron discipline from every Berliner."

Men, Women And Youths

The forces under them were described in a broadcast over the Hamburg wave length as "all available forces—men, women and youths loyal and faithful to our sacred task to save Europe from deadly Bolshevism."

That was the Nazi story, admittedly issued "to kill all rumors" that Hitler had fled the dying city. But these rumors persisted. Stock-

Germans Declare Adolf Hitler Is in Berlin

Deny Widespread Rumor Fuehrer Has Fled —Say Goebbels Also Is in Capital.

London, April 23 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler is in Berlin and has decided to remain there, the Hamburg radio said today in a broadcast addressed to the people of Berlin in an effort to convince them that the invaded capital would not fall. Both the tone and wording of the announcement made it clear that rumors were sweeping the Reich that Der Fuehrer was in flight.

Hamburg declared flatly that the announcement was made to stem "fantastic rumors by which the enemy is attempting to undermine the morale of the German people."

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels is also in the capital, it also said. It conceded that the fall of Berlin would virtually mean the end of the war. It quoted Goebbels as saying: "There are two bastions which we cannot and will not cede." He referred to Berlin and Prague, the Czech capital. "If these two bastions fall into enemy hands the whole of Europe will perish with Germany. Should Bolshevism capture these capitals of the Reich and the Protectorate, Europe ceases to exist."

Fuehrer 'Directing' Battle.

Continuing, Hamburg said: "Many people were afraid that the German lines before Berlin would not hold against the Russian onslaught, but now it has been shown that these lines did hold fast after all.

"We tell the whole world. Der Fuehrer has decided to stay on in Berlin.

"Der Fuehrer is directing the battle from the front line in Berlin and he has thrown in all available forces to stem the Bolshevist onslaught."

Yesterday, DNB, the German official news agency, declared in a broadcast that the Nazi troops in Berlin were under command of a "Lieut.-Col. Remer." Previously Lieut.-Gen. Bruno Ritter von Hauenschild was reported commander in the capital. No mention was made of his fate.

Though the name was heard here as "Col. Remer," the new commander may be Lieut.-Gen. Emil Remer, who was officially credited with foiling a plot to seize the city when he was a major in charge of a Wehrmacht battalion during the attempt on Hitler's life last July.

Authoritative London spokesmen professed no knowledge—at least for publication—of Hitler's whereabouts, but one reliable informant expressed doubt that either Hitler or Goebbels, president of the Berlin city government, was in the capital. He added that, if killed or captured, Hitler could not serve as a symbol of continuing underground warfare.

Calls for Guerrilla War.

Meanwhile Hitler has called upon his troops to resort to guerrilla warfare. In an official order captured by British forces below Hamburg, he directed his soldiers to hit the Allies' "weak spots—the flanks, the rear and the lines of communication—if possible in his administrative areas."

In frank acknowledgement of the success the Russian guerrillas achieved against the Germans, Hitler declared: "We have to adopt the same methods which were shown and taught us by the Russians in the years 1942-44."

As Hitler fell back on this strategy born of desperation, there were reports of Nazi bigwigs in headlong flight and of "capitulation negotiations."

An Associated Press dispatch from the Swiss frontier said that panic had swept the German border area around Lake Constance. A Swiss report said that the wives of Gestapo Chief Himmler and Reichsmarshal Goering were among those fleeing the French and American troops closing in on that area. The Swiss radio announced that the Swiss-German frontier was closed and that traffic was halted between Switzerland and Lichtenstein on the eastern border of Switzerland.

In addition to the Hamburg radio Munich was on the air today with different news broadcasts for the now virtually separate south of Germany, but could not be clearly heard here. A third station was operating on short wave from an unknown site, while the Morse system news services were silent and the DNB European service announced it would curtail transmissions. The German radio has given up trying to warn of the approach of Allied bombers, which caused programs to be interrupted every few minutes until last week.

The Swedish authorities were advised in Stockholm that telephone and telegraph communication between Hamburg and Berlin no longer exists.

holm heard that the Nazi Government had gone to Salzburg in the south, and the Free Dutch radio declared Hitler had fled to a northern redoubt in Mecklenburg province, adjacent to Denmark.

"Hitler is in Berlin and has decided to remain there in this grave hour," said the German broadcast, quoting a pronouncement by Goebbels. "We announce this to the German people and to the entire world and thereby kill any fantastic rumors with which the enemy attempts to undermine the morale of the German people.

Term Berlin, Prague Bastions

"When they ask why Hitler remains in Berlin, we give this answer: We, the children of a happy Europe which has left us to fight Bolshevism by ourselves, will do everything in our power not only to stem the Russian advance but to throw back the hated Bolshevist enemy. We still possess the strength to deal with our task one way or another.

"There are two bastions which we cannot abandon to the Bolsheviks and which we shall not abandon unless the whole of Europe is to go down with us. These two bastions are Berlin and Prague (capital of prewar Czechoslovakia), against which Bolshevism now is hurling itself.

"If the Bolsheviks succeed in taking Berlin—and we say that at a time when the main fighting line runs through the Reich capital—and they conquer Prague, there's no longer a Europe left.

Renews Leadership Claim

"In this hour we have to prove our worth as the leaders of Europe, and we must never forget the task set for us by fate, even in view of the immediate vicinity of the front line. That is why the Führer remained in Berlin—in the immediate vicinity of the front line. That is why the Führer has thrown in all the forces that Germany has remaining at her disposal to be pitted immediately against the Bolsheviks."

Goebbels also was quoted as threatening that Germany never would forget that "the Western Allies are racing with the Russians to have the 'honor' of extirpating the German people and German culture."

German broadcasts said gun-toting women had gone to the barricades along with the city's youths to join in the swirling street fighting.

Makeshift Army Given Name

"Every tank barricade, every house, every hole in the ground is being contested against superior Russian forces which have driven deep wedges into the town," a broadcast said. "Secretaries have slung rifles over their shoulders, bakers are firing pistols and shopkeepers are using Tankfists (bazookas) as from the north, east and south the enemy assaults the capital."

This makeshift army was dubbed the "Free Corps Adolf Hitler" by one broadcaster, Dr. Otto Krieg.

With all German telegraphic news services silent, Nazi reports filtered out over a remnant radio system spit roughly between Hamburg for northern Germany and Munich for the south. There also was a short-wave station whose transmitter site was unknown.

Deutschlandsender Reopens

Late today the longwave Deutschlandsender—silent for several days—opened up with a program identical with the Hamburg station. The Deutschlandsender formerly was located in Berlin's southern suburbs, but apparently had moved as Russian troops swept in.

German stations had given up trying to warn the population of the approach of Allied bombers.

Swedish authorities in Stockholm were advised that telephone and telegraph communication between Hamburg and Berlin no longer existed. A German commercial plane from Berlin reached Stockholm today with three passengers, but Swedish authorities expressed belief it would be the last.

Hamburg Riot Reported

Travelers reaching the Swedish port of Malmo declared that SS troops machine-gunned hunger demonstrators in Hamburg two days ago, killing 30 and wounding many others.

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported from a "special source in Berlin" that Hitler tore shoulder ornaments off Field Marshall von Rundstedt and reduced him to a private in a burst of rage after Americans captured the Remagen bridge across the Rhine intact last month.

Soviet Children Toiled on Nazis' Polish Estates

862 Were in One Camp, 2 to 15 Years Old; Parents Died in Maidanek Ovens

LONDON, April 23 (AP).—A Nazi camp where hundreds of Russian children were forced to toil on German estates under threat of beatings was found by advancing Russian armies in Poland, the Soviet Embassy in London disclosed today.

Making public a report by Lieutenant Colonel K. R. Sokolenko, of the Red Army Medical Service, the embassy said 862 children, ranging in ages from two to fifteen years, were found in a gloomy building in Konstantinov, near Lodz in central Poland.

"Don't shoot—we're Soviet children," was the cry that greeted Red Army units when they advanced on the building, Sokolenko reported. The troops hastily distributed all the food they had on hand, then called on Moscow for more food and medical aid.

"We found an enormous three-story factory building with broken windows and walls, surrounded with barbed wire," said the officer. "In the yard were hundreds of pale, emaciated children dressed in filthy rags. Some were in castoff German uniforms. Some wore bits of wood as shoes, attached to their feet with rope.

"Children no Longer"

"As we entered, a little boy of about five, who was the first to notice us, shouted: 'Attention!'

"What happened then was somehow more terrible even than the physical wretchedness of the children. For at the little boy's shout, all of them remained rooted to the spot. With frightened faces they stood rigidly at attention.

"My companions, experienced soldiers, were badly shaken. These little children were children no longer, but beings grown old, with hearts and souls crushed."

Sokolenko said the 862 children were cared for by twenty-four women, mothers of some of the smallest of them.

"Among them," he said, "were 463 children the Nazis had transferred from Maidanek. The rest came from the Salaspils camp in Latvia. They were all Russians, Ukranians and White Russians. They told us their parents had been burned in the Maidanek ovens.

Number Tattooed on Each

"They had been brought from there by train in closed railway cars which they were permitted to leave only once a day. The train stopped only in open country, they said, far from forests and never at railway stations. Their food consisted of soup and grass they picked themselves. The Germans opened fire at fifteen children who tried to run away at one stop, killing several.

"At Konstantinov they slept on boards covered with filthy rags. They were roused early each morning, lined up and sent off to work on a German estate. Each child of seven or older was given a definite quota of work. It he failed to complete it, his food was stopped and he was beaten.

"I examined the children. Each had a number tattooed on his left shoulder. Many were suffering from tuberculosis. Others had skin diseases and dysentery. A number were in such extreme states of exhaustion that they could not be moved immediately."

London Lights Not So Bright

London, April 23 (AP)—The lights went on again in London tonight but the words of the popular song "I'm Going to Get Lit Up When the Lights go on in London" were still just lyrics and not prophecy.

The glow was on the town and not on the citizens who, because of a beer shortage, were not unduly cheerful.

From the tops of buildings a sort of amber glow could be seen over most of London, but the brightest lights tonight came from the moon and from a lone searchlight stabbing the sky.

Lights In Some Residences

Light streamed from doors and windows of various city establishments and in the residential districts several lighted windows were seen in almost every home.

One housewife admitted, however, that although she had looked forward "to this minute for more than five years, now that it's come and I've got the curtains pulled back I feel as if I've got no clothes on."

Street lamps were still dimmed and a five-mile coastal strip was still blacked out, but Londoners were generally pleased with the lifting of restrictions.

Boards Over Windows

The city's famed West End bravely tried to play up the long-expected moment, but many store windows were still boarded up.

There were no electric signs, and once-glittering Piccadilly Circus looked much the same as it has during past months.

The Savoy Hotel was slightly brighter than usual and the brightest lights in Fleet street came from milk bars and amusement arcades which had taken off their blackout doors.

London Poles Seek Treaty With Russ

APR 24 1945

London, April 23 (AP) — The Polish Government in exile emphasized today its willingness to conclude a treaty with Soviet Russia and reported conversations were taking place—with its knowledge—between Soviet officials and its representatives.

Marshal Stalin announced Saturday night that Russia had signed a 20-year mutual assistance treaty with the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw Provisional Government, a rival group.

The Polish Government in London made public, in a conciliatory tone, a memorandum handed the British and American governments Saturday which disclosed an attempt to effect a compromise with Russia.

Accept Invitation

For the first time the note said, the Vice Premier and Council of Ministers within Poland and leaders of the principal political parties had accepted "with the knowledge of the Polish Government" an invitation of Soviet authorities to "initiate conversations."

Previously the Government had said that fifteen Polish leaders had "disappeared" after accepting an invitation by Russia to come to London for consultation with Polish leaders here. Later the London Polish regime reported that Wincenty Witros, former Premier and Peasant party leader, also had left his home in Poland in the company of Soviet officials.

Underground Representation

"At the outset of those conversations," the memorandum said, "the Polish side requested that representatives of the Polish underground movement might go to London in order to enter into direct contact with their government.

"This request was accepted by Soviet authorities. The Polish Government hopes that this request will be carried out, after which it will be in a position to define its attitude regarding the subject of these conversations."

tives of a recognized Polish government, and not representatives of the Polish government at Warsaw, "absolutely do not correspond to fact."

Moscow said "this question not only was not decided. It was not even discussed."

Britain's Atrocity Probers Weep, Faint At Sights

London, April 23 (AP)—Shaken by the horrors they had seen at the Germans' infamous Buchenwald prison camp, ten members of Parliament began today to prepare a report for submission to the House of Commons. The report will be backed with gruesome exhibits.

Returning last night from the camp, the legislators disclosed that several of them had wept and one had fainted at the scenes of brutality. One brought back for exhibition to Commons a long strip of human skin bearing a tatooed prison number, which he said had been cut from the back of a living Buchenwald prisoner by his SS [Elite Guard] jailer.

Mrs. Mavis Tate, the only woman in the delegation, said: "Never have I seen so much suffering."

The delegation's report is expected to be issued Thursday, and will include testimony of atrocities at the Oswiecim (Auschwitz) Nazi prison camp in upper Silesia.

3,500,000 Killed

S. S. Silverman, a member of the committee, said one of Buchenwald's slaves who once had been imprisoned in Oswiecim declared 3,500,000 persons were killed at Oswiecim between October, 1942, and January, 1945.

Silverman said he received his report from Benedict Kautzky, son of Karl Kautzky, former leader of the Austrian Socialists, and that Kautzky told him 90 per cent of the Oswiecim victims were Jews, the others Poles. Kautzky told Silverman that SS guards gassed the Jews and shot the Poles in the back.

3 'Bobbies' Disturbed By Woman Magistrate

London, April 23 (AP)—The traditional aplomb of three "bobbies" was disturbed today by the first appearance on the bench of Miss Sybil Campbell, London's only woman magistrate.

One flustered arresting officer called her "me lady," another addressed the new magistrate as "lady worship" and the third policeman called her "sir" twice.

AMERICANS TALK TO RED TANKMEN

APR 24 1945

WITH THE U. S. 83RD DIVISION EAST OF THE ELBE RIVER, April 23—(AP) The first definite communication between Red army forces southwest of Berlin and American Ninth army troops on the east bank of the Elbe was established a few hours ago when a Russian artillery lieutenant recently liberated by the Americans from a German prison camp spoke by radio to west-driving Russian tankmen a few miles away.

"American friends, American friends," were the first words of the Russians' message received late yesterday by the lieutenant from his former fighting comrades. He gulped back tears as he stammered out his reply: "This is the American 83rd division."

For 27 hours, the Russian officer sat by a field radio outside the 329th regimental command post, calling to the Russian forces known to be advancing toward this bridgehead.

For several hours before the listeners had heard sharp orders of Russian tank commanders telling nearby tanks: "Now we move ahead."

When Col. Edward B. Crabill, Galax, Va., speaking through a Russian interpreter, asked the Russians whether they could meet us in town blank at a certain time tomorrow, the answer was: "That town is held by the Germans. We are still fighting a war you know and will have to fight our way into it."

The interpreter grinned and said: "They are kidding us a little—but they are very excited and happy about talking to us."

At that moment the interpreter said he could hear the radioman in the tank tell nearby tank radiomen to keep off the frequency he was using.

"I have got the Americans here," he said, "and I am going to talk to them. You other tanks keep off the air."

The Russian tankman asked for the number of the American outfit he had contacted and the name of its commander. The reply went back: "83rd division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert Macon of Washington, D. C."

Over the radio we could hear the tankman relaying the information back to higher headquarters.

The Russian interpreter here gave our location and asked for the location of the Russian tanks and the name of their division commander. He was informed that clearance for this information would have to be obtained from division headquarters but that it should not take long.

No reply had been received as of midnight, however.

Junction Patro Of Yanks Set For Meeting

Elbe River Front, Germany, April 23 (AP)—Radio conversations in Russian and English flashed back and forth across the narrowing waist of unoccupied Germany tonight and Maj. Gen. Robert C. Macon held a "junction patrol" of his 83d Infantry Division ready for a meeting with the Red Army.

Three times during the afternoon the patrol got ready to jump off when it made radio contact with mysterious parties somewhere to the east of United States 9th Army positions. But each contact either faded or proved erroneous.

A fourth alert came at sundown, when definite radio contact was made with a Russian tank. But it was impossible immediately to locate the Russian tank position clearly.

The "patrol in force" is commanded by Lieut. Col. Granville A. Sharpe, of Burlington, N.C. It remained poised for a takeoff from a forward command post headed by Col. Edwin B. Crabill, Galax, Va. However, there was little likelihood of any attempt to establish physical contact of the two armies by night.

Russians Bringing Vodka To Party On The Elbe

New York, April 23 (AP)—Red Army soldiers will meet their American and British allies with gifts of "pouches of tobacco, flasks of wine and Moscow vodka" when the Western and Eastern fronts merge, a Moscow radio broadcast said tonight.

The dispatch quoted a correspondent with the Russian Army on the Berlin front.

WAVE OF SUICIDES SWEEPS REICH AS ALLIES ADVANCE

LEIPZIG, April 23—(AP) Suicide appeals to an ever increasing number of Nazis is the better way out. Already some hundreds of apparent suicides have come to light.

Administrators of concentration camps who are caught behind the American lines are fearful as American military rule tightens and many prefer self-destruction to justice.

Nazis Choose Death

Some employers of slave labor, many of whom see murder charges looming, choose death at their own hands.

Military governors expect the wave of suicides to swell into something like mass hysteria among Nazi leaders as the Americans and Russians close in on them.

So far the suicides have been confined largely to subordinate leaders who may have been hard-fisted dictators in their own little districts, but AMG officials say they believe many Nazi top figures will take the same way out when escape is cut off.

Up to now nationally prominent Nazis have commanded the means to move inward from the ever tightening Allied ring.

The most conspicuous suicide reported in recent days was that of Max Amann, head of the powerful Eher Verlag, a publishing combine which printed Nazi pamphlets and Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter.

Another reported case was Frau Gertrud Scholtz-Klink, Nazi Women's leader who in 1939 declared in an impassioned speech: "Dear Fuehrer, we German women give you the fruits of our fertility—our children—to do with as you wish."

Other names of modest distinction on the reported suicide roll include Paul Hinkler, former Wuppertal police president; Albert Schneider, mayor of Ohrdruf, where the Americans found many inmates of a concentration camp slain; and Franz Glavemin, school superintendent at Werl.

Doctor Takes Poison

A typical case encountered by the Second division was at Reissenfeld, near Leipzig. A number of civilians told the Americans that the town's most fanatic and ruthless Nazi was the health commissioner, Dr. Emil Reinhardt. His name already was on the American blacklist, so an American sergeant was sent to bring him in for questioning.

The doctor bellowed arrogantly and said no authority could touch him. The sergeant had a different idea. Reinhardt yielded and asked permission to take a drink to buck his nerves. The sergeant watched as the doctor and his wife sipped a drink. They immediately fell into a stupor.

While a nurse attended them the sergeant called a medical officer, Capt. Harry Kaye, Los Angeles, Calif. The captain found five persons dead when he arrived. They were the doctor, his wife, the nurse

BRITISH BLAST CAR KILLING THREE NAZIS

LONDON, April 23—(AP) Frontline dispatches from Germany reported today that a British cavalry unit shelled a large black German sedan speeding along the Bremen-Hamburg road under escort of a large number of Nazi soldiers. The blast demolished the car and destroyed those in it.

The size of the escort gave rise to speculation that Heinrich Himmler, Nazi Gestapo chief who was reported in that region last week, or some other leading Nazi, may have been among the victims.

REDS SAY POLISH ISSUE NOT DISCUSSED AT YALTA

LONDON, Tuesday, April 24—(AP) The Moscow radio said early today that the question of restricting Polish participation in the San Francisco conference to a government jointly recognized by the United States, Britain and Russia "was not even discussed at the Yalta conference."

The broadcast, quoting Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said reports "in some sections of the foreign press" that it was decided at Yalta to invite only representa-

Czechs Order Guerrillas To Show No Pity to Foe

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, April 23 — The Czechoslovak Government at Kosice called upon the people of Moravia and Bohemia today to rise up and help both the American and the Russian liberating armies destroy the German forces on Czechoslovak soil.

"Take to arms and, in the manner of guerrillas, strike at the German invaders," said the order, published by the Czech Press Bureau in London.

"Go settle accounts with the Germans for their atrocities and know no pity. Let your hearts flare up with elemental hatred for the German tormentors. Now the moment has come to repay the Germans for all those who have died a terrible death at German hands."

London Poles' Act Is New Problem

London, April 23 (AP)—The Polish exiled government in London publicly dumped its quarrel with Russia into the lap of the United Nations today in an announcement stating its willingness to sign a treaty with Moscow.

The administration made public a memorandum it handed Britain and the United States Saturday.

Conciliatory in tone, the memorandum reported that the vice premier and ministers' council of the London group within Poland, together with various political party leaders, were conferring with Russian officials on the latters' invitation "with the knowledge of the Polish Government."

PRESIDENT THANKS BRITISH MONARCH

London, April 23 (A. P.).—President Truman said in a message to King George VI today that the memory of President Roosevelt would be "an inspiration as we carry on with the great task to which he dedicated his life and to which he brought such high talents." The President expressed this sentiment in reply to a message from the King.

NUERNBERGERS LIVE IN CAVES

Thousands Dwell In Bomb-proof Underground Bunkers

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Nuernberg, April 23 (AP)—The military government for battered Nuernberg, headed by Lieut. Col. Delbert Q. Fuller, of Tarrytown, N.Y., as governor, and Lieut. Col. J. C. Barnett, of Phoenix, Ariz., as deputy governor, is literally in charge of a population of cave dwellers.

Nuernberg's medieval walled section teems with humanity. Thousands upon thousands are liberated foreign workers. They are having a field day helping themselves to stocks in warehouses.

Hausfrauen cluster around improvised open-air stoves to cook, then disappear into rather narrow slits in the ground. Steps lead down somewhere.

800 Live In Bunker

An old man emerging from one of the slits explained "this is the Katarinebau bunker. Eight hundred men, women and children live here. In various parts of the city there are such bunkers. They are bomb-proof."

The military government estimates 60,000 Nuernbergers thus live in mass shelters or bunkers. Of its peacetime population of almost 500,000, officers estimate 200,000 remain in the city. Many thousands live in individual basements. Few, except in one or two sections of the town, are fortunate enough to live above the ground.

On the whole, the Nuernbergers are a pretty sullen lot.

Complaints

A man who claimed to be an employé of the city administration asked whether I could not get the American soldiers to remove the Panzer Faust projectors near one bunker lest children get killed while handling them.

I promised to report the matter, but reminded him that it was the German Army who had left these weapons and not the American. He winced. I added there was evidence that such weapons were deliberately given to civilians by the departing German units in the hope they would start sniping. He denied this.

"Can't something be done about the foreign workers roaming the streets?" he persisted. "They're regular pests."

I said: "But who brought them here? Certainly we Americans didn't."

The German, with a tone of surprise, said: "But we needed them. We lacked the manpower."

"Better Weapons"

"You wouldn't have lacked the manpower if you hadn't started the war," I reminded him.

"You had the better weapons," he said insolently. "That's why you're here now."

Capt. Richard W. Jett, former director of public safety of Nashville, Tenn., is now in charge of the Nuernberg police. He is using 33 German police, mostly elderly men, in the city north of the Pegnitz River. In the southern section the police had fought side by side with the army and hence were unusable. They were held as prisoners of war.

The health situation is reported satisfactory, with enough German medical personnel and plenty hospital space on hand. Public utilities are being repaired. The most serious problem is food, especially milk for infants.

Russian With GI's Radios Red Army

With the U.S. 83d Division East of the Elbe River, April 23 (AP)—The first definite communication between Red Army forces southwest of Berlin and United States 9th Army troops on the east bank of the Elbe was established a few hours ago when a Russian artillery lieutenant, recently liberated by the Americans from a German prison camp, spoke by radio to west-driving Russian tankmen a few miles away.

"American friends, American friends," were the first words of the Russians' message received late yesterday by the lieutenant from his former fighting comrades. He gulped back tears as he stammered out his reply: "This is the American 83d Division."

For 27 hours the Russian officer sat by a field radio outside the 329th Regimental Command post, calling to the Russian forces known to be advancing toward this bridgehead.

For several hours before the listeners had heard sharp orders of Russian tank commanders telling near-by tanks: "Now we move ahead."

When Col. Edward B. Crabill, Galax, Va., speaking through a Russian interpreter, asked the Russians whether they could meet us in town blank at a certain time tomorrow, the answer was: "That town is held by the Germans. We are still fighting a war, you know."

Yank Says He Saw SS Shoot Two GI Prisoners

With U.S. 3d Army North of the Danube, April 23 (AP)—An American air force lieutenant liberated a few hours before he was to be executed by the Germans said today that he saw a Nazi SS guard shoot two prisoners who collapsed during a march of 12,000 American air corps officers toward the Mossburg prison camp near Munich.

The lieutenant, whose name may not now be used, was a bombardier-navigator shot down over France in 1944. He said:

"I was marching in this column and like many others I collapsed from hunger and exhaustion.

"One day two of our men fell out and an SS guard shot them as they lay on the ground. Then the guard caught up with the column and nonchalantly resumed conversation with the other guards, as if nothing had happened."

Germans Advocate Nazi Labor Gangs

Jena, Germany, April 21 [AP—Delayed]—A German plan to put Nazis and Nazi sympathizers to work in labor gangs to restore Germany was brought to the attention of American authorities here today.

Major Hugo W. Heffelfinger, of Beatrice, Neb., a military government officer, received the plan from a group of Germans of Jena representing the old Democrat, Social Democrat and Communist parties. The Germans insisted that they spoke for the majority of anti-Nazi elements in the city.

But the Americans are too busy tussling with a vast supply problem and maintaining a semblance of order among thousands of footloose foreign workers to act upon the suggestions now.

BRITISH DENY KILLING OF NAZI COMMANDANT

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY IN GERMANY, April 23—(AP) Headquarters of the Second Army denied tonight reports of the execution of Josef Kramer, the SS (Elite Guard) commandant of the Belsen concentration camp where possibly more than 30,000 persons died in recent months.

A statement said:

"Reports that Camp commandant Kramer, SS Hauptsturmfuehrer of the Belsen concentration camp, has been summarily tried and shot are completely without foundation. This officer is at present in the hands of British military authorities and is being dealt with in accordance with the normal procedure for captured enemy soldiers."

NAZIS MOVE PRISONERS INTO MOUNTAIN FORT

SALFELD, April 16—(delayed)—(AP) The Germans recently forcemarched thousands of American and British prisoners south toward Hitler's so-called national redoubt for possible use as hostages in the Nazis' last stand among the Bavarian mountains.

Column after column passed through this area until a day or two before the U. S. Third army captured Salfeld April 11.

One informant said Hermann Goering had been out of power for months because of the failure of the German air force and added that Field Marshal Hugo Sperrle, his associate, had been shot.

He also said Field Marshal Karl Gerd Von Rundstedt, former German commander in chief on the Western Front, was reported to have been executed.

Atrocities Exceed Worst Ideas, Congressmen Say

Buchenwald, Germany, April 23 (AP)—Eight American congressmen agreed today after inspecting the Buchenwald prison camp that the evidence of Nazi atrocities committed there exceed the wildest flights of imagination.

"This is the most horrible thing that anyone could conceive," said Representative Carter Manasco (D. Ala.) after he and his companions had been shown around the camp—where emaciated bodies of the Nazis' victims are still stacked like cordwood, where men were hung on spikes like sides of beef until they died, and where bodies by the hundreds were burned in furnaces.

"Barbarism At Its Worst"

"This is barbarism at its worst," said Representative Gordon Canfield (R., N.J.). He declared the evidence bore out everything that had been said or written about Nazi brutality.

The congressmen, who were in Britain on various missions, were invited to come here by General Eisenhower to obtain first-hand evidence of the atrocities. Others in the group were Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.), Earl Wilson (R., Ind.), Albert Rains (D., Ala.), Eugene Worley (D., Texas), Marion T. Bennet (R., Mo.) and Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.).

Heaps Of Bodies

Behind one building the congressmen saw a great heap of wasted human bodies which the Nazis had left piled up one atop the other like so many logs. Near by was a truck piled high with 60 more bodies, each bearing a tattooed prison number.

In the adjacent courtyard was a pile of ashes and bits of bone—remains of the dead who had been burned in the twelve-furnace crematory.

Below the furnaces the congressmen were shown a room whose walls held hooks like those in a butcher shop. Prisoners said human bodies—including some that still had life—were hung there until the furnaces were ready.

The Americans took Buchenwald eleven days ago and are doing everything they can for the 21,000 poor creatures they found still alive, who include many children.

U.S. Army Has Biggest Gas Station

WITH THE U. S. SUPPLY FORCES IN FRANCE—(AP) One of the biggest gas stations in the world belongs to the U. S. Army in France, and serves the armies of Generals Hodges, Patton, Simpson and Patch.

The station is a Quartermaster depot that feeds these armies a daily average of 500,000 gallons of gasoline, and correspondingly huge amounts of oil and grease.

Gasoline from the United States arrives at a channel port. From the port it is pumped through overland pipelines to this depot, where it is dumped in cans, piled neatly, camouflaged for protection from enemy observation, and dispersed for protection against bombardment.

KAISER'S SON-IN-LAW DISCOVERED IN CASTLE

WITH THE U. S. NINTH ARMY IN GERMANY, April 23—(AP) Kaiser Wilhelm's son-in-law, the Duke of Brunswick, one-time provincial king of Hannover, was discovered living in a castle in territory overrun by the U. S. Eighth armored division, it was announced today.

The duke was living with his wife in a castle, which had been partly converted into a German hospital, overlooking the city of Blankenburg.

Canadian Corps Shifted From Italy to West Front

By The Associated Press.

WITH THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY, April 23—The Canadian First Corps from Italy has joined the Canadian First Army on the western front, Gen. H. D. G. Crerar announced today.

As far as known, the enemy was entirely ignorant until today that the two Canadian corps—five divisions and two armored brigades—were finally fighting in the same operational theatre. Complete with everything required to keep it in the field, the First Corps had been taken out of Italy and transferred intact to another front 1,000 miles away, ready for action.

The troops did not know that they were being transferred to western Europe when they were pulled from the front lines in Italy last February. The decision to make the transfer was taken at Malta last Feb. 4.

1st Army's 800,000th Prisoner Has His Say

United States 1st Army Headquarters, Germany, April 23 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's 1st Army took its eight hundred thousandth prisoner today.

He was a German staff sergeant, Martin Holland, four times wounded, who said:

Yanks Soothed By German Radio

With U.S. 1st Army, April 23 (AP). American front-line troops, establishing radio contact today with their Russian allies only a few miles away, asked the Russian troops when they were going to effect a juncture.

No Overall Commander Expected After Linkup

SHAEF, April 21 [AP—Delayed]—It is unlikely that there will be a supreme commander of Allied forces when the Russians from the east and the Allies from the west link up in the middle of Germany, it was made clear here tonight.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is expected to remain supreme commander in the west without a change in his job or his instructions to smash Nazis and destroy the German Army and the German ability to wage war.

In the east, Marshal Stalin and his commanders will work out their own goal. Details of the correlation of command will be worked out as they arise.

Many Frenchmen Left Sterile By Treatment in German Camps

PARIS, April 23—Many French war prisoners were left sterile by brutal and perhaps deliberately planned treatment in German concentration camps, a leading Paris specialist said today.

The new atrocity charge was added to a rapidly unfolding horror program which all evidence indicates was carefully calculated and had for its object the effective extermination of perhaps some ten million Europeans whom the Nazis regarded as enemies to their system.

These chosen victims were in addition to the anti-Nazi Germans and German Jews who had already been liquidated.

Nazis Undermined France

It has already been established that the Nazis pursued the systematic destruction of France by putting a premium of corruption, undermining the currency, destroying what industry they could not turn to their own needs.

But they did not stop at this. It was the very best and most unselfish Frenchmen who went to the German concentration camps. The Nazis apparently did their best to kill off most of these Frenchmen and prevent those who survived the rigors of torture from producing offspring. This would assure Germany of a permanently weak France.

The Paris physician, who prefers that his name not be used, in a report prepared for the Associated Press said that in 18 months' close study he had found the sterility rate high among released and escaped French prisoners.

This sterility was perhaps the result of malnutrition and suffering. But, he added, it may have been deliberately induced by the introduction of certain substances in the food given the prisoners.

Meanwhile, every returning prisoner brought new tales of horror.

Among today's reports was one by two former Havas, French News agency, correspondents who estimated that 150,000 to 200,000 persons had died at the notorious Buchenwald concentration camp.

Among them, they said, was Princess Mafalda of Hesse, daughter of King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy, who was thrown into internment by her own husband after he had been swept away by Nazi ideas and perceived she was not enthusiastic over Nazism.

The Princess, correspondent Christian Ozanne said, was wounded by a bomb splinter eight months ago and then removed from her cottage to a nearby prison brothel where she died, attended only by the helpless Polish and Russian women inmates.

Impotency Rate High

The doctor who prepared the sterilization report said the Nazis apparently practiced surgical sterilization on only a few prisoners, mostly Jews, but the rate of impotency was high among all prisoners. The French ministry of health referred the Associated Press to him for an authoritative report on the subject.

"The future alone will permit us to determine the definite frequency and gravity of these functional disorders," he said.

"It is still too soon to consider these spermatic disorders as permanent, but we can expect in the years to come a considerable recrudescence of masculine sterility among prisoners now returning from captivity.

"It is possible the Germans may have introduced into the food of prisoners substances of anti-vitamin 'E' action, several of which are known."

(Editor's note: Vitamin "E" was first, and erroneously, called the sex vitamin after experminents in which rats failed to produce young. Later it was found that lack of the vitamin had weakened the muscles in the female rats. It is now known that vitamin "E" affects muscles and nerve tone.)

Ozanne's story of the internment and death of Princess Mafalda said she and her children were lodged in a villa in a separate section of the Buchenwald camp.

"The Princess was carried to the brothel which was in the camp for use of German civil prisoners there," Ozanne said. "The women of the Bordello, mainly Russians and Poles, nursed her. She died about three days after being wounded."

Ozanne said he did not know what became of the Princess' children.

Maurice Negre, another former Havas correspondent released with Ozanne, said it was impossible to tell how many died at Buchenwald because when one prisoner died his number was given to a new prisoner. He said that last Winter the deaths ranged up to 600 a day and that 6,500 died in March alone.

Buchenwald Prisoners Tell Of Death Of Princess

APR 24 1945

By Edward Kennedy

Paris, April 23 (AP)—Christian Ozanne, former Havas news agency correspondent, said today Princess Mafalda of Hesse, who was wounded by a bomb splinter eight months ago at the Buchenwald concentration camp, died in a section of the camp which was used as a brothel, and under care of its inmates.

The French journalist said the Princess, daughter of King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy, had been interned at the request of her husband, Prince Philip of Hesse, an ardent Nazi who denounced his wife as not being enthusiastic enough over the Hitler regime.

She and her children lived in a villa in a separate section of the camp, Ozanne added. She was reported wounded in the shoulder by a bomb splinter in an Allied air-raid on the area August 26, 1944.

Nursed At Brothel

Ozanne said:

"The Princess was carried to the brothel which was in the camp for use of German civil prisoners there. The women of the Bordello, who were mainly Russians and Poles, nursed her. She died about three days after being wounded."

Ozanne said he did not know what happened to the Princess' children. He said the house in which she lived was demolished by a bomb.

Ozanne and Maurice Negre, another former correspondent of Havas, estimated that between 150,000 and 200,000 persons died in Buchenwald concentration camp.

Both were released from Buchenwald.

Negre was arrested March 6, 1944, for operating a clandestine resistance news agency called Supernap. Ozanne was arrested for resistance activities in Marseille and spent sixteen months at Buchenwald.

The story they told of Buchenwald was one that made correspondents at General Eisenhower's supreme headquarters shudder.

Deaths Hard To Estimate

They spoke dispassionately and confined themselves almost entirely to what they had seen with their own eyes.

"It's impossible to say exactly how many died at Buchenwald," Negre said. "Because when a prisoner died his number was given to a new one arriving.

"The camp was built for 16,000, and in the last months, as Germany shrunk, more prisoners were brought from other camps until there were 60,000 there, 20,000 of them French. Last winter, which was very hard, there were up to 600 deaths in a single day. In the month of March 6,500 died."

Ozanne said the prisoners were so ill-nourished they died like flies. He said it was not uncommon to wake up and find the prisoner next to you dead or to see prisoners drop dead while standing for roll call or working in factories at Buchenwald and Weimar.

"Death Loses Significance"

"Death lost its significance" Ozanne said. "They simply took the clothes off and threw the corpse in the crematorium or ditch. Dying men were often thrown in with the cadavers."

"I know both witnesses well. I worked with Ozanne in the Spanish civil war and with Negre in the Balkans. They are both among the most accurate and honest reporters I have ever known.

Negre said the prisoners were mainly political deportees and they worked in factories turning out parts of machine guns, cannon and glassware. They also worked in quarries.

Factories Underground

As Allied bombing increased these factories were moved underground. Thousands of the prisoners died in these subterranean slave shops, Negre said.

Ozanne said foremen at quarries would knock off prisoners hats. When they stooped to pick them up the foremen would kick them off the cliff to their death.

German civil prisoners were in charge of the prisoners organization. Above them were the SS troops. In the factories there were civilian bosses who were the cruelest of all three groups, Ozanne said.

Grateful To Americans

Both expressed profound gratitude to the Americans for their liberation but said that the prisoners' organization, with German civil prisoners in charge, was permitted to remain after the Americans took charge. They appealed for the immediate return of all the 20,000 Frenchmen interned at Buchenwald to France.

Prisoners died of hunger, of disease, of infections, of sheer fatigue and of dog bites, Ozanne said. The German guards had fierce dogs which sometimes turned on the prisoners, especially when they fell from exhaustion.

In an air-raid on one factory in Weimar 500 of 1,400 prisoners working there were killed, Ozanne said. The shelters were inadequate.

Work Slowly

Ozanne said the French worked as slowly as possible in the factories, but the Czechs and Poles worked better.

"We asked them why they worked so hard, and they said, 'when we work we forget about being prisoners,'" Ozanne said.

Ozanne lost 60 pounds in his sixteen months as a prisoner at Buchenwald but was never ill, He said.

Former French Premiers Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud as well as the former Allied commander in chief, Gen. Maurice Gamelin, were all prisoners at Buchenwald, but were moved elsewhere before its liberation.

Yank Withdrawal Report Denied

Paris, April 23 (AP)—Reports published in the United States that American troops had once reached the Berlin suburb of Potsdam but withdrew at the request of the Russians were denied by General Eisenhower's headquarters last night.

Although the United States 9th Army and parts of the 1st have been aligned along the Elbe for several days as little as 45 miles from Potsdam and some troops crossed the stream, authorities said no Americans had penetrated that far toward the western gate of the Reich capital.

Associated Press Correspondent J. W. Gallagher said in a dispatch from Magdeburg that the joint chiefs of staff apparently decided that the Elbe River should be the halting line in that sector to avoid any incident at the juncture of American and Russian armies.

"The Americans reached it first and stopped," he said. "The great Russian breakthrough on the Eastern front explains why the United States 9th Army has been sitting on the Elbe for more than a week."

White House Denial

Eben Ayers, assistant White House press secretary, was asked at a news conference in Washington if there was "any comment on a story published yesterday that American troops were held back to let the Russians get there (Berlin) first."

"Only that it is untrue," Ayres asserted. "There was a denial of that sent from the other side, I believe."

The War Department previously had declined to comment.

ALLIES REACH PO, NEAR EDGE OF FERRARA

British And Yanks Roll Past Bologna In Big Breakthrough

Rome, April 23 (AP)—British 8th Army force broke into the outskirts of Ferrara tonight against stubborn German rearguard resistance, front dispatches declared, while Allied headquarters announced that units of both the 8th and the American 5th Army had advanced to undisclosed points on the southern banks of the Po River.

A report from the front said that British troops, despite extensive enemy demolition work, were closing in on Ferrara, 30 miles north and slightly east of recently-captured Bologna.

Foe Ripped Apart

North and northwest of Bologna, British and American forces pushed to the Po. One field dispatch from the 5th Army front said that American tank, artillery, infantry and air assaults had ripped apart great portions of the remnants of two German armies trying desperately to escape across the river.

An announcement said elements of both the American 5th Army and the British 8th had reached the banks of the vital stream, where the shaken Nazis might attempt to make a final stand in northern Italy.

The exact points where Allied armor wheeled up to the Po were not disclosed, but at its nearest point the river curves 27 miles north of Bologna.

75 Miles In Eight Days

An earlier communique reported that advance units of the 5th Army had driven as far as 35 miles northwest of Bologna, which was captured Saturday.

These American and Allied troops had advanced approximately 75 miles in the first eight days of their offensive and had scored a clean breakthrough of the Germans' tough Apennine Mountain defense line.

British 8th Army troops were meeting stubborn resistance as they closed in on the road center of Ferrara, 30 miles north and slightly east of Bologna.

The fertile Po Valley was littered with the wreckage of the fleeing enemy's transport. More than 1,700 pieces, including 1,066 motor vehicles, were destroyed or damaged by Allied planes yesterday, and there was no slackening of the assault from the skies.

Bridges Bombed

Flying Fortresses and Liberators, supporting the ground forces, struck at nine bridges over the Adige and Brenta rivers in the path of the retreating enemy today. Three of the bridges were at Padua, the others southeast of Verona.

Spitfire and Mustang fighters of the Desert Air Force bombed and strafed terminals across the Po northwest of Ferrara.

Some 5th Army units were encountering numerous demolitions, along with harassing mortar and artillery fire, but other outfits had raced so far ahead of the main bodies of troops that the Allied command was uncertain of their location—a situation akin to that during the recent Rhine breakthrough on the Western front.

The swift American drive already had bypassed the large city of Modena, 22 miles northwest of Bologna, and reached to within some 140 miles of the Brenner Pass line through the Alps.

Leading troops were within 220 airline miles of French forces at the western shore of Lake Constance and within 230 miles of United States 7th Army troops striking toward Munich. Between them, however, towered the Alps.

Two 8th Army spearheads were closing in on the enemy bastion of Ferrara. One, fighting up the main Ravenna highway from the south, was a mile and a half from the city at last report and threatening the Ferrara airport. Another, driving in from the southwest, was approximately 2 miles from Ferrara.

German troops northeast of Bologna were withdrawing behind the Reno River and digging in along a line running southwest from San Pietro in the Casale area. These troops appeared to be badly outflanked and in danger of entrapment unless they soon broke and fled toward the Po. Eighth Army troops were reported driving on Argelato, 8 miles north of Bologna.

Allied Forces Smash To Po River

APR 24 1945

NORGAARD

Rome, April 23 (AP)—Allied troops of the 15th Army Group have smashed to the Po River at several undisclosed locations, it was announced tonight.

Units of both the 5th and the British 8th armies roared on toward the Po, objective of many weary months of battling, in ground-devouring leaps at many places, but on the eastern end of the front the British still were meeting stubborn resistance in the

APR 24 1945

Ferrara area.

Earlier it was reported that the 5th Army was nearing the Po after a 35-miles dash beyond Bologna, and was battling within 220 to 230 miles of the French and American forces of General Eisenhower hitting toward the Italian frontier in Germany.

Littered With Wreckage

The lunge across the Po plain—littered with wreckage of 1,700 Nazi vehicles destroyed or damaged by Allied planes yesterday alone—carried 35 miles north and northwest of fallen Bologna, Allied headquarters said, but it did not specify points reached.

But the thrust bypassed Modena, 22 miles northwest of Bologna.

British 8th Army forces besieged Ferrara, 3½ miles from the Po and 30 northeast of Bologna, from positions as close as 1½ miles from the town.

Brenner Pass Ahead

The 5th Army now was 220 miles airline—across the Alps and the eastern end of Switzerland—from French troops at the west shore of Lake Constance and 230 miles from the United States 7th Army, already across the Danube and striking toward Munich.

[The Paris radio asserted tonight that French Alpine troops had invaded Italy, striking across the French border into Piedmont from the west.]

The Brenner Pass lay 140-odd miles ahead.

Germans raced northward, perhaps planning a stand on the Po. But Allied planes in day-long assaults yesterday destroyed 702 motor and 293 horse-drawn vehicles and damaged 364 motor and 348 horse-drawn vehicles. Thirty Allied planes were missing.

Armor In Pursuit

Allied armor, freed after months of bitter, stalemated mountain fighting, pursued the Nazis.

German planes bombed Bologna last night in four small-scale raids.

Fifth Army troops still were running into numerous demolitions and strongpoints as well as mortar and artillery fire. The Germans have left many snipers behind.

Northwest of Bologna and just south of the Panaro River extensive mine fields delayed the 5th's Army's progress.

The 8th Army now has two spearheads less than two miles from Ferrara—one approaching along the Po di Preimaro River being very close to the Ferrara airfield and only 2,500 yards from the city itself. The other is within 3,000 yards to the southwest.

Patrols of both sides are active on the coastal sector of the 5th's left flank.

Advancing From Lagoon

On the eastern coastal sector, British troops are thrusting northeast from the northwest corner of the Commachio lagoon, while other forces are moving northwest from the lagoon along roads only a few feet above the surrounding flooded fields. Bridgeheads over the Po Divalano River have been strengthened.

Northeast of Bologna, the Germans are pulling back behind the Reno River in an effort to avoid being outflanked. Eighth Army troops have moved up to a dug-in enemy infantry line running southwestward from San Pietro in the Casale area.

Other troops have reached the outskirts of San Giorgio and are up to the road running southeast of that village on a 2,000-yard front.

Sabotaged Farmland Recovered in Italy

ROME — (AP) — The Pontine Marshes, rich agricultural area south of Rome which the Germans sabotaged last spring, have now been all but drained and some land is ready to plant this year.

Reconstruction work, carried out by Allies and Italians, involved an expenditure of 50 million lire by the Italian Government for digging by-pass channels and clearing away obstructions.

By the end of May, 1944, when the Germans were abandoning Rome, about 27,000 acres of the marshes were under water and a much larger area was threatened. By September, the inundated area had been reduced to 13,500 acres and by the end of October the area was further reduced to 7,400 acres. Today there remain only about 5,000 acres still under water.

'Hitler Busts Rundstedt'

APR 24 1945

Stockholm, April 23 (AP)—The Stockholm Tidningen reported today from a "special source in Berlin" that Adolf Hitler tore shoulder ornaments off Field Marshal von Rundstedt, threw them in his face and reduced him to the rank of a private soldier in a rage at the American capture of the Remagen bridge intact.

The Swedish newspaper said panic existed in Germany because of both the catastrophic war situation and the mad raging of Hitler.

The story said that the Führer's condition caused many high Government officials in Berlin who had been ordered to report to the national redoubt area in the south to change their minds and disappear "in a northeasterly direction."

Move To Salzburg

According to this report, the seat of the German Government has been moved to Salzburg. Among prominent officials who have recently left Berlin for Salzburg are Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Dr. Paul Schmidt, the foreign press chief.

The story asserted that those obeying the order to head south have openly declared that they had a "free ticket to Valhalla."

Travelers arriving at the port of Malmo declared that SS troops machine-gunned hunger demonstrators in Hamburg two days ago, killing 30 and wounding many others. They said the great north German port had been without gas and light for eight days and that the inhabitants had to obtain water from bomb craters.

Berlin Air Liner Arrives in Stockholm

Stockholm, April 23 (A. P.).—A Lufthansa German commercial plane arrived as scheduled from Berlin today, but the Swedish authorities expressed the belief that it was probably the "last plane from Berlin."

The plane, carrying three passengers, departed from a field northwest of Berlin, the Aftonbladet said. The destination of the return flight was Warnemuende on the Baltic, not Berlin, the newspaper said.

'Reich Too Stunned To Grasp Fate'

Olle Ollen, Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Morgontidningen, recently left the German capital to return to Sweden, where he wrote the following account.

By Olle Ollen

APR 24 1945

Stockholm, April 23 (AP)—Germany today is a nation of whipped, hopeless people.

They know catastrophe is at hand, that they have reached the brink of an abyss. They look into the future with the blackest pessimism, but really are too dazed to fully comprehend it.

I saw it in Berlin and elsewhere as I left bomb-torn Germany, now being brought to her knees. I read the despair in people's faces, heard it from their lips.

Says Everyone Knows It

The diplomats know it, the people in the street know it, and so do the fanatical leaders, despite all their pleas for a fight to the bitter end.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, knew it long ago. Whether he had fled with his department to Salzburg or was sitting in Fuschl Castle near Salzburg to await the end I could not discover before I left Berlin, but the documents of his division of the falling Government of Germany were being moved away to Bavaria, Germany's last bastion.

Long before the Nazi military collapse, Ribbentrop's political debacle was obvious to thinking Germans. Indeed, he has long been a dead man politically.

The last of his political fiascos was his recent effort through Fritz Hesse, one-time German press attaché in London, to approach the British, via Stockholm, in an unsuccessful bid for an armistice.

He previously had made a desperate attempt to save face as a politician by going personally to Finland in an effort to keep her in the war. He had his press chief, Dr. Paul Schmidt, beat the drums to show there still was a strong German Foreign Ministry when he returned with the pact he wanted, signed by Risto Ryti, Finland's former president.

He never really got over the shock of Finland's subsequent "desertion" from the Axis.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 2 (AP) — Two 1,200-ton Norwegia freighters, the Jelo and the Base arrived at Malmoe today carryin German soldiers and Norwegia puppets who had requested intern ment. The ships and personnel ar reported held in the harbor unde a heavy Swedish guard becaus Sweden prohibits asylum for "un desirable aliens."

Security Is Main Desire Of Soviets

Moscow, April 23 (AP)—One big question on the eve of the San Francisco world security conference is "What does Russia want?" and the answer given here is one big word—security.

The Russians say their burning desire now, as in the days of the League of Nations, is a workable security organization which will keep peace so they can build their socialistic society uninterrupted by wars.

The Soviet Union considers it is abundantly entitled to play one of the leading roles in world affairs and to be consulted on all vital matters. Russia wants good assurance that efforts to isolate her are a thing of the past.

Placed high on the list of prerequisites to security are the wiping out of German imperialism and workable measures to guarantee against revival of Prussian militancy.

Reds Play Up Molotov Trip

Moscow, April 23 (AP)—Foreign Commissar Molotov's arrival in Washington and his speedy meeting with President Truman made top news today in Soviet newspapers.

The Russians apparently were pleased with Molotov's welcome. Soviet dispatches told in great detail of his reception at the airport, and of his conference with Secretary of State Stettinius and British Foreign Secretary Eden.

17 SENTENCED IN SOFIA

12 of Those Facing Death Penalties Are Fugitives

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 21 (Delayed) (AP)—The second big trial of Bulgarian Army officers and others by the People's Court ended tonight with death sentences for seventeen persons. Twelve of those sentenced were fugitives.

Seventeen other sentences ranged from life imprisonment to confiscation of property. Cases against thirty-two others were dropped because they were fighting the Germans.

Nazis Drop Staffs In Neutral Capitals

By The Associated Press.

MADRID, April 23 — Official German representatives in Spain and Portugal have received no word from their country since Friday, it was learned tonight.

Employes of the German Embassy, consulates and other official offices in Spain received three months' pay and were informed that their employment probably had ended.

In Barcelona, Herr Duisberg, director of the Scala Company of Berlin, informed local authorities that he had "severed all connections with the Nazi Government."

The Spanish and Portuguese Governments were reported to have started rounding up German agents.

Drive On Nazis Reported In Spain And Portugal

Madrid, April 23 (AP)—The Spanish and Portuguese governments were reported today to have started rounding up German agents.

Some 30 Germans were said to have been taken into "protective custody" in Portugal. These were reported to include two supposed Nazi secret agents named Nassenstein and Vollbrecht and a Frenchman, named Roubaud, said to be a German purchasing agent.

Thirty-four Germans were reported to have been arrested in Spain simply as "agents of a foreign power," but there was no official confirmation.

Official German representatives in Spain and Portugal have received no word from their country since Friday, it was learned tonight.

YANKS SEIZE MINDANAO HUB

Fall Of Road Junction Cuts Enemy Force In Two

Manila, Tuesday, April 24 (AP)—The 24th Infantry Division cut Japanese forces defending Mindanao by capturing Kabacan town and seizing its important highway junction, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Seizure of Kabacan put Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff's 24th Infantry nearly halfway across southern Mindanao toward the capital city, Davao, which the Japanese are expected to defend fiercely.

Jap Dead Counted At 334,111

Enemy dead in the Philippines campaign were increased to 334,111 with the counting of an additional 10,896 Japanese bodies in the past week, MacArthur said. Enemy prisoners taken in that one week numbered 353.

American casualties for the same period were listed as 584 killed, 2,168 wounded and three missing.

Kabacan served the only north-south line of land communication between northern Mindanao and Davao, prime objective of the Yank drive for that second largest island of the Philippines.

North And South Isolated

"The enemy's forces on Mindanao are now split in two, with his northern garrisons isolated from those in the south," MacArthur reported.

Approximately 50,000 Japanese troops have been estimated on Mindanao.

Local advances were made in all sectors of northern Luzon, with attack planes and fighters dropping 372 tons of bombs in close support.

Sweep Formosa Rail Yards

Mitchell medium bombers and fighter-bombers swept rail yards at Taichu on Formosa and caused explosions in factory buildings. Small shipping off Keelung harbor was strafed.

Other units hit airdromes in the Sakishima Islands to the north despite adverse weather.

Heavy bombers blockading the China Sea sank a freighter, two river boats, a tanker and a patrol craft.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Monday communique disclosed that foot troops of the 24th division, pushing along a jungle-hemmed highway, entered the roadside town of Pikit soon after the 453rd engineers boat regiment occupied the place unopposed. Pikit, where American forces formerly maintained a small fort, is 32 air miles inland from the beachhead.

The gunboats, converted landing craft armed with captured Japanese machine guns, small cannon and rockets, reached Pikit via the Mindanao river.

From Pikit the highway twists and turns, first northeast and then south, to Davao gulf where it links with a coastal road leading northeast to Davao city. On the American left flank are mountains and unexplored jungle while to the south stretches a forbidding marsh country.

The gunboat fleet commander, Lt. Col. Robert Armory, Jr., of Providence, R. I., wired field headquarters from Pikit "hoisted flag; awaiting infantry." The weary foot soldiers soon arrived.

YANKS ADVANCE ON MINDANAO

Daring Dash in Homemade Gunboats Wins Pikit.

Manila, April 23 (A. P.).—Skirting unexplored swamplands and boating up crocodile-infested rivers, Twenty-fourth Division infantrymen have captured Pikit, thirty-two air miles inland from the Mindanao Island beachhead. This put them forty-two miles from the city limits of Davao, a major port of the Philippines.

The Thirty-second Division battled Japs holed up in caves in the rugged Balete Pass area in the Caraballo Mountains of northern Luzon. Two more important Filipino collaborationists, Claro N. Recto, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Rafael Alunan, Minister of Agriculture and Commerce in the puppet Cabinet, were captured at Baguio. With others, they will be confined for the duration and then stand trial by the Philippine Commonwealth.

The softening up of Borneo for possible invasion was continued by heavy, medium and fighter bombers. Jap airdromes, barracks and supply areas were hit. One plane was lost. Planes also sank or damaged an 8,000-ton transport and four other vessels off Formosa and wrecked a 7,000-ton freighter at Saigon, Indo-China. Other aircraft continued close support of ground troops from northern Luzon to southern Mindanao.

Homemade Gunboats.

The rapid advance on Pikit was made possible by "homemade gunboats" — converted shallow-draft 65-foot LCM's equipped with captured Jap machine guns, small cannon and rockets from wrecked American planes.

When the gunboats arrived at Pikit, on the banks of the sluggish Mindanao River, youthful Lieut.-Col. Robert Armory Jr., Providence, R. I., dispatched this message to his commanding officer: "Stormed Pikit; hoisted flag; awaiting infantry."

There was no opposition—Jap had fled the former little American fort. Infantry hiking along the narrow No. 1 Transisland Highway arrived shortly after. Field commanders expected that despite the current lack of opposition strong Jap positions may yet be encountered before reaching Davao.

Col. Wendell W. Fertig, La Junta, Col., commanding officer of the Mindanao guerrillas, said that of the 50,000 estimated enemy troops in Mindanao, the majority are strongly entrenched in the Davao sector.

WALL ST. BROKER IS MARINE HERO

APR 24 1945

Iwo Jima (A. P.) (Delayed).—A former New York stock broker at the age of 46 joined the paymaster section of the Marine Corps, went overseas and, after months of persistence, argued his way into a combat command with the Third Marine Division, came off the front lines a hero to his hard-bitten outfit which he led through some of the fiercest fighting of this battle.

With what he described as "only 120 foxhole men left" out of more than 600 who had originally landed on Iwo, Major George A. Percy of 61 Wall street, New York city, laughed off two wounds he had received while leading his men through the thickest fighting and, instead, told of the incredible bravery of the riflemen and machine gunners of his battalion whose job it had been to advance northward through the center of Iwo's strong defenses.

The men bearded and dust-stained after eleven days of head-on battling through pillboxes and dugouts, grinned and told how the major with no previous combat command, had taken leadership of the battalion at the height of the battle when the commanding officer, a lieutenant - colonel, was wounded and evacuated. Once a notebook and billfold in his dungaree pocket probably saved his life when they blunted the force of a flying piece of steel that struck him just above his heart.

Major Percy was commissioned a captain in the Marine Corps in 1942. He had been a member of the Wall street firm of Clark, Dodge & Co. He came overseas with the Third Marine Division early in 1943 and participated in the Bougainville and Guam campaigns as a liaison officer. Major Percy is a 1918 graduate of Harvard College. He has two sons, Stephen, 12, and Christopher, 9.

Jap Band Cleaned Out On Edge Of Manila

Manila, April 23 (AP) — Twenty-eight Japanese who infiltrated American lines east of Manila and reached Quezon City at this city's outskirts, were cornered and cleaned out by a United States 6th Cavalry reconnaissance troops led by Second Lieutenant Oliver Q. Melton, Jr., son of a Griffin (Ga.) newspaper publisher.

The Japanese infiltrated 8 miles before the Americans located them in a narrow gulch at the edge of town. Armored vehicles were placed above and below the Nipponese, bottling them up while the troops moved in. Twenty-two Japs were killed, two captured and four escaped with no Yanks killed or captured.

Melton said he saw three Japanese commit suicide by holding grenades to their heads. Loot brought back included eighteen rifles and carbines, two sabers, eight pistols and two machine guns.

JAPS RECAPTURE TOWN ON OKINAWA

Doughboys Battle to Retake Kakazu, Fierce Battle Rages.

APR 24 1945

GUAM, Tuesday, April 24—(AP) American Tenth Army Doughboys fought to retake Kakazu town on southwestern Okinawa, field dispatches reported today, after losing it to infiltrating Japanese in fighting so close and bitter that front lines were sometimes scrambled.

Sneaking forward under cover of darkness, the Japanese managed to seize Kakazu's cluster of ruined, flea-infested huts Sunday. The town is near the Okinawa capital of Naha, stubbornly defended by the Nipponese.

20 Jap Planes Bagged

U. S. Pacific fleet carrier planes, meantime, destroyed 20 Japanese planes at Miyaka island in the southern Ryukyus Sunday. Fifteen were wiped out on the ground and five in combat. Four other enemy planes were shot down at Ishigaki island nearby.

Nimitz' only reference to the bitter southern Okinawa fighting was that naval guns and carrier aircraft "continued to support troops of the 24th Army corps attacking the enemy's fortified line."

Field reports said the Yanks were fighting to retake Kakazu town after losing it to infiltrating Japanese in battling so close and fierce that sections of the front line sometimes were scrambled.

The 27th division was forced to withdraw from Kakazu town by a Japanese counter-attack after heavy night infiltration.

Associated Press Correspondent Jim Lindsley reported that Japanese troops, striking from a cave concealment behind the 165th regiment lines near the west coast, had to be bombed by an air strike behind the American lines—a unique air support operation.

In the Seventh division sector on the east flank a 155 mm. Japanese howitzer, hauled up for point-blank pounding of hill positions, was stalling the American advance. About one-third of the hill had been blown off.

Japanese machinegunners were killed at scores of positions, but reinforcements replaced them in seemingly endless parade from tunnels and caves.

The extensive nature of these enemy cave defenses was demonstrated in one sector where flamethrowers, focussed on holes on one side of a ridge, shot flames through the hill and out the other side.

Destruction of 33 Japanese planes in all was reported in Nimitz' communique today. This included the 24 wiped out at Miyako and Ishigaki in the southern Ryukyus, three wrecked on the ground at Kume island west of Okinawa, one shot down north of Okinawa by a Marine plane and five destroyed by British carrier planes in the southern Ryukyus April 16 and 17.

The three destroyed on the ground at Kume presumably were part of the estimated force of more than 100 which attacked the American Okinawa invasion fleet Sunday afternoon and made emergency landings in the Kerama group. Forty-nine enemy planes were destroyed in the Sunday raid. Four of these were attempted suicide crashes.

The Japanese were fighting for every foot of the heavily fortified southern end of the island, against which the Americans launched a "substantial" offensive last Thursday. The see-saw nature of the fighting since was indicated in the battle for Kakazu.

Japs Recapture Kakazu Town On Okinawa

Guam, April 23 (AP)—Japanese troops, infiltrating heavily under cover of darkness, this morning recaptured Kakazu Town on western Okinawa. It had been taken earlier by the United States 27th Division in the invasion campaign which has cost the enemy 11,738 troops since April 1.

One officer described the drive south as "damn slow and not cheap."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, reporting progress up to 5 P.M. yesterday, the fifth day of the all-out American push, said "No substantial changes had been made in the lines" despite continued attacks with thunderous naval, air and artillery support.

Islets Invaded

Nimitz also reported the Marine invasion of two small islets off Okinawa, another heavy Japanese air-raid against American ground positions and shipping at Okinawa in which "one light unit" of the fleet was sunk, an effective Iwo Jima-based Mustang sweep of the enemy's mainland island of Honshu and a carrier-plane attack on the northern Ryukyus.

Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of the 24th Army Corps—the 7th, 27th and 96th divisions—counted 11,738 Japanese killed and 27 taken prisoner since D-day in southern Okinawa, his zone of action.

U.S. Losses

American casualties in ground fighting on Okinawa, tabulated as of Wednesday, were 478 killed, 2,457 wounded and 260 missing.

Marines of Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's 3d Amphibious Corps invaded Taka islet, at the entrance to Kimmu harbor on the west coast of Okinawa, and Sesoko islet, one mile off the Motobu peninsula of western Okinawa, yesterday.

Taka was quickly occupied and the leathernecks had overrun half of Sesoko in the first few hours. The islets measure about a square mile each.

Forty-nine Japanese planes were shot down yesterday in the first Japanese air attack in force against the Okinawa area since last Monday. Four enemy planes were knocked down in a lighter attack the previous night.

Jap Attack Described

Nimitz reported that a "substantial group" of Jap flyers roared in during the afternoon, sweeping ground targets and the big invasion armada offshore. Some damage was acknowledged and one unidentified "light unit" of the fleet was sunk.

The fiercest fight in this atttack occurred when a destroyer and two smaller craft were attacked by two groups of ten to fifteen Japanese planes approaching from opposite directions. With the aid of two American planes this little group shot down 21 enemy planes and probably destroyed two or three others. It was during this engagement the "light unit" was sunk.

Carrier - based American planes attacked the northern Ryukyu Islands steadily from April 18 through April 22, concentrating on airfields in the Amami group, between Okinawa and the Japanese homeland.

Gun Crew's Doom

Troops of the 184th Regiment, 96th Division, in the center of the three-way land drive on southern Okinawa, reported killing 36 Japanese one by one as they continued to replace a machine-gun crew at the mouth of a cave.

While occupation of the newly-invaded islets off Okinawa continued, a Marine unit on quiet Ishikawa Isthmus was attacked by Japanese who killed three Marines and wounded one other.

Mustangs Sink 4 Ships Near Nagoya

Guam, April 23 (AP) — United States 7th Fighter Command Mustang pilots proved their worth as a harassing weapon against the Japanese homeland yesterday, as they sank four ships and destroyed or damaged 47 planes in a sweep of the Suzuka naval air base near Nagoya.

It was the third independent Mustang raid on the Nipponese homeland and the second in three days. On this strike the P-51's found shipping as targets for the first time.

A flight led by Capt. Robert W. Moore, of Anchorage, Ky., sighted a 400-foot-long freighter in Nagoya harbor, northwest of the Sukura air base. The ship, 6,000 to 8,000 tons, blew up under the waterline strafing fire by Moore and three other flyers.

Two Oil Tankers Sunk

Two 150-foot-long oil tankers and one 200 feet long also were sunk.

Mustang pilots described Japanese air opposition as very weak. Flak was moderate to intense, but inaccurate. Thirty enemy fighters were met in the air, but they were "extremely unaggressive."

Several enemy fighter planes were caught trying to take off. Moore saw one taxiing for a takeoff when a Mustang made a pass across the field.

Back Into Hangar

"The Jap turned around and taxied right back into the hangar," Moore said.

Three days before, Iwo-based Mustangs destroyed or damaged 84 Japanese planes on a sweep of the Atsugi naval air base, a protection point for Tokyo as Suzuka is for Nagoya. The Mustangs' first independent strike at the Nipponese homeland was a strafing raid of the Kanoya air base on southern Kyushu last Monday.

B-29'S POUND JAP INDUSTRY

Raid By "Large Force" From Marianas Announced

Washington, April 23 (AP)—Industrial targets at Tachikawai just west of Tokyo were attacked by American Superfortress bombers today.

The War Department, in a special announcement by the 20th Air Force headquarters, said the large force of raiders was from Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May's 21st Bomber Command in the Marianas islands.

There were no immediate details available on the attack.

Meanwhile, the Japanese radio broadcast a report that "about 100" Marianas - based Superfortresses with an escort of about 30 "carrier-based Grummans" raided Kyushu and other areas for three hours Tuesday morning starting at 6 A.M. Kyushu is Japan's southernmost mainland island.

APR 24 1945

There was no immediate confirmation.

San Francisco, April 23 (A. P.). Three hundred American bombers raided Formosa yesterday, the Tokyo radio said today in a broadcast recorded by the FCC. Taichu, on the central west coast, bore the brunt of the attack. This would appear to be an unusually heavy attack on the island guarding the central China coast which has been hit daily for months by Philippine-based bombers.

ner, of Washington, D.C., two planes; William L. Hood, of Benton Harbor, Mich., three; Norman Theriault, of Woonsocket, R.I.,

A five-plane Marine patrol [illegible] Yontan Field on Okinawa countered five Japanese aircraft and downed all of them without loss. This squadron included First Lieutenant H. R. Mabey, Hinsdale, N.Y.; Second Lieutenants H. E. Winner, Thune, Neb.; Jim D. Bender, Denver, Pa.; Frederick Kolb, Jr., Newark, N.J., and Elliot F. Brown, Morristown, N.J. Kolb and Brown were credited with two planes each.

Kolb was shot down later but

Japanese home island.

The Superfortress developed engine trouble and its pilot, First Lieutenant William Robertson, of Houston, Texas, landed on Yontan rather than limp back to Iwo Jima or the Marianas islands.

UNORTHODOX BOMBING TRIED IN OKINAWA

Okinawa, April 23 (A. P.). American infantrymen get away from the book occasionally in their campaign south on Okinawa.

In the sector held by the 165th Infantry—the New York fighting Irish—where the going has been tough, an air strike was carried out behind our lines to clean out by-passed Japanese. Enemy troops dug in on a ridge were believed destroyed by aerial bombs after launching one rear attack.

communications at a town which had not yet been occupied. The boys set up the phone system then began retracing their steps, laying wire. Meanwhile, another unit moving forward was laying wire. The plan was to meet, splice the wire and complete the line. But some Japs cut in between them and got astraddle of the road. The advancing element got warning but the returning element did not—and had to run the Jap road block. They knocked over several Japs finishing that job.

Dramatic Episode

One of the most dramatic episodes for this battalion was the sending of Maj. Gen. O. W. Griswold's ultimatum to the Japs in the walled city of Manila—Intramuplains why I am still extant," said Lieutenant Bryant.

Once, around Calumpit, a unit of this battalion raced ahead to set up

Hornberger, of Mount Carmel, Pa., and Tech. Sergt. George J. Hamlin, of Hamtramck, Mich.; Lieut. George W. Webber, of Rosslyndale, Mass., and Staff Sergeant Blane J. Tetrich, of Mountain Grove, Mo., comprising a communications reconnaissance team with the 14th Corps. First Lieutenant Vincent J. Lanigan, of Concord, N.H., and Staff Sergt. John F. Shuett, of Cincinnati, were outstanding in handling many radio link jobs.

The battalion commander is Lieut. Col. Clyde R. Smith, of Los Angeles, and the company commanders Capt. Milton D. Weeks, of Atlanta, Ga.; Ned E. Ames, of Muscatine, Iowa; Captain Hagberg; Capt. John T. Fletcher, Trenton, N.J.; Capt. Gordon D. Gray (home town unknown), and Lieut. Harry F. Bell, of Charleston, W.Va.

"Our losses were very light," said First Lieutenant Harvey F. Sloan, of Bellevue, Pa., "say about one man wounded for every 10,000 miles of wire."

"oppression and provocation through economic measures, as well as by armed force, is to be prevented."

Togo admitted that "the war situation is extremely grave," but added, "we possess both the confidence and the wherewithal to insure for ourselves a decisive victory."

He said the United States and Great Britain "mean to establish a despotism of the big powers, although they preach ostensibly democracy and equality."

Three American Marine Pilots Become Aces In First Combat

Okinawa, Ryukyu Islands, April 22 [AP—Delayed]—In an air battle perhaps unprecedented in this war three American Marine pilots became aces in their first combat, shooting down sixteen Japanese planes and damaging or probably destroying at least five others.

The achievements of the leatherneck flyers highlighted widespread engagements tonight over the Okinawa region in which airplanes and ships' gunners destroyed 49 Japanese aircraft and turned back the surviving remnants of a Nipponese bombing force estimated at 112 planes.

Fighter pilots of the 2d Marine Air Wing destroyed 35 planes, listed four as "probables" and damaged six of an estimated 55 Japanese aircraft they encountered while on dusk combat patrols.

The biggest kill—24 dive bombers and fighters—was credited to Corsair pilots of the squadron.

All Patrol Members Score

The three pilots who became aces are Major George C. Axtell, Jr., Alabama University student from Baden, Pa., whose wife resides at South Laguna, Cal.; Major Jefferson Davis Dorrah, Hood River, Ore., and First Lieutenant Jeremiah J. O'Keefe, of Biloxi, Miss. The latter's wife resides at Ocean Springs, Miss.

Axtell shot down five dive bombers and damaged three. Dorrah bagged six bombers and had two probables. O'Keefe was credited with five planes.

Want More Opposition

Every other member of the patrol also scored. They included First Lieutenants Edward L. Ab-was rescued.

Axtell said the squadron had been in the Pacific more than six months without a chance to tangle with the Japanese. He added: "The Japs got to give us more opposition than that to impress us."

SURGEON REMOVES UNEXPLODED SHELL

At An Army Field Hospital, Okinawa, April 23 (A. P.).—A delicate operation in which an unexploded Japanese mortar shell was taken from an infantryman's back successfully, was disclosed today.

Capt. Sidney Cohen of 764 East 176th street, the Bronx, New York city, accomplished the feat under the direction of Lieut. Richard C. Greenman of Philadelphia, Pa., a bomb disposal officer, and said the patient has every prospect of recovery. The wounded man's identity was not disclosed.

Cohen said removal of a kidney was necessary. He administered three units of whole blood, and added that the patient left the hospital "in good shape."

Yank Linemen On Luzon Did Almost As Much Fighting As Wire Stringing

By Fred Hampson

With 88th Signal Battalion, Luzon, April 23 (AP)—The linemen on Luzon had to double with the carbine. Sometimes it seemed they did almost as much fighting as wire stringing.

This is not unusual in a hot campaign where front lines are never well defined, but during the 14th Corps' blitz to Manila from Lingayen the communications men were forever getting ahead of the infantry. You can do this once in awhile, but as a steady diet it isn't healthy.

The fastest advance of any part of the central plains campaign probably was the 88th Signal Battalion's arrival in San Fernandon. The wire men got the telephone system working three days before the main infantry column arrived.

Forced To Undo Tough Job

Once this communications unit was forced to undo a very tough job. The 14th Corps wanted to move its command post to Bamban. The battalion set up communications under artillery fire that got heavier and heavier. When it finished, the artillery fire was so heavy the move was canceled. So the boys had to dismantle their setup under continued fire and move out.

During this job Lieut. Joseph H. Bryant, of Eatonton, Ga., had the thrill of seeing a Jap 75-millimeter shell land ten feet from him.

"The shell was a dud, which ex-

ros—to surrender or die. The boys set radio transmitters in all likely places, beamed them into the Intramuros on common Jap broadcast frequencies, then waited until Jap broadcasts were finished and immediately sent the message. Several times they received acknowledgment of receipt of the message, but the Japanese refused to act on the ultimatum.

Major John M. Goodwin, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Waltham, Mass., the battalion's executive officer, was one communications man who had to turn fighter during the Lingayen-to-Manila wire job. He got a Jap.

Pfcs. William E. Carter, Jr., of Louisburg, Tenn.; Jesse B. Green, of Port Gibson, Miss.; Albert Steinberg, of Chicago, and Sergt. Theodore G. Todd, Columbus, Ohio, are others known to have killed Japs during recesses from wire work. Carter got two confirmed and two probables, Todd two confirmed and three probables.

Capt. Charles R. Hagberg, of Springfield, Ill., and Lieut. James F. Ginley, of Lakewood, Ohio, entered Manila with advanced infantry units to secure the city's main switchboards.

Some Of Men Caught

Some of the men caught in the barrage at Bamban were Lieutenant Bryant, Tech. Sergt. Harold N.

JAPANESE PUPPETS PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23 (AP)—Spokesmen for Japanese puppet governments pledged new allegiance today to Japan's "co-prosperity sphere," which their countries have been enjoying in recent years, the Japanese Domei news agency reported.

Envoys from occupied nations adopted a manifesto pledging their nationals to "struggle to emancipate" Asia from "Anglo-American imperialism" after Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo told them the United Nations Conference in San Francisco was an attempt to promote the "selfish and sinister" ambitions of the United States and Great Britain.

The Domei dispatch, intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, said the conference was attended by representatives of Japan's puppet governments in Manchuria, China, Thailand, Burma and the Philippines.

The manifesto called for "political equality, economic reciprocity and the abolition of all forms of discrimination, racial and otherwise," under the Japanese concept of "co-prosperity and well being through harmony and cooperation."

Each nation is supposed "to choose its own form of government without interference." And

Chinese Gain South Of Tungting Lake

Chungking, April 23 (AP)—Chinese counterattacking south of Tungting Lake against the right flank of the Japanese advance on Chihkiang, important United States 14th Air Force base 250 miles southeast of Chungking, have made further gains, the high command said tonight.

Chinese vanguards were reported to have reached the suburbs of Yiyang, northwest of Changsha and main enemy base for the enemy drive. The high command said Chinese troops also had driven to the western suburbs of Yingsiang, west of Changsha and base of a supporting Japanese column.

Gain Northwest Of Paoching

Northwest of Paoching, base for a Japanese column moving in the center of the three-column enemy offensive, gains were made against the invaders after two Japanese counterattacks had been repulsed.

Farther west reinforced Japanese units were engaged by Chinese troops.

In Hupeh province Chinese troops, striking southward toward the Japanese base at Kingmen northeast of the Yangtze River port of Ichang, were within 16 miles of their objective, which is one of the key points on the enemy's overland communications between Ichang and Hankow.

In Honan province Chinese troops repulsed two enemy counterattacks west of Hsihsiakow, 80 miles north of Laohokow, former site of a United States airbase.

YANKS ARE TAUGHT HOW TO EXIST ON WILDEST ISLANDS

HONOLULU, April 23—(AP) A shy, soft spoken man whose gentle nature belies the fact he has lived on the wildest islands of the Pacific, and a college professor whose hobby is exploring are helping to save the lives of thousands of Americans fighting in the Pacific.

An airman, picked up in good health off some tiny land spot after being stranded there for weeks, managed to subsist all that time because of knowledge based on first hand information by Kenneth P. Emory and Loring G. Hudson.

Visited Islands Since 1920

Emory, ethnologist for the Bernice P. Bishop museum in Honolulu, has been visiting central Pacific islands since 1920. Hudson, while an instructor of journalism in the Kamehameha schools, has cast an experienced eye at plant life on Formosa, in the Ryukyus and in Japan itself.

Either can take a machete and a magnifying glass and live on an island not only in good health but with a degree of primitive luxury.

They insist there isn't an island anywhere in the Pacific, not even the smallest, where a man cannot exist for months entirely on what he finds there.

Emory and Hudson were "borrowed" for the duration by the military services to teach American youths, accustomed to getting their food by responding to the call "come and get it," to survive among the strange, far away islands along the way to Tokyo.

Within the past 12-month period, more than 100,000 American service men, including more than 25,000 air personnel, have been passed along the expert knowledge of Emory and Hudson, either directly or by instructors in jungle survival classes.

Among the things they have been told are:

Taught How to Test Plants

How to accurately test strange looking fruits as to whether they are poisonous; how to open a coconut—if you don't know it's a terrific job but if you do, it's simple; how, if you are bobbing at sea on a rubber raft, you can catch fish by snaring a fish eating bobby bird, utilizing a white cloth and a rope with a rock tied on the end.

How to make yourself a gun hat, a shelter, a hammock—to keep off the ground in snake country—a bed and a stretcher for any wounded cases and by weaving the fronds of the coconut tree; how to keep a constant fire with the inside of coconut husks; how to keep off sharks while on a raft at sea when you are unarmed.

How to reckon the distance and direction to land through the flight of the tern; how to contact natives in such a manner as not to offend them and to make certain no Japanese are near.

Had a group of soldiers on Saipan who were pinned down in a sugar cane field by Japanese only possessed the knowledge available from Emory, they would not have suffered from thirst as they did. They would have known moisture was available in the sugar cane.

POOR DEFENSE MET NORTH OF RANGOON

British Armored Forces Push On at Average of 10 Miles a Day —Chinese Offensive Gains

APR 24 1945

NEW DELHI, India, April 23 (AP)—British armored forces, speeding southward from Mandalay at an average rate of ten miles a day, have driven to within less than 240 miles of Rangoon without developing a sign of solid Japanese resistance, it was announced today.

One Fourteenth Army unit was reported within sixty miles of Toungoo, an important intersection on the north-south route only 178 miles from Rangoon. Between the advancing British columns and Rangoon is flat country, ideal for the best use of Allied armored and air superiority.

Not since their decisive defeat in the vicinity of Mandalay a month ago have the Japanese been able to organize a real counter-attack.

One natural defense zone ahead is at Pegu Chaung, where a watercourse running westward from the Sittang River at the head of Rangoon peninsula gives the Japanese the semblance of a line. But even that can be by-passed to the east.

Argentina Arrests Rawson, Others

Montevideo, Uruguay, April 23 (AP)—The Argentine Government has caused the arrest of a number of persons, including Gen. Arturo Rawson, one-day President at the time of the military revolt in 1943.

The Government forbade the Associated Press from sending the news from Buenos Aires.

The arrests were made shortly after Avra Warren, director of American Republic Affairs in the United States State Department, and an American good-will mission, left Argentina last Friday. The mission reportedly was making a first-hand study of the means the Argentine Government is using to implement its recent war declaration against the Axis.

Persons Arrested

Those arrested with Rawson included Julio Noble, an editorial writer in Nacion; Leandro Saporiti, director of the Argentine News Agency, and Jose Arrieta, correspondent for International News Service.

Rawson was leader of the revolt in 1943 but gave way to Gen. Adelmiro Farrell after one day in the Presidency. He was appointed Ambassador to Brazil, but returned several months ago. He is reported to have been under watch by the War Department.

More Than 70 Arrested

Argentine exiles in Montevideo said Federal police started a series of raids on private houses Friday in Buenos Aires, Cordoba, Monda and Rosario and arrested more than 70 persons.

Units Of First Corps

Ottawa, April 23 (AP)—The Canadian 1st Corps, transferred from Italy to northwest Europe, includes the 1st Infantry and 5th Armored Divisions.

The corps is commanded by Lieut. Gen. Charles Foulkes and has been operating with the British 8th Army. It will now become part of Gen. Henry Crerar's Canadian 1st Army. Other formations in the 1st Corps include the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards of Ottawa, the Royal Canadian Dragoons and the Lorne Scots.

Big Three Warn German People Against Mistreating Prisoners

APR 24 1945

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP) The Allies tonight sternly warned the Nazis against mistreatment of prisoners, and the United States took Germany up on an offer to leave American prisoners-of-war in camps as Allied forces overrun areas where they are held.

Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin joined with President Truman in the warning that any person guilty of maltreating any Allied prisoner of war, internee or deported citizen will be "ruthlessly pursued and brought to punishment."

The stiffly worded statement was an obvious outgrowth of mounting indignation over horrible conditions found in a number of German prison camps as American arms drive the Nazis behind them.

This anger also reflected itself this way here:

A demand was voiced in the House by Rep. Flood (D-Pa.) that the captured German diplomat, Franz Von Papen be tried "as one of the chief agents of the Nazi hierarchy" behind atrocities.

Another Congressman Rep. Gossett (D-Tex.) said every German prisoner of war held in this country should be compelled to see movies of the murder camps uncovered by the Allies in Europe.

Elmer Davis, of the Office of War Information, promised that the Germans would be told "plenty" about the wholesale horrors as part of their re-education.

Creation of an official American agency to investigate and record war crimes was proposed in Congress.

The Truman-Churchill-Stalin warning was addressed to any German who has charge of prisoners anywhere. It was made carefully explicit that there can be no reliance on the excuse of orders from higher authority, or on alibis that the acts were carried out by subordinates without actual authorization.

Every available means of communication, including broadcasts from Washington, London and Moscow, was being utilized to convey the message to all commandants, guards, Gestapo agents and other persons regardless of service or rank, who might have charge of Allied nationals. Allied planes were dropping uncounted copies of the warning over the part of Germany still held by the Nazis.

"Any person guilty of maltreating or allowing any Allied prisoner of war, internee or deported citizen to be maltreated, whether in the battle zone, on lines of communication, in a camp, hospital, prison or elsewhere, will be ruthlessly pursued and brought to punishment," the statement says.

It adds that responsibility will be "binding in all circumstances and one which cannot be transferred to any other authorities or individuals whatsoever."

Those specifically addressed, it says, "no less than the German High command and the competent German military, naval and air authorities, will be held individually responsible."

The German offer to leave prisoners of war where they may be liberated by advancing Allied armies was transmitted by Switzerland a joint announcement by the War and State departments said.

The statement said it applied to "all prisoners of war" but this government's acceptance was for itself alone and only as applied to American prisoners.

"The government of the United States," the State-War announcement said, "informed the Swiss government that unless word to the contrary was received from Germany by midnight Sunday April 22, 1945 (Bern, Switzerland, time—7 p. m. Eastern War Time), the government of the United States would consider this arrangement as being in effect as between itself and the German government as it relates to American prisoners of war, and as being operative as of that time and date.

"As of the time specified, no word to the contrary had been received from the German government."

One factor behind the German offer obviously was the lessening capacity of the hard-hammered Nazis to handle prisoner movements or find new places for them.

Cole Offers Bill to Buy Rights to Suribachi Flag Picture

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—Legislation authorizing the Navy Department to acquire exclusive ownership of the photograph showing the raising of the American flag on Mount Suribachi in the Pacific was introduced today by Representative W. Sterling Cole, Republican, of New York.

The picture was taken on Iwo Island by Joseph Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer.

This photograph has been accepted by the public as representative of all the forces at work in this war," Mr. Cole said. "It should become public property, so it can be dispensed to all with no one profiting from it."

In New York, Kent Cooper, executive director of The Associated Press, said that on April 12 he wrote Secretary Forrestal that The Associated Press had made the picture available at nominal cost to "all those who agreed to make proper use of it, but not for advertising." In addition, it was made available to the Treasury Department without cost for use in advertising the Seventh War Loan. Further, Mr. Cooper offered to the Navy Relief Society the gross proceeds from the sales without any deduction for the cost of reproduction and mailing.

House Reaffirms Tydings Act

Washington, April 23 (A. P.).—House passage sent to the White House today legislation reaffirming provisions of the Tydings act, which prescribes the method of giving draft deferments to farm workers. The legislation grew out of recent complaints that draft boards were ignoring the Tydings provision that essential and irreplaceable farm workers shall not be inducted.

Industry Agrees on Plan For Sale of War Plants

Senate Committee Reports on Utah Steel Mill Proposal

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP).—Industry is "practically unanimous" in agreement that government war plants should be disposed of before they become idle, a Senate committee reported today.

A progress report filed by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming, for subgroups of the Senate military and post-war planning committees commends the Defense Plant Corporation for "wisdom and foresight" in beginning preparation for the sale of the $200,000,000 Geneva, Utah, steel plant.

The committee cautions, however, that the Geneva plant is not surplus and production for the Army probably will continue "indefinitely," for the Maritime Commission at least until fall and for the Navy during the remainder of this year.

In preparations for future hearings, the subcommittees sent exploratory letters to more than 100 steel companies and fifty railroads. The hearings, Senator O'Mahoney said, will endeavor to develop "an agreed statement of facts" and "an agreed policy in the public interest."

MOVE TO RESTRICT ARMY DUTY FAILS

Washington, April 23 (A. P.).—The Senate voted down today, 66 to 9, a proposal to require twelve months' training before combat duty for all draftees under twenty. The action came after Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, had advised the Senate that the Army would adopt a policy of sending overseas no soldiers under nineteen as soon as military conditions permit.

Senator O'Daniel (D.-Tex.) offered the rejected proposal as an amendment to legislation extending the draft law for one year. The law expires on May 15.

The vote on Mr. O'Daniel's amendment cleared the way for consideration of a proposal by a bipartisan group to require at least six months' training before combat for inductees under nineteen.

PHILLIPS PROMOTED

WASHINGTON, April 23 — (AP) The State department announced late today that William Phillips, former United States ambassador to Italy and more recently political advisor to Gen. Eisenhower, has been appointed special assistant to the Secretary of State. He will assist in handling departmental matters while many of the top officials of the State department are in San Francisco.

Marshall Advice On Youth-Use

Washington, April 23 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall advised Congress today that as soon as military conditions permit the Army will adopt a policy of sending overseas no soldiers younger than 19.

The chief of staff made this statement in a letter to Chairman Thomas (D., Utah) of the Senate Military Committee.

Senator Hill (D., Ala.), acting majority leader, read the letter to the Senate during debate on legislation to extend the Selective Service Act for another year. The present expiration date is May 15.

The Senate dispute over restricting the use of 18-year-old service men in combat approached a climax with two key figures absent.

Barkley, Thomas Away

Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.) and Chairman Thomas, standout opponents of the proposed restrictions, were among the group of Congressmen designated Saturday to fly to Europe for an inspection of German atrocities.

The departure of Thomas, floor manager for the selective service extension legislation to which the amendments have been proposed, gave the task to Senator Hill, majority whip and second below the chairman in military committee seniority.

The ranking Democrat on the committee, Senator Johnson (D., Col.), was out of the picture because he is a co-author of one of the amendments opposed by the army and navy high command.

TRUMAN RECEIVES SUPPORT PLEDGE FROM DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON, April 23—(AP) In an unusual demonstration of party loyalty, 38 Democratic senators of varying shades of economic philosophy called on President Truman today and promised to back him.

Acting Majority Leader Hill of Alabama said the delegation, made up of all the Democratic senators in town at the time, pledge the President their "cooperation, goodwill and support."

The visit topped another day of heavy work for the chief executive who saw other Congressional groups, talked twice with State Secretary Stettinius and summoned his joint chiefs of staff to an afternoon conference.

Among the 38 Democratic senators—there are 55 members of the party in the Senate—were men often in conflict with at least parts of President Roosevelt's program. Present also were some of the late Chief Executive's strongest supporters.

There were Senators Johnson of Colorado; O'Daniel of Texas, Byrd of Virginia, Gerry of Rhode Island, Walsh of Massachusetts, Bailey of North Carolina and others who had taken issue with phases of the New Deal.

There also were Roosevelt enthusiasts like Hill, Pepper of Florida, Guffey of Pennsylvania, Lucas of Illinois, Hatch of New Mexico, and Maybank of South Carolina.

"It was a demonstration of party loyalty and they meant it," commented Senator Chavez of New Mexico as the group moved out of the President's offices.

Specifically Senator Hill, in the absence of Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky on a trip to Europe to investigate German atrocities, presented the President with resolutions adopted by the Senate Democratic conference pledging support and cooperation.

Hill said the President expressed his appreciation of what his former colleagues in the Senate had done.

Once, hand clapping could be heard outside the President's office.

"Harry told us how much he loved us," Senator Taylor of Idaho explained, "and we felt good about it."

Only last week Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Senate Steering committee, headed a delegation which pledged cooperation with the new President.

Others who called at the White House today included a delegation of Congressmen from his home state of Missouri, and Representatives Brooks (D-La.); Rankin (D-Miss) and Schwabe (R-Okla.) One of the Missouri men said the question whether Mr. Truman would seek election in 1948 was brought up incidentally but the President passed it off by saying he was too busy now with problems of war and peace to think about that.

The President heard from Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, Veterans administrator, that he was having difficulty recruiting nurses for Veterans' hospitals.

Hines said if he could get 100 nurses immediately, he could make 1,000 additional beds available for wounded disabled veterans. He also asserted that more disabled veterans are now receiving government benefit payments than there were on the rolls at the peak load of World War I.

YEAR TRAINING PLAN STOPPED

APR 24 1945

Sought Before Combat Duty For Draftees Under 20

Washington, April 23 (AP)—A move to require twelve months' military training before combat for draftees under 20 years of age was snowed under, 66 to 9, today in the Senate.

A promise by Gen. George C. Marshall to stop sending youths of less than 19 overseas, as soon as war conditions permit, helped build up the top-heavy vote against this proposal by Senator O'Daniel (D., Texas).

Defeat of the O'Daniel proposal strengthened Administration hopes of securing a one-year extension of the Selective Service Act without any congressional mandate as to how long teen-age draftees shall be trained.

Message From Marshall

Still to be hurdled is a proposal by a bipartisan group to require at least six months of training before boys under 19 are sent into battle. A vote is expected on this tomorrow.

Both the Army and Navy are asking extension of the draft law without change. It is due to expire May 15.

Before the vote on O'Daniel's proposal, Senator Hill (D., Ala), acting majority leader, read this message from General Marshall:

"Just as soon as the military situation will permit, it is the program of the War Department to stop shipping men overseas who have not yet become 19 years of age, and I am hopeful that this condition will develop in the near future."

Hill Fears Victory Delay

The Chief of Staff's statement was made in a letter to Chairman Thomas (D., Utah), of the Military Committee.

To this, Hill added an assertion that fewer than 10,000 men have been sent into combat by the Army with less than six months of training.

Senator Tydings said it was clear the Army was trying to do in practice what the sponsors of a mandatory minimum training period wanted to order by legislation.

Hill argued that to put the principle into law would require every commander in the battle zones to "comb out any men who were there in violation of the standard set by Congress."

The only result, he contended, would be to "slow down the drive for victory."

Taft For Amendment

O'Daniel's amendment got support only from himself and Senators Bilbo (Miss.), McCarran (Nev.) and Stewart (Tenn.), Democrats, and Bushfield (S.D.), Langer (N.D.), Moore (Okla.), Revercomb (W.Va.) and Young (N.D.), Republicans.

The sponsors of the six months' amendment — Senators Stewart, Johnson (D., Col.), Revercomb and Wilson (R., Iowa)—are assured of support, however, from several who voted against the Texas Senator's amendment.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) announced his intention to vote with them. He said he had received many reports of young men killed in action less than six months after they were inducted.

Meanwhile, legislation touching another phase of selective service reached the White House—the so-called Tydings Farm Deferment resolution.

Tydings Complains

The resolution reaffirms and strengthens a legislative prohibition against the induction of necessary farm workers, previously written into the selective service law. Senator Tydings and other legislators complained that despite the first farm-deferment clause, necessary agricultural workers continued to be taken into the armed forces to the detriment of the nation's food production.

The new language was prepared for incorporation in the manpower control bill. When that bill lapsed into apparent death, the language was taken out and passed by both houses as separate legislation.

Phrasing Supported

It provides that in classifying farm workers for deferment, local draft boards shall base their finds "exclusively on whether the registrant is necessary to and regularly engaged in an agricultural occupation or endeavor essential to the war effort, and whether a satisfactory replacement can be obtained, without reference to the relative essentiality of the registrant to an agricultural occupation or endeavor as compared with any other occupation, service or endeavor."

Backers of the measure said they thought the phrasing strong enough to keep a necessary worker on the farm even though the Army claimed it needed men of his type.

The measure provides that any registrant who wants to volunteer in the armed forces shall not be deprived of the right to do so.

5% NEWSPRINT GAIN FORESEEN

WPB Hopes Canada Shipments Will Increase

Washington, April 23 (AP)—A five to six per cent increase in Canadian newsprint shipments to this country during the second half of the year is the "hope" of the War Production Board.

This has been expressed to members of the Newspaper Industry Advisory Committee, WPB's printing and publishing division reported today.

The committee discussed prospects for acquiring newsprint from Scandanavian sources during the latter six months of 1945, and agreed to reopen discussions on the possibility of using 30-pound paper. The standard weight is 32-pound.

Sunday Increase Approved

The committee also approved a recommendation that Sunday newspaper publishers be allowed to increase their authorized print paper consumption in the third quarter of this year. This is to provide for an additional Sunday issue since there are fourteen Sundays in the July-September quarter.

The additional allowance for this purpose will be the excess of the average Sunday use over the average daily use in the corresponding quarter of 1944.

Any increase in newsprint shipments from Canada over the 200,000 tons now received monthly is dependent, WPB said, upon favorable weather conditions, maintenance of adequate coal supply and sufficient manpower.

Britain's Needs Grow

The committee was advised that Great Britain's pulp and paper requirements have increased recently. They will increase even more after V-E day "but will be filled mainly from Scandinavian sources," it was stated.

Canadian paper producers also will be called upon to meet larger Australian demands, the committee was informed.

WPB cautioned that expectations of obtaining "any considerable amounts" of pulp and paper from Scandinavia in the near future are "unwarranted" because of the needs of European countries for those products, and a lack of shipping facilities.

Conference Planned

Any Scandinavian paper will go into a free market, WPB said, and be subject to commercial contracts with prospective purchasers.

A conference on production of 30-pound newsprint will be held at Montreal June 4, on the invitation of Canadian newsprint manufacturers. The advisory committee, indorsing a plan for utilization of 30-pound newsprint, emphasized the need for obtaining additional printing surface "to meet adequately the needs of public service."

PRESIDENT TALKS WITH HIS CHIEF WAR ADVISERS

APR 24 1945

Results of Meeting Are Not Announced—Stettinius Also Present.

APR 24 1945

Washington, April 23 (A. P.).—President Truman conferred for an hour this afternoon with his highest diplomatic and military officials. The nature of the meeting, to which the heads of the State, War and Navy departments were summoned, was not immediately disclosed.

When the meeting broke up in mid-afternoon Secretary of the Navy Forrestal was among the first to emerge. He was asked with what subject the conference dealt. He replied, while pushing his way to the door, that Secretary of State Stettinius was still with the President, adding "he's the man to see."

When Stettinius left, he answered reporters' questions with a "sorry, you'll have to see the President."

In addition to Secretaries Stettinius and Forrestal, Secretary of War Stimson, Admiral William D. Laehy, the President's military adviser, Gen, George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, and Admiral Ernest J. King, Chief of Naval Operations were present.

The fact that the Russian and American armies are so close to each other hadled to some speculation that an announcement of their junction might be near, but the fact that Stettinius remained with the President longer than the others suggested that the discussion may have dealt with diplomatic-military aspects of the current conference of Russian, British and American Foreign Ministers here.

BIG THREE DROP POLISH ISSUE AT CAPITAL PARLEY

Broaden Scope of Talks by Calling in Chinese Foreign Minister.

DISCUSS PEACE PLANS

Polish Question Put Off to Await Reaction of Moscow.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP) The Big Three foreign ministers dropped the tangled Polish issue today and broadened the scope of their talks by calling in Chinese Foreign Minister T. V. Soong tonight.

The Polish question was seemingly dropped for the time being to await Moscow's reaction on the discussions thus far.

The night session longest so far, ended just before 11:30 p. m. Eastern War Time.

Discuss Security Parley

Soong, first to emerge from the closed meeting in the office of Secretary of State Stettinius, said arrangements for the San Francisco United Nations conference were discussed.

Asked whether the question of trusteeships for territories to be taken from the defeated Axis nations came up tonight, Soong avoided an answer, telling newemen "I have to run now to catch my plane to San Francisco. I am late now."

The "arrangements" for San Francisco discussed tonight may have involved the Russian demands for three votes in the assembly of the world organization to be set up at San Francisco. Also under discussion could have been requests by smaller nations for a greater voice in affairs of a world peacekeeping agency than was proposed for them in the Dumbarton Oaks formula.

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, coming out of the session at 11:18 p. m., a few minutes behind Soong had nothing to say beyond the smiling comment "it's all over."

He said he was leaving tomorrow for San Francisco.

V. M. Molotov, Russian foreign commissar, stayed behind in Stettinius' office until 11:27 p. m Whether there was a private conference during that time was not stated. He came out with his usual imperturable smile and all he said was "goodnight. Goodnight."

When Molotov will leave for San Francisco was not revealed by the Russian party.

To Leave For Meeting

Stettinius and his own traveling group left the Secretary's office a few minutes later, laden with luggage and brief cases marked for air transport, preparing to leave at once for the United Nations meeting.

Soong had been waiting outside in another office for about 43 minutes before he joined Stettinius, Eden, and Molotov in their deliberations. They had met again at 9 p. m., after earlier conferences during the day.

As has been the case in previous sessions involving only the British, American and Russian conferees, there was no announcement of the specific matter under discussion.

However, it is only in very recent weeks and especially since denunciation of the non-aggression pact with Japan that top ranking Russian diplomats have shown any inclination to confer officially with representatives of the Chinese government.

During most of the world-wide war the Russians have studiously avoided anything that might connect them with the war in the Pacific in which they are not involved.

Soong's entry into the conference was taken as backing for previous indications that the tangled Polish situation had been put off until Molotov can consult his government and renew conversations in San Francisco.

No Comment on Red Report

Meanwhile the State department declined to comment officially on a Moscow radio report which complained of what it called "foreign press" accounts that the Big Three had agreed at Yalta against inviting to San Francisco any Polish government unrecognized by Britain and the United States.

However, there never has been any official claim here that such an agreement was made directly by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at their Crimea conference.

Diplomats however pointed to the fact that there was a Yalta agreement to amalgamate the Kremlin sponsored Warsaw provisional government with other Polish elements.

With such an agreement in existence, it was suggested, the Yalta conferees might have seen no necessity to consider such a point at all.

Even if the factual accuracy of the Moscow report is accepted diplomats here see it as likely that the President and the Prime Minister took it for granted that an acceptable government could be set up in the two and one half months before the United Nations meeting.

This country and Britain never have recognized the undiluted Warsaw group and it would be a diplomatic rarity for a nation sponsoring an international meeting to invite a government it does not recognize.

The action of Russia in staying away from recent aviation conferences to avoid contact with regimes it does not accept is cited as a case in point.

leave the conference room at the State Department, at 12.10 P.M. He was followed a few minutes later by Stettinius and Eden and members of their party. None of these, either, had any statement on the progress of the talks.

Interpreter Being Used

Accompanying Molotov, in addition to Ambassador Gromyko, was V. N. Pavlov, Molotov's interpreter.

The conversations are being carried on through an interpreter.

Others at the conference included Assistant Secretary of State James C. Dunn and Charles Bohlen, assistant to Stettinius and an expert on Russian affairs who attended the Yalta conference.

The first session—begun less than four hours after Molotov arrived from Moscow—broke up at 11.20 o'clock last night.

Poland Believed Topic

There was no hint of the nature of their first talks. One of the main topics, however, must be the issue of Polish representation at the San Francisco conference.

Russia, holding out for the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw government, seemingly buttressed her position over the week end by making a 20-year friendship pact with that regime, which lacks both American and British recognition.

Anglo-American insistence has been for a more broadly representative government, as envisaged at Yalta.

Foreign Ministers Resume Talks

APR 24 1945

Washington, April 23 (AP)—The Big Three Foreign Ministers today resumed their discussions preliminary to the San Francisco conference.

The sessions began shortly after 10.30 A.M. when Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov arrived at Secretary of State Stettinius's office. British Foreign Minister Eden had arrived a short time before.

Also present for the conference were Soviet Ambassador Andrei Gromyko; W. Averell Harriman, American Ambassador to Russia; Sir Alexander Cadogan, British Permanent Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs; Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, British Ambassador to Moscow, and United States Under Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew.

Stettinius Sees Truman

After an hour and a half, the foreign ministers recessed for lunch, but Stettinius declared, "We're still in conference."

After leaving the conference, Stettinius hurried to see President Truman. He told White House reporters he had "no comment."

Molotov of Russia was first to

URGED TO CURB CLOTHES SALES

Retailers Asked By WPB To Spread Supply

Washington, April 23 (AP)—The War Production Board today called on retailers of clothing and other textile products to spread the supply "as equitably as possible" among customers.

In a revised "declaration of policy," WPB urged a form of voluntary dealer rationing, such as many dealers already have put into effect. The board reiterated an appeal of July, 1943, that merchants avoid use of "scarce" and "buy now" advertising.

"In limiting sales of scarce items, each retailer should, as far as possible, treat all his customers alike," the statement said.

Examples Presented

These examples—"by way of illustration only"—were presented:

Sheets, two to a customer; women's hose, two pairs; men's shirts, undershirts and shorts, two of each to a customer; infants' and children's underwear, two garments per child.

Although policy declaration is purely advisory, WPB made its provisions "effective" tomorrow.

The new policy discourages promotion featuring "sales" and "sale prices," except in the case of genuine sales where "substantial and permanent markdowns are taken to clear from stock accumulations of obsolete merchandise, slow-selling merchandise, broken lots and substandard merchandise."

Also recommended is the elimination of all price comparisons except in clearance sales—such as "Our price is $8.95, formerly $10.95."

The use promotionally of such words as "anniversary," "birthday" and "founders" also is frowned on.

Meanwhile, divergent views within the WPB over the best method of increasing the manufacture of popular-priced clothing came to light at a House committee hearing.

Kenneth W. Marriner, director of WPB's Textile, Clothing and Leather Bureau, upheld an order issued February 19, requiirng manufacturers to use specified percentages of their fabrics for making essential civilian items.

Would Have Delayed Action

He contended that if WPB had proceeded under an earlier order, empowering it to direct manufacturers to turn out certain goods at fixed prices, action would have been delayed until July for preparation of "company directives."

One of his subordinates, Joseph F. Gleitsman, asserted, however, that use of the early order would have worked more successfully and with less confusion than the present priority and quota controls.

Gleitsman, head of the children's clothing, knit goods and equipage division, likewise asserted that amendment of the February order to eliminate an "equitable distribution clause" was a mistake.

Allied Eyes Turning To East Indies

APR 24 1945

By Spencer Davis

[Associated Press correspondent who has just returned to the United States after 18 months of covering the Pacific war]

New York, April 23 (AP)—While the Pacific war boils closer to Japan's home islands, military strategists have not overlooked the great by-passed land masses of the East Indies, dangling now at the end of a line of sea communications the enemy no longer can safeguard.

It long has been the contention of General MacArthur that once bases have been re-established in the Philippines, United States airplanes, submarines and warships would make the South China sea too hot for enemy shipping.

Already the Japanese have been exposed to the bombardment of fast battleships and the lashings of carrier-based aircraft from Indo-China to Hong Kong and Formosa.

Subs Have Telling Effect

They have heard Admiral Nimitz declare that task forces could go anywhere they pleased in the South China Sea. And they have been unable to stop his fast carriers and battleships on their hunts to drive the Mikado's ships from the sea.

Submarines have maintained their unpublicized hunter-killer tactics with telling effect. And now army and navy search planes based on Leyte, Mindoro and Luzon can crisscross the sea lanes to add to the effectiveness of a conbined sea and air blockade.

Without control of the South China Sea the Japanese have lost strategic, if not actual physical possession of one of the world's richest prizes, the oil and rubber bonanzas of Borneo and Java and the remainder of the Indies.

Military machines cannot do without oil and rubber resources and the men who plan the logistics of war always look for means of shortening their line of supplies.

Borneo Oil Deposits

It is not unreasonable, then, to assume that the great oil deposits of Borneo will be acquired by Allied forces as soon as the military situation permits.

Borneo and Java fall within MacArthur's Southwest Pacific command. Sumatra and the Malay peninsula, including the great base of Singapore, fall within Lord Mountbatton's Southeast Asia zone of operations.

It would seem logical that whether or not MacArthur's future orders carry him closer to Japan he will need to mop up the Indies.

Repossession of the great oil refineries and fuel-production centers of Tarakan and Balikpapan alone on the eastern shores of Dutch Borneo would be of immeasurable assistance in shortening supply lines for the Army and Navy.

It would in effect triple the number of tankers now supplying Southwest Pacific ships with fuel.

Attacks Have Tapered Off

Since the art of by-passing has been developed to a high degree by MacArthur on his amphibious hops up the New Guinea coast and through the Philippines it would be consistent for him not to attempt the seizure of Borneo's 293,000 square miles of jungle. More than likely he would capture small perimeters, set up his air bases and neutralize enemy garrisons.

General Kenney's Far Eastern Air Forces pounded Balikpapan and Brunei repeatedly before the Philippine invasion, disrupting the flow of enemy oil to Philippine bases at a time when it was most needed by the Japanese.

Since then mass air attacks have tapered off on these objectives. The Dutch found Balikpapan and Tarakan fields difficult to destroy because of the nature of the fields. Oil is so close to the surface there is no need for elaborate drilling equipment or deep wells. It is of high gravity and some of it is pure enough to be used without extensive "cracking."

Although the Japanese might attempt "scorched-earth" tactics, the Dutch Borneo fields could quickly be restored to production and once more become one of the great Allied resources in the Far East. Many observers believe that event not too many months away.

38 SENATORS VISIT TRUMAN

Democrats Pledge All-out Party Support.

Washington, April 23 (A. P.).—President Truman met with thirty-eight Democratic Senators today to receive a pledge of all-out party support. Every faction within the Democratic membership of the Senate was represented at the fifteen-minute meeting at the White House.

Senator Hill of Alabama, party whip in the Senate, said that every Democratic Senator in the capital attended the meeting. As acting majority leader in the absence of Senator Barkley of Kentucky, on his way to Europe to investigate German atrocities, Senator Hill presented resolutions adopted by the Senate conference last Friday pledging the party's good will, co-operation and support.

Earlier, the Missouri congressional delegation called on Mr. Truman. Representative Cannon, Democrat, said that no business was involved and that it was a courtesy call on the President, who is from that State.

The White House had no information on whether the Russian Foreign Commissar, V. M. Molotov, would call on the President again today. Eben Ayers, assistant press secretary, asked if Molotov would call on the President again today, answered: "If Mr. Molotov wants to see him."

The conference with the Democratic leadership of the Senate followed meetings last week with spokesmen for the Republican minority, who offered to consult with the President at any time in an effort to avoid legislative controversy by ironing out differences in advance. Among the Senators who called were Walsh of New Jersey, Bailey of North Carolina, Byrd of Virginia, O'Daniel of Texas, Gerry of Rhode Island and others who have differed with the Roosevelt administration from time to time.

On the other hand, there were strong Roosevelt supporters, such as Senators Pepper of Florida, Guffey of Pennsylvania, Hill, O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Murray of Montana. "It was a demonstration of party loyalty," said Senator Chavez of New Mexico, "and it was meant."

Senator Hill, who presented the resolutions adopted by the Democratic Senate Conference, said that the President expressed his appreciation of the support. Senator Taylor of Idaho asked about applause emanating from the President's private offices, where the conference took place, told reporters: "Harry told us how much he loved us and we felt good about it."

Senate Group To Trace Meat From Hoof To Dinner Table

Washington, April 23 (AP)—A Senate committee today decided to trace meat shipments all the way to the housewife's kitchen, apparently fearing the new packer subsidy program will not immediately cure distribution and black-market ills.

The proposal was advanced by Senator Ellender (D., La.) and promptly seconded by Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.), whose group has been inquiring into all food shortages for weeks.

The idea is to use Washington as a sample city, find out how much meat is shipped here, which distributors get it, which retailers are served and, finally, what the retailer does with it.

Packers And Butchers

Ellender said he didn't think there is as much under-the-counter activity as is generally believed, but the best way to know for certain is to call in the packers and the corner butchers.

He said he wanted to know, too, how much meat that comes here "is going to all these big restaurants."

Senator Thomas commented that the new program announced over the week end stemmed from the House and Senate inquiries and "the co-operation of the press and radio." If nothing else had been accomplished, he said, at least that much was.

Says OPA Erred

"I doubt that the program is satisfactory," he said. "The OPA has done just as little as they could to keep the packers going."

F. E. Mollin, secretary of the American Livestock Association, Denver, Col., said the plan worked out by four Government agencies wouldn't "get to the point of getting any more beef." OPA erred, he said, in failing to give price relief to the feeder men. As a result, he asserted, the packer will buy up calves this fall and slaughter when the animals should be "in the feeder lots."

Better Distribution

Mollin said he thought the plan would help distribution. It would be better, however, to simply raise the cattle ceilings, he testified. Cattlemen, he said, are fearful of subsidies because at the end of war "they may be caught holding the bag" when prices fall and subsidies are removed simultaneously.

The Ellender inquiry will get started Thursday.

Wallace Urges Trade Policies Be Continued

APR 24 1945

Washington, April 23 (AP)—Continuation of the nation's reciprocal trade policies, with new powers to cut tariffs, was urged today by Commerce Secretary Henry Wallace.

He said such action would contribute to world peace and be a vital cog in creating 60,000,000 postwar American jobs.

Wallace appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee, which is considering the Administration's proposal for renewal and broadening the Reciprocal Trade Act. The proposal has precipitated the biggest tariff battle in Congress since the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act was written in 1930 during the last Republican administration.

"At Fork In The Road"

"We have again come to the fork in the road," Wallace said. "One road, the one I hope the Congress will choose, leads to the reduction of trade barriers, and expanded foreign trade, sustained production, maximum employment and international good will; the other leads to tariff walls, discrimination, economic isolation, Government trading, economic warfare and international misunderstanding.

Turning to the effects on domestic economy, Wallace declared:

"I believe the trade-agreements program can make a substantial contribution to the obtainment of our principal postwar objective—full productive employment, or about 60,000,000 jobs."

The secretary said that if exports can be maintained at $10,000,000,000 or more annually "they may well provide work for about 5,000,000 American citizens."

Outlines His Reasons

He gave these reasons for urging approval of the proposed new tariff-trimming authority:

1. The Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act is of vital importance to the country, especially at this time, as a tool for creating postwar jobs through the expansion of foreign trade.

2. The lowering of trade barriers so as to permit a maximum of freedom in private trading is the surest way to discourage greater Government participation in foreign trade, and to combat isolationist tendencies which lead to increased Government intervention in domestic economies because of the shortages, surpluses and other dislocations which follow.

3. Trade agreements, with their provisions for the elimination of discrimination and the expansion of reciprocal trade, reduce international economic friction and create an atmosphere of good will conducive to the maintenance of friendly relations."

Was Proposed By F.D.R.

The legislation before Congress, proposed by President Roosevelt and indorsed by President Truman, would continue the Reciprocal Trade Act for three years beyond June 12, with added authority to cut duties 50 per cent under the rates prevailing January 1, 1945.

The present act empowers cuts up to 50 per cent of the rates prescribed in the 1930 Hawley-Smoot Act.

Special Unit To Keep Atrocity Data Urged

APR 24 1945

Washington, April 23 (AP)—The establishment of a war atrocities commission to catalogue Nazi mistreatment of prisoners was demanded in Congress today.

Three Representatives introduced resolutions in the House proposing the creation of such an agency.

Several others expressed resentment and indigation over new reports of atrocities and commended General Eisenhower for asking a group of congressmen and editors to visit Europe to witness the cruelties.

Two Ideas On Agency

Representatives Brooks (D., La.), Gossett (D., Texas) and Flood (D., Pa.) declared in speeches however, that a full-time committee or agency was needed to keep a permanent record of the atrocities.

Brooks proposed creation of a commission composed of six congressman, six civilians and two wounded enlisted men who have received the Purple Heart. The other two suggested that a congressional committee could do the work.

Seventeen publishers and editors and fifteen legislators will make first-hand observations of Nazi atrocities.

U.S. Again Called Too Easy

Meanwhile, Representative Harless (D., Ariz.) declared that Nazi war prisoners, "all overfed and fat as pigs," lounge lazily about the Papago Park (Ariz.) prison camp.

The congressman told a reporter that on a recent inspection he found the 4,000 prisoners playing soccer and football, reading books from a 5,000-volume library, or studying under their own teachers in classrooms without American supervision.

"Only about one third do any work," said Harless. "They're not required to, and their only encouragement is the 80 cents a day pay."

Steaks, Ham And Bacon

Harless stated that before a new commandmant was put in charge of the camp recently, the prisoners dined on steaks, ham and bacon, the same food served to air cadets at near-by Luke Field.

"They had butter every day although the people in Phoenix couldn't buy it," he said. He added that although the diet has been changed to bologna, meatloaf and macaroni, the real trouble lies with orders issued by the War Department.

"Papago Park is not an isolated case," he added.

HORRORS TOPIC IN BOTH HOUSES

APR 24 1945

Official U.S. Agency On Nazi Atrocities Proposed

Washington, April 23 (AP)—Creation of an official American agency to investigate and record war crimes was proposed in Congress today as reports of Nazi atrocities built up deep anger at the Capitol.

The Senate, meanwhile, debated nearly an hour over complaints that a congressional delegation already on the way to see the horrors perpetrated by Hitler's thugs, was hand picked. The congressmen and a group of newspaper and magazine editors and publishers were flown to Europe by the Army at the request of General Eisenhower.

Resolutions for official inquiries were offered in both houses—in the Senate by Senator Chandler (D., Ky.) and in the House by Representatives Brooks (D., La.), Gossett (D., Texas) and Flood (D., Pennsylvania).

Members Voice Abhorrence

As sponsors of the measures voiced their demands, several of their colleagues spoke angrily about Nazi mistreatment of prisoners.

"The persons responsible for such bestiality must be run down and punished," said Representative Sikes (D., Fla.).

"Full publicity and adequate punishment is essential to future peace and civilization," Gossett said.

"We must preserve for posterity the utterly debased station to which the Axis governments have fallen," asserted Brooks.

"We have almost been struck dumb with these brutal developments," said Representaitve Shafer (R., Mich.). "Full punishment must be meted out."

Inquiry Groups Proposed

Gossett suggested a congressional inquiry group, but Brooks and Flood wanted a more varied "war atrocities commission."

Brooks called for a fourteen-member commission, composed of six congressmen, six civilians and two wounded enlisted men who have been awarded the Purple Heart. Chandler's proposal in the Senate took the same form.

Flood asked for a 24-member commission, composed of twelve congressmen and twelve civilians. The latter would include two each in the following categories: attorneys, doctors, clergymen, newspaper men, labor representatives and business leaders.

The Senate debate was over official approval—finally granted—for the absence of the six senators who went to Europe.

Named By Party Leaders

The six—Barkley (Ky.), the majority leader; George (D., Ga.), Thomas (D., Utah), Wherry (R., Neb.), Saltonstall (R., Mass.) and Brooks (R., Ill.)—were selected informally Saturday by Barkley and the minority leader, Senator White (Maine), after consultation with other members. The Senate was in recess.

Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, War Department legislative liaison man, and two other army officers were present when the delegates were named.

Senators Aiken (R., Vt.) and Morse (R., Ore.) appeared particu-that the Army had assayed to select a committee of the Senate.

Army Role Questioned

Senator White said he accepted responsibility for naming the three Republicans, after consulting with other members of the minority. He explained that the mission was considered urgent.

Aiken and Senator Bridges (R., N.H.) emphasized their belief that the expenses of any congressional committee traveling abroad should be paid by Congress, not by the War Department.

Senator Tydings said that, generally speaking, he thought Congress had enough problems to keep it busy here without conducting investigations which could be handled more efficiently by the military.

Germans To Be Told "Plenty"

Washington, April 23 (AP)—Elmer Davis promised today that Germans will be told "plenty" about the wholesale horrors perpetrated in their country's concentration camps.

The Office of War Information director, who returned yesterday from Europe, said part of the re-education of the German public will be liberal coverage by Allied newspapers and radios of the Nazi-inspired atrocities discovered at Belsen and other camps.

Davis told a news conference that German citizens—especially in the badly battered cities west of the Rhine—already are in a "chastened mood."

Broadcasts Used Widely

"We are combating Nazi appeals for guerrilla warfare by broadcasts which constantly pointed out that guerrilla activity means the destruction of more people and more towns; that it cannot change the outcome and only brings more misery," he added.

Davis said his trip resulted in agreement that the co-operation between OWI and the military in propaganda work will continue during the military occupation of Germany under Brig. Gen. Robert A. McClure, chief of the psychological division of SHAEF.

OWI passes out of existence at the end of the Japanese war, he stated, but he added that the agency "has some plans that we want to discuss with the State and War departments."

"The problem of re-educating Germans will long outlast the OWI," he said.

COURT UPSETS TREASON CASE

Supreme Tribunal Sharply Divived On Matter

Washington, April 23 (AP)—The treason conviction of Anthony Cramer, naturalized German who associated with Nazi saboteurs landed here by submarine, was overturned today by the Supreme Court on the ground that proof of overt, treasonable conduct was lacking.

The decision was 5 to 4, with Justice Douglas reading a vigorous 10,000-word dissent which declared the majority's interpretation of the Constitution makes "neither good sense nor good law." He said it "makes justice truly blind."

Justice Jackson delivered the 15,000-word majority opinion in the case, the first treason conviction ever considered by the high tribunal. He said the constitutional safeguards were written by founding fathers who felt duty bound to guard against injustice even to their enemies.

All Eight Caught

Cramer, New York city boilerworker, drew a 45-year sentence on the charge that he aided two of eight spies who came ashore in 1942. All eight were caught. Six were executed and two imprisoned.

Cramer, who served with the German Army in 1918 and came to this country in 1925, was naturalized in 1936. He had known one of the saboteurs — Werner Thiel — while Thiel lived in this country, and the spy looked him up. They met twice, once when the second saboteur—Edward Kerling — was present. Thiel turned over to Cramer his money belt with $3,600 to keep for them.

Under the Constitution, conviction of treason requires two witnesses testifying to the same overt act, or a confession in court. The Government charged that each of the meetings, at which the men drank and talked long and earnestly, constituted an overt act.

Majority Opinion

But the majority opinion said: "There is no two-witness proof of what they said nor in what language they conversed.

"There is no showing that Cramer gave them any information whatever of value. . . . No effort at secrecy is shown, for they met in public places. . . . Cramer furnished them no shelter. . . . There is no evidence that he gave them encouragement or counsel."

The whole purpose of the constitutional provision, the Court said, is to make sure that treason convictions shall rest on direct proof of two witnesses "and not on even a little imagination."

"Traitorous Intent"

"And without the use of some imagination it is difficult to perceive any advantage which this meeting afforded to Thiel and Kerling."

Jackson was joined by Justices Frankfurter, Roberts, Rutledge and Murphy in the majority opinion.

Douglas, with Chief Justice Stone and Justices Black and Reed concurring, said that Cramer was shown "consciously and voluntarily" to have assisted the enemy propaganda program and "his traitorous intent was then and there sufficiently proved."

Freight Case Rejected

In another action, the Court rejected requests by eighteen railroads for a rehearing on the Court's decision to rule on Georgia's complaint that current rail freight rates discriminate against Southern States.

Rules Against Company

The Court ruled, 8-1, that Republic Aviation Corporation violated the National Labor Relations Act by prohibiting employés from soliciting union memberships in its Babylon (L.I.) plant during nonworking time, and also by forbidding employés to wear union "shop steward" buttons in the plant.

The company said it had been necessary to bar solicitation of all types in the plant, turning out army aircraft, and that in the matter of the buttons, acquiescense to their being worn might be construed as illegal assistance to one union as against another. No collective bargaining agent had been designated at the time.

Rights Violated

The tribunal held that another manufacturer by prohibiting distribution of printed matter on company property violated employés' rights guaranteed by the National Labor Relations Act. The Le Tourneau Company, of near Toccoa, Ga.—defendant in the case—was accused of applying its rule against such distribution to union literature. The complaint originated with the United Steelworkers of America, CIO.

APR 24 1945

Union Soliciting Ban Ruled Illegal

APR 24 1945

Washington, April 23 (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today a company violated the National Labor Relations Act by prohibiting employés from soliciting union membership in its plant during nonworking time.

The court also ruled that the company violated the act by forbidding employés to wear union "shop steward" buttons in the plant. The company order was issued at a time when a majority of its workers had not designated any union as collective-bargaining representative.

Justice Reed delivered the court's 8-1 opinion. Justice Roberts dissented.

Long Island Firm

Republic Aviation Corporation, maker of army aircraft at a plant in Babylon township, Long Island, appealed to the Supreme Court after the National Labor Relations Board and the Second Federal Circuit Court decided that the two prohibitions violated the act.

Republic said that to "prevent harassment of employés by solicitors for a host of organizations and causes" it was necessary to bar solicitation of all types. The firm said it could not ignore or acquiesce in the wearing of buttons because the practice might be held to constitute illegal assistance to one union as against rival unions. Three employés who refused to comply with the badge order were fired.

Employes' Rights

The Supreme Court also held today that a manufacturer by prohibiting distribution of printed matter on company property violated employés' rights which are guaranteed by the National Labor Relations Act.

Justice Reed also delivered this opinion. Justice Roberts again dissented, making it a 8-1 decision.

The National Labor Relations Board appealed to the Supreme Court from a Fifth Federal Circuit Court finding that the manufacturer—the Le Tourneau Company of near Toccoa, Ga.—had not engaged in unfair labor practices by enforcing its rule against such distribution and applying it to union literature.

The United Steelworkers of America (CIO) filed charges which resulted in board action against the company.

Ruled Interference

In both cases, Justice Reed said the NLRB had sufficiently expressed the theory "that rules against solicitation or prohibitions against the wearing of insignia must fall as interferences with union organization."

The court also reversed the treason conviction of Anthony Cramer, naturalized German charged with aiding two Nazi saboteurs.

Justice Jackson delivered the Court's 5-4 opinion, which decided the first treason conviction ever considered by the tribunal.

Justice Douglas wrote a dissenting opinion in which Chief Justice Stone and Justices Black and Reed concurred.

Cramer was accused of helping two of the eight Nazi saboteurs who landed from submarines on the East Coast in June, 1942. He was sentenced to 45 years' imprisonment and fined $10,000 by the Southern New York Federal District Court.

Overt Acts Insufficient

Douglas in his dissent summed up the two views of the court on the case by stating that the tribunal "does not purport to set aside the conviction for lack of sufficient evidence of traitorous intent. It frees Cramer from this treason charge on the ground that the overt acts charged are insufficient under the constitutional requirement."

Cramer came here from his native Germany in 1925. He was charged with having "traitorously and treasonably" aided Saboteurs Werner Thiel and Edward John Kerling in New York city following their landing on a Florida beach. Six of the saboteurs subsequently were executed, one was sentenced to life imprisonment and another to 30 years.

Counsel for Cramer contended in argument before the Supreme Court that a mere "attempt" to aid the enemy is not treason. Solicitor General Charles Fahy replied: "It makes no difference that—due to the vigilance of our Government—the act did not succeed. Treason was clear in purpose and went into action." He defined treason as intent to betray one's country, combined with a visible act to carry out that state of mind.

Justice Jackson in a 15,000-word opinion said there was no showing that Cramer gave the Nazi saboteurs any information of value to their mission "or indeed that he had any to give."

No effect at secrecy was shown in the trial, Jackson said, for they met in public places. He added:

"Cramer furnished them no shelter, nothing that can be called substance or supplies, and there is no evidence that he gave them encouragement or counsel, or even paid for their drinks."

Jackson said that "the whole purpose of the constitutional provision (for conviction of treason) is to make sure that treason conviction shall rest on direct proof of two witnesses and not on even a little imagination."

No Advantage To Nazis

"And," said Jackson, "without the use of some imagination it is difficult to perceive any advantage which this meeting (between Cramer and the saboteurs) afforded to the saboteurs as enemies or how it strengthened Germany or weakened the United States in any way whatever.

"There is no proof either by two witnesses or even one witness or by any circumstance that Cramer gave them information or established any contact for them with any person other than an attempt to bring about a rendezvous between Thiel and a girl."

MINERS' CONTRACT WINS APPROVAL OF WLB AND OPA

APR 24 1945

WASHINGTON, April 23 — (AP) John L. Lewis' new contract with the nation's soft coal operators was approved today by the War Labor board, and OPA began at once to speed a report on its effect on coal prices.

The agreement, even though cleared by the WLB, must be approved by Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis in case price relief is required by the operators. Both the producers and United Mine workers have petitioned for an increase in coal prices—estimated at about 25 cents a ton—to offset the added payroll costs.

To Discuss Price Question

The Solid Fuels administration and the OPA will meet tomorrow for another conference on the price question. The OPA expects to rush its findings to Davis by Thursday. The WLB found that the contract boosted the average miner's take-home pay only 81 cents a day instead of the $1.07 daily raise which the contract itself indicates. The inside Miner's base earnings were increased by the new contract from $8.50 to $10.00 a day. Spread over a six-day week, the increase totalled only $6.44 cents or $1.07 a day, because of premium pay now being received for part of Friday and all Saturday work.

Other workers outside were to be given like increases. Tonnage workers were to have their daily earnings boosted by one-ninth. This and other factors pulled the average for the 400,000 bituminous workers down to 81 cents, according to the Board's statisticians.

WLB Chairman George W. Taylor, at a later news conference, said the over-all average increase per day of the entire contract, including shift differentials, vacations and reclassification of certain workers, totalled $1.01 or $1.02. He estimated that the so-called fringe issues amounted to a gain of 23 cents for the average miner pay day.

Taylor said the forthcoming decision of the Supreme court on the portal to portal issue, would not now affect the contract.

Agreement Praised

"They made a prudent agreement," he said, "and in my opinion no government agency has a right to upset that."

The board said, in an opinion by Chairman Taylor, that the portal-to-portal decision of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, that travel must be paid for as work time in bituminous mines, made it necessary that the WLB approve the chief wage section of the contract.

Other wage features, such as $75 payment in lieu of vacation time off, a four and six cent differential for second and third shifts, and the reclassification of less than five per cent of the workers, all came within the stabilization program and could be approved without difficulty.

The Board set some sort of record for disposing of the case, which it received barely 10 days ago. Similar record speed was attained by the miners and operators in negotiating the contract in 42 days. The old contract expired March 31. But was extended by WLB order until April 30.

In the meantime, negotiations for an anthracite agreement, involving 72,000 North Eastern Pennsylvania hard coal miners, are under way in New York. A strike vote under the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes act is scheduled for this Thursday, April 26.

WLB APPROVES NATIONAL SOFT COAL CONTRACT

Ruling Is Subject to OPA Grant of Price Rise and Davis O. K.

APR 24 1945

THE DECISION IS UNANIMOUS

Chairman Says Board Found Wage Provisions Within Limits of Stabilization Policy.

Washington, April 23 (A. P.).—The War Labor Board today approved the new national soft coal contract, subject ao a grant of coal price increases by the OPA and approval of the latter by Economic Stabilizer Davis.

The contract involves 400,000 bituminous mine workers, and provides an increase of $1.07 in the basic earnings of the average inside day worker.

The board disposed of its role in the Government's consideration of the wartime pact a week before the 30-day extension of the old contract expires, April 30.

The Office of Price Administration, which has had about the same amount of time to look into the operators' plea for price increases to offest the payroll rise, now has one week in which to act without further extension of the old agreement. John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers joined with the operators in asking for price relief, estimated by some producers at about 25 cents a ton.

The OPA was maintaining strictest secrecy on its reaction, and insisted that the report on prices would come out either through the WLB or Davis.

The new contract, signed on April 11 after forty-two days of negotiation—a new speed record—calls for $1.07 more a day for the miner who has been working a six-day week. The basic earnings for the inside day miner are boosted from $8.50 to $10 by the contract, but the board found that the average increase for all miners is 81 cents a day.

The board's decision was unanimous, with industry and labor members alike joining with the public members to approve the contract in its entirety.

The board said that under the stabilization act it was required to approve the chief wage section on full portal-to-portal payment because of a decision by a United States Circuit Court of Appeals that travel time must be paid for as work time in bituminous mines.

The board pointed out that while an average increase of eighty-one cents a day was provided in take-home pay, it did not change either the hourly wage rates or the overtime provisions of the 1941 agreement.

Within Stabilization Act.

The chairman, George W. Taylor, staid that the board found the wage provisions to be within the limits of the National Stabilization Policy.

Under the contract the industry would go back under a 35-an-hour week, with overtime for all underground time beyond seven hours a day. This included the portal-to-portal travel time, estimated to average forty-five minutes daily and fifteen minutes for lunch.

The board had delayed a final vote on the contract until mid-afternoon to permit announcement by the Supreme Court of any decision in the portal-to-portal test case involving the Jewel Ridge Virginia mine. The court did not rule today, however.

The board found that the provision for a $75 annual vacation payment, in place of the present $50; for night shift differentials of 4 and 6 cents and for reclassification of rates for certain skilled occupations were all approvable within the stabilization program.

Reclassifications Limited.

The reclassifications affect less than 5 per cent of the miners and correct inequitable rate relationships, the WLB opinion explained. They applied to inside electricians and mechanics, whose base pay now will be boosted from $8 to $9, and to drillers and shooters, who will receive $8 a day, or $1 less than the operator of their mobile unit.

The WLB had only the wage questions to rule upon, and thus did not have to pass on the contract termination clause. This provided that the contract could be re-opened at the end of one year on ten days' notice, but would not terminate automatically as at present.

Ezra Van Horn, chairman of the conference which negotiated the agreement, said, "in my opinion the approval of the negotiated contract, and working under it, will be helpful and stabilizing to the industry and should insure maximum production of coal so much needed by the country."

Polish Joy At New Russ Pact Reported

New York, April 23 (AP)—The Moscow radio declared today that large crowds gathered yesterday in the public squares of Warsaw, Lodz, Krakow and other Polish cities to hear loudspeakers proclaim the new treaty of mutual assistance between the Soviet Union and the Russian-sponsored Warsaw provisional government.

The radio said the Poles "warmly welcomed this act," which sealed the friendship between the two fraternal peoples."

Signing of the pact was announced by Stalin on Saturday evening. He described the treaty as "a guaranty of the independence of a new democratic Poland." He said he did not doubt that "our allies in the West will halt this treaty."

DR. BUTLER RESIGNS

NEW YORK, April 23 — (AP) Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, 83, President of Columbia university for 43 years, resigned today effective next Oct. 1.

Frederick Coykendall, chairman of the University's Board of Trustees, who made the announcement after a special meeting of the board, said Dr. Butler's resignation was accepted unanimously. The trustees then elected him "president emeritus from the date when his resignation takes effect."

"No plans as yet have been made for choosing a successor to Dr. Butler," Coykendall said in his announcement.

As president emeritus, the statement continued "Dr. Butler will continue in the active service of the university, particularly in all that has reference to its relations with the general public."

Several Freed Nations Now Getting AP News

New York, April 23 (AP)—More than 2,500 newspapers and radio stations in this country and abroad are now receiving Associated Press service as a result of AP expansion, members of the news association were told today in a report by the AP's board of directors.

The report was prepared in connection with the annual meeting of the Associated Press, which was held today principally by proxy because of travel restrictions.

The board of directors reported that last October it had authorized "the immediate availability of funds to fulfill the evident demands for Associated Press service through many far-flung portions of the globe, as well as in those areas which had been temporarily under the control of the enemy."

Serving New Places

"The Associated Press since the turn of the year has established news and newsphoto services in France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, Finland, India and the Philippines," the report said. "Previously the Associated Press had been serving newspapers in the United Kingdom and Sweden (in the Eastern Hemisphere). All of these services are prepared and distributed under the supervision of American-trained AP men, resident abroad, and are compiled from the regular news and news-picture reports now passing through all the strategic Associated Press bureaus throughout the world.

"Of great importance to the members of the Associated Press, as a result of these developments, has been the immeasurably strengthened staff coverage of news direct from the source in all countries."

Staffs Praised

Referring to "the many communications from members and messages of approval" for the "brilliant and extraordinary performance of the AP staff throughout the world under difficult and hazardous war conditions," the report said:

"The board unanimously desires to commend the excellence of the services, the heroism of the staff and the full appreciation of the membership for the collective effort rendered by the staff at home and abroad."

To Elect Six Directors

The principal item of business was the election of six members of the Associated Press board of directors, and this also was to be accomplished largely by proxy. The meeting held in the Associated Press Building.

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which in the past held a four-day convention following the Associated Press meeting, will confine its meeting this year to a single session on Thursday at its offices here.

The following were nominated to be Associated Press directors, with five to be elected:

Norman Chandler, Los Angeles Times; Mark Ethridge, Louisville Courier-Journal; Palmer Hoyt, Portland Oregonian; Robert R. McCormick, Chicago Tribune; L. K. Nicholson, New Orleans Times-Picayune; T. E. Nowels, Colorado Springs Gazette; Grove Patterson, Toledo Blade; E. Lansing Ray, St. Louis Globe-Democrat; Roy A. Roberts, Kansas City Times, and Arthur R. Treanor, Saginaw (Mich.) News.

Associated Press News Services Are Extended

New York, April 23 (AP)—Associated Press news and newsphoto service has been extended since the turn of the year to liberated European areas, Switzerland, India and the Philippines, the AP's board of directors reported today.

The board's report, made at the annual meeting of the news association, said 2,500 American and foreign newspapers and radio stations were receiving AP service.

Tellers tonight counted ballots naming six members of the board of directors. Most votes were in the form of proxies, because of Office of Defense Transportation travel restrictions which limited attendance to members in the immediate vicinity.

Mrs. Roosevelt Occupies Cottage At Hyde Park

Hyde Park, N.Y., April 23 (AP). Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in virtual seclusion, is occupying her Valkill cottage on the Roosevelt estate.

The late President's widow, who plans to remain at Hyde Park, making it her principal residence, is receiving no callers, her secretary, Miss Malvina Thompson, said today. She will be busy for some time arranging her household, Miss Thompson said, and will be concerned only with her private affairs for the rest of this year.

Miss Thompson reiterated Mrs. Roosevelt's statement in Washington that she would not consider candidacy for political office.

New York, April 23 (AP)—The Polish Telegraph Agency, quoting a dispatch from London, said today that Marshal Stalin's son, Jacob Djugashvili, and the Polish General Bor (Tadeus Komorowski) had been taken by the Germans as hostages into the Nazi redoubt near Berchtensgaden. Stalin's son was captured in 1941. General Bor led the unsuccessful Warsaw uprising last August.

FRENCH LIBRARIES DAMAGED LITTLE

BOSTON, April 23—(AP) Except for vandalising the Polish library and private Jewish collections the Germans apparently acted correctly towards established libraries in France, Milton E. Lord, director of the Boston public library said today upon his return from four months in France as reorganization director of the American library in Paris.

"The library has had nothing new in the last five years of course," Lord said, "but the OWI is sending a complete set of periodicals for the last five years and we're going to put in significant books published in this interim.

"We want to put the library on an enlarged basis but the difficulty is transport. What the French need is food, and when it's a question of something for the stomach or something for the head, there isn't a one of us in the same circumstances who wouldn't vote for food."

The American library in Paris got its start with a large collection of American books and periodicals sent to France for the AEF in World War I. After the Armistice, it was expanded into a 100,000 volume subscription library under the aegis of the American Library association.

All during the German occupation, the French staff kept the library going. There were only 50 to 100 Americans left, but a large number of French people patronized it, Lord said.

The Germans made regular inspections and books by Hemenway, Steinbeck, and Vicki Baum were put on the "verboten" list, the Boston librarian said, but as soon as Paris was liberated, back they went on the shelves.

"The only time the library had a brush with the Germans was when they were accused of circulating a caricature of Hitler, Lord added.

"The offending picture was found in a copy of Fortune much to the surprise of the library staff who hadn't even noticed it."

INQUIRY ON FOOD STARTS IN BOSTON

APR 24 1945

Boston, April 23 (A. P.).—A seven-man congressional committee, headed by Representative Clinton P. Anderson (D.-N. M.), began today an investigation of charges that food shortages in New England and New York were caused by "black market" operations.

Andrew J. Aldridge, local counsel for the committee, said that approximately 100 witnesses had been asked to attend hearings. Among them were representatives of the Office of Price Administration, the War Food Administration, State officials, union officials and representatives of fish, meat and poultry dealers in the Greater Boston area.

Anderson said charges had "come from various sources that 90 per cent of the meat handled in New York and Boston is in the black market. That's a pretty severe indictment of American business. It is an astonishing charge. I'm inclined to believe it's an exaggeration, but we're going to see what there is to it."

The group, known as the House food study committee, planned to hold hearings in New York tomorrow and Wednesday.

Helen Keller Brings Renewed Courage To Wounded Yanks

Atlanta, April 23 (AP)—From the dark and silent world which she vanquished by her own spirit, Helen Keller today brought renewed faith and courage to wounded American fighting men at Lawson General Hospital here.

And as she moved from bed to bed—a word of cheer here and a bright smile there—sick and weary soldiers who knew of Helen Keller and her gallant fight for a normal life despite sightless eyes and deaf ears took heart.

Lost Leg In Germany

"A spirit like yours can never be crushed," she told Lieut. Sherburn C. Searl, 25, of Ludlow, Vt. Searl left a leg in Germany.

Running her gentle "seeing" hands over the head and face of Capt. William D. Butler, 27, Los Angeles, Cal., Miss Keller said: "You are very good-looking." And right she was. Butler spent three and a half years of combat duty in the Pacific and in the European theater.

"You have the spirit of a free man. Blessings upon you," she said to Lieut. George Poschner, the University of Georgia football star and the receiving end of many of Frankie Sinkwich's stadium-rousing passes. He had been severely injured.

Poschner lost both legs below the knee in France and his hands and head are bandaged.

Kiss For His Roommate

A light kiss on the cheek went to Poschner's roommate, Lieut. Jay W. Quinn, of St. Matthews, S.C., whose left leg was sheared off by German mortar fire. "I know you'll overcome this," she said.

When Lieut. Alfred Steineker, 23, Louisville, Ky., assured her that "we're all right as long as we can laugh," Miss Keller exclaimed: "How right you are. Laughter is one of our greatest weapons against fear."

All 3 Escaped Prisoners Retaken

Cartersville, Ga., April 23 (AP)—The last two of three Federal prisoners who escaped from United States marshal's deputies near here were recaptured near an old mine. The three escaped while being taken to the Federal prison in Atlanta from Birmingham, Ala., where they were sentenced Friday to 16½ years each after pleading guilty to theft of Government property, impersonating an army officer and violation of the Auto Theft Act.

Jesse Foster Ferrel, 19, of Gastonia, N.C., was picked up by FBI agents near here Saturday. Louis Edwards Christakos, 19, of Chicago, and Robert Stanley Woolard, 25, of Ransomville, N.C., were caught Saturday night by the use of bloodhounds.

Bread And Water Diet Ends Nazi PW Strike

Rupert, Idaho, April 23 (AP)—Two hundred and forty-five German prisoners of war, after two days on a bread-and-water diet, returned to work in southern Idaho fields today.

Forty others, described by the camp commandant as "ringleaders" in the strike, remained in the guardhouse with plenty of water to drink, but "not too much" bread to eat.

When the men refused to work last Friday, their cots were removed and they slept two nights on the ground, with only one blanket for each prisoner. They asked for a conference yesterday, and voted to return to work.

Cots were also removed from the ringleaders' cells. "We will take other means of solving" the problem if the trouble continues, the commandant said of the leaders.

More Than 1,200 Vets Home From Iwo Jima

San Diego, Cal., April 23 (AP). More than 1,200 veterans of the 3d Marine Division were back home today from Iwo Jima. Also aboard the ship were 132 casualties.

The Marines, who averaged two years of overseas duty and participated in three major operations, will be given furloughs after processing at the reclassification and redistribution center at the Marine base.

VAN KLEFFENS ATTACKS VETO

APR 24 1945

But Netherlands Will Go Along, Foreign Minister Says

San Francisco, April 23 (AP)—A Big Three jam on Poland and blunt Dutch criticism of their peace-keeping proposals plagued the United Nations tonight on the threshold of their international conference.

Forty-eight hours before the meeting's start, there were these significant developments:

1. Dr. Eelco Van Kleffens, Foreign Minister and chief of the Netherlands delegation, attacked big-power plans for veto control of projected peace machinery.

2. Indian delegates made it clear that they would demand a seat on a proposed security council.

3. Apparently motivated by a desire for bids to membership in the United Nations and an invitation to their meeting here, Argentina made overtures toward establishing diplomatic relations with Russia.

4. Georges Bidault, French Foreign Minister, dismissed at a news conference any possibility that France might lead a revolt of small and middle powers against the Dumbarton Oaks plan. But there was evidence of French concern lest the United States try to pressure the delegation into giving up some of the colonial empire—particularly Indo-China.

5. Harold E. Stassen, United States delegate, asserted it was important that Americans not be "hasty in criticism" of amendments to the security plan offered by other nations. At memorial services for President Roosevelt in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium he appealed for a deeper understanding of problems of other peoples, their historical background and experiences, while retaining "firm support" for our own social, economic and political system.

Delegates arriving for pre-conference consultations heard with evident concern that the Washington discussions on Poland had fallen short of their goal—at least for the time being.

Fear Of Shadow Over Opening

They expressed fears, privately, that more talks in San Francisco might not conclude in time to remove one shadow hanging over a harmonious beginning of the security parley.

Some of them suggested that lack of an early adjustment of the Polish issue would jeopardize efforts to create an effective peace organization. They took the position that it is imperative at the outset that the Big Three demonstrate an ability to work together in harmony.

If France isn't in the vanguard of small-nations opposition to Dumbarton Oaks, the Dutch very well may be.

Blunt Pronouncement

Van Kleffens's bluntly worded pronouncement on veto authority posed that prospect, as well as one of a definite split between smaller nations and great powers.

But his statement was tempered by an assertion that the Netherlands would go along if other countries wanted to accept the veto plan.

Dumbarton Oaks, Van Kleffens said, offers "no basis" for lasting peace. He said it provides no bar to appeasement and another "Munich settlement."

His delegation, the Netherlander declared, will oppose arrangements by which any one of five heavyweight powers—the United States, Britain, Russia, China or France—could veto application of force against itself.

No nation, large or small, he said, should be permitted to judge its own case.

Destroyer, Minus Bow, Gets Home, Is Refitted

San Francisco, April 23 (AP)—The destroyer U.S.S. Selfridge lost her bow in combat against the Japanese, plodded 7,000 slow miles across the Pacific although not much more than half a ship, was refitted with a new bow at Mare Island Navy Yard in eighteen and a half days and returned to sea fit for fighting.

The Navy, in announcing details today of the story of the ship and fighting crew that wouldn't give up, disclosed that with two other destroyers about 11 P.M. October 6, 1943, the Selfridge met nine Japanese warships near Vella Lavella. One of her companion ships was torpedoed and the other damaged, but the Selfridge continued the attack.

Four Japanese ships were sunk, one was seen to be afire and another fled in a smoke screen just as the Selfridge was hit by a torpedo.

STASSEN CALLS LEAGUE SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY

APR 24 1945

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23 (AP)—Comdr. Harold E. Stassen declared tonight that the United States can join other nations to keep peace, without abandoning its own cherished institutions.

The former Republican Governor of Minnesota, a delegate to the United Nations Conference, spoke at a civic memorial service for President Roosevelt.

Mr. Stassen said "the enduring tribute to his memory" could come from "a common purpose to win for mankind a century of justice and of peace."

"I believe in general that we in America should seek a broader and deeper understanding of the peoples and the problems and the way of life of our neighbors throughout the world," he said.

But he added that this does not mean retreat from America's own standards, saying:

"We should at all times make clear our belief in, our devotion to, and our firm support of our social, economic and political system."

Dutch Oppose Dumbarton Plan

APR 24 1945

Foreign Minister Says Proposals Offer No Basis for World Peace.

San Francisco, April 23 (A. P.).—Dr. Eeloo van Kleffens, Dutch Foreign Minister, declared today that there is no basis under the Dumbarton Oaks proposals for maintaining world peace.

He said that the Netherlands' delegation to the United Nations conference, opening on Wednesday, would oppose the veto arrangement agreed upon by the Big Three at Yalta on the ground that no power—big or small—should be allowed to be a judge in its own cause. That, he said, would permit another "Munich appeasement."

Seven Amendments Due.

The leader of the Dutch delegation indicated that the Netherlands would offer an amendment to the veto procedure, but he did not say what it would be. He did say that he was prepared to offer seven amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks proposals.

Amid signs that many serious problems remain unsolved, the American delegation to the conference held its first on-the-scene meeting today. The delegation went over the situation with Dr. Isiah Bowman and Hamilton Fish Armstrong, State Department advisers. John Foster Dulles, New York attorney who counseled with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on foreign affairs in the last presidential campaign, appeared to be assuming the role of chief adviser to the group, in the absence of Cordell Hull, former Secretary of State.

Dean Virginia Gildersleeve of Barnard College, the only woman member of the United States delegation, told reporters she thought that re-educating Germany to a place in the family of nations would be one of the toughest problems of the coming peace.

U. S. May Keep Bases.

The United States would retain control of strategic Pacific bases after the war under a compromise trusteeship plan reported under study today for presentation to the United Nations conference.

This subject, together with a proposal for a "Community of the Pacific" patterned after the Pan American Union, will be conference interest with the long-troublesome Polish question, currently a Big Three topic in Washington.

Advocates say that the international trusteeship compromise, worked out at Washington, is intended to satisfy military demands for the Pacific island bases, and at the same time to provide a plan that would work as well to the benefit of Russia or Britain or any other nation with military base requirements.

The idea is to have two kinds of trusteeships. Areas of one type would be subject to investigation and report by trustee committees of the proposed world organization. Territories of the other type, probably to be called security areas, would be assigned exclusively to the trustee power.

Australia Supports U. S.

Sydney, April 23 (A. P.).—The statement of Foreign Minister H. V. Evatt, who is in San Francisco, that Australia would support the claims of the United States for bases in the Marshall, Caaroline and Mariana Islands, drew favorable comment in the Australian press today.

"Evatt correctly expresses Australian opinion concerning the possession by the United States of Pacific bases after the war," the Sydney Sun said.

"This country, like all the rest of the world, is primarily interested in future security. Americans have spent their treasure and the blood of their sons upon the capture of these strategic islands."

R. W. Robson, editor of the Pacific Island monthly, said: "If the Americans want to come close to us and get an island or two for bases, we would thank God for it. What chance have we unless we have the protection of America, the most dominant and powerful Pacific nation?"

Foreign affairs experts of the Australian Government at Canberra predicted, however, that at the San Francisco conference Australia and New Zealand would be asked to accept full responsibility for the defense of New Guinea and the Solomon Islands.

ROMULO PROPOSES PAN-PACIFIC UNION

APR 24 1945

San Francisco, April 23 (A. P.).—The creation of a "Community of the Pacific," providing a regional organization similar to the Pan American Union, shared preproposed to the San Francisco conference.

The community would join all countries bordering on the Pacific in mutual defense and economic and political co-operation as part of the United Nations security system.

Brig.-Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine soldier-statesman and author of the proposal, told the Associated Press today that the community would constitute "a ring of friendship that will squeeze out the Japs."

He disclosed he would submit the proposal to the conference on international organization which starts Wednesday.

He pointed out that Japan had organized its Co-prosperity Sphere in Greater East Asia as a union of nations based on race.

"You can't kill that idea with bombs and bazookas," he said. "The only way to kill it is to supersede it with a better idea."

"So we in the Philippines have been thinking of a sort of United Nations of the Pacific, joined by friendship, good will, mutuality and understanding."

Members of the community, he said, could include China, India, Malaya, Indonesia, Oceania, the Philippines, New Zealand, Australia, Canada, the United States, Mexico and South American countries facing the Pacific.

ARGENTINA MOVES ON SOVIET RELATIONS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23—(AP) The Argentine government has contacted the Russians with a view to establishing diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, authoritative sources disclosed today.

The official Argentine gesture presumably was made in Washington, the sources said. It is not known here what attitude the Russians adopted.

It was said that the Argentines made their offer recently, apparently as a measure to ease the way for Argentina's admission into the United Nations and to get an invitation to the United Nations conference opening here Wednesday.

U. S. Reaches Full War Accord With Argentina

Mission's Report Expected to Lay Basis for Nation's Partnership With Allies

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23 (AP).—Avra M. Warren, Director of the Office of American Republic Affairs of the State Department, returned today from his Argentine mission with a report that satisfactory and conclusive arrangements have been reached with the Argentine government for co-operation in naval, aeronautical and economic fields.

Mr. Warren arrived at Mills Field after a journey of 7,750 miles from Buenos Aires in two and a half days. His report is expected to form the basis for Argentina's eventual incorporation in the United Nations. His visit was connected with the resumption of normal diplomatic relations between the United States and Argentina.

He was accompanied by Lieutenant General George H. Brett and was joined in Buenos Aires by Vice-Admiral William R. Munro, commander of the Atlantic Fleet, who was p courtesy visit to the Argent tal.

The agreements Argentine authorities co during Mr. Warren's stay w uthoritatively understood to prise the following:

An understanding between Vice-Admiral Munro and Rear Admiral Alberto Tesaire, Argentine Minister of Navy and Acting Minister of Interior, on naval co-operation.

A similar accord between General Brett and Colonel Juan D. Peron, Argentine Vice-President and Minister of War, on collaboration in military aviation.

A general agreement with the Argentine Secretary of Industry and Commerce, General Julio Checchi, on measures to be employed to insure that Argentina shall not become a refuge for fugitive German funds.

Puerto Rico Seeks Seat At Frisco

San Francisco, April 23 (AP)—Puerto Rico will request the right of a seat at the United Nations Conference opening Wednesday.

Rafael Soltero-Peralta, a member of the Caribbean Island's Pro-Independence Congress, arrived today to press the demand.

"Puerto Rico is one of the United Nations which is fighting this war under the flag of the United States and we claim the right to participate in the framing of the new international order," Soltero-Peralta said. [Puerto Rico is a United States territory.]

Application In Booklets

He and two other Puerto Rican representatives have printed booklets on that country's petition and will make formal application to the conference's clerk. They also will talk personally with the United States delegation "on friendly terms" of the demand, Soltero-Peralta said.

Assistance of the Latin-American delegation will be sought.

ASIA SECURITY AGENCY FORMED, JAPS REPORT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23—(AP) Japan announced today—in advance of the United Nations conference in San Francisco—that her satellite and puppet countries already had projected a peace and prosperity organization at a greater East Asia conference in Tokyo.

Domei news agency dispatches, broadcast by Tokyo and recorded by the Federal Communications commission, said envoys from Manchuria, China, Thailand, Burma and the Philippines acted to establish a "security system" and "co-prosperity sphere."

The greater East Asia conference—obviously a Japanese propaganda move to steal an imitative march on the United Nations conference—was not announced to the world until today, when it assertedly completed its business.

Bulk Of Pyle's Estate Is In Trust For Widow

Albuquerque, N.M., April 23 (AP). Ernie Pyle, columnist and war correspondent killed on Ie Jima last week, left the bulk of his estate in trust for his widow under terms of his will filed for probate in District Court today.

Under terms of the instrument drawn December 19, 1944, Mrs. Pyle receives the family home here and $100 weekly during her life from the trust fund. No estimate was made as to the value of the estate.

BUCHENWALD CONCENTRATION CAMP, GERMANY, April 23--(AP)-- This scene of concentrated human misery is on its way to becoming one of the best known spots in Germany, with thousands of persons coming here to see with their own eyes what they couldn't quite believe without seeing.

Today's visitors included many German civilians from nearby Weimar, birthplace of Germany's attempt at democracy. These visitors were mostly women.

APR 24 1945

I watched them as they gazed upon two piles of probably 100 bodies -- little more than skin and bones -- of persons whose wretched lives flickered out only yesterday. The German civilians who stood there watching in complete silence seemed terrified. They looked as if they didn't know such things could be.

APR 24 1945

The bodies were piled beside a wall outside the crematorium, where innumerable others had been burned. We saw a large pile of dust from human bones. The furnaces of the crematorium -- now cold -- still had bits of bones in them.

APR 24 1945

It was a grey day, but many persons took pictures as best they could.

APR 24 1945

The muddy lanes between the rows of shabby buildings where these political prisoners had died were filled with hundreds of American soldiers who had come to see for themselves. They went through in large parties, each guided by some English-speaking inmate who had somehow survived.

Our guide said firmly, "I'm a German." Then he gave a restrained account of what he had endured and seen. But the other guides were inclined to harangue their tormentors in loud tones.

The American officer in command of the camp opened the gate wide for visitors, saying "we have NO secrets here." He and

APR 24 1945

More horrifying, perhaps, than the dead, was the sight of the still living. We went through filthy barracks where they filled the floors, lying on thin pallets spread out side by side. They said nothi as the visitors went by, but they gazed with over-large eyes and motioned for cigarets. It is difficult to see how even the best medical care and food could save them.

WITH U.S. THIRD ARMY NORTH OF THE DANUBE, April 23--(AP)--Several hundred British and American prisoners, liberated today from a German prison camp near Breslau, declared they would have starved during their confinement had it NOT been for Red Cross food packages.

RCAF Warrant Officer Gordon Manning, 23, of St. John, New Brunswick, a bomber gunner who was shot down Nov. 8, 1942, while flying over France in a Halifax, said: "we would have starved if we had NOT received Red Cross food packages."

APR 24 1945

Manning said he and 2,000 other prisoners spent eight months in chains at Lansdorf Stalag 344 near Breslau. He said the prisoners were shackled with 12 inches of chain attached to their wrists during the day. The chains were removed at night.

He said that most of the prisoners had been captured by Germans at Dieppe.

APR 24 1945

Manning said the Germans took him to Paris following his capture and treated his leg and arm wounds in a hospital in the town capital. Then he was moved to Frankfurt-on-Main for interrogation.

Informed that frankfurt was in ruins, he declared: "It's wonderful!"

APR 24 1945

After Frankfurt he was transferred to a prison south of Munich, and then entered the camp from which Americans Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's forces liberated him.

He said that most of the prisoners from his camp were forced to march to Moosburg Stalag 7-A, near Munich, only a few days before the Americans arrived, and that at last reports Moosburg contained 40,000 prisoners of war.

21ST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, APRIL 23,(AP)- IN SPITE OF A SHORTAGE OF PERSONNEL THE BRITISH SECTION OF THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT IS ALREADY BRINGING ORDER OUT OF CHOAS IN THE "ADMINISTRATIVE "DESERT" LEFT BEHIND BYMTHE RETREATING GERMANS, ACCORDING TO MAJOR GENERAL G.W.R. TEMPLER, MILITARY GOVERNMENT DIRECTOR OF THE 21ST ARMY GROUP. THE MOST PRESSING PROBLEM IS THAT OF THE COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF FOOD. SOME 4,000,000 PEOPLE IN THE RUHR ALONE MIGHT BE FACED WITH STARVATION THIS WINTER, IN ADDITION THERE ARE A LARGE NUMBER OF DISPLACED PERSONS-NOT COUNTING WAR PRISONERS AND GERMAN REFUGEES FROM THE EAST-THERE ARE MANY MILLION OF THESE THAT ALSO MUST BE FEDBY THE ALLIED GOVERNMENT. THE WAR HAS WRECKED THE WATERWAYS THAT ONCE WERE GERMANY'S CHIEF MEANS OF TRANSPORTATION.

THERE HAS BEEN NO ADVANCE PLAN LAID OUT FOR THE HANDLING OF DISPLACED PERSONS. BUT THINGS ARE FUNCTIONING SMOOTHLY AND AT LEAT

95 PER CENT OF THESE WANDERERS WILL EVENTUALLY BE SORTED INTO THEIR PROPER PLACES HE SAID.

APR 24 1945

THERE ARE A SERIES OF BARRIERS WHERE DISPLACED PERSONS ARE PICKED UP AND SORTED OUT AS THEY WANDER ALONG THE MAIN TRAFFIC ARTERIES. WHAT ARE KNOWN AS EASTBOUNDERS-RUSSIANS, POLES, CZECHS, YUGOSLAVS, ETC., ARE HELD IN CAMPS OF THEIR RESPECTIVE NATIONALITIES FOR EVENTUAL DELIVERY TO THE RUSSIANS. WESTBOUNDERS ARE PASSED FROM ONE BOUNDARY TO ANOTHER UNTIL THEY COME WEST OF THE RHINE WHERE THEY ENTER A SERIES OF COMPLEX SORTING CENTERS ADMINISTERED BY OFFICIALS OF THEIR OWN COUNTRIES-FRANC, BELGIUM AND HOLLAND. THEY ARE BEING FED CHIEFLY ON COMMANDERED GERMAN FOOD OF WHICH THERE IS AT PRESENT CONSIDERABLE IN PRIVATE STORES AND WAREHOUSES HOARDS, SINCE THE MINIMUM OF ANGLO-AMERICAN FOODSTUFFS IS BEING SENT INTO GERMANY. ONE OF THE FIRST REQUESTS OF DISPLACED PERSONS IS FOR NEWS WHICH HAS RESULTED IN THE DISTRIBUTION TO THE CAMPS OF A SIX LANGUAGE NEWSPAPER PUT OUT BY THE PUBLIC RELATIONS BRANCH WHICH THIS WEEK UPPED ITS EDITION TO 230,000

COPIES. THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT HAS THE TASK OF DISTRIBUTING THE NEWS IN THE OCCUPIED PORTIONS OF GERMANY WHICH IS DONE BY BOTH NEWSPAPER AND RADIO . ALL THEGERMAN SCHOOLS IN THE OCCUPIED PORTIONS OF GERMANY ZONES HAVE BEEN CLOSED DOWN BECAUSE THE TEXT-BOOKS HAVE BEEN COMPLETELY NAZIFIED .

IN SAXONY, GERMANY, APRIL 17 (AP) DELAYED- GERMANY-THANKS TO ADOLF HITLER--ALREADY HAS ITS "LOST GENERATION" FROM THE SECOND WORLD WAR.

IT CONSISTS OF ITS BOYS AND ~~XXXXXXX~~ YOUNG MEN--AND A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF ITS GIRLS--FROM AGES 10 TO 25.

IT IS HARD TO SEE HOW ANY POLICY THAT THE ALLIES CAN DESIGN TO RE-BUILD GERMANY ALONG DEMOCRATIC LINES CAN FIND MASS SUPPORT AMONG THESE GROUPS OF YOUNG PEOPLE, WHO HAVE BEEN FED IN THEIR MOST FORMATIVE YEARS ON THE FUEHRER'S "BLOOD AND MUSCLE" DOCTRINE OF RACE SUPERIORITY.

THE NAZI PARTY HAD A VERY CAREFUL SYSTEM FOR GROOMING ITS FUTURE LEADERS, AND THE MOST AGGRESSIVE AND TALENTED YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN HAVE DRUNK SO DEEPLY AND SO LONG OF ITS PROPAGANDA THAT THEY ARE PERMANENTLY AFFECTED, THEIR COUNTRY'S DEFEAT APPARENTLY HAS ONLY MADE MADE MOST OF THEM MORE ROMANTICALLY AND FANATICALLY DEVOTED TO THE LEADER WHO LED THEIR NATION TO ITS RUIN.

IT IS HARD FOR MOTHERS AND FATHERS IN AMERICA, LOOKING AT THEIR OWN MISS 12 AND 14 YEAR OLD CHILDREN, WHO DO NOTHING MORE MISCHIEVOUS THAN ~~XXXX~~ BOY SCOUT MEETINGS, TO BELIEVE IN THE DEVILRY WITH WHICH THE BOYS TRAINED BY THE NAZI PARTY CAN ACT.

THEY HAVE BEEN TOUGHT TO BE HARD AND CRUEL AND RUTHLESS--AND AS CLASS

OUR TROOPS DESPISE HITLER'S BOY SOLDIERS LIKE THEY DO THE JAPANESE
BECAUSE THEY ARE UNPREDICTABLE. THESE 12 TO 16 YEAR OLD BOYS ARE MORE DANGEROUS THAN ORDINARY SOLDIERS BECAUSE THEY ARE MORE IGNORANT. THEY DO NOT REALIZE THE HOPELESS SITUATION AND LIKELY AS NOT WILL TRY TO SNIPE FROM THE ROADSIDE AT ARMORED COLUMNS--WHICH IS THE SUREST WAY OF COMMITTING MILITARY
SUICIDE AS THERE IS IN MODERN WAR. THE AMERICANS HATE TO SHOOT AND KILL BOYS OF THIS AGE GROUP,BUT A CRAZY BOY WITH A RIFLE IS EVEN MORE OF A MENACE THAN A TRAINED SOLDIER. THERE ARE TIMES WHEN YOU CAN NOT SAVE THEM FROM THEMSELVES

I HAVE SEEN SCORES OF THESE DIRTYXXXXXXXXXXXXXX FACED BOYS IN PRIS-

GREAT STRETCHES OF THE LOMBARDY PLAINS WERE AFLAME TODAY AS THE U.S.

OFF THE ESCAPE OF THOUSANDS OF GERMANS DESPERATELY TRYING TO REACH THIS -BACK-DOOR" TO SAFETY.

COMBINED ASSAULTS BY TANKS, INFANTRY, ARTILLERY AND AIRCRAFT RIPPED APART GREAT PORTIONS OF THE REMNANTS OF TWO GERMAN ARMIES WHICH HAD BEEN RACING THE AMERICAN ADVANCE TO THE RIVER.

FREED FROM THE MOUNTAIN SHACKLES WHICH FOR 19 MONTHS MEASURED THEIR ADVANCES IN YARDS PER WEEK, THE AMERICAN TROOPS ROCKETED SOME 30 MILES ACROSS THE LOMBARDY PLAINS IN 50 HOURS.

THERE WAS STILL SCATTERED RESISTANCE IN A NUMBER OF PLACES BUT IN MOST SPOTS MANY NAZI TROOPS WHO FOUGHT SO MAGNIFICENTLY IN THE APENNINES WERE BEING KILLED OR TAKEN PRISONER AS LT.GEN.LUCIAN K.
TRUSCOTT'S TROOPS ROARED NORTHWARD ACROSS THE FLAT-LANDS AND IN SEVERAL PLACES BURST OUT ONTO THE SOUTHERN BANK OF THE PO.

THE GERMAN FLIGHT WAS APPARENTLY A MASS EXODUS OF ALL ENEMY UNITS
EAST OF THE AMERICAN FIFTH AND BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY SURGE.

ONE AMERICAN UNIT REPORTED THAT PRISONERS FROM FIVE DIFFERENT
GERMAN DIVISIONS WERE PICKED UP IN A MATTER OF TWO MILES. THE COMMANDER OF ONE OF THESE DIVISIONS--A LIEUTENANT GENERAL--WAS KILLED, ALONG WITH THE UNIT'S ARTILLERY OFFICER. A FULL COLONEL. THE ARTILLERY
OFFICER AND TWO REGIMENTAL COMMANDERS WERE SHOT WHEN LT.COL.CLAUDE
HOWARD OF COLUMBUS, GA., TOOK A COMPANY OF MEN AND CLEANED OUT A PAIR OF ENEMY TANKS, TWO SELF-PROPELLED WEAPONS AND A LARGE NUMBER OF GERMAN TROOPS WHO WERE OFFERING RESISTANCE.

MILE AFTER MILE OF THE GREAT VALLEY WAS ONE GIANT MASS OF FLAME

BY THE HAMMER BLOWS OF THE AMERICAN ASSAULT. AS A RESULT, GERMANS
BY THE HUNDREDS WERE SCURRYING OUT FROM UNDER A BLACK WALL OF SMOKE TO SURRENDER.

THREE HUNDRED GERMANS IN ONE BATCH WERE TAKEN BY A GROUP OF AMERICANS COMMANDED BY CAPT.WALTER GUNTHARP OF (HOMETOWN UNAVAILABLE)
FLORIDA. AT ANOTHER SPOT, LT.RALPH DECKER OF CLAY CENTER, KAN., AND HIS SPECIAL 26-MAN RANGER PATROL WALKED INTO AN ENEMY SIGNAL

THE MAIN RUSSIAN FORCES WERE REPORTED MOVING DOWN FROM THE NORTHEAST THROUGH THE PRENZLAUER AND FRIEDRICHSHAIN SECTORS, BUT SMALLER STORM GROUPS WERE SAID TO BE MAKING PROGRESS ALONG LANDSBURG AND FRANKFURTER STRASSEN--ROUGHLY PARALLEL AVENUES WHICH LEAD DIRECTLY INTO THE HEART OF THE CAPITAL FROM THE EAST.

HEAVY FIGHTING ALSO WAS REPORTED ALONG THE MULLER STRASSE ON THE NORTHWEST.

IN THE SOUTHWEST SECTION OF THE CITY RED ARMY TROOPS ALREADY HAD FOUGHT THEIR WAY INTO THE TEMPELHOF AREA, IN WHICH THE CAPITAL'S GREAT AIRPORT IS SITUATED.

THE RUSSIANS WERE REPORTED USING MORTARS AND ANTI-TANK GUNS TO BLAST A PATH FOR THEIR ADVANCING FORCES. ON EVERY AVENUE THEY HAD TO SMASH BARRICADES AND DESTROY MACHINEGUN AND SNIPER NESTS.

SOUTH OF BERLIN, MEANWHILE, IN THE FOREST COUNTRY EAST OF DESSAU AND LEIPZIG, THE PROSPECT OF A MEETING BETWEEN RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN TROOPS PROMISED SOON TO BECOME AN ACTUALITY AS THE DISTANCE SEPARATING THEM DWINDLED RAPIDLY.

IN SOME PLACES FURNITURE AND STORE FURNISHINGS WERE DRAGGED FROM BLASTED BUILDINGS AND HEAPED IN THE STREETS TO PROVIDE BREASTWORKS, THE RUSSIANS SAID.

IT WAS DOUBTFUL THAT MUCH TRAFFIC WILL GET THROUGH FROM NOW ON BECAUSE SOVIET ARMORED COLUMNS ARE VERY CLOSE TO THE RAILWAY AT NUMEROUS POINTS AND HAVE SEVERED THE LAST REMAINING HIGHWAY THROUGH THE SLIM CORRIDOR.

IN ADDITION TO THE GUARDS BANNERS WHICH HAVE GONE UP IN BERLIN, PRAVDA SAID RUSSIAN GUARDSMEN WERE CARRYING RED FLAGS EVEN IN THE FRONT LINES OF THE BERLIN STREETS--CARRYING THEM LIKE RUNNERS IN A RELAY RACE, WHEN ONE FALLS ANOTHER DARTS FORWARD TAKES UP THE FLAG AND DASHES FORWARD WITH IT TO A NEWLY WON POSITION, THE NEWSPAPER SAID

DISPATCHES TOLD OF STUBBORN GERMAN RESISTANCE IN THE STREETS AND FROM THE AIR WITH ROCKET-FIRING MESSERSCHMITTS AND BOMBERS FLYING 200 FEET OVER THE HEADS OF THE RUSSIANS.

FROM BUILDINGS IN THE CITY, MANY OF WHICH HAVE DEEP TRENCHES AROUND THEM, THE GERMANS ARE ENDEAVORING TO MAINTAIN CONTACT OVER FIELD RADIOS.

"MY COMMAND POINT IS SURROUNDED BY RUSSIANS AND I CAN'T SEE TO FIRE," ONE NAZI OFFICER WAS QUOTED BY PRAVDA AS SAYING. "ALL I CAN SEE IS FIRE AND SMOKE. WHAT MUST WE DO?"

ANOTHER FRONT LINE DISPATCH REPORTED GROUPS OF GERMANS MARCHED FORWARD WITH WHITE FLAGS ABOVE THEIR HEADS AND GRENADES HIDDEN BEHIND THEIR BACKS. THEY WERE SHOT DOWN.

THE ENEMY HAS POISONED WATER SUPPLIES, A CORRESPONDENT WROTE.

GERMAN PRISONERS WERE DESCRIBED AS "PALE AND STUNNED" FROM THE RUSSIAN BOMBARDMENT. THEY MARCHED EASTWARD LIKE "ZOMBIES, EXPRESSIONLESS," A DISPATCH SAID.

GUAM, TUESDAY, APRIL 24-(AP)-HITTING THE TOKYO AREA THE FIRST TIME SINCE A LARGE SCALE FIRE RAID ON THE ENEMY CAPITAL APRIL 16, A LARGE FORCE OF B-29S BOMBED THE HITACHI ENGINE PLANT FOR THE FIRST TIME THIS MORNING. OTHER PLANTS IN THE TACHIKAWA INDUSTRIAL AREA, JUST WEST OF TOKYO, ALSO WERE ATTACKED.

BETWEEN 100 AND 150 SUPERFORTRESSES PARTICIPATED IN THE RAID WHICH HIT ONLY 19 MILES WEST OF THE IMPERIAL PALACE IN TOKYO.

MAJ.GEN. CURTIS LEMAY REPORTED THE MARIANAS-BASED B-29S BOMBED VISUALLY IN GOOD WEATHER FROM MEDIUM ALTITUDE.

THE HITACHI COMPANY'S TACHIKAWA PLANT IS ONE OF THE FEW AIRCRAFT ENGINE FACTORIES IN JAPANESE WHICH HAD NOT BEEN ATTACKED IN THE HARD HITTING SUPERFORTRESS CAMPAIGN TO KNOCK OUT THE EMPIRE'S AIRPLANE PRODUCTION.

THE TOTAL ROOM AREA OF THE HITACHI-TACHIKAWA PLANT IS ABOUT 1,000,000 SQUARE FEET. THE IRREGULARLY SHAPED PLANT AREA MEASURES ROUNDLY ABOUT 2,000 FEET BY 2,000.

APR 24 1945

THE TACHIKAWA INDUSTRIAL AREA WAS HIT THE FIRST TIME APRIL IN A STRIKE AT THE TACHIKAWA AIRCRAFT CO. PLANT. IN THAT RAID, TECONNAISSANCE PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWED DAMAGE TO 505,080 SQUARE FEET, OR 79 PERCENT OF THE TACHIKAWA PLANT'S ROOF AREA.

A DOMEI (JAPANESE) NEWS AGENCY BROADCAST SAID APPROXIMATELY 70 B-29S BOMBED AIRFIELDS, AIR INSTALLATIONS AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS FOR 30 MINUTESBEGINNING AT 8:50 A.M. (TOKYO TIME; 7:50 P.M., MONDAY, EASTERN WAR TIME.)

THIRD AMPHIBIOUS CORPS MARINES, WHO HAVE VIRTUALLY CLEANED OUT OPPOSITION ON THE NORTHERN THREE-FOURTHS OF THE 65-MILE LONG ISLAND, INVADED TAKA AND SESOKO ISLETS, OFF OKINAWA'S WEST SHORE, SUNDAY.

THE JAPANESE MADE THEIR FIRST MAJOR AIR ATTACK ON THE INVASION FLEET IN NEARLY A WEEK SUNDAY AND LOST 53 PLANES, INCLUDING FOUR SHOT DOWN IN A PRELIMINARY IGHT RAID.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT VERN HAUGLAND SAID IN AN EYEWITNESS ACCOUNT THE NIPPONESE ATTACK WAS FURIOUS BUT "QUICKLY QUENCHED." WARSHIP GUNS AND AMERICAN INTERCEPTORS ACCOUNTED FOR THE ENEMY LOSSES. ONE ENEMY PLANE ZOOMED AT A U.S. DESTROYER, HIT THE JACKSTAFF (SHORT BOW FLAG STAFF) AND CRASHED INTO THE SEA. ONE AMERICAN SEAMAN FELL OVERBOARD IN THE EXCITEMENT. HE WAS FISHED OUT BY HIS MATES.

HAUGLAND ALSO REPORTED THAT THE FIRST AMERICAN SUPERFORTRESS, IN TROUBLE AFTER A RAID ON JAPAN FROM ITS MARIANAS BASE, HAD USED YONTAN AIR FIELD ON OKINAWA. B-29S HAD PREVIOUSLY MADE EMERGENCY LANDINGS ON IWO JIMA. OKINAWA IS ONLY 325 MILES FROM THE JAPANESE MAINLAND, APPROXIMATELY HALF THE DISTANCE OF IWO JIMA.

NIMITZ COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED 26 JAPANESE PLANES WERE DESTROYED IN THE LAST TWO DAYS OF CARRIER PLANE STRIKES ALONG THE NORTHERN RYUKYU ISLANDS FROM APRIL 18 THROUGH APRIL 22. IWO JIMA-BASED ARMY P-51 FIGHTERS DESTROYED 47 NIPPONESE PLANES IN A RAID ON THE MAINLAND SUZUKA NAVAL AIR BASE SUNDAY.

THE COMMUNIQUE REPORTED THAT 11,738 JAPANESE HAD BEEN KILLED AND 27 CAPTURED ON SOUTHERN OKINAWA. THIS DID NOT INCLUDE CASUALTIES IN THE NORTH OR ON OTHER ISLANDS OF THE TKINAWA GROUP. TENTH ARMY CASUALTIES ON OKINAWA, TABULATED WEDNESDAY, WERE 478 KILLED, 2,457 WOUNDED AND 260 MISSING.

NIPPONESE FLIERS STARTED TO PUT THE HEAT ON FOR THE FIRST TIME IN FORCE SINCE LAST MONDAY, BUT THEIF FIRE WAS QUICKLY QUENCHED. HERE IS JUST ONE PHASE OF THE FIGHT IN WHICH 49 JAPANESE PLANES WERE DOWNED:

FIRST A JAPANESE DIVEBOMBER HEADED FOR A DESTROYER AND WAS KNOCKE DOWN. NEARBY PLANES TOOK A HAND AND DISPOSED OF TWO MORE BOMBERS WHILE A DESTROYER BLASTED STILL ANOTHER. ONE ENEMY PLANE ZOOMED AT THE SHIP, CAROMED OFF THE JACKSTAFF AND SPLASHED HARMLESSLY INTO THE WATER.

THEN EIGHT TWIN-ENGINED JAPANESE BOMBERS SWOOPED DOWN ON A VESSEL ONE OF THE PLANES WAS SET AFIRE AND ITS PILOT TRIED TO DIVE ON THE SHIP BUT IT MISSED WIDELY. ANOTHER JAPANESE PLANE DRONED TOWARD A DESTROYER AND WAS EXPLODED 25 FEET AWAY. THE FORCE OF THE BLAST

WITH THE 20TH AIRFORCE IN THE MARIANAS, APRIL 23-(AP)-A SINGLE BOMBER COMMAND--THE 21ST--IS SET TO SLUG JAPAN WITH MORE DESTRUCTION THAN THE GIANT AMERICAN EIGHTH AIRFORCE IN EUROPE EVER THREW AT THE NAZIS.

THE COMBINED STRIKING POWER OF BOTH COMMANDS OF THE 20TH AIR FORCE THIS YEAR MAY EXCEED IN EFFECTIVE EFFORT THE ENTIRE OUTPUT OF ARMY AIR FORCES IN 1944.

THAT NOT ONLY SUMMARIZES THE SAD STORY WRITTEN FOR JAPANESE LEADERS BUT IT ALSO SUGGESTS THE MAGNITUDE OF THE PACIFIC AIRWAR IN WHICH TIME AND DISTANCE CAUSE MORE CONCERN THAN THE ENEMY.

GEN. H.H. ARNOLD, COMMANDER OF THE ARMY AIR FORCE, REPORTED THE ENTIRE ARMY AIR FORCES DROPPED 1,082,818 TONS OF BOMBS ON THE ENEMY LAST YEAR. THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND IS WORKING ON A 600,000 TON ANNUAL RATE AND ITS SISTER COMMAND--THE 20TH WHICH BEGAN B-29 OPERATIONS IN THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER LAST SUMMER--IS NOT LIKELY TO BE OUTDONE EASILY.

BOTH COMMANDS HAVE BEEN EXCEEDING ESTABLISHED GOALS, WHICH IS ONE REASON FOR SOME UNUSUAL SUPPLY DIFFICULTIES.

THE JAPANESE RIGHTFULLY REGARD SUPERFORTS AS THE MOST FEARFUL WEAPON THEY HAVE ENCOUNTERED. A ROUGH COMPARISON OF THE B-29S WITH THE B-24 LIBERATORS AND B-17 FLYING FORTRESSES SHOWS THE SOUNDNESS OF THE JAPANESE EVALUATION AND EXPLAINS THE VASTLY SUPERIOR EFFORT OF THE 21ST COMMAND OVER THE 8TH AIR FORCE.

SUPERFORTS ARE MORE THAN DOUBLE THE WEIGHT OF HEAVY BOMBERS, CARRY TWO AND A HALF TIMES AS MUCH FUEL, FLY TWICE AS FAR, AND CARRY THREE AND A HALF TIMES THE BOMB LOAD. ADDITIONALLY, SUPERFORTRESSES FLY MORE THAN TWICE THE NUMBER OF HOURS MONTHLY COMPARED TO EUROPEAN OPERATIONS AND BOMBING ACCURACY LATELY HAS BEEN CONSIDERED HIGHER.

GREATER UTILIZATION--RUNNING 75 TO 80 PER CENT COMPARED TO 40 TO 45 PER CENT IN EUROPE--IS MADE POSSIBLE THROUGH EXTRAORDINARY MAINTENANCE AND SUPPLY EFFORTS.

THE MAJOR PROBLEM IN CONTINUING THE UPSWING OF B-29'S OPERATIONS IS NOT PLANES AND TRAINED CREWS, OF WHICH PLENTY ARE WAITING IN THE UNITED STATES, BUT RATHER SUPPLY AND MAINTAINING THOSE PLANES FOR WHICH WESTERN PACIFIC REAL ESTATE IS ALREADY AVAILABLE.

A STRIKING FORCE WHICH IS SCHEDULED TO FLY FARTHER AND DROP MORE BOMBS THAN THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE MUST HAVE MORE FUEL, BOMBS AND A THOUSAND OTHER ITEMS

WITH THE 20TH AIRFORCE IN THE MARIANAS,APRIL 23-(AP)-IF THE 20TH AIRFORCE FOLLOWS THE ORGANIZATIONAL TREND OF THE EUROPEAN THEATER, SUPERFORTRESSES EVENTUALLY WILL HAVE FIGHTER PLANES AS STABLEMATES.

THE 20TH WAS ESTABLISHED WITH THE B-29S AS ITS SOLE WEAPON FOR SEVERAL REASONS:

FIGHTERS ARE UNABLE TO APPROACH ITS TREMENDOUS RANGE, IT WAS BELIEVED THAT ALTITUDES AND SPEED ATTAINED BY SUPERFORTRESSES OBVIATED THE NEED FOR ESCORTS, AND THE SUPPLY PROBLEM FOR ONE AIRPLANE WAS MORE THAN ENOUGH UNDER CIRCUMSTANCES AT THAT TIME.

THIS ATTITUDE HAS BEEN ALTERED CONSIDERABLY BY EXPERIENCE. ENEMY FIGHTERS WERE THE B-29'S WORST NUISANCE, DISTANCES TO TARGETS WERE SHORTENED, AND THE SUPPLY PROBLEM WAS VASTLY IMPROVED.

IT NOW APPEARS POSSIBLE THAT THE 20TH MAY BE ESTABLISHED AS A FULLY-INTEGRATED AIRFORCE SUCH AS WAS DONE IN EUROPE WITH THE 8TH AIRFORCE. IF THE JOIN-UP CALL IS ISSUED IT MAY GO TO THE P-51 MUSTANGS.

BY FRANCIS M. LEMAY

WASHINGTON, APRIL 23-(AP)-HENRY A. WALLACE GOT A STORMY RECEPTION FROM REPUBLICANS ON THE HOUSE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE TODAY WHEN HE BACKED TARIFF-CUTTING LEGISLATION AS A STEP TOWARD PEACE AND 60,000,000 JOBS.

THE COMMERCE SECRETARY, EX-VICE PRESIDENT AND FORMER SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE, EXCHANGED FREQUENT VERBAL SHOTS WITH REP. KNUTSON OF MINNESOTA, RANKING COMMITTEE REPUBLICAN, WHO SOUGHT TO INQUIRE INTO WALLACE'S GENERAL PHILOSOPHY.

EARLY DAYS OF THE NEW DEAL WERE REEXPLORED IN THE EXCHANGES, WITH THE REPUBLICANS DWELLING ON THE "KILLING OF LITTLE PIGS" AND THE "PLOWING UNDER OF EVERY THIRD ROW."

IN RESPONSE TO KNUTSON WALLACE VIGOROUSLY DENIED HE EVER HELD A "PHILOSOPHY OF SCARCITY," SAID THE "THIRD ROW" SLOGAN WAS BEGUN BY THE REPUBLICANS, AND DECLARED THAT CONTINUATION AND BROADENING OF THE NATION'S RECIPROCAL TRADE PROGRAM IS NECESSARY TO AN ECONOMY OF ABUNDANCE.

HE SAID RECIPROCAL TRADING "COMBATS ISOLATIONIST TENDENCIES."

COMMITTEE REPUBLICANS HAVE FORMED A SOLID LINE AGAINST THE BILL UNDER DISCUSSION, WHICH WOULD GRANT THE ADMINISTRATION NEW AUTHORITY TO TRIM DUTIES IN AN EXTENSION OF THE LAW PERMITTING RECIPROCAL TRADE AGREEMENTS WITH OTHER COUNTRIES.

THE AUDIENCE IN THE PACKED COMMITTEE ROOM ONCE BURST INTO APPLAUSE WHEN REP.EBERHART (D-PA) PROTESTED KNUTSON'S ATTITUDE TOWARD WALLACE.

THE REPUBLICAN MEMBER ASKED "ISN'T LOWERING THE TARIFF THE SAME AS LOWERING IMMIGRATION BARS?"

"THAT QUESTION IS TOO COMPLICATED TO ANSWER," WALLACE RESPONDED.

"THEN I'LL ASK ANOTHER WITNESS WITH ORDINARY INTELLIGENCE," KNUTSON RETORTED.

EBERHARTER SHOUTED "WE WANT TO SHOW RESPECT TO THE WITNESS," AND THE AUDIENCE APPLAUDED. KNUTSON'S REMARK WAS STRICKEN FROM THE RECORD ON HIS OWN MOTION.

APR 24 1945

EARLIER, WHEN WALLACE CONTENDED THAT THE RECIPROCAL TRADE AGREEMENTS HELPED TO PROMOTE PEACE, KNUTSON SAID "WE'VE GOT THE GREATEST WAR WE EVER HAD," AND TOLD THE SECRETARY: "I WISH I COULD BE AS NAIVE AS YOU. I ENVY YOUR NAIVENESS."

"I PITY YOURS, WALLACE SNAPPED BACK.

"YOU PITY ANYONE WHO BELIEVES IN OUR CONSTITUTION," SAID KNUTSON.

WHEN KNUTSON ASKED WHETHER WALLACE BELIEVED IN DESTROYING "INEFFICIENT INDUSTRIES" IN THE UNITED STATES, TO OPEN THE WAY FOR IMPORTS, WALLACE GRINNED AND ANSWERED: "I'M NOT BEATING MY WIFE ANYMORE."

"THAT REALLY SHOULD GO INTO THE SOCIETY COLUMN," KNUTSON SAID, ENDING THE TIFT.

WALLACE SAID THE KILLING OF PIGS AND PLOWING UP OF COTTON IN THE DEALY DAYS OF THE NEW DEAL "WAS A DRASTIC METHOD TO CURE A DESPERATE SITUATION." HE ARGUED THAT IT ACCOMPLISHED ITS PURPOSE AT THE TIME.

"INDUSTRY HAS HELD TO A PHILOSOPHY OF SCARCITY," WALLACE SAID. "INDUSTRY PLOWED OUT ONE-HALF OF ITS WORKERS IN 1932. FARMERS ADOPTED IT ONLY MINUTELY AS A MATTER OF NECESSITY."

APR 24 1945

TURNING TO POSTWAR JOBS, THE SECRETARY SAID:

"I BELIEVE THAT THE TRADE AGREEMENTS PROGRAM CAN MAKE A SUBSTANTIAL CONTRIBUTION TO THE ATTAINMENT OF OUR PRINCIPAL POSTWAR OBJECTIVE - FULL PRODUCTION EMPLOYMENT OR ABOUT 60,000,000 JOBS."

HE CONCLUDED HIS FORMAL STATEMENT:

"WE HAVE AGAIN COME TO THE FORK IN THE ROAD.

"ONE ROAD, THE ONE I HOPE THE CONGRESS WILL CHOOSE, LEADS TO THE REDUCTION OF TRADE BARRIERS, AN EXPANDING FOREIGN TRADE, SUSTAINED PRODUCTION, MAXIMUM EMPLOYMENT, AND INTERNATIONAL GOODWILL; THE OTHER LEADS TO TARIFF WALLS, DISCRIMINATION, ECONOMIC ISOLATION, GOVERNMENT TRADING, ECONOMIC WARFARE AND INTERNATIONAL MISUNDERSTANDING."

CONDITIONS ARE SUITABLE.
INTEREST IN CANADA AS A LOCATION FOR NEW MANUFACTURING ESTABLISHMENTS IS BEING SHOWN PARTICULARLY BY MANUFACTURERS OF HEAVY MACHINERY SUCH AS THAT USED IN MINING AND LUMBER OPERATIONS AND IN CERTAIN FACTORIES.
THIS INTEREST IS SAID TO SPRING IN PART FROM THE INCREASED INDUSTRIALIZATION OF CANADA DURING THE WAR. THE CANADIAN MARKET FOR SUCH PRODUCTS IS BELIEVED TO HAVE GROWN AND SOME FIRMS SEE ECONOMIC ADVANTAGES IN THE SITUATION ARE SAID TO INCLUDE THE PREVAILING EXCHANGE POSITION. AN INVESTMENT OF 90 CENTS IN UNITED STATES FUNDS IN CANADA MEANS $1 IN CANADIAN FUNDS AND, BECAUSE OF THE DIFFERENCE IN PRICE LEVELS, A CANADIAN DOLLAR ACTUALLY BUYS MORE THAN 90 CENTS DOES IN THE UNITED STATES.
THE CLOSE INTEGRATION OF THE INDUSTRIAL WAR EFFORT OF CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES WITH CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS PRODUCING COMPONENTS FOR UNITED STATES PRODUCTS, AND VICE VERSA, IS ALSO BELIEVED TO HAVE MADE MANY AMERICAN INDUSTRIALISTS AWARE OF CANADA FOR THE FIRST TIME.

Red Troops Cut Railway Lines Out of Capital

APR 25 1945

WHEELER

LONDON, Wednesday, April 25—(AP) Two great Soviet armies united inside Berlin yesterday, seized fully half the burning city and effectively cut it off from all reinforcement.

A Moscow communique announced the junction of the First Ukrainian and First White Russian armies in southeastern Berlin in a single phase of coordinated drives which captured the Schlesischer (Silesian) railway station and all the districts [illegible] and east of it, within a mile of the center of the city at Den Linden.

NIGHT

The First White Russian forces of Marshal G. K. Zhukov simultaneously executed a great wheeling movement north and northwest, which severed the Berlin Hamburg railway and came within two and one-half miles of the Berlin-Hannover railway. The latter, useless because it leads only to a dead end at the lines of the western Allies, already is under heavy shellfire, Moscow related in an early-morning supplement to the communique.

Throw Arc Around City

While the Russian account showed that in actual miles the city still lacked some 14 miles of being entirely surrounded, severance of the Hamburg railway and interdiction of the other lent confirmation to a German account which said the flaming German capital was "practically surrounded."

This German report, circulated by the Nazi-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph bureau, said there was a three-mile escape corridor to the northwest but that it could not be used because it was blanketed with Soviet heavy artillery.

The Russian communique, supporting the probable total isolation of Berlin, said that Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainians had speared up from the south to a point four miles due east of Potsdam.

Deprived of outside aid, the German defenders fought viciously hurling in repeated counterattacks which the Russians said failed at a cost of more than 6,000 German dead Tuesday alone. The dying German airforce, striving vainly to compete with Soviet airpower over the heart of Berlin, lost 26 planes shot down Tuesday, Moscow reported.

Junction of the two Russian armies inside Berlin's limits completed the encirclement of a tremendous area 60 miles long and 30 miles broad, stretching clear back east and southeast to the Oder and Neisse rivers, trapping untold numbers of Germans.

Reds Seize Fuerstenberg

Closing in quickly on the far end of that pocket, other White Russian units took the stubborn fortress of Fuerstenberg on the west bank of the Oder and Guben on the east bank of the Neisse just south of the confluence of the two streams.

Far south of Berlin the Russians announced capture of Grossenhain, 20 miles northwest of Dresden.

It was in that area that Soviet and American forces were approaching an historic junction on a broad front.

The French press agency said without confirmation that a union already had been reached at Eilenburg, nine miles northeast of Leipzig, but dispatches from the U. S. First army front said no linkup had yet been made.

The expected simultaneous announcement of the junction from Washington, Moscow and London had not been made, but field dispatches from both sides of the front left little doubt that Adolf Hitler's Reich was being quickly and irrevocably cut in two.

German radio accounts persisted in reporting that Hitler himself still was in Berlin, personally directing its ruinous defense, even to the disposition of various troop units, but the best Allied sources held to the belief that he had immured himself in his Berchtesgaden retreat in the south.

Drive Toward Berchtesgaden

The Russians were driving toward Berchtesgaden, too. The German High command said that Red army troops had slashed halfway across Austria to Eisenenerz, 90 miles east of Hitler's home, and the Americans were closing in fast from the northwest.

The throes of Berlin held the spotlight, however, both in the Soviet communique and in German broadcasts.

Moscow announced officially that the great looping drive of the First White Russian Army north and northwest of Berlin had taken the towns of Kremen, Flatow, Welten and Nauern—38 miles east of the American Ninth Army positions on the Elbe river west of Berlin.

In this sickle movement the First White Russians took the Berlin city districts of Tegel, Wittenau and Reinickendorf, inside the northern city limits.

Forces moving directly from the east took the Schlesischer station, five miles from Reinickendorf, threatening to slice Berlin into at least two parts.

On the south the first Ukrainian forces took the Berlin city districts of Mariendorf, Lankwitz, Ostdorf and Stahnsdorf, the latter four miles west of Potsdam.

The First White Russians crossed the Dahme river southeast of Berlin, took the borderline suburbs of Adlershof, Rudow, Alt-Glienicke and Hunsdorf and joined there with the First Ukrainians, Moscow announced.

The bitterness of the struggle was evidenced by Moscow's listing of 48 tanks, more than 200 field guns, 2,550 trucks and 88 locomotives seized in the Berlin battle Monday, plus more than 3,000 Germans captured.

Nazis Lose 110 Tanks

On all fronts on Monday the Germans lost 110 tanks, Moscow added, and lost 6,000 prisoners on the front near Dresden.

The Germans, continuing to broadcast spasmodically, gave colorful accounts of the inferno that was Berlin, but were chary of specific locations in fighting which they said was fluctuating.

The German High command communique, broadcast from a station identifying itself as Hamburg, placed the Russians at indefinite points southeast of Brandenburg, south of Potsdam and north of Koenigswusterhausen, all suburbs of Berlin, and conceded that the enemy was inside the eastern and western parts of the city.

Subsequent Hamburg broadcasts said the Russians had reached the northwestern suburbs of Schoenwalde and Niederneuendorf, and the Spandau woods, coming within three miles of cutting the northwestern railway that runs out through Spandau.

The Russians also were in the southern city districts of Lichterfelde, Lankwitz and Mariendorf and attacking northward towards Templehof and Schoenberg, the Germans said.

Boys of 13 were helping man the depressed antiaircraft guns defending those sectors, the broadcasts related.

Deep inside the ravaged city, "foreigners"—probably slave laborers—hoisted the red flag atop a hotel and were being fired upon by German artillery, the Hamburg broadcasts continued, while in the east the fanatical Hitler youth and SS Elite guards acknowledged loss of a subway station on the Landsberger Allee which leads to the center of Berlin.

DASH ACROSS AUSTRIA FOR BERCHTESGADEN

KRISCHKE

Soviets Advance From Street to Street in Doomed Berlin—Swing Forces Wide to Cut Nazi Escape Corridors.

London, April 24 (A. P.).—Russian troops have tightened their encirclement of Berlin—already more than one-third in Soviet hands—and in a swift dash halfway across central Austria have swept to within eighty-nine miles of Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain retreat, the German High Command declared today.

The drive through Austria carried to Eisenerz, fifty-seven miles from Linz and eighty-five from Salzburg, the broadcast bulletin said. Americans of the Third Army are ninety-three miles from those two cities, and 110 from Berchtesgaden in their southward slice toward the Nazis' Alpine redoubt. By German account, Russians in Austria were but 155 airline miles from a linkup with the Third Army.

Two Soviet armies were cutting into the heart of Berlin in savage street battles. The German High Command said the Russian encircling drive around the capital on the southwest had reached "areas southeast of Brandenburg, and east of Potsdam," Berlin's great western suburb. Brandenburg is twenty-five miles west of Berlin.

South of the crumbling citadel of Nazidom, other Soviet forces drew near American troops waiting for a merging of the eastern and western fronts.

The German communique, broadcast by the Hamburg radio, declared Germans still were resisting on the northern and eastern edges of Berlin.

German reports indicated that fighting was raging through nearly one-half of the city last night. Red Army troops and tanks advanced from point to point past the bodies of Germans who had been refused permission to retreat. Southwest of Berlin, now almost encircled, Red Army tanks drew up to the Elbe River at a point within twenty miles of American positions.

Berlin was being reduced to rubble, building by building, as so many European cities have been before it. Both the First White Russian Army and the First Ukrainian Army had passed the outskirts and were fighting well inside the central areas.

A Moscow communique announced that Red Army tanks had driven across the belt railroad into the inner city and captured the metropolitan gas works, only eight blocks from Alexander Platz, a major commercial center.

The Germans, who said Hitler was on hand directing the battle personally, announced in a broadcast that the Russian forces were fighting in Friedrich's Park and near Koenigs Gate, a mile and one-half from the intersection of Unter Den Linden and Friedrichstrasse. Swiss and Swedish reports, confirmed by neither side, said the Russians already had reached Unter Den Linden, Berlin's Fifth avenue.

Berlin may already have been encircled. The Russians announced last night that their forces to the west were only sixteen miles apart. The Luxembourg radio said they had met.

The Sweep to the North.

Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army, driving into and sweeping around the city to the north, captured Oranienburg, seventeen miles northeast of the heart of the city, took nearby Birkenwerder, crossed the Havel River, and won Hennisdorf. By German account, Zhukov's troops had swept on into the northwestern suburb of Heiligensee.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian Army was closing the southern jaw of the pincers as well as entering the city from the south. Konev's forces captured Teltow, sixteen miles south of Zhukov's troops at Hennisdorf. Teltow lies on the southwestern fringe of Berlin proper. An unconfirmed Moscow dispatch said the great Tempelhof Airdrome in the southern part of Berlin had been captured.

The German capital was effectively isolated from the Nazi national redoubt in the Bavarian Alps by the Russian rush to the Elbe at Muehlberg, northwest of Dresden. The First Ukrainian Army, after advancing 100 miles in a week, was approaching the river on a thirty-eight-mile front. In that region American forces last were reported on the Mulde River near Wurzen, west of the Elbe.

Konev's seven-day drive overwhelmed seventeen major towns. The capture of Pulsnitz carried his troops within twelve miles of Dresden on the northeast.

Russians Draw Closer to Historic Junction with Doughboys.

APR 25 1945

PARIS, Wednesday, April 25—(AP) Whirling down on Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat, three mighty Allied armies curved the tips of a giant pincers within 25 miles of Austria's borders last night.

In the far north, the British opened the final assault on Germany's second port of Bremen, and along the Elbe river valley the Russians drew ever closer to an historic union with the waiting Americans.

NIGHT

Report Hitler Flees

Berlin blazed in its final agonies and Nazi propagandists said Hitler himself was within the crumbling capital, directing military operations. Other European sources, however, expressed belief that he already had fled to his Berchtesgaden redoubt toward which the American Third and Seventh and French First armies were beating a triple drive.

Supreme headquarters, reporting the Allies had captured more than a million Germans in the west since April 1, heard that resistance on part of the Bavarian front was crumbling while along the Elbe river German soldiers were racing with civilians to surrender to the Americans before the Russians catch them.

The U. S. Third army led the sprint toward Austria with a 23-mile leap from Cham to the vicinity of Arnetsried, 35 miles from the border city of Passau. At the extreme other end of the line, French and U. S. Seventh army men moved shoulder to shoulder toward the Alpine foothills that shield Munich.

Allied headquarters, like the rest of the world, was awaiting an official announcement that American and Russian troops, last reported barely 20 miles apart between Dresden and Leipzig, had joined forces and split the Reich in two. Some correspondents here believed a preliminary junction already had been made.

Report Reds, Yanks Meet

The French press agency, quoting "reports from Moscow," said American and Soviet troops had met at Ellenburg, on the Mulde river nine miles northeast of Leipzig.

Ulm, second city of Wurttemberg and important communications center on the Danube, fell to the combined assault of the American Seventh and French First armies.

The U. S. Third army, continuing its spectacular drive southward from the boundary of Czechoslovakia, battled within four miles of the big traffic hub of Regensburg and within 25 miles of the Austrian border. Traveling fast under a partial news blackout, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's famed armored forces were closing in relentlessly on Regensburg from three sides and slicing hourly nearer the ramparts of the enemy's southern "fortress."

Patton's 26th infantry, taking advantage of the enemy's disorganized state, seized several bridges intact across the Regan river, which flows northwest from Regensburg, and sped across into the towns of Wacherling and Nittenau, 14 miles northeast of Regensburg. Other doughboy columns drove into Rechberg, 12 miles northwest of the city, and to the vicinity of Etzenburg, eight miles to the west.

The 11th armored division raced eastward for a 23-mile gain and reached the vicinity of Arnesriedt, 40 miles east of Regensburg and 11 miles north of the Danube. It was there that Patton's fighters were within 25 miles of Austria and about 93 miles due north of Hitler's Berchtesgaden hideout.

Smash Across Danube

The Seventh Army's 44th division slashed across the Danube at Ehingen just southwest of Ulm after capturing that city of 60,000 with the assistance of French forces. The 12th Armored Division expanded its bridgehead across the Danube near Dillingen, 50 miles northwest of Munich, to 10 miles wide and six deep and began probing into the foothills of the Alps.

Fanning out along the north bank of the Danube, the 10th Armored Division reached Erbach, six miles southwest of Ulm. Polsingen, 36 miles north of Augsburg, was captured by the 42nd Infantry Division in a 10-mile thrust.

Twenty American and French infantry divisions and eight armored divisions were participating in the mighty offensive to crush the enemy's vaunted southern redoubt. Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party and possible site of its ultimate destruction, was being caught in a mammoth nutcracker by more than 375,000 Allied fighting men.

By-passed enemy pockets north of Ulm and south of Stuttgart were being compressed by Seventh Army troops. Southeast of Stuttgart they captured a V-bomb plant covering 80 acres which had operated up to last Friday with 2,500 slave laborers.

French forces, driving east well beyond their Danube crossing at Sigmaringen and 20 miles beyond their last reported positions in the area between the Danube and Lake Constance, captured Baltringen and Ochsenbausen, 15 to 22 miles south of Ulm. Other French units pushed five miles south to Bellingen and Liel, within 10 miles of Basel, Switzerland.

Refugees Cross Border

(The Swiss radio reported that German refugees were streaming across the border into that neutral country and that French troops were advancing close to Friedrichshafen, home of the Zeppelins, which was said to be in flames.)

A front dispatch from Howard Cowan of the Associated Press said both the French and Americans were knifing forward almost at will and cutting off huge pockets of Germans both north and south of the Danube in the area west of Ulm. The Seventh Army captured two German generals.

Ulm, on the west bank of the Danube, was the scene of one of Napoleon's most complete victories. It was there the Austrian army surrendered to the Corsican in 1805. The Danube is navigable all the way from Ulm to the Black Sea.

Allies Cross Danube At 3d Point; Ulm Is Overrun

APR 25 1945

With the U.S. 3d Army, April 24 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army forces in the Regensburg area drove today to within 8 miles of that strategic city in one sector and reached a point three miles west of the Danube in another.

APR 25 1945

Paris, April 24 (AP)—The three-army assault on the outer ramparts of the German Alpine redoubt burst across the Danube at a third place today, overran the traffic center of Ulm and carried to within 105 miles of Hitler's hide-out at Berchtesgaden.

Troops of the American 3d Army pressed to within 93 miles of the Austrian strongholds of Linz and Salzburg, eastern gateways to the southern redoubt.

The 7th Army closed down the last 50 miles toward Munich and the French 1st Army advanced close to the Austrian frontier and reduced three large pockets behind the lines.

Ten-Mile Advance

Ulm, second city of Wurttemberg, is on the Danube. It was the scene of one of Napoleon's most complete victories. It fell after a 10-mile overnight advance.

Captured German documents said that Field Marshal Irwin Rommell died at Ulm last October 14 of wounds received in a strafing attack in Normandy.

It was at Ulm in 1805 that the Austrian Army surrendered to Napoleon near the 14th century Gothic cathedral, higher than the Cologne edifice and second only to it in size. The Danube is navigable from Ulm to the Black Sea.

Contact Believed Made

Supreme headquarters, muffled on any word of a junction with the Russians pending governmental announcements by the Big Three, could give no news of the American 1st and 9th army lines along the Elbe and east of Leipzig. Many correspondents believed preliminary contact with the Russians already had been made.

[The French Press Agency, quoting "Moscow reports reaching London," said American and Russian troops had joined at Eilenburg, 9 miles northeast of Leipzig.]

Germans in the north were reported fleeing from beleaguered Berlin, Bremen and Hamburg into Denmark for another last stand in a northern redoubt. Pilots bombed and strafed train after train, packed with Nazi troops.

Bridgehead Widened

The 7th Army's 44th Armored Division made the latest crossing of the Danube at Ehingen, 117 miles northwest of the Brenner Pass into Italy. French and American troops shared in the capture of Ulm.

Infantry and armor poured into the Danube bridgehead at Dillingen, probing into the foothills of the Alps. The Hellcat (12th Armored) Division widened the bridgehead to 10 miles and deepened it to 6, capturing an airfield at Kicklingen along with the towns of Gumbremmingen, Altenbraindt and Sontheim.

The Century (100th) Division captured an 80-acre V-bomb plant intact. It had been working until Friday with 2,500 impressed foreign laborers.

Near Prison Camp

The 3d and 4th Infantry Divisions marched across the intact Danube bridge at Dillingen to within a short distance of a prison camp where at least 500 American prisoners of war were caged. Twenty Americans were released last night at Eppisberg.

Munich, in the center of the Alpine fastness to the south, was being caught in a nutcracker squeeze.

The French 1st Army, first to cross the upper Danube, kept up its 20-mile-a-day pace and outflanked Lake Constance by reaching Ochsenhausen, northeast of the boundary lake on the Swiss frontier and 20 miles southwest of Ulm. The French at Ochsenhausen were 103 miles from the Brenner Pass into Italy and 70 miles west of Munich, menaced from the north by the 7th Army and from the northeast by the 3d.

Reach Bellingen

Other French troops moving up the Rhine reached Bellingen and Liel, 10 miles north of Basel in Switzerland.

The United States 44th Division crossed the Danube somewhere just west of Ulm.

The French and American 7th armies cut across southwest Germany at will, slicing off huge pockets both north and south of the Danube.

The French crossed the Rhine at Kems, 8 miles northwest of Basel, and hammered into Kirch and Zarten in the Black Forest pocket, originally 1,000 square miles. Dietenheim, southeast of Ulm, was reached.

Simultaneously, General Patton's 3d Army made additional gains of 18 miles in the Regensburg area.

Prisoner Bag Increases

Patton's troops charging forward on a broad front entered Cham, 28 miles northeast of Regensburg. Some twenty infantry and eight tank divisions—more than 375,000 men—had been committed to the crucial battle.

German disintegration proceeded swiftly. During April alone more than 1,015,000 prisoners have been captured by General Eisenhower's nine Western front armies which since D-day have captured more than 2,345,000 Germans.

In the north, Canadian and British crossings of the Maas River south of Utrecht threatened to turn the flooded Grebbe River defense line and open the way for destruction of the German 25th Army trapped in western Holland.

Three Routes Severed

The 3d Army offensive proceeded under a partial security blackout censorship used in the past to hide decisive victories in the making. Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball, however, was permitted to report that the 3d Army had overrun 450 square miles of the approaches to the southern redoubt along a 25-mile front.

Patton was closing on Regensburg from the west, north and northeast against scattered to light resistance, a dispatch from General Bradley's 12th Army Group headquarters said. Regensburg is a major rail center for much German traffic which might be intended for the Alpine redoubt.

By moving into Cham, the 3d Army's Thunderbolt (11th Armored) Division severed three more main routes from the final Pilsen-Prague munitions plants to the Alps. Pilsen was 43 miles from advanced 3d Army troops; Prague was 87 miles from troops around besieged Chemnitz in Saxony.

The Thunderbolt Division sent two tank columns into Cham, 1,263 feet high, in the Alpine hills. The Yankee (26th) division advanced 18 miles southeast to the Schongras area, 17 miles northeast of Regensburg.

Other infantry captured Schwandorf, 20 miles north of Regensburg, and entered Beratzhausen, 13 miles west of the city and 62 north of Munich. The Texas and Oklahoma (90th) Division reached Michldorf, 40 miles north of Regensburg.

Between the spearheads driving toward the Austrian border the three German pockets were sealed off. Infantry was mopping up the pockets and moving forward behind the tanks.

In addition to the Black Forest pocket there was a 500-square-mile trap southwest of Stuttgart. The third was a 100-square-mile area north of Ulm. There was no good estimate of trapped Germans, but at places they offered fanatical resistance.

On the northern front, forward units of the British Lowland (52d) Division fought into Arbergen, 3 miles from the eastern edge of Bremen, after advancing through Mahndorf. The battle for Bremen was more of a siege than an attack upon a strongpoint.

BRITISH SUPPORT RED DEMAND FOR 3 SECURITY VOTES

Four Sponsoring Nations Agree to Back 'Justice' Proposal.

APR 25 1945

PARLEY TO OPEN TODAY

Truman, Stettinius to Formally Launch Peace Talks at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24—(AP) The British Commonwealth of nations lined up today behind Russia's demand for three votes in the general assembly of the United Nations organization to be set up at the Golden Gate conference.

The four sponsoring governments of the United Nations conference have agreed to support specific proposals that international disputes be settled "with due regard for principles of justice and international law."

Stettinius Reveals Plan

This was made known to reporters today by Secretary of State Stettinius, chairman of the American delegation and temporary presiding officer of the conference opening tomorrow.

The announcement came soon after all the British Commonwealth lined up behind a Russian demand for three votes in a general assembly of a proposed United Nations organization.

The Chinese originated the suggestion to include references to justice and international law in the proposed charter of the organization.

An American delegate, Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich.), also had been hammering for a pronouncement specifically embracing the word "justice." Standing behind Stettinius at a mammoth news conference in a hotel, Vandenberg uttered one sentence:

"I'm very happy to welcome justice in its first appearance, in this instance."

Stettinius batted back a host of questions on the touchy Polish situation—one of the major issues on the eve of the meeting of 46 nations seeking to guide the world into the ways of permanent peace.

Silent on Russian Vote

Nor did the Secretary of State care to express himself on whether the American delegation would support three votes for the Soviet Union in the General Assembly. Previously the Americans had felt themselves committed by decisions at the Yalta meeting of the Big Three to lend such support. They had been hopeful, however, that Russia might not press the issue.

But the British, in the words of Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee, had promised, that "oh, yes" the United Kingdom would back Russia on this point. Subsequently it was learned that India, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada intend to follow suit.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee arrived to serve as a delegate. He told reporters that if the participating nations "keep their eyes on the main objectives and do not get blinded by personal considerations," the conference will have a tremendous success."

"If the nations want peace, they'll get peace," he said.

Two additional Chinese suggestions, to be submitted to the conference, also won endorsement of the sponsoring nations—China herself, Britain, Russia and the United States.

These were:

"The Assembly should be responsible for initiating studies and making recommendations with respect to the development and revision of the rules and principles of International Law."

"The Economic and Social council should specifically provide for the promotion of educational and other forms of cultural cooperation."

The exact language of the "justice" proposal:

"The charter should provide specifically that adjustment or settlement of international disputes should be achieved with due regard for the principles of justice and international law."

Delegates Confident

Stettinius' news conference did little either to increase or dispel a general tone of confidence and determination that big and small nations alike "must not and will not fail" in their task of erecting a world peace structure.

American delegates showed no disposition of alarm at Russia's request for three votes—although the unspoken wish was that it be withdrawn in the interests of harmony. Nor did they seem disturbed any more than they have been in the past that the British Commonwealth has a combined power of six votes in the Assembly.

The United States view on that point is that the Commonwealth nations are, by function, independent, and that they are not to be expected to vote as a bloc.

The main importance of the Assembly votes is that they help determine the biennial changes of membership of smaller nations on the powerful security council which is the heart of the proposed world organization.

Delegates arrived throughout the day. Tonight the roster of representatives of 46 nations, pledged to produce a plan for peace, was almost complete.

Late tomorrow afternoon Secretary of State Stettinius will call them to order in San Francisco's magnificent opera house, open the conference formally, and introduce President Truman, speaking by radio from Washington.

Chairman of the American delegation and temporary chairman of the conference itself, Stettinius stepped down from a glistening transport plane this morning. He said:

"I come to San Francisco with the firm belief that the United Nations are united in their determination to succeed in establishing a world organization.

"I say this with no wish to minimize the difficulties that we must meet both at this conference and afterwards. I say it because I believe all the peaceful peoples of the world demand this of us and the governments represented at this conference must not and will not fail them."

Almost in echo, in a downtown hotel, Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak appraised the momentous task laid out for the conference and declared:

"It can not, it must not, fail."

"Peace is indivisible."

He said Britain had no formal list of amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan.

Asked whether India's conference vote could be considered a second vote for Great Britain, he shot back a quick "No."

To a question whether Britain would put forward any specified proposals on trusteeships, particularly concerning Palestine, Mr. Atlee replied with a definitive negative.

As to whether Britain would back Australia's claim for more representation in a world organization, for the middle-Powers class, Mr. Atlee said he did not see how it was possible to create an organization where "power and responsibility are not commensurate."

Masaryk Plays Safe.

Jan Masaryk, Czech Foreign Minister, stepped off a plane today to say that "little people should be seen and not heard" at the United Nations conference. Beyond this remark, he declined to elaborate on his views toward the meeting opening tomorrow.

He said he was not going to say anything now. Later he might have something to "yowl about," he added.

Mr. Masaryk's nation has a twenty-year alliance with Russian similar to the one recently concluded between Moscow and the Provisional Polish Government, which Czecho-Slovakia recognizes. He was asked whether he thought the Warsaw group should be brought to this conference, as Moscow has demanded.

"I know nothing about it," he replied; "that's rather a leading question."

Stettinius Arrives.

Secretary of State Stettinius arrived today as America's chief delegate to the conference, bringing with him the still unsolved Polish dispute of the Big Three Powers.

He stepped from a silvery four-motored transport plane at 10:50 A. M. and declared that "despite the difficulties that we must meet" the conference will succeed in creating a world peace organization.

Easily the greatest difficulty confronting him is the unity-splitting row over Poland which he, Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia and Foreign Minister Eden of Britain failed to solve in talks in Washington.

However, a statement there indicated that fresh proposals may have been referred to Moscow, thereby putting the next move up to Marshal Stalin.

Molotov Due Later Today.

Mr. Stettinius was followed from the plane by Assistant Secretary of State James C. Dunn and Charles E. Bohlen, the department's liaison with the White House and an expert on Russia.

Messrs. Molotov and Eden, who conferred with Mr. Stettinius in Washington until late last night, and Foreign Minister T. V. Soong of China, were due later in the day.

A prepared statement was issued by Mr. Stettinius's press officer, Homer Byington. The Secretary only grinned when questioned about Poland. The statement said:

"I come to San Francisco with the firm belief that the United Nations are united in their determination to succeed in establishing a world organization. I say this with no wish to minimize the difficulties that we must meet both at this conference and afterward. I say it because I believe all the peaceful peoples of the world demand this of us and the governments represented at this conference must not and will not fail them."

Britain Still Backs Russia's Demand for 3 Assembly Votes

Attlee Makes Reaffirmation at San Francisco —All Five Dominions Will Follow England's Lead.

APR 25 1945

San Francisco, April 24 (A. P.).—Clement Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, announced to more than 400 newspaper men today that Britain will support Russia's demand for three votes in the assembly of the proposed world organization.

Declaring at an extraordinary news conference, "We do not come here as perfectoinists but as grim realists," Mr. Attlee said his country was determined to gain security and would take the best solution it could get.

"Every delegation at this conference," he said, "should bear in mind the power of modern weapons. Any one who has lived as we have lived under bombs, flying bombs and rockets would find they had a powerful stimulant for security."

Mr. Attlee replied to the question of whether Britain would support the Soviet three-vote demand with the words "Oh yes."

Dominions All in Line.

Later it was learned that India, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada—the entire list of British Dominions—would follow Britain's lead.

Mr. Atlee spoke against trying to gain security through dividing the world into regions, with each region governed by its own arrangement or organization. He declared a world pact was the only answer, asserting,

Stettinius Sees Parley Conquering Obstacles

San Francisco, April (AP)—Secretary of State Stettinius arrived today as America's chief delegate to the United Nations conference, bringing with him the still unsolved Polish dispute of the Big Three powers.

Bohlen Along

Stettinius was followed from the plane by Assistant Secretary of State James C. Dunn and Charles E. Bohlen, the department's liaison with the White House and an expert on Russia.

Molotov and Eden, who conferred with Stettinius in Washington until late last night, and Foreign Minister T. V. Sun of China, were due later in the day.

A prepared statement was issued by Stettinius's press officer. The Secretary only grinned when questioned about Poland.

Secretary's Statement

The statement:

"I come to San Francisco with the firm belief that the United Nations are united in their determination to succeed in establishing a world organization.

Oaks And Yalta F.D.R. Memorial?

San Francisco, April 24 (AP)— V. M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar, was reported unofficially tonight to have brought a unique plan to San Francisco to block amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks world organization plan.

The report, which circulated in conference lobbies but was not confirmed by the Russians, said the Soviet Union would suggest that the Dumbarton Oaks and Yalta proposals be dedicated as a memorial to President Roosevelt, and therefore should be left without any important change.

Molotov himself withdrew behind the customary Soviet screen of secrecy immediately after his arrival.

Czech Leader's View Of 'Little People'

San Francisco, April 24 (AP)—Czech Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk stepped off a plane today and said that "little people should be seen and not heard" at the United Nations conference.

Beyond this remark, Masaryk declined to give his views on the United Nations conference. "Later I may have something to yowl about," he said.

Masaryk's nation has a 20-year alliance with Russia similar to the one recently concluded between Moscow and the provisional Polish Government, which Czechoslovakia recognizes.

Tito Frisco Seat Protested

Washington, April 24 (AP)—Constantine Fotitch, former Yugoslavian Ambassador, asserted today the present Yugoslav regime should be barred from the San Francisco conference unless it changes its ways.

Fotitch contended the Tito-Subasic Government in Belgrade had not complied with obligations placed upon it at Yalta, and that it should not participate at San Francisco unless it does.

Free Use Of Army For Peace Urged

San Francisco, April 24 (AP)—The use of United States armed forces to stop aggression without specific congressional approval in each case is favored overwhelmingly by service men represented by the American Veterans Committee, Charles G. Bolte, chairman, said here today.

Bolte, a consultant to the State Department in Washington, heads an AVC group invited to the world security conference as consultants to the United States delegation.

Their presence here is also the result of demands by AVC members serving on world battlefronts, Bolte stated.

The Vets' Program

The committee, a newly formed organization of World War II veterans, recently issued a series of propositions concerning conference problems. As a result of the poll, Bolte said, the committee will urge the following objectives (the percentages by which they were approved are given in parentheses):

1. We favor immediate formation of the united nations organization, with the United States joining before the peace treaties are written (99 per cent).

2. We oppose reservations, made at San Francisco or later in the United States Senate which would weaken the organization, limit its authority or delay its actions (95 per cent).

Yalta Vote Plan Backed

3. We support the use of the United States armed forces to stop aggression, without specific congressional approval in each case (92.5 per cent).

4. We support the broad outlines of the voting within the United Nations security council agreed upon at the Yalta conference (94 per cent).

5. We want the United States delegation at the conference to vote as a unit after settling its policies through consultation (95 per cent).

6. We want as much power as possible placed in the hands of the economic and social council for the purpose of removing the causes of war (97 per cent).

State Department Gets $400,000 For Parley

Washington, April 24 (AP)—A Senate Appropriations subcommittee today authorized the State Department to spend up to $400,000 for expenses of the United Nations meeting opening tomorrow at San Francisco.

Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) said the subcommittee at a special meeting decided to authorize the department to spend up to that amount from its next year's funds on the conference costs.

BRITISH JETS RAID REICH

Report Is First Of Use Against Ground Targets

London, April 24 (AP)—Rocket-firing planes of the RAF and the 2d Tactical Air Force blasted a double line of German motor transports streaming eastward into Berlin today, while heavy Lancaster bombers hammered rail traffic headed for Denmark.

British jet-propelled planes joined with RAF and 2d TAF planes in assaults on enemy airfields in northern Germany. It was the first official announcement that the jet planes, which made their debut against German buzz-bombs last summer, had been used against ground targets.

One squadron leader said all that is left of the German Army seemed to be streaming back into the battered German capital. Flying near Nauen, 15 miles west of Berlin, he said he saw the road jammed with a double column of German vehicles, moving along bumper to bumper. "Every shot was a bull's-eye," he said. "You couldn't miss."

Three Ships Damaged

"In one pass," he added, "I hit three fuel carriers and five ammunition trucks. There was an enormous explosion and the road became a river of fire for more than 100 yards from blazing oil. Four of our aircraft alone destroyed 120 pieces of transport in a few minutes."

First count placed the total bag for the day at well over 200 German vehicles.

Heavy bombers of the United States 8th Air Force, for the third successive day, were not in operation.

Rocket-firing Typhoons also attacked an enemy troop train speeding northward 50 miles northwest of Berlin. Others damaged three enemy ships off the coast in the Bremen-Hamburg area. One 2,000-ton vessel was probably sunk.

RAF Meets Red Planes

RAF Spitfires ranged over Berlin and for the first time met Russian flyers. A group of American pilots contacted Soviet planes last week.

One RAF group captain declared that the entire "eastern end of the city (Berlin) seemed to be on fire."

A squadron of British jet-propelled planes, in their first "party," swooped down at a tremendous speed on the Hordholz airfield, at the mouth of the Elbe, and crippled two parked planes with cannon fire.

Then they mowed into a line of freight cars and oil tankers on a railway siding near by and scored hits on fourteen of them. The jets then re-formed and flew low across the whole length of the enemy airfield, strafing buildings and personnel.

Sides Collapse

"Troops on the ground rushed in all directions in panic," said one flying officer. "Then we spotted a crowd of them trying to get away in a truck. It was packed tight and we chased it down. The sides of the truck collapsed and troops spilled out all over."

The only opposition put up against the jets, by a single flak post, was ineffective.

RAF Temptests hit an airfield across the Danish border and the Flensburg airdromes just south of the frontier, destroying 22 parked planes. Eight other aircraft were shot down in aerial combat during the day by RAF fighters.

Four-motored Lancasters from England made a heavy attack on railways at Bad Oldesloe, 20 miles northeast of Hamburg, in an attempt to hinder any German effort to move Nazi troops into Denmark. Rail routes in the same general area were raked during the night by one of the largest forces of Mosquito bombers ever dispatched.

The Mosquitos attacked 32 northbound trains, hit shipping in Kiel harbor and elsewhere along the ...tic coast, and bombarded enemy ...ps on the north side of Bremen.

Nazi Withdrawal Into Denmark Indicated

London, April 24 (AP)—A large force of Lancasters hit hard today at railway yards at Bad Oldesloe, 20 miles northeast of Hamburg, in a blow to cut off Germans reported withdrawing into Denmark.

Overnight British pilots attacked 32 northbound trains, and reported many Gearmans were trying to pull back into the little northern country.

APR 25 1945

Mosquitos attacked shipping in Kiel, below Denmark, for the fourth time in three nights.

Road, Rail Traffic Heavy

Pilots said traffic on roads and rails into Denmark had been heavy since Monday morning. Troops were seen moving from the Berlin, Bremen and Hamburg areas—all besieged.

Several rail junctions were attacked, including the Rendsburg yards west of Kiel on the main line. Pilots said the trains were filled with troops and that flak was intense. Shipping at Travenmuende, on Luebeck Bay, was hit.

No raiding planes were lost. Two German aircraft were shot down by night fighters on patrol north of Berlin.

Frisian Isle Area Bombed

German shipping around the Frisian Islands and estuaries leading to north German ports also was attacked last night by RAF planes, which have sunk more than 150 small ships and barges in the last seven days.

Southwest of Wangerooge, the most easterly of the Frisian Islands, a group of Typhoons set two 3,000-ton steamers afire and damaged nine smaller vessels and three tugs.

Australian and New Zealand Beaufighter pilots dived between 3,000-foot cliffs in Sogne fjord in Norway and sank a German freighter yesterday.

PLANES TO DROP FOOD TO DUTCH

Eisenhower Warns Germans Not to Attack Aircraft on Errands of Mercy.

LONDON, April 24 — (AP) Gen Eisenhower announced today that the starving Dutch people will be supplied with food by parachutes from hundreds of planes and warned German soldiers they would "have to bear the consequences" if they attacked those planes on their errands of mercy.

In an order broadcast by the Luxembourg radio, the Allied supreme commander told the Nazis that their stubborn resistance in cut-off Holland means starving to death for millions of Dutch people behind your lines."

"In order to relieve the food situation in Holland, the supreme commander has ordered that the Dutch civilian population will be supplied by air," the order said.

x x x "The planes will fly very low and avoid everything that may impair military operations. There will be no bombing, no machine-gunning or other attacks x x x.

"Whoever attacks these low-flying planes x x x will have to bear the consequences himself and will be tried at an appropriate time."

Yanks Feared Held as Hostages.

London, April 24 (A. P.).—New disclosures of Nazi atrocities were made today as western front dispatches reported that the Germans recently had force-marched thousands of American and British prisoners toward Adolf Hitler's redoubt area for possible use as hostages.

An American air force lieutenant liberated by the Third Army troops a few hours before he was going to be executed by the Germans said that he saw a Nazi SS guard shoot two prisoners who collapsed during a march of 12,000 American Air Corps officers toward the Moosburg prison camp near Munich. The lieutenant, whose name may not now be used, was a bombardier-navigator shot down over France in 1944. He said that the guard shot the men and then nonchalantly resumed conversation with other guards, as if nothing had happened.

A leading Paris physician, meanwhile, charged that many French war prisoners were left sterile by brutal treatment in

From the Soviet embassy in London came a report that the advancing Russian armies in Poland had found a Nazi atrocity camp for children, where hundreds of emaciated youngsters were forced to toil on German estates under threat of beatings.

NORSE FEAR NAZIS MAY RUIN COUNTRY

London, April 23 (A. P.).—The Norwegian Government Information Office expressed fear today that the Germans plan a scorched-earth defense of their positions in occupied Norway.

The Germans have every possible landing place along the coast protected with mines, barbed wire, concrete blocks, anti-tank defenses, artillery and powerful anti-aircraft defenses, it said and went on to estimate that 300,000 German troops are still in Norway. The Germans would be more vulnerable to an attack through Denmark or across the Swedish frontier, the statement observed.

Reporting indications that the Germans are preparing to defend Narvik with 40,000 men, the Information Office suggested that southern Norway would probably become their main defense area, with Trondheim, Bergen and Oslo as the key points.

About 300 submarines, a number of destroyers and some other light units, remnants of the German navy, are now in Norwegian waters, and some other units are expected to join them, the statement said.

Lord Haw Haw Warns Britain

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—Lord Haw Haw, the renegade Briton who became a Hitler propagandist, said today in a broadcast over the Hamburg and Bremen radios that the war "has found its climax" in the battle for Berlin now being fought "between the rugged ruins of what was a great capital." He then warned Britain: "Should Bolshevism win, neither the Rhine nor the Channel will give England protection against it."

London, April 24 (AP)—Britain's thanks for release of British prisoners of war from German camps in the path of the American advances are "being conveyed to General Eisenhower," Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today. The members cheered.

House Of Lords Needs Woman Member, Says Lady Astor

APR 25 1945

London, April 24 (AP)—American-born Lady Astor asked Prime Minister Churchill at a Parliamentary press gallery luncheon yesterday "to make my blood a little bluer because I think it is about time women entered the House of Lords."

DAY

The jocular remark by the first woman ever to sit in Britain's House of Commons drew shouts of laughter from those attending the luncheon, at which the Prime Minister was honor guest.

"Something To Give"

"I believe I've something to give the House of Lords," Lady Astor continued. "I'm not certain they want what I've got, but I'm certain that the women of the country would like me to give them something of what I have got."

She recalled that when she succeeded her husband as a member of Parliament 25 years ago the press thought it was a joke. When she spoke up boldly for temperance and espoused other causes in which women were interested, the press "thought it was a bad joke," she added.

Lady Astor said she knew it must have made the members of Parliament uncomfortable to see a woman elected after 600 years.

Churchill Chuckled

"But I understood that and went on making it more and more uncomfortable," she declared as Churchill and the other guests chuckled again.

Lady Astor described the Prime Minister as "a bonny fighter" and declared "he's very English—he never bears a grudge."

Churchill's remarks were off the record.

British War Costs Top 109 Billions

London, April 24 (AP)—Britain has spent $109,600,000,000 during the war, paying roughly 50 per cent of the expenses year by year, Sir John Anderson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told Commons today.

Through taxation and savings, he said, at least 42 per cent of the entire personal income in Britain has been marshaled to meet Government expenses, which in the 1944-45 fiscal year exceeded $24,000,000,000 for the first time in history.

The income tax alone brought in $5,268,000,000 during the year—$68,000,000 more than the previous year—Sir John said, lauding the pay-as-you-earn plan as a "great boon to the employé."

Treaty With U.S.

A treaty has been signed with the United States, he disclosed, with the view of providing relief from double taxation in cases where both countries have tax claims.

"This treaty covers all income liable for tax in both countries and contains some provisions in regard to dividends, interest, royalties, rents and income from employment," he said.

It was especially designed to help "that part of industry which in the future will be so vital to the welfare of this country—that concerned with our exports," he added.

1944-45 Expenditures

The 1944-45 expenditures were more than $504,000,000 over the budget estimate for the fiscal year, Sir John said, adding that new estimates "may possibly have to be superceded before the year is out."

The Government submitted a 1945-46 "victory" budget calling for $18,000,000,000. Sir John estimated that the country's total expenditure during the fiscal year would reach $22,260,000,000—$2,000,000,000 less than for 1944-45.

Sir John held out no hope of relief in taxation, asserting that he could not afford to indulge in "excessive optimism," and warned:

"The burden of war is still upon us and it would be highly dangerous that there should be a greater pressure of purchasing power on the market, because there would be no corresponding increases of supply," he said.

Tass Denies Report Yanks Reached Berlin

London, Wednesday, April 25 (AP). The Moscow radio said today Tass, the official Soviet news agency, had been authorized to deny the truth of a report in Drew Pearson's syndicated Washington column that American advance patrols reached Berlin April 13 but withdrew because Premier Stalin protested.

This report "is completely not in accord with the facts and is an invention from beginning to end," the broadcast Tass dispatch said.

Nazi Leader Reported Killed

London, April 24 (AP)—The South German radio said today that Kolz von Berg, district leader of Bayreuth, had been killed while defending his district capital.

Allies To Keep Hold Of Nazi Fanatics

London, April 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill disclosed in Commons today that the Allies intend to keep all German commissioned and non-commissioned officers and known Nazis of lesser rank interned while any guerrilla warfare exists in Germany.

Asked if he would make such a recommendation to the Allies, the Prime Minister replied: "I have never heard that the Allies ever had any other intention."

Nearly one third of the German prisoners in British camps have been classified as "ardent Nazis," who are segregated as soon as discovered, said War Secretary Sir James Grigg.

Sir James said there were 196,000 German prisoners in Britain, 27,000 of them in American hands.

Josephine Baker Arrives In London

London, Wednesday, April 25 (AP). Josephine Baker, American singer and dancer, arrived today to entertain British troops and war workers.

NINE JAP SHIPS SUNK IN DAY BY BRITISH SUB

LONDON, April 24.—(AP) The British submarine H.M.S. Storm has climaxed a year of daring exploits along Japanese supply routes by sinking nine ships in one day, the Admiralty said today in announcing her return to home waters.

Commanded by Lt. C. P. Young, 31, the Storm is credited with sinking a total of 20 enemy supply ships, a destroyer and four escort vessels and damaging several others.

Commons Cheer As Big Ben Is Lighted Again

London, April 24 (AP)—Members of the House of Commons cheered tonight when the light over Big Ben was snapped on for the first time in 5 years, 7 months and 23 days.

The lantern over the clock—traditional sign that Commons was in session—was doused in 1939 by the war's blackout restrictions, lifted yesterday.

Prison Camp Probers Leave For German Sites

Paris, April 24 (AP)—A group of United States Senators and Representatives which plans to investigate German prison camp atrocities left Paris by plane today for Germany.

Members of the group which arrived in France by plane yesterday include: Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.), Representative R. Ewing Thomason (D., Texas), Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), Senator Albert W. Barkley (D., Ky.), Representative James W. Mott (R., Ore.), Representative James P. Richards (D., S.C.), Representative Edward V. Izac (Cal.), Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Neb.), Senator C. Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.), and Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio).

General Eisenhower had urged that members of Congress make an inspection of German prison camps.

Hitler Reported At Helm In Berlin

London, April 24 (AP)—The Hamburg radio declared tonight that the whole population of Berlin was engaged in the bloody battle for the capital and that Adolf Hitler himself was making the decisions.

"They know that the Führer is among them," said the propaganda broadcast. "They defend not only the capital of Germany but also the Führer himself."

Gauleiter Paul Joseph Goebbels meanwhile issued a proclamation calling on the people of Berlin to stand fast and promised "forces considerable strength are being brought up to help the defenders of the city. Until they arrive we must draw on our strength and will power to hold out against the enemy."

The Hamburg broadcast said Goebbels was in Berlin with Hitler and that the Führer was surrounded by his "closest military collaborators."

"In almost hourly discussions," the Nazi radio said, "the chief of the German general staff and the commander of Berlin are reporting to the Führer himself about the situation. Hitler himself is making the necessary decisions as to how the available forces are being used. He decided the distribution of reinforcements and employment of troops. . . . All those who saw him agree that he is full of vitality and the will to master the situation."

HITLER ABANDONS BERLIN TO RETURN TO SOUTHERN FORT

LONG

PARIS, April 24 — (AP) Adolf Hitler apparently has abandoned the crumpling shell of his former capital, Berlin, for the hideway safety of Berchtesgaden, the nearest thing to a seat of government the Reich has left.

The Hamburg radio boasted that the Fuehrer remained in Berlin directing the fight against the crushing Russian armies.

Yanks Assault Redoubt

That was unlikely—how unlikely is best demonstrated on the American front where the whole weight of the assault shifted abruptly to the southeast and already is battering against the outer ramparts of Nazidom's final fortress in the mountains from Lake Constance to Berchtesgaden itself.

The changed direction of the assault reflected clearly a belief that by getting into the Nazi nest there now, it might be possible to cut off the "head of the snake" and thus sooner stop its tail from thrashing in western Holland, the north German ports, Denmark and Norway.

It was regarded as hardly likely that Hitler would have stocked his southern redoubt, moved his government there office by office, and ordered his henchmen and war criminal-doomed SS (Elite Guard) members to rally there unless he expected to make it his final stand.

Weeks ago government agencies and offices were moved to Thuringia but the American drive through the middle of the Reich forced them to flee again. This time the whole administration went into the Bavarian redoubt.

As Nazi propagandists continued to insist that Hitler remained in blazing Berlin to "conquer or die," Allied and neutral sources guessed instead that he might just vanish into legend as a Nazi diety or turn up either in Bavaria or Norway to carry on the struggle.

NIGHT

In London, the press joined in a guessing game unparalleled since the "where's Hitler?" whirligig during the months-long period of the Fuehrer's silence following the attempt on his life last July. Most rumors came from Stockholm, Zurich and continental radios.

Moscow took it calmly. Dispatches from Stalin's capital said the Red army had orders to take Hitler alive if possible—if he was found in Berlin. The Moscow radio indicated a belief that Hitler had gone to Bavaria to gather in the remaining Nazi faithful and organize a "children's army."

Hitler Receives Youth Leader

"Hitler received the Hitler youth leader Arthur Axmann at his secret headquarters a few days ago," said this Russian broadcast, "and ordered him to recruit at once 50,000 children who are to be brought to the Bavarian redoubt and there trained and organized into death battalions. This recruiting is going on under the guise of mass evacuation."

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen, said Hitler still was in Berlin Sunday night and indicated belief in reports that he would stay there to the finish. Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler also was still there Sunday, the paper added.

The Swiss press said Hitler had gone to Salzberg and interpreted Nazi protestations that he had remained in Berlin as "a plot to facilitate Hitler's vanishing without a trace." The Swiss also theorized that if he left a double to remain behind and die, a heroic legend would accrue to Hitler.

Continental Europe buzzed with rumors about "ghost trains" in which leading Nazis were reported traveling to various havens.

The Nazi version was reiterated today by prapagandist Dr. Otto Kriegk on the Hamburg radio.

"Everybody knows," he said, "that the Fuehrer is standing in the midst of the German capital commanding defense forces which the Russians cannot yet estimate."

Kriegk also parroted Paul Joseph Goebbels' theory that after Berlin's fall the Nazis would fight on for "that other bastion of Europe against Bolshevism — Prague and the areas of Bohemia and Moravia."

If Hitler has gone to his Bavarian hideout it is doubtful whether he will flee again. There is no place else to go.

There, in the final collapse of the mountain fortress, he may be: captured and brought to trial before a world tribunal of justice; assassinated in a final breakup of his cornered henchmen; or found dead by his own hand in a last bid for martyrdom.

FOOD SITUATION IS ACUTE IN RUHR

KENNEDY

APR 25 1945

PARIS, April 24—(AP) Maj. Gen. G. W. R. Templer, chief of the military government section of the British Twenty First Army group, faced with the problem of feeding 4,000,000 Germans in the Ruhr, said today: "There is not enough food in the world to feed them all. There is no use in pretending there is."

Templer has been telling the Germans in the Ruhr area to plant "all the seeds that they can and plant them wherever they can to keep from starving" this winter.

The highly industrialized Ruhr valley with its concentrated population lacks transportation to bring in supplies, he said.

The section of the Ruhr occupied by the British and the Canadians is suffering from an overflow of displaced persons, mostly Russians, and these people are giving the military government a lot of trouble, the general said.

The problem of handling these liberated slave workers and the prisoners of war is so great that the military government cannot hope to control the situation for some time.

"The Germans brought these people into Germany and they can take the consequences for a few days," General Templer said.

Templer said some of these bands of displaced persons have obtained arms and waged a sort of guerrilla warfare, even occupying several towns. These persons are living off the land and complicating the already overtaxed AMG forces' tasks.

"The Americans and the British are controlling two thirds of Germany," Templer said. "We are finding absolutely nothing left except the corpse of a nation which committed suicide."

Petain Enroute to France To Stand Trial as Traitor

APR 25 1945

MORIN

PARIS, April 24—(AP) Tired, old Marshal Petain entered Switzerland today—his 89th birthday—and tonight the French government announced that formal arrangements had been completed for returning the Vichy chief of state to France to stand trial on charges of treason.

"For reasons of decency" the government communique said correspondents would not be permitted to witness Petain's surrender to the French government and for that reason the place and date of his surrender would not be announced.

APR 25 1945

Two Vichyites Refused

Two of Petain's Vichyite leaders —Pierre Laval and Marcel Deat— sought sanctuary during the day in neutral countries but were refused. Laval, chief of government, appeared at the frontier of Liechtenstein. Deat, Petain's minister of state and labor and ardent pro-German, was denied admission by the Swiss.

King Leopold of Belgium, who surrendered to the Germans in May, 1940, was expected to arrive in Switzerland soon, indicating that the crumbling Nazi regime was permitting many of its famous hostages to leave—possibly through some understanding with the Allied governments.

NIGHT

Gen. De Gaulle, once sentenced to death in Absentia by a Vichy military court in Clermont-Ferrand, may testify against Petain. At the time of the verdict against De Gaulle the present French leader declared: "I consider the act of the Vichy men as void. I shall have an explanation with them after the victory."

Before the Allies invaded France De Gaulle publicly had termed the aged Petain an "evangel of decadence," and branded Laval and other Vichyites as a "band of traitors."

The French foreign office announced that Switzerland had notified the De Gaulle government of the Marshal's arrival and that Petain had requested permission to pass through Swiss territory in order to surrender himself as a prisoner at the French frontier.

The French communique announced that Petain would be summoned to appear for his treason trial May 17—the date set today by the ministry of justice—before news of Petain's surrender was received here—but that the erstwhile proxy hearing would be postponed then to give him time to prepare his defense.

A government spokesman disclosed that the Germans originally applied to the Swiss government for permission for Petain to pass through Swiss territory.

The Marshal and his wife arrived at the Swiss-Austrian frontier shortly before 9 a. m. He remained in his car during the hour-long frontier proceedings but waved to the crowd as he left tiny Saint Margarethen for Saint Gallen where he presently is staying until he leaves for France.

France Electrified by News

France was electrified by the news of the Marshal's arrival in Switzerland and of his plans to stand trial.

Few Frenchmen had ever expected that the former hero of Verdun whose troops successfully stood off 80 of Germany's best divisions in the First World War, and who coined the famous slogan "they shall not pass," would ever stand in the docket. But they had eagerly awaited the public reading of his private papers.

The charge of high treason against Petain is based on probably the largest Dossier ever compiled against any accused person in France. Thousands of documents, official communications, letters and records of his correspondence with the Germans will be introduced.

The prosecution, headed by Andre Mornet, said Petain's dossier would show the whole story of events immediately leading up to the fall of France and the record of what occurred thereafter—most of which has not been disclosed.

The prosecution also said the Dossier would show with almost complete accuracy the extent to which the French collaborationists acted on direct orders from him.

It also was known that the prosecution would attempt to prove that Petain was in communication with the Nazis even before the war.

Gen. De Gaulle himself may be called upon to testify since he was present at the stormy session in June, 1940, when Petain announced he was going to sue for an armistice. The Marshal was adamant when De Gaulle and other military leaders argued that the French army still was capable of holding a large section of France, especially the Brittany coast.

Arrangements Made For Petain Return

APR 25 1945

MORIN

Paris, April 24—Formal arrangements to return Marshal Henri Petain, former Vichy chief of state, to France have been completed, the Government announced late today.

A communiqué declared "Marshal Petain has asked the Swiss Government for permission to pass through Swiss territory in order to surrender himself as a prisoner at the French frontier.

"The Swiss Government has notified the French Government, and the French Government is fixing the place and date where the transfer of Marshal Petain will be made."

DAY

Petain will be summoned to appear at a trial May 17, as scheduled, but the hearing will be postponed to give him time to prepare a defense. Earlier today the Ministry of Justice had announced Petain would be tried by proxy, and the date had been set.

Accompanied By Wife

The news that Petain was returning electrified France. The aged Marshal is being accompanied by his wife and "some officers."

Andre Mornet was named prosecutor Petain's trial on a charge of treason.

The charge is based on probably largest dossier ever compiled against any accused Frenchmen. Thousands of documents, official communications, letters and records of his correspondence with the Germans will be introduced.

In short, the whole story of events immediately leading up to the fall of France and the record—most of which has not been disclosed—of what occurred thereafter will be given to the world.

Communication With Foe

Moreover, it is known that the prosecution will attempt to prove that Pétain was in communication with the Germans even before the war. That part of the dossier is being kept secret.

After the fall of France it was repeatedly asserted that Pétain, who in 1930 served as Ambassador Extraordinary to Spain, was an intimate of a former German ambassador to Madrid.

On this point, especially, the French are anxious to hear his own testimony.

Reason For Proxy Plan

The trial by proxy, a legal institution in France, was prepared and scheduled for hearing for three main reasons:

1. It is the crowning effort in a long and somber process of "purging" French collaborators, a majority of whom said they merely took orders from Pétain.

2. It is designed to dispel belief that Pétain was "a confused but honest old man who made a mistake."

3. Decision of the French Government to prove to the world and especially the United States that France was betrayed by a small clique, of which Pétain was the chief—not that the French nation as such quit in the face of the German attack.

Starvation Seen For Ruhr

Paris, April 24 (AP)—Four million Germans in the Ruhr face starvation next winter, Maj. Gen. G. W. R. Templer, chief of the military government of Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Group, said today.

"There isn't enough food in the world to go around and there is no use pretending there is," the General said. "I am telling the Germans by every available means that they had better get all the seeds they can and plant them wherever they can to keep from starving."

Templer said the highly industrialized Ruhr Valley with its great concentration of population and lack of transportation would offer a most serious problem.

Displaced Persons

He said hordes of displaced persons, largely Russian and Poles, were swarming along roads living off the countryside in areas occupied by the British and Canadian armies. Some, he said, they were engaged in looting, raping and murder, while they were outside military government control.

The problem of handling these liberated laborers and war prisoners is so great that the military government cannot hope to control the situation fully for some time, Templer said.

Minor Military Operations

"The Germans brought these people into Germany and they can take the consequences for a few days," the General added. In some cases, bands of displaced persons have obtained small arms and are engaged in minor military operations. Some have captured towns which they control. Others have installed themselves in farmhouses and are living off the land.

"The military government's job in Germany is infinitely bigger and more complicated than anyone thought," Templer said. "It had been thought that the Germans eventually would surrender and that at least local government organizations would be intact. Their continuance of the fight has stripped the country of all semblance of government in the occupied areas."

1,000,000 Captives Taken in April

PARIS, April 24 (AP)—The Allies' bag of German prisoners during April already has passed the million mark with six more days left in the month. From April 1 to April 22 inclusive, 992,578 prisoners were tallied. It is estimated that more than 20,000 were captured yesterday.

Swiss Expect Léopold

PARIS, April 24 (AP)—King Léopold of Belgium, who surrendered to the Germans in May, 1940, is expected to arrive in Switzerland soon—an indication that the crumbling German regime was permitting many of its famous hostages to leave—possibly through some understanding with the Allies.

Sacha Guitry Seeks Divorce

APR 25 1945

Paris, April 24 (A. P.).—Court files today listed a divorce suit of Sacha Guitry, 67-year-old French actor, against the former Genevieve De Serevilla, 24, whom he married July 4, 1939. It is scheduled for a hearing next week. This would be the fourth divorce for Guitry.

Paris Court Condemns Jew-Baiter To Death

Paris, April 24 (AP)—For the first time in its history the Paris Court of Justice today condemned a woman to death.

She was Madame Virgine Guiroux, convicted of denouncing a French Jewess to the Germans during the occupation. The Jewess was taken to Germany and presumably executed.

SCHUSCHNIGG HELD KILLED

Ex-Chancellor Of Austria Said To Have Died April 15

WANT

Flossenburg Concentration Camp, Germany, April 24 (AP)—Austria's former chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg has been slain by the Nazis, and Germany's finance minister, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, has been taken to the notorious Dachau concentration camp, freed prisoners told the United States 90th Infantry Division today after it liberated this camp.

Schuschnigg, held in custody by Hitler since Germany took over Austria in 1938, was reported killed—probably by hanging—on April 15. Schacht, Germany's most famous financier, was reported taken from Flossenburg to Dachau along with some 13,000 other captives at the time Schuschnigg was slain.

Wife Taken To Dachau

The prisoners said Schacht was arrested after the plot against Hitler failed last July.

[Editor's Note: Schacht's brother, Dr. Eddy Schacht, said last week that the financier had been arrested and held in Gestapo headquarters in Berlin. But Dr. (the brother) believed Schacht already had been killed, either by the Gestapo or by Allied bombings of Berlin in February.]

NIGHT

Among those taken to Dachau, liberated prisoners said, were Schuschnigg's wife, the former Countess Vera Fugger von Babenhausen, and their small daughter and Col. Jack Churchill, famous British commando officer captured while fighting with Marshal Tito's Partisans in Yugoslavia more than a year ago.

12,500 Killed Since '38

The 90th freed 1,600 political prisoners at this camp 9 miles northeast of Weiden, but was told there were 15,000 in the camp just a week before. Survivors said 12,500 prisoners had been starved to death, hanged, shot or killed by injection since the camp was established in 1938.

Pierre Bertrand, French underground worker who was arrested in Paris in January, 1943, and was employed in the Flossenburg records office for the past two years, [illegible] Schusc[illegible] Page 2 death. His story was corro[illegible]d by others among the Russi[illegible]olish, French, Czech, Belgian [illegible] German prisoners.

Had Age[illegible] reatly

The one-time Austrian leader and his family were brought here six months ago and given special quarters and special privileges. Bertrand said Schuschnigg aged greatly under his confinement.

The night of April 15, Bertrand said, Schuschnigg and Schacht, handcuffed together, were led into the camp's administration building. Later Schacht returned alone. The following morning a French dentist, who recognized Schuschnigg's body, was ordered to remove the gold fillings from the former chancellor's teeth and a crematory attendant who also knew Schuschnigg, was instructed to burn the body.

Bertrand said he did not know how Schuschnigg was slain but that evidence pointed to hanging.

Yanks Reported Hanged

The prisoners said thirteen American paratroopers were hanged near the camp April 1 and their bodies burned in the camp crematory. A Heidelberg medical student said he was ordered to cut down the bodies and send them to the crematory.

Some prisoners who previously had been held in the notorious Buchenwald camp near Weimar declared that Flossenburg was much worse because the food ration was less. They said most of the deaths at Flossenburg resulted from starvation.

They reported that 5,000 prisoners made a forced march in six days from Buchenwald, spent two days trying to recuperate at Flossenburg and then were headed out again in the direction of Dachau.

Ovens Still Burning

The Flossenburg camp was discovered by a patrol from the 358th Regiment commanded by Lieut. Col. Jacob W. Bealke, Jr., Sullivan, Mo. Leaders of the patrol were Capt. Charles W. Watson, New Lebanon, Ohio, and Lieut. William B. Kilpatrick, Paris, Texas.

The patrol found the crematory ovens still burning with eight bodies alongside waiting their turn. Nearby the Americans found a huge pile of victim's shoes, many of them worn through.

The camp was surrounded by three barbed wire fences, the outer one electrically charged. It was closed to outsiders a few hours after the liberation because 800 of the prisoners were suffering from typhus, 90 from tuberculosis, 2 from diphtheria and 2 from scarlet fever. All 1,600 were suffering from malnutrition.

Women Freed At Belsen Tell Of Nazi Torture

Naked Men and Women Paraded in Bitter Cold, Dogs Turned on Victims

BELSEN CONCENTRATION CAMP, Germany, April 23 (Delayed) (AP).—Prison courtyards of Nazi atrocity camps were torture arenas, rivaling those of the days of Nero, where dogs were turned in to rip the clothes from defenseless prisoners and naked men and women were paraded together in the bitter cold, liberated inmates of this camp said today.

A group of women who had been held in Belsen camp today described Nazi tortures—the flogging of women's breasts, lashing of the soles of feet, forced prostitution, the use of human beings for vivisection experiments—which they declared were "enjoyed" by Nazi women S.S. (Elite Guard) members as well as Germanmen.

The things the prisoners endured, at Belsen and at camps in which they were interned before they reached Belsen, said Veronica Molnar, a beautiful Jewish girl, "the people of England and America will not believe."

Dogs Set Upon Jews

Irene Goldberg said that she had been in a prison in Warsaw, her home, for two months. Every day the S. S. guards brought a Jew into the courtyard and set dogs upon him. The dogs ripped the clothes from the man while the others watched. Occasionally the guards would enter the women's cells and lash them with whips.

On Christmas Eve, 1941, at Auschwitz, Alexandra Dutiewic, of Warsaw, said, the Germans erected a huge Christmas tree in the center of the camp. Then the S. S. guards gathered together a group of half-dressed gentile women and made them stand at attention in the bitter cold while truck loads of naked Jewish men and women were paraded around the compound several times.

Mrs. Goldberg was arrested because the Germans believed she was a link in the anti-Nazi underground. Her son was taken from her in the Warsaw ghetto and killed. She said that she had survived because of a tattooed triangle on her left arm which indicated that she could be traced by documentary evidence.

Had Never Believe Stories

Billi Wadowska, of Paris, said that she had never believed the stories concerning Nazi concentration camps until she found herself in one.

"For two years," she said, "I have not been easy or quiet for one moment, and I still cannot rest. I wake up from my sleep screaming in terror."

Jane Eisner Heks, of Prague, who said she was a niece of Irma Uosmyk, of Chicago, and who had been at Belsen two weeks after working in a labor gang at Hamburg, clearing the bomb-damaged streets, said: "We used to tell each other that God would help us. And then after a while we began to doubt that even God could help us."

The women said that all the clothes they had consisted of one thin dress. They had no underwear and no shoes.

"We stood dressed like that in the bitter cold," Veronica Molnar said. "They could not break us, but only the young could stand it. The old and the sick—for them there was only death."

Maria Hollaendar, of Hungary, whose father was beaten to death by the Germans because he would not tell where he had hidden his wealth, said suddenly: "I feel no hate."

There was a gasp of astonishment from the other women.

"I cannot feel hate," she said. "I don't believe I can feel any emotion—hate, love, affection or anything."

She meant it, but later she was laughing and asking if it were possible to get word of her safety to her fiance in Hungary.

BRITISH LAUNCH BREMEN ASSAULT

WITH THE BRITISH THIRD DIVISION ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF BREMEN, Wednesday, April 25.—(AP) The battle for Bremen opened at one minute before midnight last night as a roaring line of Buffaloes (amphibious vehicles), carrying British assault troops, splashed into the flooded flats northeast of Brinkum toward the suburbs of the great port of Bremen.

Field artillery laid down a heavy barrage for more than an hour ahead of the attack while far to the left the 51st Highland division fought what it called a "Chinese battle," firing every available weapon from rifles to field guns into Bremen itself to pin down any enemy forces there.

The flashes of the guns punctuated the brilliantly moonlit sky and the horizon was banded by lazy red arcs of tracers fired from pairs of bofors guns.

Planes already had done their part, medium bombers pasting Berlin in the forenoon and rocket-firing typhoons blasting it again in the late afternoon. Fires were flaming in the city as the attack began.

A brigadier said the battle might prove "sticky," but that with luck the Third Division could win quick control of the southeastern entrances to the besieged port which lies astride the river Weser.

SPAATZ, 20 OFFICERS HONORED BY FRANCE

UNITED STATES STRATEGIC AIR FORCES HEADQUARTERS, France, April 24 (AP)—The Legion of Honor, grand officer rank, was awarded today by the French Government to Gen. Carl Spaatz, senior American air commander in the European theatre.

The award, the second highest that can be bestowed by the French Government, was presented at a colorful ceremony before a picturesque country château, where rawards were also conferred upon twenty members of General Spaatz' staff "for exceptional services rendered in the course of the campaign for the liberation of France."

Terrified Nazi Civilians Choke Roads Leading to Yank Lines

By HAL BOYLE

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY ON THE MULDE RIVER, April 24—(AP) Thousands of panic-stricken German civilians tried to flee across the American lines all day today as Marshal Ivan S. Konev's Soviet troops neared a junction with Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army along the Mulde river line.

A staff officer said flatly at 9 p. m. tonight (3 p. m., E. W. T.) that there had been no linkup yet of the two Allies on the First Army front.

Burning villages and columns of refugees told a story of steady progress by the Russians despite last ditch delaying resistance from the Nazis, attempting to hold open the corridor between the Elbe and the Mulde rivers.

Aerial observers of the Second Infantry division reported sighting an unidentified column which they believed to be Russian only a short distance from advanced American positions.

"I saw shells landing in one town and a little later saw buildings on fire and then vehicles entering the town," said Lt. Col. Kenneth E. Belieu, Portland, Ore., first American observer to watch the Russians pound their way toward the long-awaited meeting.

Combat troops believe the junction will follow tomorrow and probably will be at several points as the Russians move in strength toward the positions the Americans have been holding for days.

Cub planes reported sighting freshly dug trenches on the west side of the Elbe where suicidal German garrisons were reported trying to hold up the advancing Russians as long as possible to enable most of the German army units to retreat and surrender to the Americans who they believe, prisoners have said, will give them better treatment.

Released Allied prisoners of war began streaming back by the hundreds along every road leading toard the Yank lines. French, British and American prisoners were trudging on foot and riding every type of vehicle they could commandeer along the way—wheelbarrows, carts, bicycles, horse-drawn wagons and motor cars and buses decorated with Allied flags and painted signs.

In this motley pilgrimage from "No Man's Land" were thousands of rebellious and rioting "slave laborers," Nazi soldier deserters who had broken or thrown away their weapons and turned their backs on both Berlin and Moscow in favor of prisoner of war cages.

Terror-stricken German families, fed for years on Nazi propaganda that the Soviets would rape and pillage their way through the Reich if unchecked, also left their farms and homes carrying with them only enough food to get them across the Mulde.

APR 25 1945

The German civilians ran into stern rebuffs at the American front line outposts of the Second Infantry division.

"We have been turning German civilians back," said Lt. Col. D. P. Christensen, Washington, D. C. "They're running away from the Russians and we don't want them behind our lines."

The prize "refugee" in the Second Division prisoner pen was a German general who apparently won the race to safety over many of his troops.

One column of 155 escaped Allied prisoners marched in under command of a British officer. Most of the soldiers were French.

"We have been marching for five days steadily—and we could always hear the Russian artillery shelling the German village just behind us," they reported.

Northeast of Leipzig cub planes reported long lines of frightened German civilians on the roads in a triangle bounded by Duben, Mulde and Eilenburg.

In the 69th division's sector east of Leipzig, hundreds more British and other Allied war prisoners crossed into American-occupied territory and here again German civilians tried to make it over the "frontier" before the Russian armored spearheads slashed through to make a junction.

9th Also Bags One

U.S. 9th Army on the Elbe, Germany, April 24 (AP) — The Show Horse (8th Armored) Division of the United States 9th Army captured the commanding general of the newly annihilated German 11th SS Panzer Army in the Harz Mountain trap, it was disclosed today.

His chief of staff and several SS men patrolling the mountain region also were taken. Their names were not disclosed.

NAZIS HIJACK AND SLUG YANKS

On the Elbe, Germany, April 24 (A. P.).—Three German soldiers waylaid three American soldiers, shot them in the back and donned their uniforms, the American Ninth Army announced today. One of the Americans was a medical officer. The Americans were ambushed while riding in a jeep. After capturing the Americans, the Germans, one an SS trooper, took them inside a house, turned their faces to a wall and opened fire. The Nazis then started roaming the rear area in the jeep.

The dispatch did not say whether the Germans had been captured.

PETAIN SAYS NAZIS HELD HIM CAPTIVE

THOMAS HAWKINS

BERN, April 24 — (AP) His eyes filled with tears and declaring he had been a prisoner of the Nazis, Marshal Petain, once the hero of France, entered Switzerland today, ready to surrender himself to the French for trial on charges of high treason.

While his one-time premier, Pierre Laval, tried to enter Switzerland through Liechtenstein and was refused, as was Marcel Deat, former Vichy minister of state and labor, 89-year-old Petain was permitted to come in — subject to the normal Swiss internment rules.

"The fact that today on my 89th birthday I find myself on Swiss territory is the most beautiful birthday present I could have wished for," said the Marshal, adding: Long live Switzerland."

"I was dragged into Germany by SS troopers," the Marshal continued, "and I have always regarded my stay at Sigmaringen as real involuntary imprisonment."

Petain entered Switzerland at Saint Margarethen, a small village of 3,700 inhabitants on the Swiss-Austrian frontier. He and his wife rode in the first car of a nine-car convoy which had left Sigmaringen two days ago. He wore civilian clothes with a grey topcoat.

The Petain party was accompanied to the Swiss border by a carload of German SS troopers who turned back at the border.

The Marshal remained in his automobile during the hour-long negotiations at the frontier but waved to the crowd as he and his party departed for Saint Gallen, where they will remain until he surrenders to French authorities.

In the Marshal's party were a daughter and son-in-law and Gen. Marie Eugene Debeney, commander of the French First army in the First World war and a close confidant of Petain.

The dramatic appearance of the aged Marshal and his offer to surrender has presented the French with a most delicate problem for there is no doubt Petain still has a large following among the French people, and Frenchmen here said the situation was "embarrassing."

With the French government involved in a difficult transition period the return of one of France's greatest First World war heroes to stand trial in a court of justice could inspire political difficulties.

Marshal Petain On Way Back For Trial

Bern, April 24 (AP)—Aged Marshal Petain entered Switzerland from Germany today after declaring himself willing to stand trial in France. King Leopold of Belgium, who surrendered to the Germans in 1940, was expected to reach the Swiss border some time during the day.

Pierre Laval, arch collaborationist of the Vichy regimé, appeared at the border of near-by Leichtenstein, but was refused entry. Laval is under a death sentence imposed by a Marseille court which convicted him in absentia last fall on a charge of having had "intelligence with the enemy."

Marcel Deat, who was Minister of State and Labor in the Vichy Government, arrived at the Swiss frontier during the day but was refused entry by the Swiss.

Will Surrender To French

Petain, who observed his 89th birthday today, was allowed to enter Switzerland after asking and receiving official permission to cross the neutral country into France to surrender himself to French authorities.

The arrival of Pétain and the expectation that King Leopold would reach Switzerland during the day indicated that the collapsing N. regime had permitted its potent hostages to leave—possibly throu some understanding with the Allgovernments concerned.

It was known that the Allied governments had been informed in advance of Pétain's coming and presumably gave their consent.

In Nine-Car Convoy

Pétain arrived at the Swiss border town of Saint Margarethen by automobile in a nine-car convoy. He was in the first car with his wife.

The aged Marshal did not leave his automobile during the border deliberations, which required about an hour.

Dressed in civilian clothes with a gray topcoat, he seemed tired.

However, he waved to the crowd as he drove away to St. Gallen, where he and his party presently are housed.

One car of German SS troopers, presumably escorting the Marshal, turned back at the border.

Daughter Along

A daughter and son-in-law of the aged marshal followed in a second car of the convoy.

Gen. Marie Eugene Debeney, commander of the French 1st Army in the First World War and a close confidant of Pétain, was among those in the party.

(The Vichy radio reported November 10, 1943, that Debeney had died of wounds suffered two months previously when French guerrillas hid a bomb in his automobile.)

Trial Set For May 17

Saint Margarethen, on the Austrian frontier, is a village of 3,700 persons. Pétain's party had come from Sigmaringen to find a safe entry.

Pétain is scheduled to go on trial in Paris May 17. French followers of General de Gaulle in Switzerland say they believe that Pétain will be shot, since otherwise war-guilt trials could not continue against his subordinates.

Speculation Rampant

However, all the French made clear that Pétain's dramatic arrival with an offer to surrender was embarrassing.

The return to Paris of one of France's greatest figures of the first World War to stand trial would revive old wounds and create new breaks in party alignments in France.

Speculation was rampant whether Pétain might not make a great effort to clear himself and whether a large part of the French population which stuck by him after 1940 still would continue to support him.

There was speculation also whether Pétain might be left in Switzerland by the French to avoid the political embarrassments of his presence at the trial. It is generally expected, however, that he will continue to France in the shortest possible time.

The party left Sigmaringen two days ago. It was forced to travel slowly because of disrupted highway communications, guards, Allied air-raids and the general impossibility of getting anywhere quickly in collapsing Germany.

"Beautiful Present"

Petain, his eyes filled with tears as he entered Switzerland, was subject to normal Swiss internment rules, but was shown courtesy as an old man and an army officer.

"The fact that today, on my 89th birthday, I find myself on Swiss territory is the most beautiful birthday present I could wish for," he said. "Long live Switzerland.

"I was dragged into Germany by SS troopers and by force. I have always regarded my stay at Sigmaringen as real involuntary imprisonment."

Method Not Known

[The dispatch did not indicate how Petain had managed to make good his flight from Germany. On at least one occasion since he went into the Reich he was reported in custody of the Gestapo. He has been head of a puppet French régime set up by the Nazis in Sigmaringen, Germany.]

[A Reuter dispatch said today that the members of the former Japanese legation to the Vichy Government have also entered Swiss territory and are at present staying at St. Gall.]

AMERICAN FIFTH LEAPS PO RIVER

Allied Forces Capture Ferrara, La Spezia and Modena in Swift Attacks.

ROME, April 24 — (AP) U. S. Fifth Army troops poured across the Po river today and other Allied troops captured La Spezia, Modena and Ferrara, shattering a 125-miles defense line across the Italian peninsula.

Forty thousand prisoners and large quantities of supplies and material have fallen to the Allied spring offensive.

Nazi Position Critical

The German position in Italy appeared critical tonight with the swift Allied drive keeping the enemy "confused and his communications disrupted," an announcement said. Allied warplanes and armor cut to pieces German troops and transport trapped in pockets back of the swiftly moving Allied troops.

A security blackout prohibited designation of the Po crossings but the Fifth and British Eighth armies are known to be at the river along a 50-mile front stretching from Ferrara west to Borgoforte.

The important Italian naval base of La Spezia on the Ligurian sea fell to Fifth army troops. Other units of the Fifth striking from captured Bologna in the center of the battle line took Modena, a highway junction 22 miles northwest of Bologna and on the eastern flank British Eighth Army troops captured Ferrara.

Italian troops of the Eighth army including the Garibaldi partisan brigade captured the town of Cadigoro, south of the Po river mouth and 25 miles due east of Ferrara close to the Adriatic sea.

La Spezia was heavily damaged by German demolitions but the enemy offered only rearguard opposition as the Fifth army moved into the naval base from Highway One. Sarzana and Fosdinovo, inland from La Spezia, also were captured.

Modena, in addition to being an important road junction, is a sizeable industrial city and has been under attack by the Fifth army since the fall of Bologna Saturday morning.

In addition to capturing Ferrara, eastern anchor of the German line south of the Po, Eighth army units took Bondeno, nine miles northwest of Ferrara.

The Germans put up a terrific fight for Ferrara and the Eighth had to maintain constant pressure on the city. The Germans finally were forced out but heavy fighting was reported continuing north and east of the bastion.

40,000 Prisoners Taken

The capture of 40,000 prisoners from two German armies which at the outset of the offensive consisted of some 25 divisions represents a terrific weakening of German strength which may make a further stand by the enemy in Italy impossible.

Heavy bombers of the U. S. 15th air force added to the plight of the fleeing Germans by blasting their escape routes through the Brenner pass and southwestern Austria. Bridges and highways throughout northern Italy were attacked.

Medium and fighter-bombers roared over long columns of Nazis streaming northward across the Po plain, playing havoc with their transport and bombing and strafing enemy personnel.

British troops were whittling down a large pocket of Germans north of Copparo, 11 miles northeast of Ferrar, where the Germans were trying desperately to hang on to a bridgehead on the south bank of the Po over which they were attempting to evacuate troops northward.

British armor was reported destroying large numbers of enemy vehicles and taking thousands of prisoners.

Other Eighth army tanks cut off and surrounded a great concentration of German troops in the Ferrar-Bondeno-Finale triangle, with the disorganized Nazis desperately attempting to break out of the steel ring.

The Germans attempted a counterattack against Fifth Army troops in one sector but the effort ended in heavy casualties, including 300 prisoners.

Brazilians Blow Up Train

Brazilian pilots operating with the Allied Tactical Air Force flying Thunderbolts blew up an entire 50-car ammunition train just west of Verona, air force headquarters announced. Farther west 25 additional enemy rail cars were destroyed.

Several enemy fighter planes were destroyed on the Ghedi airdrome by other Thunderbolt pilots.

AMERICANS TAKE GREAT NAVAL BASE AFTER CROSSING PO

La Spezia Falls to Fifth—Modena Captured Too—British Win Ferrara.

APR 25 1945

Rome, April 24 (A. P.).—United States Fifth Army troops have swept across the River Po in pursuit of the retreating Germans, and the British Eighth Army has captured Ferrara, where the enemy fought bitterly to the last, it was announced tonight.

Fifth Army troops on the west coast seized the important Italian naval base of La Spezia, while other units captured Modena, a junction on Highway 9, twenty-two miles northwest of Bologna.

The offensive still gaining momentum, has brought 40,000 prisoners into Allied cages, plus large quantities of equipment.

The Eighth Army broke into the outskirts of Ferrara last night after driving through disorganized and fleeing German forces to that road hub city thirty miles north and slightly east of Bologna. The Ferrara airfield was captured. Official reports said the Nazis were attempting to "escape across the Po on rafts, in boats and by other means."

The exact areas overrun in the rush to the Po were withheld from publication to prevent the enemy from learning where Allied spearheads had thrust across the escape routes.

4000 Vehicles Destroyed.

Allied warplanes have destroyed or damaged at least 4,000 enemy vehicles in the Po Valley in the past two days. Two-thirds of this total were credited to rocket-firing American Thunderbolts of the Twelfth Air Force.

In the advance to the Ferrara area, the Eighth Army's tanks ran wild through the fleeing Germans. The tanks shot up many enemy vehicles and 1,000 prisoners were taken up to midday yesterday in the areas of Bondeno and Finale alone. Both Bondeno and Finale lie west of Ferraro on the immediate approaches to the Po.

An official report of this Eighth Army action said British flyers "reported a big concentration of enemy transport in the area but decided not to attack when they saw it already was surrounded by our tanks and was already in the bag."

Great Slaughter Evidenced.

The British Army also rounded up many prisoners in the area north of Cento, sixteen miles north of Bologna. Official reports said that after crossing the Reno River in that vicinity, patrols found evidence of great slaughter, with many corpses of Germans and horses and much enemy equipment scattered in the area. Presumably this slaughter was the result of air attacks of the past few days.

American and South African units of the Fifth Army moved up to the Po north and northwest of Bologna on a steadily broadening front against only slight resistance. In one sector, a German counter-attack was repulsed and 300 prisoners taken.

Along the Ligurian coast to the west, Fifth Army troops advanced 2,000 yards toward La Spezia, capturing several towns, and there were indications that enemy forces in this area also were about to go into flight northward.

The German air force made one of its rare appearances Sunday night, sending four or five planes over the 5th Army area.

In contrast to that puny effort, Allied warplanes yesterday flew more than 3,400 sorties.

The possibility that the enemy had massed anti-aircraft guns around the Po crossings was indicated in official announcement that 23 Allied planes were lost yesterday.

Eisenhower Praises Operations In Italy

Rome, April 24 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander received a personal message of congratulation from General Eisenhower today on the success of recent operations in northern Italy.

Eisenhower expressed thanks for the manner in which Allied operations in the Mediterranean had helped bring about successes achieved in Germany, and asked that his congratulations be forwarded to General Clark, General McCreery and General Truscott.

Thousands of Farm Parts Hidden from Nazis

ROME—(AP)—A huge cache of virtually needed farm tractor parts cleverly hidden from the Germans was discovered recently by American Army officers and the supplies now are being shipped to farmers in liberated Italy.

Valued at 15 million lire, the tractor parts were found during a search for a few spares needed to repair a local farmer's tractor. The owner of the cache, a Ravenna machinery agent who had not volunteered the information when the Allies took the city, then revealed that he had thousands of machine parts.

Enormous quantities of spares were hidden behind a false wall. In cellars, covered with coal and firewood, were additional supplies, while upstairs, piled to the roof, were hundreds of apparently empty cases. The bottoms of these, however, were packed tight with machine parts.

NAZIS IN ITALY QUIT IN DROVES

WITH AMERICAN FORCES NORTH OF THE PO RIVER, Italy, April 24—(AP) A German army died on the broad plains approaching the Po river in the last 48 hours and American forces marched over the body today in establishing a series of bridgeheads across Italy's widest waterway.

There were scenes reminiscent of the Nazi collapse in Tunisia as German troops surrendered in droves. Equipment, guns and transport were a smoking ruins after one of the fiercest poundings administered to an enemy force in this war. For mile after mile the enemy wreckage was almost incredible.

The bag of prisoners skyrocketed into the thousands as the hours went by. It was impossible to count them all. One division estimated it h. 1 taken more than 5,000 within 24 hours.

One German major general was discovered walking down a road with hundreds of his troops to surrender. Everywhere German prisoners were streaming down the roads accompanied by only a few guards whose chief duty was to locate prisoner of wa. cages to handle the captives.

African Invasion Feat Of Supply Wins Honor

Rome, April 24 (AP)—Col. George D. Murphey, 54, of Galveston, Texas, was awarded the Legion of Merit today for his work with the Quartermaster Corps when that organization was charged with keeping open the vital supply line from the United States to the Middle East before the African invasion.

"Through his great effort and foresight," said the citation, "supplies always were available when needed during the various emergencies that occurred. He supervised their distribution along a 4,000-mile line of communications by continual inspections. His indefatigable energy and efforts were an inspiration to his personnel."

At present he is assigned to the economic section of the Allied Commission.

Warsaw Poles State Stand

Moscow, April 24 (AP)—Provisional Polish Government leaders say they support reorganization of the present Warsaw Government along lines laid down by the Crimean Conference, but they do not plan to include in the regime Poles who oppose its internal and external policies.

Such an attitude, they said at a press conference yesterday, does not, in their opinion, run contrary to the spirit of reorganization set forth by Premier Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

Contact With People Sought

Edward B. Osubka-Morawski, president of the Polish National Council, asserted: "We want to do our utmost to establish contact with the people who agree with the Crimean decisions. We are doing our utmost to make this contact."

Boleslaw Bierut, president of the Provisional Government, said that Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former premier of the London Government-in-Exile, had refused several opportunities to collaborate with the Provisional leaders and that he has "lost his former significance."

[In London the Polish Exiled Government stated its willingness to sign a treaty with Russia, and reiterated belief in its "indisputable right" to represent Poland at San Francisco.]

SOVIET PAYS HONOR TO LATE PRESIDENT

Action Of Governing Body Called Unprecedented

Moscow, April 24 (AP)—The Supreme Soviet, Russia's chief governing body, paid unprecedented tribute today to the memory of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Soviet leaders, after greeting Marshal Stalin with ringing applause, stood to honor the late American President, first foreigner ever accorded such a tribute.

"Let the future friendship of our people continue as a magnificent memorial to the great American President Roosevelt," said M. M. Shvernik, chairman of the Soviet nationalities.

"Death Great Loss"

"His death was a great loss for the American people, for the United Nations. He was a great friend of the Soviet people from the day he recognized the Soviet Union until his very last act."

Stalin, sitting on a platform off to the right by himself, was one of the first to his feet when Shvernik asked the hundreds of delegates to stand a moment in silence. The Marshal stood with bowed head and drooped shoulders in the brilliantly lighted hall.

Finance Commissar Arseny Zverev announced that Russia's defense budget for this year would be 137,800,000,000 rubles ($16,536,000,000 at the diplomatic exchange rate)—about 45 per cent of the entire budget.

The total Russian budget was announced as roughly 305,000,000,000 rubles ($36,600,000,000 at the diplomatic exchange rate).

Berlin Reported In Panic

Moscow, April 24 (AP)—Panic and demoralization are spreading in the center of Berlin, with fighting taking place among the Nazi defenders, eyewitness accounts reaching Moscow said today.

It's hell in there," a German civilian was quoted by the correspondent for Izvestia. "Shells are falling all over the place and there is fighting among the officers and men." The civilian declared a divisional commander shot his driver when the latter suggested capitulation.

Red Army and Polish troops have pushed deep enough and captured enough streets and avenues to set up a traffic-control system, front advices said.

The correspondent for Red Star told of battling down the avenues leading to the Wilhelmstrasse and of white flags fluttering from windows along the Berlinerstrasse. On another near-by street, 600 Germans surrendered, he said.

The Russians seized a big factory which had been making parachutes, another turning out airplane engines and a gas works.

Into Potsdam Environs

Fires were reported raging in the Weissensee district, now behind the Red Army.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's mobile groups were reported wedging into the environs of Potsdam, Berlin's western suburb, as Red Army forces closed around the capital.

Izvestia said some German boys of 13 to 15 years had been thrown into the battle.

Whole Blocks Blown Down

Great destruction from bombing was reported by all correspondents inside Berlin. Whole blocks were blasted down, they said.

German streetcars carried loads of cobblestones to add to barricades inside the city. Izvestia said the Russian staff had set up headquarters in summer houses in Berlin's suburbs, but was preparing to move soon to "a more central address."

No Elbe Crossing Apparent

Soviet tanks drove near the southern edges of the big Templehof Airdrome, and neared a junction with forces marching in from the east. East of Templehof, Marshal Konev's troops appeared to have entered the Neukolon sector southeast of Berlin, while southwest of Templehof other units wedged to the southern end of the large Schoenberg sector, some 2 miles south of the Tiergarten.

South of Berlin, there were no indications yet that Russian units had crossed the Elbe in the direction of Leipzig, but this should not be discounted as a possibility. The Soviets were 9 to 11 miles from Dresden.

Several Russian correspondents said German artillery was firing on Germans who tried to retreat in the battle for Berlin.

The Germans, who said Hitler was on hand directing the battle personally, announced in a broadcast that the Russian forces were fighting in Friedrich's Park and near Koenig's Gate, 1½ miles from the intersection of Unter den Linden and Friedrichstrasse.

Sweden Calls Up More

Stockholm, April 24 (AP)—The Swedish Government announced tonight that additional men will be called up to strengthen the border and coastal guard in the west and southwest because of an expected increase of refugees from Norway and Denmark.

German Surrender Failure Is Reported

Stockholm, April 24 (AP)—The newspaper Expressen said today Swedish representatives had sought unsuccessfully to negotiate capitulation of German troops on Zealand, the Danish island on which Copenhagen is situated, but the Foreign Office said the story was "without foundation."

The newspaper said the Zealand commander, General Richter, was prepared to yield through Swedish mediation, but that Col. Gen. Georg Lindemann, German commander in chief in Denmark, spiked the effort.

DeGrelle Captured, Belgian's Letter Says

Brussels, April 24 (AP)—A letter purported to be from a former prisoner of war, published with reserve here today, said Leon DeGrelle, Belgium's would-be führer, and his staff had been captured. There was no official comment.

"I helped in the capture of the famous DeGrelle and his whole headquarters," said the letter from Louis Polard, dated Hamelin, April 20, and delivered to Polard's parents by a liberated French prisoner. Polard had been a prisoner at Stalag 11-B at Fallingsbostel. DeGrelle fled to Germany last fall.

U.S. TROOPS SEIZE OKINAWA HEIGHTS

Marines Secure Three Small Islands, Navy Blasts Jap Positions

APR 26 1945

GUAM, Wednesday, April 25 —(AP) Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's Seventh Division infantrymen captured an important Japanese position atop high ground on the western flank of the fiery battle line on southern Okinawa yesterday.

Marines of Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Amphibious corps, meantime, landed on three more small islands off Okinawa, securing them quickly.

Resistance Still Heavy

Japanese resistance continued heavy during the sixth day of the all-out ofensive on southern Okinawa, where the enemy has lost more than 11,000 killed since D-day, April 1.

The high ground seized was west of Ishin village on the island's west coast. The Seventh division in that sector was bearing down on the Machinato airfield, several hundred yards away. There was no reported progress on the eastern flank or in bitterly-held central sector of the rugged line.

New islands invaded by the Marines were Yagachi and Kouri, north of the Motobu peninsula which juts off the northwestern coast of Okinawa, and Heanza, east of Katchin peninsula on the east coast.

The Marines were mopping up Japanese remnants on Yagachi. Their landings yesterday on the other two islands were unopposed.

Pacific fleet ships poured heavy gunfire into the Japanese positions, sealing up numerous caves and blasting blockhouses, pillboxes and other elaborate defenses.

American forces, meantime, pushed preparations for immediate conversion of the captured northern three-fourths of Okinawa into a base for operations against Japan.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, after a personal inspection of the island only 325 miles south of Japan and 500 east of the China coast, said development work would start immediately on the base and would "proceed very rapidly."

Yanks Advance Slowly

Front reports said the three divisions of the U. S. 10th army on the line made slow progress in blasting the Japanese from pillbox and cave positions honeycombing the hills north of Naha, capital of Okinawa.

Giving long-range support to the Okinawa operation through strikes at Japan's aviation facilities and resources, 100 to 150 Marianas-based Superforts hit Tokyo yesterday morning, concentrating on the big Hitachi aircraft engine plant for the first time. It was the seventh B-29 assault on Nippon and the third on Tokyo in 10 days.

The Seventh division on the east coast of Okinawa and 27th division on the western flank inched forward with flamethrower and artillery support. The 96th division chopped at endless fortifications in the center of the four-mile deep line.

With the Third Marine amphibious corps conquest of the more lightly defended center and northern part of the island, Nimitz said that three-quarters of Okinawa is in American possession.

"We don't have to wait for complete control of the remainder to start our development work," Nimitz said.

"Acquisition of Okinawa will permit us to project our sea and air power to the China coast and the Japanese homeland and will speed up future operations."

The Pacific commander said Japanese positions on the southern part of the island, where most of the estimated 60,000 defenders retired after the Yanks' April 1 landing, appeared "to be as strong, and perhaps stronger, than any we have tackled before."

The B-29 raids on Japan and guns of American warships and planes in the Okinawa operation are destroying Nipponese aircraft faster than the enemy can replace them, Nimitz said.

A communique of the 20th Air Force at Washington said four of our planes were missing after the raid which achieved good results despite some fighter opposition and heavy antiaircraft fire.

GI's Push Slowly Down Coasts

Of Okinawa

Guam, April 24 (AP)—Flame-throwing 24th Corps infantrymen edged down the southern coasts of Okinawa yesterday, press dispatches from the battlefront reported today, but Japanese artillery held the center of the line in check.

The 27th Division made small gains on the west coast. The 7th took two more east coast crags on the painful approach to Hill 178, where enemy replacement crews put Nipponese machine guns into action again almost as fast as they were knocked out.

Japanese batteries hurled 650 rounds of artillery fire into the 96th Division in the heavily fortified center of the island.

The intensive Yank artillery barrage of the last two days lessened. But the offensive still relied strongly on flame-throwers and heavy artillery firing at close range.

North Okinawa Cleared

Third Amphibious Corps Marines indicated they had virtually completed control of the northern end of the island, 325 miles from Japan. They released ships which had been furnishing artillery support.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, reporting on the six-day-old southern Okinawa drive toward the capital of Naha, said tersely in his communiqué yesterday:

"No further information is available on the progress of the fighting in southern Okinawa."

Naval Support

His only elaboration was to state that naval guns and carrier aircraft continued to support troops of Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th Army Corps.

Elsewhere in the Ryukyus, 33 Japanese planes were destroyed—24 by American carrier aircraft at Miyako and Ishigaki in the Sakishima group of the southern Ryukyus; five by British Pacific fleet carrier planes in the same area; three caught on the ground at Kume Island, west of Okinawa, and one downed north of Okinawa by a Marine fighter plane.

Front line reports showed how close the embattled lines are in some sectors, and how desperate is the fighting.

The 165th (Fighting Irish) Regiment of the 27th Division found Japanese clinging doggedly to a ridge behind its slowly advancing troops. Precision bombing by American planes wiped out the enemy, Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley reported.

Savage Hill Defense

Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent, in a delayed dispatch from the 7th Division, said a savage Nipponese hill defense withstood the combined onslaught of American tanks, artillery and infantry through three days.

The Nipponese dug deep into caves during tank and artillery barrages, only to reappear with deadly machine-gun fire when doughboys from a battalion commanded by Major James L. Bulloch, of Sacramento, Cal., tried to storm the hill.

In one sector, each of 36 enemy machine-gun positions was silenced at some time during the day—but each was manned again shortly and resumed fire. Supporting these light weapons the enemy was using a 155-mm. howitzer and terrific mortar fire from the next escarpment.

New B-29 Raid Large One

Guam, April 24 (AP)—A fleet of 100 to 150 Superfortresses, hitting the Tokyo area in strength for the first time in more than a week, bombed the big Hitachi engine plant this morning (Tokyo time).

The Marianas-based B-29's, bombing visually in good weather from medium altitude, also hit other plants in the Tachikawa industrial section just west of Tokyo. This particular area was first bombed April 4, but the Hitachi plant was the prime target today for the first time.

Tokyo reported airfields and other military installations were targets of the Superfortresses, which were overhead for 30 minutes starting at 8.50 A.M. (Tokyo time, 7.50 P.M. Monday, E.W.T.) The enemy claimed six B-29's were shot down and twenty others "heavily damaged."

2 YANK COLUMNS CLOSE ON BAGUIO

Japs Fight Fiercely to Hold Bastion, Americans Gain on Mindanao.

MANILA, Wednesday, April 25—(AP) Smashed and bloody Baguio, Philippines summer capital around which the Japanese are making one of the Pacific war's most desperate last stands, was all but in American hands today.

One 33rd Division column, driving down highway nine from the northwest, was within 2,500 yards of the once attractive city. The column was consolidating for a final push, meeting only slight resistance.

Seize Highway Tunnel

Other 33rd Division troops, pushing in from the west, seized a 500-foot tunnel on the Asin-Baguio road Sunday after two days of hard fighting.

Mount Mirador, mile-high site of a government observatory overlooking Baguio plateau, was also in American hands.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that American troops on Mindanao, only other remaining Japanese stronghold in the Philippines, were driving north and eastward toward Davao from captured Kabacan, meeting only ineffective resistance.

Philippine-based bombers struck again at Formosa and raided the Japanese-held naval base at Saigon, French Indo-China. Installations at Swatow and Hainan, China, were also attacked.

Nine Japanese freighters and a number of smaller craft were sunk or damaged in these raids and in air attacks on the Dutch East Indies.

Col. Arthur S. Collins of Boston, Mass., led the tank-supported infantry which captured the road tunnel aproaching Baguio.

In the other northern Luzon "hot spot," 32nd division Doughboys reached Tayug on the Villa Verde trail approach to fiercely defended Balete pass.

Near Mount Mapatad

Moving against Japanese positions in Central Luzon, 43rd Division troops got to within 1,000 yards of Mount Mapatad, east of Manila.

On Cebu island, American division units under Lt. Col. Louis F. Franco of Chicago, Ill., made a shore-to-shore thrust, landing near Davao, nine miles north of Cebu City. The landing cut off Japanese fleeing northward.

Around Cebu City, an American unit under Capt. Robert F. Panee of Gary, Ind., surprised a Japanese force, killing 60. Capt. Keith D. Stewart of Aldrich, Mo., led another unit which killed 110 Japanese in a bitter fight, in which the Americans took some losses.

In the fan-like thrust from Kabacan, the Doughboys of Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff's 24th Infantry division apparently struck across country for Davao instead of following highway No. 1 south-eastward.

The communique said the Japanese force on Mindanao, believed to number some 30,000 troops, has as yet been unable to concentrate."

Supporting the 25th and 33rd divisions' advances in northern Luzon, centering around Balete pass and Baguio, attack and fighter bombers dropped more than 250 tons on Japanese positions.

The patrols were operating in the wild St. Mapo national park area of Mindanao island. Flanking the road they are following are peaks rising to some 9,000 feet. The American forces are headed for Digos, on the coast of Davao gulf. A coastal road leads northeastward to Davao city through the big town of Santa Cruz and a half dozen villages.

Mindanao Japs Cut In Two

Manila, April 24 (AP)—Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff's 24th Infantry Division on southern Mindanao has seized the key road junction of Kabacan, almost halfway to Davao, cutting Japanese forces in half, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

Hailing the swift advance of the 8th Army troops in the central Philippines MacArthur commended the Americal, 24th, 40th and 41st Divisions:

"This is a model of what a light but aggressive command can accomplish in rapid exploitation!"

334,111 Japs Killed

Enemy dead in the Philippines increased to 334,111 with the addition of 10,896 killed during the past week, MacArthur said. Prisoners numbered 353.

American losses for the same week were 584 killed, 2,168 wounded and 3 missing.

Seizure of Kabacan put United States troops nearly halfway in their drive toward the capital city of Davao, which the Japanese are expected to defend fiercely.

Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz reported from 8th Army headquarters that opposition was light and that patrols were operating well beyond Kabacan both to the north and southeast toward Digos on Davao Gulf.

Withdrawal To Hills

Bergholz said it appeared that the Japanese were withdrawing back into the hills east and south of Kabacan and into the Davao area.

On Luzon, the Yanks approaching Baguio from the northwest got within 3,700 yards of the city center, meeting only light opposition.

In the central sector, the 6th Division, edging toward the top of 1,600-foot Mount Pacaway, the highest point in the Shimbu line sector east of Manila, killed 104 Japanese Sunday in an advance which took them within 500 feet of the summit.

Against strong resistance, the 43d Division in the same sector advanced within a mile of Mount Mapatad, another Japanese stronghold.

Navy, Army and Royal Australian air forces planes, flying in adverse weather, sank three coastal vessels and a small tanker in a series of raids from Formosa to the Netherlands Indies. . . .

Okinawa's Value Exceeds Hopes, Nimitz Says

Yontan Airfield, Okinawa, April 23 [AP—Delayed]—There's more room for American military development on Okinawa than United States commanders had expected to find, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said here today at the conclusion of a two-day visit.

That development will get under way immediately and "proceed very rapidly," Nimitz said as his plane warmed up to take him back to his headquarters from this field only an hour's flight from Japan.

Handicaps Also Less

"There is a greater area here that we can use for military purposes than we expected, and the population is not hostile and is less of a problem to support than we had anticipated,' Nimitz said.

"Three quarters of the island is in our possession and we don't have to wait fo rcomplete control of the remainder in order to start our development work. It will proceed very rapidly along the same lines that you saw in the Marianas."

Japs' Plane Plight

Nimitz said that between B-29 raids on Japanese aircraft plants and Nipponese air losses in the Okinawa operation "we are at last destroying more planes than they are building.

"The Jap surface force, though still capable of making an attack, is not a serious threat. These forces will be hunted by air as soon as we get fields to base the planes we now have ready.'

Planes Now Waiting

"Acquisition of Okinawa will permit us to project our sea and air power to the China coast and the Japanese homeland and will speed up future operations.

"We fully expect help from Europe as soon as the fighting there permits the withdrawal of forces. We will welcome B-17's and B-24's, but we must build fields first. We have planes waiting in rear areas all ready to be used as soon as fields are available."

Purpose Of Nimitz's Visit

Nimitz said the purpose of his visit was to confer with "the three top commanders here"—Admiral Raymond Spruance, commander of the 5th Fleet; Vice Admiral Richmond Kelly Turner, commander of amphibious forces of the Pacific fleet, and Lieut. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., commander of the 10th Army.

The fleet admiral described the morale of the officers and men he talked with as exceptionally high, and added: "I am tremendously pleased with their attitude toward the job, all of them, from Spruance on down.

Japs Called Strong

"The Japanese position here appears to be as strong, and perhaps stronger, than any we have tackled before. They have a land area from which to employ a very considerable force, which is being skillfully handled and conserved, probably in an effort to make the island's capture expensive in time and casualties."

The Admiral conceded that Japanese suicide bombers were a real threat to any ship they attacked and predicted that "as we get closer to the homeland the enemy will make more and more desperate efforts."

105 U. S. Survivors Picked Up

OKINAWA, April 23 (Delayed) (AP)—Four gunboats, probing waters in the area where the Japanese sank an unidentified light United States vessel in an air raid Sunday, have picked up 105 survivors, it was reported today.

The Japanese lost forty-nine planes in their abortive attack in force to break down the Okinawa invasion as American fliers and ship's guns blasted them.

A carrier task force lent a large hand in helping to frustrate the raid, catching planes based at the Miyako and Ishagaki airdromes in the Sakishima Islands southwest of Okinawa.

CHINESE ATTACKING TO SAVE CHIHKIANG

British Get Pyinmana, in Burma, North of Rangoon—Indian Corps Advances

CHUNGKING, China, April 24 (AP)—Chinese counter-attacks have been flung against the main column and two flanks of the determined Japanese drive through western Hunan Province, and bitter fighting raged in defense of the routes to strategic Chihkiang, United States Fourteenth Air Force offensive base, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

The main column of the enemy push, aimed at eliminating the western Hunan base, which is 250 miles southeast of Chungking, was halted in the area of Kaosha, seventy-five miles away, in fighting along a highway, the High Command said.

At the same time the Chinese threw a counter-attack against the Japanese in the area of Yiyang, near the southern shore of Tungting Lake, northwest of Changsha. The enemy in this sector was based principally in Yiyang, and in heavy fighting the Chinese battered to the city wall.

On the left flank of the enemy drive the enemy sent patrols west of Sinning, near the Hunan-Kwangsi border. The Chinese attacked and annihilated most of these forces, the High Command said.

Some Japanese forces in the central push infiltrated through Chinese lines and entrenched themselves near the Kaosha highway, seventy-five miles from Chihkiang. Several hundred Japanese were killed and wounded during these operations, the High Command said.

To the south, fresh fighting broke out on the long-dormant Kwangsi Province front. An enemy force based at Hochih, on the Kwangsi-Kweichow railroad ninety-five miles west of fallen Liuchow, attacked Sunday in a southward direction, but the following day these troops were driven back, the Chinese said.

Heavy fighting continued in the north in Honan and Hupeh Provinces.

Japs Renew Drive Against Chihkiang

Chungking, April 24 (AP)—Japanese columns have renewed their drive to eliminate Chihkiang, important United States 14th Air Force offensive base in western Hunan province 250 miles from Chungking, the Chinese high command announced today.

The main column of the drive, striking down the main highway to Kaosha, 75 miles from the base, was repulsed, the Chinese said, and vigorous attacks were carried out against smaller enemy forces which had infiltrated through defense lines and entrenched near the highway in the same area.

Pyinmana in Burma Seized

CALCUTTA, India, April 24 (AP)—Infantry and armored forces of the British Fourteenth Army, advancing south along the main north-south railway, have captured Pyinmana, forty-five miles south of Yamethin and 207 miles north of Rangoon, an Allied communiqué said today.

Southwest of Pyinmana, British forces captured Lewe and four airfields. Lewe lies 15 miles from Pyinmana. British forces advancing along this enttire front are meeting with only slight Japanese resistance.

The Indian Fifteenth Army Corps continued its advance eastward along the Taungup-Chaung line northeast of Taungup.

Communist Army Grows

Chinese Communist forces in north China increased from 470,000 to 900,000 between June, 1944, and March of this year, the newspaper Emancipation Daily said in its Sunday issue, according to a dispatch yesterday by the Communist-operated wireless transmitter at Yenan.

The article, as quoted by Yenan and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, commented on the "enthusiasm of the people in the liberated areas to join the army," and said that "voluntary recruitment is inconceivable" in areas "controlled by the Kuomintang."

"Abuses in the Kuomintang conscription system are responsible to the Kuomintang troops' poor fighting ability as well as the shortage of new recruits in Kuomintang-controlled areas," Yenan quoted the newspaper as saying.

More Burmese Towns Taken

Calcutta, April 24 (AP)—British and Indian infantry and armored forces, thrusting south through central Burma at an average rate of 10 miles a day, have captured the city of Pyinmana, on the Mandalay-Rangoon Railway 205 airline miles from Rangoon, Allied headquarters announced today.

Ten miles southwest of Pyinmana the Allied forces seized the town of Lewe and four near-by airfields.

Armored units, meeting only slight Japanese resistance, were within 60 miles of Toungoo, another important center on the railway to Rangoon.

Southwest of Pyinmana in the

4 Jap Cities Lose 3 Million In Raids

San Francisco, April 24 (AP)—The heavy destruction left in Japan by American Superfortresses during the past month and a half was pictured by Radio Tokyo today as it disclosed that 3,140,000 persons in four industrial cities were listed as "disaster victims," while 770,000 homes were destroyed.

A Japanese domestic broadcast, recorded here, also acknowledged that seven wards in Tokyo's industrial section were "mostly in ruins as a result of fires."

The broadcast, covering B-29 raids from the beginning of March to mid-April, did not make clear whether "disaster victims" included the homeless as well as the dead and injured.

Two Million In Tokyo

The detailed report showed these air-raid results:

DISASTER VICTIMS—Tokyo, 2,100,000; Osaka, 510,000; Nagoya, 270,000; Kobe, 260,000.

HOMES DESTROYED—Tokyo, 510,000; Osaka, 130,000; Nagoya, 60,000; Kobe, 70,000.

Tokyo said the figures for Yokohama and Kawasaki "are under investigation." It added that in addition to the seven devastated wards of Tokyo, various districts in Kobe were swept by fire, and others in Yokohama, Osaka and Nagoya "heavily damaged."

"Inhuman Night Attacks"

Using the report for a propaganda twist, the broadcast said "the enemy launched inhuman large-scale night attacks on various sections of Greater East Asia. He seeks to kill noncombatant men and women, both old and young, by bombings on residential districts of major cities. He sought to spread devastation, chiefly by the use of incendiaries. Lately he used delayed-action bombs for the first time to cause more casualties.

"It is all too clear that the enemy conducted precision bombings on sections of the Imperial Palace, the Omiya Palace and the Okasaka detached palace. Other shrines and churches that are considered inviolable by the people were also deliberately bombed."

Argentina To Suppress Berlin Fall Celebration

Buenos Aires, Argentina, April 24 (AP)—The Government issued a police warning today that it was prepared to use force to suppress any public demonstration planned in conjunction with the fall of Berlin.

The federal police order asserted extremist elemetns proposed to organize public disturbances on the pretext of celebrating the fall of the German capital and that such manifestations would be broken up by force of arms.

At the same time the Government ordered all radio stations to refrain from broadcasting news of the fall of Berlin if the event occurred after 2 P. M. The stations were warned that the news must be withhel duntil 8 o'clock the following morning. The order specifically warned the stations that the news must not be presented dramatically or with undue tonal emphasis, and that in no case must the announced state "Berlin has fallen."

Palace Police Chief At Havana Shot Dead

Havana, Cuba, April 24 (AP)—Enrique Enriquez, chief of the Presidential Palace Police Corps, was killed by a gunman on a downtown street today. The unidentified assailant escaped.

Enriquez headed the police force assigned to President Ramon Grau San Martin.

TRUMAN TO OPEN PARLEY TONIGHT

APR 25 1945

Will Address United Nations Conference from White House.

WASHINGTON, April 24 — (AP) President Truman went to work today on his United Nations conference speech after spending nearly an hour with Cordell Hull at the Bethesda, Md., Naval medical center. Hull, a conference delegate, will be unable to attend because of ill health.

The Chief Executive had an opportunity to discuss with the former Secretary of State the 10 minute address he will make from the White House tomorrow night formally opening the San Francisco gathering.

The speech will wind up a half-hour program from 7:30 to 8:00 p m., Eastern War Time, on which Secretary of State Stettinius, Governor Earl Warren of California and Mayor Fred D. Lapham of San Francisco will be the other speakers.

Aside from the visit to Hull, Mr. Truman's day was more or less routine. He talked Missouri politics with Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic National committee. Byron Price, brought him up to date on censorship matters. Truman has asked Price to remain as director of censorship.

Among those who said they called merely to pay their respects today were James P. McGranery, assistant to the attorney general; Chairman Doughton (D-N. C.) of the House Ways and Means committee, and Sen. Pepper (D.-Fla.)

Mr. Truman as usual walked across to the Blair House for lunch this time with three friends, two of them were World War battery mates in the old 129th field artillery—Fred J. Bowman, Chicago and Ed McKim, Omaha. The other was N. T. Veatch, Kansas City, Mo consulting engineer.

GI's 42 Or Over Due For Discharge

Washington, April 24 (AP)—The War Department today announced that enlisted men 42 years of age or over will be discharged from the Army at their request.

The ruling will not apply to any soldier who is undergoing disciplinary action or who is in need of further medical or surgical treatment.

Approximately 50,000 men in the Army are 42 or over, the department said.

Soldiers overseas who apply for and are eligible for discharge will be brought back to this country for release at the "earliest practicable date."

Asks Pershing Victory Role

V. F. W. Wants Men He Headed to Represent Him at Berlin

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP).—Veterans of Foreign Wars asked General Dwight D. Eisenhower today to designate world war I veterans to represent General John J. Pershing in ceremonies marking the formal occupation of Berlin.

The request was cabled to General Eisenhower by Jean A. Brunner, V. F. W. commander in chief, who said, "this recognition would be fitting tribute to the foresight of another great military leader."

Mr. Brunner pointed out that General Pershing had hoped to march down Berlin's Unter den Linden at the conclusion of world war I in an effort to warn the Germans against another war.

Mr. Brunner suggested that "holders of the Congressional Medal of Honor be selected as General Pershing's personal representatives in the victory parade that was denied him."

New York Men Get Parley Posts

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—Harper Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., will represent the United States Chamber of Commerce as consultant at the United Nations Conference in San Francisco.

Benjamin H. Namm of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Roger D. Lapham of San Francisco will be associate consultants, the chamber announced today. The American section of the international chamber will have Philip D. Reed of New York city and Marshall Dill of San Francisco as consultant and associate.

Medal of Honor Voted Roosevelt

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—The House Judiciary Committee today approved legislation authorizing President Truman to award posthumously to the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Chandler Thinks Armies Have Met

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—Senator Chandler (D.-Ky.) spoke in the Senate today of a possibility that the American and Russian forces already had joined in Europe.

"I'm not so sure the forces have not already met and joined," said Chandler, a member of the military committee. "If they have, it means the end of the war is that much closer."

His remarks came in the course of debate over extension of the draft law.

Rogers Was Hit In Leg by Shrapnel

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—First Lieut. Will Rogers Jr., former Congressman from California, was hit in the leg by shrapnel in the American drive on Kassel, Germany.

His wife was notified last week that Rogers, son of the late Will Rogers, cowboy humorist, had been wounded. The former Congressman's associates said they were advised today that he received the wound April 9 and was flown to a base hospital in England April 11 for an operation, they added that the wound is not considered serious. Lieut. Rogers is a platoon leader attached to the Seventh Armored Force.

AFL PROTESTS ADVISER LIMIT

APR 25 1945

Contrasts Transportation For CIO To San Francisco

Washington, April 24 (AP)—The AFL protested angrily today that it had not been able to send as many representatives to San Francisco as the CIO.

An editorial in the Federation's weekly News Bulletin said efforts were made to obtain transportation for the fifteen-member AFL executive council, so it could meet in San Francisco and advise the official American delegation to the United Nations conference if called upon.

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Secretary of State, the editorial said, declared that transportation was available for only one AFL consultant and one alternate. However, "more than 30" CIO officials and foreign labor representatives "sponsored" by Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, left for San Francisco last Thursday, the editorial added.

"Advisers" Or "Consultants"

It also protested that labor-union representatives at San Francisco, instead of being "advisers" sitting in on all conferences, will merely be "consultants" who must wait until they are asked for advice. The situation, it said, poses "the question whether the State Department can be trusted."

CIO officials remaining in Washington had no comment on the AFL's protest. Philip Murray, CIO president, and other officials who usually speak for the CIO are in San Francisco.

State Department Explanation

Officials of the State Department here explained that the CIO, like the AFL, was turned down in its effort to get more than its consultant and alternate transported to the conference.

These officials said the Pennsylvania Railroad, at the request of the CIO, had put on two overflow cars on the Liberty Limited last Thursday evening as far as Chicago. From there on the CIO and foreign labor representatives got individual reservations, these State Department officials said.

Philippine Repatriates Will Be Returned Free

Army and Navy Will Give Back Fares Already Charged

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP).—The Army and Navy have agreed not to charge repatriates from the Philippines for transportation or subsistence en route, the Navy reported today.

Fares already charged will be repaid.

GOODS DEARTH PERILS PEACE

Production Experts Warn Of Shortages Of Commodities

Washington, April 24 (AP) — World shortages of textiles, coal, trucks and other commodities are so severe as to endanger a secure peace, the combined Production and Resources Board said today.

The board, made up of top production experts of the United States, Britain and Canada, issued a "plain warning" that "with the liberation of many destitute millions and war-devastated areas," the situation is becoming increasingly critical.

"Some of these short-supply problems may easily worsen, and at present we see no quick and easy solution," said an accompanying statement by J. A. Krug, war production chairman, American member of the combined board.

Gives Warning

"It is only fair," he continued, "that we give this warning and point up its implications to everyone."

The board, in a report that followed a recent meeting in the Capital, described the shortages as "so severe and widespread as to affect the building of the kind of economic conditions upon which a secure peace can be founded."

Joining Krug in issuance of the report were Oliver Lyttelton, British member of the board and Minister of Production, and Canadian member C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions.

The shortage of cotton textiles alone eventually will grow to at least 1,250,000,000 yards a year, the board predicted. Disruption of Europe's transportation system, it added, has thrown the burden of supply on motor trucks.

ATROCITIES ARE DETAILED

Philippines Issues a Pamphlet Signed by Victims of Japanese

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—An illustrated pamphlet detailing Japanese atrocities in the Philippines was released today by the Philippine Commonwealth Government.

Affidavits signed by priests and other Filipinos who either witnessed or suffered tortures at the hands of the Japanese featured the booklet, which heretofore was confidential.

It was made public after first being distributed to Congressmen shortly before Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine Resident Commissioner, spoke in the House of Representatives last week on the extent of Japanese atrocities.

Col. Allen Loses Part of Right Arm

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—The War Department said today that wounds suffered by Col. Robert S. Allen, former Washington newspaper man, had necessitated amputation of the lower part of his right arm.

Allen, who was co-author with Drew Pearson of a syndicated Washington column and correspondent for the Philadelphia Record prior to entering the Army in 1942, was taken prisoner in Germany April 7, but was freed three days later. He was released from a hospital on April 20, the department said.

Senate Group Approves Nomination Of Snyder

Washington, April 24 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee unanimously approved today the nomination of John W. Snyder, St. Louis banker, as Federal Loan Administrator.

Snyder's was the first major nomination made by President Truman.

A close friend of the President since World War days when they served in France together, Snyder is 48. If confirmed by the Senate, he will succeed Fred M. Vinson as loan administrator.

The same committee also approved the nomination of James J. Caffrey as a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Caffrey's nomination was one of the last sent to the Senate by President Roosevelt. He was nominated to succeed Robert H. O'Brien, resigned, for the term expiring June 5 and also for a new five-year term beginning on that date.

PLAN REVEALED TO CUT CASUALTIES IN FAMILIES

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP) The Army and Navy today announced a plan intended to prevent additional losses in action by families that have lost two or more members in the war.

In such cases, a joint announcement said, remaining members of the families in the services will be assigned to "non-hazardous duty" upon their own request or that of an immediate relative.

The non-hazardous duty, the statement said, may mean assignment to rear areas in an active battle theater, duty in an inactive theater or in the United States. In cases where the service member is the sole surviving child, he will be retained in the United States or returned here for permanent assignment.

COAL PRICE ISSUE IS PUT UP TO OPA

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—John L. Lewis's soft coal agreement, bolstered by unanimous WLB approval, was subjected today to the test of its effect on the wartime stabilization program.

WLB, saying that the contract signed two weeks ago would not upset established wage policy, checked the issue to OPA and Stabilization Director William H. Davis.

OPA will determine whether coal prices must be hiked—both the mine union and operators said that an increase would be necessary—and Davis will have the final say. There were indications that OPA's findings would be given to the stabilization Director on Thursday.

WLB Chairman Taylor, describing the contrast as a prudent agreement, estimated that the average daily increase for all workers covered at $1.01 or $1.02.

GILES PACIFIC AIR FORCE HEAD

Eaker Succeeds Him As AAF Deputy Commander

APR 25 1945

Washington, April 24 (AP)—Appointment of Lieut. Gen. Barney M. Giles as commanding general of the Army Air Forces in the Pacific Ocean Area was announced today by the War Department.

General Giles will be replaced as deputy commander of the Army Air Forces and chief of the air staff by Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, who has been commander of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force since December, 1943.

General Giles replaces Lieut. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, reported missing on a flight in the Pacific several weeks ago.

Maj. Gen. W. H. Hale, deputy commander in the Pacific air forces, has been acting as commanding general in that area.

Cannon Replaces Eaker

Lieut. Gen. John K. Cannon, who has been commanding general of the 12th Air Force in the Mediterranean will replace General Eaker as leader of the Mediterranean Allied Air Forces.

Both Giles's unit and the Far Eastern Air Force commanded by Gen. George C. Kenney are under the control of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of land forces in the Pacific. The 20th (Superfortress) Air Force operates under the direct command of Gen. H. H. Arnold, AAF chief.

Giles, who is 52 and a native of Mineola, Texas, has been an army flyer since 1918. He was named chief of the air staff and AAF deputy commander in 1943 after serving as commanding general of the 4th Air Force at San Francisco.

Eaker, one of the leaders in building up Allied air strength in Europe, headed the 8th Air Force in Britain before he became commander of the Mediterranean forces.

U.S. URGED TO USE ARMS TO PURSUE NAZI CRIMINALS

APR 25 1945

WASHINGTON, April 24—(AP) The House Foreign Affairs committee called upon the government today to use arms and ignore treaties if necessary to pursue any Nazi war criminals who seek safety in neutral countries.

The committee adopted a resolution expressing the sense of Congress that no perpetrator of atrocities be permitted to find sanctuary behind neutral borders, as the Kaiser did after the last war.

The resolution must be approved by both branches of Congress. It does not have the force of law but is strongly-worded advice to the executive branch of government.

"This," said Rep. Luther Johnson (D-Tex.), acting chairman of the committee, "is a warning to neutral countries not to shelter criminals."

Written by Rep. King (D-Calif.), the resolution came out of the committee after a group of Congress members went to Europe to inspect Nazi atrocity camps.

A clause pointed at Hitler and other leaders of the Nazi party, says no one should escape punishment on the grounds that his crimes were committed as "acts of state."

In its strongest paragraph the resolution calls upon the government to make it an expressed policy to cross neutral borders, if necessary.

It asks the United States to join other Allies "in the use of such means as may be necessary—irrespective of the limitations of any treaties of extradition—to secure the person or property of those persons determined to be war criminals who have already fled or who may hereafter flee to any neutral nation, or any other nation that may harbor them or afford them a place of asylum."

The committee killed, by tabling, a resolution offered by Rep. Celler (D-N.Y.) which would have requested the President to appoint a special commission to work with the United Nations War Crimes commission in defining war crimes. The King resolution sets up no special group but it calls upon the government:

"To cooperate with the nations Allied with the United States in the present war in the determination of some persons, irrespective of rank, who shall be brought to trial, or summarily punished, as war criminals, for the perpetration of or the participation in acts of atrocity or treachery, oppression, or pillage by political, military or economic means."

Approve Promotion Of Hodges and Patton

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—The Senate Military Committee today approved promotions to the rank of four-star general for George S. Patton, Third Army commander, and Courtney H. Hodges, commander of the First Army.

Both promotions, from lieutenant - general, were made by President Truman, who said two such excellent fighting men should have the increased rank.

The committee also approved the promotions of nine officers to the temporary rank of lieutenant - general.

They are: Eugene Reybold, chief of engineers; Levin H. Campbell Jr., chief of ordnance; Lucius D. Clay, Joseph L. Collins, Oscar W. Griswold, Geoffrey Keyes, Edmund B. Gregory, Walton H. Walker, and Wade Hampton Haislip.

TOP MEDAL TO PRIVATE

D. R. Lobaugh of Freeport, Pa., Died in Charge at Japanese

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—The Congressional Medal of Honor has been awarded posthumously to Pvt. Donald R. Lobaugh, who died in a single-handed charge against Japanese troops to enable his platoon to withdraw from an isolated position.

In announcing this today, the War Department said that the Freeport, Pa., infantryman was killed last July 22 while his unit in the Thirty-second Infantry Division was clearing the Japanese from Afua, in New Guinea.

The fighting was fluid and the platoon to which he was attached was cut off when his company in the 127th Infantry Regiment withdrew to correlate its fire.

"The platoon organized and fought off the Japanese through the night and attempted to move out in the morning," reported First Lieut. Leonard Lowry, Susanville, Calif. "There was only one route of withdrawal and the enemy had a machine gun and riflemen covering this point.

"It was evident that Private Lobaugh made up his mind to sacrifice himself. He crawled as close as he could under the enemy fire and threw a hand grenade, then rushed the enemy, firing as he advanced. He was struck time and time again, but continued on, killing two of the enemy before he was struck by the last fatal burst."

The medal will be presented to Private Lobaugh's mother, Mrs. Ida Lobaugh of 600 Walnut Street, Freeport.

DOUGHTON SEES CUT IN SOME TAXES

APR 25 1945

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP) Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the House Ways and Means committee, which originates revenue legislation, said today there is a possibility of some tax adjustments "right after V-E Day."

Doughton did not say that the changes would embrace any immediate lowering of rates. There have been strong indications that the first relief would come to business in elimination of uncertainties, speeding of refunds and increased exemptions.

The 81-year-old North Carolinian talked to reporters after calling on President Truman, but said his White House conversation did not relate to taxes or other legislation. It was merely a courtesy call, he declared.

The Treasury and a joint Congressional committee on postwar taxation "are working together in harmony" in assembling information upon which to base tax adjustments for individuals and business, he said. He then forecast the possibility of adjustments immediately after the fall of Germany.

BIDDLE FAVORS LEASING PLANTS

Urges Disposal Procedure to Aid Little Business.

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—Attorney - General Biddle today recommended leasing rather than outright sale of surplus war plants to help little business and spur peacetime employment.

"Leasing of plants by the Government would not only give business and Government an opportunity to determine more realistically the ultimate sales prices but would encourage bidding by small business furnished with more limited capital resources than its larger competitors," Mr. Biddle said in a report to Congress under the war mobilization and reconversion act.

"The disposal of surplus property," the Attorney-General added, "inevitably will be one of the major steps in any governmental program to provide for full employment in the post-war period."

Suggesting that industry, without curtailing war production, should be encouraged to chart an orderly reconversion course, the report said business would be less reluctant to lease than to purchase "where the future is uncertain." It recommended:

That leases contain options for sale at a price based on earnings, or to be fixed by arbitration;

That, whether for sale or for lease, the form of bids take into consideration the objectives or the surplus property act "in order to stimulate new enterprise and provide for full employment";

That bids be required to state in detail the proposed future use of plants and facilities along with an estimate of the number of persons to be employed;

That the leases contain clauses against closing plants to eliminate competition and providing that the lessee maintain a stipulated number of workers.

WAR CRIMINALS FACE ARREST IN NEUTRAL LANDS

House Committee Urges U.S. to Invade Any Nation Harboring Guilty.

RESOLUTION SENT TO FLOOR

Measure Does Not Have Force of Law, but Merely Serves as Congressional Expression.

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—A warning to neutral countries against offering sanctuary to perpetrators of Nazi war atrocities came from the House Foreign Affairs Committee today.

The committee approved for floor consideration a resolution making it United States policy to go into neutral countries, regardless of treaties, to pursue and capture enemy war criminals.

The resolution, introduced by Representative King (D.-Cal.) must be approved by both branches of Congress. It does not have the force of law but serves merely as a congressional expression to the Government.

The committee killed a resolution by Representative Celler (D.-N. Y.) which would have requested the President to appoint a commission to work in conjunction with the United Nations War Crimes Commission.

The King legislation, however, expresses as "the sense of the Congress" that the United States shall co-operate with other Allies in the arrest, prosecution and punishment of war criminals.

As demands were voiced on Capitol Hill for a harsh Nazi peace, the Germans themselves read a solemn warning that ruthless pursuit and punishment await those who mistreat Allied prisoners.

Revercomb On Youth-Use

Washington, April 24 (AP)—Senator Revercomb (R., W.Va.) asserted today that young American fighting men must suffer risks disproportionate to those incurred by the youths of other Allied nations.

This, he told the Senate, was true because the United States has no statutory minimum training provision.

APR 25 1945

30.24-25113

Provisions In Other Nations

Urging adoption of an amendment to the selective-service extension bill so as to bar the use of 18-year-olds for combat unless they had received at least six months' training, Revercomb said:

"Our Government is the only Government among the Allied nations, with the possible exception of China, which hasn't legislated on the subject.

"England has a provision that no boy may be sent out of the British Isles on any fighting service until he is 18 years 6 months old. In Canada it is 19.

"No boy may leave Australia for service until he is 19, and in New Zealand it is 21. The Russian conscription act fixes the ages between 19 and 50, although it is probably true that since Russia was an invaded country, Russians of any and all ages fought the Germans with anything they could get.

"Have Duty To American Boy"

"We have a duty to fight our full part of this war, but we also have a duty to the American boy to see that he is not the victim of a legislative situation because we failed to pass a law."

Revercomb declared that the Army had violated an unwritten understanding that young draftees would receive a certain minimum training before being sent to the front.

ICKES'S BUDGET CUT A FOURTH BY HOUSE BODY

Committee Criticizes Bureau Activities and Slashes Its Request by 39 Millions.

ALASKA PROJECT THROWN OUT

Overhauling of Indian Office Is Again Demanded—Bonus for Employees Rejected.

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—The House Appropriations Committee tossed a handful of verbal brickbats and a 25 per cent budget cut at the Department of the Interior today.

Sending to the floor a $102,602,628 measure to finance the department for the year starting July 1, the committee criticized many of the agency's activities and trimmed $38,743,419 from its budget estimates.

However, the amount it recommended exceeds by $4,460,629 the funds made available to the department for the current year. The increase, the committee said, was due to the necessity for furnishing reclamation projects more money to spur food production.

The committee's formal report, prepared by a sub-committee headed by Representative Johnson (D.-Okla.), a long-time critic of Secretary Harold Ickes, expressed hope that within a few years the department's revenues would equal operating expenses. Its income next year was estimated at $74,500,000.

The committee continued in effect a sharp restriction on department's expenditures for long-distance telephone calls and telegrams. Representative Johnson said during the lengthy hearings on the bill that the only collect telegram the department "found necessary to send to a member of Congress" was one sent to him.

An Unexplained Remark.

The incident went unexplained after Mr. Johnson asked Interior Department officials whether it was merely a coincidence or whether the department wanted "to call attention to the fact" that it "resented what they considered had been discrimination against them."

The committee turned down a request for $1,072,600 to finance an Alaskan development study commenting that it would be of "little or no practical value."

It also rejected a request for $21,000 to pay bonuses to employees, saying: "The payment of awards for 'music in cafeteria during lunch hours' and several similar suggestions for which awards have been made indicate the impracticability of the program."

In cutting budget estimates for the grazing service almost 40 per cent, the committee criticized that activity as "overgrown," "highly impractical and unbusinesslike."

It reiterated past demands for "overhauling, reorganizing and streamlining" the Office of Indian Affairs.

The amount recommended for the Reclamation Bureau exceeded current year funds by more than $6,000,000, although they were some $14,700,000 below estimates.

In 1944, the committee said, crops produced on reclamation acreage were valued at approximately $400,000,000 and amounted to more than 9,000,000 tons of food.

Bankruptcy in Philippine Ruins

Worthless Japanese Currency and Deliberate Destruction Emphasize Islands' Plight.

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—Every domestic Philippine credit institution which operated during the Japanese invasion is bankrupt, according to E. D. Hester, economic adviser to the High Commissioner of the Philippines.

Most of the larger domestic institutions did operate, he said, adding, "Some probably were forced to."

The situation was disclosed during hearings on the Interior Department appropriation bill, which reached the floor of the House today.

Hester blamed the condition on circulation by the Japanese of what the Filipinos call "Mickey Mouse money"—paper currency which is worthless and has no backing.

Destruction in the Philippines was enormous, he said estimating the total damage claims to be presented to Congress "sooner or later" at between $300,000,000 and $600,000,000.

"The Japanese did what they threatened to do and what some of us hardly believed they would do," he continued. "They destroyed practically the whole city of Manila. If that is to be taken as a criterion, they will destroy Cebu, Iloilo, and Legaspi, when they are chased out of these points.

Physical Destruction.

"These important cities will be shelled, bombed, mined, burned. This wanton practice followed by the Japanese in retreat—in defeat—causes a serious situation. Nearly all of the important private and public buildings, the bridges, dams, electric plants, docks, warehouses, and the roads will be destroyed or damaged beyond use."

Hester said that although the private financial situation is "very bad" a ray of hope remains in the two British banks and one American branch bank in the islands.

These three, he said, "will be able to reopen and bring in some much-needed investment capital"—at least the American bank should be able to do so."

Two or perhaps all three of the Philippine government banks operated under the puppet government and are flooded with worthless money," he said. These banks were closed down on American reoccupation.

LAYS '29 CRASH TO HIGH TARIFF

APR 25 1945

Wallace Says Policies of G. O. P. Caused Collapse.

Washington, April 24 (A. P.)—Republican tariff policies were held largely responsible by Secretary of Commerce Wallace today for the 1929 economic collapse.

Addressing Representative Gearhart (R.-Cal.) at a House Ways and Means Committee hearing, Mr. Wallace said:

"God grant that men of your attitude don't get in power to bring back that sort of thing again."

The Secretary's remark came after Mr. Gearhart had attributed the prosperity of the 1920's largely to Republican high tariffs.

Mr. Wallace said it was a "false prosperity" in which business boomed as long as America lent money abroad. When high tariffs prevented repayment, he asserted, the loans stopped and then the economic collapse occurred.

When Representative Gearhart attacked the reciprocal trade agreements program which the committee is considering, Mr. Wallace said: "I am overcome with a profound sorrow to contemplate what will come to the world as a result of that type of thinking."

The Californian said that in the 1920's "working men were wearing silk shirts." He attacked the trade agreements program as unconstitutional and the "most reactionary step in 150 years" because, he contended, it takes the taxing power away from Congress and the people and puts it in the hands of the Executive.

Knutson Apologizes.

Representative Knutson (R.-Minn.), Republican leader on the Ways and Means Committee, formally apologized to Mr. Wallace today for remarks he made during yesterday's hearing.

"I made a remark I regret and I want to apologize to the Secretary and to the committee," Mr. Knutson said as the committee reconvened. "I feel so intensely on the issue I let my zeal get the better of me."

Mr. Wallace replied, "I understood completely and I do accept in the spirit in which the apology is offered."

When Secretary Wallace said a question propounded yesterday was "too complicated to be answered," Mr. Knutson said: "Then I'll wait and ask the question of some witness of ordinary intelligence."

The remark was stricken from the record, on Mr. Knutson's own motion.

REPUBLICANS SEEK SINGLE AGENCY TO CONTROL FOOD

WASHINGTON, April 24—(AP) A resolution urgently requesting President Truman to put a single agency in charge of food controls to end a "deplorable" situation was adopted today by House Republicans.

Food production also would be classified as an essential war industry under the resolution, approved at a caucus. Rep. Jenkins of Ohio, chairman of a Republican Study committee which has been investigating food shortages, told his colleagues:

Hit Confusion

"The confusion and disorganization resulting from conflicting and arbitrary orders from a half-dozen different agencies has created maldistribution, false shortages, black markets, and empty store shelves, and holds no promise whatever of improvement in the future."

On the Senate side of the capitol, Mayor La Guardia of New York struck out at government meat policies as unrealistic, and urged higher price ceilings to deal a blow to black markets.

In Pittsburgh, meantime, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), called for "good stiff sentences" for ringleaders of black markets "raging" across the nation. He said there seems to be "a complete breakdown" of enforcement, and "OPA might as well close up."

Wheeler is chairman of a Senate Agriculture subcommittee, which heard Ray Sprigle, Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reporter, testify that black markets supply an estimated 80 per cent of the Pittsburgh district's meat.

La Guardia, testifying to another Senate Agriculture subcommittee here, said that for the next two years the United States must bear much of the burden of feeding Europe. To do this job, take care of the American population and weed out black markets, he proposed:

1. A cent a pound higher ceiling prices on meat all the way from the producer to the consumer.

2. Higher subsidies, where necessary, to guarantee the meat industry against loss and thus "destroy the reason" for black market operations.

APR 25 1945

Merge Agencies

3. Merger of the War Food administration and OPA—"Let's get all the distribution, allocation, production, pricing and control together."

Fiery as ever, his hair awry and his spectacles shoved up on his forehead as though forgotten, the Mayor told the Senate Agriculture subcommittee investigating the food situation that the meat shortage doesn't surprise him. He saw it coming last fall.

What happened was this, La Guardia contended:

The feeder didn't have a fixed price on his cattle feed and he got caught. The cattle, as a result, weigh less. The slaughterer in many cases found he couldn't buy and sell at the government ceilings and avoid a loss. Then the "tin-horn and chiseler" started tie-in and mark up practices. The retailer had to close up or take higher-priced meat and pass on the illegal sum to the consumer.

It would be cheaper in the long run, the Mayor said, to add a cent a pound from the bottom up the scale "than the fictitious ceiling prices now."

Ninety per cent of the retailers "are making an honest effort to comply" with the situation, La Guardia said, but he added: "Within their limitations."

New Program to Help

The new 10-point government program will help some, he said, especially the increase of 25 cents a hundred pounds on meat bought by the armed forces. But he said that isn't enough. It ought to be higher. The armed forces, he said, "should be required to pay at least as much as the cost of the meat."

Merger of WFA with OPA, and he indicated he thought WFA should be top agency in that setup, would "eliminate overlapping, duplication and what is worse, inaction."

He suggested that the committee look into the possibility of creating commissioners within the Federal courts to handle violations. This was proposed in prohibition days, he said, but didn't get anywhere. Now, he said, it would be a boon to local enforcement officers, especially "if this gang-up becomes too powerful."

Food controls will be needed a long time, he said, much longer than many of the other wartime measures. He estimated that food would have to be sent to Europe until spring of 1947. Meantime, La Guardia asserted, the national appetite will continue high "because we have more money to spend for food than ever before."

Chairman Thomas (D-Okla.) said the committee would hear from the meat industry Friday what effect the government's new packer subsidy program will have.

"I've been told it won't work," Thomas told a reporter. "But I'm not so sure. We want their frank opinions."

On this score, La Guardia suggested that whatever changes are made, "Let's get a butcher or two in there to write the regulations."

Bill Extending Draft Approved by Senate

APR 25 1945

Ban Use of 18-Year-Old Draftees in Combat without Six Months Training.

WASHINGTON, April 24—(AP) A bill extending the Draft Law for a year but banning the use of 18-year-old draftees in combat without six months training was passed today by the Senate.

The measure, approved on a voice vote, now goes to the House for action on amendments.

Passed 50 to 25

The amendment relating to 18-year-olds was passed, 50 to 25, over the objections of the high command. Twenty-three Democrats, 26 Republicans and Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis) voted for it. Against were 19 Democrats and six Republicans.

Another amendment offered by Senator Brewster (R-Me), to prohibit the drafting of men over 31 after May 1, was rejected 57 to 11.

At the request of Chairman [illegible]sh (D-Mass) of the Naval committee, the sponsors accepted an audition to the language of the ban. This reads:

"This proviso shall not be construed as preventing the assignment of enlisted men of the Navy or Coast Guard and the reserve components thereof to duty for training on combat vessels of the Navy or Coast Guard and at naval bases beyond the continental limits of the United States."

Senator Hill (D-Ala), acting majority leader, argued that the "practical effect of this language is to eliminate the Navy." But Revercomb disputed this. The Navy, the West Virginian said, could not send men into combat without six months training, no matter where they were trained.

Asking defeat of the whole proposal, Hill recalled that General of the Army George C. Marshall had opposed it and had advised that the Army planned, as soon as military conditions permit, to send no soldiers under 19 overseas.

"Let us stand by our military commanders," he pleaded.

Senator Magnuson (D-Wash), who served a tour of duty in the Pacific as a naval reserve officer earlier in the war, urged the Senate to go slow in cutting down on Selective Service.

"No matter how optimistic we may be about the situation in Europe we should remember that this war is far from over," he said. "Westward lies our most formidable enemy, Japan."

MAYOR ASSERTS CEILINGS CAUSE BLACK MARKET

APR 25 1945

Declares Meat Prices Set by the Government Are Fictitious.

TALKS TO SENATE COMMITTEE

He Says Figures Are Too Low, Asks New Levels and Merger of Control Activities.

Washington, April 24 (A. P.).—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York said today that "fictitious" price ceilings set by the Government had been the primary cause of a black market in meat.

He suggested to the Senate Food Investigating Committee:

1. Establishment of new ceilings from the packer to the retailer.

2 Merger of the War Food Administration and food handling duties, including pricing, of the OPA.

Mayor LaGuardia proposed one more step—requiring the armed forces to pay the full cost of meat set aside for them.

These measures, he said, would eliminate the black market by enabling every one in the meat business to sell without loss. What little enforcement would be needed after that, he said, could be handled locally.

"The present situation in meat does not surprise me at all," LaGuardia told the committee.

Says He Saw It Coming.

He said he saw it coming last fall but that "we squeezed through that crisis."

In 1944, he said, New York city market inspectors served 18,857 court summons for retail meat violations and got 17,958 convictions. The sheriff served 5,316 summons on wholesalers.

Enforcement in New York "got a setback recently," the Mayor said, by enactment of a New York State law forbidding a centralized court for all the five boroughs in the handling of food violations.

"Now we can't bring a case outside a borough. . .not for the convenience of the witnesses but for the convenience of the violators.

"I am only the Mayor. I haven't the influence that chiselers and tinhorns have. That goes for both parties." It means, he said, that his agents have to divide their time among five borough courts.

Suggests Commissioners.

For Federal enforcement, Mayor LaGuardia suggested that the committee consider the creation of commissioners in Federal courts to hear violations at "the retail level if this gang-up becomes too powerful."

The Mayor forecast that the heavy demand for food will continue for two years after the end of hostilities in Europe. Long range food controls will be necessary, he said, "much longer than many of our other emergency measures."

In Washington, he asserted, "there are just too many bosses around—too many theorists who are well meaning, but this thing is becoming more involved all the time." The merger of WFA and OPA, he contended, would eliminate overlapping, duplication "and what is worse, inaction."

"Let's get the supply, the production, the distribution and the controls all in one," he said.

Reason for Black Market.

"Why is there a black market?" the Mayor asked belligerently. "There is only one reason. The first processor can't sell at the lawful ceiling prices without a loss. And when one goes wrong, he goes wrong all the way. That is reflected into the wholesaler and the retailer."

Revised price ceilings "all along the line," taking into account the producer and the cattle feeder, subsidized by the Government, would eventually be cheaper, he said, "than the fictitious ceiling prices now."

"Let's do it right," he said. "It won't cost much more. Fix the prices from the packer to the retailer. Then there will be no reason for an intervening black market."

"Fix the price of the feed," he said, adding that cattle are running underweight now and "we can't eat the feed but we can eat the extra meat."

One-cent Rise Suggested.

Questioned by Senator Ellender (D.-La.), Mayor LaGuardia suggested that the consumer would be willing to pay a cent more a pound for meat, "legitimately." This cent increase in ceiling could be added to the ceiling all the way back to the source, he said.

"It would be cheaper to the consumer," LaGuardia contended, "than paying these markups they are paying now—three or four cents cheaper."

Iwo Photo Profit Goes To Navy

New York, April 24 (AP)—All proceeds received by the Associated Press from use of the photograph of Marines raising the American flag on Mount Suribachi of Iwo Jima have been presented to the Navy Relief Society.

Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, made this known yesterday after Representative Cole (R., N.Y.) introduced a bill which would give the Navy Department exclusive ownership of the photograph which was taken by Joseph Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer.

Profit Ban Urged

"This photograph has been accepted by the public as representative of all the forces at work in this war," Cole said in Washington. "It should become public property, so it can be dispensed to all with no one profiting from it."

Cooper said the first check, covering gross receipts through April 1, without any deduction for cost of reproduction and mailing, had been sent to the Navy Relief Society April 18. His statement follows:

"On April 12 I wrote Secretary of the Navy Forrestal that the Associated Press had made the picture available at nominal cost to all those who agreed to make proper use of it, but not for advertising. In addition, it was made available to the United State Treasury Department without cost for use in advertising the Seventh War Loan. Further I offered to the Navy Relief Society the gross proceeds from the sales without any deduction whatever for the cost of reproduction and mailing.

Acceptance Reported

"On April 18, having received a letter of acceptance and appreciation from Mr. Forrestal, the first check covering the gross receipts to April 1 was forwarded with a letter saying checks would continue to be sent at the end of each month, covering the gross receipts as long as there were any.

"I told Secretary Forrestal that the Associated Press would not use the facts of this gift to seek acclaim for itself. No announcement was made of it by the Associated Press then and no comment would be made now, except that the legislation introduced in Congress today by Congressman Cole might be taken to indicate that the Associated Press had profited from sales of the picture."

German-Captive Labor Worth $100,000,000

New York, April 24 (AP) — German prisoner-of-war labor has become a $100,000,000-a-year business benefiting the United States Government, Maj. Gen. Archer L. Lerch, Army provost marshal general, says in an American Mercury magazine article made public today.

Writing in the magazine's May issue, General Lerch said that private contractors paid the Government more than $22,000,000 last year for the use of German prisoners in this country, while the War Department realized a saving of over $80,000,000 in work done by the prisoners at army installations.

Prisoner work for contractors totaled 10,181,273 man days of work for contract employers and 19,569,719 man days for the Army, General Lerch said.

NEW DIET CONSIDERED FOR NAZI PRISONERS

NEW YORK, April 24. — (AP) Army officials said today the War department has under consideration national application of a new diet for German prisoners of war which the Second Service command, conserving scarce food items, developed for its tri-state area.

The new menu, providing a daily diet of 3,560 calories, features such foods as fatback, sausage and cabbage in place of most fresh meats, canned fruits and vegetables and butter.

In announcing the new menu at a press conference, Col. Clinton J. Harrold, director of supply for the Second Service command, said the diet conformed to requirements of the Geneva convention and was "not on a retaliatory basis but in keeping with our critical food situation."

The menu, now effective for 13,000 POW's in New York, New Jersey and Delaware, limits fresh meat to hearts, liver and kidneys, eliminates jams, jellies and butter and stipulates that fresh vegetables must be used instead of canned ones when available.

Polio Fund Campaign Memorial To Roosevelt

New York, April 24 (AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will continue observance of the late President Roosevelt's birthday, January 30, with the March of Dimes Fund Campaign, Basil O'Conor, foundation president, said today.

In a message to some 3,000 county chapters throughout the country, O'Connor urged "a spirit of rededication to this great cause, of which a great man is the national symbol."

"Our service to infantile paralysis victims and our research and education programs will be expanded and intensified in the years ahead," he said.

18 Editors Arrive In Paris On Camp Tour

New York, April 24 (AP)—A party of eighteen editors, en route to inspect scenes of Nazi concentration camp atrocities at the request of General Eisenhower, arrived in Paris today, the Air Transport Command announced.

The group of publishers and executives left yesterday from LaGuardia Field aboard an ATC C-54 four-engined plane for Europe, where they will meet a congressional delegation for a joint tour of the atrocity areas.

LOWELL THOMAS SEES SHELLS HITTING BERLIN

NEW YORK, April 24 — Lowell Thomas, NBC news commentator, flew over Berlin today and said tonight in a broadcast from Paris that the German capital was "in flames from one end to the other" with the exception of the Potsdam area.

Thomas said he flew over the city in a P-51 Mustang reconnaissance plane, with another fighter as escort, at 6,000 feet.

"Just below an artillery duel was going on," he said. "Heavy guns on both sides were going all out, with dense clouds of smoke rolling over Berlin.

"Potsdam and the southern side of Berlin seemed comparatively undamaged, while the rest of Berlin is blazing from end to end."

Senator Wheeler Lashes Out At OPA For Situation In Meat

Pittsburgh, April 24 (AP)—Asserting a black market in meat is "raging" across the nation in what "seems to be a complete breakdown of law enforcement," Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D., Mont.) declared today the ringleaders should be jailed "with good stiff sentences."

The chairman of a Senate food investigating subcommittee said "OPA officials are not doing their duty" after Ray Sprigle, reporter of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, testified at a subcommittee hearing here that an estimated 80 per cent of Pittsburgh district meat, or about 3,000 cattle a week, came from black-market sources.

Might As Well Close Up

"The OPA might just as well close up," Wheeler declared. "There's something wrong somewhere. This has to stop or there'll be some changes in the OPA. I'll guarantee that. The OPA wants to blame the public to cover up when they don't do a good job."

Another witness, Alvin J. Williams, district OPA director, said the black market was an "indictment of the consumers." He added, that although the OPA filed 1,088 cases in Federal Court here, only one dealer was jailed.

The 58-year-old sombrero-wearing Sprigle, who won a $1,000

APR 25 1945

Pulitzer prize in 1938 for disclosing the one-time Ku Klux Klan membership of Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, testified that in an eight-day period he bought 2,100 pounds of meat without points and at prices up to twice the OPA ceilings.

Says Points Can Be Bought

He said he paid 65 cents a pound for ham and 55 cents for pork loin, compared with their OPA ceilings of 27½ and 33 cents, respectively. He told of a price scale in effect for buyers with necessary ration points, those with an insufficient number of points, and buyers with no points at all.

Ration points could be bought, he said, at prices varying from $3.50 to $6 per 1,000 points.

Sprigle posed as a black-market dealer to make the purchases. Wheeler commended him and the Post-Gazette for their work, saying "there should be more newspaper men like you."

3,000 Back From West Front

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., April 24 (AP).—More than 3,000 American soldiers from the European area, including 1,930 casualties and sick men, arrived here today. Rotational furlough troops totaled 1,173. The rotational troops will depart within thirty-six hours to begin their furloughs, while the patients, of whom 328 are litter cases, will remain at the Camp Patrick Henry Hospital for three or four days before departing for hospitals nearest their homes.

Draft Figures In War-Plant Strike

Chicago, April 24 (AP)—One hundred and fifty members of an AFL union, protesting the imminent army induction of their local president, John Nechistak, were on strike today at the Pettibone-Mulliken Corporation, makers of gun carriages.

J. J. Vincent, regional supervisor of the United States Conciliation Service, said the principal complaint of Local 625, International Brotherhood of Drop Forgers, Blacksmiths and Helpers, was that the company sought to "get rid of" Nechistak by declining to ask further deferment of him. A conciliator has been unable to effect a settlement since the walkout began last Friday night, Vincent said.

Company officials said Nechistak was merely one of many men for whom it was no longer necessary to ask specific deferments.

Nechistak, a welder, is 29, married, and the father of two children. He has been deferred at company request, he said, as an essential worker.

Nazi Prisoners Punished For Hitler Birthday Rally

Omaha, April 24 (AP)—German officer prisoners in the Concordia (Kan.) prisoner of war camp are being punished for celebrating Adolf Hitler's birthday last Friday in violation of War Department orders, 7th Service Command headquarters here announced today.

Punishment consists of being forced to cook their own food, do all the "KP" and losing all privileges previously accorded officers, the headquarters said, adding that they also are barred from recreation areas and the canteens.

Their celebration consisted of singing Nazi songs and making speeches.

Japs Claim U.S. Destroyer Sunk

San Francisco, April 24 (AP)—Radio Tokyo today claimed Japanese artillery had sunk a destroyer in a group of ships entering Nakagusuku Bay off Okinawa.

The broadcast, recorded here, reported the recapture of Kakazu town, on Okinawa, already reported by American forces.

Aussies Reach Jap Base in New Guinea

San Francisco, April 24 (A. P.).—The Melbourne radio reported today that Australian forces in northern New Guinea have fought their way to the Japanese base at Maprik, twenty-five miles inland from the coast. One strongpoint is delaying complete occupation said the broadcast, recorded by the FCC. Other Australian forces have reached Boiken, site of a former Catholic mission, on the north coast.

Argentina Puts Teeth In War Decree

APR 25 1945

San Francisco, April 24 (AP)—Argentina's military government is adopting far-reaching measures to put teeth in its declaration of war against the Axis, Avra Warren, director of the State Department's office of American Republic Affairs, reported today on his arrival from a good-will mission to Buenos Aires.

Eager to demonstrate that their decision to participate in the Allied war effort is sincere, even though belated, the Argentine authorities have promised full co-operation in both military and economic aspects of the struggle.

Naval And Air Agreements

Coincident with Warren's visit, agreements were concluded between Vice Admiral William R. Monroe, commander of the South Atlantic Fleet, and Argentina's Navy Minister, Rear Admiral Alberto Tesaire, for collaboration in naval activities.

A similar agreement, affecting military aviation, was reached in conversations between Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, commander of the Caribbean area, and Argentine Vice President and Minister of War, Col. Juan D. Peron.

John C. McClintock, who accompanied the Warren mission as economic adviser, remained behind to confer with Gen. Julio Checchi, Secretary of Industry and Commerce, on economic measures.

Expected Results Listed

These studies are expected to result in decrees or agreements for exchange of information, enforcement of the black list, intervention in German banks and business houses, expansion of import and export movement between the United States and Argentina and between Argentina and the other countries engaged in the war against the Axis and guaranteeing that Argentina will not become a safe haven for German funds.

Warren also received formal assurances that Argentina would contribute the equivalent of one per cent of its national income—the same amount as other participating nations—to UNRRA.

Furthermore, Warren said, Acting Foreign Minister Ameghino told him that Argentina would participate unreservedly in the Chapultepec conference decisions, reached in its absence, and would collaborate in the reinforcement of the Pan-American Union projected at Mexico City, and in strengthening the inter-American system.

New Yorker Taken Prisoner.

Ottawa, April 24 (A. P.).—The Canadian Army announced today that Private Thomas H. Edwards, whose wife lives at 33 East 70th street, New York city, is a prisoner of war. He previously was reported missing.

Quintuplets May Aid 7th War Loan Campaign

North Bay, Ont., April 24 (AP)—Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, said today he is considering an invitation for the five girls and their parents to participate in the United States Seventh War Loan Drive at Chicago in June.

He said the invitation from the Chicago State Street Council was approved by the United States Treasury Department.

Dionne said he did not think there was sufficient time to prepare for such a trip, but that he would consider further before making a decision. The quintuplets and their parents were invited to make a three-day visit to Chicago, beginning June 16.

LONG ISLAND FLYER FLED NAZI CAPTORS

APR 25 1945

Montreal, April 24 (A. P.).—Capt. Edward H. Stafford of Port Washington, N. Y., the only civilian aviator flying out of Montreal ever to be made a prisoner of war, has returned from Britain to nearby Dorval Airport, it was announced today.

Stafford, before Pearl Harbor, volunteered to fly bombers from Canada to the Allied forces overseas. Two years ago an unarmed Catalina flying boat—which he was piloting from nearby Boucherville to Scotland—was attacked and shot down into the sea by Nazi fighters, the only one of the many thousands of combat aircraft sent across the Atlantic from Canada to be destroyed in transit by enemy action.

Stafford, although injured, swam for an hour with two survivors of his crew of five. They finally reached the French coast, where they were captured by Nazi soldiers. Stafford was separated from his companions and only learned upon returning here that they are safe in a German prison camp. He had been sent to another camp, from which he escaped shortly before the Allies seized it.

WHERE AMERICAN DIVISIONS BATTLE

The following summary of action covers only those Associated Press reports in which divisions were specifically mentioned:

ON WESTERN FRONT.

3d Infantry—Crossed intact Danube bridge at Dillingen.

4th Infantry—Crossed Danube at Dillingen.

8th Armored—Captured the commanding general of the newly annihilated German Eleventh SS Panzer Army in the Harz Mountain trap.

10th Armored—Reached the Danube forty miles to the southwest at Ehlingen; presumably took part in capture of Ulm.

11th Armored—Drove into Cham in spearheading Third Army push; severed three more main routes from the Pilsen-Prague munitions plants to the Alps.

12th Armored—Widened bridgehead across the Danube at Dillingen to ten miles and deepened it to six; captured airfield at Kicklingen; seized towns of Gumbremmingen, Altenbraindt and Sontheim.

26th Infantry—Advanced eighteen miles southeast to the Schongras area, seventeen miles northeast of Regensburg.

44th Infantry—Made latest crossing of the Danube at Ehingen, 117 miles northwest of Brenner Pass.

83d Infantry—Established Ninth Army contact with Russians by radio.

90th Infantry—Reached Michldorf, forty miles north of Regensburg.

100th Infantry—Captured eighty-acre V-bomb plant intact.

IN THE PACIFIC.

1st Marines—Mop up northern Okinawa.

6th Marines—Mop up northern Okinawa.

7th Infantry—Took two small crags on east coast of Okinawa.

24th Infantry—Dashed halfway to Davao on Mindanao; split Jap forces in two.

27th Infantry—Makes small gains on west coast of Okinawa.

32d Infantry—Local advances on Luzon.

33d Infantry—Local advances on Luzon.

40th Infantry—Killed 1,000 Japs in ten days on Leyte.

96th Infantry—Stalled under Jap artillery bombardment in center of drive down southern Okinawa.

(170) LONDON APRIL 24-(AP)-SHIPPING IN KIEL HARBOR WAS ATTACKED TWICE LAST NIGHT BY RAF MOSQUITOS, USING THE SAME QUICK-HITTING TACTICS THAT BAFFLED BERLIN'S DEFENSES FOR A YEAR. IT WAS THE FOURTH ATTACK ON KIEL IN THREE NIGHTS.

OTHER MOSQUITO SQUADRONS BOMBED RAILWAY YARDS AT RENDSBURG, WEST OF KIEL ON THE MAIN LINE FROM SOUTHERN DENMARK, AND SHIPPING IN THE HARBOR OF TRAVEMUENDE ON LUEBECK BAY IN THE BALTIC.

NO PLANES WERE LOST IN ANY OF THESE ATTACKS. TWO GERMAN AIRCRAFT WERE SHOT DOWN BY NIGHT FIGHTERS ON PATROL NORTH OF BERLIN.

GERMAN SHIPPING AROUND THE FRISIAN ISLANDS AND ESTUARIES LEADING TO NORTH GERMAN PORTS ALSO WAS ATTACKED LAST NIGHT BY RAF PILOTS, WHO HAVE SUNK MORE THAN 150 SMALL SHIPS AND BARGES IN THE LAST SEVEN DAYS.

SOUTHWEST OF WANGEROOGE, THE MOST EASTERLY OF THE FRISIAN ISLANDS, A GROUP OF TYPHOONS SET TWO 3,000-TON STEAMERS AFIRE AND DAMAGED NINE SMALLER VESSELS AND THREE TUGS.

AUSTRALIAN AND NEW ZEALAND BEAUFIGHTER PILOTS DIVED BETWEEN 3,000 FOOT CLIFFS IN SOGNE FJORD IN NORWAY AND SANK A GERMAN FREIGHTER YESTERDAY.

LONDON, April 24--(AP)--Most Britons have a net income of between $600 and $1,000 a year, a government-published analysis of national income disclosed tonight.

APR 25 1945

There are only 80 persons in the nation with a net annual income of $24,000 or more.

The number of persons in the $600-$1,000 bracket increased from 4,500,000 for the fiscal year 1938-39 to 7,000,000 for the year 1942-43. In the $1,000-$2,000 bracket the number increased from

APR 25 1945

1,820,000 to 5,300,000. The number of persons in the $2,000-$4,000 group increased from 450,000 to 550,000.

The number of persons in the $16,000-[illegible] $24,000 bracket decreased, however, from 12,000 in the prewar fiscal year to 1,170 in 1942-43.

LEIPZIG, APRIL 24-(AP)-THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT IN LEIPZIG IS SUPPORTED BY A POLICE FORCE THAT PACKS A TERRIFIC PUNCH. THIS FORCE IS EQUIPPED WITH HALFTRACKS WITH REVOLVING TURRETS, MACHINEGUNS AND SELF PROPELLED GUNS.

ABOUT ONE FOURTH OF THE CITY, THE TOUGHEST SECTION, IS UNDER THE CONTROL OF LT.COL.DONALD L.MCMILLAN OF 250 WEST SOUTH STREET, SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

MOST OF THE TROUBLES HAVE OCCURRED AT FOOD STORES AND AT LIQUOR AND TOBACCO SHOPS. LIBERATED FOREIGN WORKERS STORMED THEM AND THE GERMANS GOT THE SAME IDEA. THERE WERE SOME LIVELY DISORDERS UNTIL AMERICAN HALF TRACKS WITH SMOKING GUNS SWUNG INTO ACTION. THEY FIRED SHOTS INTO THE AIR AND CHARGED THE MOBS WITH VEHICLES AND IN THIS MANNER SCATTERED THE RIOTERS.

CURFEW VIOLATORS WERE NUMEROUS THE FIRST NIGHT. THEY WERE HERDED INTO A LARGE VACANT LOT AND FORCED TO SPEND THE NIGHT THERE.

APR 25 1945

MCMILLAN USED THEM ALSO TO HELP PUT OUT A FIRE THAT HAD STARTED IN THE RAILROAD YARDS, DANGEROUSLY NEAR SOME GERMAN EXPLOSIVES.

TWELFTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, GERMANY, APRIL 24-(AP)-T/SGT.DAVID A.PHILLIPS OF 353 DOROTHY LANE, FORT WORTH, TEX., WAS LIBERATED A FEW DAYS AGO FROM A GERMAN PRISON CAMP BY ADVANCING AMERICAN FORCES AFTER A YEAR'S CONFINEMENT. THIS WAS ONLY THE BEGINNING.

DOUGHBOYS OF THE 45TH INFANTRY DIVISION GAVE HIM A BOTTLE OF COGNAC AND A KEG OF BEER. THEN HE MET HIS FIRST FOUR STAR GENERAL --OMAR N.BRADLEY. THEN HE SAW HIS SISTER JANE, A RED CROSS WORKER WITH THE TWELFTH ARMY GROUP, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN TWO YEARS. AFTER ALL THIS HE HAD A BATH AND A STEAK DINNER.

SGT.PHILLIPS WAS SHOT DOWN OVER VIENNA IN A FLIGHT FROM ITALY.

HOLZHEIM, GERMANY, APRIL 24-(AP)-TWENTY AMERICAN PRISONERS OF WAR WERE LIBERATED LATE YESTERDAY AT EPPISBERG WHEN A 12TH ARMORED DIVISION TANK FORCE COMMANDED BY LT.CHARLES MCLAUGHLIN OVERRAN THE TOWN AND GERMAN GUARDS.

THREE OFFICERS AND 17 ENLISTED MEN WERE IN THE GROUP, MOST OF THEM CAPTURED IN ACTION EARLY THIS MONTH. THIS NEWS OF THEIR LIBERATION MAY REACH THEIR RELATIVES AHEAD OF WAR DEPARTMENT NOTICES THAT THE MEN WERE MISSING IN ACTION.

TWO AIR FORCE OFFICERS CAPTURED LAST MARCH SAID THE GERMANS SOME MILES AHEAD WERE DRIVING A COLUMN OF PRISONERS, INCLUDING 500 AMERICANS AND SEVERAL THOUSAND OTHER NATIONALITIES, TOWARD MUNICH. THEY WERE ON FOOT, AND U.S. ARMOR MAY REACH THE MEN SOON.

APR 25 1945

THE 20 MEN LIBERATED ARE:

LT.HENRY BOCKSTEGE, 905 HARMONY WAY, EVANSVILLE, IND., A NIGHT FIGHTER PILOT SHOT DOWN LAST MARCH 20 AT LANDAU.

FLIGHT OFFICER GEORGE NASTANOVICH, 47 CARLTON ST., JOHNSON CITY, N.Y., U.S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE FIGHTER PILOT SHOT DOWN NEAR STUTTGART MARCH 22.

LT.NOEL FELIX, PRIOR LAKE, MINN., 100TH DIVISION, CAPTURED APRIL 7 NEAR HEILBRONN, IN FIGHTING A DELAYING ACTION.

PFC.A.A.HITZELBERGER, 1443 SUMMERDALE AVE., CHICAGO, ILL., PFC. ELWOOD METCALF, 2724 EIGHTH ST., ASTORIA, N.Y., PFC.CARL CORLENIUS, 11 PENN ST., JEFFERSONVILLE, IND., AND PFC.GLEN HODGES, 5160 CASPAR AVE., LOS ANGELES, CALIF., ALL CAPTURED AT HEILBRONN APRIL 7.

SGT.HERMAN BLACK, LESTERVILLE, MO., SGT.CHARLES EARLE, BOX 55, GROVER, PA; PVT.OLIVER LARSON, BOTTINEAU, N.DAK.; PVT.DOUGLAS TODD, LUMBERTON, N.C.; PFC.BENJAMIN PEDDICORD, 1132 RIVERSIDE AVE., BALTIMORE, MD., PFC.ELMORE LIPSCOMB, 1710 HOLBROOK AVE., BESSEMER, ALA., PVT.ROBERT CONROW, 314 SHENANGO ST., BINGHAMTON, N.Y., ALL CAPTURED NEAR HEILBRONN APRIL 7.

PFC.ELWOOD STITZEL, 3508 BAKER BLVD. (CITY UNLISTED). PVT. IVAR JOHNSON, 923 LINCOLNWAY SOUTH, LA PORTE, IND.; PVT.WALTER STAEHLI, ROUTE 1, PARIS, OHIO; PVT.ABIJAH JONES, (NO.35843886) HAYDEN, KY., (UNLISTED IN POSTAL GUIDE); SGT.SAM JOHNSON, 2906 49TH ST., TAMPA, FLA., ALL CAPTURED BELOW HEILBRONN ABOUT APRIL 8-10, AND PVT.BRUNO WAZNY, 2111 SIDNEY ST., SOUTHSIDE, PITTSBURGH, PA., CAPTURED NEAR CRAILSHEIM THREE WEEKS AGO.

BOCKSTEGE SAID THE MEN HAD LITTLE TO EAT, AND THAT ONE LOAF OF BREAD DAILY FOR FIVE MEN WAS THE USUAL RATION. THE GERMANS MARCHED THEM 12 TO 15 MILES A DAY AHEAD OF THE AMERICAN TROOPS.

HE DECLARED THERE WAS A LARGE PRISONER COLUMN ON THE ROADS AHEAD.

FELIX SAID, "I SUPPOSE THE GERMANS FED US AS WELL AS THEY COULD. THEY DON'T HAVE MUCH THEMSELVES."

OCCASIONALLY DURING THE 16-DAY TREK, THE COLUMN WOULD FIND ITSELF NEAR A GERMAN FIELD KITCHEN, AND THE GUARDS ALLOWED THEM TO TRY TO GET SOME SOUP, BUT FELIX SAID IT WAS UNPALATABLE.

NASTANOVICH SAID RED CROSS PARCELS HELPED DURING HIS MONTH OF CAPTIVITY, BUT FEW CAME THROUGH. ONE, HE SAID, WAS PARCELLED OUT AMONG 16 MEN. AIR CORPS MEN, HE ADDED, WERE WELL TREATED BEFORE THEY WERE INTERROGATED, BUT AFTER THAT WERE NOT TREATED SO WELL.

WIDE-RANGING COLUMNS OF BOTH FRENCH AND AMERICAN TROOPS FILTERED THROUGH THE SOUTHWESTERN CORNER OF GERMANY TO A POINT WHERE EVERYTHING WEST OF A LINE RUNNING FROM ULM TO LAKE CONSTANCE ON THE SWISS BORDER COULD BE WRITTEN OFF--FREEING POWERFUL FORCES FOR A NEW DRIVE TO THE EAST.

ELEMENTS OF THE 12TH ARMORED DIVISION WERE AT SONTHEIM, 12 MILES NORTHWEST OF AUGSBURG, THE 45TH AND 42ND DIVISIONS ON THEIR LEFT FLANK, THE DANUBE WAS IN A CIRCULAR WERE APPROACHING THE DANUBE ON A SOLID 25-MILE FRONT WHICH WAS ONLY 7 MILES FROM THE RIVER AT SEVERAL POINTS.

THE ONLY OTHER RESISTANCE NORTH OF THE DANUBE THERE WAS NO ESTIMATE OF AREA RADIATING 14 MILES FROM HEIDENHEIM BUT THERE THE SEVENTH'S DILLINGEN AND THE NUMBER OF GERMANS TRAPPED THERE BETWEEN THE ULM-EHINGEN BRIDGEHEADS.

THUNDERBOLT FIGHTERBOMBERS RANGED AHEAD OF THE SEVENTH WHICH HAS CAPTURED 9,557 PRISONERS IN THE PAST 24 HOURS AND WORKED OVER SEVEN GERMAN FIGHTER BASES IN THE AUGSBURG-MUNICH AREA, DESTROYING 58 PLANES AND DAMAGING 83 OTHERS.

TWENTY-THREE JET PLANES WERE DEMOLISHED AND 35 DAMAGED ON AN AUTOBAHN FOUR MILES SOUTH OF THE DILLINGEN BRIDGEHEAD WHERE THEY WERE PARKED UNDER CAMOUFLAGE.

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, APRIL 24-(AP)-THE RUSSIANS MAY EFFECT A JUNCTURE TODAY WITH EAGERLY WAITING AMERICAN TROOPS, A SOVIET TANKMAN HINTED IN FIELD RADIO CONVERSATIONS WITH DOUGHBOYS ON THIS FRONT YESTERDAY.

(SUPREME HEADQUARTERS IN PARIS HAS SAID THAT FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT OF A JUNCTURE WILL BE MADE BY THE CHIEFS OF STATE IN WASHINGTON, LONDON AND MOSCOW.)

STAFF SGT.ALEXANDER J.BALTER, [redacted] AMERICAN TANKMAN FROM PITTSBURGH, PA., WHO SPEAKS BOTH RUSSIAN AND GERMAN, HEARD THE SOVIET SOLDIER SAY:

"CHEERFUL GREETINGS TO OUR AMERICAN COMRADES. GOD BE WITH YOU. GREETINGS AND HEALTH TO OUR ALLIED FRIENDS. WAIT WHERE YOU ARE. HOLD YOUR PATIENCE. WE WILL CONTACT YOU AT YOUR PRESENT LOCATION." THEN HE HINTED THAT THE JUNCTURE MIGHT TAKE PLACE IN THE NEXT 24 HOURS. HE GAVE NO INDICATION OF HIS POSITION, WHICH WOULD HAVE BEEN VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR THE LISTENING AND OBVIOUSLY CHAGRINED GERMANS, WHO TRIED TO JAM THE RECEPTION.

FIELD RADIOS USED FOR THE CONVERSATIONS HAVE A MAXIMUM RANGE OF ONLY 30 TO 35 MILES.

"WE ARE GETTING CLOSER TO YOU CONTINUALLY," THE RUSSIAN VOICE SAID DURING CONTACTS BETWEEN NOON AND 6 P.M. "MORE THAN THAT CANNOT BE SAID NOW. WE RUSSIANS ARE NOT SLEEPING AND ARE DOING EVERYTHING IN OUR POWER TO REACH YOU."

AT ONE POINT THE GERMANS BROKE INTO THE CONVERSATIONS WITH A FEMININE RECORDING OF "ACH DU LIEBER AUGUSTINE" AND AT ANOTHER A VOICE WITH A HEAVY GERMAN ACCENT INTERJECTED IN ENGLISH: "YES, IT WILL BE A GREAT MEETING."
(A DISPATCH BY STARS AND STRIPES REPORTER WADE JONES WRITTEN FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FROM THE U.S.NINTH ARMY FRONT SAID THAT THE FIRST DEFINITE COMMUNICATION BETWEEN THE RUSSIANS AND U.S. 83RD DIVISION TROOPS EAST OF THE ELBE WAS ESTABLISHED BY FIELD RADIO YESTERDAY.)

A8
(A RUSSIAN ARTILLERY LIEUTENANT LIBERATED RECENTLY FROM A GERMAN PRISON CAMP BY THE AMERICANS RECORDED A MESSAGE FROM HIS FORMER COMRADES WHICH WAS PREFACED WITH THE GREETING "AMERICAN FRIENDS, AMERICAN FRIENDS," JONES REPORTED.
(ASKED WHETHER THEY COULD MEET THE AMERICANS IN A SPECIFIC TOWN, THE RUSSIANS REPLIED: "THAT TOWN IS HELD BY THE GERMANS. WE ARE STILL FIGHTING A WAR, YOU KNOW, AND WE WILL HAVE TO FIGHT OUR WAY IN IT." THE INTERPRETER, GRINNING, SAID: "THEY ARE KIDDING US A LITTLE--BUT THEY ARE EXCITED AND HAPPY ABOUT TALKING TO YOU.")
(A DISPATCH FROM ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WES GALLAGHER ON THE NINTH ARMY ELBE RIVER FRONT SAID THE AMERICANS SAW FLARES GO UP SUDDENLY LAST NIGHT IN THE DIRECTION OF BERLIN.)

WITH FIRST ARMY ON THE MULDE--2ND ADD FIRST LEAD PANIC-STRICKEN GERMANS (BY BOYLE) X X X A JUNCTION.
ONE AMERICAN WHO HAD ESCAPED FROM A PRISONER OF WAR CAMP REPORTED THAT THE GERMANS HAD NO RESERVE TROOPS BETWEEN THE MULDE AND THE ELBE AND THAT THEY HAD THROWN INTO THEIR COLLAPSING LINES ALL THEIR TROOPS SOUTH OF BERLIN. HE SAID HE SAW SIX RUSSIANS ON MOTORCYCLES DURING HIS HIKE BACK.
AN EXAMPLE OF THE FLUIDITY OF THE SITUATION EAST OF THE MULDE WHERE THE GERMAN TROOPS AND CIVILIANS WERE MILLING ABOUT BEFORE THE ONRUSHING RUSSIANS WAS THE EXPLOIT OF THREE VETERAN CORRESPONDENTS WITH THE FIRST ARMY.
WILLIAM STONEMAN OF THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, RUSSELL HILL OF THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE AND JACK BELDEN OF HARPERS MAGAZINE CROSSED THE MULDE RIVER AND AFTER PARKING THEIR JEEP PICKED UP THREE BICYCLES ABANDONED BY THE GERMANS. THEY PEDALLED EASTWARD SEVERAL MILES BEYOND THE AMERICAN POSITIONS ALONG ROADS FLOODED WITH GERMAN SOLDIERS, CIVILIANS, FOREIGN WORKERS AND PRISONERS OF WAR -- ALL MIXED TOGETHER LIKE ANIMALS FLEEING FROM FOREST FIRE.
STONEMAN MET A CAR OCCUPIED BY A GERMAN FAMILY AND A SOUTH AFRICAN PRISONER WHO WANTED TO GO BACK AND PICK UP SOME OF HIS PALS. SO STONEMAN CLIMBED IN TOO AND THE CAR DROVE BACK EAST.
"WE PASSED SIX VILLAGES AND WERE 15 MILES BEYOND THE MULDE BEFORE WE HALTED," STONEMAN SAID. "EVERY TIME WE CAME TO A BUNCH OF GERMAN SOLDIERS WE JAMMED ON THE BRAKES, BUT THEY ALL WANTED TO SURRENDER."
THEY FOUND THE VILLAGE THEY WERE LOOKING FOR, HALTED LONG ENOUGH TO LOAD ON THE SOUTH AFRICANS AND THEN STARTED BACK TOWARD THE MULDE.
"I TOLD THE GERMANS THAT THE RUSSIANS WOULD PROBABLY BE THERE TONIGHT," SAID STONEMAN, A VETERAN CORRESPONDENT OF SEVERAL WARS, "AND THEY ALL DROPPED THEIR WEAPONS AND LIT OUT FOR THE MULDE. WE CAME BACK WITH SOUTH AFRICANS HANGING FROM THE ROOF AND SITTING ON THE HOOD."

DILLINGEN ON THE DANUBE, APRIL 24-(AP)-INFANTRY AND ARMOR POURED ACROSS THE DANUBE BRIDGE HERE TODAY AS ADVANCE ELEMENTS AHEAD OF THE 12TH ARMORED DIVISION'S SECURED BRIDGEHEAD PROBED INTO THE FOOTHILLS OF THE ALPS.

ELEMENTS OF THE THIRD AND FOURTH INFANTRY DIVISIONS, WHICH JOINED INFANTRY ATTACHED TO BRIG.GEN.RILEY ENNIS' COMBAT COMMAND A, ROLLED OVER A SPAN THAT HAD BEEN SAVED BY MINUTES FROM BEING BLOWN UP.

THE GERMANS STILL WERE TRYING TO KNOCK OUT THE BRIDGE, AND LOST FOUR MESSERSCHMITT 109S THEY SENT AGAINST IT THIS MORNING. TWO MESSERSCHMITT-109S WERE SHOT DOWN SUNDAY AND ONE JUNKERS-88 YESTERDAY.

AN EFFORT TO WRECK THE BRIDGE WITH ARTILLERY FAILED.

THE KNOWLEDGE THAT ONLY A SHORT DISTANCE AHEAD IN THE HILLS WAS A COLUMN OF AT LEAST 500 AMERICAN PRISONERS OF WAR SPURRED THE DRIVE SOUTHWARD. TWENTY MEN WERE RELEASED LAST NIGHT BY A FORCE AT EPPISBERG.

ENNIS' TASK FORCE 2, COMMANDED BY LT. COL. CLAYTON "DOC" WELLS, 440 HICKORY ST., ABILENE, TEX., AND FORMERLY OF 1236 NORTH RILEY ST., INDIANAPAOLIS, IND., WAS THE FIRST TO REACH THE BRIDGE HERE. HIS MEN SWARMED ON OVER IT.

THE FIRST TANK WAS LED BY LT. CHARLES IPPOLITO OF 716 VAN NEST AVE., THE BRONX, N.Y. IT HIT A LAND MINE, BUT IPPOLITO'S CREW WAS JARRED ONLY SLIGHTLY.

"I'VE HAD TWO OTHER BRIDGES BLOW UP IN MY FACE," IPPOLITO SAID. "THE LAST ONE WAS AT DINKELSBUHL, JUST ABOVE HERE, AND I KEPT MY EYE ON THIS ONE. WE CAME ON THROUGH THIS TOWN, OUR GUNS FIRING, AND CAUGHT TWO COLUMNS OF GERMANS TRYING TO GET OVER THE BRIDGE, ONE MOTOR VE-HICLE AND ONE HORSE-DRAWN. WE BROKE THEM UP. THEN SGT. HUSTON, PVT. STRUTHERS, CAPT. RIDDELL, SGT. WELCH AND SGT. RUDELL GOT UP THERE AND CUT THE WIRES ATTACHED TO THE BOMBS -- AND HERE WE ARE."

APR 25 1945

HERE IS A PARTIAL LIST OF THE MEN WHO MADE IT POSSIBLE TO GET ARMOR QUICKLY OVER THE DILLINGEN BRIDGE:

SGT. IRA RUDELL, 505 NORTH MECHANICS ST., BUTLER, MO., PLATOON LEADER; SGT. J. OGDEN HUSTON, 4128 NORMANDIE ST., SPOKANE, WASH.; SGT. ROBERT E. WELCH, JR., CROSBY TEX.; PVT. R.L. STRUTHERS, 1525 HUNTER ST., WILKINSBURG, PA.; CAPT. WILLIAM RIDDELL, WILMAR FARMS, LIBERTY MO., COMMANDER OF COMPANY C, 43RD TANK BATTALION."

THE FIRST MEN OVER THE BRIDGE SOUTH OF THE DANUBE WERE IN A DETAIL HEADED BY SGT. LESTER PORTER, 402 ACADEMY AVE., DUBLIN, GA. THIS GROUP INCLUDED PFC. FRANK ZENDELL, 3230 NORTH ILLINOIS AVE., INDIANAPOLIS, IND.; PFC. WILLIAM MOORE, 1100 EAST OCEAN VIEW AVE., NORFOLK, VA.; PFC. ROBERT COMPTON, 1949 BURLING ST., CHICAGO, ILL.; PVT. JOHN HORN, FAIR WATER, WIS.; PFC. EDWARD MC GARR, 98 KELLOGG ST., OYSTER BAY, N.Y.

WELLS, RIDDELL AND THE OTHERS GENERALLY AGREED THAT HUSTON WAS THE FIRST MAN ON THE BRIDGE.

"I WAS PLAYING UP AROUND THERE," HUSTON SAID SIMPLY.

ON THE BRIDGE THEY FOUND 9,500 POUNDS OF CAPTURED AMERICAN AERIAL BOMBS SPLIT INTO TWO LOADS, WITH HEAVY LOADS OF ITALIAN EXPLOSIVE BANKED AGAINST THEM. BENEATH THE BRIDGE ON A SHELF BUILT IN A BOAT AGAINST THE PIER THERE WAS ANOTHER HEAVY LOAD OF EXPLOSIVE.

RIDDELL AND STRUTHERS HURRIED BACK, GOT PLIERS AND CUT EVERY WIRE IN SIGHT. THE ENGINEER CORPS WAS CALLED IN LATER TO DOUBLE CHECK ON THE BRIDGE'S SAFETY, AND AN OFFICER SAID:

"ALL THE CREDIT GOES TO THE INFANTRYMEN. THEY CUT THE RIGHT WIRES. ALL WE HAD TO DO WAS TAKE THE BOMBS OFF THE BRIDGE."

JUST BEFORE THE WIRES WERE CUT STRUTHERS SAID A GERMAN CAR CAME DOWN THE ROAD TOWARD THE BRIDGE, PROBABLY IN AN ATTEMPT TO SEE WHY

THE BOMB LOAD HAD NOT GONE OFF. THE INFANTRYMEN ROSE FROM THEIR FOXHOLE AND TOOK THE GERMANS PRISONER.

"WE GOT 1,000 GERMANS AFTER WE GOT INTO TOWN AND I HAD ONLY TWO MEN SHAKEN UP WHEN THAT TANK HIT THE MINE," WELLS SAID. "THERE WAS COMPLETE SURPRISE. THE GERMANS DIDN'T KNOW WE WERE AROUND UNTIL WE CAME SHOOTING IN AT 30 MILES AN HOUR."

WITH U.S.83RD DIVISION IN GERMANY, APRIL 24-(AP)-FOR FOUR DAYS AND NIGHTS NOW CORRESPONDENTS AND SOLDIERS HAVE BEEN SITTING AT THIS NINTH ARMY COMMAND POST WAITING TO REPORT THE IMPENDING AMERICAN AND RUSSIAN JUNCTION.

AT SUNDOWN TONIGHT THERE WAS NO SIGN OF THE RUSSIANS. THERE WERE PLENTY OF RUMORS, RADIO CONVERSATION AND LOTS OF MASTERMINDING REASONS WHY THE JUNCTION HAD NOT BEEN MADE BUT THERE STILL WERE NO RUSSIANS.

ONE OF THE MOST NATURAL SIGHTS HAS BEEN A CONSTANT POKER GAME. THE BOYS WERE USING FRENCH AND BELGIAN FRANCS, GERMAN MARKS, DUTCH GULDEN AND ENGLISH POUNDS WITH HERE AND THERE AN OCCASIONAL YANKEE DOLLAR.

THE GAME WAS CONSTANTLY INTERRUPTED BY RUMORS AND REPORTS ON THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS.

VARIOUS RUMORS SAID THE JUNCTION ALREADY HAD BEEN MADE AT A DOZEN DIFFERENT PLACES; THAT NO JUNCTION WOULD BE MADE UNTIL BERLIN HAD BEEN COMPLETELY CLEARED; AND THAT THE GERMANS WERE INTENDING TO CONCENTRATE A HUGE FORCE IN JUNCTION TERRITORY IN HOPES OF KILLING OR CAPTURING AMERICAN AND RUSSIAN LEADERS.

"WE HAVE NO KNOWLEDGE OF CONTACT WITH RUSSIAN TROOPS ON OUR FRONT," HE SAID WHEN ASKED TO COMMENT ON A REPORT FROM MOSCOW SAYING THAT MARSHAL KONEV'S FIRST UKRAINIAN ARMY HAD MADE A JUNCTION WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY SOME 60 MILES SOUTH OF BERLIN. (THIS REPORT WAS NOT CARRIED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

AERIAL OBSERVERS FOR THE SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION REPORTED TONIGHT SEEING AN UNIDENTIFIED COLUMN AND WATCHING THE TROOPS MARCH INTO A TOWN AFTER ARTILLERY HAD SET ITS BUILDINGS ON FIRE.

MOST FRONT LINE OBSERVERS BELIEVE NOW THAT THE JUNCTION MAY BE MADE SOME TIME TOMORROW.

BELSEN CONCENTRATION CAMP, GERMANY, APRIL 24-(AP)-LIFE WAS BEGINNING TO OVERTAKE DEATH HERE TODAY -- BUT ONLY JUST BEGINNING.

THE BURIAL PITS WERE STILL RECEIVING THEIR MOUNDS OF NAMELESS DEAD, BUT BY THE HUNDREDS NOW INSTEAD OF THOUSANDS.

YESTERDAY APPROXIMATELY 1,600 PERSONS WERE BURIED. IT WAS THE FIRST DAY SINCE THE BRITISH ENTERED THE CAMP A WEEK AGO THAT BURIALS LEFT THE STOCK OF CORPSES SMALLER AT THE END OF A DAY.

HOWEVER, AUTHORITIES ESTIMATE THAT BETWEEN 300 AND 400 PERSONS STILL ARE DYING DAILY FROM THE EFFECTS OF STARVATION DELIBERATELY IMPOSED UPON THEM BY THE S.S. THEY ESTIMATE THE POPULATION WAS 39,000 WHEN THEY TOOK IT OVER AND THAT IT IS NOW 37,000, BUT ADMIT THIS FIGURE IS A VERY ROUGH ESTIMATE.

NEVERTHELESS, PROGRESS IS BEING MADE AND THE CAMP, WHICH LEADING GERMAN CITIZENS ARE BEING FORCED TO INSPECT, IS TODAY ALMOST A PLEASURE GARDEN COMPARED TO THE HORROR OF FIVE DAYS AGO.

IT IS STILL NOT POSSIBLE TO WALK 50 YARDS WITHOUT SEEING DEAD AND DYING AND YOU STILL CAN NOT ESCAPE THE STENCH OF BURNING RAGS AND ROTTING FLESH AND THE EVIL SMELL OF SICKNESS. BUT LONG HUTS AND THE EARTH AROUND THEM, ONCE COVERED WITH CORPSES AND FILTHY RAGS AND AN UNIMAGINABLE COLLECTION OF TRASH, HAVE BEEN SWEPT CLEAN. SEVERAL HUNDRED CHILDREN AND SICK ADULTS ARE BEING MOVED BY DOCTORS TO PLEASANT QUARTERS IN CAMP NUMBER 2, FORMERLY A MILITARY BARRACKS CONSTRUCTED OF BRICK AND CONCRETE WITH RED TILE ROOFS. THE BUILDINGS ARE SET IN LAWNS SURROUNDED BY TREES.

ABOUT 1,000 FRENCHMEN WHO HAD BEEN HELD HERE ARE LEAVING TODAY IN FIFTY TRUCKS FOR HOME.

PARIS, APRIL 24-(AP)-FRENCH STYLISTS DENTED THE AMERICAN MASCULINE ARMOR TODAY WHERE AMERICAN WOMEN FOR YEARS HAVE FAILED.

SEVERAL HUNDRED AMERICAN MEN WERE LURED INTO UNASHAMED ATTENDANCE AT AN OUT-AND-OUT FASHION SHOW PUT ON WITH DOLLS, YARD-HIGH MODELS WITH WIRE BODIES AND PLASTIC HEADS. FIVE LIVE MODELS WERE IN ATTENDANCE.

BUCK PRIVATES AND GENERALS MINGLED IN THE THRONG AT THE ELABORATE DISPLAY OF MANNEQUINS IN MINIATURE COSTUMES, AND ONE WAC LIEUTENANT COMMENTED AFTER THIS PREVIEW FOR ALLIED SERVICEMEN:

"IF LA GUARDIA WANTS TO MAKE NEW YORK THE WORLD FASHION CENTER, THIS DISPLAY WILL MAKE HIM PLENTY DISCOURAGED."

BRIG. GEN. H.F.LOOMIS OF ROCKVILLE, CONN., VIEWING EVENING GOWN CREATIONS WITH A RAISED EYEBROW, REMARKED: "I'M GOING TO WRITE ABOUT THIS TO MY WIFE. THEY'VE MANAGED TO GET A GREAT VARIETY IN STYLES, BUT THE HATS ARE AWFUL. THERE SHOULD BE A GOVERNMENT DECREE ABOUT THESE GREAT HIGH HATS. BESIDES, SOME OF THEM LOOK LIKE WHAT WE HAD IN AMERICA TWO YEARS AGO."

SGT. MAX ROSENMAN, 424 ASHFORD ST., BROOKLYN, N.Y., MADE NOTES ON THE DISPLAYS.

"THIS IS TERRIFIC," HE SAID. "THE BEST SELLING JOB I'VE EVER SEEN. THIS IS MY BUSINESS. I WAS A RESIDENT BUYER IN NEW YORK FOR CHICAGO STORES."

T/3 HAROLD PRAGER, SIX MELROSE AVE., TOLEDO, OHIO, SEEMED A BIT UNHAPPY.

"I DON'T KNOW ABOUT THIS STUFF," HE SAID. "I WAS DRAGGED HERE BY A FRIEND. THOSE LIVE MODELS ARE PRETTY, THOUGH."

PARIS, APRIL 24-(AP)-THE WHOLE OF FRANCE WAS ELECTRIFIED TODAY BY THE NEWS THAT AGED MARSHAL PETAIN WAS IN SWITZERLAND AND INTENDED TO RETURN TO PARIS TO STAND TRIAL.

A MINISTRY OF JUSTICE OFFICIAL SAID THE PROCEEDINGS, NEWLY SET TO START MAY 17, PROBABLY WOULD BE POSTPONED UNTIL IT WAS CERTAIN PETAIN ACTUALLY PLANNED TO RETURN TO FRANCE.

ONLY TODAY THE MINISTRY OF JUSTICE HAD ANNOUNCED THAT PETAIN WOULD BE TRIED BY PROXY AND THE DATE SET FOR MAY 17. ANDRE MORNET WAS NAMED PROSECUTOR.

THE CHARGE WILL BE HIGH TREASON.

IT IS BASED ON PROBABLY THE LARGEST DOSSIER EVER COMPILED AGAINST ANY ACCUSED FRENCHMAN. THOUSANDS OF DOCUMENTS, OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS, LETTERS AND RECORDS OF HIS CORRESPONDENCE WITH THE GERMANS WILL BE INTRODUCED.

IN SHORT THE WHOLE STORY OF EVENTS IMMEDIATELY LEADING UP TO THE FALL OF FRANCE AND THE RECORD--MOST OF WHICH HAS NOT BEEN DISCLOSED--OF WHAT OCCURRED THEREAFTER WILL BE GIVEN TO THE WORLD.

MOREOVER IT IS KNOWN THAT THE PROSECUTION WILL ATTEMPT TO PROVE THAT PETAIN WAS IN COMMUNICATION WITH THE GERMANS EVEN BEFORE THE WAR. THAT PART OF THE DOSSIER IS BEING KEPT SECRET.

AFTER THE FALL OF FRANCE IT WAS REPEATEDLY ASSERTED THAT PETAIN, WHO IN 1930 SERVED AS AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY TO SPAIN, WAS AN INTIMATE OF A FORMER GERMAN AMBASSADOR MADRID.

APR 25 1945

APR 25 1945

IN 1930 SERVED AS AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY TO SPAIN, WAS AN INTIMATE OF A FORMER GERMAN AMBASSADOR TO MADRID.

ON THIS POINT, ESPECIALLY, THE FRENCH ARE ANXIOUS TO HEAR HIS OWN TESTIMONY.

APR 25 1945

THE TRIAL BY PROXY, A LEGAL INSTITUTION IN FRANCE, WAS PREPARED AND SCHEDULED FOR HEARING FOR THREE MAIN REASONS:

1. IT IS THE CROWNING EFFORT IN A LONG AND SOMBER PROCESS OF "PURGING" FRENCH COLLABORATORS, A MAJORITY OF WHOM SAID THEY MERELY TOOK ORDERS FROM PETAIN.

2. IT IS DESIGNED TO DISPEL BELIEF THAT PETAIN WAS "A CONFUSED BUT HONEST OLD MAN WHO MADE A MISTAKE."

3. DECISION OF THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT TO PROVE TO THE WORLD AND ESPECIALLY THE UNITED STATES THAT FRANCE WAS BETRAYED BY A SMALL CLIQUE OF WHICH PETAIN WAS THE CHIEF--NOT THAT THE FRENCH NATION AS SUCH QUIT IN THE FACE OF THE GERMAN ATTACK.

ME1146AEW

GEN. DE GAULLE HIMSELF MIGHT BE CALLED UPON TO TESTIFY. DE GAULLE WAS PRESENT AT THE STORMY SESSION IN JUNE, 1940, WHEN PETAIN ANNOUNCED HIS INTENTION TO ASK FOR AN ARMISTICE. DE GAULLE AND OTHER MILITARY LEADERS ARGUED FUTILELY THAT THE FRENCH ARMY STILL WAS CAPABLE OF HOLDING A LARGE SECTION OF FRANCE, ESPECIALLY THE BRITTANY COAST. BUT PETAIN WAS ADAMANT.

HE HAS BEEN CALLED THE "THE APOSTLE OF SURRENDER" AND THE DIARY OF RAYMOND POINCARE, FRENCH PRESIDENT IN THE LAST WAR, IS STUDDED WITH NOTES ABOUT PETAIN'S PESSIMISM OVER THE POSSIBILITY OF THE ALLIES WINNING THAT CONFLICT.

THE PROSECUTION SAID PETAIN'S DOSSIER WOULD SHOW WITH ALMOST COMPLETE ACCURACY THE EXTENT TO WHICH THE FRENCH COLLABORATIONISTS ACTED ON DIRECT INSTRUCTIONS FROM HIM.

POSTERS SUMMONING PETAIN TO APPEAR FOR TRIAL MAY 17 ALREADY HAVE BEEN PRINTED. NORMALLY THEY WOULD BE POSTED IN PUBLIC BUILDINGS THROUGHOUT FRANCE 10 DAYS BEFORE THE HEARINGS.

FEW FRENCHMEN EVER EXPECTED TO SEE THE OLD MAN ACTUALLY APPEAR IN THE DOCKET. BUT THEY ANXIOUSLY AWAITED THE READING OF HIS PRIVATE PAPERS. UNDER A TRIAL BY PROXY WHATEVER DECREE THE COURT MIGHT RENDER WOULD REMAIN VALID UNTIL HIS DEATH OR UNTIL HE APPEARED AND FOUND MEANS OF CLEARING HIMSELF OF ITS CHARGES.

PARIS, APRIL 24-(AP)-DESPITE HAMBURG RADIO BROADCASTS BOASTING THAT ADOLF HITLER WAS IN BERLIN PERSONALLY COMMANDING THE DEFENSE OF THE TOPPLING CAPITAL, IT WAS BELIEVED GENERALLY AT SUPREME ALLIED HEADQUARTERS TODAY THAT THE FUEHRER ACTUALLY HAS LONG SINCE FLED TO HIS SOUTHERN REDOUBT AND PROBABLY NOW IS AT BERCHTESGADEN.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT AGENCIES AND OFFICES A WEEK AGO MOVED TO THURINGIA. BUT THE AMERICAN DRIVE THROUGH THE MIDDLE OF GERMANY FORCED THESE AGENCIES AND OFFICES TO FLEE AGAIN, AND THIS TIME THE WHOLE ADMINISTRATION OF GERMANY WENT INTO THE SOUTHERN HIDEAWAY, ACCORDING TO INFORMATION HERE.

IT IS HARDLY CONCEIVABLE, EVEN WITH HIS FLAIR FOR THE MELODRAMATIC, THAT HITLER WOULD HAVE SO PAINSTAKINGLY TURNED THE BAVARIAN AND NORTHERN AUSTRIAN MOUNTAIN BELT INTO A FINAL FORTRESS OF NAZISM IF HE HAD NOT COUNTED ALL ALONG ON BEING THERE HIMSELF FOR HIS FINAL DAYS IN POWER.

(WHILE NAZI PROPAGANDISTS PICTURED HITLER LAST NIGHT AS "DIRECTING FROM THE FRONTLINE" THE BATTLE OF BERLIN A LATTER BROADCAST BY A STATION USING THE WAVELENGTH OF THE UNDERGROUND WEREWOLF SAID THAT HITLER WAS NOT IN THE REICH CAPITAL, BUT THAT PROPAGANDA MINISTER PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS, "THE FUEHRER'S TRUSTED FRIEND, IS DIRECTING THE BERLIN VOLKSSTURM."

MASSED RUSSIAN ARMOR DRIVES TO CENTER OF CITY

Believe 500,000 German Troops May Be Trapped in Encirclement.

CITY IS DOOMED

Link-up of Russians and Americans Near Elbe Now Imminent.

By ROMNEY WHEELER

LONDON, Thursday, April 26—(AP) Doomed Berlin was completely encircled by two mighty Soviet armies yesterday and as the Russians fought through subways and streets toward the city's blazing heart, Red army spearheads to the southwest swarmed across the Elbe river toward an imminent link-up with American forces.

Perhaps 500,000 Nazi troops were trapped in the historic encirclement of the wrecked capital, and late German broadcasts reported that massed tanks of Soviet armor had smashed through jungles of twisted steel and stone and had reached the "center" of the half-conquered city.

There was a possibility that Adolf Hitler and Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels had been caught in the Red army trap at Berlin. Throughout last night the Hamburg radio—principal Nazi station still operating—began every report with the slogan: "The Fuehrer is in Berlin."

No less momentous than Premier Stalin's triumphant announcement of Berlin's encirclement — three years and 10 months after Hitler's legions invaded the Soviet Union June 22, 1941—was the Soviet high command's disclosure that Red army forces were pouring across the Elbe.

Near Junction with Americans

There, in the narrowing waist of Hitler's "Fortress Europe," Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army surged across the water barrier and captured the west bank fortress of Reisa, 22 miles northwest of the Saxony capital of Dresden. These forces were 22 miles west of American positions on the Mulde river—but only 18 miles from German-reported American bridgeheads across the Mulde.

German broadcasts said that Konev's troops had reached the Elbe on a 24-mile front between Reisa and Torgau and indicated that Russian engineers were pouring men across the Elbe along the entire sector at points less than 17 miles from the Americans.

On top of these victories on the central front, Marshal Alexander Vasilenvsky's Third White Russian army captured the East Prussian port of Pillau and cleared the East Prussian mainland of the last German hold-out troops.

Far to the south, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army was fighting in the outskirts of the Czechoslovakia arensal city of Bruenn (Brno), one of Hitler's last war production centers, after capturing the suburbs of Lisen, Cernovice and Prizrenice on the east and south.

The Moscow radio, meanwhile, announced that nearly 2,000,000 German troops had been killed or captured on the Eastern front since Jan. 1, raising to more than 11,000,000 the vast toll of German casualties announced by the Red army in nearly four years of war.

As the fantastic battles above and below ground inside Berlin increased in deadly fury, the burning German capital was encircled in swift wheeling movements around the western suburbs by Konev's First Ukrainians and Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army.

Even as Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels was broadcasting empty promises that reinforcements were on their way and was exhorting Berliners to hold out, the combined Soviet armies slashed across Berlin's last westward communication links with Brandenburg.

Zhukov's tankmen thrust 11 miles south from captured Nauen and seized the Havel river fort of Merquandt, five miles northwest of the great southwestern suburb of Potsdam.

Cross Havel River

At the same time, Konev's army smashed 18 miles northward from Beelitz below Potsdam, broke through a defense line south of Schwielow See and crossed the Havel river, winning suburban Ketzin, 12 miles east of the great city of Brandenburg.

Along the Havel river, the steel ring around Berlin's western approaches was five miles wide. Nine miles to the north, Zhukov's troops broadened to the band to 10 miles between Nauen and Falkenhagen, four miles west of the ordnance center of Spandau. In the area, Zhukov's men also captured Elstal, Roehrbeck, Falkensee and Lager Doeberitz near Berlin's western city limits.

The dramatic encirclement ended all Nazi hopes of rushing reinforcements to the trapped Berlin garrison except by air, Berlin's airfields reportedly were filled with planes evacuating high Nazi officials.

Relentless Pounding

In Berlin the Nazi garrison slowly was being overwhelmed by a mass of Soviet armor as the Russians seized four more city districts, pressing through rubble-strewn streets as Soviet artillery and aircraft mercilessly bombarded bridges over the Spree river in mid-city and brought virtually all the capital's rail stations under fire.

The Hamburg radio said that Red army forces had reached Berlin's shell-pocked center in an unidentified sector, but claimed they had been "halted by German counter-thrusts" launched by German soldiers with the guns of Nazis SS fanatics at their backs.

Fight in Subways

The Soviet high command announced that Zhukov's troops, pressing into the city from the east, where artillery battles were being fought in the depths of the subway system of the Frankfurter Strasse, had captured Treptow, three and a quarter miles from the interscetion of Unter Den Linden and Friedrichstrasse.

Near the Schlesischer railroad depot, the Germans reported that the Plaza theater had changed hands several times in bloody fighting in which the flaming building was half held by the Russians and half by the defenders.

By German account, these troops were little more than a mile southwest of Alexander Platz, one of Berlin's main commercial centers, and late enemy broadcast said Zhukov's men were driving on Alexander Platz along Frankfurter strasse, Landsberger strasse and Greitswalder strasse.

Near Airport

In southeastern Berlin, Zhukov's tankmen broke down street barricades and captured the Britz district, only a mile from the great Tempelhof airdrome which was under constant artillery fire.

Simultaneously, Konev's troops battled deeper into the city from the southwest and captured the residential districts of Lichtenfelde and Ehlendorf, eight miles from the city center, and by German admission had pushed on toward nearby Dahlem and were fighting near the Botanical gardens.

As German loudspeaker vans circled around the wrecked city "in order to prevent rumors and give a clear picture of the situation", Soviet troops southeast of the capital were cutting up a 1,500-square mile pocket of German troops trapped in an encirclement west of the Neisse river.

Zhukov's troops occupied the town of Muellrose on the Oder-Spree canal and swept 20 miles beyond the Oder-Neisse confluence and won Friedland, a highway junction controlling enemy communications in the dwindling pocket. Konev's troops seized 40 towns and villages at the base of the pocket north of Cottbus, including Peitz.

While the two armies captured 6,500 prisoners in the day's fighting, Moscow confirmed German reports of vicious enemy counter-attacks northeast of Dresden in the Bautzen area against the southern flank of Konev's army which had swept to the Elbe.

In Berlin, the gigantic battle roared on without let-up.

Describe Subway Battles

Berlin eye-witness reports relayed from Moscow told of resistance as the battle surged through the capital's subway stations and tunnels. Special squads of Nazi submachine gunners rode underground express trains in reckless attempts to disrupt Soviet communications lines, emerging from the tunnels behind Red Army lines.

A front dispatch said the Germans were holding streets under crossfire from subway station entrances. Again and again they popped up in such vantage points, long after Soviet infantry vanguards had swept by.

Russ Encircle Reich Capital, Reported In Heart Of City

APR 26 1945

London, April 25 (AP)—Premier Marshal Stalin announced complete encirclement of Berlin today and the Hamburg radio admitted that the Russians had reached the heart of the city.

The announcement of the encirclement came in an order directed jointly to Marshals Gregory K. Zhukov and Ivan Konev, which said the troops of the 1st White Russian and 1st Ukrainian armies had linked up northwest of Potsdam.

Stalin said the juncture cut all roads leading out of the capital and totally inclosed it.

The Hamburg radio announced the penetration to the center of Berlin a short time before Stalin's order was broadcast from Moscow.

"The Soviets were halted by German counterthrusts in the center of Berlin," the enemy station said of the battle for the capital. "They suffered tremendous losses."

The geographical heart of the city is on the famous Unter den Linden. The German high command announced earlier that the Red Army had sliced the last escape railway line westward from Berlin.

At Elbe On 22-Mile Front

Soviet troops were reported in the enemy's communiqué to have reached the Elbe River on a 22-mile front northwest of Dresden.

Moscow announced Monday that Russians had reached the Elbe northwest of Dresden. At last reports, Americans stood on the Mulde River, east of Leipzig, and 20 miles from the Elbe there.

Between Riesa And Torgau

The broadcast German communiqué said the Russians reached the Elbe between Riesa, 25 miles northwest of Dresden, and Torgau, another 22 miles farther northwest.

Half of Berlin was held by Soviet troops, who were beating down German barricades of stone and iron, knocking back German tanks, and fighting Nazis who popped out of subways behind Russian lines. The city was described as a wreckage of stone.

Reach Ketzin

The 1st White Russian Army cut 9 miles southward west of Berlin to Ketzin, 14 miles due west of the capital, the German communiqué said.

The Germans said the 1st Ukrainian Army had reached Babelsberg, fashionable suburb between Potsdam and Berlin. Babelsberg is 11½ miles east and slightly south of Ketzin. There the Soviets snipped the last link southwestward.

Russian guns were methodically reducing the huge city block by block.

The beleaguered enemy within the city threw in repeated counter-attacks yesterday, dying by the scores. The Russians announced that German dead during the day totaled at least 6,000. The remnants of the Luftwaffe, husbanded for this final defense of the capital, lost twenty-six aircraft shot down yesterday, Moscow said.

The junction of the two armies in Berlin completed encirclement of all Germans remaining in an area sixty miles long and thirty miles broad, stretching back to the Oder and Neisse rivers. Already battling toward a cleanup of this region, the Russians yesterday captured the fortress of Fuerstenberg on the west bank of the Oder and Guben on the east bank of the Neisse just south of the confluence of the two streams.

South of Berlin, in the region where Russian and American forces were drawing together on a broad front, Soviet troops captured Grossenhain, twenty miles northwest of Dresden.

The Germans still were broadcasting the assertion that Hitler himself was inside Berlin, directing its defense, but the best Allied sources believed that this was just propaganda and that the Fuehrer had taken refuge at Berchtesgaden in Bavaria, toward which both Russian and American armies were advancing.

Red Army troops in East Prussia, far behind the Berlin front, have captured the port of Pillau, last Nazi stronghold on the Samland peninsula, Stalin announced tonight in a second order of the day.

Battle Of Subways

Moscow, April 25 (AP)—A fantastic battle surged through the subways beneath Berlin's rubble-strewn streets today as Russian forces fought to crush fanatical Nazi troops using the underground network to stage surprise raids on Soviet communications.

Eyewitness accounts sent by Russian correspondents from the German capital said Nazi soldiers, rushing from station to station in express trains, were constantly popping up at unexpected spots behind Red Army troops fighting their way toward the center of the city.

These and other reports of the struggle inside Berlin suggested the Germans might succeed in making a long stand in the capital.

Battle Called "Peculiar"

A Red Star correspondent, describing the strategic use to which the Germans were putting the Berlin subways, declared the battle for the city was assuming "a peculiar character."

"It is difficult to define," he wrote. "Firing is going on up ahead and then there are unexpected battles in the comparatively deep rear.

"The Germans have transferred from the center of Berlin through the subways many fresh units. They crawl from the subway stations, bringing fieldpieces with them. The streets are again under fire.

Must Be Driven Back

"We have to wipe them out or drive them back into the tunnels; otherwise they would spread over many blocks and seriously threaten our communications."

The Red Star correspondent told of a fierce hour-long battle around one station where the Nazis suddenly appeared in an area from which they previously had been cleared.

Russian tanks and artillery finally were called into action to blast a path for Soviet infantry, who drove the Germans back into the subway at bayonet point and then followed them in the pitch-dark tunnel to set off mines and seal it up.

"Our artillery even managed to pull in small guns and fire along the tunnels," the correspondent said.

Traffic Heavy West Of Elbe

Red Air Force pilots reported roads leading into the city from the west crowded with traffic, apparently Nazi reserves hurrying in from positions along the Elbe.

This traffic was running a gantlet of bursting shells and bombing and strafing from Russian and British planes.

By this morning, Russian forces steadily fighting their way toward the center of Berlin held 27 suburbs and intermediate sections of the city and at least eight railway and electric railway stations, including some of the largest. Pilots said they could see new large fires in the city.

The Izvestia correspondent in Berlin described the center of the capital as an "inferno."

Many White Flags

White flags are appearing in larger numbers in the streets down which the Russians are driving, these advices said. Nazi officers were reported shooting down men in other places if they tried to retreat or give up.

Water, gas, electricity and food are giving out in the city. Russian shells have burst many water mains. A major gas works and a substation have been captured. Some power stations have been damaged and many electric wires are down. Telephone communications are disrupted.

"Continuous Counterattacks"

"The Hitlerites are launching continuous counterattacks, but Soviet tankmen, artillerymen, infantry and special storm troops, are fighting with unparalleled fury, knowing that victory is in sight," wrote Boris Afanasiev, correspondent for the newspaper Trud.

"German anti-tank guns and machine guns are opening fire from basement windows and special embrasures made in the walls of brick buildings," he said. "German soldiers with grenades lie waiting in ambush for Soviet tanks.

"Enemy guns are firing from barricades, enemy tommy-gunners are opening from roofs and windows and from the tall buildings of all Berlin. All streets and squares are mined."

Russ Repair Canal Bridge

At one unidentified canal, front-line correspondents said, Soviet sappers repaired a bridge. Elsewhere infantrymen built a makeshift bridge of captured German equipment, including trucks and guns, and Russian tanks clanked over. Other troops waded across, helping each other up the bank.

"In the center of Berlin on bridges over the Spree, on the Northern and Stettin railway stations, guns answer the command of officers, 'Fire on the Fascist capital, battery fire!'" Izvestia Correspondent Roman Karman declared.

"I stayed all night in the cellar of a five-story house where the staff of General Krivoshein was located. Nobody slept that night. The telephone rang every minute. Officers rushed in with dispatches about operations of some groups. We didn't wait for morning. We got on the roof to look at Berlin."

Goebbels's Plea On Houses

Karman said there were signs in fresh white paint on houses with Goebbels's appeal, "All Germans will defend Berlin with their bodies. Let us halt the Reds at the gates to Berlin."

But the Soviet "avalanche wipes everything out of the way," he added.

Whole units of hardened Russian troops "refuse to rest inside Berlin," a Red Star writer said. One unit shouted "nobody is tired," when ordered to rest after fighting seven days and nights.

Rubble Ten Feet High

Press photographs showed Russian tommygunners advancing along Berlin streets lined with rubble 4 to 10 feet high, and past blasted buildings and houses.

He said the Germans had "bricked up the Brandenburg gates so the Russian triumphant march into the capital could not go through them. Only a state of hysteria and despair brings about such action."

At some points, Russian infantrymen charged with bayonets against Germans blinded by smoke bombs. Nazis laid ambushes, correspondents said, and suddenly fighting would break out deep in rear areas.

Hitler's Chalet Smashed by RAF, Berchtesgaden Fortress Damaged

CHAMBERLAIN

LONDON, Thursday, April 26.—(AP) Adolf Hitler's chalet near Berchtesgaden was obliterated and the adjoining weird "Eagle's Nest" fortress was damaged yesterday by more than 350 RAF heavy Lancasters which raided the mountain retreat for the first time in an apparent attempt on the Fuehrer's life.

The big barracks of Hitler's bodyguard, the SS stores, and the whole pretentious establishment from which the Nazi overlord once ruled German Europe were smashed by the six-ton British bombs while American Eighth and Ninth Air Force planes by the hundreds ravaged selected targets throughout the Berchtesgaden area.

Simultaneously the Eighth Air Force hurled more than 300 Flying Fortresses at the Skoda munitions works at Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, advertising the devastating attack in advance with a radio warning to slave laborers to flee from that last great Nazi war plant.

Whether Hitler was at the sumptuous chalet or inside the almost-impregnable Kehlstein fortress was not known, but returning fliers left no doubt that the two-story chalet had been wiped off the face of the earth by a direct hit of a 12,000-pound bomb, and said delayed-action bombs of the same great weight had buried themselves deep in the Kehlstein (Hollow-Stone) mountain of the Eagle's Nest.

The Nest itself, with a roof 17 yards square protruding above the mountain peak, apparently was straddled but not squarely hit.

German radio propagandists insisted that Hitler was inside encircled Berlin, directing its wild defense, but reports from many parts of Europe lent support to the story he had taken refuge at the Berchtesgaden retreat to which for years he had summoned the heads of states who were his selected dupes to hear his bidding.

There he overawed and seized Kurt Schuschnigg, last premier of Austria, before the anschluss; there he convinced the late British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain that "peace in our time" had been established; and there during the war years he received his trembling victims or bootlicking subordinates from Scandinavia to the Balkans.

There Hitler stared through wide picture-windows across at his native Austria while almost living atop the powder-kegs he had stored there in the heart of his vaunted last redoubt for the death-stand of Nazidom.

Why such a shining target had never been bombed before remained officially without explanation, but an RAF staff officer said unofficially today, "with the fall of Berlin near, Berchtesgaden is looked upon as a sort of Nazi capital—the last spot over which the Swastika will fly.

"Thus the bombing at this time has a psychological effect, and it also can be assumed that the Germans are gathering there for a last stand. Thus it becomes a military target of more importance than before."

The reaction of the men who did the bombing was summed up by a returning navigator who exclaimed:

"This was the mission we have been waiting for all through the war."

"I saw one terrific flash right on Hitler's house," said a British flight sergeant. "It was a 12,000-pounder all right."

Photos taken during the spectacular attack showed a large number of bombs bursting on and around both locations and on the nearby barracks of his hand-picked bodyguard of 10,000 Nazi fanatics.

Six ton bombs—the type which riddled the great German battleship Tirpitz and drove through 20-foot thick concrete U-boat shelters—were poured into the Berchtesgaden area and an air ministry announcement indicated the RAF may also have used its new 11-ton Volcano bomb that can create a 150-foot crater.

The bombers met only moderate flak in the area but fighters, sweeping over the peaks and valleys in a strafing romp, were greeted by intense anti-aircraft fire. It was known that Hitler's formidable fortress was protected by a chain of anti-aircraft positions along the Lattengebirge mountain chain opposite the Kehlsteinhaus.

APR 27 1945

Blast Other Targets

While the great Lancasters hit at the heart of this redoubt, more than 1,000 American warplanes blasted targets within a 10-mile radius of Berchtesgaden.

Out of the Eighth Air Force armada sent against Bavaria and Pilsen, 16 bombers and three fighters were missing, U. S. airforce headquarters announced. The British air ministry said two of its Lancasters were missing.

The bombs dumped on Hitler's retreat were fused for deep penetration.

"I saw two heavy bombs fall either on the house or so near it makes no difference," said the sergeant who described destruction of the chalet. "Just before we got to the house there was a steep hill, and although I could see bombs falling from planes ahead they disappeared behind the hill before they hit the target. Then as soon as we flew over the hill, there was his house right below and I saw two hits."

30. 24-25129

Another airman said, "The SS barracks were taking a severe beating. Each time we looked down at them, one of the buildings was exploding. A large door went spinning through the air and fell on another building."

A second wave of Lancasters hit the barracks with six-ton "Earthquakes," two-ton "Blockbusters" and 1,000-pound bombs 45 minutes after the first attack. Crews said the area was almost obscured by great pillars of smoke.

"The largest pall of smoke was over the chalet," said a flight officer. "The whole area seems to have been straddled."

Hitler's private house, also known as the Haus Wachenfeld, is 16 miles from the town of Berchtesgaden itself and is on the slopes of the Obersalzburg. The house has been considerably enlarged since Neville Chamberlain visited Hitler there in 1938.

The air ministry said all targets were clearly identified.

"This was the mission we have been waiting for all through the war," said a returning navigator.

An RAF Mustang pilot, who was over the area during the attack, said the Berchtesgaden district was blanketed with oily black smoke, flames leaping through it.

"Smoke boiled thousands of feet high," he said, "but despite it we could still see massive explosions going on beneath as the bombs crashed down. The place was a little hell.'

From Hitler's chalet a road winds five miles to the Khelstein, a 5,000-foot spur of the Hoher Goll mountain range. The road ends abruptly at the great bronze doors of the refuge.

Behind the first doors are a second pair and these open onto a corridor 130 yards along which leads straight into the heart of the mountain. At the end of this passage is an elevator as large as an average-sized living room. A shaft rises 400 feet to an extraordinary building whose roof occupies almost the whole top of the mountain.

This roof is only 17 yards square, probably the smallest target any heavy bomber has ever had.

This was the target today for the Lancasters hauling the specially fused "Earthquakes." No claim was made that this "roof of the world" was hit directly, but it was at least straddled and damage probably was caused to the inner quarters of the fortress. These quarters were elaborately supplied with electricity, water, kitchens and rooms for scores of servants and secretaries.

Before the war "Eagle's Nest" had no bedrooms and Hitler used it for an observation post and entertainment quarters. From a balcony above a precipice, he admired the view of the Hoher Goll mountain and the Kenigsee Lake. Today they both made useful landmarks for the bombers flying over the maze of peaks and valleys.

HIDE-OUT IS BLOWN TO PIECES BY R. A. F.

Six-tonner's Direct Hit Smashes Chalet at Berchtesgaden and Earthquakers Are Dropped on 'Eagle's Nest.'

JAMESON

London, April 25 (A. P.).—Heavy Lancasters of the Royal Air Force blew to pieces Adolf Hitler's chalet at Berchtesgaden today with a direct hit by a 12,000-pound earthquake bomb and rained the mammoth bombs down on his "Eagle's Nest" fortress atop Kehlstein mountain, five miles from the chalet. The raid on the Alpine lair possibl was an attempt on the Fuehrer's life, and even heavier bombs may have been dropped.

Six-ton earthquake bombs—the type which drilled the thick steel shell of the Tirpitz and plunged through twenty-foot-thick concrete U-boat shelters—were dropped in the area where Hitler's underground fortress is believed to be situated.

Probably 200 of Britain's biggest planes staged this first direct attack on Hitler's Berchtesgaden properties. An Air Ministry announcement that other high explosive and deep penetration bombs were used indicated that possibly the 22,000-pound monster bombs, capable of making a 150-foot crater also were dropped.

Airmen Tell of Bombardment.

Fused for deep penetration, the six-ton bombs also crashed into the area where Hitler's underground fortress is believed to be located in Kehlstein Mountain, topped by his hide-out.

"I saw one terrific flash right on Hitler's house," a flight-sergeant said. "It was a 12,000-pounder all right. There seemed to be snow on the roof and around the house, and this made it difficult at first to identify the target, but there was no artificial camouflage. I saw two heavy bombs fall either on the house or near—it makes no difference."

The six-ton bombs are the type which drilled through the heavy armor of the Tirpitz, and through twenty-foot-thick concrete U-boat shelters. Photographs taken during the spectacular Berchtesgaden attack showed a great number of bombs bursts on and around the chalet and nearby barracks which house Hitler's hand-picked bodyguard of 10,000 storm troopers.

Great Pall of Smoke.

Another airman said: "The SS. barracks were taking a severe beating. Each time we looked down at them, one of the buildings was exploding. A large door went spinning through the air and fell on another building."

A second wave of Lancasters hit the barracks with six-ton, two-ton and 1,000-pound bombs after the first attack. The crews said that the area was almost obscured by great pillars of smoke.

"The largest pall of smoke was over the chalet," a flight-officer said. "The whole area seems to have been straddled."

The "place was a little hell," said a Mustang pilot. "Smoke boiled thousands of feet high," he continued, "but, despite it, we could still see massive explosions going on beneath as bombs crashed down."

Hitler's Whereabouts Unknown.

Targets were Hitler's chalet, near Berchtesgaden itself, SS barracks on the grounds reputedly garrisoning 10,000 picked troops, and the mountain refuge perched atop Kehlstein Mountain, five miles from the chalet. The Kehlstein castle, attainable only by a serpentine road and elevators inside a mountain shaft, is believed to have a vast underground fortress of air-conditioned corridors and huge supplies, but whether Hitler was there at the time was not known.

The attacks were carried out between 9 A. M. and 10 A. M. by two separate forces of heavy Lancasters with 12,000-pound earthquake bombs and assorted types of explosives. Both American Eighth Air Force and R. A. F. fighters escorted the Lancasters in the assault. The first announcement from the Air Ministry reported two bombers missing.

Simultaneously more than 1,050 American heavy bombers flying from Britain hammered one of the Fuehrer's private rail lines only ten miles from Berchtesgaden, and the great Skoda armaments works at Pilsen in Czecho-Slovakia.

There was no official suggestion that the attack was planned specifically to catch Hitler in his fortress home, but it was pointed out unofficially that "there is always that possibility." Several German broadcasts have insisted that Hitler is staying in Berlin as a martyr to his lost cause, but such reports are discounted in Allied quarters as propaganda.

The use of the six-ton earthquake bombs indicated that the air strategists sought to destroy the underground installations at Berchtesgaden. American Third Army troops are eighty-two miles from Berchtesgaden, while the Russians driving across Austria from the east are ninety miles from the famed retreat of the Nazi leader.

Joining the terrific aerial bombardment of southern German strongholds, Italy-based Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the United States Fifteenth Air Force attacked the railway yards of Linz, largest communications center left to the German army in Austria. Linz is sixty-eight miles from the American lines, and fifty-seven from Russian vanguards.

Attack on Linz.

Early reports said that the attack on Linz, at the southern end of the main line to Prague, was successful. Other Italy-based Allied planes continued the pounding of the German retreat in northern Italy, and hit targets along the Brenner Pass line.

The little Bavarian mountain summer resort of Berchtesgaden is about eighty miles southeast of Munich. About two and a half miles away, across the Little Ache River, is the Obersalzberg, or Upper Salt Mountain, where Hitler has his country home. It faces the peak of Watzmann Mountain. Around the residence are various buildings for administrative buildings.

A few miles farther on is the famous refuge perched on Kehlstein Mountain. It is accessible only by an elevator, whose shaft was built inside the mountain.

The attack on the Skoda pl... came two hours after slave w... ers had been warned by an Allied broadcast over the Luxembourg radio to flee to safety in the country. Liberators attacked railway targets at Hallein, ten miles northeast of Berchtesgaden; Salzburg, fifteen miles north of Berchtesgaden; Traunstein, twenty-five miles northwest, and Bad Reichenhall, fifteen miles northwest.

Nazis Move to Salzburg.

The Stockholms Tidningen, quoting what it said was an authoritative source, reported on Monday that the German Government is at Salzburg. The Skoda works, formerly the third largest armament producer in Europe, were attacked by more than 300 Flying Fortresses, which struck in two waves. The factories in Pilsen produce all types of guns, ammunition, bombs, armored vehicles, tanks, armor plate and heavy and light engineering products.

For the British-based bombers, the attack on Pilsen involved a round trip of approximately 1,200 miles.

Shortly before 9 A. M., while the bombers were roaring across central Germany, the Allied-controlled Luxembourg radio flashed a warning to the Skoda slave workers to take cover. The broadcast said the warning was issued on orders of Gen. Eisenhower in an effort to spare the lives of slave laborers and other civilians. It was the first time that such a direct message ever had been issued to the residents of a city selected by the Allies as a target for air attack. The nature of the warning indicated a heavy bombing was planned.

A few hours before the broadcast a 200-mile streak of American bombers had been reported crossing the British coast in a southeasterly direction coastal observers described it as "the biggest aerial show in more than two weeks."

PATTON'S FORCES SLASH RAIL LINE, THREATEN MUNICH

Direct Route to National Redoubt Severed by Third Army Spearhead.

RESISTANCE LIGHT

British Airmen Striking Ahead of Americans, Blast Nazi Concentrations.

By ROBERT EUNSON

PARIS, Thursday, April 26. — (AP) U. S. Third Army tanks punched within 15 miles of the German-Austrian border last night as other American and French forces raced almost unchecked across southern Germany, threatening Munich and Hitler's Berchtesgaden retreat, which the RAF attacked yesterday with 12,000-pound "Earthquake" bombs.

The Third Army spearhead, already east of Berlin although 250 miles to the south, cut the last direct route to the Nazis' so-called National Redoubt by mopping up the rail and highway center of Regen and then drove straight for the frontier of Austria at Passau. This column was 76 miles north of Berchtesgaden.

To the west the American Seventh Army broke through German positions [illegible] fanned out on an 80 mi... along or across the Danube river within 45 miles of Munich and the French First Army completely smashed Germany's veteran 19th army in the Black Forest.

The Allied armies—estimated at nearly 400,000 men and thousands of tanks—were charging into the Alpine foothills along a 200-mile front in a determined effort to crush any last-ditch Nazi stand in the southern redoubt before it could get well started.

APR 26 1945

APR 26 1945

Resistance at most points was extremely light, bearing out an official announcement from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters that "the German army has ceased to exist as an integrated fighting force." An Associated Press field dispatch declared that the encirclement of Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party, was shaping up swiftly.

Leading the rapid surge of Allied forces today was the 11th Armored division of Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army, which stabbed 18 miles southeast beyond captured Regen to a point only 15 miles from the Austrian border and 76 miles due north of Berchtesgaden.

RAF Blasts Nazis

Striking ahead of the advancing armies, two waves of British Lancasters escorted by fighters deluged the entire Berchtesgaden area with six-ton bombs, many of whose fuses were set to explode at a great depth in underground emplacements. One was seen to score a direct hit on Hitler's chalet.

There was no official suggestion that the bombing was a direct attempt on Hitler's life, but unofficially an Allied spokesman pointed out that "there is always that possibility." The German radio insisted Hitler still was in Berlin, directing the defense of the capital against the Russians.

Joining in the giant squeeze on the enemy's vaguely defined southern redoubt were Russian forces hammering westward across Austria, last reported within 90 miles of Berchtesgaden, and two Allied armies pursuing broken German troops beyond the Po river in northern Italy. The latter Allied force was within 96 miles of the Brenner Pass through the Alps, southern gateway to the Nazi "Fortress."

Closest to Munich was the 12th Armored division of Lt. Gen. Alexander N. Patch's Seventh army, which plunged to a point eight miles south of its bridgehead across the Danube at Dillingen and seized a five-mile strip of a superhighway leading to Munich 45 miles to the southeast.

Superhighway Cut

Forward elements of the 12th were less than 10 miles from Augsburg as additional American power poured into the bridgehead, now eight miles deep and 35 miles wide. The superhighway was cut near Burgau. Endless convoys churned up clouds of white dust as they thundered toward the front.

At the southeastern edge of the bridgehead, about 14 miles northwest of Augusburg, tankmen and infantry of the Third division were meeting stiff resistance, but for the most part the Nazis were fighting hard only for occasional towns and villages. The 44th division forced two crossings of the Iller canal south of Ulm, near Vorringen and Illertissen.

The fast-traveling U. S. Third Army on the east had smashed within 55 miles of Munich and was fighting into both the northern and western outskirts of the big communications center of Regensburg.

The 11th Armored division, leading Patton's spectacular dash toward the blue hills of Austria, was 105 miles from the last reported position of Red Army troops advancing west of Vienna. A junction of the two forces would turn all of Czechoslovakia into a giant trap and probably lead to the annihilation of more German troops than the Ruhr pocket yielded. (Prisoners taken in the Ruhr totalled 317,000.)

Another armored column drove six miles northeast of Regen and captured the town of Zweisel. The Third Army still was cloaked in a partial news blackout and possibly was well beyond its indicated positions. It already had severed most rail and highway routes between Czechoslovakia and southern Germany.

Bitter Fight for Bremen

British Second Army troops fought forward bitterly for another day through the suburbs of the northern port of Bremen. Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery had committed four crack armored and infantry divisions to the assault.

The 52nd and Third divisions, fighting into the city from the southeast, found the going slow due to the great devastation done recently by Allied bombers. Arsten and another small village on Bremen's southeastern approaches were captured by the Third division in a night attack. The guards armored division cleared Zeven, Nazi stronghold about halfway between Bremen and Hamburg, and cut the Bremen-Hamburg superhighway 10 miles east of Bremen.

Scots of Montgomery's 52nd Division fought into the Bremen suburb of Hastedt, a gain of about a mile and a half in 24 hours. RAF planes set vast fires in northern Bremen and scored direct hits on a 2,500-ton merchant ship in the harbor. An escorting vessel of destroyer type also was damaged.

Canadian troops drove within four miles of the naval base of Emden as German forces in the port turned naval guns against the opposite bank of the Ems estuary. The Canadians still were west of the Ems river opposite Emden, and it was difficult to see how they could assail Emden without making an amphibious operation.

A field dispatch said it was considered possible that Hitler and other Nazi high-ups might intend to use either Emden or Wilhelmshaven for a getaway by sea. Both ports still are in working order, though badly damaged.

The Canadians still were checked on the enemy's Grebbe river line in western Holland, behind which an estimated 100,000 Nazi troops were putting up fierce resistance. The last German pocket in northeastern Holland, at Spijk on the Ems estuary, had been sealed off.

Allied headquarters still awaited an official announcement that American and Russian forces had formed a junction south of Berlin. A dispatch said the U. S. 69th infantry division on the Elbe had decorated its most comfortable chair with Russian and American colors and had marked it: "Reserved for the liaison officer of the USSR." It still was unoccupied.

The U. S. Ninth Army, drawn up along the Elbe west of Berlin, bagged a brother-in-law of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler — Brig. Gen. Heinz Kokott, commander of a Volksgrenadier division. He declared that the Nazis never would surrender and that only a proclamation by Gen. Eisenhower could end the war.

3d Army Only 18 Miles From Austria Line

APR 26 1945

BEMIDJI PIONEER

Paris, April 25 (AP)—American 3d Army tanks clattered to within 18 miles of the Austrian border today in a dash that carried within 79 miles of Berchtesgaden, and within 105 miles of a junction with Russians to seal off Czechoslovakia in a great new trap.

Two other armies—the United States 7th and French 1st—were assaulting the Germans' long and craggy southern redoubt, and were punching ahead in a great maneuver to encircle Munich.

The 3d Army now was on the Danube.

Its 11th Armored Division stabbed farther southeast in the corner of Germany, reaching near Haibach, 18 miles from Austria, and 79 miles north and slightly east of Berchtesgaden, where the Nazi leader's Alpine refuge smoked from a heavy bombing attack.

Move To Spring Trap

The 11th Armored approaching Austria was but 105 miles—and possibly less—from two Russian columns striking across Austria. The Austrian communications hub of Linz, also bombed today, was about midway between the Russian-American armies. The 11th stood 49 miles northwest of Linz.

Bohemia and Moravia were rapidly being sliced off to form a huge German pocket between Berlin and the Nazi Alpine fortress.

British in the north stormed Bremen while armies in the center awaited a junction with the Russians.

Drive To Circle Munich

The American 7th and French 1st armies are exploiting their Danube bridgeheads in drives to the Swiss and Austrian borders with the encirclement of Munich shaping up steadily," Associated Press Correspondent A. I. Goldberg reported from General Devers's 6th Army Group headquarters.

The vaguely defined redoubt in the south perhaps has been invaded already by Devers's troops which have outflanked Lake Constance, its western limit.

46 Miles From Munich

The Tiger (10th Armored) Division of the 7th Army captured Oberbalzheim, 67 miles southwest of Munich and 97 from the Brenner Pass into Italy. Other 7th Army troops were but 46 miles from Munich—capital of the Nazi party and third largest city in Germany—on the north.

All three armies were rolling through foothills of the Alps through terrain 2,000 or more feet high.

General Patton's 3d Army reached Regen, 32 miles from Austria and 123 miles from Russian lines in the St. Polten area west of Vienna. Both armies are in the Danube Valley, good tank country. A junction of these forces would encircle all the unconquered Bohemian and Moravian portions of Czechoslovakia which Bismarck said was the key to control of Europe.

Twelve Generals Seized

While Britons in the north fought in the Bremen suburbs, Canadians along the North Sea advanced within 4 miles of the naval port of Emden. German naval guns were turned on the Canadians.

American and French armies captured at least twelve German generals yesterday.

A supreme headquarters statement said: "The German Army has ceased to exist as an integrated fighting force." General Bradley's 12th Army Group headquarters said that in two instances German officers recently told their troops: "From now on, it is every man for himself."

Prisoner Bag Increased

On all fronts Monday, supreme headquarters said 39,039 prisoners were taken, raising the total for April alone to 1,034,881 and since D-day to 2,364,586. That was a rate of attrition which no army could long stand, and that was less than half the tale. The Russians were exacting enormous casualties on the Eastern front and in Berlin; the Allies in Italy had seized more than 40,000 captives.

Meanwhile General Patton's 3d Army laid siege to Regensburg from positions a mile north and 2 miles west on the Danube.

80 Miles From Salzburg

At Regen, the spearheads were 80 miles from Salzburg and 124 miles from the Russians in the heart of Austria at Eisenerz, 90 miles east of Berchtesgaden.

The Texas and Oklahoma (90th) Division, curling along the Czechoslovakian frontier, reached Eslarn, 39 miles from Pilsen and 91 from Prague—Czech cities inclosing the last heavy industry area left to the Germans. Nearly all the roads and railway lines from the Pilsen-Prague area to the Bavarian redoubt have been cut.

Pockets Mopped Up

The American 7th and French 1st armies, rolling into the redoubt on the right of Patton's army, pushed through Bavaria, Wurttemberg and Baden with only slight opposition. All the area west of a line from captured Ulm to Lake Constance can be written off as conquered, Associated Press Correspondent Howard Cowan reported.

The American 7th and French 1st armies were cutting off huge new pockets with little opposition. They were reducing swiftly four or more pockets formed earlier.

Reach Swiss Border

French forces boring into the Black Forest trap from their Kembs bridgehead over the Rhine captured Lorrach, 3 miles northeast of Basel, and reached the Swiss border in the Basel area. Farther east, the French took Singen, near the western end of Lake Constance, 15 miles from the city of Constance.

The drive was reducing the Black Forest pocket, originally 1,000 square miles, and the last sections of the almost forgotten Siegfried Line.

American and French divisions bit steadily into the Swabian Alps pocket of nearly 1,000 square miles west of Ulm to Rottweil.

Pockets north of the Danube were being wiped out.

The Germans tried hard to destroy a two-lane bridge over the Danube at Dillingen, losing ten planes.

The French Army captured two German air force generals and 1,200 troops yesterday.

On General Eisenhower's extreme left flank, the Canadian 1st Army sealed off the last pocket in northeast Holland at Spijk, on the Ems estuary within half a mile of the North Sea. All the North Sea coastline of Holland to the mouth of the Ems was conquered, the Allied communiqué said.

Four British divisions, including Scots and Field Marshal Montgomery's own "Iron Third," reduced Bremen by concentric attacks.

Arsten and another small village on the southeast approaches fell after a midnight attack across flooded plains. The 52d Lowlanders fought house by house in suburban Hastedt and the Guards Armored Division cleared Zeven, the key to the whole German defense position in the Bremen-Hamburg area.

Amphibious Attack

The 51st Highlanders struck against Bremen in amphibious vehicles. The superhighway ten miles east of the port was cut.

The British 2d Army took 10,000 captives in the last two days, raising its total east of the Rhine to 91,000.

For two days, artillery and planes have hammered Bremen, a great submarine base, storage and shipyard center. Two surrender ultimatums have been rejected. At dawn, the Tommies were from 2 to 3 miles from the heart of the city.

40 Trains Attacked

British Mosquito bombers attacked at least 40 trains in the Emden, Hamburg and Bremen areas last night and destroyed three German planes near Berlin. Pilots said the trains were moving north into Denmark, already outflanked by the 9th Army.

The Canadian 4th Division closed in on Oldenburg to the west of Bremen and fought hard on the Kusten Canal

The crucial battle, however, was in the south.

Advance elements of General De Tassigny's French 1st Army charged 25 miles east to the Iller Canal at a point 20 miles south of Ulm. The 7th Army's Tiger (10th Armored) Division drove southeast and reached the canal at three or more points. The waterway extends south from Ulm on the Danube.

The 7th Army in the center of the southern assault arc captured 9,557 prisoners yesterday and front dispatches described German resistance as in collapse.

Hulben and Munsingen fell to General Patch's Cactus (103d) Division commanded by Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe who gave a defiant "nuts" to a German surrender ultimatum at Bastogne last December.

Drive To Sontheim

The Hellcat (12th Armored) Division driving beyond the Danube in the Dillingen area reached Sontheim, 15 miles northwest of Augsburg and 46 from Munich.

The Rainbow (42d) and Thunderbird (45th) divisions closed on Augsburg from the north.

The 71st Division pushed 13 miles forward and reached the Danube 2 miles west of Regensburg and 6 miles from Valhalla. The division was 61 miles northeast of Munich. The extreme 28-mile advance which Patton made was to a point 2 miles northwest of Kelheim in the Danube, 55 miles northeast of Munich and 12 miles southwest of Kelheim in the Danube, 55 miles northeast of Munich and 12 miles southwest of Regensburg.

FLEEING NAZIS YIELD TO YANKS

Troops Tell Of Order To Fire Only Toward Russians

BOYLE

With U.S. 1st Army Beyond the Mulde River, April 25 (AP)—First Army patrols, probing for a junction with Soviet forces on the Elbe River, today met hundreds of panic-stricken, fully armed retreating German troops who surrendered at every opportunity without firing a shot.

"Our order of the day this morning was not to fire on American troops but only to fire east toward the Russians," said one German soldier among the masses giving up and marching back across "no-man's land" without guards.

APR 26 1945

30.24-25131

Discipline Breaks Down

During the day Nazi discipline broke down completely and a wave of hysteria swept over German civilians and German soldiers living and fighting in this "corridor of fear" between the Mulde and the Elbe River, where American and Soviet forces are rushing toward a linkup of the Eastern and Western fronts—which will cut Germany in half.

The fear was a fear of the Russians. Germans by the thousands, in and out of uniform, started an "Oklahoma land race" for the American lines, a pell-mell flight unlike anything else in the history of the Reich.

Two patrols of the 69th Division, totaling some 40 men, rode in highly armed jeeps through the German rear lines without meeting either resistance or Russians, and at 2.45 P.M. today no other patrol sent out from American divisions along the Mulde River line had reported any contact wit the Russians.

Between Lines Of Germans

"What kind of a war is this?" one patrol asked in a report. "We are moving down roads between lines of fully armed German infantry in good shape and they don't want to fight—they just want us to help them. Help them get away from the Russians."

Streams of German soldiers, fleeing German families and freed Allied prisoners of war and slave laborers pushed along the roads pointing back at a city near the Mulde where other troops were waiting to surrender on "uncondition" terms—about which no Wehrmacht soldier even wished to quibble, as long as it got him in a prisoner cage and safely out of reach of the Russians.

One 69th Division patrol, led by Capt. George Morey, of Dumont, N.J., met up deep inside the German rear positions with another patrol led by Lieut. Edward A. Gumpert, of Glen Ridge, N.J., and Major James R. Sykes, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

With Brand New Rifles

They ran into a company of German infantry and a heavy weapons company, fully equipped with machine guns, mortars and brand-new automatic rifles from which no bullet had been fired.

Forty Americans quickly argued the more heavily armed Nazi troops—who could have wiped them out in two minutes—out of carrying through their plans to group with other German units in the vicinity for a counterattack against the Russians.

"Why don't you throw down your arms and walk back to our front lines and give up?" the American patrol leaders suggested. Scores of German infantrymen promptly accepted the invitation to cast away the guns they didn't want to carry any farther or be caught with if the Russians broke through unexpectedly.

Higher Officers Balk

"But wait—I must check with my higher officers," said one young Nazi lieutenant, the only officer near by. He ran to inform his superiors, and they came back on the double, shouting to their confused troops:

"Take up your arms again. Pick them up. You must have them to fight on against the Russians."

But the three 69th Division officers, after a few minutes of diplomatic conversation, convinced the German commanders, too, that it was useless to fight on.

A few minutes later both German companies were marching back toward the west to surrender.

And the 40 Yanks rode on to the east, looking for at least one Russian to link up with.

Russian With Yanks Fails To Find Juncture

By Harold V. Boyle

With U.S. 1st Army on the Mulde River, April 25 (AP)—Joseph Stalin's lone representative with the American forces on the Western front drove 200 miles in a jeep yesterday trying to make a junction with Marshal Ivan S. Konev's forces moving toward a link-up with the United States 1st Army.

When the long ride was over—we rode through territory held by three American divisions—the only satisfaction that Major Michael G. Jdanov had to console his aching back was the memory of a pleasant chat with a group of liberated Russian workers and a brief voice contact by radio with an unknown Soviet tankman careening toward the American lines.

Americans Listening

"Tovarich! Tovarich!" called the 35-year-old former Moscow history professor and veteran of Stalingrad as he cupped a squawking field radio to his ear in a frontline command post filled with listening American soldiers.

Finally he managed to make contact with one Russian officer who gave his approximate distance from American lines. Immediately thereafter contact failed.

Major Jdanov joined more than 75 American, British and French correspondents in mad dashes about frontline areas, trying to run down reports and rumors that a junction was imminent.

Nine Months With Allies

Jdanov has spent the last nine months with the Allied armies in the Mediterranean and Eastern Europe.

"After nine months I am anxious to see and hear my countrymen again," he told the interpreter, Capt. Peter C. Oustinoff, of Redhook, N.Y., who accompanied him to the front.

24 IN HORROR CAMP HAVE KINFOLK HERE

Belsen, Germany, April 23 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Twenty-four prisoners with relatives in the United States have been liberated from this concentration camp of horrors. Among those liberated, and their identification of relatives, were:

Margot Israel, no address. Cousin of Edward Henschel of 34th street, Astoria, Queens; Selma Sundheimer, Frankfurt-on-the-Main — Herman Sundheimer of New York city; Anna Rosenbach of Reichenberg—Dr. Karel Mautner of New York city; Irma Glasser of Prague—Ferdinand Rieger of Universal Films, Rockefeller Center, New York city; Hermine Grunfeld of Kleindobrony, Czecho-Slovakia—Sandor Lebowitz of New York city; Erna Fuschmann of Kilin, Czecho-Slovakia—Amilie Preiss of New York city and Ilse Weteerhahn of Franfurt-on-the-Main — mother, Alice Weichsel of New York city.

Lotte Pressburg, who said that two cousins, Ida and Albert Abeles, lived on Warwick avenue, South Orange, N. J., was also among a group of women of all nationalities liberated yesterday. She seemed to be in good health despite the rigors of life in this and other concentration camps.

Terrified German Civilians In Wild Rush for U.S. Lines

By DON WHITEHEAD

KOSSERN, Germany, April 25—(AP) Thousands of terrified German civilians frantically tried to get through the American lines on the Mulde river today to escape the advancing Russians, who are nearing a junction with the U. S. First army.

The Germans are trudging along the roads in straggling groups, carrying bundles of food and clothing or riding bicycles and covered wagons.

There is no escape for them, however, as orders have come down the line that German civilians are not to be permitted to pass through the American front.

"We cannot permit these people to clutter up the roads and impede our operations," one officer said.

The Americans did accept a column of several hundred wounded German soldiers who were brought into the lines in ambulances, trucks and other vehicles along with five German nurses and 10 other women.

"Russians Are Coming"

Warnings that the Russians are coming sweep through each German village ahead of the Soviet advance, and the alarmed inhabitants take to the roads en masse.

The exact locations of the Russians are not known, but rumors sweep the American front that they are very near, and American cub reconnaissance planes have spotted columns of troops moving west of the Elbe river.

Not even the tears of a blonde, blue-eyed woman refugee who said she was a Princess of Solms-Lich, cousin of the Prince of Hesse and a distant relative of the British Royal family moved the Doughboy guards.

The Princess, with a heavy pack on her back, stood with a group of civilians near the bridge. Her husband, Otto Vossler, who said he was a former Rockefeller fellow and professor of American history at the University of Leipzig, sent word to Lt. Col. William A. Smith of Wyoming, asking to "exchange a few words with you."

Smith went across the bridge and talked to the couple. Vossler told him he had studied at Harvard and the University of Wisconsin and was at the Brookings Institute in Washington, D. C., from 1925 to 1927. He said he married the Princess last August and that they lived in Leipzig until recently, when they were bombed out and had to move to Grimma, east of the Mulde.

63d Captures Sparkplug Plant

SIXTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, South Germany, April 24 (Delayed) (AP).—The "Blood and Fire" (63d) Division of the American 7th Army captured a vast sparkplug factory today at Heubach, north of the Danube.

31 Liberated Workers Die Of Poison Drink

Wiesbaden, Germany, April 25 (AP)—Thirty-one liberated Russian and Polish workers have died in the past two days from drinking wood alcohol which several workers said was purchased from a German bootlegger.

Forty-five others were treated at hospitals after engaging in a liberation drinking celebration.

Nazi Party Nor Army Will Quit, General Says

With the U.S. 9th Army, Germany, April 24 [AP—Delayed]—A captured Nazi general, who said he was a brother-in-law of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler told his 8th Armored Division captors today that neither the Nazi party nor the German Army would make peace and that only an Allied proclamation could end the war in Europe.

The captive is Brig. Gen. Heinz Kokott, commanding the 26th Volksgrenadier Division. He was taken three days ago in the Harz Mountains. An extreme Nazi type, he said Himmler himself had been in the Harz Mountains April 10, but escaped.

Two other generals, taken the day before in the same area, agreed with Kokott that only a proclamation by the supreme command would end the war. They are Lieut. Gen. Herman Floerke, 52, commander of a corps, and Col. Gen. Groenschke, commander of the 5th Parachute Division.

Too Many Prisoners Balk Link With Reds

WITH U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, April 25 (AP).—An American liaison plane sighted what were believed to be Russian troops today at a point close to 9th Army positions.

Patrols in that sector were alerted and advanced toward the area with the hope of linking up with the Red Army, but on the way they accumulated so many prisoners they had to abandon the project and escort their German captives back to the 9th Army's lines.

Nazi Leader Opposes Flying Food to Dutch

WITH CANADIAN TROOPS IN HOLLAND, April 25—(AP) The German military commander in western Holland tonight declared he was opposed to Gen. Eisenhower's order that food would be parachuted to starving Dutch residents, and suggested instead that food be supplied by boat barge or train.

He said he agreed "in principle" that relief be undertaken, but that he did not approve of air supply because the food might fall into the hands of the wrong persons—presumably black market operators.

The Nazi commander's message said Dutch officials in German-held Holland agreed with him.

It was believed here the Germans possibly feared that low-flying supply planes would photograph his defense area.

REDS FREE HERRIOT FROM NAZI PRISON

3-Time Premier Of France Assailed Reich, Petain

London, April 25 (AP)—Portly Edouard Herriott, three times Premier of France, who was thrown into a German concentration camp in 1942, after criticizing Marshal Pétain's collaboration policies, has been liberated by the Russians, the Soviet command announced tonight.

No details were given of the liberation of the 72-year-old Frenchman who was serving as president of the Chamber of Deputies at the time it was dissolved by the Vichy Government. His blunt protest at that decree by Pierre Laval was followed by announcement of his arrest.

Three times he was reported dead—once by the German news agency DNB—and each time back came other reports that the sturdy head of the French Radical-Socialists survived.

Mayor Since He Was 33

The exact location of the camp from which he was liberated was not given, the Russian communiqué saying only that "west of Berlin troops of the 1st Ukrainian front freed from German captivity the former Prime Minister of the French Republic, Herriot."

Son of a poor policeman, Herriot was elected mayor of the important industrial city of Lyons at 33, and has held the post continuously since, being last reelected in absentia in September, 1944.

He first became Premier of France in 1924. He again held the reins for one day in July, 1926. Back in power in 1932, he defied French sentiment by insisting on payment of the French war debt installment due the United States, and as a result was swept out of office.

Supported Daladier

As president of the Chamber of Deputies, he criticized both Hitler and the Russians and was a firm supporter of Premier Edouard Daladier. He followed the French Government into unoccupied France and continued to battle against collaboration with the Nazis.

After his arrest on October 2, 1942, he was first placed under residential surveillance and then reported removed to Germany in May, 1943. Subsequent reports were that he was in a sanatorium in Nancy, then in Paris and last—in February of this year—alive in a German detention camp.

ENVOY IN EIRE PROTESTS

Rebukes de Valera's Paper for Story of Manila Deaths

LONDON, April 25 (AP)—David Gray, the American Minister to Eire, has protested a story in Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's Irish Press reporting the deaths of four Irish priests in Manila, saying that the rigid Irish censorship left possible the inference that Americans were responsible.

Mr. Gray said that he had sent the story, obtained from the Office of War Information, in the form of a letter to all Dublin newspapers, but that Eire's censorship had ordered deleted that part that made clear that the Japanese were responsible.

Only one newspaper, Mr. de Valera's, printed the letter with the deletions. The others returned it.

APR 26 1945

asking whether Mr. Gray was willing to have it published in censored form. When he objected, they did not print it. Mr. Gray said that his protest had been lodged only with the newspaper and that he had not made any formal protest to the Government.

"The way the story appeared, it left a chance for a false impression," he said.

Captured German General Urged Keitel End Fighting

DOANE

LONDON, April 25 — (AP) Lt Gen. Heinrich Kirchheim in a Luxembourg radio broadcast tonight appealed to the German high command to "make the Fuehrer cease fighting at once" because "the war is irrevocably lost." He was the first high ranking German officer captured by the Americans to make such an appeal.

Directing his remarks to chief of staff Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, but privately admitting he thought the effect "very doubtful," Kirchheim said:

"You, Field Marshal Keitel, are the Fuehrer's highest military adviser. It is your duty to stop this senseless slaughter of our youth and destruction of our last cities You must succeed in making reason conquer against military amateurs and make the Fuehrer cease fighting at once.

"It must not be further continued —certainly not for defense of our soldierly honor. Our honor requires us to choose our defeat and bear our heavy fate with dignity."

NIGHT

No Longer Bound to Oath

Kirchheim said his fellow German officers "cannot feel bound to their oath any longer" and added that "whoever continues this war is guilty." The general reportedly took off Hitler's medals when he heard of the brutalities in German concentration camps.

Although Kirchheim is the first top-rank German officer to appeal for capitulation from the Western front, several captive officers have done so from Moscow

Kirchheim ridiculed Nazi attempts to carry on the fight with a mixture of hastily organized civilians and Wehrmacht remnants.

"The Americans look down on the Volkssturm with a mixture of compassion and irony," he said. "The Werewolf cannot be brought into accordance with fair warfare. Keitel knows that resistance is senseless."

Kirchheim was captured by the American Ninth army last week. He was found driving his own car in an American supply convoy headed toward the front.

He told Keitel he had watched the fighting in the Magdeburg area with the intention of reporting to him what "shaking observations I made." Prevented from doing this by his capture, he said he was making the report by radio.

These were his observations:

"In troops and artillery the enemy sometimes enjoyed a tenfold superiority. The Americans are equipped with inexhaustible supplies of ammunition. The enemy men, contrary to ours, were excellently clad and fed and owing to the slight number of their losses and the greatness of their successes, were in the best of spirits and conscious of victory."

Speaking in German, Kirchheim described the Volkssturm as "elderly men and boys equipped with nothing but bazookas to meet American tanks."

"Their resistance was soon broken," he related. "Costly blood was shed and many towns laid in shambles. We soldiers are united in our view about the senselessness of this sort of resistance."

The Werewolves — the German underground movement pledged to continue the fight behind the Allied lines—Kirchheim dismissed as merely a "good means of propaganda" which has "nowhere made its appearance."

Jeering at Hitler's recurrent promises of new secret weapons which will turn the tide of war, the officer said "if we had any more new weapons they would have been thrown in much earlier. They are certainly non-existent."

YANKS HAVE CHAIR READY FOR RUSSIAN

London, April 25 (A. P.).—The boys at the Sixty-ninth Infantry Division's command post on the Elbe River were all set today for the juncture of American First Army troops with the Russians.

They found the biggest and most comfortable chair in the vicinity, decorated it with Soviet and United States colors, and affixed this sign: "Reserved for the liaison officer of the U. S. S. R."

DAY

5TH, 8TH RACE TOWARD ALPS

ROME, April 25 (AP)—U. S. Fifth Army troops today reached the area of Mantova (Mantua), 25 miles from the foothills of the Alps, taking thousands of prisoners as the routed Germans fled pellmell towards Hitler's mountainous "redoubt."

The First French Army meanwhile drove a wedge two miles wide and five miles deep into Italy in the Maritime Alps 25 miles north of Nice.

Both the Fifth and the British Eight Army were pushing swiftly northward from the Po river. Mantova is seven and one-half miles north of the Po and 36 miles north of Modena.

HEADLONG RETREAT

A special allied communique announcing the pursuit, said: "Every road is jammed with the retreating enemy, who is using not only horses but oxen, cows and human beings to draw his transport. The Desert Air Force reports seeing 300 enemy vehicles set on fire by the Germans south of the Po. Thousands of prisoners or war and vast quantities of every type of equipment continue to be taken by our forces."

Swiss press reports relayed by the U. S. Office of War Information said the Germans had abandoned Milan, that Italian patriots had occupied part of Genoa, and that Benito Mussolini had fled his villa east of Milan after telling his staff that the war was lost, that it was only a question "of days, perhaps weeks, but it is lost."

The Eighth Army, whose New Zealand infantry and Third Battalion of Grenadier Guards were the first to cross the Po, reported capture of Lt. Gen. Graf Von Schwerin, commander of the 76th Panzer corps, along with his staff, by the British 27th Lancers.

The Fifth Army's 88th division, led by Maj. Gen. Paul W. Kendall of Palo Alto, Calif., captured Maj. Gen Schellwitz, commander of the German 305th Division.

ENEMY BOMBED

Allied planes steadily strafed and bombed the fleeing Germans while tank forces eliminated trapped pockets of the enemy.

A security blackout still prevailed east. disclosure of where the two armies crossed the Po but the known to have been massed crossed the south bank of the river on a sixty mile front from Ferrara west to Borgoforte. Any crossing in that area would put them within 30 miles of the Alps foothills.

Back of the armored spearheads other units were systematically mopping up by-passed German forces. West of Ferrara Eighth Army units were hammering at what was left of five German divisions which were trying to withdraw northward from a tiny toehold on the southern bank of the Po. Northwest of Bologna and around La Spezia, Italian naval base on the west coast, Fifth Army troops were mopping up.

At the start of the Allied offensive two weeks ago it was estimated the Germans had 25 divisions in northern Italy, plus several Italian Fascist units. On the basis of Nazi organization in the past year that probably meant a total of 150,000 men.

PRISONER BAG

Up to yesterday the Allies had taken 40,000 prisoners—25,000 by the Fifth Army alone—and in addition the Germans have suffered heavily in killed and wounded. On the basis of this it appears that the Germans will be lucky if they can get half of their original force into the Alps.

In addition to the casualties the Germans have lost more than 6000 vehicles from Allied bombing and strafing attacks during the past week.

An official observer who flew over the Po at one crossing reported hundreds of enemy dead on the southern banks where they were trapped and fought a desperate battle with South African tank forces.

PROMOTE YOUTH LEADER

LONDON, April 25—(AP) The Hamburg radio said tonight that Adolf Hitler had promoted Major Walter Baerenfaenger, 30, former Nazi youth leader, to the rank of major general "for his defense of Berlin."

NIGHT

Baerenfaenger was described as an "old veteran who fought in Crimea" and Germany's youngest general, charged with the defense of Berlin's northeast area.

CLAIM 2,500 REDS POISONED IN CAMP

WHEELER

LONDON, April 25.—(AP) The Moscow radio tonight quoted an American, Christian Rohrer of Chicago, recently liberated from a Nazi concentration camp at Bunzlau, Germany, as saying that the Germans deliberately poisoned 2,500 Russian war prisoners.

The broadcast said that the 50-year-old American civilian went to Germany six years ago to visit his mother at Frankfurt-am-Main and was thrown into a concentration camp after a fight with an SS trooper.

"Rohrer asked that his family be notified that he had been liberated by the Red army and would soon be returning to Chicago," the broadcast stated.

Rohrer was thrown into a concentration camp in lower Silesia after he was arrested for hitting the SS man. The trooper "insulted him" as he was leaving his mother's home in Frankfurt, the broadcast said, and Rohrer "replied by striking the SS man on the face."

"Describing his life there Rohrer said that bad treatment accorded the Russians exceeded anything one could possibly imagine," the broadcast said, and added that "2,500 Russians, prisoners of war, were brought to camp—every one of them was poisoned."

NAZI CAMP SCENES STIR CONGRESSMEN

London, April 25 (A. P.).—Back from a visit to the Buchenwald concentration camp, Representative Francis E. Walter (D.-Pa.) declared today that the revelations of Germany's inhumanity would insure creation of a world system at San Francisco which would make similar atrocities impossible.

DAY

Representative Eugene Worley (D.-Tex.) declared the sight was the most gruesome he had ever seen as a Navy man in either the Atlantic or Pacific.

"All those who committed these crimes must pay for them, and I mean all responsible parties," he said.

Here with a House Committee on Postwar Economic Planning, they were invited by Gen. Eisenhower to inspect the camp in order to furnish Americans with a first-hand report.

FRENCH ISSUE PETAIN WRIT

APR 26 1945

Rumor Has It That Admiral Leahy May Be Witness

MORIN

Paris, April 25 (AP)—A court writ addressed to Philippe Pétain summoning him to Paris to answer charges of "plotting against the state" was en route tonight to a Swiss frontier point where the silver-haired marshal is expected to re-enter France.

The document was carried by a court official. It was the first formal step to bring back Pétain, who reached Switzerland from Germany yesterday, offering to return to France for trial.

For reasons of national security his return is being shrouded in the greatest secrecy, but it is understood the formalities will be completed tomorrow and Pétain will then be arrested by French border guards and brought into French territory.

Leahy A Witness

Paris sizzled with rumors. One was that his arrival would signal a nation-wide uprising of Vichy sympathizers. Another was that Pétain's star witness would be Admiral William D. Leahy, former United States Ambassador to Vichy and chief of staff to President Truman. The marshal's adherents claim the American knows the full story of Pétain's forged efforts to "save" France [illegible] put her resources on the side of Germany.

Whatever the truth in these stories the Government was taking no chances. Elaborate precautions were being organized to prevent disorder. Some French papers said the Germans had let Pétain go, hoping to stir up division in France through the passions almost sure to be aroused by his trial.

Trial Postponed

The Government announced that Pétain's trial had been postponed from the May 17 original date. It also was learned that writs for the arrest of two important members of Pétain's government, Gen. Jean Debeny and Admiral Ley Blehaut, who was secretary for the navy and colonies, had been issued. All members of Pétain's entourage who accompanied him from Germany probably will be ordered arrested.

He will be spirited into Paris and then taken to some unannounced prison until the trial begins. If France adheres to one of her oldest traditions, this would be the gloomy Chateau Vincennes, a great glowering fortress in the woods.

It was there in the last war that the beautiful German spy Mata Hari faced a firing squad. There in this war, countless French patriots confronted firing squads for their resistance against the Germans.

The majority of Paris press meanwhile contin[illegible]s demands for Pétain's head. However, the newspaper Le Monde, which frequently reflects Government views, said the French people were divided in their attitude toward Pétain. Some hold him an arch-traitor, Le Monde said, while others regard him as a man who sacrificed everything, including his own honor, for what he considered the best interests of France.

A spokesman for Pétain at Zurich said the marshal escaped from the Germans by a ruse and that during the trip to the Swiss border from Sigmaringen he held a tommy gun in his lap.

SS Troopers Along

The spokesman said the Germans had ordered Petain and his entourage to proceed from Sigmaringen to Immenstadt, 25 miles east of Lake Constance in Hitler's national redoubt zone, but that the marshal had ordered his chauffeur to take his party to the Swiss border.

Yesterday, however, dispatches from Switzerland had reported that the marshal's nine-car convoy was accompanied to the Swiss border by an automobile containing German SS troopers.

MORIN

Cell for Petain Ready

Paris, April 25 (A. P.).—A cell in an unnamed fortress near Paris was prepared today for Henri-Philippe Petain, as a precaution against disorders when the aged Marshal is returned here to stand trial on charges of high treason.

Justice Minister Francois de Menthon said that Marshal Petain had not yet entered France, denying a French press agency report that the Marshal and his party had crossed the Swiss frontier near Geneva this morning.

An almost complete news blackout hase been thrown over details of the Marshal's return by French official circles.

Upon arrival, however, Marshal Petain will be held under heavy guard at the fortress in the Paris suburbs. Like any other man accused of a major crime in France, he will be denied any visitors except defense counsel.

There was every indication that France already had been torn apart by the dramatic arrival at the Swiss frontier yesterday of the aged Marshal and his announced intention of returning to France to stand trial. In the provinces, there are countless thousands of persons who idolize

Marshal Petain Returning To France to 'Defend Honor'

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

WEESEN, Switzerland, April 25 —(AP) Aged Marshal Philippe Petain prepared tonight to return to Marshal Petain and for whom even today his vast prestige remains undimmed by the events during the German occupation of France.

With almost unanimous voice Paris newspapers demanded death for Marshal Petain today. The announcement of his arrival in Switzerland and his impending return dominated even the war news. Hardly a phrase was written in his defense, or even in extenuation of his acts.

Germany's 'V-5 Weapon.'

Newspapers bristled with such appellations as "traitor," "monster," "Hitler's valet" and "head of fifth column." The opinion that the Germans engineered his return to create confusion in France and with the hope of placing him at the head of their underground organization was expressed widely.

The newspaper Franc-Tireur called him Germany's "V-5 weapon" and Depeche de Paris said the Germans, being unable actually to bomb France, were sending Marshal Petain instead. Le Populaire asserted that "His judgment can only be pitiless."

Combat declared that "If Petain is acquitted, all those who were executed, deported, tortured and suffered died in vain."

However, there is a section of the French public which does not hold Marshal Petain responsible for the collapse of the republic in 1940, nor for the subsequent disasters under his Vichy regime. They venerate him for his record in the first world war, and say that they believe that the Germans duped him in 1940 and that he was ignorant of the actions of Pierre Laval and others under him.

France "should" within 48 hours and "defend my honor" against charges of "plotting against the state."

The one-time hero of Verdun and later head of the Vichy government during the days of German conquest, held firm to his determination to face the music after an hour's conference with his close friend Dr. Walther Stucki, prominent Swiss civil servant.

Petain, who crossed the Swiss border from Germany yesterday, had the cooperation of Swiss friends inside Germany, but reliable informants said he himself contrived most of the arrangements permitting his "escape." King Leopold of Belgium was still expected here but it was possible he had encountered some difficulties in making his getaway.

Members of Petain's entourage disclosed that the 89-year-old Marshal had written Adolf Hitler from Sigmaringen April 5 of his decision to return to France. Confident of his own position, the marshal expressed hope on his arrival here that there would be no demonstrations or public manifestations when he crossed the French border.

In his letter to Hitler, a copy of which I was shown by one of Petain's aides, the marshal declared he knew of his forthcoming French trial and was determined to "defend my honor" on French soil.

"It is in France alone that I can justify my acts and I am the sole judge of the risks which that attitude implies," he said.

No reply was received from Hitler and on April 19 Petain made a new appeal, declaring that ever since his departure from Vichy on Aug. 20, 1944, he had never ceased expressing his wish to return to France.

Petain's aides said he protested against plans to send him "east" into the Bavarian redoubt which would prevent him from going into France for the purpose of "accomplishing what I consider my duty."

The letter Petain wrote Hitler and which is likely to stand as the theme of his defense, declared:

"I am informed that the French authorities intend to place me on trial in absentia before the high court of justice.

"Preliminary discussions begin April 24. This information imposes an obligation which I consider as imperative and I address myself to your excellency to aid me in accomplishing my duty.

"I received on July 10, 1940, from the National Assembly a mandate x x x. As chief of government in June, 1940, at Bordeaux I refused to leave France. As Chief of State during the grave hours which came again for my country, I decided to remain at my post at Vichy.

"The Reich government compelled me to leave April 20, 1944. It is not that I sought refuge on foreign soil to evade my responsibilities x x x. It is in France alone I can explain my act and I am the sole judge of the risks that attitude implies. I have then the right to demand that your excellency gives me immediately the facilities.

"You will understand the decision I have taken to defend my honor x x x and to protect by my presence all those who followed my lead. This is my sole purpose. No argument can make me renounce this object. At my age one can fear only one thing: That is to have performed complete duty."

Ruse Reported to Have Aided Petain in Leaving Germany

APR 26 1945 HAWKINS

Zurich, April 25 (A. P.).—Marshal Petain awaited word from France today on when he would be permitted to return to Paris. It was said here that the transfer was not expected before the end of the week.

He arrived at a hotel near Zurich late yesterday from Germany, professedly on his way to surrender to face charges of high treason in France. A member of the entourage said that Marshal Petain escaped from the Germans by a ruse and that during the trip from Sigmaringen to the Austro-Swiss border Marshal Petain held a tommygun in his lap while a second was held by a bodyguard since they had feared to the last that German SS troopers would interfere.

Conflict of Information.

At one place, the spokesman said, they were stopped by SS troopers, who directed them to Immenstadt, twenty-five miles east of Lake Constance in Adolf Hitler's national redoubt zone.

[Dispatches yesterday said that a car containing SS men was in the nine-car Petain convoy when it arrived at the border. A governmental spokesman in Paris said that Marshal Petain originally applied to German authorities to approach the Swiss on his behalf.]

The spokesman for the party said that Marshal Petain had been active in the last few months in Germany endeavoring to arrange for the return to France of French prisoners of war and in seeking to improve conditions in concentration camps.

One member of the Marshal's party said that "conditions in Germany were impossible."

Marshal Petain, he said, was given passable food by the Germans, but the rest of the party got barely anything—"potatoes and bread." The Marshal and his wife appeared on the terrace of their hotel this morning at 11:30 o'clock and walked around an hour.

Marshal Petain had on a dark topcoat and carried a cane, which he swung jauntily. A spokesman for the party said that the Marshal hoped that American soldiers would be the first to meet him at the frontier.

Walther Stucki, Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs in the Swiss Government, arrived here today and immediately went to Marshal Petain's apartment. It was the first meeting between the two since last September, when Stucki, then Ambassador to Vichy, said that he attempted unsuccessfully to prevent the Germans from taking the Marshal to Germany.

CHIEFS OF STATE TO PROCLAIM V-E DAY

DAY OF TRIUMPH

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, April 25 — (AP) The chiefs of state of the principal Allied powers, and not Gen. Eisenhower, will proclaim the day of victory in Europe, just as they are to announce shortly the junction of the Russian and Western Allied armies in Germany.

There is no general expectation here that the V-E day announcement is near at hand. It is known that considerable influence is being brought to bear to prevent a premature celebration.

There is confidence that Germany will be smashed as a military power by the anniversary of D-Day, June 6, less than a month and a half away. But the majority of correspondents at Supreme Headquarters believe there is little likelihood of ending the last desperate resistance in the far northern and southern pockets or redoubts by that time.

Allied fighting men, from generals down to privates, hold that any celebration of "virtual victory" while thousands of soldiers still may have to die in mopping up operations would be just a sop to wishful thinking and a handicap to the job still to be done.

Even before Gen. Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of Allied forces in the west, let it be known that word of the American-Russian linkup would come from Washington, Moscow and London and not from his headquarters, it was obvious that plans for announcement of the end of the German war had been altered.

Some four weeks ago Eisenhower said the time would come when he could announce the end of organized resistance on the Western front. At the time that was interpreted as meaning he would announce the victory.

It soon became clear, however, that this would be virtually impossible unless the announcement could be fitted in with a similar Russian statement.

By the time Eisenhower received specific instructions that the American-Russian linkup had been taken over by the Big Three capitals, it was apparent that V-E day also would be proclaimed by the chiefs of state.

Guard Against False Report

The desire to avoid a premature V-E day announcement has been reflected here on the highest levels. Eisenhower has made the flat statement that there would be no V-E proclamation while any major pockets of resistance which might take a good many thousands of lives to reduce.

Behind Russian lines, the Latvia and Breslau encirclements still have to be cleared.

Four French ports, the British channel islands and several large pockets in southwestern Germany still must be reduced in the west.

It has been made unmistakably clear in specific statements from authorities as high as the Supreme Commander and his chief of staff that short of German surrender—which is not expected — that the war in Europe is not likely to come to any abrupt or imminent end, even after Germany has been cut in two and Berlin has fallen.

More than 1,035,000 prisoners have been captured by Eisenhower's armies in April alone. Already the Allies have in prison cages more Germans than the Wehrmacht has left in the war.

V-E Word To Come From Allied Chiefs

By James M. Long

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, April 25 (AP)—The day of victory in Europe will be proclaimed by the chiefs of state of the Allied governments, and not by General Eisenhower, and there is being brought to bear considerable influence to prevent a premature celebration.

All the way from generals down to privates, Allied fighting men believe that any celebration of "virtual victory" while thousands of men still may have to die in mopping-up operations would be a sheer sop to wishful thinking and a handicap to the job still to be done.

Even before General Eisenhower was instructed that word of the American-Russian linkup in Germany would come from Washington, Moscow and London and not from supreme headquarters here it has been obvious that plans for announcement of the end of German resistance have been changed.

Eisenhower Statement

A little less than a month ago the supreme command said there would come a time when he could announce the end of organized German resistance on the Western front.

That was interpreted at the time as meaning he would announce the victory. It soon became clear, however, that this would virtually be impossible unless the announcement could be correlated specifically with a Russian statement at the same time and to the same effect.

By the time Eisenhower received specific instructions that the linkup announcement had been taken over by the Big Three capitals, it was apparent that the official announcement of the end of organized resistance would be proclaimed also from the intergovernmental plane.

Military Reaction

The reaction of military men is that this is well enough—as long as politics can be kept from ushering in the parades, the confetti and the night-club celebrations while more war material still is needed and a few thousand more gold stars are yet to be hung in windows of American homes.

The desire to avoid a premature announcement has been reflected here on the highest levels.

Germany will have been defeated as a military power by the first anniversary of D-day, June 6, less than a month and a half away.

But most correspondents here believe there is little likelihood of smashing the last desperate resistance in the far southern and far northern pockets by that time.

EISENHOWER SAYS DUTCH WILL BE FED

Paris, April 25 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower, in a broadcast last night directed to the trapped German Twenty-fifth Army, in western Holland, and to the starving Dutch that food would be flown to them immediately.

"The German Government has ceased to exercise effective authority over anything except a few pockets," the Supreme Commander declared to the German Twenty-fifth Army. "It is well known to you that 4,500,000 Dutch civilians are starving to death behind your lines."

Gen. Eisenhower said that he had given orders to fly food to the Dutch and added: "This food will be carried in large numbers of aircraft of all types, operating both day and night. These aircraft will be fulfilling not a mission of war, but a mission of relief to suffering civilians. They will fly in low and will undertake no acts which will in any way effect operations. There will be no bombing, strafing or any other offensive action.

"Any attempt to oppose Allied aircraft bringing food to Dutch civilians is a crime against humanity. Those who commit this crime by giving the order to fire on our aircraft, or by carrying it out, must expect to bear the full consequences when the day of reckoning comes."

DE GAULLE'S NIECE FREED

PARIS, April 25—(AP) Gen. De Gaulle learned through the press today that his niece, Genevieve De Gaulle, had been liberated from the Germans' Ravensbruck concentration camp.

The young woman, arrested by the Germans in Paris, was met at the Swiss-German frontier by her father, Xavier De Gaulle, French Consul General at Geneva.

Vast Supplies Flowed Via Antwerp To Allies

Paris, April 25 (AP) — Approximately 2,000,000 tons of supplies for the American and British armies flowed through the port of Antwerp during the Roer and Rhine offensives, the Channel base section of supreme headquarters announced tonight.

Operated jointly by the British and Americans, the port kept Western front armies rolling despite V-bomb attacks which claimed 628 American casualties.

Antwerp fell to the British 2d Army last November, and was in operation December 1.

FIRE BOMB SEARS COMPLETE TARGET

Paris, April 25 (A. P.).—An aerial fire bomb which covers the target with a sheet of white-hot flame in which nothing human can survive is being used against Germans in dug-in positions, it was disclosed today. The bombs can be dropped from low altitudes without endangering either the pilot or his craft.

Developed by chemical warfare experts, thousands of the bombs have been delivered to the Allied Air Forces. Photos reveal that flames from the bomb engulf an object, "completely neutralizing tanks, motor transport, pillboxes, open gun emplacements and personnel in foxholes.

Treatment Of France Fails To Win De Gaulle

Paris, April 25 (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, in a broadcast to the French people at the moment of the opening of the San Francisco world security conference, reclared today that "our best friends still haven't seen the necessity for dealing with us in the same way as they deal with each other."

In the speech, ostensibly addressed to the French people before their municipal elections next Sunday, de Gaulle directly referred to the San Francisco conference when he stated that any world organization of which the conference "will make the first sketch," would require the complete participation of Europe "and consequently of ourselves."

The speech dealth mainly with France's world position and de Gaulle took the opportunity to reassert his contention that France must participate as a major power in any major decisions.

"Since an unbelievable series of trials hasn't been able to prevent France from emerging intact, we can lift our heads and look at the future without fear," de Gaulle said.

BOMB WRAPS MEN IN FIRE

Throws Blanket Of Flame About German Ground Forces

Paris, April 25 (AP)—German troops in dug-in positions are being annihilated by a new aerial bomb that covers the target with a sheet of white-hot flame in which nothing human can survive, it was disclosed today.

The bomb was developed by the chemical warfare division and already thousands of the bombs have been delivered to the Allied Air Forces. The missiles can be dropped from low altitudes without endangering either the pilot or his plane.

Flames from the bomb engulf its object, completely neutralizing tanks, motor transport, pillboxes, open gun emplacements and personnel in foxholes.

Nazis Torpedo French Riviera

Paris, April 25 (AP)—East German patrol craft attacked the French Riviera last night, launching several torpedoes against the shore. Windows were smashed at Monaco, Beaulieu and St. Jean Cap Terrat.

French warships sank two of the craft, the Navy Ministry said.

YANKS DRIVE PAST PO RIVER

Stand 7½ Miles Beyond Stream In Mantova Area

Rome, April 25 (AP) — United States 5th Army troops today reached the area of Mantova (Mantua), 25 miles from the foothills of the Alps, taking thousands of prisoners as the routed Germans fled north.

Both the 5th and the British 8th armies were pushing swiftly northward from the Po River. Mantova is 7½ miles north of the Po and 36 miles north of Modena.

A special Allied communiqué announcing the pursuit, said: "Every road is jammed with the retreating enemy, who is using not only horses but oxen, cows and human beings to draw his transport. The Desert Air Force reports seeing 300 enemy vehicles set on fire by the Germans south of the Po. Thousands of prisoners of war and vast quantities of every type of equipment continue to be taken by our forces."

Milan Abandoned, Report

[Swiss press reports relayed by the United States Office of War Information said the Germans had abandoned Milan, that Italian patriots had occupied part of Genoa, and that Benito Mussolini had fled his villa east of Milan after telling his staff that the war was lost, that it was only a question "of days, perhaps weeks, but it is lost."]

The 8th Army, whose New Zealand infantry and 3d Battalion of Grenadier Guards were the first to cross the Po, reported capture of Lieut. Gen. Graf von Schwerin, commander of the 76th Panzer Corps, along with his staff, by the British 27th Lancers.

The 5th Army's 88th Division, led by Maj. Gen. Paul W. Kendall of Palo Alto, Cal., captured Major General Schellwitz, commander of the German 305th Division.

Advance Toward Genoa

Allied planes steadily strafed and bombed the fleeing Germans while tank forces eliminated trapped pockets of the enemy.

Substantial gains up the west coast of Italy were reported by American troops moving toward the big port of Genoa, 53 airline miles beyond captured La Spezia.

A security blackout still prevented disclosure of where the two Allied armies crossed the Po but they were known to have been massed along the south bank of the river on a 50-mile front from Ferrara west to Borgoforte. Any crossing in that area would put them within 30 miles of the Alps foothills.

Mopup Continuing

Back of the armored spearheads, other units were systematically mopping up bypassed German forces. West of Ferrara 8th Army units were hammering at what was left of five German divisions which were trying to withdraw northward from a tiny toehold on the southern bank of the Po. Northwest of Bologna and around La Spezia, Italian naval base on the west coast, 5th Army troops were mopping up.

At the start of the Allied offensive two weeks ago it was estimated the Germans had 25 divisions in northern Italy, plus several Italian Fascist units. On the basis of Nazi organization in the past year that probably meant a total of 150,000 men.

Lucky To Save Half

Up to yesterday, the Allies had taken 40,000 prisoners—25,000 by the 5th Army alone—and in addition the Germans have suffered heavily in killed and wounded. On the basis of this it appears that the Germans will be lucky if they can get half of their original force into the Alps.

In addition to the casualties, the Germans have lost more than 6,000 vehicles from Allied bombing and strafing attacks during the past week.

An official observer who flew over the Po at one crossing reported hundreds of enemy dead on the southern banks where they were trapped and fought a desperate battle with south African tank forces.

"Remarkable Concentration"

The first Allied bridgehead across the Po was established by the crack United States 10th Mountain Division which forced the river Monday morning after a 55-mile dash in two days.

The 10th's crossing was made at a point where the river is 200 yards wide and the Allied communiqué said the crossing was made in the face of a "remarkable concentration" of enemy fire. The Nazis, protected by strong defenses, poured a hail of fire into Allied assault boats as they churned across the river.

German escape routes eastward out of Italy were threatened as Yugoslav forces crossed the old Yugoslav-Italian frontier and battled Nazi forces at Fiume. The German communiqué acknowledged fighting there.

96 Miles From Bolzano

Allied troops across the Po were within 96 miles of Bolzano, southern terminus of the Brenner Pass line. The northern terminus is at Innsbruck. The pass is less than a mile above sea level and is the lowest corridor piercing the main range of the Alps. It has been the target of repeated Allied aerial attacks.

Increased naval activity in the Italian theater was reported in the communiqué which said that the United States destroyer Kendrick bombarded an enemy radio station on the Franco-Italian frontier and also shelled a supply depot and gun emplacements. Direct hits were scored on the targets.

The French cruiser Montcalm bombarded the San Remo harbor, starting large fires, and the French cruiser Dunguay Trouin fired at Porto Maurizio and Oneglia harbors "with good results."

The British destroyer Lookout also was reported in action against enemy guns and supply buildings in the Ventimiglia area.

United States and French patrol boats sank six small German auxiliary boats.

German patrol boats attacked several points on the French Riviera during the night but were beaten off after two of them had been sunk.

ARNOLD PRAISES AIR FORCE

ROME, April 25—(AP) Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the U. S. Army Air forces said today after his return from the battlefront that the terrific battering delivered by the Allied Air forces on enemy communications in northern Italy had helped pave the way for the present offensive which is driving the German armies back towards the Alps.

Panzer Commander Captured in Italy

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, April 25—(AP) Lt. Gen. Graf Von Schwerin, commander of the German 76th Panzer corps, was captured today by the 27th British Lancers just south of the Po river.

Von Schwerin drove to British headquarters in an automobile after a German motorcyclist flying a white flag informed the British that the Nazi commander had been cut off from his troops and wanted to give himself up. His car was followed by a military van carrying his luggage, two aides, one sergeant, two corporals and a batman.

Italy Is Ready To Aid Democracy

Rome, April 25 (A. P.).—The Italian Council of Ministers in a statement on the opening day of the San Francisco world security conference today deplored Italy's non-representation but said that their country was ready to give aid to democracy wherever "it still has to win its battles."

The council said it "recalls with feeling the words pronounced in June, 1944, by the great President Roosevelt, 'we want the aid of Italy and are counting on Italy's aid in the work of building a durable peace.'"

88th Names Divisional Aide

ROME, April 25 (AP)—Col. James C. Fry of Washington, D. C., has been named assistant division commander of the Eighty-eighth (Blue Devil) Infantry Division, it was announced today by Maj. Gen. Paul W. Kendall, commander of that Fifth Army Division. Colonel Fry commanded the 350th Regiment for more than a year and earned the Silver Star, the Distinguished Service Cross, the Legion of Merit, the Croix de Guerre and the Purple Heart with one cluster. He was graduated from West Point in 1923.

Italian Spy Sentenced to Die

ROME, April 25 (AP)—The High Court of Justice sentenced Federico Scarpato today to be shot in the back as a spy responsible for the arrest of scores of Italians tortured by the Germans during their occupation of Rome. One witness was a Carabinieri officer, Angelo Ioppi, who hobbled to the stand and showed the court a blood-stained shirt that, he said, he wore during fifty-two days of torture. He testified that he had been arrested through information supplied by Scarpato.

Swiss Bar Ex-Duce's Son

New York, April 25 (AP)—Vittorio Mussolini, son of the former Duce, was refused admission to Switzerland today when he tried to enter the country with a "false Spanish passport," the Rome radio said, quoting a report from Zurich. The broadcast was received by the FCC.

Spaniard in Well 9 Years To Evade Franco's Police

White-Haired, Deaf, He Comes Up When Charges Are Canceled

ZARAGOZA, Spain, April 25 (AP). —White-haired, deaf and nearly blind, a thirty-four-year-old Spanish Socialist, Marcelino Santabarbara, has emerged from the bottom of the well in his back yard where he hid for nine years from Generalissimo Francisco Franco's police.

When Franco's forces captured Zaragoza on July 18, 1936, Santabarbara's family drew all the water out of the well and installed a small room at the bottom. The Socialist then began his long vigil, fed and cared for by his parents.

When informed of the government's decision to liquidate the Tribunal of Political Responsibilities and political charges growing out of the civil war, Santabarbara came up out of his well and gave himself up to the police, who declined to make any statement.

Soviets Deny Americans Arrived in Berlin First

Drew Pearson Story Called 'Fiction From Beginning to End'

MOSCOW, April 25 (AP).—Tass, the Soviet news agency, officially denied today a story by Drew Pearson, Washington columnist, that American patrols were in Berlin April 21 and withdrew because of a protest by Premier Stalin that there was an agreement the Soviets should reach the German capital first.

[Pearson's story said, "United

"Tass is authorized to state that this Pearson's information is completely untrue and a piece of fiction from beginning to end," the Soviet news agency said.

[The report was denied at supreme headquarters in Paris.]

Soviets Are Worried Over Kissing Custom

MOSCOW, April 25 — (AP) While the world awaited an announcement of a link-up of Americtn and Red army forces, Muscovites worried a little about a Russian custom—of kissing one another at a meeting.

An engineer [illegible] near Red square [illegible] matter where the link-up takes place "it will be one of the greatest moments of our epoch."

"The only thing that worries me," he said, "is that we Russians usually kiss one another. This may seem strange to Americans, but I suppose everything will be all right on such an occasion."

Many Allies May Be Among PW's Reds Freed

Moscow, April 25 (AP) — Many British and Americans may be among thousands of prisoners of war freed by the Red Army in the Dresden area, the United States Military Mission said today.

The mission said at least three camps were located in territory occupied by the Russians near Dresden.

Burma Oil Fields Taken By British

Calcutta, April 25 (AP)—British and Indian infantry and armored troops in an 80-mile sweep south along the Irrawaddy River from Pakokku have captured the 60-mile-long rich central Burma oil fields which had supplied the entire Japanese Army in Burma, it was announced today.

A military blackout was lifted on the 14th Army's second drive into southern Burma and on the capture of the oil fields. This armored column, paralleled one driving down the Mandalay railway line toward Rangoon.

Power Stations Wrecked

A survey of the oil fields installations showed that the Japanese had wrecked the power stations and pumping machinery before falling back.

A spokesman said that the Japanese troops concentrated along the Irrawaddy were thrown into complete confusion and that the British troops were meeting with only weak resistance. The Burma oilfields are centered around the recently captured towns of Chauk, Yenangyaung, Yinangyat and Lanywa.

The 14th Army column pushing into southern Burma along the Mandalay-Rangoon railway was making good progress, sometimes at the rate of more than a mile an hour south of Pyinmana, 205 miles north of Rangoon.

Chinese Report War Casualties Now 3,100,000

Cover Period Since 1937; Say Japanese Drive on Chihkiang Will Collapse

CHUNGKING, April 25 (AP).—General Chen Cheng, Chinese War Minister, estimated today that Chinese casualties from the outbreak of the war with Japan in July, 1937, until March, 1945, were 3,100,000.

Discussing the current Japanese offensive in western Hunan, aimed at Chihkiang, American 14th Air Force base 250 miles southeast of Chungking, the War Minister said the enemy would be halted. He repeated a previous Chinese estimate that the Japanese had committed 100,000 men—front-line troops and reserves—to the three-pronged westward offensive.

American planes again today supported the Chinese ground troops in their attempt to beat back the Japanese Hunan drive.

P. H. Chang, Chinese government spokesman, discussing the possibility of an American landing on a portion of the Chinese coast controlled by the Communists, said the government was sparing no effort to achieve a unified command and would do everything possible to avoid conflict with the Communists.

New Shoulder Patch

Flight Officer's Design To Be Used for Forces in China Theater

CHUNGKING, April 25 (AP). — Flight Officer Henry F. Cook, of the United States 14th Air Force, won a $100 war bond today as first prize in a contest for a new shoulder patch design for American forces in the China theater. The contest drew 1,037 entries.

Cook's design featured a white five-pointed star, a white spread eagle of the United States and the twelve-pointed sun of China, all superimposed on a shield half red and half blue.

Japs Draft 500,000 Chinese

Chungking, April 25 (AP)—Chinese press reports today said that Japanese authorities in occupied North China had conscripted 500,000 Chinese for military service. The move was attributed by the newspapers to Japan's "acute shortage of manpower."

Daylight Saving In China

Chungking, April 25 (AP)—Daylight saving time will be introduced May 4 for the first time in Free China when, by order of the Supreme National Defense Council, clocks will be advanced one hour. The advanced time will be observed through September 30.

China for Freedom of News

CHUNGKING, April 25 (AP).—China indorses "in principle" the resolution for a free exchange of news which the American Society of Newspaper Editors seeks to have adopted at the San Francisco conference, a cabinet official, P. H. Chang, told a press conference today.

SUPERFORTS RAID JAP HOME ISLANDS

Airfields Hit by Mighty American Planes in Poor Bombing Weather.

GUAM, Thursday, April 26—(AP) A mighty force of 200 to 250 Superfortresses bombed airfields on the Japanese home islands of Kyushu and Shikoku this morning, dropping their explosives from medium altitude in poor bombing weather.

The strike, aimed at bases from which the Japanese have staged air attacks on American ground positions and shipping at Okinawa, marked the first B-29 raid on Shikoku.

It was the eighth bombing of mainland airfields since March 27 and the fifth raid on Kyushu, the southernmost island, since April 16.

The attack was directed at 11 airfields, but 21st Bomber Command headquarters here said poor weather made observation impossible and only eight fields were known to have been hit.

There was no information of any American plane losses.

The targets included Maysuyama airdrome, on the northwest coast of Shikoku and various fields along the southern and eastern coasts of Kyushu.

JAP AERO-ENGINE PLANT HIT BY B-29S

Guam, April 25 (A. P.).—American Superfortresses, flying without fighter cover, blasted the Hitachi aircraft engine works, near Tokyo yesterday, shooting down thirty-one of seventy-five to eighty Japanese interceptors which came out to meet them. The Tokyo radio reported, following this latest blow at Japanese aircraft production, that five of Tokyo's thirty-five wards were virtually destroyed and another thirteen were damaged heavily.

Four of the 100 to 150 Superfortresses were lost. Flight crewmen on the latest blow at the Nipponese home island said that the Hitachi plant was "blown all to pieces" and that "big fires and great clouds of smoke" were seen in the target area.

A domestic broadcast from Tokyo admitted that a large Tokyo industrial area was "mostly in ruins as a result of fires" from American incendiary raids between "the beginning of March and the middle of April."

19 Japs Killed for Every Yank in Okinawa Struggle

By LEIF ERICKSON

GUAM, Thursday, April 26—(AP) American Doughboys, killing Japanese at the rate of about 19 for every Yank, surged ahead on southern Okinawa yesterday in the first general advance reported since their big push started a week ago.

Recapture of Kakuzu village in the center of the stiff line and seizure of another important elevation on the east coast were reported today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, whose communique listed 21,269 Japanese dead and 399 prisoners taken in the Okinawa campaign, as of yesterday.

This was one-third of the estimater enemy garrison on Okinawa.

This compared with announced American dead of 1,146 in the ground fighting up to last Sunday midnight. In addition, the Yank toll included 5,982 wounded and 296 missing, for total casualties of 7,424.

The totals included neither American nor Japanese naval casualties.

Supported by heavy naval gunfire and low-level air raids, the three U. S. divisions pushed slowly through the toughest defense line encountered in the Pacific war.

Kakuzu village, which was captured by the 27th Division, had been abandoned by the Americans five days ago under heavy mortar fire from nearby ridges. The important elevation, seized by the Seventh division, was Hill 178, a strong point overlooking the Yonabaru airfield.

The ratio of nearly 20 Japanese killed for every American was the best for any major invasion of the Pacific war. The Iwo Jima death ratio was about 5 to 1. The Japanese count on Okinawa covered nearly three days more fighting than did the American toll.

Japanese defenses around the town and airfield of Yonabaru on the east coast were being reduced by naval gunfire and low-level plane raids as the infantrymen advanced.

Nimitz in his summary of enemy casualties on Okinawa, where engineers already are planning a major airbase just 325 miles south of Japan itself, said the 2,269 Japanese killed include those slain on surrounding islands, such as Ie and the Keramas, the latter invaded a week before the Okinawa landing April 1.

A total of 115,279 Okinawa civilians were under jurisdiction of the U. S. military government.

American casualties included 889 soldiers of the 24th Corps and 257 Marines of the Third Amphibious corps killed in action, a total of 4,879 officers and men of the 24th Corps were wounded and 289 were missing. Marine wounded numbered 1,103 and the missing, seven.

Yank Gains Peril Jap East Flank On Okinawa

Guam, April 25 (AP)—United States 7th Division infantrymen, seizing high ground near the village of Ishin, today threatened the eastern flank of the strongly fortified Japanese defense wall on southern Okinawa.

Capture of the elevation was the first marked change in the fiery front since the beginning of the all-out attack last Thursday, when three divisions of Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th Army Corps gained up to 800 yards.

Since then the fighting has been a slow, bloody and methodical job of digging the Japanese from caves, blockhouses and pillboxes in their elaborate interlocking defense belt, which extends 4 miles south to the capital city of Naha.

Three More Islets

Marines of Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's 3d Amphibious Corps, who overran the northern three fourths of Okinawa with little opposition, landed yesterday on three more offshore islands, Yagachi, Heanza and Kouri, virtually completing the American cleanup of islets around Okinawa.

Yagachi and Kouri are north of the Motobu Peninsula, which juts off the northwestern coast of Okinawa. Heanza is off the Katchin Peninsula, on the West Coast. Only on Yagachi was any opposition encountered. This was feeble and quickly dissipated.

Unlike the larger islands of Ie and the Keramas, these small islands are worthless as such but must be occupied to prevent Japanese Okinawa fugitives from reaching them.

Naval Guns In Action

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's communiqué today reported continued heavy fighting along the entire front. Big guns of battleships, cruisers and destroyers poured hundreds of tons of shells into the enemy defenses, sealing off caves and destroying emplacements.

Nimitz, after a personal inspection of the island, said the enemy's defenses on southern Okinawa, where the bulk of the Nipponese garrison of 60,000 or more has been concentrated, appeared to be "as strong, and perhaps stronger, than any we have tackled before."

Air-Base Plans

Engineers studied northern and central Okinawa in preparation to starting work which will develop the Ryukyu Island into a powerful air base for attacks on the Japanese homeland, 325 miles to the north.

"We don't have to wait for complete control of the remainder to start development work," Nimitz said.

"Acquisition of Okinawa will permit us to project our sea and air power to the China coast and the Japanese homeland, and will speed up future operations."

MORE OF MINDANAO WON BY AMERICANS

Guerrillas Capture Vigan and Bantay in Northern Luzon—Foe Firm in Baguio

MANILA, Thursday, April 26 (AP)—Mindanao, last large Philippine island in Japanese hands, is passing swiftly into American control. Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff's Twenty-fourth Division veterans rolled to within fifty-seven road miles of Davao Tuesday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

By far the toughest of many fights in the islands is that around Baguio, where the Americans are pushing down Highway No. 9 from the northwest to within 2,000 yards of the center of the shattered summer capital on north Luzon.

Guerrillas on northern Luzon have captured the port of Vigan, its adjacent airfield and the nearby city of Bantay, and are clearing the entire province of Ilocos Sur of Japanese, General MacArthur reported.

Vigan was one of the original Japanese invasion points in 1942.

Far to the south on Mindanao Island, Twenty-fourth Division troops, with strong air support, advanced sixteen miles along a fair highway to within forty-five airline miles of Davao, one of the major ports of the Philippines. Enemy resistance still was described as scattered.

"We have now reached the hill country," General MacArthur reported. The Americans are within thirty-two air miles of the western shore of Davao Gulf.

A strong force of Liberators set off fires and explosions on Formosa's Matsuyama airdrome in the northern sector and on Taito airfield on the southeast coast.

Bombers patrolling the blockaded China Sea sank six freighters and probably a seventh and sent fifteen barges to the bottom.

Installations at Shanghai were bombed.

Three airfields on northern Borneo were torn up by 100 tons of bombs. A freighter and two river boats were sunk near by.

Leper Colony Found.

Okinawa, April 24 (Delayed) (A. P.).—A leper colony with 850 patients deserted by their Japanese doctors was discovered by American Marines on tiny Yagachi Island off the west coast of Okinawa Island. The lepers—men, women and children—were being cared for by an Okinawan and eight native attendants. Medical and food supplies were low. Water was insufficient and impure. Patients were wasting from disease and badly shocked by the bombardment which preceded the Marine invasion.

All-Out Push On Baguio Is Seen Shaping Up

Manila, April 25 (AP)—Americans consolidated their Baguio positions today for a final push into the ruined summer capital of the Philippines while far to the south, on Mindanao island, other Yanks pressed on toward the Japanese stronghold of Davao.

Maj. Gen. Percy W. Clarkson's 33d Division held commanding positions in the pine-covered hills to the north, west and southwest of Baguio. One column, moving down Highway 9 from the northwest, was little more than a mile from the city center.

Road Repair Work

A section of the road blown up by the defending Japanese was being repaired by engineers for the movement of heavy equipment.

On Mindanao, Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff's 24th Division was fanning out north and east from the road junction of Kabacan, nearly half way to Davao from the American Moro Gulf beachhead.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported in today's communiqué that "the enemy has as yet been unable to concentrate his forces in effective resistance." Some 50,000 Japanese troops and thousands of prewar Nipponese settlers are believed to be on Mindanao.

New Philippine-based plane raids hit Japanese shipping and shore installations at Formosa, the Saigon naval base in French Indo-China, Swatow and Hainan, China, and the Dutch East Indies. Nine Japanese freighters and a number of smaller craft were sunk or damaged.

In the central Philippines an American division unit under Lieut. Col. Louis F. Franco, of Chicago, Ill., cut off Japanese remnants fleeing north from Cebu City by a landing near Danao, 9 miles north of Cebu City.

Early Okinawa-Based Raids On Tokyo Foreseen

Aboard Admiral Turner's Flagship, April 25 (AP)—Vice Admiral Richmond Kelly Turner predicted today that Okinawa-based planes would be over Tokyo "before the Japs know it—observing goings on of the Emperor's palace."

At an impromptu press conference, the comander of the amphibious forces of the American Pacific Fleet, was even more scornful of the Japanese than usual.

"Before the Japs know it planes from Okinawa will be over Tokyo and observing movements within and without the Emperor's palace," he said. "In a very short time Okinawa is going to be an advance base of tremendous importance in our war against Japan. We are landing great quantities of troops and equipment daily.

His View Of The Japs

"My impression is that the Japanese have all but finished their ability to attack. Their intestinal fortitude for attack is nearly finished too, so that Okinawa will be much like our other operations."

Turner expressed pride over "the officers responsible for shore operations which have put all the rest of Okinawa and its near-by islands within our control." He said Japanese resistance on Okinawa provides "some difficulty" but is of no real importance in our development of Okinawa as a base for attack on Japan.

"Going To Town"

Turner acknowledged that ground troops were going to have considerable difficulty cleaning out the island, but "when you talk to them and to their commanders, they've all got their tails over the dashboard and they're going to town. There is no question about their ability to accomplish what was set out to be done."

He observed that the Pacific campaign "has been going forward three years and nobody is so foolish as to think we will stop here."

"Can Take A Lot More"

Not only can we take what they are trying to give us with great ineffectiveness [referring to suicide attacks], but we can take a lot more and at the same time give back additional cracks and strikes at Japan," the Admiral asserted.

He added sardonically that "We not only can stay here, we possibly can do more than just stay here."

The Admiral continued, "We expected when we came up here we would have a very difficult operation in which we would lose a considerable number of ships and aircraft.

"Our losses of ships are less than we anticipated, and decidedly less than we can stand and still continue the operation.

Resistance Less Than Expected

"In other words, Japanese resistance has been less effective than reasonably good military expectations might have anticipated.

"Our takeoff from here will be quite effective against the main Japanese military power."

Turner described enemy suicide attacks as ultimately ineffective, a poor military practice and "rather amateurish."

"We can take those attacks and have been taking them for some months and taking them here," Turner said.

Turned To Advantage

"I feel that not only do we have the answer to such attacks but we can take them because we have the officers and ships to turn them back and convert them to our advantage.

"I am very happy about the past two attacks. The Japanese have come in and thrown everything in the book at us and we have been able to stand them off. If this is the best the Japs can do, I think they've shot their wad."

BLINDED PILOT LED SAFELY TO AIRFIELD

Okinawa, (A. P.) (Delayed).—Two naval carrier-pilots performed a remarkable flying feat when they guided a flak-blinded flyer of their squadron to a safe landing on an airfield here. Coming out of their dive on a Japanese-held airfield in the northern Ryukyu Islands, the flight commander, Lieut. C. J. Chambers, of Bakersfield, Cal., and Lieut. (j g.) Ralph K. Cocanougher, of Lubbock, Tex., saw the injured man, blinded by blood in his eyes, flying aimlessly in a dangerous area.

Lieut. Cocanougher flew in front of the wounded man, to lead him by the sound of his plane's motor, while Lieut. Chambers flew behind to direct him by radio. The wounded pilot, whose name was not revealed, was reported to be recovering.

MANY ARRESTED IN DISUNITY PLOT

Argentina Cracks Down On Upsetting Rumor-Mongers

Buenos Aires, April 25 (AP)—Numerous persons have been arrested in connection with a plot to create disunity among the Argentine people, impair the nation's war effort and sever its ties with other American republics, the Government announced tonight in a communique.

It was officially disclosed that troops from the Campo de Mayo garrison on the outskirts of the capital had been ordered into the city as a precautionary measure.

The announcement said the persons arrested had been placed at the disposition of the War Council—a military board with extraordinary judicial powers provided by a recent decree. Names of those arrested and details of the acts with which they are charged will be made public after the War Council announces verdicts.

The communiqué stated that the plotters carried on an intensive campaign of rumor-mongering in an effort to create public unrest. It added that these maneuvers began to unfold in widespread strikes among packing house workers and were camouflaged as democratic manifestations. In reality, the announcement said, they were moves directed by reactionary elements.

40,000 Meat Packers Return In Argentina

Buenos Aires, April 25 (AP) — Forty thousand workers returned to their jobs in Argentina's meat-packing industry today, ending an eighteen-day strike over laying off 12,000 workers. Britain buys Argentine meat on behalf of herself and the United States under a war-purchasing agreement.

The Government paid 11,500,000 pesos (about $3,000,000) in indemnities to laid-off workers and in salaries lost by the strikers in order to settle the dispute.

The packers laid off about one third of the workers following an abrupt reduction in meat supplies due to a drought which killed thousands of cattle. The layoff of unneeded personnel had been approved by Vice President Colonel Juan Peron, who also is Secretary of Labor and Social Welfare, at meetings with representatives of labor and industry. The strike spread when some workers called the layoffs a betrayal.

Hawaiian Princess Bequeaths Valuables

Honolulu, April 25 (AP)—Jewelry swords, pipes and guns belonging to Hawaiian royalty for many generations were bequeathed to relatives and the Smithsonian Institute by Princess David Kawananakoa, last of the Hawaiian princesses who died here recently, in a will filed in Probate Circuit Court.

Her real property goes to her son David Kalakaua Kawananakoa, her daughter Mrs. Clark Lee and adopted daughter Abigail K. Kekaulike.

Jewelry formerly belonging to Queen Kapiolani, wife of King David Kalakaua, goes to the adopted daughter. The ring given to Queen Liliuokalani by hir brother, Queen Lilioukalani by her brother, Ging Kalakaua, bequeathed to Clark Lee. Fou[illegible] iceless feather capes, symbol[illegible] royalty, were among the art[illegible]s left to the Smithsonian Ins[illegible]tion.

Montreal Mayor To Enter Race

Montreal, April 25 (A. P.)—Mayor Camillien Houde said last night that he will be a candidate in the forthcoming Federal election during which he will lead a (political) movement in the province."

Mayor Houde, elected last December after spending four years in an internment camp for violation of defense of Canada regulations, added in his statement: "I want the people to say whether they approve my stand on national registration, my four years internment for having denounced national registration as a conscription measure and for having asked the King Government to go to the polls before enforcing conscription."

Ask Protection Of Kin

San Francisco, April 25 (AP)—Protection for their parents and sisters from terrorist shooting raids was asked by two American soldiers of Japanese ancestry today.

The appeal was sent to Secretary of the Interior Harold Iskes by Corporal Sherman Kishi and Pfc. Fred Kishi, Company C, School Battalion, Fort Snelling, Minn.

Formosa Cities Evacuated.

San Francisco, April 25 (A. P.).—Jap overlords on Formosa have ordered 100,000 civilians to evacuate Taihoku and Keelung, favorite targets of daily-raiding American bombers from the Philippines, the Domei News Agency reported today. The dispatch recorded by the FCC said a "wide network of air defense zones" would be constructed in the cities on northern Formosa.

London, April 25 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said today that the Japanese relief ship Awa Maru, previously reported by the Japanese to have been sunk April 4 by a submarine, carried 1,500 passengers, including "many notables." Among those listed were Shimpei Takeuchi, Vice Minister of Greater East Asia Affairs.

Truman Opens Parley, Bids It Build for Peace

APR 26 1945

Text of President's Speech Opening World Conference

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP) Text of President Truman's speech to delegates at the United Nations conference at San Francisco:

The world has experienced a revival of an old faith in the everlasting moral force of justice. At no time in history has there been a more important conference, nor a more necessary meeting, than this one in San Francisco, which you are opening today.

On behalf of the American people, I extend to you a most hearty welcome.

President Roosevelt appointed an able delegation to represent the United States. I have complete confidence in its chairman, Secretary of State Stettinius, and in his distinguished colleagues, former Secretary Cordell Hull, Senator Representative Bloom and Representative Eaton, Governor Stassen and Dean Gildersleeve.

They have my confidence. They have my support.

In the name of a great humanitarian—one who surely is with us today in spirit—I earnestly appeal to each and every one of you to rise above personal interests, and adhere to those lofty principles, which benefit all mankind.

Roosevelt Gave Life

Franklin D. Roosevelt gave his life while trying to perpetuate these high ideals. This conference owes its existence, in a large part, to the vision and foresight and determination of Franklin Roosevelt.

Each of you can remember other courageous champions, who also made the supreme sacrifice, serving under your flag. They gave their lives, so that others might live in security. They died to insure justice. We must work and live to guarantee justice—for all.

You members of this conference are to be the architects of the better world. In your hands rests our future. By your labors at this conference we shall know if suffering humanity is to achieve a just and lasting peace.

Let us labor to achieve a peace which is really worthy of their great sacrifice. We must make certain, by your work here, that another war will be impossible.

We, who have lived through the torture and the tragedy of two world conflicts, must realize the magnitude of the problem before us. We do not need far-sighted vision to understand the trend in recent history. Its significance is all too clear.

With ever increasing brutality and destruction, modern warfare, if unchecked, would ultimately crush all civilization. We still have a choice between the alternatives: the cintinuation of international chaos—or the establishment of a world organization for the enforcement of peace.

It is not the purpose of this conference to draft a treaty of peace in the old sense of that term. It is not our assignment to settle specific questions of territories, boundaries, citizenship and reparations.

This conference will devote its energies and its labor exclusively to the single problem of setting up the essential organization to keep the peace. You are to write the fundamental charter.

Our sole objective, at this decisive gathering, is to create the structure. We must provide the machinery, which will make future peace, not only possible, but certain.

The construction of this delicate machine is far more complicated than drawing boundary lines on a map, or estimating fair reparations, or placing reasonable limits upon armaments. Your task must be completed first.

Speak for People

We represent the overwhelming majority of all mankind. We speak for people, who have endured the most savage and devastating war ever inflicted upon innocent men, women and children.

We hold a powerful mandate from our people. They believe we will fulfill this obligation. We must prevent, if human mind, heart and hope can prevent it, the repetition of the disaster from which the entire world will suffer for years to come.

If we should pay merely lip service to inspiring ideals, and later do violence to simple justice, we would draw down upon us the bitter wrath of generations yet unborn.

We must not continue to sacrifice the flower of our youth merely to check madmen, those who in every age plan world domination. The sacrifices of our youth today must lead, through your efforts, to the building for tomorrow of a mighty combination of nations founded upon justice for peace.

Justice remains the greatest power on earth. To that tremendous power alone, will we submit. Nine days ago, I told the Congress of the United States, and I now repeat it to you:

"Nothing is more essential to the future peace of the world, than continued cooperation of the nations, which had to muster the force necessary to defeat the conspiracy of the Axis powers to dominate the world.

"While these great states have a special responsibility to enforce the peace, their responsibility is based upon the obligations resting upon all states, large and small, not to use force in international relations, except in the defense of law. The responsibility of the great states is to serve, and not dominate the peoples of the world."

None of us doubt that with divine guidance, friendly cooperation, and hard work, we shall find an adequate answer to the problem history has put before us.

Realizing the scope of our task and the imperative need for success, we proceed with humility and determination.

By harmonious cooperation, the United Nations repelled the onslaught of the greatest aggregation of military force that was ever assembled in the long history of aggression. Every nation now fighting for freedom is giving according to its ability and opportunity.

We fully realize today that victory in war requires a mighty united effort. Certainly, victory in peace calls for, and must receive, an equal effort.

Man has learned long ago, that it is impossible to live unto himself. This same basic principle applies today to nations. We were not isolated during the war; we dare not become isolated in peace.

All will concede that in order to have good neighbors we must also be good neighbors. That applies in every field of human endeavor.

For lasting security, men of good will must unite and organize. Moreover, if our friendly policies should ever be considered by belligerent leaders, as merely evidence of weakness the organization we establish must be adequately prepared to meet any challenge.

Differences between men, and between nations, will always remain. In fact, if held within reasonable limits, such disagreements are actually wholesome. All progress begins with differences of opinion and moves onward as the differences are adjusted through reason and mutual understanding.

Need Freedom of Thought

In recent years, our enemies have clearly demonstrated the disaster which follows when freedom of thought is no longer tolerated. Honest minds cannot long be regimented without protest.

The essence of our problem here is to provide sensible machinery for the settlement of disputes among nations. Without this, peace cannot exist. We can no longer permit any nation, or group of nations, to attempt to settle their arguments with bombs and bayonete.

If we continue to abide by such decisions, we will be forced to accept the fundamental philosophy of our enemies, namely, that "might makes right." To deny this premise, and we most certainly do, we are obliged to provide the necessary means to refute it. Words are not enough.

We must, once and for all, reverse the order, and prove by our acts conclusively, that right has might.

If we do not want to die together in war, we must learn to live together in peace.

With firm faith in our hearts, to sustain us along the hard road to victory, we will find our way to a secure peace, for the ultimate benefit of all humanity.

We must build a new world—a far better world—one in which the eternal dignity of man is respected.

As we are about to undertake our heavy duties, we beseech Almighty God to guide us in building a permanent monument to those who gave their lives that this moment might come.

May He lead our steps in His own righteous path of peace.

POLISH PROBLEM IS UNSETTLED AS DELEGATES MEET

'We Still Have a Choice between Chaos and Peace,' Says President.

FORMAL ADDRESSES

Speakers Voice Hopes That Differences Will Be Overcome at Sessions.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25—(AP) President Truman opened a conference of statesmen of 46 United Nations today and solemnly dedicated them to the task of forging a permanent peace, to becoming "the architects of a better world."

In a single, succinct sentence the President brought sharply into focus the challenging opportunity confronting them:

"We still have a choice between x x x the continuation of international chaos—or the establishment of a world organization for the enforcement of peace."

Into an impressive stone building, whose flag flew at half staff in honor of the late President Roosevelt, the voice of his successor was brought from Washington to launch one of history's great international meetings.

Other voices were raised in expressions of confidence and hope—the hope of a World scourged for years by bursting steel—that delegates from many lands will weld their polyglot tongues into one mighty voice for enduring tranquility among nations.

The delegates themselves in San Francisco's war memorial opera house appeared grimly determined to succeed.

Prospects Seem Bright

Prospects for success seemed bright—save for serious Anglo-American differences with Russia over a new Polish government and giving it representation here in United Nations councils. And there were the inevitable comments when an April sun was lost behind rain clouds as early comers reached the opera house.

The first conference session, beginning with a minute of "silent, solemn meditation," lasted 31 minutes.

It was given over entirely to formal addresses and two announcements—that all chiefs of delegations will meet tomorrow morning (10:30 a. m. Pacific War Time; 1:30 p. m Eastern War Time) and that another plenary session of the conference will begin tomorrow afternoon (at 6:30 p. m. EWT).

Seventeen men and women in the uniforms of all the armed services of America, filed smartly onto the stage a minute before the crack of the opening gavel. They stood there throughout.

Delegates and advisers, arranged alphabetically in orchestra seats, and visitors packed into a tier of three balconies, listened closely to all the speeches—even, those who knew not a word of English. Bright floodlights glared down on the gathering.

The session over, delegates streamed out to meet in smaller groups in advance of tomorrow's activities.

Perhaps in indirect recognition of the Polish threat to unity at the very beginning of the conference, Mr. Truman declared:

"Differences between men, and between nations, will always remain. In fact, if held within reasonable limits, such disagreements are actually wholesome.

"All progress begins with differences of opinion and moves onward as the differences are adjusted through reason and mutual understanding."

The sole objective at San Francisco, the President said, is to construct the delicate machinery "which will make future peace, not only possible, but certain."

"We represent the overwhelming majority of all mankind," he said. "We speak for people, who have endured the most savage and devastating war ever inflicted upon innocent men, women and children.

Hold Mandate from People

"We hold a powerful mandate from our people. They believe we will fulfill this obligation. We must prevent, if human mind, heart and hope can prevent it, the repetition of the disaster from which the entire world will suffer for years to come."

Under the massive vault of the opera house, beneath a silvery chandelier that hung like a splash of still molten metal, delegates listened in silent awareness of the enormous duty resting upon them.

They listened, too, to a brief address by Secretary of State Stettinius, their temporary chairman, and welcoming words from Governor Earl Warren of California and Mayor Roger Lapham of San Francisco.

"No one of the large nations, no one of the small nations," Stettinius said, "can afford anything less than success in this endeavor. Each of them knows too well what the consequence of failure would be."

But in pre-conference consultations, smaller nations had continued up to the opening hour to jockey for positions of greater prominence. And the Big Three failed to break their deadlock on creating a Polish government acceptable to all.

Through the morning and into the afternoon, there had been meetings of individual delegations in their hotel headquarters. Delegates of the four sponsoring powers—the United States, Britain, Russia and China—had meetings of their own.

The Big Four foreign ministers assembled, apparently to consider last-minute arrangements primarily. But there were indications that they also diverted their discussions to the boiling Polish controversy—without a trace of progress toward settling it.

Russia's outlook improved on another point. If the Soviets press the issue, they apparently can tally three votes for themselves in a proposed general assembly of a world organization.

Some Latin American nations were reported lining up with the Russians; the British commonwealth of nations already had done so.

It isn't that they would like to see Russia get two extra votes. But they would prefer that to any breakdown of the conference.

The American delegation remained hopeful Russia wouldn't raise the three-vote question.

May Compromise

Yet if she got them, some delegates suggested, she might ease off in her insistence of Polish representation at the conference—although the Big-Three rift over composition of a Polish government would remain as deep as ever.

President Truman addressed the delegates in short, measured sentences, his voice flooding through the auditorium which honors the dead of another war.

He himself had turned to words of peace from a war conference in Washington with his top military leaders.

"You members of this conference," the President said, "are to be the architects of the better world. In your hands rests our future. By your labors at this conference we shall know if suffering humanity is to achieve a just and lasting peace.

"Let us labor to achieve a peace which is really worthy of their great sacrifice. We must make certain, by your work here, that another war will be impossible."

Mr. Truman spoke humbly of his predecessor.

Surely, he said, Franklin D. Roosevelt "is with us today in spirit."

The President made no effort to minimize the enormity of the problems confronting the conference. But none doubts, he said, that adequate solutions will be found.

As for the United Nations, the President observed:

"We were not isolated during the war. We dare not become isolated in peace."

Stettinius told the hundreds of delegates clustered in red velvet seats:

"Now the deepest hope and highest purpose of all mankind — enduring peace—is here committed to our hands. x x x We approach our task humbly, but with united resolution.

"The prayers of the people of the world are with us."

Warren and Lapham spoke in similar vein.

"Unity has created the strength to win the war," the Governor asserted. "It is bringing us even closer to the end of world conflict.

"This same strength of unity, continued and cultivated here, can be made to develop a sound pattern of world affairs with a new measure of security for all nations."

"You delegates," Mayor Lapham said, "bear the brunt of what lies before us in the post-war world. May we help you in creating the framework of a world security organization—an organization built not on the shifting sands of distrust but on the rock of mutual understanding."

Before the delegates on the stage from which they heard Stettinius, flags of the 46 participating nations were placed in alphabetical order—a splash of color against a dull blue velvet backdrop.

At their meeting tomorrow, the chiefs of delegation, serving as a "steering committee," will draft a report for presentation and action at the afternoon plenary session of all delegates.

It will cover credentials, organization of the conference, election of officers.

After considering the report, the plenary session will be opened up for addresses by delegation leaders. Probably the chiefs of the four sponsoring delegations will start off. Stettinius is scheduled definitely, but plans are incomplete beyond that.

Not all chiefs of delegation will talk tomorrow. They will have opportunities at later sessions.

Stettinius will preside until the conference is organized.

Probably he will become permanent chairman.

Many delegates are definitely alarmed over failure of the Big Three to get together on Poland and present a united front at the very beginning of deliberations.

The American delegation showed as little inclination to yield as the Russian. Privately and publicly, some of them let it be known they believed America could go no further with conciliatory efforts. And in this stand, they apparently had the firm backing of the White House.

There are other issues, of course, as there must be inevitably in a conference on such a momentous scale.

Smaller nations are clamoring for more power in a projected world organization than Dumbarton Oaks would give. Others want greater recognition for "middle powers."

U. S. Delegates Stand Firm

No More Concessions on Major Issues Are to Be Made to Russia.

San Francisco, April 25 (A. P.).—The United States delegation gave every indication today of standing toughly against any further concessions to Russia on major controversies of the United Nations conference.

Apparently backed to the hilt by President Truman, some of the eight United States delegates let it be known in public and off-the-record conversations that they believe this country has gone far enough in attempting to satisfy the Soviets.

Senator Connally (D.-Tex.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, provided the tip-off on the American attitude when he told reporters on his arrival that the conference will succeed if the participating nations will keep their eyes on the main objectives and not be blinded by personal considerations.

There was no doubt among those who heard him that Mr. Connally was speaking for consumption by the Russian delegates. They have come here with their Government's demands for three votes in the proposed general assembly and for representation by the Soviet-backed Warsaw Polish regime.

Wants U. S. to Lead.

Another delegate, who is unaccustomed to secrecy and the diplomatic double talk in which much international information is transmitted, told a circle of reporters that he believed the time had come for the United States to decide whether it wants to be the leader or follower in peace-keeping moves.

Admonishing listeners that he didn't want to be quoted by name, this delegate said he, for one, thought that enough concessions had been made to the Russians. Among such concessions was President Roosevelt's agreement to support three votes for Russia.

That this was no idle chatter tossed off as corridor gossip was emphasized in the declaration of another delegate that if Russia should refuse for any reason to go through with the conference the meeting would go on anyhow.

Truman Goes Long Way.

A feeling is apparent among some American representatives that Mr. Truman has gone a long way in recent Washington conferences toward forcing Russia's hand.

Their belief is that Foreign Commissar Molotov flew to Washington armed in advance with Premier Stalin's expressed willingness to accept the Chinese justice and international law proposals which Secretary of State Stettinius announced yesterday had been approved by the four sponsoring Powers.

Their interpretation was that Mr. Molotov found American resistance to the Soviet demands for representation of the Warsaw Poles much stiffer than he had expected. To brighten up an otherwise gloomy outlook, he may have made a Russian concession on the Chinese proposition immediately.

All in all, Yankee dander seemed to be rising.

The Welcomes: Governor and Mayor Speak

Warren Voices Greetings for California, Lapham for the San Franciscans

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25 (AP).—Governor Earl Warren of California welcomed the United Nations conference delegates this evening in an address spotlighting the world-wide "good neighbor" policy as exemplified by the holding of the important parleys in places as far apart as this California city and Yalta, half a globe away.

Mayor Roger D. Lapham welcomed the delegates in the name of San Francisco.

The complete text of Governor Warren's address:

"Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen:

"The people of California are highly honored by your presence. We are profoundly grateful to the United Nations for the unity which has pushed the war to a stage that makes timely such a conference as is now being opened. We share with you the full realization of the importance and the solemnity of the occasion.

"You are meeting in a state where the people have unshakable faith in the great purposes which have inspired your gathering. We look upon your presence as a great and necessary step toward world peace. It is our daily prayer that the bonds of understanding forged here will serve to benefit all humanity for generations to come.

"We here on the Pacific coast of the United States of America are fully aware of the special recognition you have given us. Ours is a young civilization — a civilization that has made its greatest development during the lifetime of men now living. Many of you represent nations which are not only ages old but which have for centuries been making the struggle for a better world, the struggle in which we are now all joined. It is a double compliment to us, therefore, to have our young and hopeful segment of the world chosen as the drafting room for a new era in international good will.

"We recognize that our future is linked with a world future in which the term 'Good Neighbor' has become a global consideration. We have learned that understanding of one another's problems is the greatest assurance of peace and that true understanding comes only as the product of free consultation.

"This conference is proof in itself of the new conception of neighborliness and unity which must be recognized in world affairs. The plan to hold this conference was announced at Yalta —half way around the world— only two and a half months ago. Yet, in spite of all the tragic events of the war, including the sad and untimely death of our own President, it opens today here in San Francisco, on schedule, and without the slightest interference with the greatest military undertakings in all history.

"Unity has created the strength to win the war. It is bringing us ever closer to the end of world conflict. This same strength of unity, continued and cultivated here, can be made to develop a sound pattern of world affairs with a new measure of security for all nations.

"It is in the spirit of neighborliness that we join you in advancing tolerance and understanding, the tools with which we are confident a better and a happier world can be built.

"It is in expression of this spirit that I, as Governor of California, welcome you."

THE MAYOR'S ADDRESS

The complete text of the address of Mayor Lapham:

"Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

"President Truman has spoken a welcome to you in behalf of the entire United States of America. Governor Warren has greeted you in behalf of the people of California. I greet you in the name of the people who dwell on the shores of the Bay of San Francisco. We welcome you to the gateway of the Pacific.

"Cosmopolitan San Francisco is well fitted to act as host to our many guest nations. She has gone forward under the flags of six nations. She now stands on the threshold of her greatest role—welcoming a conference whose objective is an international organization—an organization so implemented that it will take us far along the road of civilization and on toward the goal of world peace.

"Almost one hundred years ago our port was thronged with vessels and with men of all nations, seeking gold. Today we are still seeking, but we seek a different treasure; for here in this war memorial opera house, raised to those who died in the first world war—and to all intents and purposes died in vain—we look to you thinking men and women for the foundation of a just an lasting peace.

"This being so, it is altogether proper that San Francisco here and now begins its contribution to a peace-time world. If we can help, we stand ready to serve, but we have no intention of making demands upon your time and energy while you face this solemn and all-important task.

"As the main gateway to the front lines of the Pacific war, San Francisco has borne, and still bears, a heavy war-time responsibility. You delegates bear the brunt of what lies before us in the post-war world. May we help you in creating the framework of a world security organization—an organization built not on the shifting sands of distrust but on the rock of mutual understanding.

"Like good soldiers—soldiers of peace—we of San Francisco are yours to command. In the last few years hundreds of thousands of men and women devoted to war have passed through our city. With hopeful hearts we now welcome you men and women devoted to peace."

Text of Stettinius's Address

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25 (AP).—The complete text of the address by Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius jr. opening the United Nations conference:

Fellow delegates of the United Nations Conference on International Organization:

President Truman has spoken of the grievous loss which came to America and to the world less than two weeks ago. This conference of United Nations to prepare the charter of a world organization owes much to the vision and the courage of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Many of his last hours were spent in preparations for this moment—for a moment which—in the wisdom of God—He could not live to see.

We are met here at the time and at the place which he proposed. We have met to carry forward the great purpose for which he spent his strength—to build the structure of a lasting peace after victory in this war. We have lost a wise and valiant leader, but the purpose lives on. In this purpose the United States is more resolute than ever.

All America spoke through Franklin D. Roosevelt when he said:

"The structure of world peace cannot be the work of one man, or one party, or one nation. It cannot be an American peace, or a British, a Russian, a French or a Chinese peace. It cannot be a peace of large nations—or of small nations. It must be a peace which rests on the co-operative effort of the whole world. . . . There can be no middle ground here. We shall have to take the responsibility for world collaboration, or we shall have to bear the responsibility for another world conflict."

All America also spoke through President Truman just now, when he said:

"With ever increasing brutality and destruction, modern warfare, if unchecked, would ultimately crush all civilization. We still have the choice between the alternatives: the continuation of international chaos, or the establishment of a world organization for the enforcement of peace."

An Enduring Structure Urged

In their purpose to build an enduring structure of world peace, the people of the United States believe they are firmly united with all the other United Nations. They are united with the large countries which, of necessity, have had to bear the main burden of winning victory over our common enemies. They are united with the smaller countries, so many of which have suffered the agony and destruction of conquest, all because of the failure of peace-loving peoples to unite in time against aggression before this war.

The vital national interests of each of the United Nations require that all of the United Nations work together to make peace and freedom secure. No one of the large nations, no one of the small nations can afford anything less than success in this endeavor. Each of them knows too well what the consequence of failure would be.

It is, therefore, with this strong bond of compelling mutual interest that this conference of United Nations begins. It is with this clear understanding of what the realities demand of us that we fortify our high vision of a permanent structure of organized peace.

A great American, Cordell Hull, who devoted many years of his life to the task before us, expressed to me only last Sunday his "profound faith that, whatever the difficulties, the labors of the conference will be crowned with success." We all hope that Cordell Hull's improving health will permit him to take part in the conference later on.

To us, who are Americans, it is a hopeful symbol that this conference has met in San Francisco. In our history the West has always meant the future. San Francisco is a place toward which many generations of Americans have turned their eyes. With faith American pioneers opened a new path westward across a wilderness. With courage, they met and conquered every danger along the way until they reached the promised land they sought. Since then Americans have always thought of California, of San Francisco, as a place where hopes come true, where all purposes can be accomplished.

Resolute Approach Is Stressed

Now the deepest hope and highest purpose of all mankind, enduring peace, is here committed to our hands. We, too, are pioneers on a new road. There will be many obstacles and many dangers. We, too, must call upon the courage and the faith of those who came to California before us, across a wilderness to the shores of this great ocean named for peace.

We approach our task humbly, but with united resolution.

The prayers of the people of the world are with us. They are spoken in many tongues and in the words of many creeds. But they are as one voice, rising from the tragedy and suffering of war, in prayer for lasting peace.

Thus fortified, and with the guidance of Almighty God, we must and shall fulfill the purpose for which we have come together.

'MEDITATION' OPENS PARLEY

Action By Stettinius Effects Compromise On Prayer

San Francisco, April 25 (AP)—The United Nations conference was opened, at Secretary Stettinius's request, with "one minute of silent, solemn meditation."

Thus was compromised what had threatened to become somewhat of an issue—whether there should be an opening prayer.

Michael J. McDermott, State Department press chief, said that the official journal of the day said "nothing about prayer."

Bishop Complained

The questions were prompted by a complaint from the Rt. Rev. Malcolm E. Peabody, Episcopal Bishop of Central New York, about what he called the "alleged non-religious procedure" of the conference.

The multitude of religions represented by the attending delegates—and the fact that some have no religion—would have posed a difficult problem in settling on any set prayer.

Wording Of Preamble

In Washington, Senator Hawkes (R., N.J.) urged that the preamble of any world-peace charter drawn by the conference "clearly state that we are endeavoring to act under the guidance and in accord with the will of God Almighty."

In a telegram to Representative Eaton (R., N.J.), a delegate to the conference, Hawkes said many of his constituents were "deeply interested" in the inclusion of such a statement.

San Francisco Lowers Barriers to the Press

And U. S. Delegates Agree to Make Daily Statements

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25 (AP).—An open policy on news of the United Nations Conference on World Organization was proclaimed today.

After a period of indecision in which attempts were made to shut off the American delegation from reporters, these air-clearing moves were taken toward letting newsmen give the world a ringside seat at the parley opening this afternoon:

1. Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius jr. led a news conference in which he presented the American delegates and announced there would be frequent such meetings with the press.

2. The American delegates worked out a program of their own, calling for daily statements to the press, reporting their discussions.

Possibly only the opening and closing plenary sessions of the conference will be public, with the real work and debates in group discussions. Hence reporters must have access to the individual delegates to know what is going on. For a time it appeared official efforts might be made to keep the United States delegates under a gag of silence. The American delegates, however, decided against continuing the policy they had imposed upon themselves since they began their pre-conference deliberations. They removed the gag and also planned daily releases. Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, told a reporter: "I'm not afraid of you fellows. I don't see why the delegates don't talk to newspaper men every day."

Big 4 Holds Final Parley Check

San Francisco, April 25 (AP)—Big Four chiefs gathered today for a last-minute review of plans by which they hope to make the United Nations conference the world's guarantee of peace.

Preliminary to the formal opening at 7.40 P.M. (E.W.T.), these men whose countries are sponsoring the 46-nation assemblage to draw up a world organization, went into a hotel-room huddle.

They were Secretary of State Stettinius, Russian Foreign Minister Molotov, British Foreign Secretary Eden and Chinese Foreign Minister Soon.

Crucial Test Ahead

To them largely falls the job of seeing the conference through its crucial first days and then on into the work of blueprinting machinery for preventing another world war.

The presence of Soong was taken to mean that the Polish issue, sharply dramatized by the absence of any representation thus far for any Polish Government, was not at the moment under discussion.

This difficult problem is almost entirely one for the Big 3, with Russia on one side and Britain and America on the other.

Today's Schedule

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—(AP) Thursday's program for the United Nations conference:

The conference Steering committee, composed of the chiefs of delegations, will meet in closed session (10:30 a. m., Pacific War Time) to work out organization details.

The second plenary session (3:30 p. m.) will be addressed by Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov; British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden and China's Foreign Minister, T. V. Soong. Other delegation chairmen will be called on in alphabetical order.

The United States delegation will hold its daily meeting (9:30 a. m.) Other delegations will confer upon call of their chairmen.

Weather for All Tastes Greets Parley Delegates

San Francisco Offers Sun and Rain in Equal Portions

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25 (AP).—Everybody who is superstitious about the weather, either on the optimistic or pessimistic side, got equal treatment today from San Francisco.

Brilliant sunshine through the morning and early afternoon seemed to some a happy augury for success of the United Nations United Nations conference.

But then came the pessimists' turn—dark clouds that spilled out sweeping gusts of rain.

Back again went the weather—as the delegates gathered—to sunshine and a bright blue sky.

A gavel made of redwood and silver was given to Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, for opening the conference, by the San Francisco chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution.

A real land-office business was done by Uncle Sam selling first-day issue five-cent postage stamps commemorating the opening of the United Nations conference.

Lines were long at the special postoffice set up at conference headquarters in the Veterans Memorial Building.

A San Francisco cab driver lost a valiant struggle to understand some of his Russian fares and, in the end, lost his fares as well.

His next would-be customer had to pass this examination: "Do you speak English?"

Conference Will Hold Plenary Session Today

Delegation Heads to Meet First; Evening Meeting Brief

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25 (AP).—The first United Nations conference session this evening, beginning with a minute of "silent, solemn meditation," lasted thirty-one minutes.

It was given over entirely to formal addresses and two announcements—that all chiefs of delegations will meet tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock Pacific war time (1:30 p. m., Eastern war time) and that another plenary session of the conference will begin tomorrow after[noon] o'clock (6:30 p. m., Ea[stern time]).

Seven[teen] women in the uni[form] all the armed services [of Am]erica, filed smartly onto the [platform] minute before the crack of [noon] ening gavel. They stood there [throu]ghout.

Delegates [and] advisers, arranged alphabetica[lly] in orchestra seats, and visitors packed into a tier of three balconies, listened closely to all the speeches—even those who knew not a word of English. Bright floodlights glared down on the gathering.

States Called on a Par With Soviets and Dominions

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP).—Representative Earl R. Lewis, Republican, of Ohio, suggested today that the United States should have forty-eight votes in any peace organization evolved at San Francisco.

He backed up his suggestion with a resolution he said would have the effect of putting each of the forty-eight states on the same footing internationally as any nation.

"If," Representative Lewis told a reporter "the British Empire is to have six votes, one for each dominion, then Russia with her sixteen autonomou republics, is entitled to sixteen votes, and it follows that the United States can

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25 (AP).—Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius jr. announced today he had appointed Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, as vice-chairmen of the United States delegation at the San Francisco conference. Mr, Stettinius, delegation chairman, said the appointments had the approval of President Harry S. Truman. First Parley Stamps Go To Roosevelt Collection

San Francisco, April 25 (AP)—The first issue of a postage stamp commemorating the United Nations conference was purchased by Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Secretary of State, today for the stamp collection of the late President Roosevelt.

During the simple ceremony Stettinius remarked that if he had lived, Mr. Roosevelt would have been here to buy the stamps himself, so President Truman and the Secretary decided to add them to the famous collection of Hyde Park.

two seats from the aisle. The whole Russian delegation lined up behind him as he moved in. He stood firmly in his place while half a dozen of his men crowded past to the empty seats beyond.

Not too far away, Jan Christian Smuts, prime minister of South Africa, thoughtfully fingered the head of a cane. He could have been thinking back a quarter of a century to the Versailles conference when the victorious nations of another great war gathered in a historic session and built the peace machinery whose failure contributed to the present conflicts.

Foreign Minister Anthony Eden of Britain arrived about 4:20 p. m., shortly after Molotov took his seat.

Today's opening ceremonies were limited strictly to the representatives of the host government—President Truman, by radio; Secretary of State Stettinius, Governor Earl Warren of California and Mayor Roger D. Lapham of San Francisco.

Well to the front of the backdrop on the stage was a curving row of four columns, widely spaced, between which flags of the 46 conference nations rested on white standards.

Some said the pillars stood for the four freedoms, others that they symbolized the domination of the conference by the Big Four sponsoring powers.

When Secretary Stettinius, Governor Warren, Mayor Lapham, and Alger Hiss, who is to be secretary general of the conference, came in the audience and stage alike were suddenly deluged with brilliant audible. He spoke rapidly.

A breeze from offstage ruffled the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack beside it and picked up the colors of other nations down the line.

There was a short burst of applause as the presidential address concluded.

Governor Warren, Mayor Lapham, and Stettinius, then spoke, in that order.

The Secretary of State concluded his speech, then rose again to present Hiss and to make two announcements before adjourning the first session at 5:05 p. m.

Hiss said that chairmen of all delegations would meet at 10:30 a. m. Pacific War Time tomorrow in the nearby Veterans' building auditorium and that the full conference again would convene in the opera house at 3:30 p. m.

Delegates filed slowly out, as the band backstage struck up a stirring march.

The first big day was over.

made the four mile trip in seven and one-half minutes, stopping for red lights and stop signs on the way.

A regular secret service detail accompanied him and he did not have a motorcycle police escort.

The President entered an elevator and was sped upstairs to an unannounced floor and room. He was followed shortly afterwards by General of the Army George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff; Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations; Fleet-Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the commander in chief; War Secretary Stimson and Joseph C. Grew, undersecretary of state.

The President reappeared at 3:28 p. m. He had entered the building at 1:40 p. m.

He smilingly observed, "no comment," when reporters asked him the nature of his session.

Hollywood Put to Shame By Conference Splendor

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25. — (AP) The State department outdid Hollywood today in providing a setting in San Francisco's vaulted opera house auditorium for the opening session of the United Nations conference.

The huge hall was a blaze of color ranging from a brilliant sky blue backdrop for the stage, through splendid golds and rich creams to the plush red of the auditorium seats.

Into this glowing scene were packed 3,300 delegates, advisers, consultants, cameramen, newsmen and others who managed to gain tickets to this historic opening session of the great conference to preserve peace.

Molotov Arrives Early

Among the best known delegates, Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia arrived first. Molotov sat light.

A minute before these speakers appeared, representatives of each branch of American armed services, both men and women, marched out from the wings and stood just before the flags and behind the speakers.

The first words of the conference, spoken by Stettinius, were:

"The conference of the United Nations on international organization is now convened. We shall open the conference with one minute of silent, solemn meditation."

As some of the delegates stirred, he added "remaining seated."

Stettinius took a chair himself. Then he arose, arranged his coat with one hand, and said:

"Delegates, the President of the United States."

Mr. Truman's voice came through the loudspeakers firmly and easily

TRUMAN CONFERS WITH LEADERS IN PENTAGON OFFICE

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP) President Truman made a mysterious and unprecedented visit to the Pentagon building today to confer with his top military leadership.

There was nothing but silence from the high command participants in the one hour, 48-minute conference, but the imminence of a junction of American and Soviet forces in Hitler's Reich gave rise to much speculation.

The elaborate communications system in the huge War department building, across the Potomac from Washington, would make it possible to bring into the conference General Eisenhower or virtually any other commander in the field.

The White House and the War department clamped the lid of secrecy on the President's action, marking the first visit of a chief executive to the war-born Pentagon from which the army's movements on far-flung battlefronts are directed.

There is no record that President Roosevelt ever was in the building.

Truman Orders Navy To Seize Ship Plant

Washington, April 25 (AP)—President Truman today ordered the Navy to seize and operate the plants of the United Engineering Company, Ltd., at San Francisco, where a jurisdictional dispute has tied up work on several ships.

The order directed the Secretary of the Navy to take possession of all or such parts, as he deems necessary, of the main office and machine shops.

He also was authorized to take possession of such piers and other property as may be leased or otherwise contracted for in connection with the operation of the main office and machine shops.

First Step Of Kind

Officials said that this was the first time that the Government has taken over a war plant as a result of a labor jurisdictional dispute.

Last February two AFL unions—the International Association of Machinists, Local 68, and the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Local 6, became involved in a dispute over engine room rigging at the San Francisco properties. This resulted in a strike by outside machinists in the yard which subsequently spread to the shop machinists.

DROP IN WAR SPENDING SEEN

Forecasts Of Cutbacks Come From Army, WPB, House

Washington, April 25 (AP)—A sharp drop in war spending and a letup in civilian production controls within a few months were predicted today as the United Nations plunged on toward victory in Europe.

Three high Government officials painted the brightened domestic picture.

1. Representative Snyder (D., Pa.), chairman of the House subcommittee which handles War Department appropriations, informed President Truman that a quick victory in Europe may mean a cut in army spending amounting to billions of dollars next fiscal year, as compared to last.

2. J. A. Krug, war production chief, estimated that the WPB may be able to release nearly one third of its controls on industry in the next four months.

3. Robert L. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, announced the Army will cut its supply orders substantially in the next 30 to 60 days.

While the pronouncements indicated no change in the WPB's previous estimate that war requirements can be cut back by fifteen per cent soon after V-E day, they disclosed that specific steps to that end rapidly are being outlined.

Waiting With Appropriations

Snyder announced after his talk with Mr. Truman that his committee is awaiting a final determination of army needs in view of "the bright picture on the Western front" before framing its appropriations for the next fiscal year, beginning July.

He said, however, that big cuts inevitably can be made after end of the European war, without interfering with a total fight against Japan. The European struggle is costing this country $200,000,000 a day, Snyder said.

Patterson's statement disclosed that the Army's reduction in requirements will be geared to dwindling German resistance and not be dependent upon a full stop in hostilities.

Reductions Before V-E Day

He said existing orders will be reduced in "substantial amounts" which are expected to lessen the number of major changes that will be required after V-E day.

Patterson's statement did not indicate what orders for equipment would be cut back, but Howard Bruce, director of matériel for the Army Service Forces, said later the curtailment was expected to fall heaviest on tanks, artillery and some ammunition. Bruce said there also would be possible reductions in replacement truck tires and construction equipment and little or no change in the procurement of food, clothing, shoes, trucks and communication wire.

Bruce said approximately 2,000 items, representing about three fourths of army procurement exclusive of the air forces, are being surveyed for possible curtailment.

Survey May Be Ready May 10

Specific reductions will be scheduled after the survey is completed, possibly by May 10.

Krug, appearing before a House Postwar Economics Committee, said the WPB is ready to wipe out all controls on industry as soon as possible after the defeat of Japan, and at the same time aid industry through its reconversion period.

Krug said war-procurement contracts will be cut back fifteen per cent in the next three or four months, and estimated that war production will be reduced by 40 per cent within a year or fifteen months.

After the collapse of Germany, the WPB chief said, the country will have a "mixed economy," the making of essential civilian products without interference with the production of war goods essential to the defeat of Japan.

Army Funds Cut Of Billions Is Predicted

Washington, April 25 (AP)—Quick victory in Europe, President Truman was told today, may mean a cut of billions of dollars in War Department appropriations.

"At any rate," Representative Snyder (D., Pa.) added to reporters after conferring with the Chief Executive, "it looks like the reductions will run substantially into the billions anyway."

Snyder is chairman of a House subcommittee in charge of army appropriations.

"We are awaiting a final determination," he said, "as to how much the Army will seek as a result of the bright picture on the Western front.

"If there should be a sudden victory in Europe the indications are that the reductions under last year may run into many billions."

Superhighway Discussed

Snyder said he also discussed his long-advocated proposal for a superhighway system with the President and that the latter seemed to look upon it with some favor.

He added, however, that there was no decision.

Coinciding with Snyder's prediction of reduced army appropriations was an announcement by Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson that a "substantial" cut in army supply orders will be made during the next 30 to 60 days.

Patterson said the curtailment will result from reduced consumption of certain items in the European theater and revised estimates of matériel requirements during the remainder of this year.

"Substantial Reductions"

In a statement, Patterson said existing orders will be reduced in "substantial amounts," and added that he expected the revisions to reduce the number of major changes which may be required when V-E day comes.

The statement did not give any indication of what orders for equipment would be cut back.

"The reduction," Patterson said, "will not affect the continuing provision of ample support for further efforts in Europe and in the Pacific until all-out victory is assured."

The Army previously had announced suspension of construction of munitions and tank plants which could not be completed and put into operation by fall. Army Air Forces also have announced a reduction in aircraft output.

Tentative Cutback Plans

Howard Bruce, director of matériel for the Army Service Forces, later said he expected the cutbacks to account for a major part of the contemplated sixteen per cent reduction in military production when hostilities end in Europe.

Bruce said that approximately 2,000 items—representing about three fourths of army procurement exclusive of the Air Forces—are being surveyed for possible curtailment. No specific reductions will be scheduled until the survey is completed, possibly by May 10.

He expects the curtailment to fall heaviest on tanks, artillery and some ammunition, he added, with possible reduction in replacement truck tires and construction equipment. There will be little or no change, he said, in the procurement of food, clothing, shoes, trucks and communications wire.

BROADER TRADE POLICY IS URGED

Vinson Makes Appeal for Expanding Economy.

Washington, April 25 (A. P.).—Fred M. Vinson, Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion, told Congress today that an expanding economy for this nation depends in a large measure upon our foreign economic policies.

Appearing before the House Ways and Means Committee in support of legislation extending and broadening the reciprocal trade act, Mr. Vinson said the legislation was part of the administration's broad economic policy. What Congress does about the measure, he said, "will constitute a revealing guide to people throughout the world as to what kind of leadership to expect from the United States."

He said that any fair-minded person "will have to admit that it yields results that are equitable and that it affords safeguards against the injury of any legitimate domestic interest."

"This country is committed to the system of free enterprise," Mr. Vinson said. "It is our intention, just as soon as it is feasible to do so, to relax and remove wartime restrictions and controls.

"This country is also committed to the goal of an expanding, as opposed to a contractive, economy. It is committed to take every step necessary to insure that after the war there will be productive jobs for every one who is able and willing to work.

"Because of these commitments, and because of our tremendously expanded wartime productive capacity, the measures pertaining to broad economic foreign policy now before Congress are of great importance."

Mr. Vinson envisioned post-war exports double any pre-war figures, saying "our post-war objective of a high level of prosperity and full employment will necessitate exports of at least $10,000,000,000."

Moreover, he said, "imports of the magnitude of $6,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000,000 will be necessary to support the level of post-war prosperity that we all want."

Ceiling On Surplus Goods Criticized

Washington, April 25 (AP)—Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee declared today that OPA should suspend price regulations on commodities of which there is a surplus.

He made the comment after hearing apple growers from Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania assert that the agency is at least partially responsible for a current glut of apples, many of which they said will spoil.

"The OPA could have done a good job for everybody by suspending ceilings on apples," Thomas told reporters, "and on all commodities of which there is a surplus."

He said he is sure Congress will insist, as soon as the war is over, that the agency relax controls over commodities in which there is no danger of spiraling prices.

LaGuardia Discusses Frauds

"Fictitious" price ceilings were blamed by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia yesterday for black markets in meat.

As the New York Mayor, appearing before a Senate Agriculture subcommittee yesterday, urged higher-price ceilings to counteract black markets, there were these other food developments:

1. House Republicans asked President Truman to consolidate all food agencies and to classify food production as an essential war industry.

2. James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers' Union and member of the War Mobilization Advisory Board, contended the Senate inquiry has interfered with progress of legislation to extend the Price Control Act.

Slaughter Ratio Changed

3. The OPA increased the maximum percentage of choice and good grades of cattle that may be slaughtered during monthly accounting periods.

4. In Pittsburgh, Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) called for "good stiff sentences" for leaders of black markets "raging" across the nation.

The suggestion by House Republicans that food controls be placed under a single agency was based on a report of the GOP Congressional Food Study Committee.

View Of The Group

Representative Jenkins, of Ohio, chairman of the group, told a caucus that approved a resolution urging the move:

"The confusion and disorganization resulting from conflicting and arbitrary orders from a half-dozen different agencies has created maldistribution, false shortages, black markets and empty store shelves, and holds no promise whatever of improvement in the future."

APPLE SURPLUS BLAMED ON OPA

Thomas Favors No Ceilings In Event Of Excess Supply

Washington, April 25 (AP)—A suggestion that OPA relax price controls on commodities of which a surplus exists found favor with the Senate Agriculture Committee today.

The committee prepared to return to the meat problem again tomorrow after hearing three apple growers from as many Eastern States declare that OPA is partially responsible for a current surplus of apples, which one witness said approximated 10,000,000 bushels.

"OPA should stay out when their staying out would not cause distress," John D. Peters, of Gardners, Pa., told the commitee, and Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) said he agreed.

High Ceilings Blamed

"The OPA could have done a good job for everybody by suspending ceilings on apples and on other commodities of which there is a surplus," Thomas said after the hearing.

Peters and two other apple growers said last year's unusually large crop of apples did not move to the market as freely as did comparable crops because OPA ceilings were high.

Committee members suggested there was no compulsion that grocers sell at maximum prices, but the growers testified retailers have come to regard ceilings as an indication of value and refuse to sell commodities at underceiling prices.

Spoilage Predicted

The admitted inability of OPA to establish ceilings taking into consideration varieties and grades of apples, the growers asserted, has resulted in the piling up of low grades.

E. B. Moore, of Winchester, Va., predicted there would be widespread spoilage and dumping of the surplus.

Moore and Peters, as well as Harry R. Miller, of Martinsburg, W. Va., said it is too late to alleviate the condition this year, but urged the committee to take action to prevent a repetition.

Proposes Applejack

Moore said the War Food Administration has arranged to open several drying plants in Virginia to handle a portion of the surplus. Cider tanks are already full, he said.

Thomas said he had heard talk of "a shortage of hard drinks," and asked whether some of the crop couldn't be made into applejack.

Moore said consumers won't buy applejack if they can get whisky and that he doubted distillers would be willing to take on any considerable amount of the surplus.

WPB TO DROP SOME CONTROLS

Krug Says One-third May End in Four Months.

Washington, April 25 (A. P.).—J. A. Krug, War Production chief, told a House Committee today—as his own "speculation"—that nearly a third of the War Production Board's industry will be released in the next four months.

All controls should be dropped as soon as possible after the defeat of Japan, he added.

Krug, appearing before a post-war economics committee, said that war procurement contracts will be cut back 15 per cent in the next three or four months and estimated war production will be down to 60 per cent of its present level within a year or fifteen months.

WPB is ready, he said, to wipe out controls as soon as possible and, at the same time, aid industry through its reconversion period with the allotment of essential supplies and materials.

First job, he said, will be to grant priority assistance on so-called "bottleneck items" to help the seventy-two industries which went into war production to convert to the minimum peacetime production essential to the country."

Industry will need $41,000,000 in new construction and $60,000,000 in tools alone to get back to the "minimum economic rate of production," he said.

Policy Outlined.

"From here on out," Krug testified, "we've got to boost up production in textiles, lumber, forest products and similar items—all very important to our peacetime economy.

After the collapse of Germany, he said, the country will have a "mixed economy"—the all-out production of war goods essential to the defeat of Japan and the making of essential civilian products. He outlined as WPB's policy:

1. Meet the military needs for the Japanese war on full schedule.

2. Help essential normal production such as railroad equipment, farm machinery, utilities and the oil industry.

3. Guide war production of offset local unemployment where possible.

4. Aid industrial reconversion.

5. Assist urgently needed non-war production plants.

6. See to it that there is a fair share of vital materials for small manufacturers.

7. Eliminate production controls as quickly as possible.

To Move on Speculators.

"We recognize our responsibility," he said, "for making certain the small producer doesn't get squeezed out in reconversion. We will have to continue inventory controls to see that speculators don't seize the market to drive up prices or drive out competition."

The WPB chief said reconversion will cause "a great many local dislocations, some of them in serious proportion," when war plants begin closing down. The job, he said, is to get war workers into essential peacetime industry as smoothly as possible, at the same time making sure they stay in war plants as long as military goods is needed."

Tax-Cut Forecast Is Hit By Taft

Washington, April 25 (AP)—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) today disputed a prediction by Representative Doughton (D., N.C.) of possible tax adjustments "right after V-E day."

Taft is the second ranking Republican on the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee. Doughton is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and of the joint committee on internal revenue taxation.

"I don't see any possibility of any tax reductions except of the most minor nature as long as the war with Japan continues," Taft said.

Basis Of His Conclusion

He said he based his conclusion on estimates that the cost of Government will be "at least" $75,000,000,000 the first year after the end of the war with Germany and on the fact that the present tax system is yielding the Treasury about $45,000,000,000 annually.

Doughton, who voiced his prediction after a White House visit yesterday he said was not related to tax matters, did not specify what adjustments he thought may be possible. Some observers thought he might have been referring primarily to proposals designed to aid industrial reconversion.

Taft said that when the time arrives for trimming the individual tax burden, he favors increasing exemptions as a first step, rather than altering the rates.

House Favoring Draft Curb

Washington, April 25 (AP)—House members swung rapidly into line today behind a move to accept a Senate restriction on the use of 18-year-old draftees.

Chairman May (D., Ky.) of the House Military Committee said his present inclination was to ask the House to concur in the Senate amendment to legislation extending the draft act beyond its present expiration date of May 15.

There was a possibility that the House would ask for a conference to seek a compromise with the Senate, but May, who will handle the measure, said he believed concurrence would be the best step.

May Seek Action Tomorrow

He cited the changed picture on the war fronts and said he probably would seek House action tomorrow.

Approved yesterday by a 50-25 vote as an amendment to House-passed legislation extending the draft law beyond its present May 15 expiration date, the restriction would prohibit assignment of 18-year-old inductees to combat until they have had at least six months' training.

It would not apply to Navy assignments to combat ships for training.

Although many House members favored a similar restriction when that chamber passed the bill last month the committee and the House itself sidetracked the issue in order to expedite the legislation.

While in the past the House generally has followed the recommendations of the high command without question in such matters the bright outlook on the European front and continued successes in the Pacific were expected to strengthen the position of advocates of the curb.

STUDY FREEING OF PHILIPPINES

Truman and Tydings Have Discussion on Liberty.

Washington, April 25 (A. P.).—The question of expediting Philippine independence was reviewed today at a conference between President Truman and Senator Tydings (D.-Md.).

"I found the President already has been studying the problem in quite a bit of detail," Senator Tydings, chairman of the Senate Committee on Territories and Insufar Affairs, said after a forty-five-minute session with Mr. Truman.

"We are working on some matters which ought to help improve the economic position of the Philippines as fast as the military situation will permit. I found the President is anxious to carry out the law already enacted calling for independence not later than July 4, 1946, and sooner than that when conditions will warrant it, which I am sure will be before that ultimate date. We talked over how we could best accomplish a successful independence."

President Roosevelt told President Osmena of the Philippines shortly before his death that he foresaw the possibility of full independence by fall.

Senator Tydings said today that that was possible, but he added: "The ruin, devastation, lack of trade, lack of tax revenues, lack of shipping and the restoration of civilian government are all matters which will have to be dealt with to make independence a sure success."

APR 26 1945

He added that the Philippine Rehabilitation Commission and Congress are working on these problems, with particular emphasis on war damages and the re-establishment of trade relations.

"What we need is a little more information and a little more action," he said.

47 Of 78 Nazi Camps Holding Yanks Overrun

Washington, April 25 (AP)—A partial list of German prisoner-of-war camps containing American soldiers which have been overrun by Allied armies was released today by the War Department.

Allied troops have captured at least 47 of the 78 camps and hospitals in which Americans are known to be held. Some 20,000 to 25,000 Americans have been liberated.

The partial list as compiled by the Department and, in some cases, the number liberated at the camps follows:

Part of Stalag Luft 3 at Laugwasser-Nuernberg, 200 liberated; Oflag 12-B at Hadamer; Oflag 79 at Brunswick; Oflag 13-B at Hammelburg, 48 liberated; Luft 4 at Stalag 357 in Oerbke, Stalag 10-B at Sandostel and Stalag 11-B at Fallingbostel, 2,833 liberated at the three camps.

Others Are Listed

Stalag 2-B at Hammerstein, Stalag 4-D at Stargard, Stargard 3-C at Altdrewitz, 1,500 liberated; Stalag 344 at Lamsdorf, Stalag 8-B at Teschen, Stalag 8-C at Sagan, Stalag 8-A at Gorlitz, Stalag and Lazaret 5-A at Ludwigsburg, Stalag and Oflag 5-B at Villingen, Lazaret Rottenmunster serving Oflag 5-B.

Oflag 7-B at Eichstadt; Stalag 17-B at Krems, Stalag 4-B at Muhlberg, Stalag 4-D at Torgau, Stalag 4-F at Hartmansdorf, Stalag 4-G at Oschatz, Oag 4-C at Coditz, four American officers liberated.

Stalag 6-G at Bergneustad; Stalag 6-J at Dorsten; Stalag 9-A at Ziegenhain, 1,287 liberated; Stalag 9-B at Bad Orb, 3,248 liberated.

Oflag 9-A—H at Spangenburg; Oflag 9-A—Z at Mulhausen; Stalag 9-C at Bad Sulza; Stalag 12-A at Limburg; Stalag 12-D at Waldbreitbach; Stalag 12-F at Freinshein; Stalag 13-C at Hammelburg; Dulag Luft at Wetzlar, Dietz and Oberursel, 738 liberated.

Lazaret Bad Seden at Meiningen and Obermassfeld; Burganfuchmuehl in Wurttenburg province, 47 liberated; Oflag 64 Schubin, approximately 30 liberated; Lazaret at Heppenheim, 350 liberated.

SAVING OF HEIGHT BRINGS TOP HONOR

Slain Officer Given Highest Award For Work In Italy

Washington, April 25 (AP)—An infantry officer whose leadership was credited with saving the 5th Army's hold on strategic Mount Battaglia in Italy has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously.

He is Capt. Robert E. Roeder, 27, of Summit Station, Pa., who was killed by a shell burst last September 28 as he fought with his men to repel the sixth German attack against his company within two days. Earlier, he had been wounded but had refused to stop for treatment.

The War Department said today the medal will be given to Roeder's mother, Mrs. Cora Roeder, of Summit Station, although arrangements for the presentation were not announced.

He Inspires His Men

Roeder, who entered the Army in 1936 as a private and worked up, commanded Company G, of the 350th Regiment, which had seized Mount Battaglia, gateway to the Po Valley.

The Germans immediately laid down a furious artillery barrage and then launched a series of counterattacks, sending in troops with bayonets and grenades. A company report of the action said:

"Throughout the violent shelling, Captain Roeder crawled from foxhole to foxhole, encouraging the men and giving them fire directions. His complete disregard for his personal safety inspired his men to face the overwhelming odds."

Five counterattacks in fourteen hours were thrown back September 27, but early the following day the Germans, using flame throwers, advanced again through a fog.

Joins In Point-Blank Fire

"Captain Roeder," the company report said, "remained in the face of this at the front of his men, shouting encouragement. He was struck by a shell fragment and a large wound was torn in his shoulder. He fell unconscious and was carried to the command post. Here, he regained consciousness, refused treatment . . . staggered outside and picked up the rifle of one of his fallen men and joined in the point-blank fire."

A few minutes later he was killed. The citation said that as a result of Roeder's "able and intrepid leadership, his men held Mount Battaglia against the progressive enemy attempts to retake this important and strategic height."

Flags of Confederacy Win Senate Approval

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP).—A bill passed by the Senate today may inspire American troops to chill the enemy with the rebel yell of the Confederate armies.

The measure by Senator A. B. Chandler, Democrat, of Kentucky, which went to the House, authorizes regiments which date back to the Civil War to carry again their battle streamers of that conflict. Only streamers or decorations for Federal service now are allowed.

Army To Release Some At Mid-Year

Washington, April 25 (AP)—Some army veterans are due to be discharged soon, it was learned today, and a curb on the use of 18-year-olds in combat appears headed for the statute books.

Military officials said plans are being laid to release, beginning about midyear, a number of soldiers who are rounding out four to five years of service.

They cautioned, however, that it will not be possible to release all of these long-term veterans.

"Even a unit as small as a battery may have men who would be entitled to release, but who could not be spared," an official said.

Volunteers, Draftees Affected

The new policy will bring the discharge of some of those men who enlisted in the Army as the military defense program gained momentum, beginning in May, 1940. It also will apply to veterans who were among the first to be drafted in November of that year.

The discharge program will go into effect even if German resistance should continue beyond midyear.

Considerable House sentiment sprang up for the legislation which the Senate passed yesterday to prohibit the use of 18-year-olds in combat without six months' training.

Legislators on the "inside" predicted that, barring some unforeseen development, it probably will be accepted by the House tomorrow and sent to President Truman.

Opposed By Army

Although the military high command is vigorously opposed to it, the President cannot veto it without imperiling the legal status of the whole draft machinery.

The legislation is in the form of an amendment to a bill extending the draft law one year beyond the present expiration date, May 15.

Chairman May (D., Ky.) of the House Military Committee said that, in view of changed prospects on the war fronts, he believed there would be no harm in accepting the Senate amendment.

The planned release of veterans of four to five years' service could rule out any substantial reduction of draft calls after June 30.

Senator Overton Dubious About Powers of M. V. A.

Says River Authority 'Might Disregard Congress Itself'

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP).—Congress is "properly jealous" of its rights and "many of us are apprehensive of the effects of creation of a Missouri Valley Authority," Senator John H. Overton, Democrat, of Louisiana, asserted today.

"An M. V. A. might disregard Congress itself," said Mr. Overton, chairman of a Senate Commerce subcommittee, during testimony of witnesses opposing such an authority as proposed by Senator James E. Murray, Democrat, of Montana.

Senator Overton said a "legislative green light is now on" for full water development of the Missouri River basin as authorized last year in the flood-control act. "All we are waiting for," he continued, "is for the end of the war when appropriations can be made and development of the basin begin. On the other hand, if we try this new and untried venture of an authority, there will be at least a four or five year delay—and we will be back just where we are today."

Fred J. Fredrickson, executive director of the North Dakota Resources Board, and resources director of the Great North Dakota Association, said that many North Dakotans had mistakenly been led to believe that without a "superduper" authority there could not be a valley-wide program of development.

Sen. Tydings Sees Truman

Washington, April 25 (AP)—The question of expediting Philippine independence was reviewed today at a conference between President Truman and Senator Tydings (D., Md.).

"I found the President already has been studying the problem in quite a bit of detail," Tydings, chairman of the Senate Territories and Insular Affairs Committee, told reporters after a 45-minute session with Mr. Truman.

"We are working on some matters which ought to help improve the economic position of the Philippines as fast as the military situation will permit.

President Eager To Help

"I found the President is anxious to carry out the law already enacted calling for independence not later than July 4, 1946, and sooner than that when conditions will warrant it, which I am sure will be before that ultimate date.

"We talked over how we could best accomplish a successful independence."

President Roosevelt told President Osmena of the Philippines shortly before his death that he foresaw the possibility of full independence by fall.

TO NAME CARRIER 'F. D. ROOSEVELT'

WASHINGTON, April 25—(AP) A giant aircraf' carrier to be launched at the New York Navy yard Sunday has been re-named the "Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Congressional sources said Mrs Roosevelt would sponsor the 45,000 ton vessel, which is a sistership of the Midway launched last month at Newport News, Va. The navy, however, disclaimed any knowledge of this arrangement.

In an unprecedented move the navy assigned the name of the late president to the carrier as a token of honor for his long and intimate association with the naval service.

It will be the first carrier to bear the name of an individual.

The vessel originally was assigned the name of "Coral Sea" in recognition of the battle which occurred in that area in May, 1942.

This was the battle that effectively checked the Japanese in their southward drive and marked the end of the period during which the United States navy was totally on the defensive.

Senators Would Promote Prisoners Of Japanese

Washington, April 25 (AP)—The Senate voted today to promote enlisted men and most officers of the armed forces who were in the Pacific December 8, 1941, and now are Japanese prisoners. The bill goes to the House.

Advancement by a grade in rank would be given dating back to December 8, 1942, with an additional grade for every succeeding year.

The Army and Navy had opposed the measure by Senator Chavez (D., N.M.) on the ground that promotions should be based on individual merit. Only officers below the grade of colonel in the Army, or corresponding grade in other services, would be affected.

Snyder Appointment Confirmed By Senate

Washington, April 25 (AP)—John W. Snyder, St. Louis banker, was confirmed by the Senate today as Federal loan administrator.

His nomination was the first major appointment sent up by President Truman. The Senate acted quickly, by a voice vote and without debate.

Lockhart Censorship Post Given To Koop

Washington, April 25 (AP)—Theodore F. Koop today was appointed assistant director of censorship in charge of the press division, effective May 1. He succeeds Jack H. Lockhart, who is returning to active newspaper work.

Lockhart, who was managing editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal when he joined censorship more than three years ago, will be directly associated with John H. Sorrells, executive editor of the Schipps-Howard newspapers, with headquarters in New York.

Koop served with the Associated Press in various parts of the country and with the National Geographic Magazine.

He joined censorship three weeks after Pearl Harbor, and had served since then as special assistant to the director, in charge of administrative, liaison and other activities. He was in uniform until recently as a Naval Reserve officer.

Navy Honors Adm. Smith

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP).—Vice-Admiral William W. Smith received a letter of commendation for his services as director of the Naval Transportation Service between Jan. 10, 1943, and Feb. 17, 1945, the Navy Announced today. A native of Newark, N. J., Admiral Smith now makes his home in Springfield, N. J.

Aid On Refinery Given To British

Washington, April 25 (AP)—The Petroleum Administration for War said that it is extending assistance to British interests in the construction of a 100-octane refinery on Curacao Island, off of Venezuela. The unit is being built for the Dutch Royal Shell plant at a cost of $6,700,000 as a part of the overall program to meet military demands for aviation gasoline.

United States co-operation consists of acceptance of orders for approximately $1,650,000 of materials to be fabricated in this country. British companies pay cash for equipment for these refinery expansion projects, PAW said.

All refinery facilities in the Caribbean area have been pooled for use by the United Nations.

PATTON CONFIRMED AS 4 STAR GENERAL

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP) Lt. Gens. George S. Patton, Jr., Third Army commander, and Courtney H. Hodges, commander of the First Army in Germany, were confirmed as four-star generals by the Senate today.

The Senate also confirmed the promotions of nine others to the rank of lieutenant general. They are: Joseph L. Collins, Oscar W. Griswold, Lucius D. Clay, Geofrey Keyes, Edmund B. Gregory, Walton H. Walker, Levin H. Campbell, Jr., Wade Hampton Haislip and Eugene Reybold.

WASHINGTON, April, 25—(AP) The American public will soon see on the screens of their movie theaters the horrors of German concentration camps.

Army signal corps pictures of the victims of German atrocities—living and dead—at the Nordhausen, Ordruff and Arnstadt camps were released today to news reel organizations and will reach the theaters some time within a week

LA GUARDIA URGES OPA-WFA MERGER

NEW YORK, April 25—(AP) Mayor F. H. La Guardia proposed today that the OPA and the War Food Administration be merged as a step toward solving the nation's food problems.

His suggestion, made at a public hearing conducted by the House committee investigating food shortages, was applauded by consumer representatives who had testified that choice cuts of meat were plentiful at "black market" prices up to $1.20 a pound.

Besides urging the creation of one over-all agency with control of production, distribution and prices, La Guardia made these principal recommendations:

1. "Fix up retail prices in accordance with whatever formula the government may have for holding the line and preventing inflation. . . then see to it that every level of distribution receives enough mark-up to handle that food without out-of-pocket loss."

2. Require the government to pay higher prices for food, so that losses incurred on sales to the government would not have to be made up by civilian consumers. "The Army is not paying enough for meat and they know it," he said.

Regional OPA administrator Daniel P. Woolley testified that there had been a marked increase in the number of non-Federally inspected slaughterhouses, estimating that only one in 10 operating today was in business before May, 1944.

"Why would you think a person would go into a business that's losing if he intended to keep within the law?" Anderson asked.

"I don't think he would," Woolley replied. "He must be selling at over-ceiling prices."

Mrs. R. Shuns Big House

New York, April 25 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will never live again in the "big house" of the Hyde Park estate, where the President was born.

Her secretary, Malvina Thompson, said Mrs. Roosevelt would remain in a cottage on the Roosevelt estate.

There she will be assured of privacy when persons come to pay homage at her husband's grave. The "big house" and 33 acres of adjacent land, including the burial site, eventually will become a national shrine.

Actor of Nazi Roles Killed

BROOKFIELD, Mass., April 25 (AP)—Erford Gage, young film actor, who frequently portrayed Nazis for the stage, died in action on Luzon on March 17, his mother was informed today. He was 32 and a staff sergeant. He appeared in Broadway plays for several seasons before joining the RKO studios in Hollywood three years ago. Survivors include his widow, Nell King, at the Paramount studios in Hollywood.

Mrs. Bergdoll a Citizen

PHILADELPHIOA, April 25 (AP).—German-born Mrs. Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wife of the World War's most publicized draft dodger, received American citizenship today by United States District Judge George A. Welsh. Unequivocally disavowing any sympathy with or belief in Hitler's Nazism, the thirty-eight-year-old mother of Bergdoll's seven children later told reporters: "Publicity means nothing to me; becoming a citizen of the United States is the most important thing in my life."

M-36 'Sluggers' Favored By 10 To 1 In Combat

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., April 25 (AP)—Reports from battlefronts show that when M-36 "sluggers" of the 703d Tank Destroyer Division go into action against German Panzer tanks, the enemy has only one chance in ten to win.

Col. George G. Eddy, director of the ordnance research and development center at Aberdeen Proving Ground, reported today that through almost steady fighting from Normandy beachheads to Duren, Germany, the 703d Battalion, 3d Armored Division, 3d Army, had destroyed ten enemy tanks for each M-36 tank-destroyer loss.

SEEK SETTLEMENT OF PLANT STRIKE

DETROIT, April 25. — (AP) As strikes kept 24,000 war workers idle here today, the Regional War Labor board sought again to settle a dispute over employe firings at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company.

The board called a show cause hearing for tomorrow morning in the strike of 5,500 Kelsey-Hayes workers who quit their jobs Tuesday a second time over discharges. The previous strike had lasted nine days.

Dismissal of 13 men charged by the company with ejecting two foreman led to the second walkout. The company claimed that in this instance it had observed provisions of its contract with the United Automobile Workers (CIO) by notifying the union of its intentions.

In the earlier strike the board had ordered reinstatement of six men dismissed on a similar charge. The board said the contract was not followed. The 13 subsequently dismissed included the original six men.

A union spokesman admitted the contract had been respected in the second discharges but said the company was trying to "provoke a strike."

Fifteen thousand were idle at the Packard Motor Car company because of a strike of inspectors over the number of aircraft engines to be inspected by each shift and 3,500 were laid off at General Motors' Cadillac division because of parts complications in the Kelsey-Hayes strike. Members of the UAW-CIO here also were involved.

NEW 10-IN-1 RATION

Package Contains Supplies for 10 Men for 10 Battle Days

CHICAGO, April 25 (AP)—Battle rations with a different menu for every meal for three days are possible under the Army's new "10-in-1" variant of the standard "B" ration, the Chicago Quartermaster Depot stated today.

Brig. Gen. J. E. Barzynski, Depot Commander, explained that the 10-in-1 ration contained food and supplies for ten men for one day and was sub-packaged for five men for two days.

The purpose is to give the combat soldier all the elements of the standard B, or overseas, ration.

Each package also contains cigarettes, matches, can openers, salt, toilet paper, soap, and paper towels for each of the ten men. The package weighs 45 pounds.

F. D. R. License-Tag Application To Be Kept

Atlanta, April 25 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt's application for a 1945 license tag for the specially built automobile he used at Warm Springs will be placed in the State archives.

In the application, received several weeks ago, the late President listed his occupation as "Executive." He paid $1.50 for the tag, asked no special number and was issued No. A-12610.

B-29 Flight Engineers Raised to Higher Status

Course of Training Now Leads to Officer's Commission

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 25 (AP).—Flight engineers of the B-29s which are pounding Tokyo and other Japanese arsenal cities to bits are being raised to a new status.

Their course of training has been lengthened and placed on a par with the courses for pilots, bombardiers and navigators and for the first time leads to a commission as second lieutenant or appointment as flight officer, it was announced today by the Army Air Forces training command headquarters here.

The flight engineer is the man who, from his separate "office" or control station in the B-29, "engineers" the Superfortress to its destination and back. His controls operate the plane's four huge engines, and it is his function to determine how to get the maximum range and performance out of the ship under varying conditions.

"On his computations, his handling of the engines and his foresight may depend the success of the mission," said the A. A. F. announcement.

It was announced that under the new program the opportunity for B-29 flight engineer training is open to all enlisted personnel assigned to duty with the A. A. F., provided they meet the entrance requirements, but that men who have served in combat areas will be given priority of selection and assignment if they have volunteered for another tour of overseas duty.

Ford Plant, UAW At Odds Over War Vets

Detroit, April 25 (AP)—The Ford Motor Company and union officials were at odds today as to the cause of a demonstration yesterday by a small group of Ford employés who are veterans of World War II.

After they had been laid off with others at the company's Lincoln plant, three of the veterans paraded in front of the plant with placards reading: "Good enough to fight—not good enough to work"; "What did we come back to"? and "Unfair to veterans—what did we fight for?" Five other workers, all veterans, later joined in the demonstration.

Agreement Reached

An agreement was reached a short time afterward under which the three could go back to their jobs today.

Victor G. Reuther, assistant director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) war-policy committee, said the demonstration would have been avoided if the company had adopted the union's "model-contract clause," but the company contended the clause provides no protection for veterans who had never worked in a plant before they entered the armed forces.

Model Contract Clause

A Ford statement said the demonstration was an example of what may happen on a larger scale "if the UAW-CIO doesn't face realistically the problem of the returning veteran and his right to a job in the country he fought for."

The "model contract clause" provides that a veteran who never worked in a plant before he entered service may not be credited with his armed-forces seniority until after he obtains a job.

Layoff Held Unnecessary

Reuther argued further that the veterans' layoff was "completely unnecessary" under existing contract provisions.

There still are employed at the Lincoln plant non-veteran probationary employés, he said, who have not worked at the plant for the required six-months probationary period.

World Labor Leaders Open California Meeting

Hillman and Murray Are There, A. F. L. Not Represented

OAKLAND, Calif., April 25 (AP).—World labor leaders began their counterpart to the Dumbarton Oaks Conference here today, starting an hour after the arrival of Sidney Hillman, Congress of Industrial Organizations leader.

Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., was on hand, but there were no representatives of the American Federation of Labor. Russian, British, other European and Latin-American spokesmen went into the conference.

Mr. Hillman responded "no comment" when asked about the failure of the A. F. of L. to show up. He said the principal work would be organization of a world labor congress, which would deal with international labor problems and with "full employment" objectives, along with improvement of workers standards over the world.

The Oakland meeting, besides drawing tentative plans for the world labor congress to be finally set up at another conference in Paris next September, will stand ready to counsel the San Francisco united nations conference on labor and social problems.

NAVY SEIZES REPAIR YARD

Jurisdictional Dispute In San Francisco Brings Action

San Francisco, April 25 (AP)—The Navy today seized the plants of the United Engineering Company, Ltd., because of a union jurisdictional dispute which tied up repair work on ships needed in the war effort.

President Truman issued the order which was carried out by Commander H. K. Clark, of Washington.

Clark immediately ordered 191 striking machinists to return to work Thursday morning or be "subject to all proper and legal sanctions and measures available."

These included cancellation of any occupational draft deferment and immediate induction, refusal of work referral cards and statements of availability, and cancellation of supplementary gasoline rations.

Property Actually Involved

The property actually involved was the main office of the engineering company, a machine shop, a boiler shop, Pier 20 and other facilities which the company used in the repair of ships.

Last February two AFL unions—the International Association of Machinists, Local 68, and the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Local 6, became involved in a dispute over engine-room rigging at the San Francisco properties. This resulted in a strike by outside machinists in the yard which subsequently spread to the shop machinists.

WLB Orders Cited

The presidential order said the strike and threatened strikes arose from the failure of Local 68 to comply with War Labor Board orders of March 23 and March 28. It added that the war effort "will be unduly impeded or delayed" by such interruptions.

Officials said four ships—two War Shipping Administration vessels, an army troop transport and an army cargo vessel—were in an incompleted state at the property because of lack of machinists.

The Navy reported it has had to divert to other yards vessels which normally would have been assigned to the San Francisco property of the United Engineering Company.

BUT A TASS CORRESPONDENT WROTE: "THE GREATEST BATTLE OF THE PRESENT WAR REACHES ITS CLIMAX." HE SAID THAT THE GERMANS HAD FORTIFIED THE CITY WELL, ERECTING MANY CAMOUFLAGED FIRE PITS. ENEMY MACHINEGUNS "FIRE FROM BEHIND RUINED HOUSES, THROUGH EMBRASURES CHISELLED OUT OF THICK WALLS, AND FROM IRON AND CONCRETE PILLBOXES AT THE CROSSINGS OF MAIN STREETS," HE WROTE.

THE NAZI HIGH COMMAND SAID THAT DUE SOUTH OF THE BERLIN FRONT, THE GOERLITZ-KAMENZ-BAUTZEN AREA NORTHEAST OF DRESDEN FLAMED WITH A NAZI COUNTERATTACK WHICH "MADE GOOD PROGRESS" AGAINST THE SOUTHERN FLANK OF KONEV'S ARMY SWARMING WESTWARD TO THE ELBE. THE GERMANS CLAIMED THE RECAPTURE OF WEISSENBERG, 39 MILES NORTHEAST OF DRESDEN.

ALONG THE LOWER ODER RIVER, THE GERMANS SAID, SOVIET FORCES LAUNCHED A STRONG ASSAULT FROM THEIR BRIDGEHEAD NORTH OF GARTZ, THRUSTING TO THE AREA WEST OF TANTOW, 11 MILES SOUTHWEST OF STETTIN. REPEATED ATTACKS FARTHER NORTH NEAR THE BIG BALTIC NAVAL BASE WERE SMASHED BY ARTILLERY AND TROOPS, THE GERMANS REPORTED.

BUT THE SPECTACULAR BATTLE FOR BERLIN HELD THE SPOTLIGHT IN MOSCOW REPORTS. THESE TOLD OF GERMANS TRANSFERRING MEN FROM THE CENTER OF THE CITY THROUGH THE SUBWAY NETWORKS--MEN WHO CRAWLED FROM STATION ENTRANCES DRAGGING THEIR HEAVY WEAPONS WITH THEM.

"WE HAD TO WIPE THEM OUT OR DRIVE THEM BACK INTO THE TUNNELS," SAID ONE DISPATCH. "OTHERWISE THEY WOULD HAVE SPREAD OVER MANY BLOCKS, SERIOUSLY THREATENING OUR COMMUNICATIONS."

XXX OUR COMMUNICATIONS."

IN ONE SUCH BATTLE, RUSSIAN TROOPS CRAWLED ALONG WIDE STREETS ARMED WITH BIG, MOBILE GUNS WHICH THEY ROLLED INTO POSITION. OTHER SQUADS DASHED THROUGH SIDE STREETS TO GET THE GERMANS UNDER CROSS FIRE.

"THE NAZIS TRIED TO ANSWER THIS FIRE," A REPORT FROM BERLIN SAID, "BUT IT DID NOT WORK, FOR BY NOW OUR MORTARS WERE SHELLING THEM. WE SHOT MORTARS, MINES AND SMOKE BOMBS WHICH BLINDED THEM. UNDER COVER OF SMOKE, OUR INFANTRY CHARGED WITH BAYONETS."

THE BATTLE RAGED FOR AN HOUR. PERSISTENTLY THE NAZIS ROLLED UP MORE TANKS AND ARMORED CARS AND FRESH AMMUNITION THROUGH THE SUBWAY TUNNELS. OFTEN THE RUSSIANS WOULD CHARGE DOWN THE STEPS OF A SUBWAY STATION AND FIRE MINES, TO HALT THE FANATICAL GERMAN EFFORTS. IN SOME CASES ARTILLERY WAS PULLED INTO THE ENTRANCES OF TUNNELS AND BLASTED AWAY AT THE ENEMY IN A FANTASTICALLY DEAFENING BATTLE.

BUT THE RUSSIANS ALL THE WHILE WERE HACKING METHODICALLY CLOSER TO BERLIN'S HEARTBEAT--UNTEN DEN LINDEN, THE WILHELMSTRASSE AND THE GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS.

"MEN AND OFFICERS OF ENTIRE RUSSIAN UNITS REFUSED TO REST INSIDE BERLIN," SAID A FRONT DISPATCH TO RED STAR. "XXX MEN WHO HAVE FOUGHT FOR SEVEN DAYS AND SEVEN NIGHTS WITHOUT REST WERE ORDERED TO RELAX. THEY WERE IN ONE OF THE FIRST UNITS TO ENTER BERLIN AND HAD CAPTURED SEVERAL IMPORTANT INDUSTRIAL OBJECTIVES. 'NOBODY IS TIRED,' SHOUTED THE OFFICERS AND MEN."

ONE BATTLE RAGED ACROSS A CANAL, WITH RUSSIAN SOLDIERS SCRAMBLING PRECARIOUSLY ACROSS, PULLING ONE ANOTHER UP ITS STEEP SIDES. IT ROARED INTO ORCHARDS, THROUGH NEAT VEGETABLE GARDENS, FROM ONE HOUSE TO ANOTHER. STUNNED, SHOCK-DULLED GERMAN CIVILIANS STOOD AND STARED GLUMLY AT THE MIGHTY PROCESSION OF SOVIET POWER SWEEPING BY THEM.

CORRESPONDENTS NOTED FRESHLY PAINTED SIGNS BEARING THE LAST-STAND APPEAL OF PROPAGANDA MINISTER GOEBBELS--"ALL GERMANS WILL DEFEND BERLIN WITH THEIR BODIES. LET US HALT THE REDS AT THE GATES TO BERLIN," BUT THE AVALANCHE OF RED ARMS SWEPT BY UNCHECKED.

DESPITE THE BITTER RESISTANCE, THERE WERE CONTINUING SIGNS OF DEMORALIZATION, MOSCOW DISPATCHES SAID. WHITE FLAGS BECAME MORE NUMEROUS WITH THE SOVIET ADVANCE. MANY PRISONERS WERE TAKEN BUT NAZI OFFICERS IN MANY CASES WERE HOLDING THEIR MEN IN LINE BY SHOOTING THOSE WHO SUGGESTED ABANDONING THE SUICIDAL STRUGGLE. GAS, ELECTRICITY, WATER AND FOOD WERE GIVING OUT. HEAVY SHELLS RIPPED INTO MAINS AND SENT GEYSERS SHOOTING INTO THE AIR. A PRINCIPAL GAS WORKS WAS CAPTURED AND ANOTHER SUB-STATION WAS IN SOVIET HANDS. SHELLS DAMAGED AN ELECTRIC SUB-STATION AND BOOSTER STATIONS. MANY WIRES WERE DOWN. TELEPHONE COMMUNICATIONS WERE BOGGING DOWN.

A MOTLEY ARMY OPPOSED THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE. THERE WERE ALL TYPES AND KINDS OF SOLDIERS--STUDENTS, POLICEMEN, ARMED CLERKS FROM NAZI MINISTRIES, AND EVEN LETTER CARRIERS.

BERLIN WAS DESCRIBED AS SCARCELY RECOGNIZABLE, FROM ITS TERRIBLE BEATING. "THOSE WHO REMEMBER BERLIN FROM BEFORE THE WAR," SAID ONE DISPATCH, "WOULD SCARCELY RECOGNIZE THIS CITY AFTER THE ANGLO-AMERICAN BOMBERS HAD BEEN WORKING OVER IT. VERY LITTLE HAS REMAINED OF UNTER DEN LINDEN, OF KURFUERSTENDAMM, ALEXANDER PLATZ AND OTHER CENTRAL STREETS."

ONE REPORT SAID THE BRANDENBURG GATE HAD BEEN BRICKED UP, SO THAT "THE RUSSIAN TRIUMPHANT MARCH INTO THE CAPITAL COULD NOT GO THROUGH."

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS FORWARD COMMAND POST, APRIL 25--A TEN-MAN CONGRESSIONAL PARTY, FLOWN FROM WASHINGTON TO ACCEPT GEN.EISENHOWER'S INVITATION TO SEE FIRST-HAND EVIDENCE OF NAZI ATROCITIES IN GERMANY AND OCCUPIED COUNTRIES, ARRIVED TODAY AT THE SUPREME COMMANDER'S FORWARD HEADQUARTERS AFTER MAKING ITS FIRST VISIT YESTERDAY TO A CONCENTRATION CAMP IN BUCHENWALD.

THE PARTY, ORGANIZED ONLY LAST FRIDAY IN THE CAPITAL, INCLUDED FOUR SENATORS AND SIX MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. SHORTLY AFTER THEIR ARRIVAL IN PARIS THE GROUP WAS FLOWN TO GERMANY WHERE THEY INSPECTED THE BUCHENWALD CAMP. LAST NIGHT THE CONGRESSIONAL VISITORS WERE GUESTS OF GENERAL OMAR N.BRADLEY AT HIS 12TH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS.

IN CONFERENCE WITH GEN.EISENHOWER TODAY THE PARTY EXPRESSED THE HOPE OF VISITING MORE CONCENTRATION AND PRISONER OF WAR CAMPS. SEN.ALBEN W.BARKLEY, DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY LEADER FROM KENTUCKY, SAID THE GROUP WOULD LIKE TO SEE MORE CAMPS IN ORDER TO GET THE BEST POSSIBLE PICTURE.

REP.DEWEY SHORT (R-MO.) SAID THAT WHAT HE SAW AT BUCHENWALD "WAS HORRIBLE" AND THAT THE RESULTS OF NAZI ATROCITIES "CERTAINLY HAVE TO BE SEEN TO BE BELIEVED".

GEN.EISENHOWER INFORMED THE LEGISLATORS THEY WOULD BE GIVEN EVERY POSSIBLE FACILITY TO "SEE FOR THEMSELVES".

THE CONGRESSIONAL GROUP INCLUDED SENATORS KENNETH L.WHERRY (R-NEB.), C.WAYLAND BROOKS (R-ILL.), LEVERETT SALTONSTALL (R-MASS); REPRESENTATIVES EWING THOMASON (D-TEXAS), JAMES P.RICHARDS (D-S.C.), EDOUARD V.IZAC (D.-CAL), JAMES W.MOTT (R-ORE), JOHN VORYS (R-OHIO).

SENATORS WALTER F.GEORGE (D-GA) AND ELBERT D.THOMAS (UTAH), WHO WERE SCHEDULED TO ACCOMPANY THE GROUP, WERE UNABLE TO MAKE THE TRIP.

BEFORE ARRIVING AT GEN.EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS THE LEGISLATORS WERE FLOWN OVER AACHEN, DUREN AND OTHER CITIES IN GERMANY TO SEE THE RESULTS OF ALLIED BOMBING.

"YOU SAW ONLY ONE CAMP YESTERDAY," EISENHOWER TOLD THE PARTY. "THERE ARE MANY OTHERS. YOUR RESPONSIBILITIES, I BELIEVE, EXTEND INTO A GREAT FIELD AND INFORMING THE PEOPLE AT HOME OF THINGS LIKE THESE ATROCITIES IN ONE OF THEM.

"NOTHING IS COVERED UP. WE HAVE NOTHING TO CONCEAL. THE BARBAROUS THREATMENT THESE PEOPLE RECEIVED IN THE GERMAN CONCENTRATION CAMPS IS ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE.

"I WANT YOU TO SEE FOR YOURSELVES AND BE THE SPOKESMAN FOR THE UNITED STATES."

THE LEGISLATORS LATER SAID THEY FELT IT MAY BE NECESSARY TO EXTEND THEIR VISIT BY SEVERAL DAYS IN ORDER TO INSPECT U.S. INSTALLATIONS ON THE CONTINENT, AS WELL AS VISIT AND TALK WITH AMERICAN SOLDIERS WHO HAVE BEEN LIBERATED FROM GERMAN P.W.CAMPS.

BY KENNETH L.DIXON (470)

U.S. NINTH ARMY FRONT, APRIL 25-(AP)-IT BEGINS TO LOOK AS THOUGH SOMEONE HAS GOT TO TEACH THESE GERMANS PROPER TACTICS WHEN IT COMES TO FIGHTING TEXANS.

IT IS A CARDINAL PRINCIPLE IN THE LONE STAR STATE NEVER TO AMBUSH A RANGE RIDER UNLESS YOU CAN GET HIS SIDEKICK TOO. OTHERWISE THERE'S TROUBLE.

BUT NOBODY TOLD THE GERMANS.

SO WHEN MAJ.JOHN M.AYLOR OF SAN ANTONIO WAS LEADING A RECONNAISSANCE PARTY NORTH OF HANNOVER RECENTLY DURING THE U.S. NINTH ARMY'S RACE TO THE ELBE HIS JEEP WAS AMBUSHED BY A GERMAN ANTITANK GUN.

THE FIRST BLAST IMMOBILIZED HIS MOUNT, KILLED HIS GUNNER AND WOUNDED HIS DRIVER. SMALL ARMS FIRE PUNCTURED HIS HELMET AS HE DIVED TO COVER IN A DITCH.

AYLOR AND THE WOUNDED DRIVER EVENTUALLY RAN OUT OF CARTRIDGES AND WERE CAPTURED. THE GERMANS GLOATED.

BUT WHAT THEY DID NOT KNOW WAS THAT AYLOR WAS THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE 11TH CAVALRY GROUP AND THAT HIS FRIEND AND COMMANDER WAS COL.ANDREW A.FRIERSON, WHO HAILS FROM DALLAS.

NOW BACK IN TEXAS, DALLAS AND SAN ANTONIO DO NOT ALWAYS SEE EYE TO EYE ON STATE AFFAIRS, BUT OVER HERE THEIR SEPARATE CITIZENS LOOK ON ONE ANOTHER AS ALLIES, SO TO SPEAK.

SO WHEN HE HEARD OF AYLOR'S PLIGHT, FRIERSON'S TEMPER FIRED AND HE SWORE HE WOULD RESCUE JOHN IF HE HAD TO CHASE THE KRAUTS CLEAR TO BERLIN--OR SO THE LEGEND GOES.

BUT THIS MUCH IS NOT LEGEND:

DURING AN ENSUING, INDEPENDENT ATTACK FRIERSON'S 11TH CAVALRY GROUP SHOVED A SPEARHEAD 20 MILES INTO GERMAN TERRITORY, TOOK 12 TOWNS AND KILLED, WOUNDED OR CAPTURED INNUMERABLE GERMANS, MANY OF WHOM WERE CAUGHT IN BED.

ALL THIS FOREGOING QUITE NATURALLY PROVES TWO POINTS--THAT ENEMY IGNORANCE OF TEXAN FIGHTING TACTICS COST HIM PLENTY, AND THAT FRIERSON IS A GOOD MAN TO RIDE THE RIVER WITH, AS THE BOYS ALONG THE TRAIL WOULD SAY.

UNFORTUNATELY, THE STORY BECOMES SOMEWHAT EMBARASSING AT THIS STAGE, DUE TO THE INESCAPABLE FACT THAT WHILE FRIERSON'S FIGHTING FORCES HEADED DUE EAST, AYLOR AND HIS DRIVER HAD BEEN TAKEN NORTH TO THE GERMAN TOWN OF HANIGSEN.

B11

MEANWHILE, THE TEXANS STILL TRIUMPHED--AND AGAIN IT WAS BECAUSE OF TENDERFOOT GERMAN TACTICS.

IN HANIGSEN AYLOR WAS INTERROGATED BY A GERMAN NAVAL CAPTAIN WHO, WHEN THE TEXAN REFUSED TO TALK, DECIDED TO GET TOUGH. THE RESULT WAS

30.24- 25149

THA' THE MAJOR WAS TAKEN ON A 10-MILE HIKE, AS A SORT OF PERSUADER.
LOW ANYBODY KNOWS TEXANS ARE BORN BOW-LEGGED AND WITH AN UNSHAKEABL
BELIEF THAT WALKING IS A DEVIL'S PASTIME. THEY WILL SADDLE UP A PONY
JUST TO RIDE A HUNDRED YARDS. SO, AFTER 10 MILES, AYLOR'S FEET WERE KILLING HIM. BUT HIS MIND WAS SHARPER THAN EVER.
AS HE LIMPED BACK TO THE GERMAN CAPTAIN HE NOTED THAT THE NAZI SEEM SOMEWHAT FOOTSORE, TOO. SO HE STARTED TALKING ABOUT HOW WELL THE AMERICAN ARMY MEDICS TREATED BOYS WITH SORE FEET.
TEXANS TALK MUCH BETTER THAN THEY WALK. IT WAS ONLY A SHORT TIME UNTIL HE HAD CONVINCED THE NAVAL CAPTAIN HE SHOULD SURRENDER, AND THE CAPTAIN DID. IN ADDITION, THE BURGOMEISTER OF HANIGSEN AGREED TO SEE THAT THE TOWN WAS SURRENDERED IF NO HARM CAME TO IT. THIS ALSO CAM
TO PASS.
THAT'LL TEACH 'EM ABOUT TEXANS.

NORTHEAST OF LEIPZIG OUR PLANES REPORTED LONG LINES OF FRIGHTENED GERMAN CIVILIANS ON THE ROADS IN A TRIANGLE BOUNDED BY DUBEN, MULDE AND EILENBURG.

APR 26 1945

IN THE 69TH DIVISION'S SECTOR EAST OF LEIPZIG, HUNDREDS MORE BRITISH AND OTHER ALLIED WAR PRISONERS CROSSED INTO AMERICAN-OCCUPIED TERRITORY AND HERE AGAIN GERMAN CIVILIANS TRIED TO MAKE IT OVER THE "FRONTIER" BEFORE THE RUSSIAN ARMORED SPEARHEADS SLASHED THROUGH THE MAKE A JUNCTION.

One American who had escaped from a prisoner of war camp reported that the Germans had NO reserve troops between the Mulde and the Elbe and that they had thrown into their collapsing lines all their troops south of Berlin. He said he saw six Russians on motorcy during his hike back.

APR 26 1945

The second infantry division sent a friendly patrol over the Mulde eight miles east of Colditz which withdrew after it encountered strong fire from 150 enemy troops near Hartha.

Aerial observers reported that a number of villages in the Elbe river area west of Riesa were afire.

An example of the fluidity of the situation east of the Mulde where the German troops and civilians were milling about before the onrushing Russians was the exploit of three veteran correspondents with the First Army.

"I told the Germans tha he Russians would probably be there tonight," said Stoneman, a veteran correspondent of several wars, "and they all dropped their weapons and lit out for Mulde. We came back wit south africans hanging from the roof and sitting on the hood -- they we all over the car. People in the villages we passed acted as if they had never seen an American uniform before."

The first American observers attached to the ground forces believed to gave sighted the Russians' nearest link-up with Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' troops were two soldiers in an L-5, two-seater plane. They were Major Harry Bush of Auburn, Ala., the pilot, and his observer, Major Charles P. Babcock of Vineyard Haven, Mass., artillery officer of the second division. They flew over advanced Soviet columns yesterday afternoon without drawing fire.

APR 2 6 1945

Censorship here prohibits giving positions of Soviet troops until the actual junction is effected on the ground, as the first army staff feels that naturally the Russians should be the only ones to make the announcement on locations of the forward elements of their own forces, since they are still in combat with Germans trapped between two allied armies.

Nearly 50,000 of their townspeople watched while the partisans marched across the Palazzo Comunale and up to two American six-by-six trucks and one jeep, which were guarded by MP's, and [redacted] filled all three vehicles with every shape and size and caliber of weapon.

The partisans handed over palm-sized pistols similar to the old American [redacted] double-barrel derringers, captured German bazookas and other weapons ranging up to heavy machine-guns and mortars so big that it took two partisans to carry them. MOSCOW, APRIL 25-(AP)-A COMMENTATOR FOR RED STAR, SOVIET ARMY NEWSPAPER, SAID TODAY THE SUCCESS OF THE SAN FRANCISCO SECURITY CONFERENCE DEPENDED PRINCIPALLY UPON CONTINUED COLLABORATION AMONG THE MAJOR POWERS AND COOPERATION AND TRUST OF THE "OTHER PARTICIPANTS."

THE WRITER, PROF. EUGENE KOROVIN, SAID THE CONFERENCE'S EFFICACY WOULD DEPEND MAINLY ON THESE TWO POINTS:

"1. ON THE FIRM DETERMINATION OF THE GREAT ALLIED POWERS TO FULFILL ALL THEIR UNDERTAKINGS AND PRESERVE THE FIGHTING UNITY AND COLLABORATION WHICH INSURE THE DEFEAT OF HITLERITE GERMANY AND OF THE EUROPEAN BLOC SHE MUSTERED, WHICH CAN INSURE HUMANITY THE BROADEST PROSPECTS OF SPIRITUAL AND MATERIAL PROGRESS IN TIMES OF PEACE.

"2. ON CLOSE COLLABORATION AND MUTUAL TRUST AMONG THE OTHER PARTICIPANTS OF THE CONFERENCE, AS WELL AS THEIR READINESS TO BRING THEIR NATIONAL AIMS AND INTERESTS INTO HARMONY WITH THE INTERESTS OF ALL PEACE-LOVING POWERS."

ABOARD VICE ADM.R.K.TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF OKINAWA, APRIL 25 -(AP)-THREE YOUNG BRITISH FLIERS BROUGHT ABOARD THIS SHIP YESTERDAY WERE THE FIRST MEN OF THE BRITISH TASK FORCE IN THE PACIFIC TO BE WAVED BY VICE ADM.R.K.TURNER'S U.S. AMPHIBIOUS FORCE AIR-SEA RESCUE UNIT.

THE TRIO'S AVENGER TORPEDO BOMBER WAS HIT BY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE WHILE DIVEBOMBING ISHIGAKI ISLAND IN THE SAKISHIMA GROUP AND CRASH LANDED 10 MILES OFF THE ISLAND LAST FRIDAY. THEY FLOATED FOR 27 HOURS UNTIL RESCUED BY A PBM "DUMBO" FLYING BOAT WHICH LANDED CON THE ROUGH SEA.

THE TORPEDO BOMBER, OPERATING FROM A CARRIER SIMILAR TO AN AMERICAN ESSEX-CLASS FLATTOP, WAS PILOTED BY SUB-LT.ROBERT FORTH, WEST HARTLE POOL AND PORTSMOUTH, ENG. FORTH IS ENGAGED TO JANE CAMPBELL, GROSSE ILE, MICH., SERVING WITH THE CANADIAN WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS AT MONTREAL.

FORTH'S CREWMEN WERE SUB-.LT.WILLIAM REEKS, OBSERVER, CHINGFORD, ESSEX, ENG., AND LEADING AIRMAN CECIL GUY GORDON, RADIOMAN AND GUNNER, (12 MARCON PLACE) HACKNEY, LONDON.

THE THREE CAME ABOARD WITH ENS.ROBERT BALLARD, DRAPER, UTAH, PILOT OF AN AMERICAN WILDCAT FIGHTER, WHO LANDED IN THE WATER OFF MIYAKO ISLAND APRIL 17 AFTER HIS PLANE WAS HIT BY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE. BALLARD WAS RESCUED TWO HOURS LATER.

ALL FOUR FLIERS WERE IN EXCELLENT HEALTH AND SPIRITS.

"I TRAINED IN THE STATES AT PENSACOLA AND FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA., AND LEWISTON, VT., AS WELL AS NEAR DETROIT," FORTH SAID. "OUR TORPEDO BOMBER WENT DOWN IN A COUPLE OF MINUTES, BUT WE HAD PLENTY OF TIME TO GET OUT OUR LIFERAFT.

"WE DIDN'T HAVE MUCH HOPE OF RESCUE. THE NEXT DAY WHEN A FLIGHT OF AMERICAN TORPEDO BOMBERS SIGHTED US WE FELT PRETTY GOOD, AND WHEN THE PBM DUMBO APPEARED WE WERE SO HAPPY WE STARTED SINGING.

"WE WERE COLD AND WET AND SHIVERING, BUT THE DUMBO PILOT, A LIEUTENANT SOLOMON, AND HIS CREW FED US AND WRAPPED US IN BLANKETS. THEY TOOK GREAT CARE OF US. THERE'S REAL BRITISH-AMERICAN COOPERATION."

PEARL HARBOR, APRIL 24-(AP)-THE NAVY TALKS A LANGUAGE ALL ITS OWN. KNOWN AS NAVY ELLIPTICAL PHRASEOLOGY, IT'S FILLED WITH SUCH UNEXPECTED WORDS AS "SCOFA," "ISCOM," "CINCPAC" AND SO ON.

IT ALL STARTED, LT. R. E. KEETON, HOUSTON, TEX., AN ASSISTANT FLAG SECRETARY, EXPLAINED, BECAUSE THE NAVY WANTED TO WRITE SHORT DISPATCHES. IT TURNED OUT TO BE SUCH A GOOD IDEA, THOUGH, IT WAS BOOSTED FROM THE WRITTEN TO THE SPOKEN WORD.

THE GENERAL IDEA IS TO TAKE A HANDFUL OF WORDS, CUT THEM DOWN TO LETTERS OR ABBREVIATIONS, RUN THE WHOLE THING TOGETHER AND PRONOUNCE IT. LIKE "COMAIRPAC," WHICH IS NAVY FOR "COMMANDER AIR FORCE, PACIFIC FLEET."

SOME OF THE MORE UNUSUAL ONES, ALL PRONOUNCED PHONETICALLY, ARE:

BLADING -- BILL OF LADING.
SCOFA -- SHIPPING CONTROL OFFICER, FORWARD AREA.
JOSCO -- JOINT OVERSEAS SHIPPING CONTROL OFFICE.
JASCO -- JOINT ASSAULT SIGNAL COMMUNICATIONS OPERATIONS.
TEMFLY -- TEMPORARY DUTY, INVOLVING FLYING.
DUTOUT -- DUTY OUTSIDE THE CONTINENTAL LIMITS OF THE UNITED STATES.
DUFLY -- DUTY INVOLVING FLYING.
CASU -- CARRIER AIRCRAFT SERVICE UNIT.
OINC -- OFFICER IN CHARGE.
MOINC -- MEDICAL OFFICER IN COMMAND.
SOINC -- SUPPLY OFFICER IN COMMAND.
FATRANS -- FIRST AVAILABLE TRANSPORTATION.
JICPOA -- JOINT INTELLIGENCE CENTER, PACIFIC OCEAN AREAS.
COMPOOL -- COMMUNICATIONS POOL.

APR 2 6 1945

NO LONG TITLE IS TOO DIFFICULT FOR THE NAVY TO WHITTLE DOWN AND PRONOUNCE IN ABBREVIATED FORM. FOR INSTANCE:

COMESCARPAC -- COMMANDER ESCORT CARRIER FORCE, PACIFIC FLEET.
ADCOMSUBORDCOMPHIBSPAC -- COMMANDER, ADMINISTRATIVE COMMAND, AMPHIBIOUS FORCES, PACIFIC FLEET, SUBORDINATE COMMAND.

OTTAWA, APRIL 25-(AP)-CONSCRIPTION WAS CERTAIN TODAY TO BE AMONG THE LEADING ISSUES OF CANADA'S JUNE 11 GENERAL ELECTION WITH THE ENTRY INTO FEDERAL POLITICS OF MAYOR CAMILLIEN HOUDE OF MONTREAL, A COLORFUL CAMPAIGNER WHO WAS INTERNED FOUR YEARS FOR HIS STAND AGAINST THE DRAFT.

THE FRENCH-SPEAKING HOUDE AS MONTREAL'S MAYOR IN 1940 PUBLICLY ADVISED CANADIANS NOT TO REGISTER FOR THE DRAFT, AND WAS PLACED IN AN INTERNMENT CAMP UNTIL LAST SEPTEMBER. WITHIN THREE MONTHS OF HIS RELEASE HE WAS RE-ELECTED TO HIS OLD OFFICE AT THE HEAD OF CANADA'S LARGEST CITY.

HOUDE ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT THAT NOT ONLY WOULD HE BE A CANDIDATE FOR PARLIAMENT BUT THAT HE WOULD HEAD A NEW FEDERAL POLITICAL GROUP IN FRENCH-SPEAKING QUEBEC, A PARTICULAR QUESTION MARK IN THE FORTHCOMING GENERAL ELECTION.

QUEBEC, NORMALLY A STRONG SUPPORTER OF PRIME MINISTER W.L. MACKENZIE KING'S LIBERAL PARTY AND HISTORICALLY AGAINST CONSCRIPTION, WAS SPLIT WIDE OPEN LAST FALL WHEN THE KING GOVERNMENT ADOPTED PARTIAL CONSCRIPTION.

HOUDE HAS MADE IT CLEAR THAT THE DIFFERENCES BETWEEN FRENCH-SPEAKING AND ENGLISH-SPEAKING CANADA OVER CONSCRIPTION WOULD BE KEPT TO THE FORE IN HIS CAMPAIGN.

"I WANT TO ASK THE FRENCH PEOPLE," HE SAID, "IF THEY WISH THE FRENCH-CANADIAN ELEMENT TO REMAIN AS UNEQUIVOCALLY UNITED AS THEY WERE DURING THE PLEBISCITE (WHEN IN 1940 THEY VOTED NEARLY 100 PER CENT AGAINST CONSCRIPTION) AND IF THEY WISH TO REMAIN SO DEFINITELY IN ORDER TO HAVE OUR RIGHTS AND CONVICTIONS BETTER RESPECTED

"I WANT THE PEOPLE TO SAY WHETHER OR NOT THEY APPROVE MY STAND ON NATIONAL REGISTRATION AND WHETHER THEY APPROVE MY FOUR YEARS' INTERNMENT FOR HAVING DENOUNCED NATIONAL REGISTRATION AS A CONSCRIPTION

P.J.A.CARDIN, FORMER MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS IN THE MACKENZIE KING CABINET WHO RESIGNED IN 1942 OVER THE CONSCRIPTION ISSUE, ANNOUNCED TONIGHT IN MONTREAL THAT HE TOO WOULD LEAD A NEW POLITICAL PARTY IN THE JUNE 11 FEDERAL ELECTION. HE SAID THE PARTY WOULD BE "A FORM OF PROTEST AGAINST WHAT IS BEING DONE BY THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT."
HE GAVE FEW DETAILS, BEYOND SAYING THE NEW PARTY WOULD PRESENT TO CANADIANS "SOMETHING NEW AND SOMETHING DIFFERENT."

COUNTRIES LIKE HIS OWN, THE NETHERLANDS, CANADA AND BRAZIL HAVE SO PROVED THEIR RIGHT TO REPRESENTATION ON THIS INNER-FUNCTIONING PART OF THE PROPOSED WORLD ORGANIZATION, HE TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE.

BUT EVATT SAID HE WOULD DISLIKE TO SEE ANY NATION WHICH HAD NOT CONTRIBUTED EQUALLY AS MUCH TO THE ALLIED WAR EFFORT HAVE ONE OF THE TOP SPOTS.

THIS WOULD RULE OUT SUCH VERY SMALL COUNTRIES AS HAITI OR HONDURAS, FOR INSTANCE, WHEREAS THE DRAFT PROPOSALS TO BE USED FOR THE BASIS OF UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE DISCUSSIONS WOULD NOT.

THESE PROPOSALS CALL FOR A SECURITY COUNCIL MADE UP OF THE BIG FIVE PLUS ANY SIX NATIONS THE PROPOSED WORLD ASSEMBLY CHOSE TO SELECT, ON A ROTATING BASIS, FOR MEMBERSHIP.

EVATT ALSO ADVOCATED THE RIGHT OF REGIONAL GROUPS OF NATIONS TO TAKE FORCEFUL ACTION AGAINST AGGRESSION IN THEIR NEIGHBORHOOD WITHOU REFERENCE TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL.

RECOGNIZING AS "ACCEPTABLE IN PRINCIPLE" THE THEORY THAT THE GREA POWERS SHOULD EACH HAVE A VETO POWER AGAINST THE USE OF FORCE, EVATT SAID, FOR EXAMPLE, THAT JAPAN MIGHT AGAIN BECOME MENACING AND THE SECURITY COUNCIL MIGHT VOTE DOWN THE USE OF FORCE "BY THE MERE VETO OF ONE BIG POWER."

APR 26 1945

HE ASKED:

"THEN WHAT WOULD BE OUR SECOND LINE OF DEFENSE? IT SHOULD BE REGIONAL GROUPS OF NATIONS BOUND TOGETHER BY CLEARLY DEFENSIVE PACTS. BUT AT THIS POINT SUCH REGIONAL GROUPS MUST REFER THEIR ACTION TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL AND ARE LEFT OPEN TO A VETO VOTE FROM ONE MAJOR POWER WHICH MIGHT NOT EVEN BE IN THE REGION THREATENED BY AGGRESSION."

EVATT ALSO OPPOSED PERMITTING ANY OF THE BIG FIVE TO VETO A CHANGE IN THE PROPOSED WORLD CHARTER, EVEN THOUGH IT HAD BEEN APPROVED BY TWO-THIRDS OF THE VOTES IN THE ASSEMBLY. HE CALLED SUCH A GRANT OF POWER "INDEFENSIBLE."

British Capture Bremen

Germany's Second Port Falls After Two-Day Whirlwind Assault.

DANUBE CROSSED AT THREE SPOTS

Twenty Divisions Driving Southward To Engulf Alpine "Redoubt."

By Robert Eunson

PARIS, Friday, April 27 (AP) — Heavily-gunned U. S. Third Army tank columns battled eight miles from Austria yesterday in a bid for a swift showdown with last-stand enemy troops massing at the border, and in the north the British captured Germany's second greatest port of Bremen.

As these blows fell on the north and south segments of dismembered Germany, Allied capitals of Europe buzzed with rumors started by a Swiss radio report that the Americans and Russians had met in the Elbe river area on "a front of many miles."

Censorship on in Junction Area

Censorship covered American positions at the reported junction area, but a front dispatch from the U. S. First Army told of a patrol moving at will through German lines between the Mulde and Elbe rivers.

Bremen fell after a whirlwind assault of two days, and only snipers remained in the rubble to challenge the victorious British moving through the dock area of what once was a city of 350,000 people.

While the world awaited confirmation that the Americans and Russians had met somewhere near Berlin, Gen. Patton's U. S. Third Army in ground-eating strides was 95 miles from a junction with the Red Army in Austria that would convert Czechoslovakia into a giant German trap.

Danube Crossed at Three Places

In close echelon with the U. S. Seventh and French First armies, Patton's forces broke across the Danube at three points—leaving that river line shredded along a 180-mile front and Munich imperiled by three separate American columns each about 40 miles from the city.

Some 20 divisions in these three armies were pressing steadily southward, bent on engulfing the Nazi Alpine redoubt before the SS troops could get set for a stand.

A decisive battle appeared to be shaping up on Patton's front nearest Austria, where Germans were massing in the mountain passes 70 miles from Hitler's Berchtesgaden to meet the shock of the southbound tanks and infantry.

The French drove up to the Swiss frontier all the way from Basel, at the Swiss-French-German border junction, eastward to Lake Constance, where many Nazi bigwigs and their families first took refuge.

The French sweep along the Swiss border completed the envelopment of the Black Forest, where trapped Germans were surrendering by the thousands.

The U. S. Seventh Army, seizing 11,335 prisoners, was rampaging through the mountains more than 30 miles south of the Danube.

Its bridgehead at Dillingen now was 21 miles wide and the 10th Armored Division smashing straight south was only a mile from Memmingen, 31 miles south of the Danube and 35 miles from the Austrian border.

Farther east, the 12th Armored division turned up unexpectedly at Munsterhausen, 19 miles south west of Augsburg, a city which was quickly outflanked by numerous columns some 10 miles or less away.

50,000 Allied Prisoners Freed

A dispatch from the U. S. First Army front told of an American jeep patrol running at will through disorganized German lines and overrunning 11 Allied prisoner of war camps and hospitals containing more than 50,000 prisoners—8,600 of them Americans—freed by the Germans.

In the center of the front, German troops in flight from falling Berlin crowded the Elbe's east bank—where a few weeks before they fought to hold off the Americans—clamoring to be taken prisoners by the U. S. Ninth Army before the Russians engulfed them.

Enemy resistance rose all along the northern routes leading into the moutnainous retreat of southern Germany and northern Austria, where the Nazis are resolved to stand or perish, except on that sector of Patton's front where the Third Army crossed the Danube.

Massing At Passau

Pilots back from plastering the redoubt said the Germans were massing at Passau, mountain gateway to Austria, where one 11th armored division column closed on Tittling, 11 miles to the north.

Other 11th armored forces pressed nine miles farther east to the vicinity of Furholz, eight and a half miles from the Austrian border, and on south to Roehrnbach, 10 miles from Austria. Advanced units were about 95 miles from last reported Russian positions.

Patton's troops crossed the Danube for the first time on an 18-mile front and all but encircled the stronghold or Regensburg, which lies about 60 miles west of the armored spearheads rammed close to Austria.

Patton Takes Eger

The Third army captured Eger, Czech city four miles from the border, where a triumphant Hitler after Munich proclaimed the annexation of the Sudetenland to his Greater Reich.

The ruins of Bremen were captured by Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's British Second army, which by mid-afternoon had cleared all the city except the dock area and seized 5,000 prisoners.

Bremen fell one day after the British 52nd and Third divisions entered the city proper at the end of a terrific bombardment which had heaped additional ruin upon a city often worked over by Allied bombers.

Hundreds of slave laborers emerged from the cellars and shelters, swarmed over the rubble and broke open the city's plentiful liquor supplies in celebration of their day of liberation.

Normally a city with 350,000 residents, Bremen boasted two of Germany's largest shipyards, a big aircraft plane and textile mills.

21 Miles Past Danube

Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's United States 7th Army, fighting as much as 21 miles beyond the Danube, struck a hard core of resistance and was bringing up 8-inch cannon and 10-inch howitzers to blast out the Germans dug in on its path.

The Dillingen bridgehead, where the 7th Army first crossed the river, was hit by a five-hour counterattack, but meanwhile the Americans were breaking across the river in two more places.

To the east of the bridgehead one force was about 11 miles beyond the Danube, 10 miles northwest of the city of Augsburg and about 41 miles from Munich.

Southwest of the bridgehead, forces across the Danube also hurdled the Iller Canal and captured Illertissen, 13 miles south of the fallen Danubian city of Ulm.

On Past Fellheim

One armored column lanced straight on south beyond Fellheim, 21 miles south of Ulm and 40 miles from the Austrian border in the western part of the redoubt.

The Dillingen bridgehead forces were fighting on beyond the now severed Munich superhighway, slamming into Jettingen, 14 miles south of Dillingen and 19 miles due west of Augsburg.

Other 7th Army forces were heading for the Danube on the remainder of the 60-mile front, with the 45th Division in Leisacker, 41 miles northwest of Munich.

The French 1st Army, enveloping Lake Constance, forced the German lake flotilla to flee to the Swiss shore, where the Swiss radio said it had surrendered.

French Take 6,000 Captives

French troops driving on the north shore aircraft manufacturing city of Friedrichshafen captured Waldsee, 23 miles to the northeast. There they were 28 miles from the western border of Austria.

With the French now all along the Swiss frontier south of the Black Forest, the Germans holed up in that strong, natural position were surrendering in large numbers. The French announced they took more than 6,000 prisoners Wednesday.

Bremen Falls to British After Long Siege

Patton's Armor Plunges Closer to Austria —Pushes on to Cross Danube.

BEACHHEAR

Paris, April 26 (A. P.).—The British Second Army captured Bremen today, clearing all the great port except the dock area and Burger Park north of the center of the city.

Far to the south, the American Third Army closed within eight and one-half miles of Austria and forty-one of Munich. Gen. Patton's tanks were within 100 miles of a junction with the Russians west of Vienna, a union which would encircle Czecho-Slovakia and create a pocket larger than the Ruhr. The Third Army was last reported seventy-two miles from Hitler's roost at Berchtesgaden, but encountering harder opposition at the fringe of the Alpine redoubt.

APR 2 7 1945

Russian shells fell near 9th Army positions on the Elbe northwest of Berlin, indicating an imminent junction.

The British Lowland (52d) and Iron 3d divisions captured 5,000 Germans since entering Bremen yesterday. Rigid opposition gave way suddenly and almost disappeared by midafternoon.

The worst obstacles in Bremen were debris and swarms of freed foreign laborers, who ran pell-mell in the streets, many fortified with the city's plentiful supply of liquor.

Second Largest Port

With 334,563 peacetime residents, Bremen was Germany's eighteenth city, her second port and her most important submarine base and supply center.

The announcement of its fall came from General Dempsey's 2d Army headquarters.

Bremen has two of Germany's largest shipyards, which turned out everything from great liners to midget submarines. A Focke-Wulf aircraft factory, textile mills, grain and lumber houses dotted the city. It has been bombed repeatedly and was in ruins when it fell.

Big Trade With U.S.

The city was built on profits from trade with the United States. It was the leading import center for American cotton and tobacco and the leading port for German immigrants to the New World. More than a third of its billion-dollar export-import trade was with the United States. Wharfage and docks along the Weser estuary totaled over eighteen miles.

Thrusting northward toward the sea from captured Zeven, halfway between Bremen and Hamburg, other British forces have occupied Selsingen in an 8-mile advance, Supreme Headquarters announced.

Simultaneously, the Canadians closed on the important road center of Oldenburg, capital of the Duchy of that name.

Pockets Mopped Up

The British 2d Army closed up to the Elbe at nearly all points in its sector southeastward from Hamburg. The American 9th Army and Britsh controlled 200 miles of the west bank of the river from Hamburg to Dessau and had mopped up nearly every bypassed pocket behind the stream.

Canadians reached Kritsum, 7 miles northeast of Emden. They withdrew their two bridgeheads over the Maas River south of Utrecht.

Cross Altmuhl River

On the other end of the front, American forces driving toward Munich south of Nuernberg entered Sulzburg and crossed the Altmuhl River near Gungolding. One bridge was captured intact.

The French closed on Munich from the west after destroying the German 19th Army. Numerous traps still were being reduced.

The 3d Army, like the French 1st and American 7th, had crossed the Danube on a wide front. It bypassed Regensburg.

Czech City Captured

Some of General Patton's divisions struck east into Czechoslovakia capturing Eger (Cheb). Other units were within 35 of Pilsen.

The threatened entrapment of Bohemia and Moravia—last unconquered parts of Czechoslovakia—might prove a greater blow than even the German disasters in the Ruhr and at Stalingrad. The area contains the last heavy industries in German hands.

All roads and railway lines from the Pilsen-Prague area to the Bavarian redoubt were cut except a circuitous route through Linz, and the 3d Army was only 52 miles from that Austrian frontier city.

Mopping Up Pockets

On the extreme southern end of the front the French 1st Army slashed into German pockets in the Black Forest, Swabian Alps, around Ulm and Stuttgart and Aalen. The Poilus pushed along the Swiss-Rhine frontier to Waldshut, 21 miles northwest of Zurich.

A French communiqué, meanwhile, announced the capture of Waldsee, 21 miles from the big aircraft works on Lake Constance at Friedrichshafen. Waldshut also fell, giving the French control of all German soil along the Swiss frontier from the French border to the lake. More than 6,000 Germans surrendered to the French Army during the day.

On Four-Lane Highway

General Patch's veteran 3d Division joined the Hellcat (12th Armored) in the Dillingen bridgehead over the Danube and together they fanned out to the southeast and southwest.

The tanks were on a four-lane highway leading to Munich at Anhausen, 12 miles southwest of Dillingen and the infantry captured Wertingen, 14 miles northwest of Augsburg and 45 from Munich. Troops at another point were less than 10 miles from Augsburg.

Patton's 71st Division crossed the Danube twice between Sulzbach and Regensburg against very light resistance. The 65th Division crossed the river between Regensburg and Kelheim, 11 miles to the southwest. The Thunderbolt Division advanced 6 miles to reach Tittling, closest to Austria and a junction with the Russians.

The Danube was first crossed by 3d Army troops using assault boats. Small arms fire was encountered, but resistance collapsed when the opposite shore was reached.

Domky Is Reached

Seven-mile advances carried into Eger, 11 miles southeast of Asch, first Czechoslovakia city conquered by the 3d Army. Other troops reached Domky, 27 miles southeast of Eger and closest to Pilsen. The Texas and Oklahoma (90th) Division advanced 4 miles to near the border villages of Stadlern and Zillendorf, 35 to 40 northeast of Regensburg.

The Yankee (26th) Division was following the Thunderbolt tanks toward Austria and the redoubt, advancing 17 miles into Neukirchen, 29 miles east of Regensburg. The Yankees reached Geschweindt, 6 miles north of Staubing, and Zeitldorn, 6 miles northwest of that city.

Many Towns Taken

To the west, Patton's infantry captured Dietfurt, 19 miles northeast of Ingolstadt. The troops crossed the Altmuhl River again near Pfullendorf and Beilngries, 17 northeast and 17 north of Ingolstadt.

Other 3d Army infantry entered Freirichshofen, a mile northwest of Ingolstadt and 45 from Munich. Eichstatt, 13 miles northwest of Ingolstadt, was partly cleared.

Many small towns fell to the French 1st and American 7th armies of General Devers's group. The French reached Aulendorf, 21 miles southeast of Sigmaringen.

French Push Ahead

The French Army, rolling up the shores of Lake Constance, advanced to Uberlingen, 7 miles across the lake from the German city of Constance, where thousands of wounded Allied prisoners are reported held. The French pushed 8 miles on to the northeast into Frickingen, 15 miles west of Ravensburg.

The 7th Army on the northwest approaches to Munich accepted the surrender of the Danube town of Donauwoerth from its Nazi Gauleiter. The town is 21 miles north of Augsburg and 53 from Munich.

U.S. Jeep Patrol Overruns 11 Prison Camps, Hospitals

By Hal Boyle

WITH THE 69th INFANTRY DIVISION BEYOND THE MULDE RIVER, April 26 (AP)—A jeep patrol running at will through disorganized German lines overran 11 Allied prisoner of war camps and hospitals today and reported that in two camps alone were more than 50,000 freed prisoners, including 8,600 Americans.

Find Slain Red Troops

The U. S. First army patrol, disarming whole columns of Germans marching toward the American lines, pressed into a town where they found the bodies of two Russian Cossacks who had been killed in a small-scale patrol action only a few hours before.

The liberated Allied prisoners of war were so numerous that the small patrol told them to stay where they were while plans were made to bring them out.

"I can't even estimate how many were in other camps," said Maj. Fred Craig, Friendship, Tenn., on his return from a patrol beyond the Mulde toward the Russian lines along the Elbe.

"But everywhere we went prisoners went wild with joy to see us."

Exact Location Unknown

Because of a news blackout on the positions of American and Russian lines converging in the narrow corridor between the Mulde and Elbe rivers, it was impossible to give the exact loaction of the camps.

"In one camp," said Craig, "we found 20,112 prisoners, and among them were 267 Americans. The camp was built by the Germans in 1941 for French prisoners and there still are thousands of them there.

"American boys told me they had been shuttled from place to place to keep them from falling into our hands as we advanced, and that this was the fifth camp they had been in.

"Their guards pulled out four nights before, leaving them to shift for themselves.

Contains 30,000 Men

"We also overran a camp which Allied prisoners themselves said contained 30,000 men, of whom about 6,000 were Americans. We didn't have time to count them.

"In this camp there were some 3,000 ambulance cases, most of them suffering from malnutrition."

"In another German hospital we found 7,000 wounded—half of whom were Germans suffering from recent bullet wounds," Craig continued. "There were only five Americans here. One was a lieutenant of the Second Infantry Division captured only three nights ago.

"In an adjoining town we came across a Luftwaffe hospital with 3,000 German patients."

Craig said that in all cases the American hospital patients told the same story—of harsh treatment on the roads or in prison, but of efficient and not unkindly care once they were placed in hospitals.

Carry Weapons

"We found that almost all doctors and nurses in German hospitals were carrying weapons and we disarmed all we ran across," he said. The German medical personnel said they were afraid that the advancing Soviet troops would massacre them and the Nazi patients.

"German guards had run off from all prison camps or turned themselves over to the prisoners," he said. "We found an American major, a prisoner, had taken over one camp and was running it.

"As we were on another mission, there wasn't much we could do on the spot. We told them to sit tight for the next 48 to 72 hours while plans were formulated to remove them.

"I never saw more happy men in my life. They did everything but kiss us—and one colonel who had been a prisoner since the North African campaign even did that. On both cheeks, too."

Thousands Will Be Freed

Among released war prisoners were British, French, Russians and Poles. U. S. First Army officers expressed belief that when the Mulde-Elbe corridor finally had been cleaned up scores of thousands of war prisoners would be freed.

The hard-pressed Germans, caught in the Allied east-west squeeze, no longer have any place to take them.

There were only 31 men in Craig's patrol and they rode in open jeeps, armed with nothing heavier than machineguns.

"We learned from one burgomeister," said Craig, "that the Volkssturm was dissolved in our area yesterday by order of the German commander and those home guard troops were told to change into civilian clothing as soon as they could and try to hide from the Russians.

"The order went out when the Germans learned the Russians were crossing the Elbe."

Takes Towns By Phone

Craig took several towns by telephone, the favorite technique now with Gen. Hodges' First Army divisions.

"We just phoned to the burgofeister in the town ahead telling him we were coming through and that if we met any resistance we'd destroy the town with artillery fire," he said, "and we didn't have a bit of trouble.

"We met hundreds of German troops marching back toward our lines in perfect columns. They were fully armed. We halted them and broke their rifles and took their pistols—but we couldn't collect all their weapons so we just waved a lot of them on back toward the Mulde.

"And when our patrol finally did halt it wasn't because of any resistance we met."

Craig said that in one town they arrived just as four German cargo trucks loaded with 60 men were pulling out the other end.

'All the garrison couldn't get away and we captured 12 prisoners in the town. We also found the frshly-killed corpses of two Cossacks from a small Soviet patrol which the Nazis told us they had fought in the town only a few hours before."

ern edge of the breach this afternoon as groups of clamoring civilians on the other side pleaded with him to be let across to the American side, so that they could escape the Russians advancing from the Elbe.

"We live on that side," one middle-aged German said. "I work in that yellow factory by the edge of the river."

"Well, you ran away from us in the first place—now you can run back in the other direction," said Major Utley. "We know what you're afraid of."

Only German prisoners of war in uniform and escaped Allied prisoners are allowed across the Mulde pending the junction of the American and Russian troops.

The Women Cry.

"When we tell German women civilians that, they get upset and begin to cry," Major Utley said. "They tell us the Russians are closing in on them and they are afraid of what will happen to them."

I clambered down a crude wooden ladder and walked up the broken span on the other side and was immediately besieged by scores of Germans wanting to get on the other side.

"They won't take me prisoner because I am only a policeman," said a grey-haired Nazi in the bright gray-green garb which many Americans mistake for the Wehrmacht uniform. "I was a policeman in Dortmund back in the Ruhr but the Nazis threw me into the army and made me fight. If they think I am a soldier I am one. I am no longer a civilian. I am a soldier and I demand to surrender. Please make them let me cross the river. The Russians are getting closer."

Yanks Bar German Civilians Attempting to Flee From Reds

By HAL BOYLE.

Grimma, Germany, April 25 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Germany's Bridge of Sighs today is a broken, 100-yard-long stone span across the River Mulde. It was blown up four days ago by 200 Nazi defenders. A Second Infantry Division battalion led by Major Robert L. Utley of San Antonio, Tex., killed fifty of the Germans and captured fifty more before the others broke and ran.

Major Utley stood on the west-brown trousers buttonholed me next.

"I have been trying to get back across the river for eight days, to return to my home near Leipzig," she said. "I am so afraid of the Russians. I haven't eaten for three days. When can I go across?"

Poughkeepsie Man's View.

A long column of 100 wounded German soldiers marched down to the edge of the river and rested in the grass before starting over. Every civilian envied them their bandages. One group of Italians, used to being pushed around in Germany, sat down by the roadside and philosophically munched bread. But scores of German men, women and children moved about restlessly, unable to stand still for fear of the Russians.

A young German naval doctor wearing horn-rimmed glasses came up to ask if he couldnt' move forty civilian hospital patients—and himself—across the river.

"The Russians may club our patients to death," he said, and moistened his dry lips. "All Germany is in dissolution. I am an intellectual. All war is distasteful to me."

Heedless of the civilians around their radio jeep were Sergt. Howard S. Wing of 111 Forbus street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Private Thavis J. Hood of Lacrosse, Wis., who were keeping contact with an American patrol thrusting toward the Elbe to meet the Russians.

"All these people are scared skinny," said Wing." There were 2,000 of them here yesterday, too. Some of them started to swim over but gave up after our fellows on the other side put a few machine-gun bursts near them."

Berliners In Flight

Berlin's death throes are speeding a tide of panic-stricken humanity to the Elbe in front of the Russians moving westward. Except for the occasional Soviet shell, fired from no one knows where, the river is quiet.

[This dispatch suggests that a union of Russian and American forces northwest of Berlin might be made simultaneously or even before expected junctures in the Barby and Dresden areas southwest of the capital. Just how many miles away the Russian artillery might be, however, was problematical.]

Shelling Held Up

The Americans stopped cross-river shelling when Germans appeared with white flags in this sector and begged to be taken prisoner.

On the opposite bank of the Elbe, across fields leading to woods, are long lines of men and women as far as I can see. There are soldiers, civilians and escaped prisoners.

There are German soldiers who have thrown away their guns while fleeing in the hope of surrendering to the 9th Army rather than fall into the hands of the Red Army.

Former Prisoners

There are American soldiers captured in Africa and Italy. There are British soldiers captured at Dunkerque, Belgians, French, Russians, Poles, Czechs representing every phase of the war. A few hours ago they were in prison camps. Now their captors are begging them for help.

Then there is the debris of Hitler's empire, rich Nazis, poor farmers and officers trying to hide in civilian clothes.

There is no question of party rank now. There is only one boat operating on the river below, a fair-sized motor launch run by Lieut. Col. Eric E. Bischoff, of Lockport, Ill., of the 102d Division, and it is just nibbling at the mass of humanity now, taking on only Americans, British, French and Belgian escaped prisoners. Germans sit by the hundreds, hoping to get across.

No Water In Berlin

These refugees tell of German soldiers fighting civilians for a place in Berlin's subway shelters, of no heat, lights or water in the city, of rumors that Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels is dead and of seeing German soldiers running away and leaving the SS to do the fighting.

A German battalion commander came over the stream with one boatload and wanted to surrender his entire force. He was kept, but the rest will have to swim for it or wait their turn. That turn will never come, as the influx of American prisoners of war grows hourly. The first arrivals say that thousands more are on the way.

Walk Away From Guards

On this side in a small house are two happy doughboys who just walked away from their guards with a British soldier and headed west and south. They are Corporal Bernard Thompson, of Carthage, Ill., captured at Anzio, and Sergt. Floyd Hagerman, of Wheatland, Wyo., who was taken in Normandy.

They are so happy there are tears in their eyes.

With some 700 companions, Thompson and Hagerman got away from their camp at Luckenwalde, just southwest of Berlin, on Sunday and walked to the Elbe virtually unmolested.

At several points, the Americans said, they could hear Russian machine guns a mile or two behind them and at one point they got caught in the Soviet shelling.

Get Canned Chicken

Hagerman, Thompson and their British companion were quickly hauled into the house by four doughboys who met them on this side of the river. The doughboys pulled out their packages from home and produced fruit cake, canned chicken and everything they had been saving and laid it before the escaped trio who were almost, but not quite, too happy to eat.

The hosts were Privates Henry O. Crain of New Orleans, Leonard Plasschaert of Maywood, Ill.; Robert L. Sanders of Joliet, Ill., and Elam C. Carr of Farmville, N. C.

Back at a regimental command post Col. Lurin L. Williams of Seattle, Wash., ordered all field kitchens up to the river at once with mess crews and extra rations to feed the Americans, British, French and other Allies being brought in.

Russ Shells Fall Near Ninth Army Sector

EDITORS VISIT HORROR CAMP

Back In Paris, They Express Desire To See Others

KENNEDY

Paris, April 26 (AP)—Eighteen American publishers and editors who came to France on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's invitation to see the horrors of German concentration camps returned to Paris tonight from the notorious Buchenwald camp and said they would like to visit others.

Eisenhower told them that volumes of heretofore unrevealed evidence of Nazi brutality and murder of civilian and military personnel would be made available to them.

The editors named a committee consisting of Julius Ochs Adler, of the New York Times; Stanley High, of Readers Digest, and Malcolm Bingay, of the Detroit Free Press, to draft a report on their conclusions concerning German atrocities.

Hitler Jumped For Guide

After arriving in Paris earlier this week, the editors were flown to Weimar, where they had lunch at the famous "elephant house," which had just been taken over by the American Army.

Then they were taken to Buchenwald, where they spent three hours. Their guide was Kurt Gatnor, formerly a high officer in the Austrian Army, who spent several months as a prisoner in the camp.

They went through the main part of the camp where 16,000 prisoners are still being kept because no provisions have yet been made to move them. These prisoners, however, are free in theory and are being well fed.

The editors also visited the camp's hospitals, which were established by the prisoners themselves with prisoner-surgeons who are still on the job. They saw several corpses carried out—bodies of prisoners who died even after liberation as the result of malnutrition and other causes.

And The Brothel

They also saw the crematorium, the SS (Elite Guard) execution chamber, children's quarters and the brothel.

But they said they were rushed through the camp too quickly and would like more of a chance to study conditions. Even more, they said, they would like to remain until some new camp is liberated so that they would have a chance to get into it immediately after the liberation and see what conditions are like before the camp is cleaned up.

Ben McKelway, of the Washington Star said there was no doubt in the minds of the editors that atrocities had been committed, but it was hard to gauge the exact extent. Other editors agreed with him, as did corespondents who had been there for some time.

De Gaulle Sees Congressmen

The editors started off on a flight over the narrow corridor separating the American and Russian armies, but their fighter escort was late in arriving so they did not see as much as they had hoped before darkness fell.

After visiting the camp, the editors talked to Eisenhower and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the 12th Army Group.

Eisenhower said that the written evidence of German inhumane treatment of captives which they would be permitted to see contained evidence compiled by supreme headquarters and until now restricted information.

A party of American congressmen, who also came overseas to view evidence of German atrocities and particularly the Buchenwald camp, was received today by Gen. Charles de Gaulle. The delegation was presented by the United States Ambassador, Jefferson Caffrey.

Nuernberg, Nazi Dream City, Now Lies In Utter Ruin

By Wade Werner

Nuernberg, Germany, April 26 (AP)—Here lies Nuernberg, once the dream city of Nazidom, today a fantastic, fearsome nightmare of gutted architecture, the deepest pit in the German Gehenna.

The charred carcass of the old city within its ancient walls is recognizable—barely—because the remnants of landmarks are still standing.

Looking at these landmarks amid the smoldering embers, one remembers why the Nazis chose it for their annual party congress. Old Nuernberg was the embodiment of German dreams and traditions through the centuries; upon it the Nazis superimposed their own traditions.

Hitler Dreamed Aloud

Many and amazing were their dreams, and some of them came true—at least partly and for a while.

Here it was that Hitler dreamed aloud in 1936, inspired by the rumbling of new German tanks over Nuernberg's cobblestones and the drone of Goering's new bombers overhead:

"Yes, if I had the Ukraine. If we had the Urals!"

He got the Ukraine eventually, but the Urals remained a mirage.

Here the Nazis dreamed of an Aryanized Europe and wrote their dreaming into law—the ruthless Nuernberg anti-Jewish statutes. That dream also was partially realized—but it lies among smoking ruins now.

Nuernberg's ancient castle is in ruins, like the dreams of empire Hitler had there. Nine years ago I walked through halls and corridors of its stately interior, past portraits of one German emperor after another until finally I passed a likeness of the last Hohenzollern, Kaiser Wilhelm II—then I stepped [illegible] onto a little balcony to meet Germany's new imperial genius—Hitler himself.

Nazi-Style Buildup

The long walk past those many emperors to the most ambitious of them all was an impressive buildup in the best Nuernberg Nazi style. Today I could see no trace of that balcony. The beflagged streets through which the Führer rode are ashes now.

Pageantry, flags, songs, oratory and enthusiasm were the keynote of Nuernberg's mood in those party congress days.

Today, gloom, devastation and forboding dominate the city which once housed nearly half a million. An estimated 200,000 people, including perhaps 10,000 displaced persons, wander about the streets, foraging for food, poking into ruins. Several thousand have been gathered into an emergency camp. So far 134 cases of typhus have been reported.

U.S. School Men In Charge

The new boss of Nuernberg is a former school superintendent from North Tarrytown, N.Y., Lieut. Col. Delbert O. Fuller, commander of a military government detachment. His right-hand man is Lieut. Col. James C. Barnett, formerly of Oklahoma State Teachers College.

Probably it will be an extra drop of bitterness in the Nazi cup of defeat to know that two American educators are establishing a new regime for Nuernberg under the stern rules of a conqueror.

On the other hand, the suburbs of hell, such as this 95 per cent devastated and mortally wounded city, are not a particularly pleasant sphere of action for men accustomed to the peaceful routine of scholastic administration in the United States.

Soviets Near—Germans Hang Out Red Flags

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY, April 26 (AP) — German housewives have quit hanging out white surrender flags. They are dangling red bed ticks from windows and stringing up red blankets on clothes lines.

Even red stockings, and red unmentionables, are hung out to show the pacific attitude of German householders as Russian troops sweep on toward the Mulde river.

That's the surest sign that Russia's "Red" Army is near.

Rommel Died Of Bullet Wounds, His Wife Says

With United States 7th Army, April 24 [Delayed by Censorship]. Matrshal Erwin Rommel's widow, found living in the Swabian town of Herlingen, a suburb of Uml, said today her husband's death was the result of wounds received when his car was hit by a fighter bomber in France July 17, 1944.

Confirming substantially previous reports of Rommel's end, she said he had fallen out with German leaders over strategy in France.

H actually died on October 14, 1944, fro ma heart attack when it was thought he was on the way to recovery. The left side of his skull had been dentd when a bomber caght his staff car and the base of his skull was fractured. The wound healed but he lost the sight of one eye an dhis left side was paralyzed.

War To End Soon, Declares Nazi General

Outstanding Officer Believes Hitler Will Die In Berlin.

PIXON

U. S. NINTH ARMY FRONT, April 25. (Delayed) (AP)—One of Germany's best known generals surrendered to American infantrymen on the Elbe today and said he expected the war to end in a few days.

Internationally known as one of the best informed members of the German general staff, the officer said he believed Hitler would die in Berlin and that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering possibly already had been executed.

(The general was not named in this censored dispatch.)

Further, the captive said:

War's Turning Point

The war's turning point came last June in Normandy when the Germans failed to beat back the channel invasion.

Politically, economically and physically the Reich has been doomed since July 20, 1944, the day the bomb plot to assassinate Hitler failed. Had the Wehrmacht sized control, he said, surrender would have been engineered somehow in time to avert complete destruction.

The German national redoubt, where an extended holdout has been predicted, is mostly a myth and is already incapable of a long defense.

After crossing the Elbe in a rowboat under a white flag the general asserted German casualties had been too great to make continued resistance possible.

Will Scatter Quickly

He said the only thing holding remnants of the German army together was the presence of the Gestapo, storm troopers and SS troops who, he predicted, will scatter quickly upon the fall of Berlin or the death of Hitler.

Although disclaiming knowledge of the whereabouts of Heinrich Himmler, he said Hitler still remained in Berlin, from where he had just come, and that the Fuehrer would stay there until he was either killed or committed suicide—mostly because there was hardly any other place he dared go.

NEW YORKER TELLS OF FATAL MARCH

Eichstatt, Germany, April 26 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Col. J. D. Alger of New York, liberated by the American Eighty-sixth Infantry Division, said today that the Germans had forced him and 1,200 other Americans and Britons to walk 297 miles from Zubin, Poland, to Brandenburg, Germany, in thirty-two days.

"The Germans absolutely refused to provide any of us with medical attention even though at least half of those in the column were suffering from dysentery," said Alger, who was captured in North Africa on February 15, 1943, and whose address is care of Alan D. Sutherland, National City Bank, New York. Alger declared that at least twenty-five prisoners including seven Americans, died because of the Germans' failure to provide proper medical treatment. He said the deaths resulted from faulty amputations, pneumonia and malnutrition.

Germans Burn Yank Negro In Murder Barn

Killed With 1,100 Political Prisoners By Civilians And Party Officials.

GARDELEGEN, Germany, April 26 (AP)—An investigation has revealed that an American Negro prisoner of war was killed in the mass murder of 1,100 political prisoners in a barn near here.

Officers investigating the circumstances of the burning to death of the group now are convinced that the massacre of the helpless men was carried out for the most part by German civilians and Nazi party officials.

An additional 200 massacred prisoners have been found in a mass grave near Bishmach. All had been shot. This brought to more than 1,300 the number of political and other prisoners slain within a few hours before the arrival of American soldiers in this area recently.

Found In Murder Barn

The Negro's body was found in the murder barn and questioning of survivors disclosed that he was an American Negro soldier known only as "John" who had been put among the political prisoners because he had tried to escape too often.

The investigation also brought to light the fact that German home front soldiers and farmers had hunted the political prisoners like deer a few hours before American troops appeared on the scene. They took pot shots at whatever prisoners were seen on roads or in fields.

The prisoners had arrived at Gardelegen after the American break-through on the west. Inquiries established that city officials and Nazi party leaders held a meeting at which it was decided to murder all of the prisoners because they were considered a threat to the personal safety of the German leaders in the event they were liberated.

Volkssturm Called Out

The Volkssturm was called out along with members of the Jugend (Hitler Youth) to carry through the massacre. Some of the prisoners were shot and the others burned.

Several of the Germans who participated have been arrested and two committed suicide, but the Nazi who organized the slayings is still at large.

This area has proved one of the hottest yet overrun for activity of the Hitler Jugend and the so-called "werewolves." A number of small gangs of youths aged 11 to 16 and led by older men have been apprehended.

Stettin Is Also Occupied

Russians Drive 22 Mi. West To Second Imminent Link-up.

BRUENN FALLS, INVADE BRESLAU

Bruenn, Great Armament Center, Last Of Nazi Production Cities.

By Romney Wheeler

LONDON, Friday, April 27 (AP)—Soviet armies conquered almost two-thirds of Berlin's pulverized and burning ruins yesterday, seized the great German Baltic naval base of Stettin and extended their bridgehead across the Elbe river 17 miles from the American First Army.

As the Russians began to forge an inner ring of encirclement within the smoke-blanketed and encircled German capital, infantry and cavalry of a fourth great Russian army toppled the huge armament city of Bruenn (Brno), second largest city of Czechoslovakia and one of Hitler's last remaining war production centers.

Breslau Penetrated

Berlin's deadly street battles paled bitter fighting in another German fortress city. Far behind the lines, Soviet troops battled into the western streets of the long-besieged lower Silesian capital of Breslau, occupying 26 blocks and several factory districts.

As the world waited for a three-power announcement that Red Army and American forces had linked up, Moscow and Berlin reports indicated that two historic meetings were imminent.

West of Berlin, by German account, Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army yesterday raced 22 miles westward, by-passing the City of Brandenburg, to realh a point only 14 1-2 miles from the American Ninth Army on the middle Elbe.

Red Shells Fall Near Yanks

The enemy high command said Zhukov's troops had reached the Rathenow area near Ninth Army lines on the Elbe and Ninth Army front reports said Soviet shells were falling a few miles from Yank lines.

Southwest of Berlin another junction neared—if, in fact, it had not already occurred. Here, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian Army extended bridgeheads on the Elbe's west bank and seized Strehla and Riesa only 17 miles from the American First Army on the Mulde river. But First Army dispatches said American patrols had struck deep into the narrow corridor between the Elbe and the Mulde, and the Swiss radio said a link-up along a many-mile front had taken place yesterday afternoon.

The fanatical Nazi defenders, throwing women and children into the death struggle, were stubbornly defending the German capital as street battles roared through their sixth day under relentless Russian artillery and aerial bombardment.

But assault teams of Marshal Zhukov's army's compressing a mighty band of steel around perhaps 500,000 trapped Nazi soldiers, captured the northwestern industrial districts of Gartenfeld and Siemenstadt.

At the same time, Konev's tankmen rolled into the desolate rubble-strewn streets of Dahlem in southwestern Berlin and as the two armies drove from the north and south into fashionable Charlottenburg, with only a four and a half mile gap between them, the great western suburbs of Spandau and Potsdam were threatened with isolation from Berlin proper.

Possible Death-knell for Hitler

Possibly sounding the death-knell for Adolf Hitler, Propaganda Minister Goebbels and other high Nazis whom the Germans said still were in the capital, massed waves of Soviet armor had overrun approximately 210 square miles of Berlin's 341, Moscow's communiques revealed.

The Germans, admitting the doomed city was encircled, conceded that the "front now runs right through the heart of the city."

Pressing in from the east, Zhukov's troops captured the great quarter miles from Unter den Linden Goertlitzer rail depot, two and a den and Friedrichstrasse, but Nazi accounts said that the Soviets already had swept to the edge of famed Alexander Platz, one of Berlin's main commercial centers.

Swaying Battle

Here, a half-mile from the easter nend of Unter den Linden, a giant, swaying battle raged for the central police and gestapo headquarters, while a few blocks to the south, enemy reports said Zhukov's troops were fighting for Jannowitz station and Jannowitz bridge over the Spree river.

Soviet tommy-gunners also were storming the southern edge of the shell-pocked Tempelhof airdrome, the Nazis said, as incessant Soviet fighter patrols roared over the flaming city to forestall possible escape of Nazi big-shots by air.

The fall of Stettin, capital of Pomerania and the "port of Berlin," came with dramatic suddenness as Marshal Stalin disclosed the great city of 383,000 persons had been toppled by Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian Army.

Rokossovsky's army, joining the First White Russian and First Ukrainian armies on the Berlin front, seized Stettin after swarming across both the eastern and western arms of the lower Oder river on a 25-mile front between Stettin and Schwedt, to the southwest.

In a 19-mile breakthrough of powerful enemy fortified positions on the Oder's bank, Rokossovsky's men seized Schwedt, Kasekow and Gartz, and captured Stettin after cutting the Berlin-Stettin superhighway at captured Penkun, 14 miles southwest of the great shipbuilding center.

The fall of the northern anchor of Berlin's Oder river defense line laid open the entire Baltic coast for continued drives westward by Rokossovsky's army in the direction of Rostock and Hamburg, and a cleanup of the north German plains in conjunction with Allied western armies.

Near Berlin's Government Center

A shattering artillery barrage, meanwhile, was concentrated on the center of Berlin, a late Moscow dispatch said, and as German resistance appeared to be diminishing to some extent, the Russians were reported "very close" to the government center at some points. Earlier it had been reported that the Soviet ring had been compressed to a diameter of 15 miles from east to west, and five to 10 from north to south.

All manner of soldiers and weapons were flung by the Germans into the battle for their flaming and rubbled capital.

Even young girls were in the death struggle. The Hamburg radio said that "not only Hitler youth boys fight in the streets of Berlin, but Hitler girls have now joined the fight as the battle increases in ferocity every hour."

The Hamburg radio drew what consolation it could from the remark that "Stalin has not been able to make Berlin a present to the delegates at San Francisco," but added quickly that the Russians would "increase the pressure in the city by degrees to take it."

This broadcast, relaying what purported to be a speech by a Berlin chancellery spokesman, insisted that Hitler and Goebels still were in the capital, "performing a historic mission in directing the battle for salvation from Bolshevism."

If any Nazi leaders still were in the cauldron that was Berlin, revenge-thirsty Soviet troops had cut off all land escape for them and were pressing in relentlessly from all sides. The German communique, broadcast by Hamburg, said the Soviets who had linked west of the capital were thrusting into Charlottenburg, Berlin's high-class western suburb, while the Russians in eastern Berlin bore down on Alexander Platz, a big commercial center.

Hamburg radio claimed a number of Nazi chieftains still were within the ringed city, and implied that Field Marshal William Keitel, German chief of staff, was among them.

Gift to San Francisco

"Goebells continues to be in Berlin," said the broadcast, "and everyone knows that the heads of the state party and the Wehrmacht are proving themselves worthy of the Fuehrer's confidence in them. The chief of the general staff is scrutinizing every detail which will lead to the relief of Berlin."

Other Nazi broadcasts said the Russians were storming police and Gestapo headquatrers about a half mile from the eastern end of renowned Unter Den Linden.

The frenzied defenders to every trick in the Nazi bag, said a Moscow dispatch — disguising themselves as civilians, and even as clergymen, while seeking to hamper Soviet operations by hiding in houses bearing white flags and opening fire from roofs and cellars as the Rusisans passed.

Reich Capital's Port, Stettin, Captured

London, April 26 (AP)—Russian troops have captured Bruenn, German armament center in the middle of Czechoslovakia, Premier Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

London, April 26 (AP)—Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian Army captured the port of Stettin today as other Soviet forces battled in the center of Berlin and, by German account, drove to within 14½ miles of American positions on the west bank of the Elbe.

Stettin, (population 383,000), on the Oder estuary, 70 miles northeast of Berlin, was the main port of the encircled Reich capital, Moscow said the Russians advanced 19 miles beyond the river.

Premier Marshal Stalin's order tonight announcing the fall of the port was the first Soviet confirmation of German reports that Rokossovsky had moved his army westward onto the Oder. It also was the first Moscow disclosure that the Russians had crossed the lower Oder in the Stettin area.

Under Siege Several Weeks

Stettin has been under siege for several weeks. Stalin's announcement said Rokossovsky's forces had crossed both the eastern and western Oder, south of Stettin, and broken through powerfully fortified German defenses on the west bank.

Stettin was Germany's twenty-fifth city and the capital of Pomerania. Shipyards, machine shops, iron foundries, chemical and cement plants and munitions works at Stettin helped power the German Army before the bombers started reducing the city. Until the Russian front moved west, it was one of the main German supply bases for the divisions of that sector. Its population was swollen by 100,000 or more refugees from the east.

Stettin's fall laid open the entire Baltic coast for continued attacks by Rokossovsky in the direction of Kiel.

Berlin Resistance Weakens

A late Moscow dispatch reported that German resistance in flaming Berlin was weakening.

The German high command announced that a Soviet wing west of Berlin had driven to Rathenow, 14½ miles from American positions on the west bank of the Elbe.

In addition to Stettin, the Russians captured Gartz, Penkun, Casekow and Schwedt.

Gartz and Schwedt are 16 and 28 miles south of Stettin, respectively. Penkun and Casekow lie 8 to 10 miles west of the river between Schwedt and Stettin.

Rear Attack Suggested

The suddenness of Stettin's fall suggested that the Russians took the city with an attack from behind after shelling the port for weeks from positions in its eastern suburbs. The power of Rokossovsky's blow was indicated in Stalin's citation of 43 generals and 84 other officers.

The advance to Rathenow, an optical-instrument manufacturing center on the Haval River, represented a 23½-mile gain westward for the Russians from Nauen. It widened farther on the west the encircling belt thrown tightly around Berlin.

The inner edge of this ring gripping the capital now extends roughly 15 miles from east to west and from 7 to 8 miles from north to south.

Red Artillery Fire Heavy

As Russian artillery concentrated a withering fire on the heart of Berlin, blasting targets northward from the Tempelhof airport through the famous Tiergarten to the Reichstag sector, the Hamburg radio said that young German girls had joined in the street fighting.

Under the dateline Berlin, a Soviet Tass news agency dispatch said: "Men of the Red Army today are fighting in the heart of the German capital."

The dispatch gave no details, but probably referred to the vicinity of the Alexanderplatz, the center of the capital's business district.

Heavy Fighting In Station

The German high command reported heavy fighting inside Berlin at the Goerlitzer and Schesischer railroad stations in the southeast, the Tempelhof Airdrome and Zehlendorf in the south, and Charlottenburg in the west.

By enemy account both sides have thrown in reserves in the fighting in the industrial districts of Tagel and Siemensstadt in the northwestern part of the city. The Germans also reported fierce fighting on the southern fringes of Stettin, on the Oder estuary north of Berlin.

Russian eyewitness accounts said that Nazis disguised as priests, grocers and schoolteachers were sifting into sectors of Berlin held by the Red Army.

Reds Widen Railroad Tracks

Russian army engineers, moving into the Berlin region, were widening railroad tracks to a gauge to fit Russian locomotives and freight cars.

One Russian dispatch said that the Germans were bombing their own capital.

Pressing close to walls, some German civilians crawled toward the Russian lines, believing they would be safer there than in the cauldron of the encircled area.

Russian storm units were making the conquest of the capital the world's greatest man hunt, Moscow dispatches said. Fighting over and under the streets, the Russians had been ordered to take Adolf Hitler alive if he still is in the capital, as Nazi propagandists have declared.

Russians Doubt He's There

The Russians were not too optimistic about finding der Führer in Berlin, however. The Moscow radio observed that German reports of Hitler's presence in Berlin "are lies and have been invented to stimulate a fierce defense of the capital."

Possibly 500,000 Germans were caught in the capital. The Hamburg radio asserted that Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels still was in Berlin and that Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel also was in or near the city.

In the Reich's waist, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army swarmed over the historic Elbe barrier, toppling the west bank fortress city of Riesa, 76 miles south of Berlin. Konev's men were 22 miles from Allied-reported American positions on the Mulde River, and only 18 miles from American bridgeheads on the Mulde, as reported by the Germans.

Russian eyewitness accounts from Berlin told of the capture of a radio station and the seizure of an artillery shooting grounds in the northwestern sector of the city and penetrations into Jungfernheide Park area north of Charlottenburg.

State Forest Invaded

Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army was pressing in Jungfernheir from the Falkenhagen sector on the west, as well as from the north. Under cover of heavy artillery fire, the Russians also moved into the Spandau State Forest, just outside Spandau.

Driving eastward from the captured suburb of Doebritz, Russian tanks approached the western bank of the broad Havel River, across from Charlottenburg and south of Spandau.

seeking the comparative safety of Russian lines. Hundreds of Polish, Czech and Russian slave laborers were liberated and sent back eastward.

Other accounts said Nazis disguised themselves as grocers, teachers and even clergymen, and filtered into sectors held by the Red Army, attempting to hamper the drive by sabotage.

Guns At Their Backs

In some sectors, it was reported, German soldiers would lay down their arms if they could, but the guns of SS troops were at their backs.

"These storm troopers are the ones we have to fight," said a correspondent for Izvestia. In one place, he said, eighteen Germans surrendered after four were killed.

"Then one SS reptile from beneath the roof commenced shooting. Of course, we killed him."

"Fighting in the streets is fierce and stiff," wrote a Tass newsman. "German guns bark, German aircraft fly overhead. However, more and more Soviet regiments pour into the city. The number of captured houses and blocks increases hourly.

Troops Fill All Roads

"All roads—trunk lines, highways, country lanes—are filled with columns of troops, trucks and tanks moving to Berlin. The main highway leading to the capital of Germany is blocked with troops. In four rows move tractors, tanks, trucks, amphibian cars. Everybody is in a hurry, fearing to be late. And in front rises the smoke of burning Berlin which serves as a beacon to all.

"Hitler's air force attempts to prevent Soviet tanks from reaching the central districts of the German capital. Soviet pilots perfectly cooperating with tank men repel the and a gigantic din echoed from tunnels under the city.

A Pravda eyewitness account said hundreds of house-to-house battles raged in the eastern sector, where Nazi storm troops attacked each house as if it were a fortress.

"Each stone of the city, each meter of street is against us," the correspondent wrote. "We have to take them with our blood.

"Men from Siberia and the Volga are fighting down the broad streets of Berlin. They moved down Berliner Allee. They are impatient. 'On to Berlin' is written on their tanks."

Over 1,000-Mile Route

Deep, personal hatred for the Nazis spurred onward these men who had battled all the 1,000-mile route from the gates of their own capital back through their own great, wrecked cities. Red as Indians from the dust of Berlin's crumbling brick walls, they hammered forward under a concentrated barrage of artillery fire.

Every German able to hold a gun, shovel, ax or crowbar had been mobilized against the advance, wrote a Soviet war correspondent.

"But the Red Army cannot be kept from crushing the city. Many men around me have Berlin addresses and scores to settle," he reported.

Have Names And Addresses

As the troops surged on, many kept repeating over and over those specific names and addresses, impatient to appease the hunger for revenge which had gnawed at them for four years, the correspondent said.

"Vasili Kordjuk, a Ukrainian from the Latvian district—he was taken to Berlin for hard labor and worked for the manufacturer Ernest Blanker," said the dispatch. "He escaped and entered the ranks of the Red Army. He killed six Germans, one an officer, on the banks of the Oder, but this hasn't stilled his revenge. He wants to find Ernest Blanker.

"Red Army man Ivan Novikov has a sister in Berlin. He says he is in Berlin to free his sister.

To Avenge Brother

"Alexei Boretzki is here to avenge his dead brother, Leonid, who was carried to Berlin from Voronezh.

"Ivan Nesterov's wife was killed by the Germans in Rostov on the Don. He is wounded. The commander offered him a jeep to take him to a first-aid post. He refused. He said he would go to a hospital after Berlin was taken.

"Maria Bondarenko is from Stalingrad. She is regulating traffic in the Berlin streets. She dreams and talks about standing in the center of the Wilhelmstrasse with her signal flags.

"Flagbearer Ivan Volodin from Ulyanovsk (the birthplace of Lenin) has carried his banner over the Dnepr, the Vistula and the Oder. He is now marching with it through the big thoroughfares of Berlin."

Nazis Resort To Tricks

The Nazis were resorting to all the tricks in their bag. They secreted themselves in houses adorned by white flags and opened fire on passing Soviet infantry; there are so many white flags in Berlin that a Soviet correspondent said it looked like a universal washday. The Germans fired from every available cranny. They flung youths and old men and even women into the battle.

Other Berliners were reported deserting the city. Some crawled along the walls of ruined buildings, the Red Army are less dangerous."

Tale Of Forced Labor

Major Penchalov, writing of Russians with scores to settle, said:

"Vasili Kordjuk, a Ukrainian from the Latvian district, was taken to Berlin for hard labor, worked for Manufacturer Ernest Blanker. He escaped and entered the Red Army. He has killed six Germans, one an officer, on the banks of the Oder, but this hasn't settled his revenge. He wants to find Ernest Blanker."

Penchalov said another fighter was in Berlin to "free his sister" there; another sought to revenge his dead brother, carried to Berlin from Voronezh; still another, whose wife was killed by the Germans, refused to go to a first aid post after being wounded, saying he would accept treatment after Berlin had fallen.

Revenge For Stalingrad

"Maria Bondarenko is from Stalingrad," the correspondent said. "She is regulating traffic in Berlin streets. She dreams and talks about standing in the center of the Wilhelmstrasse with her signal flags."

Tass Correspondent Boris Afansev reported the noise of the battle increased as the Russians neared the city's center. The din was audible six to 8 miles away, Afansev said.

Non-stop Blitz

This great convergence of air power from the west and the south maintained a non-stop blitz on Hitler's last ditch stand area while Gen. Patton's armored columns bored into the zone.

Planes stationed in Britain were grounded today by bad weather over the continent.

Sixteen Thunderbolts of the Ninth Air Force destroyed 43 enemy parked planes of all types on an airfield near Munich while Mustangs ranged to the southeastern tip of Germany to shoot up a 30-truck convoy laden with ammunition and gasoline heading towards Berchtesgaden.

RAF Typhoons and Spitfires raked gun positions and fortified positions in the Emden, Hamburg and Bremen areas while Mitchell bombers hammered freight yards at Patrau Buchen, 10 miles from Hamburg. Spitfires ranged as far as Berlin.

Roads, Rails In Use

RAF Tempest pilots reported considerable road and rail activity in northern Germany with the enemy moving toward Denmark. Nearly 50 vehicles were destroyed by cannon fire northwest of the Baltic port of Flensburg.

A large freighter heading toward Emden was hit by eight rockets near the mouth of the Ems and an armored vessel off the Frisian Islands was also punctured by rockets.

During Wednesday night RAF squadrons of Beaufighters, Wellingtons and Halifaxes scored hits on thirteen vessels in the North Sea area.

'Retribution' Cry Of Reds As They Push Through Berlin

Moscow, April 26 (AP) — Battle-grimed Soviet veterans, burning with hatred for everything Nazi and thirsting for personal revenge, bore down on the center of Berlin from all sides tonight, hammering through clouds of smoke which all but blacked out the heart of the burning German capital.

"We recalled July, 1941, when the Germans were bombing the theaters and hospitals of Moscow," said a front dispatch. "Here it is—retribution!"

House-To-House Battles Rage

From every window, every garret, from subway stations, from cellars and rooftops all along the way the German guns fired as the Soviet troops fought on into the core of Nazism. Soviet planes roared overhead at rooftop levels enemy air attacks and render good support to the tanks in their continuous advance to the heart of Berlin."

"You can enter Berlin from many directions now," wrote another correspondent. "The spring sun looks pretty on the gardens. Many streets already are swept clean by brooms. Sappers are removing the barricades erected by the Germans."

Revenge Spurs Reds' Battle In Berlin

Moscow, April 26 (AP)—A Russian war correspondent in Berlin reported today that virtually every German in the encircled city was now resisting the Soviet Army's growing attack—"everyone able to hold a gun, shovel, ax or crowbar."

"But the Red Army cannot be kept from crushing the city," Major Sergei Penchalov, the writer, said. "Many men around me have Berlin addresses and scores to settle."

Russian artillery, augmented by rocket-firing Katushas, blasted the city from all sides today, no sector of the central area escaping the shells.

Hope To Find High Nazis

Tommygunners, red as Indians from clouds of brick dust rising from the debris, battled through barricaded streets seeking to rush the heart of the capital, where many high-ranking Nazis still may be found.

Muscovites impatiently awaited the expected announcement of a Russian-American linkup in the Elbe sector. It was now apparent that the news could come from several salients, anywhere from west of captured Riesa to the region of Stendal.

A late Tass dispatch said hundreds of Russians, Poles and Czechs had been liberated and were moving homeward while many Berliners were fleeing the battle zones, "thinking the districts occupied by Rail, Road Traffic Hit—Hitler's Chalet Still Smoulders.

LONDON, April 26 (AP)—Hordes of American fighter-bombers penetrated deep into the Bavarian redoubt area ahead of U. S. Third Army spearheads today, blasting rail and road traffic and ripping a fuel and ammunition truck convoy 15 miles north of Hitler's wrecked Berchtesgaden lair.

Hitler's chalet at Berchtesgaden, blown to bits by RAF six-ton earthquake bombs in Wednesday's big attack, still smouldered today as did SS barracks nearby and the Fuehrer's "Eagle's Nest" on Kehlstein peak.

NAZI REDOUBT HIT BY NIGHT

R. A. F. Follows Up Historic Bombing Attack.

London, April 26 (A. P.).—Italian-based Liberators of the Royal Air Force struck the German redoubt city of Freilassing last night, following up yesterday's historic bombardment of Hitler's eagle nest refuge and his chalet near Berchtesgaden.

APR 27 1945

Freilassing is a highway and railroad junction thirteen miles north of Berchtesgaden, which is now only seventy-two miles ahead of American ground troops.

American and British airmen alike were jubilant over yesterday's co-ordinated attack. The sumptuous chalet was destroyed by a direct hit with a six-ton bomb. Heavy, deep-penetrating explosives were rained upon his Kehlstein mountain fortress with unannounced results.

It was disclosed today that 350 R. A. F. Lancasters took part, rather than 200 as originally reported. They were escorted by both American and British fighters, while heavy bombers of the Eighth and Fifteenth United States Air forces threw the Nazi defenses off guard with attacks upon communications all around Berchtesgaden. Two R. A. F. planes were lost. Sixteen Eighth Air Force bombers, including several engaged in attacking the Skoda armament works at Pilsen, were shot down by anti-aircraft fire, and the Fifteenth lost fifteen heavy bombers from all operations yesterday.

Aerial photographs show that a large number of bombs, specially fused to bore deep underground before exploding, burst in the area of Der Fuehrer's chalet and nearby barracks where 10,000 handpicked SS bodyguards had been reported housed.

A London newspaper man who flew in one of the lead ships said the force of the explosions made the planes shudder, and added: "The ground spewed rocks, earth, bricks and even trees, uprooted and thrown like straws into the sky."

There was increased air activity over all fronts yesterday and at least seventeen Nazi planes were shot down. R. A. F. Lancasters bombed a submarine oil depot in Oslo Fjord last night and other British aircraft struck at targets in Germany. With Berlin encircled by the Red Army, British Mosquitoes patroled west of the capital to intercept any attempt by the Germans to escape or to obtain supplies by air.

Four Nazi transports were among the aircraft shot down yesterday. Railway movements, north of Bremen and Hamburg up the Danish peninsula were under continuous attack and sixteen trains were reported wrecked or damaged. German airmen came up in larger numbers than usual in an effort to screen traffic movements around Berlin, but showed little inclination to fight. Nine Spitfires shot down eight enemy planes without a loss.

In order to find their Norwegian objective—located near Tonsberg, forty miles south of Oslo—the big bombers had to make a daring low-level sweep beneath the clouds and between rugged mountain peaks. Their aim apparently was good, for returning pilots reported that they left numerous fires burning, with smoke rising to a great height.

Mosquitoes meanwhile struck the Kiel naval base for the fifth successive night and other British bombers attacked electric railway transformer stations near Munich for the third night running.

From all these operations one bomber was reported missing.

Nazi Says Hitler Will Die In Berlin

Allied Quarters Believe German Leader Is In His Alpine Fortress—Goering Reported Resigning Command Of Luftwaffe Because Of Heart Illness.

By James F. King

LONDON, April 26 (AP)—The German Hamburg radio announced tonight that Reichsmarshal Herman Goering had resigned as head of the dying Nazi air force because of an "acute" heart illness, while a high-ranking German general staff member captured by the Americans predicted that Adolf Hitler will die with his troops in encircled Berlin.

Predicts War's End Soon

The captured German general—unidentified in a U. S. Ninth Army front dispatch but termed "internationally known and one of the best informed members of the German general staff"—predicted the war would end within a few days and said that Goering probably already had been executed.

The Hamburg station said that the portly Goering, whose proud air force has been blasted almost to extinction, had been succeeded by Gen. Ritter von Grein who was made a marshal. The text of the announcement was:

"Reichsmarshal Goering who has been suffering from heart trouble for some time and whose condition has become acute has asked the fuehrer to be relieved of his command as chief of the luftwaffe at a time when his strength is needed. The fuehrer has granted his request. The new chief of the luftwaffe is Gen. Ritter von Grein who has been promoted to Gen. Field Marshal."

Von Grein was once reported head of German air forces in Russia, and also a commander at Orel.

Going to Pieces

This announcement, taken as another indication that Germany was rapidly going to pieces, came amid one of the greatest developing manhunts in history. The objective of the manhunt, Hitler, soon must make the biggest decision of his life, if he had not made it—whether to fall as a martyr among his troops defending Berlin or seek refuge in the Bavarian mountains or some other German-held pocket.

Although many Allied quarters believe Hitler already is in the Alpine fortress, the captured German general staff member said he was in Berlin—as did all German broadcasts. In one of these broadcasts Dr. Werner Naumann, Nazi propaganda ministry undersecretary, declared:

"He (Hitler) could give a thousand reasons which would make his presence elsewhere appear more essential, but he is in Berlin to lead prsonally the struggle and to link his fate to that of the Reich capital."

Of Personal Bravery

Naumann said that Nazi propaganda minister Paul Joseph Goebbels also was in the burning Nazi capital and that Goebbels and Hitler were "endeavoring to outdo each other in feats of personal bravery."

Another possibility was raised by a free German press service report in Stockholm that Hitler had sent a long-prepared double, August Wilhelm Bartholdy, a former grocer in Plauen, to be filmed dying on the last Berlin barricades while the Fuehrer himself disappears underground.

Still another possibility is that Hitler may commit suicide as have many of his Nazi underlings when cornered.

A Moscow dispatch said Soviet shock troops had orders to take Hitler alive if possible. Should he be caught or killed in Berlin it might signal the end of most German organized resistance.

Meanwhile a Swiss dispatch said French refugees from Germany reported that Hitler and Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler were at Salzburg, near the Fuehrer's hideout at Berchtesgaden which the RAF pounded with six-ton depth bombs yesterday.

International Speculation

International speculation also was rife about the whereabouts of Hitler's fellow-dictator and puppet, Benito Mussolini, who was reported by the Swiss Telegraphic Agency to have been captured by Italian patriots in northern Italy. Another Rome dispatch said there were unconfirmed reports that he had escaped in disguise into Switzerland.

Russian and wester Allied military leaders have given little public indication of immediate concern about the location of Hitler saying they are determined first to smash every German fighting unit.

Nevertheless the question "where is Hitler?" caught the imagination of the average Briton, who feels the whole Nazi plan for carrying on an underground fight after the Reich is completely occupied rests on the fuehrer.

Whitehall was frankly skeptical that Hitler had been in Berlin since the Russians broke into the city — and this belief was underscored by the raid on Berchtesgaden. Even with direct hits, however, the chances of killing him in an air attack there appeared remote if stories of deep air raid shelters in the hide-out are true.

Flair for Dramatic

The only thing that would draw the fuehrer into the battle zone, it is reasoned here, is his flair for the dramatic.

Official quarters caution against accepting rumors relating to Hitler or any other top-flight Nazis. They maintain that these Nazis would like nothing better than to be presumed dead.

"What could be easier," asked the London Star, "than for the Germans to produce an unrecognizable body and say that it was Hitler's while Hitler himself was making his getaway by plane or submarine?"

Japan, some quarters contend, would be his only destination, although there is always the possibility he could prolong his life as a fugitive by escaping, for example, to Norway.

Few persons here believe Hitler will be taken alive. Many feel that once trapped for good he would end his life. One source with underground connections, however, was firmly convinced that Hitler lacked the courage to kill himself.

Under the Nazi scheme for perpetuating National Socialist philosophy it is generally thought Hitler's complete disappearance without a trace of his fate would best serve the purpose of exploiting him as a legend.

Thus there is a possibility that Hitler may be destroyed by the very men who are trying to preserve him in the eyes of the German people.

London, April 26 (AP)—The Swiss said tonight that a "linkup between the Americans and Russians in the Elbe region took place this afternoon on a front of many miles." There was no confirmation from Allied sources.

Albania Asks Recognition

Popular Front Regime, Sponsored by Reds, Wants Seat at San Francisco.

London, April 26 (A. P.).—The new popular front Government of little Albania—possibly acting with Russian approval—added its voice today to the clamor set up by the Soviet-sponsored Lublin Polish regime for recognition at the San Francisco conference.

The Moscow radio acted as the sounding board for Albania's claims, put forward by Col.-Gen. Enver Hoxha, self-described leader of the Albanian Army of Liberation who took over as popular front premier last October.

Hoxha made it clear that his demand for recognition already had been placed before the United States. Moscow quoted him as telling a Yugoslav journalist in an interview:

"To the demand of the Albanian people that our government be recognized and our country admitted to the San Francisco conference, the United States Secretary of State replied that the United States could not support our demand because participation is limited to recognized governments. He promised that Albania probably would be invited to the next conference.

"We do not like this answer, because—although we are a small nation—we shed no less blood in the war against the Fascist forces than the great nations. Thus an injustice has been committed against us. We trust that the Allies are solving the problem."

Hoxha's statement came as the Slav federation which Russia has proposed for eastern Europe took on more definite shape with Czecho-Slovakia, Yugoslavia and the Lublin Polish regime already bound to the Soviet Union by treaties and Albania apparently moving into line for a similar pact. Hoxha was quoted by Moscow as voicing his "infinite trust in the Soviet Union."

Albania's King Zog, who has been living in luxurious exile just outside London, has been ignored in dispatches from Tirana reported by Moscow. Zog himself has offered to leave the fate of his crown up to the will of his people.

Hoxha's program for the government of Albania, as outlined by the Moscow radio, is patterned closely on that laid down by both Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia and the Lublin Poles—with "agrarian reform" the first item on the agenda.

REICHSMARSHAL GIVES UP HIS AIR COMMAND

Hamburg Radio Says Hitler Approves—Fuehrer May Die in Berlin.

HIGH STAFF OFFICER SEIZED

One of Nazi's Best-known Generals Says War Will End Within a Few Days.

London, April 26 (A. P.).—The Hamburg radio said tonight that Reichsminister Hermann Goering was ill of heart trouble and that his resignation as commander of the German Air Force had been accepted by Adolf Hitler.

The broadcast, which described Goering's condition as "acute," said Hitler had appointed Gen. Ritter von Grein to command of the Luftwaffe and promoted him to the rank of Field Marshal General.

The radio account said Goering had been suffering from heart trouble for some time. The whereabouts of the portly No. 2 Nazi has been a matter of speculation for some time.

V-2's Killed 2,754 Britons

London, April 26 (AP)—British censorship lifted a partial silence of nearly eight months today to disclose that Germany's dreaded V-2 rocket bombs had killed 2,754 persons and seriously wounded 6,523.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that the attacks definitely had ceased—in fact, none have been reported in England in the last month—and said that most of the rockets, estimated unofficially at between 1,050 and 1,280, had fallen on London "in an almost overwhelming degree." Some American soldiers were among the 9,277 casualties.

'Southern England'

The rocket attacks began September 8, 1944, supplanting the earlier buzz-bomb attacks which began last June and which took an even heavier toll of British lives while they lasted. The rocket attacks stopped when Allied troops overran the launching sites in Holland.

Besides London, the now obsolete phrase of "Southern England," so often mentioned in British communiqués telling of the rocket attacks, including Essex, Hertfordshire, Suffolk, Norfolk, Kent and Surrey. Occasional blasts also occurred in Bedfordshire, Buckinghamshire, and Sussex.

The first and last rockets launched at this country both blasted London's outskirts. The first fell in Chiswick, demolishing suburban homes. The last one struck March 27 in Orpington, killing 1 person and injuring 23.
